not certaine in the party that prepareth or appointeth remedies to every body, & the iffue is not to be feene, but finally by along observation and experience; who can perswade himselfe herein concerning poylons? For, if in the Art of phylicke, Experience is dangerous, as the wife & lear-Hippocin lib.s . ned Hippocrates well aduifeth vs : it is cafie to conceiue, how vncertain the proofe of poylons are, because it is not lawfull to experiment their vertue, both with-

vpon brute Beafts, as I formerly faide, is very yeapt for any accommodation to a tures are very man, because the natures of men and beafts are greatly differing, as namely by this proofe: that Stares feede fafely vpon

vs. From these reasons then we may colthat one selfe same poyson produceth his action, fometimes quickly, and fome-

Bodies of frong and good tempeature relift the power of Cold poytons work toonest their force, when they are given to hotte natures. Which may appeare a Paradoxe to many: but having bin made most eni-out danger and punishment also, as wholsome medicines in diversitie of persons. And whatfocuer hath bin observed

Hemlocke, and Quailes on Helleborus, which are both physicke and poyson to lect finally, that the Arte (if it may bee tearmed an Arte) or coniectures of empoyloners, is to be effeemed very erronious, and of flender firmnes : confidering, times flackly; and that not fo much by any reason in it selfe, as by the nature and complection of the body, widenesse or narrownesse of the passages, strength or weaknesse of naturall heate; and the plenty or scarsity of semblable excrements, & diuers other meanes. For the power of poylon remaineth sometimes vaine and fruitlesse, or mightily rebated, according to fuch bodies, as haue their faculties of the foule front and ftrong, by reason of an excellent good temperature. And Galen thinketh, that the building and composition of the body, is the cause why Hemlocke killeth a man.& nourisheth Stares. Whereto he addeth, the strength and vigour of heate, diminithing and tubtillizing, in regard he is perswaded that it happeneth for that colde poyfons better and fooner doe declare

dently apparant by the faid author, I dare

So much, to come so neere him as a man may, I let the proofe passe voon my credite, because his experience is warrantable.

As for the nature of excrements, they weaken the actions of poylons, being re- Of the feneral pugnant to their qualities. For if there be action of any aboundance of phlegine in the en- phlegine and trailes, the power of hot poyfon will bee choller, by greatly rebated : and on the contrary, hot or aboundmoysture hasteneth the action of such a ing. poyfon. Likewise, ouer-copious choller stoppeth and breaketh the stupefactine venome received, whereas phlegme fauoreth it. And all that these wicked empoyfoners do know, is nothing elfe, but what poylons onely kill, by enident condition of their qualities, and that they hurt with all their substance. Such are they as kill by corrupting or corrofion, which must have time to enforce their mallice (as Galen faieth) wheras other do weaken themselnes by their tardying. For they do all putrific in time, & so much the more, as the place is moister and hotter. Such then as worke by putrifying, time doth augment their action : because they of poylons that have encrease the corruption, and in regard their working they ceasse not to corrupt themselves; re- by putrifacticiprocally they corrupt and rot the body. From whence ensueth, that death is caufed long time after: especially such poy-fons as are of groffe and earthy fubstance. Thus you may fee, what empoysoners haue learned by long observation. First, they know how to distinguish ve- What apprenomes, which kill by their infigne and no- henfion em-torious qualities, from other that cause poysoners have of them death by their whole substance. Secondly, that they naturally bring in observatito any man whatfocuer, a most sudden harme, and yet doe not discouer their vigour, but vpon longer time. Thirdly, that (of both the two kindes) they kill eyther fooner or later (without any respect to the body) acording as they haue the most, or the least quantity. Fourthly, they can deale in fuch fort, that all poylons shall be tempered according to their owne pleasure, and make them sweeter or sharper, because they should kill the sooner or slower, which is without any fecret or myracle of nature.

We viually exercise the same cunning, in purgative drugges, fetting an edge on of purgative fuch as are dull and flowe, and give them as fpurs to further purpofe; and contrariwife, wee tetaine over-hafty penetration

Gggg 3

Effects of poyfons im polsible to be limitted to a moment of as are naturally more flacke & tardy. But that a man should limit the effects of poifons, to a certaine day, and to a point or moment named; we hold to bee meerely abfurd and ridiculous, because the nature of each man cannot be perfectly knowne (as we have before sufficiently declared) from whence proceedeth the most vncer-

in the other, by mingling with them, fuch

Digetfity of effects both in the agent and patient.

fects, according to the divers disposition, as well of that which worketh, as of that which suffereth. And this happeneth, not onely by reason of euident qualities, but also of hidden and proper: whence alfo it enfueth, that the thing which doth this man a great deale of harme, may bee as profitable to another. Pedro de Albano (whom some call the call humour: may give him a poylon, that shall consume in ten yeares space. From hence he collecteth, fome men may bee poyfoned, that droope and dry away daily (vulgarly teatmed in Italian, Herbatiet Strigati) and so it may bee ordered sometimes, that poyfoning may bee limitted.

But that it is to be presupposed by Astro-logye, I hardly thinke to be ener dinined.

those men shall bee taken hence. Pliny focaketh of no time knowne more certaine of death, then yfe of the Sea Hare (a venomous fish) bringeth, where he faith:

Such men as (in eating) feele poy fon, and by the first signe perceive the poyson: (ball dye in as many houres after, as the Hare hath lined. Now, who shall divine the age of the Hare, to the ende, that the appointed houre of death, may be fore-tolde there-

I confesse, that all such as are seene to taine tearme or time of enery poylon, for procuring the death of a man. For enery naturall action meeteth with divers ef-Reconciler, or Peace-maker) where hee explicateth this question, propoundeth: ment and aniwer of Pedre That he may do it, who having certainly de Albano knowne the continuance of a mans life, vpon this by the measure and quantity of his radipoint.

Fore-spoken or bewitched.

> droope and decay by little and little, being empoyfoned, haue a long affliction: but yet there is no certaine time when Plininlib.14. сар.7.

A má of more then ordinary skill to haue fuch know . ledge.

And yet if I did admit them, that a man didknow how many dayes the Hare hath lived: I can never grant (for al that) that all men shall dye at one and the same time; because one and the selfe-same poifon, worketh diucrily, according to the diversity of mens bodies, as it hath beene more then sufficiently proued. So that it had beene much more truely faide (as Poyfon can the fame Pliny after addeth) The faide poy- haue no cer. fon can have no certainty of time, according

CHAP. VII.

as Licinius Macer alfo faith.

Of diners erronious and idle opinions, conceined in fantasticke braines, and verily beleeved, as if they were found truths.

Eople erre in many matters, concerning diuers creatures (haply not inuented of them clius) but held by elder and precedent intimation, as lit- cient people, tle also apprehended or vnderstoode by them; but, perhappes, meere fictions of among many their owne braines, vpon some appearing probable reasons. As wife and woorthie Poets, who have enfructed bad and bestiall men, to the imitation of vertue, by witty fables and pleasant inventions. which euer hath bene, and still is permitted as lawfull in them, even as the like licence is allowed to Painters, as Horace teflifieth faying:

Poets and Rainters equall power containe, To fay on do, what best shall like their braine.

As for Painters, we fee that they figure an Angell in the forme of a Youth, cloa- The variable thed with a garment of Starres, bare hea- fliapes given ded, and having wings like a Bird. And to many the Soule of man is represented like to a things. young Infant, ftark naked. The divell, to Divell. haue hornes, and a dreadfull raile: And yet neuerthelesse, these are but spirites without bodies, and cannot carry the refemblance of any visible creature.

In the like manner, Hell, which is but a place, is figured with a hideous gaping Hell. throate : Death, beeing but a privation of life, is resembled by the Anatomized bones of a dead man, carrying a Scithe in his hand . Loue, which is but a paffion Loue. and accident, not subsisting any way of it felfesis painted and prefented like a naked

The figures as Saturne, Jupiter, Mars, Mercurie, and

Chap. 7.

do carry no

The faying of

The Pellican.

childe, and blind; wearing wings, a Bow, and a Quiver furnished with Arrowes. The Winds, which are but a moued agitated Ayre; are figured with mens heads, hauing their Checkes hugely fwolne, euen as we see one founding of a Trum-

people: yet haue they demonstrations fignes in the likewife, and prefentation is made of the twelue Signes of the Zodiack (which are but certaine Starres) yet disposed into diuers figures, as one of a Ramme, another of a Bull, the third of two twinne infants, &c. And so the images of heaven which are out of the Zodiacke; one in forme of a Beare, another of an Eagle, others in riuers, in an Harpie, Dogge, Dragon, &c.

> Venus; thefe beare the forme of perfonages, in diners habites and countenances: but the Sun and Moone are otherwife shewne and distinguished. Painters alfo, have evermore deno> ted the figure of a Starre with five rayons or beames, thereby expressing theyr twinckling splendour : although all the Starres do not sparkle in that manner; and well wee know beside, that they are all round in figure, without points or corpomisse to the purpose. The Ayre cannot be painted, no more then heaven, cleare and transparant bodyes; but yet they are represented by a blewe or azure colour.

Water is figured by Waues, and the reall beams. As for the Elements, they fi-The elements gure the fire (which is inuifible) like vnto our artificiall fire, which is not much a-

Earth in thape of a Globe, rounde as a Of Creatures, they counterfeyte some Creatures figured in fafabulously : as the Salamander, which is no fuch thing as it is painted nor the Dol-The Salaman phine likewife , as it is prefented in he Dolphin. Armes and Deuices : Nor the Flower de Luce, as it is commonly knowne to euc-ry one. And the Heart, beit of a man. or of other creature, it is of no fuch shape as Painters giue it. The Pellicane is figured, with her tharpe Beake turned vpon his breft, which

The launceth therwith, to make hir blood vilue forth, for the norithing of hir york

dying thereby: And yet we see and know that the Pellican hath her beak edgeleffe. flat, and broad; justly like in fathion voto the Apothecaries Spatule or Slice, as being no way able to wound her breaft. Alfo, the Greeke worde [Pettican,] fignifying an Axe or Coopers Adge or Ads, As for Astrologers, though they want | plainly declareth that her Beake is flat, & paintings, whereby to enstruct ignorant | as it should be. Moreouer it is fayde, that the Sire or Hee-Bird, beateth the young ones, euen as with blowes on the face, or (as wee vie to fay) boxes on the eare, vntill they are almost dead and then the Dam woundeth her breaft, to reuiue them with her blood: blowes commonly are given with flat, and not pointed things. The Phoenix, being painted burning her felfe in a fire, prepared purpofely for And next the Planets, which are but stars, her; is much more fabulous. But al these things are lawfully permitted to Painters and Poets (as we faide before) vpon fome good respect and secret reason, needlesse to bee reported hecre; making mention onely but of certaine erronious opinions.

which the sulgar holde for fute and most certaine, and which are the more excu-Sable, because many great Philosophers and ancient Phylitions, have defended the like opinions. 1. Of the Vipen.

TT hath bin givery ancient opinion, that In what manthe Viper ioyneth with her male, by re- ner the Viper Reyuing his head in at her mouth (throgh gender by his defect of other genitall partes) and that male. the female by the delight the feeleth, locketh her teeth fo fast together, as thereby the biteth off her males head, and fo conceyueth. Afterwardes, when the time for delinery commeth, the yong ones having no other vilue, and (cuen as it were) to reuenge the death of theyr Father: bice and teare the belly of their mother, wherby the dyeth. Here is the reason why it is faide of a Posthumus, of whome the mother dieth in deliuerance the is like the Viper, that never feeth his father nor mather. This hath fomtime ferued as an Emblem with this deuice of motto, Quod tibi fieri haue done to non vis alteri ne feceris.

All this is falle, and fauored by many, but hadly a that beeing well understood which Artifotle hath faid The Viper (aith ones, euen to the price of her owne life, he) is conceined of Egges which fhe hardred

Whatthou wouldft not thee doe not hou to ano-

Arift. in Anim. lib 9.cep.7.

Chap.8.

Aug in Civitat.

come foorth all formed, being despoyled of the membrane or thinne skinne, which contained The Viper de liuereth her broode, but by one daily.

them within the wombe; and that is their fecondine. But the later-most (mooned with impatience) bite and teare that membrane, to effue forth the more hastily. For the damme or mother bringeth above twenty, and yet delivereth but one daily; which maketh the hinmost impatient, and constraineth them angerly to gnawe the tunicle or membrane; but neither the mothers lides or belly, as is vainely imagined. Many may be deceived also, concerning the originall and etymologic of the word, as if Vipera were to fay, Quafi vi pariens: whereas it is (indeed) of Vivum pariens. For there is not any Serpent, that produceth her broade or young aline, or living, but the Viper. Others lay egges, which (out of the belly) are converted into Serpents.

2. Of the Beauer, called Caftor alfo. TT is vulgarly helde, that this beaft tea-

The naturall ynderstanding of the Beauer.

No Serpent yeeldeth her yong liuing,

but the Viper.

rethaway his testicles with his owne teeth, when he perceiveth himfelfe to be purfued by Hunts-men: hauling a kind of knowledge naturally, that they feeke him only for them. Whereupon some thinke, that this name of Caftor was given him: because he geldeth himselse, and so (by confequent) becometh chafte, . Which is incerely falle, for, as Diofco-

Diglati.42.23. Vides wrote long fince; hee can by no meanes reach or rouch his stones. Those are onely two tumours, which (by yeares) comes to him, & are as impostums, ful of fatte matter or suppouration, called Caftoriam, which also hee can not teare away. And he is nor rearmed Cafter, of gelding, or of chastine ; but of the Greeke word Gafter, which fignifieth a Bolly, becausehe is full paunched, and this is nothing elfe. but by changing the letter Ginto C. Read hereupon the most learned History of M. tam. z.cap.vit.

3. Of the Salamander.

of the second Tome.

Rear errour is there also, concerning the true flature of this creature, which is faid to line in the fire, and bath power to extinguish it. From which coniecture, thereof, by licking al the filth away, wher-

in her belue, and become little Vipers: they | was taken the device of great King Frances, the first of that name (father of Arts and Sciences) Nutrifco, & extingo: I feed and extinguish. Dioscorides hath very learnedly deli- Diosc lib.a.ca.,

uered the contrary, and Galen also, saying: Galen in lib.; That the Salamander can resist the fire for de Tempo. Some time; but it burneth, by tarrying any long while therein. Neuertheleffe, it were better to hold with Aristotle, in faying; Arifin bifor. Anim.l. g.c. 19 That the Salamander is not burned in the fire, but walkes aloft woon it extincting both the flame and coales. Experience, which is more flrong Painters have then all authorities of the wifest in the failed in the world teacheth vs, that this is a matter no Salamander. way to be credited . As for the figure of the Salamander, the portraiture thereof

alfo is meerely fabulous, and contrined

by Painters, who have thrust such an imagination vponit; making thew also of it, to be a farre greater Beaft then it is. It is like to the smaller fort of Lizzards, which Like Newtes, frequent the walles in Languedoc, named the Lizardi Langroles, and in Daulphine Larmufes. But hauntingold the Salamander is formwhat greater, mar-houses, ked with many spots. His body is full of a white movifure, and thicke like Milke, which issueth foorth by the pores of the skinne, preffing it neuer fo little. Which A defaisti milke or moifture is fo colde, that the Sa- of the Sallamander may (for fome time) withfrand (emblance. the fire but yet not long, without burning roafting and dying, as we have many times made good triall of. Farre is it from quenching the fire, or much leffe living in it like as the Chameleon lineth by the ayre; and I indge both alike in truth : albeit I never faw any Chameleon aline to make proofe of.

4. Of the Shee-Beare. Tis faid alfo, that the produceth a piece of flesh, not having the forme of any creature : and afterward thee licketh it in The Bearing fuch manner, that thereby onely free giueth it both fashion and forme . This is ture at the Rendeletius, of Bifhes, in the laft chapter but a kinde of hyperbolicall fpeaking, for fifth, although to fay truely, the vone one is very unfake. to fay truely, the yong one is very vnfight- diffinguified ly after the birth, being all couered with as atterward. foame or froth, and in fuch a quantity, as it feemeth indeede but a himpe of fleth, without any distinction of parts. The Dam or Mother cleanfeth it immediately true shape of a creature. So may we fee a W helpe (or a yong Lambe newly yeaned)much muddied and before ared at the first, as it is hardly knowne at the prime view: but when the Damme hath doone her louing and naturall Office, then all the parts are plainly seene and distinguished.

CHAP. VIII.

Avulgar Question: What Language a child Chall peake, that never heard any peech. That a man or woman borne dumb, is neceffarily deafe. As also, beethat is Nurst among dumbe people; And not, on the contrary, that one dumbe by Nature, should be deafe: And whence it ensueth, that a man is so tardie, in knowing howe to Meake.

cie; euen as if hee had bene nurffed by a dumbe Woman, among dumbe people;

or in a Desert vitterly vninhabited of people, where neuer any speech had beene

Herodotus declareth in his fecond book, that Pfammeticus, a King of the Ægyptians, was defirous (on a time) to make proofe heereof, to the end, that he might where neuer any voyce of man was, or could be heard... After two yeeres were past, and they being brought before the King, fometimes they could pronounce this Word Bdc, which in the Phrygian tongue, fignificth Bread . Whereuppon some gathered, that the Phrygian was

The opinion of the vulgar roofe made 7 a King of judge thereby, what was the most auncius the molt ent and naturall Language, of all them that were spoken in the world. He caused two Children to bee nurfed in a Forrest.

he op inion of S. Augustin the first language of man. But as Saint Augustine fayeth, thefe children might have learned the Word Bee (and so retained it) of Goats, among by (not long after) it appeareth in the | which they were nourished. For, as hee sheweth in his worke of the quantitie of the Soule; all manner of speaking is by hearing, and by imitation. Notwithstanding, in his Booke of the Cittie of God, hee thinketh and beleeueth, that before the confusion of Tongues (which happened at the building of the Tower of Ba-bell) the Hebrew Language was natural-laugh, mouing hands and feet, & when ftrength ferueth, to go.

ly to all . As if words were an action proceeding from naturall instinct, or the fim- A refutation ple and proper motion of the foule: euen of the latter words of S. as if they had power in themselves (and of Augustine. themselves, with some naturall inclinations) to bring forth in euidence and effect fpeech, without any enstructing. Such knowledge is to fucke, to cry, mourne,

The Goate, Lambe, Chicken, and other fuch like creatures, fo foone as they as are done are bred and brought forth, bring them- by inftinet of felues to the teates, knowing naturally, nature onely, that there is their nourifhment. Beeing grown greater, they make choife (among a thousand divers plants) such as best di-Vlgar people.

hold it as a thing most alfured, that a man shoulde naturally speake the Language of Adam, if he neuer beech from his instances to be the standard of the stand gest and agree with their complexion. They bleate and cackle, even from theyr production, which answereth to the cries of children: and this is done without teaching, or any enfirmation, or fo much as example or imitation.

Man hath the like actions and reprefentations, euen as other creatures, fimply naturall of his owne, and without any of a science apprentiship. But the worde or Speech, or discipline. which is a voyce fignificatine, expressing the conceptions of a reasonable Soule : they proceede onely and wholly from a Science or Discipline, which is comprehended by the means of hearing. So that it is impossible, that any one being deafe, from his birth, and persenering in the fame deafenesse, should ever knowe how to speake, although that his tongue, and other parts thereto appointed, sare most exquifitely composed and ordayned, as none more formally can be any way de-What then shall wee say of him that neuer heard any thing? Speech is a Dif cipline, no leffe then that of Mufick: both the one and the other, are apprehended by hearing. From whence it commeth, that a childe (in what place focuer it is nourished and brought vp) apprehend-

Speech is an comparable to Mulicke.

The mother tongue,or learned from the Mother.

guage (which some tearme Vernacle or Maternall) whatsoeuer it be, either Hebrew, Greeke, Latine or Barbarisme; one is as casic to him as another. For in hauing nothing by naturall impression, he is indifferent to all: like as the colour of white receiveth all other tinetures, and fome kinde of water all sauours; and so in the like comparisons.

Adam could never have spoken any That Adam naturall language of his owne, no more had neuer then we : but God inspired him with an fpoken of vnderstanding soule, capable of such a himfelte,or naturally. language as pleased him. As he did likewife to Eue; and their first children learned to speake by them, enen as ours now do of vs.

Heere wee are to know, that from the corruption of our first Parents transgression, we have and hold al our naturall conditions and inclinations, and namely, the very greatest imperfection Men natural.

that can be, of enclining more vnto cuill ly more en clined to cuill then good, more truely tearmed Original finne. But as concerning speech or speaking, we have it not but by apritude & hability, euen as all other disciplines or enftructions.

That which is truely naturall of our foule, is enchased or carractred into abody of fuch quality, temperature and complection, as man ought to have for his perfection. For the fonde nicenesse of birth, is like the jufant in his first yeare, vnapt to reason, by the impersection of The vnarence his body, and likewife as they, who by accident of sicknesse, or passion of minde (as Loue and idle disturbances) become weakly braind, foolish, fortish, lunaticke, and mad. In all which imperfections, the foule is cuermore her owne, remai-> not having the body at her command. Aristotle enstructeth (to fingular good purpose) That our (onle is ignorant of all things, and like wate a new Table, neatly po-Whed and prepared, wherein nothing hath bene depicted or engrauen, when it was infufed into the body of man, but fent downe from Heaven as we beleeve . Shee hath nothing but simplicity, sincerity, purity, facility and conveniencie, with inclination and aptitude to enery Arte and Science, and to all ning still in her integrity : and yet(neuer-thelesse) cannot exercise her reason, by eth and retaineth the same vulgar Lan- | knowledge of things divine and humane (which is the true definition of Philoso- The true def. phy) Alwayes referred and excepted, nition of phi those faculties and actions, necessarily losophy conrequired in a living foule, as those in Soule. Beafts; which our foule exercifeth in the body from the very beginning, and before the infant is borne, without doctrine or discipline (as already hath beene rela-

Doctrine is not requifite in her, but for Artes and Sciences, having nothing in her, whatfoeuer divine Flato fayeth to The opinion the contrary, affirming; That the reasona- of Plato, qui ble soule hath knowledge of all things, when it commeth into the body: but beeing plunged and Submerged in the great humidity of ning the cape the body, it forgetteth all. Like to him foule. that becommeth oblinious, or (as they fay in Greek) ficke of a Lethargye, in regard of the Phlegmaticke humour which drowneth his braine. But afterward, in fuch measure, as the body loseth this great humidity, and drieth it felfe by little and little: the Soule also recouereth it selfe by paucity of degrees, and comprehendeth all things demonstrated and shewne vnto her, as in remembring and acknowledging her felfe, and not in learning any nouelties.

This was the opinion of good olde Plato, which maketh well for such as affirme, that wee haue fome certainty of from our full Language, which came from our first Parents A. Parents, Adam and Ene: and that wee dam & im. should (in time) speake thevery same, if the other, which wee ordinarily heare in our houses, did not preoccupate it. But in truth, our foule neyther knoweth, or The our foul holdeth (of it felfe) any Language, nor is affected or given to any one in particular: but enclineth equally, and is indif- naturally, ferent to all tongues, and in so good maner, as one hindereth not another, which (perhaps) a naturall tongue would, if it had any at all. At leastwife, some slippes or branches would be remembred thereof, as in fuch, that could not altogether forget the accents, or the prolations, with mother-tongue. The reasonable soule then, having not any language of it felfe, is very proper and apt to comprehend, and well to expresse by found and entire instru-

fome certaine words and phrases of their

That the not of words

Chap. 7.

Arift.Probl.57

fpeake, how it is formed, ments, all diversity of tongues. As it is recorded of King Mithridates, to have fo memory of King Mithrihappy a memory; that he could well and properly speake two and twenty divers voice is onely dinature, and

By nature, we have no more simply then a voyce, common to all other creaone word. And in his Booke of the Sen- cap.t. tures that breathe, and different onely in ces, and their organs, where he maketh a them, by and according to their kindes. comparison of such as are blind and deafe For euery animall hath a proper voyce. borne, he faith, Desfe and dumbe are as acwhich groffely fignifieth his affections or cidents, which necessarily follow one another. passions: Which is no way knowne how to Also Alexander Aphrodifeus produceth in be expressed (laith Ammenus voon Aristo. his Problemes, that beeing demaunded, tle) or represented by letters or syllables, no why men borne deafe, should be dumbe more then the fundry murmures of the Sea. likewife : answereth familiarly . They can

What it is to

beginneth

and of the Windes. Euen fo, man in his never speake that which they never heard. prime or first moneths, when hee liueth fimply as a beaft, hath nothing but a voice edy a voice. Onely, before he learnes to speake: wherof being depriued, he is faid to be dumb, although he hath not loft his voyce. Wherof Aristotle speaketh very notably in his Problems : That Man onely is dumbe.

Speech then is nothing elfe, but to For, I will not heere inferre, that some fashion and articulate the voice naturall, man may teach a Bird, to tune another by addition of a vocall conforance, in the Song beside her owne; and the enstructicomposing and enterlacing, for the exon of the dammes (both he and the) to pressing of fignificant words, which extheir yong ones. Whereby we may eafily plicate, and (as a man may fay) do infancomprehend, that if Birds have one natutize and produce the conceptions of ma. rall fong (which is the voyce common to which are infinitely more divers, and in all their kinde) and another taught or apfarre greater number, then those of other prehended in time of continuing with Creatures, exempted of reason and distheir owne : that, they could not fo keepe course. And therefore it greatly behoof and enioy, as if they had bin immediatly ueth, that a man should know extraordiseperated, and taken out of the neast. E. narily, how to diucrlifie his voice, for anfwering to that which the great capacity of his spirit containeth. An infant collecteth and affembleth diuers conceptions in his understanding, his owne naturall voyce, as at the instant rall voyce. How an infant and the words which he heareth (accomof his birth, and bringing into the world. panied with some actions) striue to make tic & attaine fignification of all: which he comprehendeth by little and little, and then retaineth by frequent reitteration. Afterward, whe of one and the same kinde, in divers places. his tongue is growne more firme and able; hee stringth to represent that which

Let the Partridge in fundry Countries ferue for example, having divers notes; for some he hath retained by imperfect fumbling, chucke or louke, and others clacker or chirpe. and at the ende of a little long apprenti-And there are divers (maller Birds, which (hip, speaketh like to a young Patrot, afchaunt no fuch notes as their Dams doe : but ter a long time spent in listening. For obeing taken out of their Nests, are quite châtherwise, as well the one as the other, would have but his branches or flippes, the tunes of other enstructed Birds, or of which is the naturall voyce, without any other fignification, then of certaine affections or passions, as we have already said.

Lets now obserue that which Ariftotle Difference faith, in his Historie of Creatures. Those creatures which speake, have voyce also : but voyce and all such as have voyce, beake not. For, such speech. Arist in 4 lib. as are deaffe by nature, are also dumb: whereby they may yet render a voyce, but now peake

For better confirmation of this matter, we must necessarily adde that which Arifotle writeth in the same place before alledged, concerning the Voyce, and the finging of Birdes, which is in part fimply

The voice (faith Aristotle) difplaieth, naturall, and in part of some intelligence is in part by and learning as his owne amongst them. apprehension or learning.

uen fo in like manner, an infant to be fre- A child withquented with all people that speake, and out teaching (by their meere conversation) instructed to speake, could have to fpeake; would elfe haue none other but but his natu-

what difference is faide to be among the lan- ariff in lib. 4. quages of Beasts & Birds, even among them de Animago,7 ged from paternall education: and folearne That Birds ucrs notes & mens voices: inuring themselves to their tunes one of notes, customes and manners. Sometime it another, behath beene observed in a Nightingale, that fides their of Ariftotle. that the foule hath nothing of it felte, as concerning Sciences

The opinion

then good.

What is truly the Soule.

their firft yeares, & the

ing by passi-minde.

roids.

taught her Isrgen to her young ones, and fo case them mutation to divers fongs. For, Beech cannot come of nature, as the voyce doth : but is to be attained by study and difcipline. Thus you may perceive alfo, why men make wee of divers Languages, albeit they are like to one another in voice dec.

The conclusion,that men borne dumb, are deafe alf.

What diffe rence there i betweene the

focech at In fants & that of Birds,

Mc-thinks this should sceme proofe enough, that speech is athing properly learned by the meanes of hearing, from whence it enfueth incuitably, that fuch as are deaffe borne, & they that never heard any speech (without being deaffe) are dumbe by consequent, except (by succesfion of time) they doe enjoy hearing, and their cares be vnftopt; as we have divers times observed, and made practise of, by children that have not spoken before seauen or eight yeares.

touch a point not impertinent toour pur- one of the faid portions may bee offended and pole, to wit: What difference there is in corrupted, without the other : it hapneth alfo, the fpeech, which an Infant learneth of himfelfe, from that of a Parrot, a Starling, a Pye,a Larke, a Linner, a Thrush, a Rauen, a laye, and such like, as they have learned. Very certaine it is, that as their foules are different, even fo is their Language : in regard that a childe vnderstanfo and fo, or better if hee could, to explicare and make his conceptions under-Hath not any intelligence, of the fignificaif a Bird demaund, or answere sometime (prouing to purpo(e) it is by hap or aduenture, and not ordinary; except it bee fuggefted remembred, or elfe expressely made to speake it.

in 10 Morcouer, a Bird will alwaies adde forme croffe thwarting word or other,

which argueth fufficiently, that it hath on it hath bin commonly faide, that who-simple man may learne some folly, or vnfitting words in the Germaine, Polifb, or any other vnknowne tongueto him, and ignorantly vieit as a falutation, and be derided for his labour. like others, that thinking to bee reputed learned, will vie many Latine fentences and phrases, quite contrary to their owne meaning in the speaking.

Whatfocuer Bird practite, out any intel- not any in telligence at all. Whereupligence.

It remaineth now to know, feeing the naturall dumbe man is deaffe by confe- Thefecond quent : if likewise the man dumbe by na-whether the ture (by reason of some defect in his dombe man tongue, or in other parts requisite for by bind, is also deafeby (peaking) bee also deaffe consequently ? to deate by consequent. Lactantius Firmianus, in his Booke of the workes of God, would have it to bee fo: Lettan in Open. but being too groffe an Anatomist (as is Dall, 1, cap 7) easily comprehended by his reasons) hee is not in this point to be credited. Alexander Aphrodifeus, in the place before al- Alex Aphrodia ledged, Gemeth to fay no: but he buildeth the Prod. 133. vpon no good foundation, when he faith; That there is a paire of nerues, which come from the Braine, one portion whereof goeth to the tongue, and the other to the cares. And that by this means, the affections of the toong and of the eares, doe enfily communicate the-Now I come (in passing along) to selves together. Also, for a much as that that a man may become deaffe by some dif-

But his supposition holdeth no place in this point, no more then the reasons of Divers both fome moderne men ; following Pedro de nucient and Albano, tearmed the Peace-maker, faying: ters deceived That the fixt likeneffein the Nerues of the in this point. deth what he speaketh, and would speake Braine, which mooneth the tongue, is firmely allied to the fift likeneffe, which ferueth for hearing. For, as I will never grant, that stood: whereas on the contrary, a Bird defect of speech followeth deafenesse, by any confent or simpathy of the toong note well cion of whatfocuer it pratieth. So that, with the cares, but only through want of worth the ch enstruction, which should be received by feruing. the eares: fo can I not confent, that by the vice or incongruity of those parts dedicated to speaking, hearing should any way be offended.

eafe, and yet (on the contrary) not be dumbe.

In the ace also there is no likelyhood or coherece, confidering that those parts worke not; cyther for the integrity, nibt for the construction of the cares, & leffe for the enfirmation of hearing, who (for What the esfoeuerspeaketh, and knoweth not what he speaketh, prateth like a Parror. So a no more then the fight, or any of the extension of the collarly translations and the speaketh of the speaketh. teriour sences. And as for them, they require nothing elfe, but to be free and de pen, without any impeachment or him! derance, and that their object should bee neere, within a certaine distance. Why then, we fee and heare naturally, without any doctrine or discipline. Seeing then, that hearing neyther taketh or apprehendeth any thing of the verball infiruments, Thethird arit enfueth.

In the voice of beafts, are ew or no let-

of speech.

nor of words themselues (as concerning | letters, expresse their passions (no other.) A childes her owne simple action to heare) he that sothing of the is dumbe from his birth, by the imperfection of his tongue, shall not be deafe in nents, nor of that respect : no more, then as if from a braue discoursing man, the toong should bee torne out of his head. And it hath bene commonly observed, that such as haue their tongues cut or flit, haue heard neuer a fot the leffe in that regard, neither found any defect in their hearing.

If it be true then, that the instruments of speech, conferre not nor communicate particularly with the earcs, and that fpeaking worketh nothing with hearing, as (on the contrary) hearing doth, and is neceffarie for speech; it ensueth plainely, that the dumbe by nature, shall never heare in that respect (supposing, that the organ of the eare or hearing, is no way therein interessed. And that the deafe by byrth, must be dumbe necessarily: although in his tongue, and those other parts, requi-The Authors lite for speech, there is not any defect at caucate, beepurpose, Ispeake of birth and of Nature, indifferently to Garife dumbe from the beginning. And I name to speake. Let vs come now to the third point. From whence it proceedeth, that a man haning so prompt and able a spirite, that hee comprehendethall thinges in finall that man is at compasse of time; is yet (notwithstanding) fo flow and tardie, in knowing howe first so tardie to speak, and articulate his voice. Wheras on the contrarie, beafts & other creatures, immediately, or foone after theyr production, have their voice absolute & the dumbe from byrth, not he that cannot speake (for so wee should bee all dumbe) but hee that is not any way apte perfect, euen as well and fully, as euer they thall haue.

Aristotle in his Problemes, maketh bilimib. 11. answer heereto, faying; The voyce of man hath great diversities in it; other creatures expresse no Letters at all, or very fewe, (as two or three onely) and without Consonants, which joyned with Vowels, make the worde. Speech (faith he) is not foly and simply of the voice, but is perfected and accomplished of the affection or condition of the voyce, with signification : and the affections of the voice, they are the letters. Children therefore, before they know how, or can pronounce wife then as beafts do) by a natural voice freech but and no way taught or cultructed, which many divertiis common to all infants, of any country lies and dithiwhatfocuer. But yet speech is different in Towns and Towns, nay, in one and the fame Towne or Citty, by reason of the voice artificially diffinguished, thorough the great diversity of letters coupled, and interlaced of infinite kinds; whereof pro- and Towne. ceedeth divers words, fignifying an infinity of things. Socing then that there are fo many manners or fathions of fpeaking, and that (of fine or fix letters) may bee made fifty feuerall words, and al differing the one from the other : wee may eafilie thereby understand, why an infant for- Concerning meth his voice so late, in regard of beasts, the voyce of beasts, who have their voices meerely simple, & dlex. Applied.

For whatfoener is extreamly divers, & must be diversified by many differeces; cannot bee attained in any fuortipace of time. Be it in regard of the fool, which ap- Things of exprehendeth the science of speaking; or be treme diversi it in the toong, which ought to expres it, tie craue time or their lear & requireth time alfo, both to break and lung. enable the words in their vttering, as we vie to fav of the hand, for inftruments of Musick. Wherupon he that is dumb, beginneth at the first to mumble and snaffle in the mouth, beeing not able to make a found of al the Letters, nor to pronounce words with any hability; onely by reason of the tongues foftnes, whereas her rudenesse requireth a new labour.

turall of all creatures.

There is another doubt vpon the fame purpose, which is much more vneasse to explicate, & Aristotle propoundeth it in Arift.inlib. 11. his Problemes. From whence it cometh that Prot. 27. Some infants begin to Speak before due age; to What is the whem commonly the words are formed, and reason, that after they have welexpressed som words, become dumb again, and return to the first con- their time, & dition, until the ordinary terme and time of afterward be-(keaking? Many have held this to be prodigious, & especially, when it is told them, that some haue spoke at the very point of their birth. Questionles, it is very rare, and hardly to be credited: and yet it may well happen by naturall reason, as thus. An infant, at the same instant it heareth, it vnder standeth, & then it may speake. But ordinarily hearing goeth far before vnderstading, & vnderstanding likewise precedeth Hhhh fpcaculties in it.

(as Alexander Aphrodifeus fayth)moft na- 1.11, Prob 1 41

Of fuch infants as fooneft practile to speake, and

An apt compariton of fome conditions in out felues, answer able to childrens imperfections.

speaking: the instrument for speech and the little Language, which they had learwords, is not (as yet) of such temperature as is convenient for explicating those things which the spirit hath conceived. On the contrary, some speake much fooner then they knowe how to vnderstand (as we have already saide of Parrats and other Birds that prattle) counterfeyting fuch words as they heare: vntill time convenient for them both, that is to fay, ability to vinderstand and speake. Such children then, to whom the objectes of hearing make much fooner impression in the foule, then the instrument of Speech knowes how to perfect: it happeneth to derstood divers things, sodainly they pro nounce them. And especially after theyr fleepe, when the spirits have made them-felues more copious; they have the more strength and impetuous vigour, to moue the tongue in diftincter manner. But this endureth not, neither can be of any long continuance; but the infant will returne

In like manner, fometimes wee shall thinking thereon) words and fentences things well knowne and familiar vnto vs .

Euen fo it may come to passe, that an infant shall speak something, and afterward condition: he becommeth dumbe, vntill

the vitermost time of his persection and

It is a contrary case, in an infant that becommeth dumbe by deafeneffe, after he hath spoken some gibbridge or prittle prattle, yea spoken intelligibly; as we have heard credibly reported, concerning all the male children of M. Anthony Butin (2 famous Apothecary in Toloffa, dwelling at the figne of the three Kings) fro which his daughters were exempted. They all spake, till about the age of foure years, & afterward became deafe in fuch forte, as they could not heare any noyle; and lo (by little and little) ceafed to speake. This hapned, in regard that their hearing continuing no longer, they did cafilic forget of afterwards, them fometimes, that after they have vnto his first dumbnesse againe.

Butines children, who were verie rheumaticke. And so having no longer means of continuance, to apprehend and speake Languages, by hearing, they became dumbe. As any may foone one, who hath learned fome few French lote them by or Dutch words, through want of continuing conference in those Languages, forgets the little he had before. Or hee that discontinueth his Grammer, or som other Science, or playing on Instruments ned in their first yeares. As an infant (indeed) is very oblinious, by reason of his great humidity: and particularly the faide of Mulicke, eafily forgetteth all by want These and such like accidents hapning dayly, confirme our first proposition, in fauour whereof, we have thus largely dif-

couried. For, if one may become dumb, dumbe, by reason of deasenesse, which happeneth by accident, & after he could speak:who will make any doubt at all but that the deafe by birth, must needes be incuitably

I will adde heereto a very notable accident, which maketh fome-what so this haue forgot finde our selves so disposed as (vvithout purpole: of fome, that by a Wounde or all things, and hurt, or some sickenesse beside of the their owne braine: haue wholly lost remembrance of will meerely flow in our mouths: whereof againe (at other times) we shall be so delayed and hindred, as wee can scarfely, all things yea euen of speech, which they learned againe by little and little, like as or with any easie possibility, expresse children do having hearing at their command, and the instruments of speech no way engaged. Graue men, and woorthie his tongue returning to the first ordinarie of faith, doe testifie, to have seene some wounded in the head, from one fide to the other, and even in the eye (wherof M. Rondeletius relateth an History in his pra-Cife, and the appendix to the 21. Chapter) who forgot fo much as theyr owne

Names, and were faine to bee taught all things, even like yong children. So came they wholly to the first condition of an infant from birth: except vulgar fpeech. which yet some of them retained. But other impressions of their tongues became estranged, concerning Artes and Sciences learned before, and thinges which they had formerly both feene and knowne; all quite defaced out of their foules, by the inundation and rauine of

The End of the Ninth booke.

the hatme.

The warning given by No-ah of the vorlds vniue i feli destructinby water.

Chap.r.

Cefara,who

ed in Irelad, nen, and fiftie finnes; and hee prepared to builde the Arke, as thereby foreshewing to his kinffolke and friends, the vniuerfall Flood or Deluge that was to enfue, and wherewith the whole face of the earth should be coucred within few yeares, except amendment grew from them in short time; all which he did before the Flood, one hundred and fine and twenty years. But when enery man feemed to neglect his worthie admonitions ;a Neece to Noah, who was named Cefara, hearing this dreadful prophefic of her Vnckle, and doubting least it would come to paffe indeed, determined (with certaine friends of hers) to feek their fortune in some forraigne Region.

quently) vnfpotted with fine the generall lentence of Gods wrath would not there take effect. Hereupon, rigging a Nauy, shee committed her selfe to the seas, sayling foorth fil, til at length the arrived in Ireland, with three men only, and fifty women; having Perswading her selfe, that if she could find a Countrey neuer inhabited, and (confe-ued from violence of the VVaters, have beene seene of some, as they themselves haue reported, but how truely I haue not

The Tenth Booke.

to fay.

CHAP. I.

Of the Kingdome of Ireland : The Antiquity Originall, and first Inhabitation there first fet foote on land, and where also she of actording to the confirmation of the best approxed Authors. The Shipping rivage or shore. The Stones, wherein the memory heereof was preser-

N the yeare of the world 1525, the holy Patriarch Noah, began to admonth the people, of vengeance to follow, for their wicdeliues and deteffable

Within forty dayes after her comming on Landthere, the Vniuerfall Floude came, and ouer-flowed all that coaft, as well as the other parts of the worlde. But whereas this tale bewrayeth it felfe (too This tale can manifeftly) to bee an vntrueth, if time and other circumftances be thorowly examined; I will stand no longer about the proofe or disproofe thereof. Onely this is sufficient (I thinke) to bring it out of credite, to confider : that the Art of Na- Rab. Ifaac in uigation or fayling, was voknowne to the world, before the vniuerfall Deluge, and no part inhabited, except the continent of Syria, and thereabout. But to let passe such a forged fable, with the record thereof engrauen in a Stone,

(a deuice borrowed, as some think, from Anmun, 1557 Tofephus;) it shall bee sufficient for the After the best glory of the Irifh nation in their Antiquity, to graunt, that Ireland was discouered and peopled by forme of Noahs kindred e- tweene Nouen as the first Islands of the Worlde (if Babell, they wil needs have it fo, as the likelihood is great) according to y which is fee forth in their histories. When about 300 years after the generall floode, immediately vpon the confusion of Tongues; Iaphet Hhhh2 loft the refidue of her company, by miffortune of fundry shipwrackes, sustayned in that her long and troublesome voyage. The names of the men were thefe, Bithi, Bithi, Laigria, Laigria, and Fintan. The coast where shee lyeth buried, was cald Aaniculare Littus, Naniculare

17 JUNE 1 556

not 100, be-

Of children becomming dumbe by strength.

A rare exam ple of dumbBastolenus.

Clem.lib.4.

Cambreid.li

Languina,

10. Booke

and his posteritie (imboldened by Noahs example) aduentured by thip, to commit themselves to passe the seas, and to search out the vnknowne corners of the world, and so finding out divers Isles in the west parts of the world.

There was (fay they) in that retinue, Bartolenus e one of the same progeny named Bartolemus, or Baffolenus, who, encouraged with the late attempt and successe of Nimrod, kinseman to Ninus (then newly intruded vpon the Monarchy of Affyria) fearched so farre west intending to attaine to some gouernement, where he might rule without any partner in authoritie; till at the length, Fortune brought him and his people yoon the coast of Ireland. Heere hee fetled himfelfe with his three fonnes Languina, Salanus and Ruthurgus, right active Ruthurgus, the three fon and frout Gentlemen, who, fearthing the to Bartolenus. Land from fide to fide, and from end to end, left remembrances of their names, in certaine notable places, and named after them; as Languine, Stragruus & mount Salanga, fince named Saint Dominicks hill.

(pace(with many hands working at once)

Ruthurgi Sta

he ridde and made playne a great part of the Countrey, ouer-growne with woods and thickets. Thus became Ireland inhabited by this Ireland firft people, under the government of the inhabited. three Sonnes to Bartolenus, and their off-fpring, for the space of three hundred yeares. Together with Bartolenus, arrived in Ireland certain vngodly people of Nim-Giants ariued rods race, woorthily tearmed Giants, as common proportion of other men, and Bergion the fonne of Nep tune and bro. ther to Albion (as John Bale in Ireland.

vsed their strength to gaine soueraigntie, and to oppresse the weake with rapine and violence. That linage (Chams brood) did grow, in short while, to great numbers, and alwaies endeuoured themselues (wherefocuer they came) to beare the querdlireland rule ouer others. One cause thereof was their bodily strength, answerable to their hugeneffe of flature; another, the examples of Cham or Zoroastres the Magitian, & Nimpod, grandfather to Nimm. Which like a fort of dead dogs; through the noy-two persons (in themselues and progenie) some stench whereof, such an infectious were renowned through the world as vi-Actions Princes, ruling ouer two mighty Kingdomes, Acgipt and Affyria. A third cause also there was , namely,

those that (in bodily shape) exceeded the

they repined at the bleffings bestowed on Sem and laphet, thinking it necessary to withfrand all lawfull rule and dominion : Enill example lest the curse of slavery (prophesied by are too quick Noah) (hould light vpon them, as at the lyfollowed, length it did. Whereupon, rebelliously withdrawing their obedience, from their lawfull Gouernours heere in Ireland, and taking head; they fet vp a King of theyr owne fashion, and maintayning his estate to the oppression of the subjects, by bringing them into continual bondage . The Rebellions. fuccesse was variable on both sides, be- gainst Gouer tweene the lawfull Gouernours and these nours, vsurpers, with daily risings and skirmithes, so much to thegriefe of them, who coueted to live in quiet order under their rightfull Princes: that they determined, with the chance of one generall battel, eyther wholie to subdue those prowd rebellious tyrants, or else, to end their liues in freedome, and so be rid of further misery. thy resolution

But first, whereas there had growne certayne debates and enmities amongest themselves, whereby they had weakened their owne forces; they held it not amisse, and Ruthurgus his Poole. Little is rememto make peace together, before they put bred of Bartolenus, fauing that in short their whole state in hazard of one battell against the Giants: concluding therefore an agreement, & ioyning in league (with promife) to affift each other in fibdewing in weaken, the common enemy. Growing to affemble their power, out of all partes of the trongmen, land, and coming to joyne battel with the Giants; after they had fought fiercely together for the space of certayne houres: victorie enclined to the rightfull part, fo that the lawfull Kings preuayling against the viurping tyrants, great flaughter was made on the whole broode of that mif-chieuous generation . For the Kings , Victory oue meaning to free themselues from all dan-ger in time to come, vsed their happy vi-chorie with too great crueltie, which after turned to their owne confusion. For, sparing neyther man, woman, nor childe that came in their way, for meere despite, & fuller fatisfying their intended reuenge; they vouchfafed not to bury the carkales of their flaine enemies, but cast them out pestilence ensued in all places, only thorow the ayres corruption, as few cleaped infeeding pe with life, belides fuch as got away by Sca. Bilence. And And hereby runnes a vaine tale among

Of Ireland.

ant lived, and the Irifb, that one of the Giants named Ruanus, chancing to be preserved from this mortalitie, liued 2041 yeares, which is more then twife the age of Methufalem. By this man (fay they) Saint Patricke was informed, concerning the whole estate of the Countrey, and afterwards, (vppon request) having received Baptisme of the Nemodus, and named Gandius, Genandius, fayd Saint Patricke : hee deceassed in the yeare after the birth of our Saujour foure hundred and thirty, as in the Irilb historie hath beene very vnaduifedly written. But. letting that passe, wee finde it recorded, That an infinite number of Giants were flayne and destroyed, in manner as bath been already related : yet fome got them-

ner) left defolate; they waxed bolder, and when they understoode how matters had paffed: they fetled themfelues in the best parts of the Countrey, eafily subdewing the poore filly foules that remayned, and left that faued felues into lurking Caues and Dens, and skeir lines in kept closely there, till lacke offood caused them to come foorth, and make shift for fustenance. When, perceiving no refistance, because the Land was (in a man-

> fo reuiuing their linage, they became lords of the whole Iland, keping the same in subjection, three score years together. Among the fons of Lapher, we reade in Genefis 10,2 Genesis, that Magog was one, who planted his people in Scythia, neare Tanais, from thence, about the yere of the world, 20 17 Nemodus and Wemodus, with his foure fonnes, Starius, his foure forms Garbaneles, Anuinus and Fergusius Cap-Starius, Gar. baneles, Anu-inus, and Fer-gulius. taines ouer a faire companie of people) > to feeke aduentures with them: at length they landed in Ireland, inhabited the Countrey, and multiplied the Land, although not without continuall warre, which they helde with the Giants two hundred and fixteene yeares. At the end were fent into Ireland : who passing by

Grecia, and taking in fuch as were defirous of which tearme, the Giants preuayling, chased them thence agayne, so that they returned into Syria. This was about the yeare after the Creation (as by their account it (hould (ceme) two thousand fine hundred thirtie three; from which time. the Giants kept possession of the Land and measuring enery thing by might , feditiously they vexed one another.

(without forraine inualion) till the yeare two thousand seauen hundred and foureteene. But yet all that time, they were not able to frame a Common-wealth : for, falling still at variance among themselves, | ing) grew after to be a senerall kingdome.

Which comming to the knowledge of the Grecians, it mooned fine brethren, fonnes to one Dela (being notable Sea- The fonnes of men and skilfull Pilots) to rigge a Nauie, Dela, neere in linage to Ne. & to attempt the conquest of this Iland, modus, skilful These were all of the necrest posteritie to in Nauigation

Sagandus, Rutheranius and Slanius, When within the Countrey foile.

foure brethren to a lowe ebbe : tooke on him as chiefe aboue his other brethren.

intruding round about the Meare-middle

Stone, for the space of certayne miles, which plot of ground (in time) obtayned

the privilege and name, of one intire part,

and now maketh up the number of fine

Cantreds comprehended 32. a peece : or elfe, because it lyeth in the middest of the land. This part Slanius joyned as a furplufage (ouer and abone his inheritance) to the Monarchy; which part (notwithstand-

Hhhh 3

all things were ready, and their companies affembled: they put to Sea, and lan- They paffe inded at the length in Ireland; where find- to Iteland,& ing the power of the Giants greatly weak out the race ned, by their owne quarrells and civile of the Giants diffentions; with the more ease did they come to the end of their owne purpose, winning the whole Countrey, and veterly extirpating that bloodie generation. deadly enemies to mankinde: dividing also the Island into five parts, and in each of them they fenerally reigning. Furthermore, to fatisfie all fides, and anoyde contention; they concluded to fixe a Meare-stone in the middle point of Ire- They divided land, to which each of their kingdomes the whole Ishould extend; fo that they might be equally partakers of the comodities found guifted by a meare flone. These brethren also are supposed, to have invented the distribution of Shires into Cantreds, euery Cantred or Baron-ny to containe one hundred towneships. At length, defire of foueraignetie, fet the Defire of Sofine brethten at variance, and greatly hindered their growing wealth. But Slanius, variance, getting the voper hand, and bringing his parts (into which treland is favd to be diuided) and is called Meth , and in Latine Methor the Media; taking this name (as fome have middle part supposed)bicause (in respect of the other) how it attai it contained but the moitie of Cantreds, ned that name viz. fixteene; whereas each of the other

Thirtic

Slanius dyed and was buried in a mountaine in Meth they fay) beareth name after him. Then the Princes, subject to him, began to stomacke the matter, and denied their obedience to his successor: whereuppon enfued continuall Warres betweene them, which (in long time) could never be fully ceassed. In the necke of these troubles alfo, there arrived in Ireland a new Army of Scythians, who made claime vnto the

A.new Armic of Scyth ans Land (by a title of right) which they preariued in Iretended from their fore-father Nemodus: and so taking and making parts, they set all in fuch an vorore, that hauocke vvas made on each fide hoftilely, in most miserable manner. To be short, they spent themselues.

Brennus cald in purfuing one another with fuch outinto Ireland. rage: that they began to grow careleffe, to avde one part of the fawhat Nations or Soldiers they receyued ctious people.

to their ayde, either to keepe vp, or beate downe a fide. By which occasion, the Britaines also stept in among them, procuring Brennus, the brother of Belinus, to direct his course thither with the same Nauv, which he had made ready to paffe o-Segwine king uer int) Gallia, now called France, to the of the Allo.

ayde of Segwine, then King of the Allo-Lioges. broges, that inuaded the Countreyes of Sauoy and Daulphinou. But his enterprize into Ireland tooke finall effect, though there were other The Brittish Kings of the Britaines, that got domini-Princes neue on there; infomuch that Gurewinting, or enjoyed the Gurguntius, the fonne of Belinus, accounquiet possessi on of Ireland ted Ireland (among other his dominions) to belong to him by lineall descent. Notwithstanding, the British Princes neuer enjoyed the quiet possession thereof, longer then they held it by maine force; but were often repelled, and put to the worfe with feeking after it, finding there little other gaine then stripes, whereof they carried away good store. But now to com to the Spaniards, that lastly (vnder the conduct of foure Captaines) paffed into Ireland, from Biscaye, and inhabited that Island: it shall not be impertinent (follo-nation had their first beginning.

Thirty yeares the Monarchy yet conthe vniuerfall flood, 870. while the Ifraetinued in this order; but finally, Slanius lites ferued in Ægypt, Gathelus the fonne The history of one Nealus, a great Lord in Grecia, vp. of the Spaniards artical in Ireland, rain artical in departed this life, and was buryed in a Mountaine of Meth, which till nowe (as a number of his factious friends and ad- der the conherents. This noble Gentleman, beeing duct of four very wife, valiant, and well spoken : gotte honourable entertaine of Pharaoh, furnamed Orus. And afterward departing that Countrey, trauerfed the feas, and landing first in Portugall, after some bickerings with the inhabitants: at length, yet hee got (by their confent) a portion of the Countrey, lying by the bankes of the Riuer, anciently called Munda, and nowe Mondego, where (fhortly after) he began Munda,now to builde a Citty, first named Brachara, Mondego. but now Bar falo, as Hector Batim affir-

After this, when the people vnder Ga- falo. thelm began to encrease in power; thorough perswasion of the Spaniards theyr neighbours, they removed into Gallicia, where they also builded a Citty, named Brigantium, which is now called Coruna. Compostella Finally, when they grewe into fuch a of Gallicia in huge multitude, that Gallicin was not able Spaine.

to lustaine them; Gathelus, with a certain number of them, passed ouer into Ireland and there grewinto fuch estimation with Gathelus pasthe barbarous people, that for his know- feth into lieledge especially in Languages, hee was land, and in there highly honoured. For, he not onely enriched and beautified the Irish tongue: but enstructed them in letters also: he fought vp their Antiquities, and likewise practifed their youth in warlike exercises, after the manner of the Greekes and Egyptians, from whence he was discended.

To conclude, hee was so acceptable and welcome to them, that (to gratifye fuch a worthy benefactor) they agreed to The names of call the Island Gathelia, and after his wife Ireland, and Scotia. This is one opinion, but yet incre- whereof they dible, not onely to Humfrey Lhuid, but al-fo to other learned men, and diligent ferchers of Antiquities: by reason of the sundry arguments of improbability, as well in the miscount of yeares, as other vnlikelyhoods found therein, when the circum stances come to be duly examined, thorowly weighed, and well confidered. Yet certaine it is, that Ireland was aunciently named Scotia, and the people Scots, as by divers old writings it may be fufficiently proued: albeit, by what occasion it took

Bracharano

Braga or Bar-

first that name, or from whence they Ire land was came, it is yet doubted. But to proceede anciently cal led Scotis. with the History, as we finde it. The refi-

Bayon builded by Gathe-lus his people

Chap.i.

due of Gathelus his people, which remayned in Spaine, founded the City of Bayon, in the Confines of Gascoigne, and replenished the Sea coastes of Spaine, with flore of inhabitants. And wel-neere about two hundred yeares, after their first arriuall there (when they were againe peftered with multitudes of people) they began to fancie a new voyage : but whether at that time, or fome other els, they croffed ouer into Ireland, is altogether vncer-Notwithstanding, sure it is, that in the understanding that divers of the westerne

Isles were empty of inhabitants : assembling a great company of men, women, dayes of Gurgantius, King of the Britains, The gouernor the cheefe Gouernour of Bayon, with four of Bayon, and Brethren Spaniardes, two of which are foure breshe. faide to be Hiberus and Hermion , not the ren Spaniards trauelled to fonnes (as some thinke) of Gathelus (as feeke their Hector Batius affirmeth) but some other fortune a. perhaps, that were descended of him: who

and children, embarked with the fame in threescore great vesselles, and directing of his brethren, against Hermion and his their course Westwarde, houered a long Gurguntius time on the Sea, about the Ifles of Orkeney. At length, they met (by good hap) with Gurguntius, then returning from the med Hibernia. Although fome are of opicoming from conquest of Denmarke (as in the Brittish history it apeareth) whom they befought of Denmarke in confideration of their want of victuals and other necessaries (being such, as they were no longer able to endure the Sea, name it more aptly after the speech of the being cumbred with fuch flore of women inhabitants, then others which callit Hiand children) to direct & appoint them berma. fome place, where they might inhabite : promiting to hold the fame of him, and to become liege-people to him and his taining thus to the Soueraignty, making No crime for heires for cuer. Gurguntius aduiting with himfelfe here-on,remembred, with what troble he held the Irifh in Subjection, & cocciuing hope that these strangers might either subdue, or wholy destroy that viruly generation;

accepted & took those oathes of the Spaniards with hostages, & furnishing them

& their ships, with all needful things; fet them ouer into Ireland, where, affifted with fuch Britaines as Gurguntius had appointed to go with them for their guides:

they made a conquest of the whole country,& fetled themselves joyfully therein.

Gurguntius ppointeth the Spaniardi feates in Ireland, to liuc Subjection.

present)voide of all inhabitants : but yet The arrivall they agree, that these Spaniards were guided thither by the Britains, & under fuch and their conconditions as before is recited. Whereby quest there. it appeareth, that the kings of Britain had Geffrey Mon. an elder right to the realm of Ireland, then by the conquest of K. Henry 2 which title they euer maintained, & fometimes preuailed in pursuit thereof, as in the daies of K. Arthur, to whom the Irith (as in divers histories is remembred) acknowledged

Some write, that Ireland was (before that) their due subiection, with paimet of their Atthur, and tribute, & making their appearance at the payedhim west Chester.

city, called in the British toong, Caer Lheon. Wherunto, when their free affent, the fubmiffion of their Princes, with lawfull conqueit & prescription are annexed; an invincible title must needs be enforced. But now to our purpofe. The Spaniards substantially affisted with the Britains, fetled themselues, and divided their seats in wherewith the land abounded & fo those

Authors of Antiquity, which call it terna, Proceede wee now to Hermion, who to anoyde the ill opinion of men, by athe was from all defire to rule alone: hee appointed certaine Captaines, as Kings, to rule (vnder him) fenerall Countreyes:

referring to himfelfe but one fourth part,

and the portion of Meth, allotted to the Monarchy, for the better maintenance of his cftare.

led themselues, and divided their seats in between ethe quarters; the source Brethren reigning se-Diffention uerally apart in findry portions, with good fuch are the quietnesse and encrease of wealth: vntill bitton. pride & ambition armed two of them, against the other two; as Hiberus and one Brother. In this diffention, Hermion flewe his brother Hiberus: of whom, at the fame Hibernio,aftime(as some hold) the countrey was nafome imaginion, that it tooke name of Iron, by plentifull Mines of that kinde of Mettall.

his way through his brothers blood most detestable, unnaturally, and in an vnhappie Civill-Warre: purged himfelte to his fubicels, a colourable that neyther maliciously, nor contentioufly, but for his necessarie defence and fafety, hee had borne Armes agaynst his brethren. And to witnesse, how farre wing the order observed) to speake somwhat of their originall, that it may the better appeare, from whence the Irishe

Thefe

In the years of the world, 2436. after

Ireland divi ded into frue Kingdomes: ouer the reft.

These parts appointed foorth in this wife, at length grew to flue Kingdomes, Leinster, Connaght, VIster, and Mounster divided into two parts, and sometime to raigne Ruier more, by viurping or compounding among theinfelues: but euer, one was chosen to bee chiefe soueraigne Monarch ouer them all. Thus it seemeth certainly, that the Spaniards of the North parts of Spaine, inhabiting about the Countries of Biscase and Gallicia, came and peopled Ire-Lind (as both their owne Histories, & the British do agree wholly)but from whence they came first, to inhabite those Countries of Spain, cannot by me be auduched. For no other Writers (but such as haue registred the Scottish Chronicles) make mention of Gathelia his coming thither, with Scota his Wife, and their people, as by the faid Chronicles is pretended.

An hundred and thirty Kings from Hermion to Laogirius.

arriued in

Ireland.

are reckoned of this Nation, from Hermion to Laugirius, the sonne of Nealus Magnus; in whose time, that holy effecmed man, S. Patricke converted them to Christianity. But now, while the Irishmen lived in some tollerable rest & order, vnder their feuerall Kings; one Rodoricke,2 Scythian Prince (with a small company of men, being weather-driven about the Coasts of Britaine) was by chaunce cast vpon the shore of Ireland. These were Picts, and the very first sthat had bin heard off in those parts (as some good Authors haue recorded)a people (euen from their cradle) naturally addicted to contention, land-leapers, mercileffe, fierce and hardy. They being brought & presented to the Irifb King, defired Interpretors; which being granted them; Rodorick their chiefe Commander and Leader, made this request for him and his, as followeth.

An hundred and thirty cheefe Kings

The Oration of Roderick, King of the Picts, to the King of Ireland.

Ot as degenerate, or falling from the courage of our Ancestours, but fashioning our felues to Fortunes courfe; Science to Fortumes with the of week

Ireland (as humble Suppliants) who never before this prefent, have embased our selues | those few new commers, beeing placed a-

to any other Nation. Behold Sir King , and regard vs well: no light occasion causeth Dreadlesse he thele lustie bodies to stoope. Scythians delivereth of we are, and Picts of Scythia; no small portion of glory remaineth in thefe two names. what manner What shall I speake of the civil warre, that the Country, hath expelled vs from our native homes, or rip up olde Histories, to moone strangers to bemoane us? Let our sernants and children discourse thereof at leisure. Our in-Stant motion is, to grant ws some time of abode in your Land, for which effect & purpole, our vrgent necessity befeecheth your fanour : A King, of a King, and men of men, are to crave af sistance.

Princes can well discerne and consider. how neere it touchesh their honour and reputation, yea, and their owne (urety, to uphold, how to lucand releeve the state of a King, decayed by cour and retreason. And manifest it is to all men of nothers di real onable confideration, that nothing more ficile. befeemeth the nature of men, then to be moued with compa(sion : yea, euen (as it were) to feele themselves hurt, when they heare and understand of other mens calamities. Admit then (we befeech you) and receive among yee, thefe few scattered remnants of Scythians. If your roomes be narrow, we are not many : If the Soile of your Country be barren, we are borne and inured to hardnesse: If you live in peace, wee are at your command as Subjects: If you warre, we are ready to ferue you as Soldiors. We demaund no King dome, no State, no pompeous triumph hewes of in Ireland. We are heere alone, and have left great humis (uch vanities behinde vs with our enemies. How foeuer you esteeme of vs, we shall content our felues therewith and learne to frame our likings to yours: as calling unto minde, what we have bene not what we are.

Great confultation was had about the request of these strangers, & many things | In doubtfull debated to and tro . In conclusion, the wayes good It for gaue foorth for answer, the opinion of confult with deliberation & adults the adults adults adults the state of the in olde Historic , & graue fayings of their Elders. Whereby they gathered, that it could not be expenient for the, to accept the Scythians into their Land; because commixtue of Nations in any Realme, bringeth quarrels. Moreover, the multitude of their owne Inhabitantants was fuch, that roome in the whole Isle was fearle able to receive them : and therfore

Princes can

Marius, other-

King of the Britaines flew king Roderick

Corned to marry their daughter

wife called

Arniragus

Chap.1.

mong fo many auncient Inhabitants, might quickly breed disturbance to bring all out of ioynt, neuertheleffe, they returned them this answer.

The Answere of the Irish King, to the Oration made by King Rodericke.

TE haue considered on your request as also those extremities ordging thereto: And though we may not (conueni-Wifemen prevent their ently) receive you among vs; yet shall you mne perils finde vs ready in furthering ye to our neighby putting bours. Not farre hence lyeth the great Isle to the Irith of Britaine, in the North-part whereof (beperswaded ing voide of Inhabitants) your manhood and the Picts to place thempollicie may purchase roome, toplace your selues at your ease. We shall appoint Caplelues in Brittaines to guide you thither, and wee shall asfift yee with our Forces in that Countrey. Make ready your Shippes, that you may paffe thither with all convenient (beed.

Encouraged by this perswasion, they tooke their course towards the North parts of Britaine, now called Scotland where (contrary to their expectation) Marius, King of Britaine, was ready to awaite their comming, and with tharpe battaile vanquishing them in field, slewe Rodericke, with a great number of his followers. Those that escaped with life,& fought vnto him for grace; he licenfed to inhabite the vetermost ende of Scotland.

the same, whom the Romaine Writers name Aruiragus, who reigned about the yeare of our Lord, scuenty : A Prince of noble courage, and of no final estimation in his dayes, as appeareth by that which is written of him. His right name (as the (aid Lhuid anoucheth) was Meurig.

This Marius, Humfrey Lhuid taketh to be

But now concerning the Pists, whether those that escaped with life, got the Seas by King Meurigs graunt, or getting to their Ships, with-drew into the Isle of Orkency, is doubtfull. Wines also they wanted to encrease their issue, & because The Britaines the Britaines thought fcome to match their daughters, with fuch an voknowne and new come Nation: the Piets contiwith the Pies nued, their first acquaintance with the I-rifb, and (by entreaty) obtained Wines from them, with condition, that if the Picts marry Crowne should hap to fall in contention, with the trith they should yeelde thus much to the pre- and couchant rogatiue of the woman: that the Prince of their kings should bee elected rather of the blood Royall of the Female kinde, then of the Male. Which order (faith Beda) the Piets were very well knowne to keepe vnto his

Heere I could enter into a long, various and friuilous discourse, concerning great combustions, warres and bloody contentions, happening (for a very long time) betweene the Irifb, Picts and Scots: but beeing impertinent to my intended purpose, and little beneficiall to the Reader, I will first describe the parts and diuisions of treland into Shires and Countries, and then proceed to shew, how it receiued the Christian faith at the first. Ireland became divided into foure Regions; Leinster Eaft; Connaght Weft; Vister North ; Mounster South : And into a fift plot, defalked from enery fourth part, yet mearing on each part, called thereof Media, Meeth, comprizing as well East Meeth, as West Meeth. Leinster butteth voon England; VISter vpon the Scot- Hukonia. tifb Islands, which face with the Hebriades, 4 Momonia scattered betweene both the Realmes: West Meeth wherein (at this day) the Irifh Scot, Suc- & East Meeth ceffour of the elder Scythian, Pict or Red. Hebriades. shanke dwelleth. Each of these fine, where they are frame-able to civility, & answer the Writs of the Princes Courts; are fundred into Shires or Counties in this

In Leinster lyeth the Counties of Dublyn, Kildare, Weiseford or Gueisford, The Shires & Catherlach, Kilkenny, the Counties of licland, Leife and Ophalie, called the Kings and Leinfter, Queenes Counties: these two were so named by Parliament, in the Reignes of Phillip and Mary, having Shire-Townes concordant, as Phillips Towne, and Mary-Bourgh.

Connaght hath the County Clare.

Vister, the Counties of Louth, Donne, Vifer. Antrim, one moity of the Towne of Droghedagh (for the reft is in Atceth) and Carreefergus.

In Mounster lye the Counties of waterford, Limerike, Corke, the County Pa- how danded lantine of Topperary, Kerie, & the Croffe in elder time. of Tipperarie. In elder time, Mounster Legenia.

Connaghe.

Mounster, and

Another divi fion of Ire-

English Pale

and the Irish-

The empay-

ring of the English Pale

was divided into East Mouniter, Ormand, | civility engrafted, good lawes establisht. West Mounster, Desmond, South Mounfter, and Toonemound . Now the reason why Ireland was thus divided, you have heard already, by the fine brethren arriuing there, valiant and Martiall Gentlemen ; Gandius, Genandius, Sagundus, otherwise named Gangandus, Rutheragus or Rutheranus and Slanius.

Ireland, into the English Pale, and Irishry. For whe Ireland was subdued by the Englifb, divers of the Conquerours planted themselves neere vnto Dublin, and the confines thereto adioyning, and so enclofing and impaling themselues (as it were) within certaine lists and territories; they forced away the Irilb. Infomuch, as that Country became meere English, and therof it was tearmed the English Pale : which (in ancient time) stretched from Dundalk to Catherlagh or Kilkenny. But afterward. what by the flackneffe of Marchers, and encroching of the Irifh enemy; the scope of the English Pale became greatly impaired, being cramperned and caught into and civilest foyles in Ireland. But Fin-gall especially (from time to time) was alwayes to addicted to the chiefepoints of husbandry; as that they became nicknamed by their neighbors (for their continuall drudgery) Collonnes, of the La-lifb word Clowne, seemeth to be answe-

English, the race or sept of the English or strangers, because they were soly seized of that part of the Island, gryping with their Talents that warme nell fo firmely;

that from the Conquest, to this day, the Irifh enemy could not rouze the thence.

The Inhabitants of the English Pale, haue beene (in olde time) to much addicted to their ciunity, and so farre sequestred from barbatous fauagenesse; that their onely mother tongue was English. And truely,

fo long as thefe impaled dwellers, did fun-grage) from the rude Iri/h: rudenesse was

The word Fingall counternaileth in Fingall excel led in hus bandry.

Fingal clowns tine word Coloni, wherunto the clipt Eng-Fingelf, and why it was fo named.

The great ciuility in anci-ent times a. der themselves (aswell in land, as in lan-

lovalty observed rebellion suppressed, & in the ende, the coine of a young England was like to shoote in Ireland. But when their posterity became not altogether so wary in keeping, as their Ancestors were valiant in conquering; the Irifh language The Irifh La became free-dennized in the English Pale. This canker tooke such deepe roote, that dennized in the English There was also another division of the body, which before was whole and Pale. found: became festered by little and little, and (in a manner) wholly putrified. And not only this parcel of Ireland grew to that civility; but Vister also, and the greater part of Mounster. Albeit of all other places, weifeford, with the territory baied, and perclosed within the River cal- list. led the Pill, was fo quite estranged from Irifbry (which was rare in those dayes) that if a trausiler of the Irifb, had pitcht his foote within the Pill, and fooken Irifb: the Weisfordians would command him forthwith, to turne the other ende of his tongue, and speake English, or else to bring his Trouchman with him. But afterward, they so acquainted themselues with the Irib, making a mingle-mangle an odde corner of the Country, named Finzall, with a parcell of Meeth the Kings of both languages, that (commonly) the Inhabitants of the meaner fort, grew to Land the Countries of Kildare & Louth, which parts were applyed cheefely with | speake neither good English nor good Igood husbandry, and taken for the richest rifb.

Wee come now to declare, in what manner Ireland came to receive the chriftian faith : And finde, that immediately the Christian after Christs time, Saint lames the Apo-file & other, trauailing into these West parts; did first enstruct the Irifh people, and teach them the glad tydings of the Gospel. So that divers among them, even then were christened, and beleeved: but not in fuch numbers (as may be thought) wherby it should be faid, that the Country was generally converted. Notwithstanding, the Scottill Chronicles doe awouch, that in the dayes of Fincomarke King of Sco their King, who departed this life in the land.

converted to the faith, by this meanes. A woman of the Pittifh blood (fay A Pidish we they) chanced in those dayes to scrue the man connect Queene of Ireland; which woman her- tedthe quee felle beeing a Christian, first enstructed the saith. her Queene and Mittreffe, in the faith & true points of Christianity, & the Queen her Husband the King, who converted day by day supplanted in the Country, the whole Irish Nation. Howbeit, by the yeare of our Redemptio, 358, Ireland was Pincomarke

of the Irish Writers themselves, this

The herelie of Pelagius had tour decai d Christian faith in the west parts of Weiseford

o Ireland, and The River Pil

Patricke fent nto Ireland, and Paladius should not feeme altogether true. For they affirmed, that their Country was rather still esteemed as one of the vnthristned Isles, till about the yeare of our Lord, foure hundred twenty and fixe:

when Celestine, the first of that name, gouernd the See of Rome, who, on conference had with his Cleargie, touching the restoring of the Christian faith in the West parts of the world (greatly there decayed by the herefie of Pelagius Junderstood that Ireland also, by reason of distance from the heart of Christendome, and rudenesse of the Nation; had received little fruit at all of true Religion, a thing much to bee lamented.

Among other, that then were affem-Paladiusmade tine, that famous Bishoppe of Tours in offer to go in bled to treate of those matters, was one France. Patricke (of a childe) was brought Paladins, Arch deacon of Rome, who offered his charitable trauaile, towardes the faith, beeing much given to devotion. couerfion of those lands, whither it shold pleafe them to appoynt him to goe . Celestine knowing the sufficiecie of the man, confecrated him Bishop, authorized his lourney by Letters under his Scale, furnithed his wants, and affociating to him, fuch religious persons and others, as were along the shore, and would leade away the Inhabitants captine homeinto their thought necessary to affist him : deliuered vnto him the Bible with great solemnitie, and other monuments, in furtherance of his good speede, for so long and tedious a journey.

At length hee landed in the North of Iraland, from whence he hardly escaped

nouh of Ire-land, and cor (with life) into the Islesadiouning, where he found in a clod of earth, that the swine he preached the Gospell, and converted no finall number of Scots to the Christian had newly turned up, as he followed the faith and beleefe; purging also that part in the time of his captiuity, beeing appointed (by his Master) to take chargetof which was chriftened, from the infection them, and keepe them. of the Pelagians, as in the Scottish historie more at large appeareth. He was required by the Scots, that dwelt in Britaine, to leave the Isles, and come over to them, Britaine requi it the compa there to enftruct the people in the way of by of Paladius true faluation : to the which (with the Popes licence) he feemd willing enough. And the bishop of Rome, the more readily condificended thereto, because at that instant time, when Paladius was to depart: one Paricke attended at Rome, fuing for licence to be fent into Ireland.

The Pope therefore graunted, that Paladius might paffe ouer to the Scottes in Britaine, and appoynted Patricke to goe (with authoritic from him) into Ireland, where, vpon his arrivall, hee found the people so well bent to heare his admonitions (contrary to their accustomed forwardnesse) that a man would have imagined , vpon fight of their readinesse ; that The toward. the Land had beene referred for him to helfe of the t

(by following our Author herein) to touch

This Patricke, in Latine called Patrici-

w, was borne in the Marches betweene name was likewise called Calphurnius, a

Deacon, and fonne to a Priest: his Mother, named Conches, was fifter to S. Mar-

vp in learning, and well enftructed in the fome Scots and Piets, were become arch-

the Coasts of Britaine, and vsed to sacke little fmall Villages, that lay featteringly tooke himfelfe to contemplation, ever lamenting the lacke of grace and trueth in that Land. And withall not despairing, but that (in continuance of time) fome

good might be wrought vpon them; hee

learned the Language perfectly. And, fome part of the course of his life.

convert. And because it pleased God, to heare Patr eks bestow such an universall benefite on the preaching. Land, by his meanes; wee thought good

England and Scotland, in a Towne by the In what place Sea fide , named Eiburne , whose fathers Saint Patricke

The Irishmen (in those daies) affished with The life of S couried brief Pirats, greatly disquieting the Seas about lie.

Country. And as it channeed, Patricke Saint Patricke being a Lad of fixteene yeares olde, and taken prifones

a Scholler then in feculer learning: was when he was taken among other, and became flaue to he redesmed an Irifb Lord called Machusine, from who himfelfe. (after the terme of fixe yeares) he redeemed himfelfe, with a piece of gold, which

And as affliction (commonly) maketh men religious; the regard of his former Affliction is education, had stamped in him such re- an especiall morfe and humility, that beeing thencemake men be foorth weared from the world; heebecom religious alluring one of that Nation, to beare him The pattage

company for exercise sake; hee departed Fraunce. thence, and got him into France, ener hauing in his minde, a defire to fee the conwas divided into East Mouniter, Ormand, | civility engrafted, good lawes establishes West Mounster, Desmond, South Mounfter, and Toonemound. Now the reason why Ireland was thus divided, you have heard already, by the fine brethren arriuing there, valiant and Martiall Gentlemen ; Gandius, Genandius, Sagundus, otherwise named Gangandus Rutheragus or Rutheranus and Slanius.

There was also another division of Ireland, into the English Pale, and Irishry. Another divi fion of Ire-For whe Ireland was subdued by the England into the lifb, divers of the Conquerours planted themselves neere vnto Dublin, and the and the Irificonfines thereto adioyning, and fo enclofing and impaling themselues (as it were) within certaine lifts and territories; they forced away the Irifb. Infomuch, as that Country became meere English, and therof it was tearmed the English Pale : which (in ancient time) stretched from Dundalk to Catherlagh or Kilkenny. But afterward, what by the flackneffe of Marchers, and The empayencroching of the Irifh enemy; the scope ring of the English Pale of the English Pale became greatly impaired, being cramperned and caught into an odde corner of the Country, named Fingall, with a parcell of Meeth the Kings Land the Countries of Kildare & Louth. which parts were applyed cheefely with good husbandry, and taken for the richest and civilest foyles in Ireland. But Fingall especially (from time to time) was Fingall excel alwayes to addicted to the chiefe points

ulb word Clowne, feemeth to be answe-

English, the race or lept of the English or beene (in olde time) fo much addicted to their contity, and fo farre fequestred from barbarous fauagenesse; that their onely

mother tongue was English. And truely.

fo long as thefe impaled dwellers, did funder themselves (aswell in land, as in lan-

The word Fingall counternaileth in

led in husbandıy. of husbandry; as that they became nicknamed by their neighbors (for their continuall drudgery) Collonnes, of the Latine word Coloni, wherunto the clipt Eng-Pingal clowns strangers, because they were soly seized of that part of the Island, gryping with their Talents that warme nell fo firmely; thar from the Conquest, to this day, the Irifh enemy could not rouze the thence.

Fingelf,and

The great ciuility in anci ent times a. puled dwelloyalty observed, rebellion suppressed, & in the ende, the coine of a young England was like to shoote in Ireland. But when their posterity became not altogether so wary in keeping, as their Ancestors were valiant in conquering; the Irifb language The Irifb Li. became free dennized in the English Pale, guage free the body, which before was whole and Pale. found: became festered by little and little, and (in a manner) wholly putrified. And not only this parcel of Ireland grew to that civility; but VISTer also, and the greater part of Mounster. Albeit, of all other places, weifeford, with the territory baied, and perclosed within the River called the Pill, was fo quite estranged from Irishry (which was rare in those dayes) that if a travailer of the Irifb, had pitcht his foote within the Pill, and fpoken Irilb: the Weisfordians would command him forthwith, to turne the other ende of his tongue, and speake English, or else to bring his Trouchman with him. But afterward, they so acquainted themselues with the Irib, making a mingle-mangle of both languages, that (commonly) the Inhabitants of the meaner fort, grew to speake neither good English nor good I-manner Ireland came to receive the chri- fruited in ftian faith : And finde, that immediately the Christian after Christs time, Saint James the Apo- faith by Sain file & other, trauailing into these West poste. parts; did first enstruct the Irilb people, and teach them the glad tydings of the Gospel. So that divers among them even then were christened, and beleeved: but not in fuch numbers (as may be thought) wherby it should be faid, that the Country was generally converted. Notwithstanding, the Scottish Chronicles doe auouch, that in the dayes of Fincomarke King of Sco their King, who departed this life in the land. yeare of our Redemptio, 358, Ireland was

The Inhabitants of the English Pale, have | converted to the faith, by this meanes. A woman of the Pictiff blood (fay they) chanced in those dayes to serue the Queenc of Ireland; which woman herfelle beeing a Christian, first enstructed the faith. her Queene and Millreffe, in the faith & true points of Christianity, & the Queen goage) from the rude Irillo: rudeneffe was her Flusband the King, who concerted day by day supplanted in the Country, the whole Irish Nation. Howbeit, by the

This canker tooke fuch deepe roote, that dennized in Wee come now to declare, in what

The River Pil

A Piclift wo

of the Irifk Writers themselues, this where, vpon his arrivall, hee found the should not seeme altogether true.

The herefie of clagius had taile decai d Chriftian faith in the weft parts of

Chap. 1.

For they affirmed, that their Country was rather still esteemed as one of the vnchristned Isles, till about the yeare of our Lord, foure hundred twenty and fixe: when Celestine, the first of that name, gouernd the See of Rome, who, on conference had with his Cleargie, touching the restoring of the Christian faith in the West (by following our Author herein) to touch parts of the world (greatly there decayed by the herefie of Pelagius) understood that Ireland also, by reason of distance from the heart of Christendome, and rudenesse of the Nation; had received little fruit at all of true Religion, a thing much to bee

Among other, that then were affem-Paladiusmade offer to go into Ireland, and therupon was lamented.

bled to treate of those matters, was one Paladius, Arch-deacon of Rome, who offered his charitable trauaile, towardes the couerfion of those lands, whither it shold pleafe them to appoynt him to goe . Celestine knowing the sufficiecie of the man, confecrated him Bishop, authorized his lourney by Letters under his Scale, furnifhed his wants, and affociating to him, fuch religious persons and others, as were thought necessary to affish him : delinered vnto him the Bible with great folemnitie, and other monuments, in furtherance of his good speede, for so long and tedious a lourney. At length hee landed in the North of Ireland, from whence he hardly escaped quired by the Scots, that dwelt in Britaine,

And the biftion of Rome, the more readily condificended thereto, because at that infrant time, when Paladius was to depart:

(with life) into the Iflesadjoyning, where he preached the Gospell, and converted no finall number of Scots to the Christian faith and beleefe; purging also that part which was christened, from the infection of the Pelagians, as in the Scottish historiemore at large appeareth. He was re-to leave the Isles, and come over to them, there to enfirmed the people in the way of ay of Paladina true faluation : to the which (with the Popes licence) he feemd willing enough.

Paladius Ian-

ded in the north of Ire-

and, and con

into Ireland, and Paladius

one Patricke attended at Rome, fuing for licence to be fent into Ireland. The Pope therefore graunted, that Paladius might passe ouer to the Scottes in Britaine, and appoynted Patricke to goe (with authoritic from him) into Ireland, people so well bent to heare his admonitions (contrary to their accustomed forwardnesse) that a man would have imagined , vpon fight of their readinesse; that The toward. the Land had beene reserved for him to tish men to convert. And because it pleased God, to heare Patr ets bestow such an universall benefite on the preaching. Land, by his meanes; weethought good

This Patricke , in Latine called Patrici-

Deacon, and fonne to a Priest: his Mother, named Conches, was fifter to S. Martine, that famous Bishoppe of Tours in France. Patricke (of a childe) was brought

vp in learning, and well enftructed in the faith, beeing much given to denotion.

The Irifhmen (in those daies) affisted with fome Scots and Piets, were become arch-

the Coasts of Britaine, and vsed to facke little small Villages, that lay scatteringly

And as affliction (commonly) maketh education, had stamped in him such re-tooke himfelieto contemplation, ener lamenting the lacke of grace and trueth in

that Land. And withall not despairing,

but that (in continuance of time) fome

good might be wrought vpon them; hee

learned the Language perfectly. And, thence, and got him into France, ener ha-them, and keepe them.

some part of the course of his life.

m, was borne in the Marches betweene England and Scotland, in a Towne by the In what place Sea fide , named Eiburne , whose fathers Saint Patricke name was likewise called Calphurnius, a wasborne, Pirats, greatly disquicting the Seas about lie.

along the thore, and would leade away the Inhabitants captine home into their Country. And as it channeed, Patricke Saint Patricke being a Lad of fixteene yeares olde, and a Scholler then in feculer learning: was taken among other, and became flaue to he redeemed an Lifb Lord called Machusine, from who himselfe. (after the terme of fixe yeares) he redecmed himfelte, with a piece of gold, which he found in a clod of earth, that the fwine had newly turned up, as he followed the in the time of his captiuity, beeing appointed (by his Matter) to take charge of men religious, the regard of his former Affliction is morfe and humility, that beeing thence-meanes to foorth weared from the world : hee be- com religious alluring one of that Nation, to beare him The pattage company for exercise sake; hee departed Fraunce.

uing in his minde, a defire to fee the conucrtion Sain: Patricke placed in feruice with Gerof Auxerre.

He went to Rome, highly commended to pope Cele-Patricke inue ft-d Archbift of Ireland.

reverently re-

Albius an Irifh l ithop disciple to Paladius.

great monark of Ireland, per rifhmen wbecome christiás uersion of the Irish people, whose babes yet vnborne, feemed to him in his dreaming, from forth theyr mothers wombs, to call for Christendome.

In this purpose, he sought out his vnkle Martine, by whose meanes he was placed with Germanus the Bish. of Auxerre, continuing with him as Scholler or Difmanus Bithop ciple for the space of fourtie yeares : all which time hee bestowed in the studie of holy Scriptures, Prayers, and fuch godly exercifes. Afterwards, beeing renowned through the Latine Church, for his wifedome, vertue and learning : hee went to Rome, bearing Letters with him in his commendation from the French bishops vnto Pope Celestine, to whom hee vttered his whole minde and fecret vow, which long before hee had conceined as touching Ireland. Celestine inuested him Archbishop and Primate of the whole Mand, fer him forward with al fattor he could deuife, bringing him and his disciples onward to their Countrey.

In the 23 years of the Emperour Theodofius the yonger, being the yeare of our Lord, 430. Patricke landed in Ireland, and Patricke verie bicause he spake the tongue perfectly, and withall being a reucrend personage in the people in Ire-land. eare to his preaching. And the rather, because (as some VV riters have recorded) he confirmed his Doctrine with diverse miracles. But especially those men regarded his words before all others, that had some rafte of the Christian Faith before, eyther by the comming into those partes of Paladius and his Disciple one Albius, an Irifh Bishop, or otherwise by some other. For, it is to be thought, that continually there remained fome spark of knowledge of Christianity, cuer fince the first preaching of the Gospell, which was shortly after Christs Ascention, by S. lames as before is mentioned. But in continuance of time , Patricke wonne the better part of Laigerius fon that kingdome to the faith of Christ. Lai gerius son to Nealus the great Monarch, albeit he received not the Gospell himfelfe; yet he permitted all that would from God accordingly, but yet tempered with mercy and indgement, as thus: That during his life he should be vill orious : but | Cittie hath (in elder times) beene go-after him, neither should the kingdome stand, nor his linage inherit. Thence he tooke his way to Conill, lord of Connach, who ho- Conill Lord norably received him, and was converted of Connagh with all his people: fending him afterward to his brother Logan, king of Leinster, who Logan Kinger he also connerted. In Mounster he found great frendship, by the means of an Earle there , called the Earle of Daris, who ho- The Earle of nored him highly, & gaue him a dwelling Daris. place in the East Angle of Armagh, called Sorta, where he creeted many Celles and Monasteries, both for religious men and women. He trauelled 20. yeares in preaching through the land, planting Bishops and Priests in convenient places, whose learning and convertation, by the especiall grace & fauor of God, established the Faith in that rude nation. Other 20 veres he spet in his prouince of Armagh, among his brethren placed in those houses of Religion, which by his means were founded. S. Patricket So he lived (in all) about 122. yeares, and his place of he riall in Down lyeth buryed in Downe. Now, concerning the chiefe citties and townes of Ireland, we are first to speake of Dublin, termed the beautie and eye of Ire- Thefamon land. I find it recorded that about the vere 155. three noble Easterlings, being brethien, ariued in Ireland, whose names were Auellanus, Sitaracus and Tuorus. Auellanus being the eldest brother, built Dubling thereof, who Situracus, Waterford and Tuorus, Limerike. Was Auching Of the founder Auellanus, Dublin was termed Auellana, and after by corruption of speech, Eblana, and so Ptolomie calleth it. Some termed it Dublin, other, Dublinia, many Dublinum, but Authors of better skill name it Dublinium, This cittie as it is not inferiour for Antiquity to any in Ireland, fo in pleafant scituation, gorgeous buildings, multitude of people, martiall Chiualry, obedience and loyalty, aboundance of wealth, largeneffe of hospitality, in manner, and civilitie, it is superiour to all other citties and towns in that realmer whereupon it is commonly called, the /rift or yong London. The Charter of this Dublinthe citie is large, King Henry the 4. gaue it the Sword, in the yeare 1409, and was ruled The Sword to embrace it . But because he refused to by a Maior and two Bailiffes : which were guerto Di be haprifed, and apply to his doctrine; the changed into Sherifs, by a Charter gran- sheriffer of Bishop denounced against him a curste | ted by king Edward the fixt, 1547. But it Baylies. appeares by the ancient Scale of this cittie called Signum prapositura, that the ucrned by a Pronost. the yeare 155. beeing a Citty properly yong and old there are given to thriving, they spinne the cheefest Rugge in Ireland.

Waterford called Mena pia by Ptolo

Chap. 1.

The worthy loialty of Wa

Limericke, Yuorus the Founder ther

Corke the of Ireland.

firft founder

Drogheda.

uerned

waterford was founded by Sitaracus, in builded, and very well compact. Both from Roffe, whereof no great matters are free from factions: the men deale in trafficke, the women in spinning & carding; and as they distill the best Aqua vita, io

Of this Citty Waterford it is written, to have continued to loyall to the Crowne of England, that it is not found registred (since the Conquest) to have bin stained with the smallest spot of treason, notwithfranding the fundry affaults of traiterous attempts. And therfore the Cities Armes are deckt with this golden word : In tac-Limericke, called in Latine Limericum, was builded by Tuorus, about the very fame yeare of 155, coasting on the Sea. hard voon the River Sennan; whereby are most notably seuered Mounster and Connaght, the Irifh name this Citty, Loumneagh, and therefore in English it is called Limerike. Corke, in Latine Corcinam or Corracium the fourth Citty of Ireland, happily planted on the Sea : their Hauen being a Hauen royall. On the land-fide they were fo encumbred with cuill neighbours, the Irifb Out-lawes, that they were faine to watch their gates hourely, to keepe them thut at feruice times, and at meales. And from Sun to Sun, not to fuffer any ftranger to enter the Citty with his weapon, but to leave it at a Lodge appointed.

Drogheda, accounted the best Towne in Ireland, and truely not fatre behinde fome of their Citties: the one moity of this Towne is in Meeth, the other planted on the further fide of the water, lycth in Vliter.

There ranne a blinde Prophesie of | Ibelle, Callanne, Kilkenny, Knocktofer, Cheese towns this Towne, that Rolle was, Dublin is, Drogheds fhall be the best of the three.

Roffe, a Hauen Towne in Mounster, not farre from waterford, feeming to have beene (in ancient time) a Towne of great port, whereof fundry and probable conicctures are given, by the olde Dirches, which are now a mile distant from the Walles of Rolle : betweene which walles and ditches, the reliques of the auncient Walles, Gates, and Towers (placed betweene both) are to bee seene unto this weisford, a Hauen Towne not farre recorded : but onely that it is to be effecmed by all the English posterity planted in Ireland, as a Towne that was the first Fortresse and Harbourer, of the English Conquerors, doing them (from time to time) many great and acceptable ferui-

Kilkenny, the best vpland, or (as they Kilkenny, tearme it) the properest dry Towne in Ireland; is divided into the high Towne, and the Irifb Towne. The high Towne was builded by the English, after the Conquest, and had a parcell of the I fb Towne vnited to it, by the Bifhops grant, made vnto the Founders vpon their earnest request. Robert Talbot, a worthy Gentleman, in the yeare one thousand foure ded in Anno. hundred, enclosed with walles the better Rebert Talbot, part of this Towne.

Thomas Towne, a proper Towne builded in the County of Rilkenny, by one Thomas Fitz-Anthony, an Englishman: thereof the frifb call it Ballie mac-Andan, that is, The Towne of Fitz- Anthony. But because the Reader may perceive, in what parts of the Country the Citties and cheefe Townes fland, I haue fet them downe in this order.

Drogheda, Carregfargus, Downe, Armagh, Arglafbe, Clougher, Muneigh an, Doonnegaule, Karree mac Roffe, Newrie, Carlingford, Ardie, Doondalke, Louth, Dublin , Bulrudrie, Luske , Swords Tafbacrard, Lions, Newcastle, Ratheonle, Onghter arde, Naas, Clane Mainooth, Kilcocke, Rathaimgan, Kildare, Luianne: Cafle-Towne, Phillips-Towne, Mary boroneh, Kilcullen, Cattle-Marten, Thistledermot. Kilea, Athie, Catherlangh, Leighelen, Ganranne , Thomas Towne, Enestio ke, Ca-

Roffe, Cloumelle, Weifeford, Fernes, Fidderd, Enefcortie, Tathmon, wickles, Ackloa , Waterford, Lifmore , Deengarnen, Toobill, Corke, Limerike, Kilmallocke, Alo. ana, Galuoie, Anrie, Lonagbriagh, Clare, in Wellmeet Toame, Sligagh, Rolle comman, Aritlowne, Trimme, Doonfbaghlenne, Rathlouth, Na. nanne, Aooie, Scrine, Taraugh, Kelmles. Doonboine, Greenocke, Dulceke, Molingare. Fowre, Loughfende, Kilkeniwell, Moilagagh, Deluinne.

Weisford

Walles buil-

The names of the cheefe

The names of the cheefe I ownes in in Mounfler. Checte town in Connaghr. Chiefe towns in Meeth. Chiefe towns

Iiii

In

Chap.1.

lin, before Sir Anthony Sentleger, Knight, Lord Deputy of Ireland: that Meeth of Meeth into ewo Counties. should be divided and made two Shires, one of them to bee called the County of Meeth, and the other to bee named the County of Westmeeth . And that there should be two Sheriffes, & Officers conuenient within the faide Shieres, as is more at large expressed in the Act.

Loughfoile, the Banne, Wolderfrith, Car-

The names of the cheefest Hauen towns in Ireland.

regfergus, Strangford, Ardglas, Longheue, Carling ford, Kilkeale, Dunkalke, Kilclogher, Dunane , Drogheda, Houlepatrike, Nanie, Baltraie, Brimore, Balbriggen, Roggers-Towne, Skerrift, Ruft, Malahide, Banledoile, Houth, Dublin, Dalkee, Wickincloa, Arckloa, Weisford, Bazganbun, the Paffage, Waterford, Dungaruan, Roffe noua, Youghille, Corke mabegge, Corke, Kinfale, Kierie, Koffe Ilbere, Dorrie, Baltinimere, Downenere, Downesbead, Downelounge, Attannanne, Craghanne, Downeuebwine, Balineskililiedge, Daugine Ichouse, Trolie, Semme, Caffanne, Kilwewine, Limerike, Inniskartee, Belalenne, Arinenewing Glanemauch, Balliweibam, Binwarre, Dowris, Woran, Koskam, Galwaie, Killinillie, Innesbosinne. Owran, Moore, Kilcolken, Burske, Belleclare, Rathefilbene, Bierweifowre, Bucaneis hare, Ardnemakow, Rosbare, Kilgolinne Wallalele, Rabranne, Strone, Berweis now, Zaltra, Kal-

Bowlenne. The spiritual Iurisdiction of Ireland, is ordered into foure Proninces, whereof the Primacy was ever given (in reverence of S. Patricke, that conucrted the Country) to the Archbishoppricke of Armagh, who is called Primas totius Hibernia, and the Archbishop of Dublin, Primas Hibernia. Which custome was fince confirmed by Eugenius the third, in Anno. 1 148. or 1152, Who fent withal three other palles of Archbishops to be placed, one at Dublin , one at Calhill, and the laft at Twene.

balie, Ardnocke, Adrowfe, Sligaghe, Innes

To thefe were Suffraganes in right, nine and twenty, and they all to the Primas of Armagh. Vnder whose Province are the Bishops of Meeth and Deren, Ardach, Kilmore, Cloghere, Donne, Coner, Clanknos, Kaboo, Dromoore.

Vuder Dublin, wheretunto Innocentius the third vnited Glandelagh, the Bithop | Robert V fford, againe Lord luftice. Vnder Dublin

In the foure and thirtie yeare of the | of Elphine, Kildare, Fernes, Osforie, and Vnder Cashill, the Bishop of Waterford, to whom Lismore is vnited, Corke Vnder Cashi and Clone, Roffe, Ardigh, Limerike, Emelse, Killalooe and Ardfert.

Vnder Twene, Kilmaco, Olfine, Anaghdonne, Clonfers and Morroo.

In this recount some difference happeneth, by reason of personall and reall vnion of the Sees, and for other alterati-

The Names of the Gouernours, Lieutenants, Lord Iustices, and Deputies of Ireland, since the Conquest thereof, by King Henry the fecond.

Ichard Strongbow, Earle of Pembroke Governor of Pembroke, Gouernour, The yeares of R Keimond le Grace beeing ioyned (for his more cale) in Commission with 1177.

1182

1272.

1369.

1381.

Reimondle Grace, Lieutenant by himwilliam Fitz. Adelme, Liebtenant, hauing John de Curcy, Robert Fitz-Stephans, and Miles Cogan, joyned in Commissi-

Hugh Lacie Lieutenant. Iohn Lacie, Conftable of Che- & Gouer-Iter, and Richard de Peche. . Snours: Hugh Lacy, againe Lieutenant Hugh Lacy the younger , Lord Iuftice. Henry Loandorie, Archbishop of Dublin, 1227. Lord Iuftice. Maurice Pux-Gerald, Lord Iuflice. 1 2 28. John Fitz Geffrey, Knight, Lord luftice. 1253. Alan de la Zouch, Lord Iustice. 1 2 5 8. Stephen de Long Effe, Lord Iuftice. William Deane, Lord luftice. 1261. Sir Richard Rochell, or Capell, Lord In-Have flice. David Barry, Lord Inflice. 1267. 1268. Robert VHord Lord Inflice ... 1260 Richard de Excester, Lord Inflice. 1270 Lames Lord Andley, Lord Inflice.

Maurice Fitz-Maurice, Lord Inflice.

walter, Lord Gennille, Lord Inflice. Fulborne.

Iohn Stamford, Archbishoppe of Dublin, Lord Instice. william Vescie, Lard Iustice. william Dodingfels, Lord Iuftice. Thomas Fitz-Maurice, Lord Iustice. John Wogan, Lord Iustice. 1384. Theobald Verdon, Lord Iuflice. Edmond Butler, Lord Iulice. 1315. Roger Lord Mortimer, Lord Iuftice. 1317. Alexander Bigner, Archbishop of Dublin; Lord Iustice. 1319, Roger Lord Mortimer, the second time Lord Inflice. Thomas Fitz-John, Earle of Kildare, Lotd Iohn Birmingham, Earle of Louth, Lord Iohn Lord Darcy, Lord Iustice. Roger Outlaw, Prior of Kilmainan, Lord 1327. Anthony Lord Lucy, Lord Iustice. Ichn lord Darcy, fecond time Lord Iustice Iohn Lord Charleton. Lord Iustice. 1333+ Thomas, Bithop of Hereford, L. Justice. John Lord Darcy, ordayned Lord Inflice 1339. by Patent, during his life, by King Edward the third. Raphe Vifordi Lord Iustice. 1346. Robert Darcy, Lord Inflice. John Fitz Maurice, Lord Inflice. walter, Lord Birmingham, Lord Iuflice: his Deputies were John Archer, Prior of Kilmainan, and Baron Carew, with had the Office of Lord Inflice, for tearine of his life, by the grant of king Edward the third. Thomas Rokesby, Knight, Lord Inflice. 1355. Almericke de S. Amand. 1357. John Butler, Earle of appointed lord Manrice Fitz Henry, Stirries. Idonall, Dake of Clarence, Lord Inflice. 1261. Gerald Fitz-Maurice, Earle of Defmond, 1367. Lord luftice.

william Lord windfor, the first Lieutenant

Rogar Mortimer. \ Iultices & Lieutenants

Phillip Courtney. Cofpecially recorded, in lames Earle of the dayes of King Ri-Dehard the second.

in Ireland.

Ormond.

Roger Aluton, Lord Iuftice.

1281. Fulborne, Bishop of Waterford, Lord Iu- Robert Vere, Earle of Oxford, Marquesse of Dublin, created Duke of Ireland, Roger Mortimer Earl of March Lieutenat. 1394. Roger Mortimer, Earle of March and VIfter Lieutenant. Roger Grey, Lord Inflice. John Stanley Knight, Lord Lieutenant. Thomas of Lancaster, brother vnto King Henry the 4. Lord Lieutenant : whole 1401. Deputies at fundry times, were Alexander Bishop of Meeth Stephen Scroop, Knight, and the Prior of Kilmainan. Iames Butler, Earl of Ormand, Lord Iustice 1403. Gerald, Earle of Kildare, Lord luftice. Lames Butler, Earle of Ormand, fonne to 1407. the forelaid lames, Lord Iuftice. Iohn Stanley, againe Lord Lieutenant. 1413. Thomas Cranley, Archbishop of Dublin, Lord Iuflice. Iohn Lord Talbet of Sheffield, Lieutenant.
Ismes Busles, carle of Ormand, the Second 1414. 1420. time Lieutenant. Edmand Earle of March, James) Earle of Ormana, his Deputy. Iobn Sutton, Lord Dudley; Sir Thomas Strange, his Deputy Six Thomas Stanley Six Christo Lieutepher Plunkes his Deputy. nants to Lion Liond Welles, Deputy to king Hethe Earle of Ormand. Tames Earl of Ormand, by himry the 6. felfé. " Iobn Batle of Shrewsbury; the Archbithop of Dublin (in his absence) Lord Iustice. Richard Plantagenes, Duke of Torke, Father to King Edward the 4. had the Office of Lieutenant, by letters Patents from King Heavy the fixt for ten yeares. His Deputies (at fundry times) were the Baron of Deluin; Richard Fitz-Enflace, Knight; James Earle of Ormond; and Thomas Fitz-Morris, Earle of Kildare. homas Fitz-Morris, Earle of Kildare, Lord Inflice in the dayes of King Edward the fourth, vitill the third yeare of his reigne. After whom, George

Duke of Clarence, brother to the King.

had the Office of Lieutenant during his life, and made his Deputies (at fun-) Depu-

theD.of

Richard

Clarence

14500 dry times) thefe men following:

Sir Rowland Enstace, Lord Deputy.

John Tiptoft, Earle of Worcefler Ctics to Thomas, Earle of Definand.

Thomas, Earle of Kildare.

Henry, Lord Grey of Ruthin.

Of Ireland.

Vnder Ar-

Of the Feele

Gofficell ru-

rifdictionin

The Archbi

(hoppricks.

Ireland.

dge

Ductor Coren, or Cormen. Sces.

916	Of Irela	and. 10. E	OOK
	Richard, Duke of Torke, younger fonne to	Sir Henry Sidney, Lord Iustice alone, 18.
	King Edward the fourth, Lieutenant.	Ianuary.	1556.
	Edward, sonne to King Richard the third,	Thomas Earle of Suffex, Lord Licutenant	1
	Lieutenant, his Deputy was Gerald,	19.Martij.	1557.
	Earle of Kildare.	Sir William Fitz-Williams, Lord Iustice.	7 0 lafter, Duke of Bedford, and Earle of Pen-	Thomas Earle of Suffex, Lord Deputy,6.	1558.
	broke, Lieutenant: his Deputy was wal-	Maij Anno primo Reg. Elizab.	1559.
	ter, Archbishop of Dublin.	Sir Nicholas Arnold, Lord lustice.	1564.
	Edward Poynings Knight, Lord Deputy.	Sir Henry Sidney, Lord Deputy the third	1565.
1494	Henry, Duke of Torke, afterward King, by	time.
1501.	the name of Henry the eight, Lieute-	Doctor Weston, Lord Chancellor.	' ' nant: his Deputy was Gerald, Earle of	Sir William Fitz Williams.	1567.
	Kildare.	Sir Henry Sidney, lord Deputy the fourth	.1568.
	Gerald Fitz-Gerald, Earle of Kildare, Lord	time.
	Deputy.	Sir William Fitz-Williams, Lord Deputy,	1570.
1520.	Thomas Howard, Earle of Surrey, after-	11. Decemb. Anno. 14. Elizab.	1571.
	ward Duke of Norfolke, Lieutenant.	Sir Henry Sidney, Lord Deputy the fift	1572.
	Plers Butler, Earle of Offorie, L. Deputy.	time, August 3.
1523.	Gerald Fitz Gerald, Earl of Kildare, again	Sir William Drury, Lord Iustice, 14. Sep-	1579.
	Lord Deputy.	tember, by Patent, 18. May.	0-
	The Baron of Dublin, Lord Deputy.	Shwilliam Pelham, Lord Inflice.	1580,
*	Pieres Butler, Earle of Offorg, againe Lord	The Lord Arthur Grey.	1580, 1529.	Deputy.	Dublin. Lords Iustices.	1582.
	William Skeffington Knight, Lord Deputy	Sir Henry Wallop.
	Gerald Fitz Gerald, Earle of Kildare, the	Sir Tohn Berot, Lord Deputy	1584.
	william Skeffington, againe Lord Deputy.	Sir William Fire-williams, Lord Deputy.	1588.
	Leonard Lord Grey, Lord Deputy.	Sir william Ruffell, Lord Deputy.	1595.
1535.	Sir William Bereton, Knight, Lord Lustice.	Thomas, Lord Burrough, Lord Deputy.	1597.
1540:	Sir Anthony Sentleger Knight, L.Deputy.	Kobert Earle of Effex, Lord Lieutenant.	1599.
1541.		Charles Blount, Baron Monttoy, Lord De-	.1600, puty. within we treem's come is
	The Names of all the Lords,	Sie George Odraw, Lord Deputy.	1602.
	Deputies, and Iuftices in Ireland, fince	Sir Arthur Chichester, Lord Deputy.	1604.
	the death of King Herry the	Sit Oliver S. 16hn, Lord Deputy, who yet	1618.
	eight, who dyed in Ia-	to this day, condition that honou-nuary, 1546.	A rable Officedant and our of the sent to	I have Office of Lond I there the	1
	CIR Anthony Sentleger Knight, by Pa-	पंतरी विकास नुभविष्ट , वीर वीर्व विकास कर ।	1
1546.	Stent, dated 24. Marty. Anno primo	out CHAP. I'Pdi	1
1546.	Edw.6.	•350 processing (1973) (1986)
1,547.	Sir Edward Bellingham, Lord Deputy, 22.	and the second control of the second Aprilis An.codem.	Abriefe Discourse, how those pars, and 1548.	Sir Francis Brian, Lord Iustice.	Countries, commonly called The New Worlds
1542.	Sir William Brabeiton, Lord Willice.	were first found : Alfo by wham, and what 1550.	Sir Anthony Sentleger, the third time lord	things were there found, and feene, and	١.
	Deputy, 4. August. Sir lames Crostes, Lord Deputy, 29. Apri-	breught away thence.	1
1551.	lu.	1 ~ 1 luffice.
	Sir Anthony Seneleger, the fourth time	na I admings shelled be come 1553.	Lord Deputy, September 1. Annoprime	Carnell fayling win the Spa-
	Reg. Marie,	nifb Seas; there fell a tom-	The Winder
1	Thomas Lord Fitz-Walter, Lord Deputy,	peff, comming to impetit-	will be Com
	27. Aprilu.	outly from the East, the	manders at Sea.
	Sir Henry Sidney. 7 Lords Iusti-	Windes growing still fo
1556.	TX 0	Lange of the second sec	1 croffe and contrary ; that at length it was tranfpor-

Of Ireland

transported into an vnknowne Country, I that he dwelt when the faid Caruell coawhich never was in any Carde for Nauigation. Staying there longer time, then was or could be allowed for returning, no more remayned living then the Pilote or Maister, and three or foure Mariners befide: who also falling ficke, by extreamitie of hunger and tedious labour, dyed al. fo at a Port some sew daies distance from thence.

But the Pilote, whose name was Andaluzo, dyed in the house of one Christopher Columbus, a natine of Cuguero, or (as some others fay) of Albizolo, a fmall village on the river of Genes, neare to Sauona. With this Colombus remayned all the Pilotes goods of the fayd Carnell, and especially the Papers and Memories of that whole vovage reporting the height of the lands.

which by them had beene difconerd, and found . Some fay, that the fayel Andaluze trafficked in Canaria and Madera, when this long and fatall nauigation happened.

Others also tearme him a Biscane, which dealt with England and France : and fome repute him a Portuguize, that went and came from Myrrha or India. Others 2-gayne report, that the faid Carnell went into Portugall, or to Madera, and other I-lands; but none doe affure any thing for certaine. It is no maruell then, if Authors do difagree in many points, concerning things happening, or found by graue Ancients, and that the Inventors of them are not to be knowne; when our felues are ignorant of matters, within the compaffe of to fmall time fince, for finding the Oc-cidentall or Westerne Isles (which we call the New-found World) and which was a

In the house of Christopher Columbus died the Pilote Andaluzo.

Chap.2.

Variety of o pinions concerning this Andeluzo.

Needs muft moy Antienucs be loft. when later mosnegicat ali memorie.

What Chriflopher Co-lumbus was at is beginning matter to figuall, nonell, and remarkable. But all agree together, that this Andaluzo dyed in the house of the sayd Christo. pher Columbia; who having (at the first) beene a Sayler or Mariner, had practited in divers parts of the world. Afrerward, hee learned diligently the measure of the two Tropickes, of the Equator, and of the Clymates, proouing an expert Maifter, in making Cardes to fayle by . And to be informed concerning the Meridio-nall coasts of Affrica, and of other places where the Portugalls had fayled: he went into Portugall, to the end he might make his Cards the better, and there he marti-

ed. Or, as fome fay, in the lile of Madera:

where it may be credited (as most likely)

sted there;and the Patron or Pilote there-Reasons of ap. of lodged in his house, where he recounted to him the voyage he had made, and cale of Cothe new lands by him discouered : to the lundus. end that Columbus might fet them downe in his Garde, wherein he was further enftructed by him.

Of the Nevv-found World.

It is generally supposed, that Columbus was a learned man, a good Geographer, very fingularly experienced in Attronomy and Cosmography; and that hee la- Thegenerall boured to finde the land of the antipodes, ceining Coand Il Rico Cipango de Marco Polo. Morco- lumbus, rouuer, he was often heard to fay, that (ne-ficency in lear ceffarily) by good conicctures there was ning and ingeanother world, which extended it felle to- ment wards the Weit : whereof Plato, Seneca, and many other Authors, both Greek and Latin, did leaue to Cosmographers some good and confiderable arguments. Alfo, that he had read many good ancient Authours, who, in the place where they difcourse on the great Athlanticke lile; make mention of a land vnknowne and concealed, more great then Afia or Affrica. And especially Aristotle, writing, that certaine Merchants of Carthage, fayling in those parts of Gibralterre, towards the Well & South after many dayes found a great I-land inhabited, with Rivers name, ble. But, after all this fo dinertly delinered. on the behalfe of Columbus, it is most cer-taine, that he was not learned, but of good to the resamt judgement and viderflanding, and re- maion, and h ceining notice of these new Lands, by the nat conclusion meanes of Andalueo; he conterred with Celaubus diners learnd and indicious men, concerning what had aunciently beene written of other lands and worlds. And the fayd Columbus, wanting meanes to bring to paffe what he fo carneftly defired, because he was poore; floode in neede offorme farre greater fanour, whereby hee might difcouer those lands. Perceiuing then , that the King of Par- Kings, whose ingall was hindered by his enterprize of help beginnen-Africa, 8 natigation into the East, which mound he had then in readines, and that the king of Cattele was bufied about the warre of Granada : he fent his brother, named Bartholomew, to Henry the featenth, king of England, a very rich and potent Prince, (who had at that prefent time no warres or troubles) to furnish him with fanour and thippes apt and fit for the enterprize, liti 3

promi

Columbus

though dif

not yet be couraged,w whelly dif-heartened.

The 1.Dukes

of Medina acquainted great offer, &

with this

loue and amity.

turning thence without any refolution; he began to negotiate with Alphonfus the fift, King of Portugall: of whom he could neyther haue fauour nor money, to finde Columbus fuch wealth as he had promifed; because hindered in the Bishop of Viso, and one Master Rodedealing with the King of rick, men greatly experienced in Cosmo-Portugall. graphy contraried him therein, confidently affuring; that there could not bee

> Columbus spake of. Beeing much difmayed and out of comfort (yet his heart encouraging him still, with hope of a happy and successeful adventure) and being embarqued at Lifborne : hee fet thence to Paly de Moquera, where he spake with Alphonso Pinzono, a Pylot well skild in the arte of Nauigation : there also he discouered his secret to in the West, any such gold or treasure, as vnknowne Islands (and in small time)vn-valuable treafures. But Bartholmew re-to Iohn Perez, a Fryar Minor, in the Conuent of S. Frances de la Rubida, 2 most excellent Cosinographer. These men encouraged him to follow his enterprize, councelling him further, to impart the businesse to Henry, Duke de Medina Sidania, and then to Lodwick, Duke de Medina Calia, who, in his Port of S. Maria, had good and commodious meanes to prorefuted it also uide Shipping, and people apt for fuch a bulineffe. But thefe two Dukes helde this Voyage and Nauigation, for no other then as a dreame or phantasmaseuen as the Kings of England and Portugall did. In regard whereof, the poore grey Fryar aduited him to goe to the Court of the

Catholique King, and (on his behalfe)

wrote to Fryar Ferdinando de Talaueia,

Confessiour to the Queene. Columbus followed this aduice of the Frvar, and came to the Court of Caffile, in the yeare 1486. and (by written petition)presented both his fight and demand, to King Ferdinand and Queen Elizabeth, who made no great account thereof; as having their mindes troubled, for expelling the Moores out of Granado. He grew then to fpeake with fome, that had neerer care about the King, and were of most employment with his Maiesty, to negotiate in affaires of importance. But because he was a stranger, meanly habited, and without any other credit, then being commended by a poore Fryar Minor: he promiting to bring him home from those | was no way beleeued, and much worse listened vnto; whereat Columbus grew very greatly displeased.

Alphonso Quinta-villa, Great Chamberlaine or Treasurer to the King, kept of entrance him in his house, and dietted him at his for Columbus owne table, taking great delight to heare him talke of fuch things, as he made promise of in vnknowne Countries. By the helpe of this Great Treasurer, Columbus found the meanes, to have accesse & audience with Gonzales de Mendozza, arch-Bishop of Toledo, and Cardinall, who had great credit and authority with their Maiesties. This Lord brought him to the Kings presence, and, after the case was Columbus well examined and vnderstood (notwith- was promife standing all was esteemed vaine and falle, supply by the which Columbus had spoken off in the be- King.

ginning) yet hope was given him of expedition, and imployment in his voyage of Nauigation, to those Islands vnknowns fo foone as the King had taken order for the war of Granado, which then lay heauily on his hand.

Columbus, vpon this answere, began to mount his hopes farre higher then before, and was then graciously both heard and esteemed of all the Courtiers, who laughed and made a mockery of him at the first. After the surprizall of Granado, he prevailed fo successefully, that the Catholique King confented vnto his request, for passage into those vnknowne parts:affigning vnto him in gift, the tenth part of the Rents and Royall tributes, in all the Lands found and conquered: but without prejudice (notwithstanding) to all rights belonging to the King of Portugall. And because the King was then unfurnished of money for this expediti- Christopher on , Lodonico, Secretary for his accounts, Columbus (by lent him seuenteene thousand Ducats: by means of the meanes whereof, Columbia armed & fur- King) armed nished " three Caruels at Pally de Mogu- three Caruels era, and in them fitted 120. men, aswell to you find Marriners as Soldiours.

Of one, hee made Martino Alphonfo Paulus Ioff Pinzono the Guide and Conducter. Of Hisodenis the second, France sco & Vincentio Aeneio, of the Carthe second, France see Vincentio Acnes, or the chinadite in Brethren to the faid Martino. And him-felfe was Captaine and Commander of his Yoyage. the greatest Carnell among them; taking also with him his Brother Hartholmew, who (in like manner) was very practicke and well experienced on the Seas. From third day of August, and held on his youage betweene the West and South, pasfing by Gomera, one of the Canary Islands, Some meanes where he stayed for a small refreshing : & thence onward, followed the directions given him in the papers and memories of deceased Andaluzo.

Chap.2.

Hauing fayled eight dayes, he espied so much graffe or Herbage, as if it feemed to be a Meadow; whereof (at first) he & all grew doubtfull, although ther was no danger at all, and backe they would have returned, but that they faw divers Willow trees a farre off, which gaue an euident and mott certaine figne, that fome Land must needs be neere.

great excesse of ioy, and proud of a hope-

The first land which they faw, was Gua-banay, one of the liles Lucages, fituated betweene Florida and Cuba; where foden-ly they went on shoare, and there tooke possession of the New world. From Gua-banay they went to Barucon, the Porte of Cuba, & there tooke fome Indians, and returning backe to the Ifle of Hayti, caft anchor in the Port, which Columbus called Porte Royall. There hastily they were faine to land againe; because the chief Caruell fmote against a rocke, and began to rift;

On the morrowe following, which After 8.dayes was the eleauenth day of Nouember, in the yeare 1492. Rodericke de Traiana, berick de Traia ganne to cry out alowd, Land, Land: at na was the fiftman that which words, all ran to fee whether they discourred were true or no; and having likewife difconcred that it was firme Land, they beganne to praise GOD, and fung Te Deum Landamus, mourning euen with full proceeding.

Their fyrft landing at Guabanay, beiween Flo tida & Cuba.

but yet no person was in perill. When the inhabitants of the life faw the Spanyards come on thore to speedily, and with their The Indians Armes: they fled from the fea fide up to feareful of the paniar des at their landing.

the Monntaines, imagining them to bee the Carybes or Canibales, that came to af-After them ran the Spaniards, as haftily as they might, and yet could take none woman Indan taken & but one woman, vitto whom they gaue closthed, and Bread, Wine, and Comfittes, as also a imocke, and other Garments, because the was naked, and to fent her away after the reft. She went and told her country people, how kindly thee had bin vied, thewing them the giftes bellowed vppon here

Paly he fet forward on Friday, beeing the which caused them presently to come downe agame to the Sea fide, to speake with the Spaniards, without any vnder-flanding on either file; otherwise then by fignes; euen as dumbe folke vie to do . They brought Birds, Bread, Fruits, Gold, and other things, to give in exchange for Ballads, Beads, Glaffes, Needles, Sizers, Pinnes, and other fuch like things, to the no little ioy and comfort of Christopher Columbus, who faluted, embraced, &renerendly entreated the Lord of that land, being of his people called Cachico, & gifts fyrit ladian palled betweene one another, in figne of Prince teene owne, wherein to bestowe the goodes of by Columbus The Indians brought boats of theyr

the cheefe Carnell that was broken, and The kind offbrought them on Land with the Spany- ccsofthe Inards, so louingly, euen as if they hadde dians to the dwelt all their life time among them: falling downe in reverence to the Croffe, and beating themselves on the brests, like vnto Christians. Now Columbus, thinking no time foon enough for his teturne to Spaine, with newes to the Catholike King, of what he had scene and done, prevailed so wel with the prompt and fodaine confent of Ca-Columbus.by chico, and the affiltance of his fubiects: as confere of C to build a Castle of Woode and Earth; chico, thelp wherein hee left eight and thirty Spany-ords, under the charge of Captaine Rode-file of Wood rigo d' Arma, of Cordona : to the end, that and earth. during his voyage, they might learne the Language and fecrets, both of the Nation and Countrey. And this was the first inhabiting of the Spanyardes in the In-

The Castle being finished, Columbia tooke with him tenne Indian men, forty such things Parrats, many Tortoiles, Conies, and other strange thinges, farre differing from his shipt with ours in forme and nature, as testimonies in. of the places where hee had found them. He brought aboord also into his ships, all the Golde which the people of the countrey had ginen him, in exchange of those toyes and trifles which hee returned for them. And, after hee had taken leane of his friendly Companions, appointed to remaine there in his absence, as also of Guacanari (for fo was the Cachico or king of that Countrey named) who was verice forry and loath, that hee fhould depart thence, he fent away with two Carnels.

to the Catholique King Feidinand & his Queene, & neglecting where he had greateft hope.

Hisperition

Columbus goeth to Bar cellona to the K.and Queen

The peoples

variety in o

Sence in Tra-

2rd.Medea.

the things which hee brought from the New-found Worlde, which were of extraordinary wealth and riches, beside the strangemen, of such colour and habit, as neuer hadde the like beene feene before . Some fayde, that hee had found the Nauigation, concealed from the Carthagepinton concer ning this voy-age of Co-lumbus. mians. And others affirmed it, to be that which Plate had written of to bee loft by fortune, and by an ouer-great quantity of mudde or slime encreasing in the Sea. Some other helde another opinion, faying, That that which Seneca had foretold was now accomplished, speaking in his Fragedy of Medea after this manner. The time vvill come, that (manie yeares hence) before remembred, and (having a fucceffull winde) arrived at Paly within 50.daies

The Catholike King and queene vvere then at Barcellona, whither Columbus went to fee them; and although it was a long way, and he had many things to carry: yet notwithstanding, they were all conucyed with him by Land, and hee was welcom-med vnto the Court with great Honour.

Infinite people flocked about him, to fee or fomewhat leffe.

Newworldes shall bee found, and that their Thile could not bee the furthest part of the

Nomean ad mi ation in inc King Queenc and Courtiers at the rare nouelties broght

Finally, Columbus entred the Court of Spaine, the third day of April, a yeare after he had departed thence, presenting to their Maiesties, the Golde and all thinges elle which he had brought from the New World ; whereat the King, Queene, and all then prefent, merualed not a little, to fee fuch rare things, all (but the gold)nonell and vnaccustomed vnto theyr fight. They highly commended the Parrats, being of to many goodly colours; fome of an extraordinary (hining green, others of a liuely red or Vermillion colour, intermixed with many other of choise splendour, little or nothing at all refembling them that were brought from other places. The Conies were small having their cares and tayles like vnto Rats, and their colour grizeld. Also they greatly praised the Cockes of those Countreyes, beeing farre more beautifull then Pea-cockes, wondering befides, that those Countries yeelded no other Corne, and no other bread was yet fedde on there, but fuch as was made of rootes and the like thinges. wherein were all the other Spaniardes of the voyage, except the eight and thirtie But their cheefest meruaile was at the men, who had little circklets or Buckles of Gold hanging in their eares, and fine- The Indian of Gold nanging in their eares, and they men wer their ly pierced through their nostrilles: theyr greatest matbodies being neither white nor black, or rei of maruell browne, but like vnto an Oliue colour, or boyled Quinces. Very attentiue was the King, to heare what a worthy Relation Columbus made, wondering greatly, that the people shold haue no Habite, Learning, Mony, Iron, Corne, Wine, neyther any Animall which was greater then a Dogge, nor Shippes or Boates of any bigneffe. And much was his patience mooned, when The people he heard him tell, that they did cate one did cate one another, being all Idolaters. But heepromised, that if God pleased to blesse him ters. with life and health: he would free them from that horrible inhumanity, and root Idolatrie out of those Lands, that could bee reduced under his dominion and power. In like manner, hee extended great fauour and courtefie to Columbus, commanding that he should fit down before him, because (according to the custome of Spaine) the Gentlemen and other attendants, fland alwayes in the Kings pre- in the Court fence, for greater honour to the Royall of Spaine. authority. Moreover he confirmed his grant and priviledge, concerning the tenth part of Columbus reuennewes in the faide Lands, gining made Admi him the title and Office of Admirall of rall of the the Indiaes, and made his Brother Bartholmen Lieutenant or vice-Admiral to him. All which beging done, a Courrier or Poaste was dispatched vnto Rome, with letters concerning the New-found lands, to his Maiesties ambassadors, whom (but fome few moneths before) he had fent to News of thefe congratulate Pope Alexander the fixt, at Indian difcohis new creation, and (on his behalfe) to Rome topope do him obeyfance. Which letters of full Alexander and further information, they delivered the fixt. to his Holineffe, he not a little rejoycing at these good newes, as the like did al the Roman Court. In regard wherof, the holy Father, with confent of the whole Col-

ledge of Cardinals, made a new donation to the Kinges of Castile and Leon, of all the Isles and firme lands that should bee found in the West : with charge to fend

Preachers thither, for conversion of the Infidels.

When

Of the Nevv-found VV orld. Chap.2.

Columbus fent againe, with more po wer to the infent Christopher Columbus againe, with more store of people, for further trafficking in this New-found World, and for veter destruction of Idolatry, and adoration giuen to false Gods. For the better furtherance heerein, by John Fon (equeio, Deanc of Sinell, he fent eight Carnelles, making him Prefident of those countries. He sent also twelue Priestes, of vertuous life, and good leatning, with Friar Buileie nerall tent on the Popes be-

The King and Queene Catholi' e,fent preachets and handy- crafts men into the Indiaes, Observance

Catellano, of the order of S. Benedict, who went to be Vicar-Generall for the Pope: to the end, that those Ecclesiasticall perfons might preach the word of God, conuerting the people to the Faith of Iefus Christ, and do all things appertaining to the connersion of soules. Befide all this, many Knights & courtiers, moued by the fame and defire of riches in the fame Countries, and earnest affection to fee them; went along with them in company, having divers Artezans among them, as Goldfmithes, Taylors, Masons, Carpenters, Laborers, Fifhermen, and fuch like persons, fit for di-

The King caused also (at his own charge) to be bought fome flore of Horfes, Kine, Sheepe, Goates, Swine, and Affes, that | fing Columbus of crucky and couctoufbreede might there enfire of them. Great ftore also was fent of Wheat, Barly, and Grame of all kindes to fowe 3 with Slips, Sprigs of Vives, Sugar Carres, and Plants of lweete fruites, as also Chalk and Lime to build withall. In breefe, they carried divers other things for the like needefull yfes centertaining into this fernice 1500. Soldiers, which Columbus thipt at Cadia the 25.day of September, 1497, and good provision of Artillery. Proceeding on in his voyage, & much more neere to the Equinochiall then hee without any flaying there, won the Port

D'A gent, in the life called Hiffaniols. Paff fing on thence to Parte Royalle, where he had left the eight and thirtie. Spanyards who were all flaine by the Indians, beet cause they had luftfully forced their wines and done them many outrages befides .

Columbus being displeased hereat, yet the-wing no outward discontentment, imme-ners imployments.

Histocond did before in his first possage; he came to ctung to fea gaine for the arrive and take landing in an Iland, which Well Indian. he tearmed by the name of Defire, and

When the Catholike King had receyl diately commanded his Masons & other ued this ioyfull answer from the Pope, he men to fall to worke, for the building of a men to fall to worke, for the building of a ded by Co. Towne, which (in honor of the Queene) la nbus, and called liabella he named Isabella. in honour of He builded also a Fort or castle among the queene. the Mines of Cibao, where he established as Gouernor, Moyfes Marguarito, & fent twelue Carnels thence into Spain by Antonio de Turco, which carried many grains of Golde, one especially amongst them, weighing eight ounces, which was found by A'phonfo de Houseda. Hee fent likewife many Parrats, very faire and goodly, and certaine Indian Caribes, being fuch as fed on the flesh of men, bred and born in the Columbus fin Island of Acay, which hee called Santa deth out di-Gruz, and hee himfelfe, went with three uers other imall Iflandes

Caruels more, to finde out other Lands: where he found Cubo on the South-fide, and Ianianca, with other finall Isles in diners pares. At his teturne backe, he found many

Spaniards dead and ficke, and some that hadde carried themselves scarsely honest Spaniards with their companions: whereof he com- hanged for manded fome to bee hanged, and others and Columto be well beaten, that had given forthe. but accused uill speeches of him. By means whereof, the Popes Vi he had some talke with the Vicare to the ca. Pope, who had written to the King; accuneffe : which caufed his Maieftie to fend thither his Cliamberlain John de Aguado, who fent Columbus into Spaine prifoner. to render an account of his behaulour to the King. Christopher Columbus obeying the kings command, went away to inflify himfelfe. Columbus re-And arriving at Medina del Campo (where jurned as a as then the Court was) hee came before priloner into the King and Queene, prefenting infinite graines of Gold to them; forme whereof; weighed fifteene, and twenty Ounces a peece, with great lumps of Amber, goodly wilde Oliuc trees, and wonderfull huge plumes of Parrats Feathers, vied & worn by the Indians, befide many other frange things. le made report also into their Maie- Columbus his flies, concerning the Countries founde appraints by him, greatly commending the Itlands and Queene. for their admirable riches; declaring befide, that in the moneth of December. which we hold to be the Itemiest time of all Winter, that the Birds there, do then produce their yong ones oil the trees; &

The wonderfull plentie yielded by the turneth hon

rably to the Indiacs.

His voyage

Entry against

Columbus by Rolden Sime nes and his af lociates, and great com-

corne (fowne in Ianuarie) yeelded graine within seauentie dayes, Lettice and all rootes grew to be very great. Afterward, he gaue a faithfull report to the king, concerning the behaulour of the Spaniards how he had punished some; and inflicted death uppon other, to the end, that his justification might the more plainely Greatly did the King both commend and thanke him for his good service, and knowing, that hee had doone no more then Iustice: declared him to be absolued of all imputations laved vnto his charge. furnishing him with eight shippes, for the finding out of other Countries: two whereof Columbus fent before with victualles and munition, and with the other fixe shippes, himselfe set away from Saint Luca de Barrameda, about the end of the month of Maie, in the yeare of our Lord God, one thousand soure hundred ninetie and seauen. And because same and rumour of Indian treasure did spread it selfe, enciting divers Pirates of Frauce to make voyages ebroade: hee went to Madera, and from thence hee fent three thippes, by the right way, for the Island called Hispaniola, with three hundred banished men; and with the other three shippes, he went vnto the Isle of Cape de Verd, to make his voyage very neare to the Equinoctiall, arriving at the last in the Equinoca great Countrey of firme land. On hee went coasting three hundred leagues, beyond the Cape with full fayle, and thwarting the Sea, came to Saint Dominico, a it : because (in his absence) till now, he had the care and managing of all affaires. Columbus having taken on him the gouernement, and made many enterprises against them of the Countrey, finding out many other Islands belide; grew to be enuied by the Spaniards, and in fuch fort, that a man named Roldan Simenes (a great against him to Potestate or Judge) mutined against him, towne belonging to his brother Bartho-lomen, and builded on the River Ozama, where hee was received to be governor,

as was contained in his Letters of priniledge and grant, which the King Catholique had made vnto him, and which hee brought thither with him . Albeit fome were much displeased thereat, and his brother Barthelomew did not greatly like in March, the wilde raisins were ripe; and | and three-score and ten men more, all leagued and conjured against him, who forfaking Columbus, went to Siragua, and wrote infinite euilles of him and his brethren to the King. His Maiestie, beeing not a little mooued, that matters should be thus combustuous in the Indiaes, and the Queene taking it very heavily : fuddenly fent Francesco de Bouadello, a knight of good repute, to be governour in those parts, and giving him authoritie, eyther to punish or imprison the faultie. This man came to the Island of Hilla-Columbusard niola, and foure Carnells with him, in the yeare, one thousand foure hundred nine- thren Bartho tie and nine; and after hee had made in- Diego fent pi quisition in the Citie of Dominico; he sent foners into Christopher Columbus, with Bartholomem and Diego his brethren, all prisoners to Spaine, with yron fetters on their feete. Being landed at Cadez, they were delinered, by Commission sent from the King, and commanded to appeare at the court. Columbus readily obeyed thereto, and could so well shape his excuses (mingled with teares and sighes very passionately) that the King having heard him, and knowing his fidelitie, fent him againe (three Columbus 2. yeares after) with foure Caruells, to dif-

couer more new Countries, and this was with foure in the yeare of our Lord God, 1502. or Carnelle.

Columbus being come to the Island of Hilbaniola, and arriving neare to the river Ozama Nicholas de Ouanda Gouernour of the Isle, would not suffer his entrance into the Cittie of Saint Dominico, whereat Columbus being much distasted, sent in to tell him: That if he might not come into Columbus de thereabouts.

the citty, which he himselfe had caused to into SaintDebe builded; he would goe finde out an o-ther Port, where he might be in better af-further for furance. So parting thence, and coueting tune. to fearch the Straits, for passing beyond the Æquinoctiall, which he had promifed the King to doe: hee drew directly towards the West, withall, turning to the Cape of Niguerra, following still the Meridionall coast, returning then to Cuba, and after to lanianca, where hee loft two Gallies, and with two other he went to discouer new lands. But not without great harmes and perills endured before.

for fome of his followers grew ficke, and certaine other Spaniards made warre vp-

Of the New-found VV orld. Chap. 2.

Francesco de Porras, Captaine of one present) is in the Conuent of Saint Do-Galley, and Diego, brother to Columbus, minico at Seuill, a worthy deede of the fon-Natiues and Inhabitants feeing them; would admit them to haue no Victualls, Whereuppon, Christopher Columbus cal-

The ingratitude of the people to Co-lumbus in denying him vitípiring againít his life, lacke of kindnesse and charity, entreating 1604. them to fell him fome victuals; aduiting them further, that except they did fuccor the New-found World, it shall not varie them, all they in the Island should dye of the plague. And to give them a figne as witheffe of his words, he tolde them, that fuch a day it would so come to passe; that ever were in the world, and likewise as they should see the Moone whollie as of the generall Floud or Deluge, as I doe red as bloode, and quite contrarie to her former condition.

Afterwardes, when they behelde the Moone Ecclipfed, at the fame houre of the day, as Columbus had foretolde (not knowing any rules of Astrologie) they verily beleeued his words. And, crauing pardon of him, defired him not to be offended with them; & brought him what | therne partes, there came a man called | inhis fleffs, victuals he could defire. By this meanes, Con, or Conon, who had no bones in his Golumbus having gotten the victoric a. whole body, and therefore went verie gainst those Spaniards, gaue a name vnto the Port, calling it Porta S. Gloria. and raifing the lowe-layd vallies, onelie

The death of Christopher Columbus at Valydolid in

The two wor hy fonnes to Chtiftopher Columbus.

The Library Don Ferdinando, fon Columbus.

Returning home afterward into Spain, to yeelde an account of all that hee had done, being arrived at Valyllolid 32 fickeneffe feized on him, whereof hee dyed in May, in the yeare 1586. and was enterred at Simil, in the Monastery of the Charter-house Monkes. During his life time, he was a man very patient in all his Trauailes, and in foure voyages which hee made into the Vadiaes, both founde and conquered many Countries, vetterly vnknowne before:befide,he builded a great part of the Towns and Castles in the Isle of Hifpaniola, purchasing great renowne, by bringing to end many actions, fo well deserving glory and fame; that his name can neuer be forgotten, or Spaine cease to speake, in giving him such true honour as he worthily merited. He had two Sonnes, Don Diego, who was married to Madam Maria of Tolledo, daughter to Don Ferdinando, great Commandadore of Leon; and Don Ferdinando, who was never married, but hee had a Library, confifting of more then twelve having taken certayne small Barkes, went to so famous a Father. As for King Ferditowards the lile of Hiffaniola: where the nand, he dyed in the yeare of our Lord, one thousand fine hundred and fixteene, having reigned fortic and two yeares, in but laide trappes and traines to kill them. the two kingdomes of Castile and Arragon: Queene Elizabeth his wife dyed beling some of them to him, reproued their fore him, in the yeare of our Lord God.

Before wee close vp this Discourse of much from the matter, to speake of a ftrange opinion, among the people there first men in naturally living concerning the first men the world, &

Among the Inhabitants of the Weaft

Indiaes, or New world, a common and quicke and lightly, much thortening the wayes, abating the hills and mountaines.

with his word and will, and named him-and women, which he produced, giving vnto them divers fruites, and other things the end, that they might conferue thein-felues, in watering the grounds by theyr owne paine and labour.

This man filled the earth with men felfe to be the fonne of the Sunne.

of Vaaprinaz, in this manner.

The peoples opinio of the of the deluge finde it fet downe by the worthy Gentleman of Fraunce, Anthony du Verdier, lord generall received opinion was embraced Control Control with them, that (at the beginning of the non, a man world) from the Septentrionall or Nor- withoutbones necestary for humane life. But by a dif- A heavie difpleafure he received from them, hee con-uerted the earth (which hee before had non against freely ginen them) into a drie and barren men. fand, and tooke away the raine also, that it should never more showre downe, nor moisture any place. Yet, as pittying their milery, he left them tiners onely, to

At length came one Pachamo, who was like-wife forme both to the Sunne and Pachamo Moone, and (hauing expelled or bani-

(hed Conon) connected those men into Cattes and afterward created other men. The people tooke this man to be a God, and to he was generally reputed : vntill the Christians came into those countries, thousand Volumes, and which (at this having crected a very good Temple vnto him,

Francef-

Oracles and Answers of di uells in their Temple by Liqua.

nowned in all those lands : because of extraordinary denotion there yied in regard of Oracles and Answeres, which dinells gaue to Pricits and Sacrificers there dwel ling in divers places. The Spaniards carried away all the golde and filuer (in wonderfull heapes) out of this Temple, and all the Oracles and Visions ceased, divine prayers having beene fayd there, the Sacraments administred, and the Crosse placed where the Idolles stoode, which caused no mean maruell and seare among the Indians.

him, neare to Lima, it beeing the most re-

Their opinio concerning a general Dening of the lowe grounds and lands were drowned, and all the world likewife; except fuch as could hide themselues within some caues, which were among the high mountaines, having little doores or mouthes of entrance, and closed so fast to them, as no water could gaine the least passage in , and therein also they had store of foode and beafts. Afterwards, when they felt the raine and water to be somewhat pasfed ouer, they fent foorth two dogges, which returned all wet and befineared: whereby they judged that the waters were not (as yet) wholly thrunke and gone away.

Moreover they fayd, that at a certaine time it rained so extreamely, that all the Within some while after, they put meanes they foorth many dogges together, which regathered the turned in againe, drie and fleeke as when cellation of they went abroade. And by this meanes they conceined, that the waters were quite fpent; and fo came foorth agayne to dwell vppon the earth: where theyr greatest paine and trauell was to kill infinite Serpents, which the mightie extreamitie of mudde and slime had engendred euery where.

Their ackno legement of the worlds ending.

By what

They beleeve an end of the world; but that a great drought shall goe before it, and that the Sunne and Moone (which they all adore and reuerence) shall loofe themselues. And, uppon this occasion, they make cries and lamentations whenfoeuer the Ecclypfes happen: but especially them of the Sunne, as fearing then, that the Sunne, they, and all the whole World, shall be quite confumed and de-Aroyed together,

CHAP. III.

I Of the Excellencie and Dignitie of Marriage: with many fingular and worthy examples, tending to that purpofe.

that effect, but yet infly descruing this ter of Pedro addition or supplement; in regard, that Mexia. nothing can be fayd too much in the honour of Marriage. This holy institution of Marriage, was made in the earthly Paradife before finne, in the time of Innocencie, when as God faid to our first Parents. Bring foorth fruit, and multiplie, and Gene, 1.28. fill the earth. But it was not brought to effect, vntill the offence by them committed, and for which, they were expulsed out of the terrestriall Paradise : as Saint Ierome hath obscrued in his Booke against Hieromin lib contra louin Iouinian.

to marry: which yet is expedient for them

(if I might fay fo) to the end, that they may passe theyr age the more joyously, as in the kinde company of husband and wife, receiving pleafure, folace, confolation, and comfortable services each to o-

Abifbag the Shunamite, with whom hee ordinarily lay, and thee flept in the bo-fome of the King, warming and comforting him, and yet the King knew her not carnally.

ther . Euen as heereof we have an exam- King Davids ple by Dauid, who (in his very olde age) marriage in his olde age.

tooke a yong maiden to wife, as namely, & Kings Lit.

What more holy, chafte, affured, and mendations acceptable focietie can be amongst men, then that of the husband and wife? Oh; the dinnek how heavenly an harmony, when the one fluvion is

After the vniuerfall Deluge, God gaue command to the good Patriarch Noah a- Genel 8.17 gaine; To encrease and multiplie, which is the principall occasion, wherefore Marriage was ordayned, and bath ener fince beene so generally recommended: that it hath beene, and is permitted to aged and no prohibidecrepite people (free from all power of ted to marry. encreasing, and our of hope of any linage).

The just and

Hoband and of Almightic GOD: And man had

Baffards hauc her, but are en onely.

is as the other, two bodies, one foule, one spirit, one will, and one mutual consent lympathizing in two bodies? The fole marryed man and his wife, enuy not one another, but love infinitely together, each depending upon the other, thee repoting in him, and he in her : euen as one felfefame flesh, one and the same concord, alike equally in all things, and all but one: One ioy, one forrow, one wealth, one pouerty, one gaine, one loffe, and one felfe fame dignitie. They are alwayes companions of one felfe fame bed one and the same table. Therefore they shall be two in one flesh (faid God) and not three, or many. God would by no meanes have in the Ark of Noah, to be any more women then appointment n the Arke of Noah. rible loue of man and wife.

Gods owne

Chap. 3.

like as the Ring which the husband (euen Compatison of the Ring gias God) puts on the finger of his Spoule uen by the husband to or wife(as the foule to the Church)ought to be of golde, and round, as gold, being the most excellent of all mettalles: euch fo this conjugal loue exceedeth all other, her, mottler, his Wife, and Wife had her Husband, before there was eyther Father, Mother, or Children. The fruits of Marriage are of Almightie GOD, and not of Nature, from oceitain fa. proceede of loyall Marriage, are fayd to be Legitimate. And therefore, the opinion of Lawyers, is, That a childe borne out of marriage, bath no certaine father, but we may well fay, a bad or lewd mother . He (fay they) is the Sonne of the people, or elfe the Sonne of no body , that is the Sonne of an runmarried woman . Onely marriage then and ought to continue perpetually. And as Propertius faith : Omnis amor magno, fed aperto in conjuge major . Euery love is great.

(which Baldus calleth , The principle, origi-

but in wedlocke it appeareth to be much greater. For, Father, Mother, Children,

Brethren, Sifters, Coufins and Friends, all these are the workes of Fortune : but the Husband and the Wife are Mysteries whence it ensueth, that children borne out of Marriage, that is to fay, Bastards, are called Naturall onely, but they which nall and foundation of Mankinde) maketh Children and Heires certayne, augmenteth kindred, engendereth amitie among Allies, reuerenceth and pleafeth God. Holy Marriage was to pleating to the Authour thereof, that he would have his onely Sonne, to bee borne of a married woman, and although it was his will, to beborne of a Virgine, without the feede of a man; yet was it not without the honour of Marriage. For it pleafed him, to The great glo proceed from a Mother married; yet pure God to the ho norable chate foyling : elected to be the Arke of the Te- of Marriage, frament, the Bush not burning, and the as also arthe Violl of golde to contayne the celestiall Canain Ga. men, to the end that they should all be as

Manna; as well to declare the wonders of lilee. his infinite power, as to make that facred one fole woman. In briefe, the lone of estate so much the more honorable, Witthe husband to the wife, and of the wife nes the presence of the same son of God to her husband, furpaffeth that of father himselfe, at the mariage of Cana in Galile, and mother to their children, of children where expressing his gracious lone & furvnto the father; and that which brothers therance, he converted water into wine, and fifters ought to have together. And by an especial and extraordinary miracle. Moreover, there is not the name of any The manifold house or stocke, but (without a woman) it great blef-ings that en-would be quite extinct in either kinred per fire to the petuated, family increased, of a Common worldby wowealth continue in intire condition, or a men in marriny Empire hold, without such help; which the first founders of the Romaine Empire approved; for, they having no wives, defired the Daughters of the Sabines, theyr neighbors, but they would not grant the. Whereuppon, there followed arape or Diony Halicar, ftealth of 68 3. of them, which procured a in libra.

mighty & mortall warre, betwixt the Romans and the faid Sabines; albeit Romulus well forefawe, that his Empire could not last, without women. For, the Citty being composed of houses, and the Common-wealth of chosen Princes, both domeflickes and familiers, how thall he gouerne a Citty, that bath not learned what it is to governe a prinate house? The Philosopher Socrates tellifieth , to haue Socrates lear.

learned more morall Philosophic of woned Morall Philosophy of women, then euer he could naturall, of A-women. naxagoras and Archelaus.

Affuredly, Mariage gines exercitation to morall Philosophie; there is a domesticall Common-wealth conjoyned there- Marriage ocwith, and in it felfe. For the government caffors great whereof, a man may eafily experiment morall Philothe power of wifedome, temperance, pie- fophie. tie, & al other vertues; whereby louing his wife, enstructing his children, ruling his | mous and worthy priviledges for newe family, protecting his goodes, ordering his house, and encreasing his race; the yeares of his life, will pace on the more happily. Whereas on the contrary, hee that feeketh to spend his life time without being married; is miserable, and worthie to be abandoned of all men.

Kkkk

10 Booke

Lycurgus made for the vnmarried yong men of Lacedemon.

The Romans

Law for men

vnmarried ti

their age.

For this cause, Lycurgus made a Lawe to the Lacedemonians, that all fuch as had attained vnto the age of eight and thirty yeares, without enjoying women in marriage; should be banished in somer time, from all publique playes, spectacles and pastimes, judging them as vnworthic, to be seene there amongst other in an open affembly. And in winter, they were led out naked, in the common view of the people, because they should be outraged and abused by words and exclamations of chery one, detefted as vnwoorthie the name of men . And themselues enjoyned to confesse, that they suffered these afflictions inftly, as having fcorned and despised that religion: whereof they were prenaricators, and disobedient to the ordinance of Nature.

As concerning the Romans, they were not altogether fo strict and seuere, & yet ordained, that fuch as had lived without marriage till their olde age: should bee condemned in painrent of a great fumme of money to the publike Treasury, according to their quality and facultie. Plato appointed in his lawes, that fuch men as were not married, should enjoy no honor estate, or publike dignity: but to be more charged with fines and mulcts, then any of the other Citizens.

A yong man of Lacedemon, would not arise out of his place in the publike Theater, to give way and honour to a valiant ancient Captaine (neuer married)named Callidus, who was come thither to fee the pastimes. And the Captaine growing offended at the arrogancy of the yong man because he disdained him in that manner; gaue him some words of heat and choler. whereto the yong man returned him this answer. O Callidis, thou hast not (as yet)begotten neither occasioned the birth of any one that being now at mine age, and vnmaried as thou art, may arife hereafter to give me place. and therefore no other esteeme is to bee made of thee. The Romaines in the time of 2.

married persons; and for such as had three fons, as may be feen in the Digest, of fuch as had ten. And our greatest Diuines, set downe twelue causes, the which hinder a man from marriage, and doe yet difanull marriage, although it be confummated & children procreated. As namely errour, con ition, vow.parentage, fin, to wit, of Twelue effe-adultery or murther, diversity & diffrence ciall occasions in religion, violence, prophanes in Priest- and hinder hood, or profession of a false religio, bond marriage. and promise of contrary marriage, as being otherwise contracted, honesty, affinity, and inhability. Althefetwelne, are bars and hinderances to marriage, according as Cardinall Cajetane hath comprehended them in these verses.

Error, conditio, votum, cognatio, crimen, Cultus disparitas, vis, or do, ligamen, honest as Si sis affinis, si forte coire nequibis : Hac socianda vetant connubia, facta retra-

I have a great defire to discourse particularly on enery one of these causes, if I had not such a multitude of other matters to speake of: let therefore (for this time) suffice that which hath bin faid. And for fuch as are louers of Poesie, I referre them to the renowned Poet Scauola de S. Martha, partly turned and imitated out of the fifte booke of Marcellus Palingenius, a Latine Poet, in his Zodiack of Life, where he fingeth elegantly in the praise of Marriage.

CHAP. IIII.

Of Partharites, King of the Lombards, who being pursued by Grimoald, fledde first to Cacanus, King of the Auarians or Huns, afterward into France. And in the end af ter many heavy and trouble om Trauayls; was (with great honor and renowne, feased in his owne king dome.

Artharites was fonneto Al-bers King of the Lombards, who (after the death of his father) reigned at Myllaine: and Gondebert his brother, at Pauia. A strife and quarrell, growing Metellus Confull, established many fa- betweene the two Bretheren, Gondebert

fent Garibald, Duke of Thurine, towardes | City of Lody, he called to a Gentleman of Paulus Diaco- Grimoald, Duke of Beneuentum, a verie his, named Vnulphus, in whom his intigenerous Captaine and Commaunder, requiring his affiftance against Partharites, with folemne promise, of giving him his Sister in marriage. But Garibald intending treason to his Lord and Master; perswaded Grimoald, to come and possesse the kingdome to his owne vie which (thorow discord betweene the two brethren) was growne to weake estate, and verie neare vpon vpon vtter ruine. When Grimoald understood this, hee

gaue ouer his Dukedome of Beneuentum to his fonne, creating him there as abfolute Duke, and, with the greatest forces

he could get together, prepared his journey for Paula: and in all citties and towns as he passed along, begot himselfe store of friends, for his better helpe in obtayning the kingdome. Being come to Pania, and entring into private conference with Gondebert : by close practise and intelligence with Garibald, Gondebert was flaine at a Banquet, and he made possessour of the kingdome. No fooner did Partharites heare these sad tydings, but, leaving faire Rhodalinda his wife and Queenc, and a young fonne of his (both confined by Grimoald to Beneuentum for close custody) fled fecretly away, making his recourse to Grimoald having made fure his King-

Cacanus, king of the Auarians or Hunnes.

dome at Pauia, and understanding, that Partharites secured his safetie with Cacanus: sent Ambassadours to him, to let him know, that if hee kept Partharites in his kingdome, no long peace should continue betweene him and the Lombardes, but he must expect a King as his enemie.

According to this Ambaffage, the King of the Auarians called Partharites to him in fecret, defiring him, that he would wander whither himfelfe pleased: because (thorow his meanes) the Auarians might not fall into the hatred of the Lombardes.

And fo, vpon a royall, fad and mutuall interchange of wofull lamentations on ey-ther fide, the two kings parted, as might Grimoald gaue ouer his Dukedome to his Sonne inhope of a Kingdome.

Chap.4.

nus fets down

nore at large

shis hiftorie

Partharites fled and left his kingdome

Grimoald fuffered not Parthatites to abide with Cahaue moued pitty in Marble to behold it. Partharites, frustrated now of all helpe A hard cafe, when a King and comfort, returning into Italie againe: s constrained purposed his repaire to his enemie Grimatruft to his ald, confiding on his kingly clemencie, enemy for bicaule he weas left destitute of any other fuccour. And beeing come neare to the mate trust wholly confisted, sending him before, to acquaint Grimeald with his coming, and to deale justly for his fafctie. Vnulphus presented himselfe before the new-made King, vfing fuch wife and honourable language to him , concerning to Partherites Partharites his King and Maister, making recourse to his royall mercie, and trusting onely in his goodnesse; that he would freely fubmit himfelfe to him, if he (with the like benignitie) would vouchfafe to embrace him. So effectually did Vnulphus deliuer his Partharites message, and Grimoald (eyther in pride or presenteth pleasure)accept it : that hee promised and himselfe befware vpon his faith, no displesure should fore Grimo any way be done to the King his maister, brought backe this aunswere to Partharites, hee went and presented himselfe be- Conference fore Grimoald, meerely prostrate at his mosid and feete, who took him vp graciously, & in Partharites. most friendly manner kissed him: wherevppon, Partharites beganne thus : Sith I am your humble vassaile and servant, and knowing you to be most Christian, and a faithfull louer of pietie : though I might live fafe among Pagans, yet, building vpon your mildnesse and mercy, I am come,

he might come when he would, & builde fecurely vpon his faith. Vnulphus, having and heere yeeld my felfe at your feete. Grimoald vling his accustomed oathes, Grimoald his promifed him, faying By him that made me protestations to be borne, feeing you have put your felfe in- to Parthatites to my power, you shall suffer no harme anie and the honoway what foeuer; but I will take fuch order, ment he gaue that you shall live well and honorably. So he him. commanded him a convenient lodging, with entertainement aunswerable to his qualitie, and all things affoorded to him in plentifull maner. Partharites being departed from the King, to fuch place as was appointed for him; it came to paffe, that the people flocked and reforted dai. ly thither (having formerly knowne & honoured him) earneftly defiring to fee and

But see how ready cuill tongues are to commit mischiefe, divers flatterers and audacious Informers, observing the peo- are alwayes ples kind greetings to Partharites : repor- too neare ated it in fuch maner to Grimoald, that they bout kingsand incenfed him very strangely, perswading him, that if he did not the fooner procure Kkkk 2 falute him.

Sycophanes and flatterers

Pt in inflitut.de excuftut. vel treachery.

he fell into an extraordinary rage, and in The death of Partharites is extremity of heate and choller, fwore the vowed by Gri death of innocent Partharites, wanting nothing but aduice and meanes, how it might both fafely and fodamely bee effe-

&cd. Now, because it grew somewhat late,

One of Gri-

Gentlemen

moalds owne bewrayed the

The wifedom of Parthatites

in preventing the Treason

prepared for

and on the morrow the deed must needes be done; he caused (that Euening) great flore of delicate meates and wines to bee Cent to Partharites, purposely to make him drunke: that being ouercome with eating and drinking, and all his fenfes poffeffed with drowfineffe, hee might haue the leffe care of his health, and fo his life be the fooner betrayed. But a Gentleman who before had ferued the father of Partharites, and brought him these Iunkets from the King: stouping his head lowe beneath the table, as doing him reuerece and embracing his knee, fecretly reuealed to him, now Grimoald had concluded his death, and that this nightes iouiall drinking supper, must be a folemne induction thereto.

Hecreupon, Partharites immediately, (but very concretly) gaue order vnto his Cup bearer and Tafter, to fill and bring him no other drinke all supper while, but fome fmall quantities of water onely, and in his private filuer Bowle. So that the Courtiers (who were fent to keepe him company) quaffing and carowling many healths of the King to Partharites, defiring him still to pledge them in like manner, as thereby expressing his loue to the King: Partharites accepted all their feuerall charges, protesting all honor and reuerence to Grimeald, rowfling vp cup after cup as readily as they, feeming as merrie as any of thein all, and yet drank nothing elle but water. Supper being ended, and the Courtiers returning back to the king, reported the jocond behavior of Partharites, and how forward still he was in turning off his owne Bolle, as readily as they did theirs, and never refused to pledge his

the death of Partharites, hee would bee | Highnesse health, thinking him to be very farre fpent with wine. Whereat Grimoald heartily rejoycing, merrily faide; Alas poore filly Drunkard, little thinkes hee, that The best and the Wine and his blood wil lye mingled on the earth to morrow together, in despith of all may somitime the friends he hath.

The same night, he sent strong guards to watch about the house where Partharites was lodged, because he should have no meanes to escape, nor any frends com to give him assistance. But the poor harmleffe Prince, when supper was past, and al the Courtiers departed thence (remayning alone in his Chamber, & none with Partharites him but Vnulphus, and a Page that vsed hisdanger to to waite neerest about, to helpe his Gar- Vnulphus and ments both off and on, they beeing both his Page. his faithfull teruants, and in whom he reposed most confidence :) he discouered plainely to them, how peremptorily his death was concluded on by Grimoald, and what a strong watch was set round about his lodging, To that now their poor Lord and Maisters life must needs perish by his

Vnulphus having a prompt and readie witte, louing his Lord deerely, & caring The cleanely for no danger to himselfe, so hee might phus to save fet him free from perill: by means of certified his taine Blankers belonging to a bedde, and a Beares skinne which he found there in his chamber by channee, fo substantially he difguifed Partharites, that it was impoffible to diftinguish him from a meere

Country Boore or Pezant, and his counterfeiting drunkennesse, made the matter to seeme the more likely. Vnulphus had gotten a good traggot-flick, and pretending sweating, with beating that drun ken Rascall (for so, and somtimes worse matter? Hee answered, faying : Here is tharites.

adrunken slaue, who while the Lordes were beere at Supper with Partharites, hath fecretly gotten in , and stolne himfelfe starke drunke; keeping such a terrible noise, that my Lord (who is as drunk as hee) I feare can take no reft, and by no meanes would I have him to bee di-he commonly called him) tumbledhim first downe the staires, and lastly out of doores, labouring fill as if he had given many fore blowes. Which when the Guardes there attending perceyued, they gainethithe demanded of Vnulphin, what was the creape of Par quickest wit-

be deceyued.

futed well fo delivering

Grimoald

fends for Par tharites to the Palace,in cute his will vpon him.

on effed.

from his ene

Of Partharites King of Lombardy. Chap.5.

No doubt at all made the Guardes of | & honesty; demanded, whether he would Vnulphus his words, but laughing, to fee chuse to live with him in good grace and the flaue belabored to luftily; fuffered him to drive him on before him, bidding him beate still, and spare him not . While the Guards flood laughing at this merry ieft, no man needed to bid them make haft, & Partharites being quickly got out of fight, Vnulphus returned to the lodging, which Fuery thing the Kings fafe made the Guards the more confidently perswaded, and secured the King from all pursuite. Morcouer, after the Kings departure in that manner, the faithfull Page kept the doors lockt vp fast, till Vnulphus was returned againe: where they two only remained in the chamber, praying for their Kings prosperous successe; who arrived that night at the Towne of Afte, and from thence (paffing the mountaines) went into Fraunce.

On the morrow morning, messengers came from the King, to bring Partharites to the Pallace, and beating at the doore, the Page spake out at the windowe, saying: Good Gentlemen forbeare, his Mahope to exeiestie hath drunke somewhat hard, is very fleepy, and therfore I pray ye trouble not his reft. Whereto they in modesty yeelding, went and reported the fame to Grimould, who well liked that he should sleep fo long: yet fent them againe in all hafte, and howfoener (awake or afleep) to bring him away with them. The Souldiers feating to displease the king, came and knockt carneftly at the doore; but being intreated by the Page, as aforefaid, they boldely broke the doore open , & feeking for Partharites in his bed, found him not, which made them to demaund, what was be-

com of him; & the Page faid, he was fled.
Prefently were Vnulphus and the Page scized on, and haled furiously to the Pal-Court,& the lace, where being broght before the king; whole matte with vnappalled countenance, they tolde, that the King had escaped with life, discoucring the maner truely how, and dreading no infliction for the fact. When Grimoald had aduifedly confidered on theyr faith and loyalty, he called them fenerally againe before him; withing he had fuch an other faithfull Page, exhorting him earnefly, to keepe his loyalty to his Lord Partharites, promifing to recompece him worthily for it . Vnulphus afterwards was brought againe before him, and the king greatly commending both his wisedome acceptance, or follow Partherites in the extremity of his fortunes? whereto Vaulphus faid, with an oath, That he would ra- The worthy ther chuse to die with Partharites, in al tor loyall and con

ments whatfoeuer; then live any where flant feruant. elfe, with all the pleasures and delights that the world could give him.

The same demand was also made to the Page, & his answer was the like in effect: whereon the King highly extolling theyr vnparaleld loyaltic; prayed them both, to Thehonoracommaund what sourt his Court affoor- ble dealing of ded,& go in all fafety to feek their mafter. Grimodd with Prouided of all things they could defire the Page, fen or carry with them, and securitie granted ding them at for their fafe paffage; they fet onward to ter their toyal France, in a longing defire to meete with Partharites; as soone after they did, to greatioy and comfort on enery fide. But first, newes being abroade, that Grimoald had vnited peace with Dagobert King of France: it made Partharites fearful of fome close ambushes to be layed for him, & fo he might be fent backe to Grimoald again: which made him for fake France, & to thip himselse for England: all which calamities happened to him, before his two faithfull fernants could any where finde him.

Being on the Sea all together, and (in hope of good fuccesse) boud for England, they had not past a full league from land: But Partharites heard a voyce, feeming to myraculous come directly from the flioare where hee accident haptook thipping, demanding in this maner: Speake there, is Partharites in the Ship, or no? ling towards Partharites replyed without paufing : tvho England. is it that calleth Partharites? I am that most unhappy man, and (bleffed be heaven) heere I am . Tell him then (answered the voyce) his native Country calles him home, and further he may not goe; for, within three dayes, Grimoald is dead. Partharites amafed at this strange accident, required fauor to be landed with his feruants again; but could neuer know him that tolde those tidings of Grimoalds death, which made him verily perfuaded, that it was no mortal man, but his owne good Angell, that thus enftrucled him, after his paffing thorow fo many mileries. Partharites returning home againe, towardes his owne native Countrey, hee was no fooner arrived at the limites of /talies but he met there with a goodly com-Kkkk 3 pening to Par

flurbed.

No

A goodly Mo naftery buil ded by Par-to the River

Thefinain

Italy.

on their heads, and Palme branches in their hands, who purposely attended there for his comming, and so conducted him joyfully to Pausa; from whence, the Sonne of Grimoald being expelled, he was there (by generall confent) created abfolute King of the Lombards, within three moneths after the death of Grimoald. He dispatched Poasts to Beneuentum, in quest of Rodefinda his Queene and Wife, as alfo his founc Cunibert. And being a man pious, Catholique, a great observer of luflice and charitable to the poore; fo foon as he was quietly seated in his kingdome, he builded a goodly Monastery, neere vnto the River Thefina, in which sometime he had concealed himfelfe, when he was enforced from place to place; dedicating the Temple to Gods service, and in honour of S. Agatha the Virgin & Martyr, planting therein many religious virgins, and endowing it with great liberality of rents and renennues. His Queene also, after her many troubles, and long feparation fro her husband, erected the Church of our Lady without the walles, bestowing infinite rich and precious ornaments thereon. And at length, Partharites (hauing reigned eighteene yeares) changed this mortall life for a better, to the great greefe of his louing Subjects the Lom-

Nor may we heere omit to fay somewhat of Garibald, Duke of Thurine, the A further beginner of this poore Princes calamiprofecution ties.He hauing infligated (as hath bin reof the Hifto lated) Grimoald, Duke of Beneuentum, to ry,concerning Garimurder Gondebert, King of the Lombards, bald, the Duke of Thu

a poore filly

treacherously: within no long while after, a certaine meane man, of little or no respect at all, comming to the Citty of the true original thereof, how, and vpon Thurine, and vnderstanding, that Garibald what occasion it came so to passe. would be in the cheefe Church on Easter day neere enfuing; flood on the steps of the Font for baptisme, leaning careleffely on his left arme, by a collome of the Tabernacle, being at the very entrance into the Church, hauing a weapon ready drawne vnder his Cloake. So foone as Garibald came to bee neere him : he (not in the cheefe Garrona Came to bee heere min; he (not Church vpon fearing all the traine about him) fudden-Easter day, by ly ran the Rapier quite through his body, that instantly he fell downe dead. Such as attended Garibald, being somewhat amazed at fo vnexpected an accident, purfupany of Lombards, with Laurell wreathes ing the murderer, could fasten no hold on him, vntill they had flaine him, with many weapons being in his body at once. So, although he loft his life; yet couragioufly he reuenged the iniurious act, committed on Gondebert his Lord & Master.

CHAP. V.

what manner of men those were and are, that be called Doctors of Sorbonne, or Sor-

Am fure there are many, that neuer faw the goodly, rich, populous, commodious, and well gouerned City and Vniuerfity of Paris; and yet di-Am fure there are many, uers that have seene it, or read the Antiquities thereof, may perhaps be ignorant, what kinde of men they are, that beare the title or name of Doctors of Sorbonne. For all other Doctors'are honoured by those Citties names, wherein they recei- except they ued their degrees: As Doctours of Lou-uaine, of Poittiers, of Doway, of Tholoss, by names of of Montpelier , of Pauia, of Bologna , of the Cittles & Tubinge, of Fribourge, and fo of divers o- Vniuerskies ther. But the Doctours in divinity of were gradued Sorbonne, beare their name, not of the City where they received their licences and degrees Doctorall; but of the place peculiarly. A matter which hath much amazed many, & raised doubt in divers other, that neuer had the happinesse to visit Parisin which respect, I purpose to set down

It is to be understood, as I have elsewhere faide, that the course of nature will fooner faile; then people be any other but as their Princes are, as Calsiodorms faieth. King Lewis, ninth of that name, reigning King in France, whereas other The holy life Princes deuted (cuen as to this day many of Lewis the do) how to build Palaces & vnprofitable ninth, com-monly called houses, for pride, luxury and prodigality: | Saint Lewis this holy & religious King caused Churches to be crecied, Hospitals, Abbayes, Colledges,& other places of pietyan imitation of whom, many of his Subicas, &

water from

Arcueill to

All Doctors

other strangers did the like. Amongst other, there was a Diuine of the Kings house, his Almoner, and one of his Preachers, who was thought to bee provided of some good Benefice; yet neyther enriched his kinred, or fpent his revenues in vanities, as too many churchmen now-adayes vie to doe. This good

The place that at this day is called how, and by

Chap. 5.

man was called Master Robert de Sorbonne: but to relate further, of what Nation hee was, or of what Family, hath scarcely (as yet) beene discouered by any. In briefe, mooued in great pictic, and by the example of his King; hee bought a place, which viually was called in Latine, Locum Termarum Cafaris, that is to fay, The place of Cafars Bathes. And it is fayd, that Iutine, Gouernour of the Ganles, caused those Bathes to be builded, and the Lodgings of Clany, which then were without the Citty of Paris, and as places of pleafure: according as we reade in some Epistles, which Iulian wrote to them of Ansioche. The faide Iulian was afterwardes Emperour, firnamed the Apostata by the Christians. And then, such as pretended to the Imperiall Crowne, termed themfelues Cafars: as now at this day, fuch as are defigued Emperours after him living, are called Kings of the Romaines. In this place there is apparance, that there the Cafars Bathes were, as enidently may be discerned, by the channells of hewne stone, which were found in the eaphysicke. And many times some such yeare of our Lord God, one thousand fine hundred forty and foure, at the gate Aquæduæs or Gutters for of Saint lames, when Baltions and Ramconneying of pires were then made, to refift the forces of Charles the fift, Emperour, who was entred into Fraunce with a mighty army. Which gutters or coducts of water, were continued from the village of Arcueill(fo named, in regarde of Arches builded of Bricke, as yet to this present are to bee feene; or of the Latine compounded word Aqua ductio) and reaching into Paris . Those conducts of water served well for those Bathes, and were needfull now > of the Universitie of Paris (which have great neede thereof) if my maisters the Escheuins, would therein employ theyr

As already hath beene fayd, this place was builded to bathe or wash the Romain to be renewed, to water the higher parts fuch like, and was bought by the faid Ma- Bathes for the fter Robert Sorbonne, in the yeare of our emperors and Lord, one thousand two hundred three- Rome. score and foure. If you defire to know, to whom (as then) that place appertayned; I must therein confesse mine ignorance, albonne, & elsewhere (specifying large rents & revenews thereto belonging, yet much enlarged by the bounty of K. Lewis 9 king of France, and others, calling it only Sorbonne) and finding it appoynted, to maintaine a certayne number of Doctors, who should reade publiquely in Dininitie; and and also of Batchellers to study, there to be lodged and maintained. Whereuppon, from that time to this present, the voon what Profesiors , Batchellers , and other Stu- occasion, and dents in this Colledge, did endeuoure the Colledge themselves so industriously, and became of Sorbonne fo capable; as there is hardly any other Colledge throughout all Christendome, wherein may be found men fo ready and exact in Divinitie, as they are that belong to this Sorbonne Colledge.

Emperours, Confulls, Proconfulls, and though I have made good fearch in the e-uidences, belonging to that place of Sor-

The Students in this House, are not (as commonly elfe-where) young men, but wel stept in yeares, because they have read publiquely, enstructing the course of Philosophie, which is perfourmed in three yeares, in regard there are as many parts, which are Logicke, Physicke and Meare there, that have made three courses, which are nine yeares, and employed by them in publique Lectures; before they will adventure to fludy or reade publikely in Divinities and therefore it is no matter of maruell, that there should continually be fuch fingularly learned men in that Colledge. The Doctours and Batchellers, ouer & beside their being great Philosophers, are likewise very skilfull in humane learn-bonne, how ning, and vnderstand the tongues, Greeke, they becom Latine and Hebrew, speaking them (for the most part) eloquently. They are held in fuch reputation, that (commonly) they deale in the greatest difficulties, and in all Ecclefiasticall occasions, their aduice is wholly vsed; the Colledge being reputed as one of the best Bulwarks to the Romain Catholique Church, and fo accounted through Christendome.

The Batchel-

Vcrv

Admirable disputations of the Doctors o' bor bonne,& ho th ir order egan at the Very laborious are they in their disputations of the facred Scriptures, resolute, and of great understanding, and the generall disputes yied in this Colledge, are on euery Friday after the Feafts of S. Peter & S. Paul, in the Moneth of Iune, vntill the folemnity of the Feast of All-Saints, the answerer standing there from morning till evening, and bound to answere all the Batchellors Questions, which commonly are aboue two hundred in number, euery one keeping his ranke and place: nor is there any Prefident, to support him that answereth, whereas all other faculties do not obserue any such order. It is reported, that this custome was introduced by a religious man, of the order of S. Franses, who (to make proofe of his knoledge) kept open the Schoole all the whole day: and his fellowes, coueting after as much honour as hee had; continued the fame course, so that what soeuer consisted in the will of the arguers and answerers, became converted into an inviolable loue.

Learned Doctours are as Affiftants there, to the end they may judge on the merit of men, and understand withall, to whom the prime places for Licences are to be giuen. And thus you fee, why all Doctors in the facultie of dininity, which receive their degrees in that place of Sorbonne; are stiled by an Emphasis, Doctors there are principall acts observed, to apfor antiquity (hauing bene one of the appurtenances to the Pallace Imperiall, at fuch time as the Romanes were Lords of this Chapter,) As also in regard of the famous men renowned for their learning and knowledge, that line (ordinarily) in a respect, the most part of the best Citties in France, Bishoppricks and Collegiate Churches, refort thither, to make choyle of their Divines, to provide them of Prebends, and other reuennues meete for fuch men.

CHAP. VI.

That the Law of the Emperour Senerus. and that of Solon, for promoting any one to Office and Authority in the Common-wealth (being first informed, of a mans life of good manners was much better then those of the Venetians, Florentines, Genewayes and Lucanes; examining after the time of their Iuris diction is past.

He Emperour Seue-2 rus, the eighteenth, of lefus Chrift, 1966.

albeit that he was no denist here chriftian; yet (after the example of Christians) experiments.

flianity) wold ordinarily fay: That it was great shame, to bee lesse sarefull of the life of a Gouernor; or one that exercifeth the place of judgement; then the Christians were, in the quality of their Shepheards and Watchmen oner their Flocks. For they observed a kinde of Siauis, or a Bill fixed upon Poalts, wherein were let downe the names of luch as aspired to any Ecclesiasticall dignity, and of Sorbonne, or Sorbonnists, because that examined their lines and behaviour with frictest severity. In the very same manproue the learning of any, that would af- | ner, this good Emperor, when hee intenpire to haue the degree of a Doctor. And | ded to prouide any man for the gouernthis place is perticularly noted, as well | ment of a Prouince, or place where judgment was to be vied, or what focuer elle Placards Bils appeared requifite: would first set vp pub-like Placards, or Bils of inscription, in di-feription fixed Gaule, as I declared in the beginning of uers places about the Citty, to the ende, vpon Poatit, and to what that if any notorious vice were knowne, and to what or criminal cause deseruing open detec- ordained. tion, in fuch as were named in those pubfacred fociety in that Colledge. In which like Placards: it was lawfull for all men, to accuse or set downe their blemishes & incapacities, that no wicked or vnworthy person, might be advanced to such degree of eminency. Thus enery one, and all in generall were permitted to accuse; but vet on penalty of life, if it should be proued to be scandall or calumniation, and thereupon, an especiall Law was ordained and enrouled expressely. In my poore opinion, this Law feemeth much more honest and equall, then those now adayes in vse, with the Venetians, Florentines, Genewaies, and Lucanes, comparison of who after the time of a mans Office is exwith prefent ordenations pired, or, that the limitation of his go-

Of Lavves for good Life. Chap.6.

A good aduice against bue, then ne-

What kindo of men are in equity to be places of au-thority.

Mexander

Seuerus was no Chtistian

et imitated

he Christian

n making his Edi&.

uernment ceaffeth : do then make enquiry, to cause him render an account of his administration, and then proceed against him according to his demerits. A wicked Magistrate, and publike Concussionary or extortioner, by giving a piece of bread to dogs barking at him, fo to flop their mouths: may thus falue his thefts, and other depredations of his vile life.

It is much more expedient, to preuent a difease, then to tarry till it come, & then to expulse it : notwithstanding, it is better late, then neuer, to the ende (at the least) that feare of fearch and fyndication, may retaine Officers within compasse of their

And yet the ordination of Solon (methinks) was farre better, whereby the lines of Officers was to be examined, both before and after their authority, as we reade in the lawes fet downe by Demosthenes. For by examining the life and manners of fuch as couet or feeke after degrees of Offices, Benefices, Knighthood, exemptions, immunities, gifts and rewards, if they appeare to bee foule or deformed: not onely they may be reiected, but also directly (in inflice) punished, & rewards distributed to honest persons, according to the merit of every man . And by an hermonious proportion, the purffe shold be given to the most faithfull , Armes to the most valiant; Instice degree to the vprightest; censure to the entirest; painfull trauaile to the strongest and best able; Prelacy to the most learned and deuoutest. And yet neuerthelesse, carrying respect to Nobility, wealth, age, and the power of enery one, as also the quality of their charges and offices: for it were very ridiculous, to make a Judge a Warriour, a Prelate a common Lawyer, or a Soldiour to manage cases of conscience.

Now for the better comprehension of our purpose in this Chapter, it is to be observed, that Alexander Senerus neuer was a Christian: but a worthy man otherwise, and when he made that Edict. As being defirous to place good Magistrats, to gouerne in the Romaine Commonwealth under his Empire (finding it full of exacting Officers) in imitation of the Christians; euen (as it is faide) in the fecond time of the Primitive Church. And when (for any perticular Church) any need appeared of a Bishoppe, a Priest, a Deacon, or some other Officer; the Christians (in those times) fixed up their Placards, fetting downe the name of him or them, that fought to have such office and dignity: they did it to fuch ende, that if any vice were knowne in him or them; obiection might bee made against the pretendant, so to debout him of his requisition and fute.

And questionlesse, great need there was, that this pollicy should bee observed among the Christians; for the Pagans & Idolaters then (being their capitall enemies) fought nothing more, then some subject or argument, whereby to injurie and calumniate the Pastors and Prelates among the Christians, onely to make the odious to the people. And they that were The Pastours promoted vnto Ecclesiasticali Offices in and Preachthose dayes, had no other stipend or reward, but only some collection of Corne were very and other matters, among the Christians poore in the of the Churches then, to make them garments, and maintaine them poorely e- their charges nough, being provided of those places,& oftentimes their best affurance was most cruell marryrdome. And that which made men then desirous of Ecclesiasti call aduancements, was not (as now adayes) to derive thence large benefits &: reuennues: for then, there were not any foundations ordained, neither were any tenths leuied for or from them. But the Pastours then, in a most facred kinde of The desire of charity, coueted to enstruct the ignorant, Pattors in the and confirme in faith, intimidate, affrigh- Church. ted and dispersed Christians, persecuted by the Romanes and other Princes, onely for the Christian faith, and to encourage them for fuffering martyrdome, according as Enfebius (who lived in those times) hath written at large.

As for the estates of the Venetians, Genewayes, Lucanes, and others now exercifed in Italy, they are not during life, as it is The effates & in France: wherein yet it is not much amiffe, to have information of them, vpon thein France. the expiration of their charges, to cause terror in their offices successors, for best carriage and behauior in their dutie, least a further inquisition come vpon them. In France, estates and offices are exercised.

beginning of

worth and e

Doctours of Paris are vii

ally tearmed

Deftonis of Provision made by the Statutes of of France.

The observation of Spaine in the admifei on of their Officers.

How the kings of Spai carry them.

during life of the party in possession: but yet with caution, that if he commit any vnbesceming ace, to bee instantly dismisfed, and (oftentimes) death enfueth thervpon. But before any man may bee fo advanced, the Statutes of France have enioyned, that good information must be made, concerning the life and manners of the party to enjoy it; before fuch perfons as his Maiesty, or other soueraigne Iudges shall appoint.

The Kings of Spaine, cause information of life and behaviour, of any that aime at degrees and offices, before they are admitted to them. And moreover, at every fine yeares end, sometime in more, and in lesse compasse of yeares very often; secret enquiries & informations are made, of all Officers in enery Seigneury: as in all the Spaines, the Kingdomes of 24ples, Sicily, Millaine, the lower Countries of Germany, the County of Bourgongne, the Dutchy of Luxembourg, and other, & namely of the places where they exercise their Offices. And if the King do finde, that they mis-behaued themselues; his Councell deposeth them, appointing other in their places, of whom (likewise) the life and converfation is well questioned. Sometimes they are put to death, but very rarely, and many times deposed, yet without note of infamy : only giving them to understand, that the King is not well contented with their service. Heere is also to be vaderstood, that information commeth not onely against Officers of lustice, as Aduocates, Procurators, Pregnotaries, ludges soueraigne and subalternate: but likewise against Ecclesiasticks. and men of warre. By which means, every one is compelled to containe himfelfe within compasse of duty; and beside, the estates & offices are not vendible.

CHAP. VII.

Of the reason and cause, why both some Princes, and also some Common-wealths, have alwaies prosperously flourished in the times of warre; and in peacefull dayes have runne to decay and ruine.

Lthough I discourse in this Chapter, Athat fome Princes and Common-

wealths have bin very happy and fucceffull, in times of wars and molestations; Peaceiral. and contrariwife, in times of peace haue wayes tobe become vicious, running on to ruine and fore war in adesolation : yet I neyther will, or do ther- ny Kingdome. by inferre, that warre is to bee effeemed more necessary then peace. But I will thew the causes whereby (not all Common-wealths, nor all Princes in generall) yet many lived more vertuously & happily in the times of war, then in their eafier dayes of peace. And that fo foone as they came to enjoy peace; they fell into ruine, vtterly losing all their greatnesse & splendour. Euen like vnto Iron, which not being vsed or handled, or whereof no frequent employment is made; rufteth and confumeth of it selfe. And this enfired by In Sunshine no other occasion, but only through negdayes men ligence and want of respect, that when have greatest they enioyed the Sunny daies of peace; the state of the no discreete order was taken, for institution of good life and pollicie, and how to make vie (as men ought to doe) of fuch fweet tranquility. Before I come to approoue my fay-ings by examples, I would first make a briefe relation, concerning the actions of The fruit are men ofwarre; to demonstrate, that it is but bad that (almost) veterly incredible, that any good war, be it neneffe can deriue it felfe from war. For, wer fo iuftly who is a greater enemy to the peacefull followed. man, then the furious Soldior? To the milde, meeke countriman, then the bloody Warriour? To the Philosopher, then the fierce Captaine? To the wife, then fooles? Because the greatest delight and felicity of warriors, is, to forradge Countries, rob the husbandmen, burne Towns and Villages, to massacre good men, to giue all licence to the wicked, to befrege, Batter, force and ransacke houses, to kill olde and young, to spare no age or sexe, to rauish Wines and Virgins, to bathe their hands brutishly in innocent blood, to make a spoile of facred things, to ru-inate Temples, to blaspheme the Name of God, to trample (vnder their foule feete) all right both divine and humane.

These are the fruites of warre, highly ac-Where warre ceptable and pleasing to fiery-eyde Solkeepes his rediors, abhominable to good men, & deteftable before God. Needleffe is it to amplifie with words, that which hath bin too well feene and felt in ouer-many platemosfe. ces, whose very memory hath startled the

foules of them in best fasety, and made | behausour. their haire stand on ende, that thought themselves of boldest resolution.

If then the case stand thus, and that war hath fo many discommodities and mischiefes waiting uppon it: how can any good enfue from it?

Further wee are to understand, that when Soldiours are guided by Captaines voide of judgement, understanding and vertue: all the forenamed cuils and mifchiefes are ordinarily committed. But if they have a vertuous Commander, hee will carry himfelte fo much the more modeftly. And like as greatnesse of courage & magnanimity, is a bright flaming Beacon, leading the way to all other vertues, and exalteth Princes vnto the very highest point of honor : euen fo it is vertue (onely) likewife, that most discourageth the hearts of enemies, be they never lo potent or powerfull warriours, and (oftentimes) gaineth the victory, without a blow delivered on either fide.

Heereof Lintend to fet downe some examples, that in the Roman Commonwealth, and in the times of their war, there was greater store of vertuous minded men, then when they lived in peace and quietnesse. First let varemember Furius Camillus, who having fent backe the children, which the Schoole-Master had brought into his Campe, to make them bondslaues to the Romanes; conquered the Citty without one blow fmitten, which neuerthelesse was very strong, and well furnished with al warlike munition.

which Pyrrhus had freely delinered, not fuffering the meanest of them to stand beholding to fo great a King. And Scipio, who (without any paine) conquered

a great part of both the Spaines: by fending a lady of rare beauty to her husband, the Prince of Celtiberia, according to the example of Cyrus . Thefe fo generous and vertuous actions, tooke away all courage from enemies, to make war any longer against such magnanimous people; who neither could conquer, nor yet

The Romane had more vertuous men in warre then is Vertue is ma ny times vicorious with-lowes giuen

out any

Furius Ca

Fabritius,

And Fabritius, having fent the Physition to king Pyrrhus, that had promifed to poifon him, and refused the moity of his Kingdomes: although he was one of the

Vertue can neuer conquer by cow

And yet this was much better made knowne, after the great day at Cannas, when Hinmball had puteight thousand prisoners to their ransome, as an hundred his 8000 Ro-Crownes each man, and one bearing cre- mane prifodite for another: hoping vndoubtedly, ners. that the Romanes having loft fo many men, would not be flacke in paying their ransome. But it was flatly forbidden (by the Senates especial decree) that not one prisoner of them al should be redeemed. Whereat Hinniball (faith Polybius) was fo amazed, avail his courage quite forfookehims. Whereas on the contrary, the Romanes fecured their state the better, which was threwdly thaken, and veterly abandoned (as it were) of all friends and confederates. For the judgement of the Senate was wife and honourable, because Hanniball, having to much Romane blood to spil at his pleasure, rhoght to empty their Treasury of money, and draw eight hundred thousand Crownes from them, which they rather chose to grounded on spare, then to redeeme the very scum and cowards of all the Roman Army. Whervpon, and thence forward, eucry one took a resolution to conquer or dye; & So became dreadfull and inuincible. And like as their hearts never failed them in their greatest losses; so were they never conquered by arrogancy in their victories. And therefore, in the time of war, the Romanes more expressed their greatneffe in courage, then in peace they could

Charles the eight of that name, King | The honouraof France, in the voyage which hee made lication of into Italy, to conquer the Kingdomes of 8.Kingor Naples and Sicily, they belonging to him, France. very poorest Romane Gentlemen, and | as he pretended: at the surprizal of a Citcaused the prisoners ransome to be paide, ty, a very goodly Lady was brought vnto him, whom he would not touch; but fent her away (and great gifts with her) to her husband. By this acte of chaftity he foed fo well, that most part of the Townes and Citties as he paffed along, brought their keyes unto him, and conquered (the more cafily) the Kingdomes hee laide clayme to. And yet nevertheleffe, this King had Ladies (fometimes) at commaund in his owne Court, albeit very fecretly.

So long as Caius Marius followed war. he performed many braue and vertuous Matins, for be conquered, by base or unbesceming exploits therein, largely encreasing (with long as he

The fame & reputation of great Warriour,

The misfortune that idle

nefle & negli gence brogh to Marius and Eafe hath bi reputed the

Nurfle of ty ranny.

Thed the Cymbrians in Gaule, and the Germanes that were entred into Italy, and feauen times was he made Confull, euen in iust regard of his great deseruings. But when he ceassed from being a Warriour, addicting himselfe to idlenesse, and desifiring to liue in peace: aspiring by his ambition to tyranny, he caused about tenne thousand Cittizens to dye wretchedly, & ended his owne life in miserable exile. And the very fame did Sylla, who was e-

great Provinces) his Country and Common-wealth of Rome. As having conquered Jugarthe, King of the Numidians, and made an absolute surrender of his

Kingdome to Rome: hee likewise vanquisteemed one of the most fortunate men in his time; who in a ranged battaile, ouerthrew Mithridates neere to Charonea; and his Lieutenant at another time after, not farre from Athens. He vanquished also the Medes, and the Dardanians or Troyan he put Carbo to flight, & droue him quite out of Italy; winning the battaile likewife against Marius; and so long as he followed the warres, lived most nobly and vertuoufly. But being returned home to his house, and living there in peace; hee became a tyrant and butcher of the Cittizens; so that (in one day) he commanded nine thousand of them to be flaine, promifing a certaine stipend or wages, to any one that brought him a Romane Cittizens head.

While Pombey managed Armes, and was a braue Commander in Armies; hee The renown of Pompey lo long as he followed was esteemed the most vertuous man the living!. For he restored the Kingdome of Numidia to Massinissa, which Hiarbas had vsurped from him. He vanquished Sertorius, King of Portugall, ending also the most dangerous warre of the Pyrats, and ouercame Mithridates, King of Pontus, conftraining him to flay himselfe. He warred in the Northerne parts, conquered Albania, Morea, the Heuioches, Caspia, Hiberia, and afterwards (in the East) furmoun ed the Parthians, Arabians, and fubiceted Indea belide. But afterward, the Romane people hauing no longer warre, and he returning home to his abiding; grew entious against his kinesman Cafar, and as by the precedent warres, the Romane

Empire had attained vnto vnspeakable greatnesse: so by peace it impayred too much, onely through civill warre, engen-dred among themselues. In which refpect, many people and Kings shooke off the voke, wherein they flood tributaries to the Romanes, and fo their Empire (by little and little came to decadence.

Great Alexander, so long as hee continued warre in the East hee was accounted most valiant and temperate. And hauing vanquished Darius, finding none other to relist against him, he grew to such infolence; that he would be often drunk, & made himfelfe so contemptible, as he became despised of his owne people, his friends and kindred, who caused him to dye by poison, having scarfely attained to the age of thirty yeares.

So long as the Lacedemonians had braue warlike Kings and Captaines, and found them imployment in warres, eyther, whether it were for defence of their owne Country, or for conquering others, fuch men as were Agefilaus, Agis, Archidamus, Brasidas, Damonidas, Euricratidas, Temistaas, Callicratides, and more such like threw thembeside; they daily prospered in all attempts they vndertooke. But so soone as they had conquered the Athenians, & pilled and polled their City under Ly fander, and had filled their purffes with money, making no more account of care of war: the sweet case and goodnesse of the time then seized on them, & contemning both exercise and military discipline, they became quickly ruined. For from all former times of antiquity, they commonly imployed painfull diligence, rather by stratagems and pollicies of warre to conquer their enemies, then by power: which was more commended in * Archidamus, then any other vertue elfe. They alwayes of Sparta, for to Telis, that thunned peace, not as disallowing it to be without light; because a Soldiour, most often being in war, might (by all meanes)

march against his enemy, and at al houres as occasion presented it selfe, eyther by day or night. Patient also they were in all externall injuries, as raines, windes, heats, frosts, mysts, and in greatest hungers; being euermore constantly resolued, eyther to conquer, or dye in the field. Which extremities, could not bee exercised by flothfull people, or living in peace.

The

Idleneffe and was the tuine of Great A. lexander.

and idleneffe. the Lacede monians vt-good; but because it continually entited ture any dan them to too many vices. For the Lacede- ger whatfor monian Lawes ordained, that men might Countries walke through the City in the night time lafety.

The Romans, in those times, when they | about the State affaires : some vnder cowere not corrupted with forces of forcen nations, banished all the Gracian Philofophers, and would not admit any knowledge of letters among them, but for their vie : and no leffe hated they the professors of questionary sciences, then their books. They would not practife or learne anie thing, but to know how they might best bee obedient to Magistrates, and endure the hardft trauels in battels, to live or die. A Thessalian being demaunded, who were the worst conditiond people in his counrey, answered; Such as had withdrawne themselues from Military labour and discipline. A poet, named Archilochus; being come to dwell in Lacedemon, was banished pre-fently thence, being knowne to have written : That it was much better to for fake the

A poet bani-fied out of L: cedemon for wating agent

The gods of the Lacede-monians wer

pointed armd

and those of the Greekes

The French

into long con. tinued fedi-tions, onely by

Chap. 7.

The Grecian

Philosophers banished out of Rome,an

the reason

Target and Armes, then to die in warre. Among the Lacedemonians, it was an especiall observation, to figure al the Images of their gods and goddeffes armed, holding launces in their hands, as fignifying themfelues to be warriors: Because they reputed nothing to be more vile & infamous, then idlenesse and vnarmed peace, being no way fo goodly in apparance, as Military vertue : and therefore they paynted their gods in fuch forme, as themselves alwayes wished to be. Contrariwise, the Gracians Theology instructed them; to figure their gods, idle, peaceable, and lying all along . And it feemed, that the Lacedemonians had good reason so to do bicause they imagined, that alour actions should be conformable to those of the gods: for, in painting the shapes of the gods effeminately, and so to follow them in like qualities, is to be pernitious, and unprofitable to the Common-wealth.

So foone as Henry, fecond of that name king of France, had contracted peace with the Emperor, the Kings of Spain and England, with all the princes of Italy, and with the countries of high and lower Germany, they all being enemies to him: he was venation entred ry shortly after slaine in a lousting, with a spield of a launce, entring in at the fight of his Beauer. All the great Captaines of France esteemd vertuous among all other Nations, in times of peace, fell to killing one an other, keeping neither faith nor promife, but proditoriously massacring their very best friends: feining assemblies lour of marriages; others, by pretended feasts and banquets, proceeding on fo far in this wicked course, till they killed theyr king, yea & fought to murder his fucceffor. In brief, they leagued themselues daily one against another, and some against the State, growing into fuch factious and treacherous conjurations, that the French were thoght to be a most barbarous kind of people. All which had hapned, but thorow discontinuing exercise of Armes a- Discontinuace gainst ancient enemies, and calling them of mi itary dif in, to despoyle them of their goods. Like cipline breeds as the ancient Gaules formerly did, who in meere enuy one to an other , and having peaceable na ginen ouer the exercise of Armes, one part called in the Romaines, and an other the Almaines or Germaines, who were their vtter ruine in the end. And so they became tributaries, who were wont to bee the onely terrour of the Romaines, Graci-

Germaines. Seeing then it cometh fo to paffe, that fome Princes, and likewife fome Common-weales (as appeareth by our paffed Discourse) attained to much honor, and orderd their affaires better in their storms of warre, then in the calmer feafons of peace : and because it is not possible that warres should continually endure, but Peace must, and will have some time of fway and dominion: Let vs now fee, if there be not as good meanes of vertuous The Authour containment, as well in the dayes of prehend his peace as of warre; doubtleffe it may bee first propositi done more commodiously, and the waies on, and to effect unit pur. of compaffing it I will briefly declare.

ans, Spaniards, yea, and likewise of the First of all, when there is no more occasion, for employing men of warre in a Kingdome or Common-weale : advice is to be had, what Princes, friends or confe- How Souldiderats of ftrangers, have any need of men dealt withall of fuch martiall qualitie, and thither to when theyr fend them in their affiltance, with charge of returning from thence agayne, when for them. they shall bee sommoned thereto. Not onely shall the State or Common-wealth be thus disburthened of paying such wages: but also of such scelerates, as ordinarily doe follow men of warre, the more fafely to commit their thefts and villa-nies, without checke, law, or punishment. In like manner did Charles the fifth of that name, and King of Fraunce, who LIII haning'

By peace the Romane Em pire veerly oft it felfe.

How Mari-

Chap. 8.

by their buil-

Princes are aptly compa-

loue to they buildings.

A good aduise to discharge any kingdom of thecues & wicked perfons, who are dangerous people in the times of peace having taken truce with the English, Nanarrians, and Britaines, beeing entreated by Henry of Castile, the Bastard, who made warre voon his legittimate brother for the kingdome. For Pope Vrbane had conferred the Crowne vppon him, in regard that Don Peter, king of Castile; had intelligence and confederacy with the King of Granada, who was of the Mahometane Religion. Morcouer, he was a tyrant, doing many things unbefeeming the name or credit of a Christian King Charls fant him fuccous of fouldiers, vnder conduct of the Constable Bertrand du Guesclin, who (by that voyage) purged France of an infinite number of Theores, the greater part whereof were flaine in that warre. The like did Lewes the eleuenth, who, having peace with all his enemies, fent all his foldiers (that rauaged ftrangely in his kingdome) to the Earle of Rich mend; who paffed them ouer with him into England, because he laid claime to the kingdome. By this meanes, hee ridde his realme of rafcality, and had fome revenge alfo vpon his ancient enemies.

Augustus Ca lars care of his countries

Henry Earle

of Rightmond afterward K.

ot England.

Augustus Cafar, having overcome his Competitor Mark Anthony, and having no further imployment for war; was not so improvident or indiscreete, as to suffer his fouldiers line idle and negligently:but fent forty Legions into remote Prouinces, and to the frontiers of barbarous nations, still to support their militarie discipline, and to keepe all occasions of civill war, fo farre off as might bee. But Great Constantine the Emperor, following the counfell of divers Bythops and Prieftes, who were flenderly experienced in State affaires: threwe off his Legionaries and men of warre; which was the cause, that ancient Military Discipline became quite loft, and opened a gate to fuch enemies, as (afterward) inuaded the Romane Empire on al fides. For they understood not, that Lawe, Inflice, and the whole State (next vnder God) are in the protection of Armes, as vnder a foueraign & fafe buckler of defence.

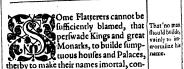

War ferueth good Phyfick, for a Commonwealth. to rid it of cor rupted hu-

Yet there is one point more, very considerable, to shew, that Militarie Discipline ought to be maintained, and warre made, vpon good and just occasions; for there hath alwayes bene (and neuer shall we bee without) fome theeues, murtherers, idle loyterers, vagabonds, murmurers, and flurdy vagrants, which (in any Common-wealth) do hurt and spoyle the honest simplicity of good subjects, & notwithstanding the verie best Instice that may be vied, yet can no countrey bee intirely clenfed of fuch Cankers. The best helpe (in this case) is warre, to fend such vnnecessary members farre off from home-abidings, wherefoeuer any fitting employment happeneth. Because it serueth as a purgative medicine, very cordiall and convenient, for expelling fuch cor rupted humours, out of the Common-wealths vniuerfall body. Furthermore, in times of peace, and for better enjoying ty in times of the benefit thereof; no tolleration is any way to bee suffered, of such as have not trade or vocation; for idlenesse and negligence cause too many cuils in any kingdome. By this discourse then may bee obferued those reasons, why many Princes & Commonweales florished in times of war. & fell to ruine in the daies of peace; the best meanes also in both of them hath briefly bin deliuered.

CHAP. VIII

That Princes ought not to erect Sumptuous and stately buildings; as hoping thereby to make their names immortall.

trary to the judgment of Count Balthazar the Castillian, in his booke of the Courtier, who (in mine opinion) hath highly erred to write and approoue fuch a vanitie. For the end of all vertuous actions (according to the faying of Cicero, in the 3.book cicero in Tufa of his Tu(culanes) is honour, glory, and good renown not a dumb building, which is copo-fed of the sweat, blood, and means of poor people. Palaces canot mone out of the places where they are builded, nor can they make knowne the generous deeds of fuch as erected them : And men that dwell

o fmall vic.

by those places, and strangers that see or | Magdalen, for sinfull women and maides, M en snames paffe by them, when some fifty yeares (or fo) are ouer-passed, can scarcely bee informed, who were the founders, albeit their names may be engrauen vpon some stone or other matter; whereby the ere-Acers of Pallaces and prowde Buildings, are often frustrated of theyr hope and intention.

Moreouer, if it be well pondered and considered, the fayrest buylding is but a matter of frailtie, and subject to no long continuance: for, when men ceasife from dwelling there, they runne in poasting speede to ruine and decay. And Princes are the occasion heereof: Resembling Swallowes, who will never neaftle twife in one neaft: Euen fo, the most parte of Princes dwellings become defert, like to King Frances, who buylded a great Tower in the Castell of the Louure in Paris, made after the auncient manner, and ruinated the body of the Lodging, by caufing another to be erected. Afterward he builded Madric, and then agayne the house of Fontaine bleau, yet neuer dwelt in any of the fayd buildings.

Example of Catharine de Medicis, not long fince Q. Mother of Fr. Catharine de Medicis, widdow to King Henry the fecond deceaffed, when the was Regent (although thee was well furnished with understanding, and a Lady of great honour) yet notwithstanding, shee fuffred her felfe, to be ouermuch perfwaded by some flatterers in the Court about her : that , to render her memory to posteritie euerlastingly, shee should erect fome goodly Pallace; whereto the yielded after a long time of follicitation. She had not feene the fourth part of the building out of the ground, but shee began to repent her felfe, faying: She knew well enough, that it was meere vanity, to hope for immortallizing by buildings, frayle,& fubicct to ruine in a short time, and so left off, from proceeding any further in fo friuolous a bufineffe.

The fayd Lady had houses of pleasure The Qu. Mo-ther of Frace abroad, paffably fayre and commodious: liked not the building of fumptuous houles, which but in Paris shee had not a dwelling, her children being come to age. The Louure, a royall habitation, was not sufficient to receive her and her traine: wherefore, feeing that the Court (in those times) kept ordinarily at Paris: Thee built an other of indifferent cost, in the place where was founded the order and religion of Marie converted to repentance, and transported the religious women thence, vnto the Abbey of Saint Mary Magdalen, beeing much more commodious for them . Reproouing the councell formerly given to her, the would viually fay: That money might be better employed, in redeeming the Crowne lands, paying of debts, ealing the people oppressed with grieuous taxations; then to bee wasted in fuch vaine manner, which wordes right well became so great a Princesse as thee

Oftentimes the commended the good Emperour Vespasian, who never builded any Pallace, but contented himfelfel with fuch as were erected by his prede-ther was receffours : yet did hee re-edifie diverse and puted a very fundry ruined Temples and Theaters, wife Lady. and gaue very bounteoufly to Hospitalls. As the like did the Emperour Domitian, who was well fatisfied with a finall dwelling : and yet builded hee the Capitole, which was greatly decayed by age, and a Temple of his owne, dedicated vato In

The facred Scriptures tell vs , that the ding loft 5amagnificence and ouer great sumptuousnesse of Salomon, in building his pallaces Tribes of Ifand houses, were the cause, that tenne raell. Tribes of Ifraelldid seperate themselves from obedience to his heyre Rehobeam, and reigned onely but over two. I will not speake here of the Temples building, for his father left him all the stuffe and the loft ten in his kingdome. It is right well knowne, by the Text of Salomons of the lewish Chronicles, that King pallace. Salomon abused the Graces and Bleffings both of Almightie God and men; for, it was not fufficient for him, to make walls in his pallace of the very goodlieft stones, the best pollished, and most splendant in in all the world; but he would needes illumine them also with exquisite colors, couering them besides with massie golde, as LIII 2 making

meanes, as needed for the crection of fo holy a Temple. But the immefurable ex-pences layde out on his Pallace, for fur-nishment whereof, the people themselves fo pressed after his decease: that they were constrayned to seeke another King, then his Sonne Rehoboam, who would continue the prodigall expences of his father in building, and so (of twelve partes) he The exceed.

Coftly wood of Cedar and Cethin,wher of the planks and floores were made.

did of leade or yron. The like is to bee understood of the planchers and sloores, all made of curious and strange woods, the very worst being of Cedar and Cethin, without corruption, and fmelling most sweetly, resembling in coulor, the beames of the Sun, being to ingeniously handled in the working, that they appeared like most curious shapes and figures, as no men in the world were able to inuent, or counterfeit the like. And yet neuerthelesse, hee couered those costly woods with plates of gold, enchafed with infinite precious flones: fo that the very floores feemed to bee fecond starry Heauens; whereby may eafily bee prefupposed, what the other parts of his Pallace were. Moreouer, Salomen did not onely build one Pallace in Ierufalem, but many more beside in divers places, even as rich,

Salomon buil ded many more Pallace befide that in Ierusalen,& all asrich as that.

or rather more costly then the other. As that which hee erected for his Summers recreation, in the Wood of Lybanus, 2bounding in all variety of vanities. In two Hals he placed fine hundred Shields or Targets, of immeasurable greatnesse, and all of massive gold, each Target valuing (at the leaft) two thousand and foure hundred Crownes, as Empolemus hath recorded. The faid Bucklers or Targets were beaten with the hammer, and engrauen with rare and coftly braunched workes. He builded another Pallace in Gazer, more sumptuous then the two former were: which was quickly ruined after his death, and at this day the places are not knowne where those Pallaces stood. For the building of these, hee transiled and molested his people, who revolted from him, losing thereby his heyre and fucceffour, and (well neere) all his Kingdome; his Reigne (befide) being full of many warres and other miferies. Behold what goodly benefit redounded to him, by erecting fuch ouer-fumptuous buildings: for, the Egiptian people destroyed and pilled his Pallace before his them with bi buildings.

The vanity of

Nero Claudi

us Cæfar.

Salomons

people reuol-

ted from him

for oppressing

Tranquillus declareth, that Nero Claudius Cafar, the fixt Romane Emperour, was to ambitious; that he defired to make his name immortall, by the meanes of buildings, which he intended to erect, and valued the price of his life, whereof I pur-

making lesse account of filuer, then hee | pose to sette downe a briefe descripti-

First he would have had all Rome to bee pulde downe, and then to be built againe at the Cittizens charges: faying, that the The reason freets were not straite nor large enough. Heereupon, divers leud persons (by him manded that fubborned) fiered the City in fundry places: hee intending afterward to haue it beare his name, and to be called Neropolis: which partly was put in execution, albeit the eight part could hardly bee burned, and because many houses were built all of stone; with engines he caused them to be destroyed. And as he perseuered thus in ruinating the houses, certaine conspiracies (intended against him) chanced to bee discouered to him; which made him leave off, and proceed therein no further. Cornelius Tacitus writeth, that hee caused a false fame to be noyled in Rome, throwing scandalous aspersions vpon the Nero.lib.3.ca; Christians, as if that they had fired the Slanderous city. And great likelihood there was, that laide on the this imposture should proceed from him, Christians, and to be imposed on the Christians: because he was a vowed enemy to all vertuous, holy and well affected people. In which respect, so many Christians as hee could apprehend, were bathed and angers and night-walkers through the Cit-For continuance of his names immortalizing, and onely by fuch buildings One Pallace he intended . I meane to describe one, another manner of thing, then those which Salomen caused to be erecked, what store with all them of gold focuer he bestowed vpon them : creded by whereof let the Reader be Judge for what is heere inferted, I have traduced out of the faide Tranquillus, who both faw that Nero, and his Pallace, and auoucheth, that nointed on their naked bodies, with greafe and pitch, and then tyed to pillers, and fire put vnto them; fo they feemed as flaming Linkes or Torches, for paffen-Nere neuer did more harmes in all his actions, then in his buildings. He erected a house, extending from his Pallace so farre as Mount Efquiline, which hee na- The descripti med, The House of Gold: and being almost on of Netsen finished, it was wholly destroyed with thunder and lightning fallings from Healing of the Health of Cold. uen, and yet neuerthelesse, hee builded it againe. It was fo spacious, that it had a place for him to walke in, which was a

Gold,

Gallery

Gallery at the very entrance, containing a thousand paces in length, having three rankes of Marble pillars, all made with Arches, most proudly glittering with goodly coulors, having infinite fabulous Histories, and Poeticall figures. In that place also was a Colossis; of an hundred and twenty foote in height, formed after his owne effigie and resemblance. There was likewise a Poole or Pond, seeming as if it had beene an huge spacious Sea : on the Bankes wherof (all round about) were stately houses builded, so that it appeared to be a faire great Citty. Within the compasse of this building, were eareable grounds, Vineyards, Paffurages, Medowes and Forrests, with multitudes of divers kindes of Beafte, as well wilde as tame, enclosed within high walles, in the manner of a Parke, and formed with very atteficiall cunning. All other parts of this Pallace, were richly guilded, thickly powdered with precious frones, and mother of Pearle, the floores of the Halles for Dinners and Suppers, were all in-layed with Iuory, and curious turning each against other; that flowers was one entirely round, which (by inimitable arte) was so composed, that it turned round night and day, like vnto the must needs containe a wonderfull compaffe to haue fo ma memailes wirhin ie.

Planchers &

Tables of admirable cun-

world.

The building

Chap.8.

Annal et vit.

An admirable Fish-pond,& a strage Dirch for Bardges.

counterfer

Sea made at

Ouer and beside all these, hee caused a Fish-Pond to be made, from Misena, so farre as the Lake Anerna, all engire with Galleries: where the warme waters of the gulfe Baia fell into it. Beside, he had a trench or ditch made, reaching from Auerna to Ostia, for Boates to floate on, containing foure score French miles in length, and of fuch widenesse, that two great Gallies, with fine rankes of Oares might passe on front. Because if one should mount one way, and the other come againe to meet it : they might freely passe without danger of touching one another.

Nor could these Fish-Ponds, Lakes, Ditches, and other deuices ferue the turn; the charge of but hee must also have an artificial Sea made, which he caused to come from very farre off, cutting through Mountaines, Rocks, pulling downe Forrests, and such like : fo that it feemed a worke of no mortall power, but as if it were done by God himselfe. To perfect this mighty labour, he gaue command, that fo many prifonners as could be found, were it for criminall causes, debts, or any case else whatfocuer throughout the whole Romane Empire (which contained then almost al our Hemisphere) should bee brought to Rome, and there to bee employed in this

And because these mighty workes could not bee effected without inestimable expences the imposed on the City of Rome (without exempting people of any quality) great and extraordinary fubfidies, and uppon the whole Lands of the feeling these Empire, wherein the Gaules (among other Provinces) felt no meane affliction, although they were (well neere) quite ruined by the precedent warres, so that they were confirmined to reuolt from his obedience. The like did Spaine, and great ftore of the Provinces in Afia and Affriwrought plates of fine gold, fo subtilly | ca, and (in the end) all Italy. Heereuppon, he fent out strickt prohibitions, that no Officer of the Empire should be paid The next way his wages, no not the Bishops & Priefts, to our throw who were paied by the hands of the pub- all together. like Receivers; neither could the Legions haue their pay, which caused great hauock in the Provinces whether they were fent. For he employed all his moneyes, about those admirable Workes and Buildings, and yet could not provide sufficient for that purpofe.

> In regard whereof, the Senate and whole body of the people, being no longer able to support those prodigall expen. ces; conspired against him. Which comming to his knowledge, & he perceining approching danger (being forfaken of all The end of his owne followers) fled out of the Citty, The end of Nero like to to a Country Farme belonging to one of that of Sarda his Libertines; where, by the help of one napalus. of his friends, he had his throate cut; for he was fuch a cowardly flaue, that he durst not do it himselfe.

Such was the deserued and miserable end of this Emperour, which happened to him, by employing his reuennes, and the goodes of his Subjects fo prodigally, in erecting proude buildings, and to no

Lilla

This

and sweete waters descending from the Roofe, by conuoyes of arteficiall conuciance, fell on them fitting at the Table, & after were received into the floores. Among al the Halles for banquetting, there

The horrible

taxations in

Neroes Pallace was mor fumptuousthe all them of

This one worke of his, was three or foure times more costly, and of greater admiration, then eyther the Temple, or all the Pallaces of Salomon, King of Ifrael. Of which (as also of Neroes) not anie kinde of noate or memory remayneth to be seene, and the places are not knowne where they stoode. And although men commune and speake of Nero; in these our dayes, it is not in regarde of his fumptuous buildings, whereby hee thought to immortallize his name: but for his abhominable whooredomes, parricides, and infamous life, which hee ledde fo long as hee lived. Whereof, at this time, I desire not to make anie more mention: for fo many Historians have written therof, and especially Tranquillus (Authour of all that hitherto hath beene spoken) as I must send them to his Volumes, which are defirous to reade any more of his life and actions.

CHAP. IX.

who was the first, among st all other Monarches and Princes, that commaunded, to present by writing, what soener was to be negotiated with him.

Very man of iudgement wel-may thinke, that a Prince, who hath manie Prouinces vnder his charge, and giueth command to diuers people; must needes be much hindered, from anfwering all fuch as are to negotiate with him. And it would be a matter vtterly impossible for him to fatisfie al sutes and de-

A great troble to any Prince, ny futes made vnto him by wordof mouth maunds made vnto him: if hee were not eased by some especiall persons, of good understanding in the State affaires, as a Chancellor, Secretary, and some such other beside. In like maner, that which giueth him greatest contentment, is, when men make their futes to him by writing, as in these dayes is discreetely vied: which was well invented (and to good purpofe) Tyberius, the by the Emperor Tyberius, who commansiting of petiduifed by him focuer, and likewise delivered his aunfwers by writing. The reason was, to the end that nothing might escape, till it had beene confidered on so well as possibly might be: For, by ouer much talking, and communicating himselfe too often, a Prince may commit divers errors, which will cause him to be misprised, or meanely esteemed. And it neuer ought to bee (as an auncient Greeke faid) That a Prince (bould freake any otherwise before the people, then as if he were in a stately Tragedy.

But some may object vnto mee, That this is not the true state of a Prince; for, in doing justice to his people; hee should heare theyr complaints and greenances, understanding from each mans mouth, the vigent occasions constraining them thereunto, which are ordinarily suppresfed, or elfe difguyfed by others manna-

I am not of the minde, to have him fo conceale himselse, that hee should not be seene but very seldome, or neuer. As now-adayes the Kings in the East Indiaes in this case at vic to doe, and especially the King of ledged, and to Borney, who never speaketh, but onely to his wife and children. When hee is to fpeake to other, hee doth it by a Gentleman, through a place made of purpole, where he can not be feene, but hath the wordes conneyed from the Gentlemans mouth to his eare, thorow the hollow paffage of a Truncke : as hee did vnto the The King! in Ambaffadour of the King Catholique, the East Indi and as wee reade in the Histories of the of their fight little, as standing vpon his greatnesse and majestie; regarde is yet to be had to his quality and power. For, it is not feemely that a petty Prince should counterfeit maiestic the the great Kings of Aethiopia, of Tartaria, Power. Persia and Turkie, who (indeed) will not have their subjects to looke directly ypon them: because, they are not so much redoubted for power, as they are for maieftie, as they expresse sufficiently, when they will be seene of their Subjects. And if fome fay, that the Princes of the East and South should gouerne in that maner, and not they of the West and North: I holde it to be all one in the maine regard. For, it is knowne well enough, that the

But although he shew himselfe very

Kings of England, Sweden, Denmarke and life misley to towards their Subiecas, then the King of their Subiecas to the subject towards their Subiecas, then the King of their Subiecas to the subject towards their Subiecas to the subject to the subje France.

Good and fub fantiall reafone, why prin negotiat with writing,rather then con

Demetrius

made a fcorn

Plut in vit.De

Bold affron-

Chap.9.

France, and the King of Moscouia, much of expedition which the required of him, more then all the reft: and yet perhappes they are not leffe, but (it may bee) better obeved.

Now let vs returne againe to our purpole, of conferring with a Prince by petition or writing, whereby many commodities enfue voto him. For first (as hath already bene faid) he vieth no communication by that meanes, nor thewes himselse too familiar with his people. fer in person which contayneth him still in the farre greater effeeme.

Another reason is, that either if he will not, or cannot grant the demands monued vnto him : if he make refufall, he can receiue no shame or disgrace therbysconfidering, that the written paper will not blush.

Moreouer, answere is returned with the more affured judgment, by the time allowed to fet downe the Princes Will: which cannot be fo well done, fpeaking with him face so face. For oftentimes, he may be incited to anger, by mooning the matter disorderly, or else vppon some other occasion, whereby he may answere farre from his owne minde. Or els it may happen in some intemperate time; for all Princes are not alike in diet; & then gifts fo immense; and of such importance may be granted, as the whole State shall fare the worfe for it.

All which approounth not, that hee should despise to answer requests, being made to him by his people : least it happen to him, as it did to Demetrius, who quarrelled the kingdome of Epyre aof his fubic As gainst Pyrrhus. Hee having receyued a great number of petitions, kept them all in the lap of his cloake; and, paffing ouer the bridge of a River; he let them all fall downe into the water, according as wee reade in Plutarke. Whereupon, his subiects feeing themselves so contemned. conceined capitall hatred against him: & (soone after) he was forsaken of his Army, who yeelded themselues & the kingdome to Pyrrhus, and so he won it with-

It hath bene observed also, that princes, liftening verbally to the futes and retings receised by Princes, only through speaking with quests of their subjects, have mette with bold and infolent confronters. As the woman, who was put off day by day by Phillip, King of Neacedon, in some matter out fighting.

whereupon the fayd: If thou neither wilt, nor canft do instice : depofe thy felfe, and another will give it me : faucily freming (by this meanes) to taxe the King with neglect and carelefnesse. The very like words vsed Ioane de Pierre busiere, a Ladie of Chambaret, to King Charles the ninth, he being in the City of Bordeaux, where the demanded inflice of him against the murtherer of her husband.

A certaine Rouer of the Sea was taken, who was reported, to bee the most fea, that was cruell and detestable Pyrat, that euer was taken and heard of. Alexander the Great, woulde fore Great needes fee him and speake with him , to Alexander. the end hee might the fooner condemne him. Wherefore he demanded of him: whence it proceeded, that he would be a Pyrate, and leade fuch an infamous kind of life; having meanes to provide for himselse otherwise: As to be in pay with fome Warlike Nauy, where hee might receyue good respect; considering, that hee was ftrong, four, and a good Soldier, as it had apeared by his paffed course of life? With a bold and vndanted countenance, the Rouer returned him this answere. I am fayd to be a Pirate and Roner on the Sea, because I sayle with a small Veffel, without any other Followers: and The bold anwhen I meete with another, beeing weaker then my felfe; then I make some appropriati- lexander. on of him. But thou that makest thy Nautgations, with great multitudes of Gallies. and other Shippes of Warre, robbing and ransacking all Maritime Townes and places, yea, and uppon the firme land likewife: Thou must be called an Emperour and a Monarch. Full well knew alexander by the Pyrates answere, that his behaujour differed verie little from the others, and that hee deserved as well to bee punnished as hee: and therefore, beeing ashamed of so fowle a detection, he freely pardoned him.

Frances, Duke of Anion, and a fonne of France, not long fince deceafed, being defirous to fettle himfelfe, and to match with some Queene or Princesse that was an heyree made meanes of marriage vnto Elizabeth Queene of England, letters paf- lizabeth Q fing betweene them to that purpose, and their pictures. In the end, the Queen fent him word, that the wold neuer contract with any that fought her, except shee Mounfieur of riage with E of England.

fwer of the Pirate to A-

The Arch-

ftria,& Henry

Sweden much

The Author

aduice vppor this Chapter

Prince of

might fee his person, otherwise there necded no further speech. The Prince, beeing perswaded by yong heads (as litle aduiled in fuch a bulineffe, as himfelfe) and leauing the counfell of more graue experience; went into England to bee seene, and with a very flender train. But beeing well observed by that Lady, he was found fo deformed by the small pockes, which had left fuch a deep driving into his face, his nofe also much mishapen, and some kernels rifing in his necke belide; as might bee the causes of loosing the fauour of so favre a Queene. Some were of opinion, that hee should not have gone, but to have continued the treatie of Marriage fill by Letters; which peraduenture(at length) would have wonne him grace and fauour.

More wifely dealt the Arch-duke of Austria, and Prince Henry, afterwardes King of Sweden, who made fuite also to the fayde Queene to espouse her, but at fundry times, and were fent for likewife better aduited to be seene. But they satisfied themselues to treate with the Queene by theyr Letters, and not verbally : for, by this means, they wer affured that the could not caufe them to blush.

I conclude then, that this invention of Tyberius, was, and is very convenient for great Monarches and Soueraigne Princes, not to negotiate by words with their Subjects; but to expedite by Writings, because thereby they shall so much the fooner dispatch, and a great deale more

Moreouer, if Princes or Princesses, haue any matters betweene them to difintangle; to performe the fame by Letters and Deputies fent from either fide: for by enter-view and speaking together, litle good can enfue, at least verie fildom.

CHAP. X.

Of such qualities and carriage, as (necessarily) is required to be in a Prince.

delinquents.

is, to bee clement and gentle. For the Prince, which exercifeth liberality, shall make his enemies to become his frends; those of all other places to be his owner and of difloyall, faithfull feruantes. Hee must bee affable to strangers, chiefly such as dwell in the furthest parts of his Land : And as a Prince endued with elemencie. Of Liberalitie is admired of all men, and honoured as and elementy a God : So by these two Vertues, Liberality and Clemencie, hee is made like

vnto God; because his Office is, to doe good vnto all, and to pardon fuch as are med a kinde of rigour, at fuch times as neede requireth: to cause seare and terror in bad livers, and to punnish them rigoroully, if necessity enforce it, for the pre-uention of a greater cuill. Otherwise, the Prince may bee the cause of his peoples loffe, if hee permit too much license and libertie, in the performance of dishonest actions; like to Aleibiades, who thorough too much easie carriage in himselfe, cor-

I confesse it to bee true, that a Prince ought not (alwayes) to be facile and benigne to his subjectes: but that (with his ought to bee facility and mildeneffe) he may commixe a gravity and feuerity, fuch as may be ter-

> The divertitie and vnikenes

Seucrity out

circumstances and difference of persons, the Prince ought to vie, eyther more feueritie, or sometimes more facilitie (according to reason) and as Wisedome ime, place & judgeth it fittest to be done, or spared for ifference of generall good. Affuredly, in regard that the people is ophocles in An

as a Monster with many heads; there is tig Pomp Trag. great neede (as Sophocles fayth) of a maine and strong bridle. And as it is a principall poynt of Arte in a good Querrie to make a horse pace milde and obediently; euen fuch is the office of discipline in a Prince, to render his subjects obedient and modest. And yet notwithstanding, to do it in gentle manner, and by benigne means,

not rudely constrayning them alwayes:

but perswading, admonishing, and reprehending fometimes, not purfuing everie fuspition; but conniuing in light matters, deferring a businesse in time of daunger and doubt, to redreffe it at fome other scason, more apte and proper. For, by repreffing and punishing all arrogancie and wickednesse; he may the more benignely entertayne the good, when humbly they present their afflictions and requests vnto

him. All which is the eafier done, by vnderstanding the manners and spirites of the people, because, such as are of rude and harih brain (like vnto to those of barbarous nations) must bee governed with more seueritie; then they that be of more docible nature, who ought to be manna-ged with mildenesse and benignitie, without stearne lookes or vakinde manner of and diffemblable, either by the nature of the place and ayre; or elfe by custome and manner of life. The Athenians, were easie to anger and mercy, the Carthagenians fad, opinionatine and obstinate; the Romanes great, benigne, louers of theyr

Country, ambitious end couctous of glory and honor. And therefore, ignorance in the manners of fuch as wee converse withall, doth oft deceine and disappoint vs in our opinions and enterprifes, wherefore, by the divers nature and cultome of

For, as a Prince (in civile actions) im-mitateth the skilfull behauiour of a Lute-betweene Ly- the people, Lycurgus was rather a fectaurgus & Nu- tor of power, then inflice; and Numa Pompilius Pompilius of iustice, rather then of po-

The complexions of men are divers

The office of Discipline in > The spirits & maners of the people are by

Lespect of erlons.

nist, who tendeth and diftendeth their cordes of the instrument, to bring an accord of tune as he would have it: fo doth hee likewise follow the Chirurgian, in order and meanes for tempering with life; because light infirmities hee can cure eafily, whereas to them of more perill, hee Apte compaapplyeth both yron and fire. In the farm princes imitation, a Prince maketh vse of the Rod and the Sword, according to the seuerall occurrences, and as they appeare.

It followeth, that a Prince ought to enfeare of God before his eyes. It is necesfary also for a Prince to haue the commaund of himfelfe, and beare a strict hand on the bridle of his owne affections : directing first a good course of life to himfelfe, to the ende, that it may ferue as a

For the feare tertaine good Lawes, and to observe the of God, and chiefest of such as hee hath made : but a- maintaing of boue all other) to have the honour and good Lawes.

A good dire-

Square or Rule sto measure the lines of other after his manners . For, very hardly Thall hee commaund others (fayth Pindarus) that hath not learned him felfe to obey reafon, the poet. which is the Queene of all things, and a Law, not engrauen in Marble , but in our fpirites , commaunding to perfourme lawfull actions, and probibiting such as are contrary, and bad. Her woorthy enstructions, wicked Kings (being flaues to theyr owne affections) will not immittate: For, if thee were their Queene & Gouerneffe, they should bee constrained to contemne their vile-nesse, and honestly to enter faire Vertues feruice.

The Pythian Oracle, by the answere it The answere gaue to King Crafus, That he should know of the Pythi-himselfe, was not to be vnderstoode; that he should know the glory and greatnesse of his Empire: but Reason, Queene and mistris of humane life, which appealeth the perturbations of the minde, and restrayneth the mightinesse of power : For, the Poet Horace fayth (by way of enstru-Ction) that it is a matter no leffe royall, to The enfirmerepresse appetites and affections, then to Horace. rule ouer people.

Latins regnes auidum domando Spiritum, quam si Lybiam remotis Gallibus iungas, & vter g. Poemos Seruiat vni.

And Agefilaus gloried, that hee had learned better to commaund himfelfe.

rupted and spoyled his people. And yet feuerity ought to be moderated for when it is excessive, and ouer-sharpe severitie : it afflicteth Townes and Citties with that pe is the great miseries: euen as when license is fa- occasion of cetiously accommodated to the onely ance. grace and fauour of the people, it prooueth to be the cause of their ruine, by the lacke of a levell temperature both in the one and other. Howbeit that in time & place, acording king Croefus.

counted it much more honest and glorious, to conquer himselse, rather then to conquer enemies. A Prince should (hunne flattery, for if he lend his eares to Flattery oght to be auoyded by a Prince. flatterers, he will not alwayes bee himfelfe. Credulity is accompanied with rashnesse and folly, and there is no greater argument of folly, then credulity: therefore a Prince should not be too credulous, that is ouer-light in beleefe,

Ambition also, which is the Mother and Nursse of many great euils, and the Ambition the plague of Kingdoines and Common-Mother of wealths, should bee excluded from the many mifchieres & the heart of a Prince. A Prince that remembane of king. bershimfelfe to be but a man, and confequently mortall, will neuer mount vp his thoughts in pride; but purfue equality. If he perceive all things profper, and fucceed according as hee can wish : hee will then beleeue, that God commandeth ouer humane occasions, whereof himfelfe onely hath care, and pride is highly displeasing to him. I would aduise a Prince, to be carefull mens merits and their faculties, as also the times of his giving promife, for the better preservation of his faith: because there is nothing more vnworthy, and villainlike, then to breake fidelity, and the force of faith is fo great, that it ought to be kept, eue with an enemy, if it be promifed. And in regard that faith (according as our graue Auncients haue defined it) is constancy and truth in words and conuentions: a Prince ought to be true, and to loue truth, in regard whereof, our betters and elders ordained, and by them it was most wisely instituted; that the Booke of the holy Euangelists (wherein the diuine verity is contained) (hould daily (in the time of divine feruice) be given to the Prince to kiffe, to the end, that being admonished thereby, to pursue and honour truth; he should likewise remember, how

Of affability

in his lookes

& language.

Of care and refpect in a

Princes pro-

An auncient

and exceller ordination for faithful.

miles.

I could wish also, that a Prince should fuffer no man to depart fad and discontented from his presence : but with cheerfull lookes and gracious language, and fo expresse himselfe both vnto small and great. Whofocuer knoweth his Prince studious he must be in louing her vpright.

then other. Alexander the Great, ac- | to be endued with temperance, dare neuer vrge any vile or vnbeseeming motion to him. O happy Marcus Cato (faid Cirero) to whom no man durst make any uniust cicero in Offic demand! He shall bee thought worthy of authority and soueraigne power, and bee reputed a hopefull Prince by his people; that (harply purfueth wicked men, hateth the intemperate, reiecteth lyars, & flyeth (as from the plague) fuch as adulfe him to follow voluptuousnesse: for whosoeuer takes pleasure in crediting such colicellers; his childhood in rule shall be im-

modefly, his youth effeminacy, and his age infanty.

Whofoeuer holdeth gouernment ouer the people, ought to be free from af- Perticular re fections; for anger hindereth knowledge for whatfoeuer is good; hatred puffes him or Gouernon, on to imperfect actions; loue blindeth his judgement; pleasure and inordinate will induceth him to violence; paffion pricketh him on to reuenge; and enuy enflameth him, with a more hafty and fiery temper, then is expedient in him. One and the same constancy in courage (at all of what he promifeth, and to whom hee times) is most required and commended in courage in a King, as well in cases of aduersity, as all occasions ments merits and their faculties as also conform prosperity. And if God please to visite whatsoeuer, best become > the vertue of patience in contrary fortunes, and not to mount vp in pride, whe affaires are fitting to his owne defires. Sloth, accompanied with negligence, is greatly hurtfull to a Prince, which in times of fafety, begetteth (oftentimes) feare and distrust, whereof the Poet faith, > him, with any scourge of his divine Iuber, that God chastiseth such as hee lo-ueth, learning thereby, to support all with flice; he ought to reioyce, and remem-

Otium Reges prius et beatas Perdidit vrbes.

Wherefore, to fhunne fuch inconueniences, some honest exercise is very fit For the prefor him; to play at Tennis (even till hee floth & negfweates) is wholefome for him, and Mu-ficke is very commendable; fometimes to hunt, and to ride great Horses is neceffary, for which Virgill gaue commendations to Picus, King of the Latines.

Picus equum domitor, debellatorque feraru.

Which exercises of hunting & mana-

Chap.11.

Of Birth-right.

Enftructions Dikipline

ging horses, were (about all other) frequent with King Cyrus, for encrealing the strength of his body, and greatly feruing for the enfiruction of Militarie difcipline. And patience, to endure both heate and colde, is laudable in a Prince, and is many times more expediens for him, then ftrict abstinence from meate and drinke.

Historic and Morall philo fophic fit for minces : and Poetric a dayу сопіравіол these Sciences, shall receive inestimable benefite thereby.

the prince rerudition.

Comparanorant man.

Councell is held to be faaffect the Profesiors of them, alwayes hauing wife and learned men about him, and to execute nothing, vntil he have first ces and Captains, who highly loued and maintained Philosophers, Poets and skil-Anespeciall looking (glaffe for all Kings and princes.

It is very necessary also, that he should have good knowledge in Histories, and (if it were possible) not to bee ignorant in Morall Philosophie, which may well be tearmed the Hunt-vice : also, to vnderfland Naturall Philosophy, the Science of Ciuile right, and Mathematicali Disciplines. He should be affiduate in reading Pocts, as Homer, whome Alexander had alwayes in his hand: and Virgill, fingularly affected by the Emperor Octavius Augustus . A Prince beeing endued with all

First, he shall become wife; for learning begetteth wisedome, next, they will yeeld him fuch vnfpeakeable pleafure, as no delectations can be thought or veterd, comparable to those that come from erudition : for, inquisition after trueth, is the proper worke and perfection of the Spirit. What is more woorthy in a Prince. then to vnderstand true & honest things ?

villany from honestic? In mine owne indgement, Laccount an ignorant mantines of an ig-I will not fay onely, like vnto a Statue or Image, or the truncke of a tree : but (almost) differing in nothing from a bruite

To discerne falshoode from trueth, and

If the Prince himfelfe be not feens in all these Sciences and Disciplines, it shall be a good quality in him, to cherifh and heard the councell of them; For, Councell is a facred thing faid Epicharmus. And he should striue to be like vnto them . infomuch as possibly he may: according to the example of many great Kings, Prinfull men.

A Prince may perceine, what account Great Aiexander made of Aristotle, and how much he admired learned men; what \ dement of God. For, although that the Deut. 21-16.

dignitie and praise Pericles wonne by the institutions of Anaxagoras; and Epaminondas by the fludy of philosophy, who (almost of himselfe) subdued the Lacedemonians, that commanded all Greece. He may further obserue, how Scipio kept company with Panetius and Polybius, learned men; how Augustus would walke betweene Virgilland Horace; and what honours he gauc to * Arrive. Finally, what * A philosodeportments were vied by many other pher of Alex Emperours and Kings, on the behalfe of learned men, and, by the example of fuch persons, himselfe ought to performe the like. The Prince that attaineth to the iffue of the qualities before remembred.

CHAP. XI.

and are required necessarily in him : shall reigne happily, and the people that line under the lawes of such a Gouernor, will finde themselves more happy then he.

That the eldest Sonne ought alwayes to bee preferred before ayonger, especially in the Succession of Kingdomes and Principalities, according to the Lawe of Nature. And what harmes have followed by doing the contrary.

N Allemaione or Germany, this bad custom they have (I meane among A custome obthe Noblemen,) herued in Ocithat if they perceine their youngest Sonnes able of spirit, and addict themselves to Armes, and not to endure any injuries; they make them theyr heyres. And the elder, perhappes more discreete, following naturall goodnesse, & being nothing fo turbulent; they make them beleeue, that they are idiotes and fooles, confining them in prison, or else appointing them to Church-service. This maner of dealing, hath caused much war in the Realmes where it is put in practife : The Lawe of and the reason is, because it behoueth alwayes, to keepe the order and commaun-

Concerning

Concerning right in the faccelsion of kingdomes.

The Hungari

of the eldeft

The iourney

o! Pompey into Iudea.

The equall

Pompey.

iudgement o

brother.

eldest Sonne be ill-sighted, lame, crooked, and wholly mif-shapen, prouided, that hee haue a reasonable soule remaining in him; he is not to be excluded from his naturall right. This is not onely to holde, and take place, when question is made about the right of eldership : but alfo, when the very nearest male by the fathers fide, ought to fucceed in the crown, how much deformed foeuer hebe. Because, for one inconvenience, a good law (hould not be infringed, and so daungerous an ouerture made in Monarchies. Nor ought that to be followed, or held as a good lawe, which was made by Lycurgus, commaunding, that deformed or mif-shapen children, should be slaine.

Heereupon Judgement passed for the Realme of Hungarie, by the States of the Countrey, against the disposition of Launcelot , King of Hungarie : who adopted Alanus, the youngest sonne of his brother, to make him King, and fent Colomanus, his eldest brother to study at Paris, ans held firmly for the right causing him afterward, to vadergoe the Orders of Priesthoode, and bestowed a Bishoppricke vppon him, to depriue him of all hope offucceeding in the Crowne; because he was squint-eyed, crook-backt, lame and stammered. Neuerthelesse, the State and people expelled the younger brother: and would have none other to be King then the eldeft, who was brought backe againe, dispensation being graunted for his Orders, and he married.

> Iudea, found it full of warre, because two brethren warred each with other, onely for the kingly dignity. For Aristobalus the younger brother, had inuaded the best places of the Kingdome, and quite expulled his brother Hyrcanus: because hee fayd, that hee was not borne, or apte for Armes. Notwithstanding Pompey adjudged the Kingdoine to Hyrcanus, and the high-Pricsthoode to Aristobulus, which was the chiefest degree next to the King; from profecution of his purpofe.

Pompey, being gone into the East parts, to make Conquests, and comming into Ptolomie, the first of that name, King of Egipt, preferred the youngest before the eldeft; Against the Lawe of Wations, faith Instine, and to caused the one to kill the other. In the same kingdome, an other Ptolomie, named Philconius, at the entreatie of his wife Cleopatra, preferred the voungest sonne before the eldest: but after the fathers death, the people repealed the eldeft, and excluded the youngest, as Paufan in lib. Paulanias affirmeth.

In like manner, Anaxandrides, King of Lacedemon, preferred Doricus before Cleomenes his elder brother, because hee was more gentle; and yet notwithstanding, Herodotus in his fourth Booke fayth, That the people would not permit or Juffer it, because it was against the right of Nations.

King Pyrrhus making election of an The greaterhevre amongest his Sonnes, chose him rour of King that had the best and keenest Sword: neuerthelesse, after his death, the eldest (who was leffe valiant) carried the inleritance away. For, whatfocuer hardines, gentlenesse, fayre feature and wisedome, that may be in the younger, more then in the elder: yet it is not anie occasion. whereby the father should so forget himselfe, as to preferre the youngest before felie, as to preferre the youngest Desore the eldest, as did the father of Atress and fonnes of Pe-Thyestes, who would needs preferre the lops and Hypyoungest Sonne, because hee had better Podamia.

Hecreunto likewise I may adde, Lemes the Pittifull, King of Fraunce, who (at the request of his second wife) preferred Lewes the Charles the Baulde, before his elder Bro- mercifull. ther Lotharius; whereby the Realme became embraced with warres.

and more viderstanding in the affayres of State, but thereon enfued bloudie tragedies.

The like confequence came by Robert, King of Fraunce, in preferring Henry, the of France. first of that name, before his eldest brother, who contented himfelfe with Bosrgongne, because he was a coward and false to his owne heart.

Charles the feuenth, could neuer ob-taine of Pope Pius the second to advance the seconds. Charles the yongest Sonne, before Lewes the cleaventh, although the King had then good occasion : because the sayde Lewes made two attempts to take the Crowne, and to teare away the Scepter and thus the flowt warriour was stayed from his father, without anie occasion whatfocuer. And in very truth (as Herodo- Herodoins li. tus faith:) Toroughout the whole world, the literate and eldest are advanced to the dominion, even amongest the most illiterate and barbarous on taied nature.

the earth, they observe the course of Nature. When Frances Bizarro, a Spanilh Captayne, conquered the kingdome of Peru, decided by

Tit.Liuius in

ib.8. Bello Pu-

A pretext of inheritance

he put to death king Attabaliba: whereof | betweene them, as it hath often hapned all the people were very joyfull, to fee him dye, that had flaine his elder brother, to make himfelfe King, contrary to the custome of the Country, & conforme to the testament of the Father, who having two fonnes, willed, that Gafea the eldeft, thould fucceede him in the Kingdome, without any division.

Concerning wo Twins.

There might also arise a doubt, to wit if two infants be twins which of them both should bee reputed the eldest; that must needs bee the eldest, which came foorth first to the worlds light. Another that if any man (not being a king) having a fonne, shall afterward conquer a Kingdome or fome other fuch like dignity, be it eyther by Armes, or by donation. It falleth out in following dayes or yeares, that he hath another some; to which of thefe shall belong the kingdome or other honor? It is held for certain, that he who was or shal be borne, after that the Father became a king, in right ought to forceed: for the eldest son was not of royal blood. but holds of his fathersfirst conditio, who was not then royall by nature. But the other yonger-borne fonne, though comming long after the first, is truely & really a Prince by blood. Like as he is not to be accounted for infamous, and out of hope for being legitimate, who was begot by a man neuer made Prieft : but afterward, when he commeth to vndergo the order of Priesthood he begetteth then another Sonne: that Son is to remaine impeached, and can neuer come to fuch legittimacy, as the first borne. Another difficulty there remaineth yet vndecided, to wit, whether the fonne of the eldeft ought to succeed his grand-father, or elie the Crown appertaine to the yonger brother (as it should seeme) because he is the neerest to the King, & the yonger standeth withdrawne in degree. It was the opinion of fome, and this difficulty hapned for the Kingdome of Numidia, where the younger fon would fucceed next after his elder brother, without any respect to the children of the eldest. Heereupon, Scipio the Affricane being arbitratour, not knowing what to answere in this case, betweene the Vnekle and the Nephew: gaue order, that the Kingdome | for, although the Lacedemonians had crea-

in Germany. Now at this instant, the Kingdome

of Moscouis is deferred vnto the younger the Kingdome fonne, after the death of the grandfather, without any regard of the sonne to him that was eldeft. Nay, which is more, the elder brother succeedeth to theyong er in the Kingdome, although hee haue fonnes: As great Bafilius, King of Mofcouia, succeeded in the Kingdome after his elder Brother, who had fonnes. And this was viuall, not onely among the Fandales; but also in all the Northerne coundoubt also may bee moued in this case, tries, according to the affirmation of Procopius, as also in England. And for this cause, Richard, sonne to the heire & eldest, was defeated of the Crowne, which was adjudged by the States to Henry of Lancaster, younger brother to the Father of Richard, in the yeare 1199 . And in the like case, Robert of Naples, the younger fonne, enjoyed the kingdome of Waples, An vefitting by fentence of the Pope, and the fonne to law deferueil the elder brother, King of Hangary, was fied. dispossessed. But now adayes, this rule holdeth not in the countries hitnerward, neyther doth it carrie any practife in the Crowne of France, fince then when it fo happened; the fonnes of the electrare alwaies preferd before the yonger brother, and the English observe the same course.

Somekings have bin to superstitiously affected, and (befide) very ill admifed, that ming superfit they would needs make fearch for the na- tious Affrolotiuities of their childre, to give to him the gers. Crowne, whose Stars appeard most to fauor him. In the number of whom, was Alphonfus, king of Castile, who by this means Alphonfus, would needs preferre the yoonger fon be- K, of Caffile fore the elder, but he flew the yonger, and caufd his father to die in prison; by which I find that he was but a poore Prognosticator. Wherefore, to anoyde citile war, which is the ruine of kingdoms and common-weales, the law of nature, (or rather the Lawe of God) ought to be followed. which commaundeth, to conferre kingdomes upon the eldeft, as alwayes it was practifed among the Hebrues : and as we further finde, that the kingdome of Inda was conferred vpon Iehoram, because he was the eldeft, as the Scripture affirmeth. Which also the wife Lycurgus imitated: should be enjoyed, by a combate fought ted him King, after the death of Charilaus:

Injuffice in Ptolomy the firll King of cheefest Captaines : reigned

5.yeares.He vanquished Pompey & his confederats : Ptolomy he flew, & refored Cleopatra his friend (fifter to Ptolomy) to the Kingdome of Egipt. Returning home to Rome, hee was flaine in the Senate house, by Brutus, Cassius, and other Conspirators. Dioscorides then lived: But if you would have more of Cafars life, reade Suctonius and Florus, in the life of Cafar.

3923+

3953.

Julius, by the fifters fide, and his adopted Sonne reigned 56. yeares : he was happy in warre, moderate in peace, and liberall to every one. Then lived virgill, Horace, Tibullus, Propertius, Vitrunius, Mecenas: And then died Cleopatra, and her husband teene yeares. He was the first Persecu-Marke Anthony, Egipt beeing then reduced into a Province. Herod a stranger (fauoured by Augustus) was then King of Indea. So the Scepter being wholly taken from Iuda; Iesus Christ, Godandman, the Saujour of the world, was then borne of a Virgin in Bethlehem, according to the Icfus Christcame in the yeare of Augustus, 42. and of the world, 3963. Ouid was then in exile : the City of Lyons fouded : and then lived Titus Livius, Valerim Maximus, Strabo: and Francus, King of the Sicambrians, in the lower Allemaigne: Aquila, Tuberus, Galba, Labem and Caim, Prophesies of Iacob, Genef. 49 . Efay 7. Mi-

10 Booke

17.

39.

43.

57.

81.

Herod the great murderer of Innocents; and there were numbred then at Rome, foure hundred, fixty foure thousand

Claudius Tiberius, the fonne of Liura, af-The yeares of terward Wife to Augustus, reigned 23. yeares, beginning very well, but prouing afterward to bee most wicked. Iesus

Christ (for our saluation) was then crucified in Hierusalem, vnder Pilate the Prouoft of Iudea: he faide, that A good Shepheard (bould clip his Sheepe, and not denoure

C.Caligula, Sonne of Germanus, a most wicked ma, reigned 13. yeares. This beaft, the ruine of men, made himselfe to be adored as God: hee poyfoned his Vnckle Tiberius, and deflowred all his Sisters, leaving them then vnto others like abu-

T. Claudius, Vnckle of Caligula, and monster of men, reigned fourteene years. He preferred Nero before his owne Son, by the treason of whom, he was poyloned with a Mushrome. Messalina, his first Wife, peerelesse in all lubricity and wickednesse, then flourished : And Saint Peter the Apostle lived (reported to bee fird Bishop of Rome:) Then lived likewife Philo the Icw, Perfeus, Mela, Pliny the elder, and Columella. Saint Paul the Apostle went then through the World, Octavius Augustus, the last Nephew of proclaiming Iclus Christ, accompanied with Saint Luke. Then lived Dyonifius Areopagita: And then was the first councell of Ierusalem.

Nero, the sonne of Agripina, afterward the Wife of Claudius, reigned thirtor of the Church, and did put Saint Peter and Saint Paul to death : he flew likewise his Master Seneca, also his owne Mother, and Lucan the Poet. Then lived Simon Magus, and Appolonius. Nero being expulsed from Rome, flew himselfe; after he had fet Rome on fire, to make himselfe pastime of a Bon-fire. Sergius Galba, in the feuenth Month of his Empire, was flaine by Otho. Suctonius, Egesius, lib.4.cap.21. M. Silurus Otho, hee also most wickedly flew himselfe, in the third Moneth of his Empire: confessing, that hee had cruelly tormented the spirit of Galba. According to Suetonius, and Tacitus, lib.7.

Of the Cæsars Monarchy. Chap.13.

Aulus Vitellius, brought vp at Bourde-71. aus de Caprea, being a vicious man and a glutton, was hewed in peeces, and cast into Tyber having reigned eight Moneths. He caused himselfe to be serued at his ta ble, with two thousand severall kindes of Fishes, and seauen thousand of Fowles, all at one supper. Suetonius, lib.9. Tofephus, lib.s.de Bel. Indai. Velpasian, a modest & gracious Prince a louer of skilfull men, and good Artizans, reigned tenne yeares, accompanied with his fonne Titus, who ruinated Ierufalem: Iosephus, Proclus, Epictetus. This ruine was the most lamentable that ever happened, for therein dyed eleuen hundred thousand men : Reade Iosephus, in his fixe and feauen Bookes of the lewish wars, and Egefippus.

Titus, the delight and solace of mankinde reigned two yeares. He vied to fay, That no man ought to depart from a Prince, with a fad countenance : Cafsius, Neracius, Proculius & Pegafus were then Lawyers, and Saint Bartholmen was then marryred in India : Saint Matthias in Iudea : Saint Andrew in Scythia: Saint Mathew in Ethyopia : Saint Thomas in Bragmania. Hieruto eate their owne children. Domitian, brother to Titus, was a most wicked man, and perfecutor of the Chriflians : he reigned fifteene yeares: then liued Martiall, Innenall, Statins, Trogus: and Saint John wrote the Gospell, as also Infephus did the warres of the lewes. Domitian would needs afterward bee called God and Lord of his people, wherefore (being greatly hated of all men) hee was flaine. Nerua, a good Prince, and the adopted Father of Traian, reigned one yeare :

he gaue more then an hundred thousand Crownes, to releeve poore Cittizens. He tooke away extreame taxations,& (wanting money) he fold his garments, plate and Pallace, esteeming his owne Parents and Kindred much leffe, then hee did the publike benefit. The Christians were in great quiet vnder him, and the banished repealed, among whom was Saint Traian, a good Emperour, but that hee perfecuted the Church; reigned nineteene yeares. Being admonished, that he was ouer-gracious to all men.hee answered ; That he was fuch to his Subjects. as hee could wish others should bee to him, if he were a Subject . Then lived S. Ignatius, S. Eustachius, Pliny the younger, Plutarch, Aulus Gellius, Suetonius, Tacitus Solt-

118, Aelius Adrianus, a man studious and skilfull in all Sciences, and the first Emperour that suffered a Beard on his Face, reigned 21. yeares : Iulius Celfus, Iulian, and Neracius Priscus, were Lawyers and Councellors to the Emperour. Then were living Ptolomy the great Aftrologer, Phanorinus, Dyonifius the Milefian, and Heliodorus . Hierufalem was repaired by Adrian, who therfore had his name chapged, and was called Helias. Antoninus Pius reigned twenty three 139. yeares. He was a Prince of fuch effeeme. as strange Nations wold refort vnto him, and make him ludge of their differences for he had alway this faying ready: I had A divine fayrather faue one Cittizen, then kill a thoufand ing of a Paga

Enemies. In this time were Polycarpus, Ireneus, Iustine Martire, Egefippus, Appian, Florus, Macrobius, Instine, Galen, and Palladius: Lucian the Atheift, also was Talem was then taken; the famine beeing then torne with Dogs . This Emperor to extreame, as Mothers were compelled tooke away the wages or hyre of Strumpets, punished idle Magistrates, and was called, Father of his Country. Reade Eutropius lib.8. Thelefphorus the ninth Pope (as fome report) did then institute, or rather

> M. Antoninus the Philosopher (called Aurelius,borne in Gaul, with L. Commodus Verus, and called Brethren in the Bookes of the Pandectes) reigned nineteen years. This yong Prince being vnwilling to oppresse his subjects, made sale of all his fairest and richest Iewels, Place, and wearing garments belonging vnto him and his Wife. Eutrop. lib. 8.

restore the time of Lene.

Lucius Aurelius Verus, gouerned the Empire with his brother Marcus Antoninus, the space of eleuen yeares: By some Authors he is set downe in order before his brother, and by others after him.

L.Commodus, the most wicked fonte of good Antoninus reigned 13. yeares. He was strangled by his Concubine, & other Conspirators. Eutrop.lib.8. Orofius lib.8. cap. 18. Lampridius doth most amply describe his life at large.

Aelius Pertinax reigned fixe Moneths. Mmmma

194

181.

162.

221.

225.

238.

241.

247.

252.

194

195.

He had refused the Empire, and beeing defirous to reforme the government, hee was flaine by Iulian his Successor; who bought the name of Cefar of the Warriours. The people much bemoaned this Prince, crying out aloud: O Father of goodnelle; Father of the Senate; Father of all bounty : Farewell.

V. Iulian, reigned seuen Moneths, and being hated of al men, for fleying his predecessour, himselfe was also slaine by appointment of the Senate. Diffention grew amongst the Christians, for the celebration of Easter: And the second Councell appointed the day of Sunday, and fine other after, Eufeb.lib. 5.cap. 24. Metianus, Scenola, Martianus and Cafsius, were now Iurif-confults : Aphrodifeus and Aphronisu Sophisters.

Prescennus Niger, or Nigerius, the fonne of Annius Fulcus, indifferently learned, fierce, proud, and inclined to all vice; was faluted as Emperor, by the Soldiors of Syria, where he commanded, and was flaine by Severus.

L. Septimius Seuerus, reigned 18 years. He was a persecuter of the Church, but otherwise a valiant Prince, addicted both to good Letters and Armes. He was fo well beloued, and gouerned fo nobly, that the Senate faid of him: Eyther hee should neuer haue beene borne, or else hee deserued neuer to dye. Reade Spart. and Vict. Then hued Origen, Tertullian, Philostratus the Sophister, and Apuleyus.

Cl. Albinus, issued of the Romane Families, of the Posthumians and Albines. made himselfe Emperor in France . He was furprized by the Soldiors & brought halfe aliue to Senerus: where having his head finitten off, he was hanged on a gibbet, and being torne with dogs, he was throwne into the River.

A.B. Caracalla, the fonne of Senerus and husband to his stepmother, reigned feauen yeares. He flew Gets his brother. and Papinian the great and famous Lawver, with divers other. At last, himselfe was flaine by a Soldiour of his Guard. Herod.lib.4.

Antoninus Geta, the fonne of Senerus and Iulia, borne at Milain; After the Parthian warre, wherein hee wonne great fauour, was called Cafar Antoninus, in the life of his Father.

Op. Macrinus, with his sonne Diadumenw, reigned one yeare. Both the one and o her had their heads smitten off by their men of warre. Macrinus was learned and seuere, but (withall) detestable and crafty, caufing his Predecessour to bee murde-

Marcus Aurelius Antoninus Heliogabalus, the baffard of Caracalla, who was a dishonest whore-hunter, and most abhominable in life beside; gaue great estares to wicked Bawds, Panders, Jesters, &c. And beeing generally despised, hee was flaine by his Soldiors, in the fourth yeare of his Reigne: both his owne body and his Mothers beeing dragged along the Streetes, and cast into the common lay-

Alexander Seuerus, reigned peaceably without effusion of blood, 13. yeares. He was a good Prince, & did vtterly forbid the selling of Offices. Vlpianus, Paulus, Pomponius, Alpheneus, Affricanus, Callistratus, and other excellent Civil Lawyers (the Schollers of Papinian) then liued, with Dion the Historian, and Philostratus. The Kingdome of the Persians was then founded by Atarxerxes, and af- The kingdom ter transported to the Sarrazins, and now commanded by the Sophi. Maximinus, a persecutor of the Christians, reigned three yeares. Being at first but a filly Shepheard; he was made Emperour by the Souldiors (without authority of the Senate) and then by them was flainc.

Gordianus, a Prince of a Noble spirit, with his Son named Gordianus the yonger, a good Prince, reigned fixe yeares, and was flaine by Phillip his fuccessour. In his time was a wonderfull Ecclipse of the Sunne.Reade I. Capitolinus, who placeth alfo Pupienus and Balbinus (created by the Senate) with Gordianus the elder.

Pupienus Maximus, a new man, and fonne to a Smith, gaue himfelfe alwayes to vertue and Military fertices, proouing fortunate against the Polonians and Ger-

M.Calsus Babynus, and Pupienus, after they had bin Confuls, and that the Gordians were flaine in Affrica; were created Emperours, by appointment of the Senate, against Maximinus, and both of the were undeferuedly flaine. Gordianus the fecond, yongest son of Gordianus by his Daughter, borne at Rome;

Of the Cæsars Monarchy. Chap. 12.

> Phillip, Prefect of the Preterians: C. Valens Hostilianus, is not placed in this ranke by some Historians, because immediately hee dyed, finitten with the pestilence, so that scarfely there remaineth any memory of him.

Phillip, an Arabian by Nation, was the first Christian of the Cafars, and reigned five yeares. He gave (by his Testament) all his rights and treasures to Pope Fabian; and heere began the riches of the Romane Church. He was likewise slaine by his fucceffor, as he had kild his Predecef-Decius Traian, a persecuter of the Chriflians, reigned two years. S. Saturnine the Bishop was martired at Tholouse. S. Laurence, Hippolita, Cecily, Azatha, and Appollina.

2. Herennius Hetruscus, is not by any Historian placed among the Emperours. Neuertheleffe, in this ranke is his picture found in the Booke of Hubert Goltzius, and there it is recorded of him, that hee was the fonne of Decius, and that he was flaine in Hungaria, in a battell against the Vibius Gallus, with his foune Volusianus, reigned two yeares: Being perfecutors of the Church, were both flaine by the Soldiours. At this time there was fuch a contagious pestilence, and almost so generally dispersed, that in many places ther was left no creature living. This pestilence continued fifteene yeares, and feemed to be partly occasioned through the wicked gouernment of this Emperor.

Aemilianus Lybienus, borne in Mauritama, in his young yeares followed armes, and foone after he was made Emperour. He was flaine at Spoleta, being aged forty yeares.

Licinius Valerianus, with his Son Galien. persecuting the Church, reigned fifteene yeares. He was Captine to Sapor, King of Persia, who ysed him as a footstoole when he mounted on horse-backe. S. Cyprian & S, Cornelia, were then martyred. Porphiriwww.wrote against the christians: The thirtie Tyrants vsurped the Empire. Reade Trebellius Pollio, &c. S. Paul the first Hermite began the folitary life.

Galien the fon of Valerian, suffered the Christians to live in quiet, and reigned 9. yeares alone, after that his Father was led was flaine in a fedition of Soldiours, by captine into Persia by sapor. He was ex. ceeding wife, but addicted to Luft.

Saleninus Valerianus, the fonne of Galsen, was flaine with his Father, being retired to Millaine, and was but tenne yeares

Cassius Labienus Posthumus, from being a fimple Souldior, attained to great dignities : and being in France, was made Emperor in the time of Galien, where he

Flauius Claudeus (of whom issued the family of the Constantines) a good Prince, of Noble Linnage, and highly esteemed, reigned two yeares. Dyonifim being then Pope, divided the Diocesses and Parishes of the Christians. Tom. I.de Concil. I amblicus, Plotinus. and Invencus Prieft, reduced the foure Gospels into Hexameter Ver-

Aurelius Quintillius, brother to Claudies, after the death of his brother, was faluted as Emperour by the Senate, and flaine 17.dayes after.

Valerius Aurelianus, a cruell man, reigned fixe yeares. He tormented the Christians, and repulsed the Franconians, entring out of Germany into Gaul. He was the first that wore an Emperiall Crowne : a louer of Military discipline, and one that rigoroully punnished the vices of his Soldiors. He vanquithed Zenobia, a very Warlike Lady, holding the Empire of the East.

Tacitus was flaine the fixt Moneth of his Empire. This good Prince caused the Bookes of Cornelius Tacitus to bee receined into all Libraries . The Manicheans began (from the time of Aurelianus) to infect the Church.

Annius Florianus, brother to Tacitus, being defirous to reigne, vsurped the Empire as by inheritance: but in a fhort time he was flaine at Tharfus, by his Soldiors.

Probies, a good Prince, the Authour of peace in the high and lower Germany or Almaine, reigned fixe yeares and foure Moneths. He faid, That he had no neede of Warriors, having no enemies; and that the Souldier (not doing any thing) ought not to cate up publike provision.

Carus, a good and wife Prince, reigned two yeares, with his fonnes Carinus and Numerianus, two Brethren of very different nature. The first, was most wicked. and full of cruelty: The other was full of 271.

Mmmm 3 good-

279.

286.

213.

288.

308.

395.

399.

goodnesse, valour and knowledge. Then liued Volcatius, Herodian, Lampridius, Spartianus, Pollio, Vopiscus and Capitolinus Historians.

Dipclesian with Maximianus Herculius, reigned 20 yeares: hee was a most cruell persecutor of the Christians, and would haue himfelfe to be worshipped. Katharine, Lucy, Agnes, Barbus, Sebastian, Vincent, Colmo and Damian, and innumerable other Martyrs through the world (in his Reign, to the number of 17.thousand) were put to death in thirty dayes. Valerius Maximus, fir-named Herculis,a man of fierce and cruell nature, was very out-ragious in luft, especially with his owne fifters blockish in giving councell, without civillity and government, & therefore had Dioclesian to affith him in the Empire.

Constantius Chlorus, father of Constanfine and Galerius, the one gouerned in the East, the other in the West, 4. yeares together. Constantine commaunded in Gaul, Spaine, Affrica, and Italy: The other in Greece. Arnobius, Lactantius, Derotheus, Bishop of Tyre, Eusebius and other learned personages lined at this time.

Galerius Maximianus tearmed Armentarius, because he was a Neat-heards son, was made Emperor, being a goodly perfon, and a fortunate warrior. Maximinus, Nephew to Armentarius by his fifter, was Emperor, and perfecuted the Christians in the East. Seuerus, Prefect of Italy and Affricke, was published Emperor by Galerius, and fighting with Maxentius, was taken at Rauenna, and flaine.

Maxentius, elected Emperour by his Soldiors, reigned a Tyrant, and was like voto his Father Maximinus. Being vanquithed by Constantine, neere to Pont-Miluius, he was drowned in a Gulfe, and his body neuer after found.

Licinius Licinianus, borne of Country Parents, was fortunate in the wars which he had against Maximinus. Afterward, he became a mocker of Christ, and perfecuted fuch as beleeved in him; and because he was ignorant, he was a great enemy to all that were learned.

Martinianus, was created Cafar by Licinius against Constantine; hee was in his Camp at night, but fled before next mor-

Constantine the Great, sonne of Helena an holy woman, with Maxentine and Licinius, reigned 31. yeares. He was religious and affable, and transported the Bible into divers Countries. He affembled the Councell of Nire, against Arrise the He- The Councel reticke. He builded the Citty of Constan- of Nice. tinople, calling it after his owne Name: whither the Imperiall feate was translated, and changed from Rome into Greece, after he had granted Siluester to be Pope.

Eufeb.lib.10. Niceph.lib.8. Crispus was made Casar by his Father Constantine, but beeing afterward fallely accused to his Father, he was put to deth; for that hee would not confent to the inordinate appetite of Faustine his stepmo-

Constantine the second, with his Brethren reigned 17. yeares, ioyning thereto the three yeares reigne of Maxmentiue. Themistius, Donatus, and Libanius the Sophister then lived: and Saint Anthony the Hermite was knowne in Egipt; by many Iulian the Apostata, held the true Religion ten yeares, and was named Emperor by the men of warre in Paris, against his will. Hee forbadthe Christians the study of letters: and beeing wounded to death, he cryed out: At length whou haft vanquished, O Galilean. S. Cyrill, Optatus, Basile, Nazianzene, Epiphanius, Hillary Didimus, Exuperus (all learned Divines) then flourished.

Touismus, a kind and learned man, reignedeight Moneths, and made confession to his Warriours, of the name of Ielus Christ. Now was the first order of Monks instituted by S. Basile, under certaine rules of liuing.

Valentinian, a good and Catholique Prince, and Valens his brother, reigned 15. yeare. This man held the error of the Arrians, and constrained the Monkes to vnderrake Armes in warre: he dyed vnhap-Gratian, the sonne of Valentinian, during whose life time he was an associate in the Empire. He reigned afterward with Valentinian the second, his younger Brother, and Theodofiss fixe yeares.

Maximus, rearmed Emperour by his Soldiors flew Gratian, and held the Empire foure yeares: after which time Valentinian returned to the Empire againe fine veares.

Theodolius,

368.

381.

460.

476.

Of the Cæsars Monarchy. Chap. 12.

Theodofius, after that Gratian was flaine | perors in twenty yeares, who all flew one by Maximus, reigned three yeares with his brother Valentinian : the death of who was bemoned by S. Ambrofe for the great zeale hee had to Christian Religion. S. Hierome, S. Augustine, and P. Orofius then

Arcadius and Honorius, the fonnes of Theodofius, reigned twenty nine yeares, as well in the East as in the West. About this time, the great empire of Rome began to decline (by the infidelity of Ruffinus & Stilico their Tutors.) The very greatest part thereof was vied by the Scythians. times furpri-Burgundians Lombards Hugarians French Goths, and Vandales : And Rome was four times taken by the Gothes and Vandals, within one hundred thirty nine yeares. Then lived S. Chryfostome and Claudian. Honorius reigned with Theodofius, Son to his Brother, fixteene yeares.

Theodofius the fecond, youngest fonne of Arcadius, reigned at Constantinople 27. veares, after the death of Honorius; hauing affified Valentinian the third, the fon of Constantine, and Placida, daughter to Theodofius, who reigned fine yeares in the West. At this time, the Frenchmen leauing Franconia, began to enter vpon the Gaules, under Clodion their fecond King. F. Valerius Martianus, reigned in the East, scauen yeares, and Valentiman the third (at the same time) in the West: during their Reigne, the Burgundians and other Westerne Nations, were converted to the Faith. The Vandals came out of Spaine into Affrica, and afterward they tooke Rome, voder the conduct of theyr King Genlerichus. Attila, King of the Hunnes, entered into Gaul with five hundred thousand men delingred battaile to Merailess their fecond King, who had ioyned with Acuse, Lieutenant vnto the Emperor. There he loft an hundred and fourescore thousand men, and fled into Hungaria, not any man beging wounded behinde. About this time was great Arthur King of Britaine. Leothe first, reigned 17 yeares, affociated by Leothe Sonne of his Daughter; who after he had reigned one year alone, gaue up the Empire to Zeno his Grandfire, who reigned tyrannically 17. yeares. The estate of the Church was then very greatly troubled, as alforthat of the We-

Acrne Empire. Italy had then nine Em-another. Anastafius reigned twenty fine years :

955

519.

577.

584.

493. he was an Eutichian Heretique, was smitten with lightning, and dyed (as a inft punishment) for his heresie. Fulgentius.

Iustine reigned nine yeares : hee was first a Swine-heard, afterward a Cowheard, next a Carpenter, a Souldior, a Captaine, and last of all Emperour, gouerning very well and godly, and expelling the Arrian Heretiques. Then lived Boetius; and S. Bennet or Benedict began this Order.

Iustinian reigned thirty eight yeares. 528. All his care and fludy, was to repaire the decayed Empire, and re-establish ciuill right; in the execution whereof, hee was feconded by excellent personages, especially by Belifarius, Narfes, and Tribomianus. They first chased the Vandals out of Affrica, which they had held 95. yeares: and delivered Rome from the Gothes, who had conquered it, & yet were once more expulsed thence by Narfes. Instine the second, reigned ten yeares, ¢66. beloued of all men for his liberality. Sophia his wife mocked him with Narles, the Gouernour of Italy, whereat he being of- The kingdem fended, called the Lombardes, by whose of the Lombards. helpe he reugnged himfelfe. Now was the Kingdome of the Lambards founded by Clebus, wher reigned thirty two kings, vntill the time of Charles the Great. Tiberius the second reigned 7.yeares : he was a very charitable man, one that loued God and his Saints, and therefore (no doubt) was beloued of him againe.

Mauritius reigned twenty yeares : he was descended of very meane Parentage, and (in the end) was murdered for his conotoufnesse: a vice as much discommendable in a Prince, as liberality is befeeming, and maketh him renowned.

Phocas reigned eight yeares : and being the murderer of his Predeceffor himfelfe was likewife murdered, with all his Race. Nowwas the contention for the Contention Primacy of the Church, hetweene Rome for Primacy and Constantinople, and now was S. Gre- of the church.

Heraclius reigned thirty yeares, who was the murderer of Phocas. The fifteenth yeare of his reigne, began the rule of Mahomet, the false Prophet of Arabia, where were the Agarens & Sarrazins: to whom 612.

310.

641

643

670

687.

The State of

717

719

the Egyptian and Arabian princes (called Soldanes) next succeeded. After them came the Turkes, about the yeare of our Lord God, one thousand and three hundred, Mahomets false doctrine (through the negligence of the Emperors & Chri-(tian princes) grewe to fuch an head; that it not onely poyloned Asia and Affrica, but also a very great part of Europe. 640 Constantine the third, reigned foure moneths, being a good prince, and verie young: He was poyfoned by his stepmother, that her sonne might reigne. Heraclion, who having his nose and tongue cut out, was banished two yeares Constans, the sonne of Constantine.

reigned twenty and seauen yeares: And beeing very couctous, hee was flayne by his owne followers, in the Bathes of sy-Constantine the fourth, reigned scauentcene yeares. Hee ouercame in one battell, thirty thousand Syracusans, and afterward fell to great wickednesse. The learned and venerable Beda lived in this Instinian the second, a wicked man, reigned fixteene yeares, but not without interruption, being deiected by Leontius, and Leontius by Tyberius Absimaris, who reigned other three yeares; therefore these three are sayde to reigne sixeteene yeares. Now was the beginning of the Dukes of Venice, which had beene gouerthe Venetias. ned before (for the space of two hundred | Emperour dyed a Leaper.

and thirty yearcs) by Tribunes. Phillip Bardafanes, reigned two yeres. Hee was cast out of his Empire by his Licutenant: and after that, they plucked foorth his eyes. Hee had much talke and little wisedome, disposing badly of the Empire, he became after a schismaticall Monke.

Anthemius, called also Athanasius the fecond, reigned three yeares: He was deiected from his Empire by Theodosius chiefe of his Armie, and turned into a Monastery. He had taken away the Empire, and then pluckt out the eyes of his predecessour.

Theodofius the third, reigned one yeare. He left the Empire, seeing himselfe to be affayled by Leo his fucceffor, and became a Monke.

Lee the third, a wicked man, reigned | uout, and one that loued God, would fine and twenty yeares. Hee was called Iconomachus, a Defacer of Images, and would not fuffer the Christians to have any in their Temples. He was excommunicated by Gregorie, and by authoritie of a Councell held at Rome, against his owne of Constantinople. Blond. in his tenth book. The Sarazins befiegd Constantinople three yeares together, in which time died three hundred thousand of the pestilence and fa-Constantine, the fift of that name, the fonne of Leo the Ifaurian, succeeded his father in the Empire of Constantinople, in the yeare of our Saluation, seauen hundred fortie and two. Hee was sirnamed Copronymus, because he would discharge his belly in the Fonts, appoynted for Christian Baptisme. Hee was an vtter enemy, not onely to the Images of Saints, but also to theyr Reliques, causing them ny of the best and most respected persons, and (amongst others) two Patriarchs of Constantinople. He made warre against the Bulgarians, both by Land and Sea, Fortune fmiling vpon him, other-whiles lowring. In his ablence, one Artabafdus was to be burned . Hee did put to death ma-made Emperour at Constantinople. But he receiving news thereof, returned, and either put out, or rent foorth the new Emperours eyes, and caused his children to be flaine. In his time, there was so cold 2 Winter, that the Sca of Constantinople was frozen. After many cruelties, this

Artaba dus, albeit he was descended of meane birth; yet notwithstanding, for the faithfulneffe, good vertues, and commendable qualities which were in him, he was liked of the Senate and Souldiers, & afterward was elected Emporour by the zealous Christians, for the hatred that euery one bare to Constantine the fift. Hee became a better louer of the Saints, and fortified the City of Constantinople against Constantine, who had beene expulsed from thence. Neuerthelesse, both hee and it were belieged; and the Citty beeing furprized, his eyes were pluckt out, and his children put to death. Lee the fourth, was Emperour after his father Constantine the fift. He was not only heyre to the Empire, but also to his fathers vices: And his mother, who was de-

745

Chap.13. Of faire Landgartha Qu. of Norway.

giue no confent, that he should be Emperour. Hee made some attempts upon the Sarazins that dwelt in Syria. Hee tooke the Crowne, which Mauritius had dedicated vnto Almighty God, and fet it on his owne head, it being very richly beautified with rich pretious stones: But soon after, hee had an Impostume in his head, with a fiery Ague, whereof he dved.

Constantine, the fixt of that name, and sonne to Leo the fourth, was Emperour after his father: Hee reigned nine yeares (very young) with his mother, who with his confent also, was perswaded by The-rafius Patriarch of Constantinople, to call a general Councell of three hundred and fifty Bishops. In a short while after, Constantine excluded his Mother from the Empires gouernement. Hee caused the eyes and tongue of Nicephorus to be pulld and cut out, hearing of a fecret intention, to make him Emperour. Also he did shut up in a Monastery, his wife Marie, who was the daughter of King Charlemaine, and then tooke a Concubine, by the councell of his Mother, who pretended that her fonne was hated of the people. Heereupon not long after thee caufed him to be taken, and plucking foorth his eyes, that him up in prison, where hee dyed in the yeare 798, and then the reigned alone, about the space of fine yeares.

Irene, iffued from Attica, was Wife to the Emperour Leo the fourth, by whome he had Constantine the fixt before mentioned, and reigned with him nine yeares, & afterward (alone by herfelfe) fine yeres, or little more, as hath already beene fayd. She was thence expelled by Nicephorus, thoughts fit for flock-keepers, not knowand fent into exile to the Ifle of Lesbos, ing the spirites forces, the beautie of the foule, the gentleneffe of vuderflanding, which at this instant is called Mitiline. At the time when this Lady gouerned the Empire of Conftantinople, Charlemaine was and the galliardise of the bodie it selfe, in being gouerned by interiour reason; gaue the prize (he knew nor how) of beauty, by facred and crowned Emperour of Rome, (or of the West) for his vertues. appearing in the exteriour shape of a laf-

CHAP. XIII

The ancient and honourable Historie of the life, fortunes and admired vertues, of faire Landgartha, the royall Queene of

T is a case most certayne and assured. that a generous spirit, a gentle soule, and an understanding filld with cheareful delicacie, is much fooner feized with amorous apprehensions; then that which is farre off from this queint temper, and which subtillizeth the same perfection of why good spithe foule. Considering that love, pure its are much and perfectly naturall, being a vertue, and more amorous then dull and vertue euermore biding in fuch fubiects, leaden ca; a. where the hearts are bolt and most fanc- cities. timoniously nourithed, and gentle spirits having (I know not how) a rellish more divine then vulgare, or apted for groffe popularitie: It followeth, without anie question to the contrary, that men, the more remarkable they are for greatnesse. gentines, good spirit, & illustrious blood: doe also best discourse on louely occasions, and effect them with clearer judgement, then such as fayle in the accomplithments of the foule.

And, to fift this poynt the more ferioully; Is it for a Clowne or peazant, to It is not for judge on the raritie of vertues, on the fin- the Buzzards gular giftes of the Spirit, of that which is on the Sunner beloued; and what offices and duties are radiant fplent in the partie affectionate? Effectes doe doui. plainely approoue the contrary; for Poets, who are the very subtillest Painters which trace Trueth under the distemperd colours of wittie Fables, can not better

And if that indifcreet Judge pronounced the Sentence, in fauour of the most vn-woorthie, and lent his affections to the ciuious Lady.

of humane affections, that I know, and let vs beholde the picture of fuch an impression; then by the judgement (so often fung) and perfourmed by the Troyan, on the interpre-tation of the three Goddefles. For, Fable, concerthe rudenesse of the Shepheard, having ningtheiudge extincted the bright beams of bloud fro ment of Paris his Parents, among the base and groffe

Beholde how farre Poeticall Philoso- The extedure phy extendeth it felfe, and judge, if the of poetical Philosophyin the Fable. his Parents, who should more have cherished vertue, which liveth and continueth for euer; then that which withereth, and loofeth it felfe by the steppes of age. folly: fo was he as well recompensed according to his merit, and felt in the ende, that a manly Heltors desseignes, sauouring of that which is proper to the vertue of a man; was much rather to be chosen, then the light promise of a hurtful thing, how pleasant soeuer in wish, and alluring the fenfuall part of a man.

Corporcall beauty & fea ture in a woman,is no matter of any great moment

Alfo, to speake truely, so many famous women, as have honoured all the Ages past and ours, by effect and memory of their commendable vertues; if they had had no other rarities to renowne them. but onely beauty of the body: questionleffe, their names had long fince bin buried in a more obscure graue, then ever time ordained for things to be forgotten. No, no, it was vertue, generofity, height of courage, and great enterprizes; which made them immortall, and equalled their glory with the renowne of men, yea, of the most signall and illustrious. Against the venemous tongues of fuch, as neuer ceaffe to taxe the reputation of so honourable a sexe: no boast need to be made, either of fearch into the valiancies of Semyramis, whose memorie Semyramis the Affyrian is somewhat too farre off; neyther the incredible forces of the Amazones, the Hiftory being (I know not how) doubtfull zones wome in the occurrences. Nor will I induce Zenobia the Asian Queene, the dreadfull Queene Zenobia that made warre vpon the Re manes .

Queene. The Amo-

warrior s.

Cinana daug ter to Philip King of Ma-cedon.

aftonishment (sometime) of the Romane Empire: whose wisedome also was as much to bee commended, as any of the very chiefest Generals, her direction, pollicy and good carriage, all making her reputed (long time) for one of the Worlds Monarchs. Nor am I willing (fearing to make men blush, by reading how many women haue managed Armes, and with no meane felicity) to infert Cinana, Daughter to Phillip King of Macedon who made head against the ingratefull fuccessours of her Brother Alexander. purfuing the vtter ruine of his bloode that had advanced them. After many foughten Battailes, hauing carried herfelfe beyond the compafie of man-like valiancy; in the ende, the affected rather to dye, then to fee the vitter ruine of the famous House of her Ancestors, beeing vnable any way to helpe it. I will be (ilent alfo, in speaking of the brane Valasca, a young Lady of Bohemia, who arming onely tickling of defire, full of wretched) the Ladyes of her Country against their Husbands; made a happy course of long warre against the men : vntill such time, as (being berrayed) fhee crowded into the throngs of her enemies, of whom (before the could be flaine) the flew a great the Country.

> I will not (I fay) discourse so many examples, beeing fatisfied with a History most true and memorable, collected fro famous Antiquity, and from among the The Author Ladyes of a people, heeretofore accounted very barbarous: wherein (by my flender opinion) honest Gentlewomen shall onely. receive some taste of vertue, without lerning the fierce obstinacy of any; and Getlemen, may have meanes to fee and confider, how to make choyle of vertue in louing; and faire minded Maidens, obferue a rule, how to contain their thoghts in loyall affection, to them whom they have dedicated their defires.

In the time when Dagobert, fonne to Charles the Great, reigned in France, and ouer the Empire, there was a King in Swetia, named Froll, or Frolle, a cruell man, a tyrant, and insupportable to every one. This King being neuer contented with his owne Royalties, began to infult obstinately on his neighbours Lands: but especially to flesh on the king of Norway. vpon whose Countries entring without challenge or defiance, he made fuch great spoyle; that having pilled, facked, and well-neere ruined the whole Country, he vanquished and and slew the King, with all his Family. Nor did it suffice this rauenous Wolfe, to have fled fo much A bloody ty innocent blood, for the glutting of his greedy destree: but hee must needs also holiparen with all kindes of cruelty and villany, informuch, that hee lest ney wite destree. ther Lady of the House Royall, nor any other that he could lay hold on but he abufed them as villanoufly, as wickedly hee had robbed other of their inheritable rights. They that were not (as yer) fallen into the gripes of this abhominable Goate, and not knowing how to shunne falling into his cunning and treacherous fnares, made fuch a private confultation among themselves by secret intelligence; that at length, they mette together in a corner of the defert belonging vnto the Kingdome, to have a more free vnderstanding of particular grieuances, and

Armes in Bo hemis,gainst

King Frollo

marke to redreffe their woful miferi

this Hiftory

and innocencie. Newes likewife ran curforily among The noble me of Norway folicite Reyner king of Den-

Chap. 13.

them, that the Nobilitic of the Country (who had withdrawne themselues into Denmarke) folicited King Reyner, to bring thither his forces, in revenge of a dishonourable injury done to his owne bloud (for his mother was iffued from Normy) and the Dane being eafily spurred on to warre, in regarde he was very youthfull, his bloud chearefully boyling, and defirous to atchieue honour by Armes, gaue the easier eare to the motion. Beside, defire of revenge, to fee his reputation for much interested, by the tyrannies of Swe-

tid, with pretending a right and title vnto thekingdome of Norway: These were no meane motines to incite him on the fooner. And these considerations, gaue hart Diffreff ed ho also to the distressed Ladies, for hope of nor, especially good successe thereby: but fearing, that euneftly de. matter and meanes (in this case) were not firous of reas yet sufficiently ready; this intimated perswasion vanished into smoake, euch (well-neare) as fodainely as it was concei-

Councell alled among the Ladies of la extresani

At length, one in their goodly troupe, and (almost) one of the youngest, fairest and gentlest Virgines, and such a one as had propounded to herfelfe, neuer to fubmit ynder any Lawe, that gaue a man power ouer his wife: She, beholding the lad aftonishment of the whole company, and what inft reason they had to be so dreadfully difmayed; making a reuerent obeyfance vnto them all, deliuered her minde in this manner.

ued, being no way able to refolue on anie

The Oration of Landgartha, to the whole Company of Ladyes.

CAnit be (faire Ladies of Norway) that illustrous blood, appeareth onely in the strength and dexteritie, which fondly wee presume proper and peculiar to men: and we that have hearts, spirits, bodies and members like unto theirs, must make them revengers, and defenders of our continence dy chaftity? ties all means If Fate be fo maleuolently affected, that our fathers, brothers and husbands, can obtayne

how they might best defend theyr honor | no succour, to recover their lands, and expulse the Tyrant out of theyr territories : shall it therefore be fayd, that we must needs ferue the inordinate appetits of a villaine, & Frollo must abuse those remayning Ladies, that neuer tasted his abhominable embracements.Let Landgarthaliue no longer, if the be voyde of all other ducties and denotion, then to attend the pleasures of a Tyrant, and (without resistance) suffer violence to be done to her honour and modeltie.

why Ladies, the Lyoneffe and Tygreffe whet their clawes and sharpen theyr teeth, to Voreasonable defend theyr young ones, and preserve theyr themselves in lines from the Hunt mens bands. The verie their owne de-(mallest Bird will wie both the Beake and fence & theirs Wing, to revenue the wrong offered by rape of her brood. An! we that furmount the one. in lence and reason, the other in strength, dr all in wifedome and councell for bolde attempts; Iballive Suffer that a Stranger (not one lote firanger then our owne Countries (trength) (hall make a mockery and abuline pastime, of the most honourable Matrones dy Gentlewomen in our Land? No no it is not for Landgartha to endure such indignitie, or that (without effusion of her blood) can yeeld to the beaft-like Prince of Swetia. Are weinferiour in courage and generofi- Aluilda was tie of spirit, to braue Aluilda, who fo long daughter to time fought on the Seas, and amazed the ve- the Gothes, & ry boldest warriours of the world? Are wee ranged on the feas as a Pirat defective in any thing (be had? We are healthfull, young, gallant, strong and rich enough, towinne what soener is needefull for us, by Service eyther on Sea or Land. And if Aluilda (moued by vniust means) prosperd in her actions, and had Fortune favorable to all her attempts: can you imagine, that Heaven hath not farre fayrer (ucceffe in store for vs, hauing Reason and Vertue on our side, and vpright iustice to support our cause? were our iourney to death onely, and that the ending tune, and beg our bread through all strange countries in the world. Ah, no, no, ([weete Ladies) heelikes our lines too well, and by taking pleafure in them. desireth our enerlasting diplicasure. He will of this wretched life, could appeale the Tyrants cruelty, without proceeding any further : I would be the foremost, freely offering my selfe as a Sacrifice , to satiate the furie of his raging lust. If he coueted, and would have nothing elfe but our wealth and treasure; I would aduise you to deliner all, and rather then spare aught, let vs goe seeke future for-

Shame and infamy waite continually at lution in a

Virgin.

luffer ws to enioy our wealth, for his freeer wallowing in wicked dalliances, which prey is the maine purchase whereat hee most the heeles of symeth : for hee more delighteth in our Honours violation, then, by maffacring our bodies, to become Lord of all our Iewells, lands, and inheritances . What remayneth then for worthy refochafte, veriuous & iprightfull minded

A League fworne, amóg Landgartha made the La dy Generall.

Itisno comthat mooue march in arm our delinerance? Shall we tarry for them that are in Denmarke, expecting when they will come to succour vs? No, rather let Ladies arme themselves, and appearing in open field; fight valiantly against the villaine, that seeketh to rob ws of our true repute. Let ws give him plainely to understand, that effeminate persons are more soft, and lesse valiant then we are; that chaste and vertuous Ladies are of other temper, then Souldiers mollified by hase paillardise: yea that they are more truely constant then the Tyrant, whose conscious quiltinesse in foule offences, is his owne continuall torturing hangman. On then (valiant Prin effes, and Ladies of no meane lustre;) away with our wanton tires, paintings, perrivies, and ydle deckings: Let vs change our Spindles Needles and Samplers into Horfes. Launces, Swords and Armour, and trie, if Prollo be as furious in warre, as hee is fierte wantonin his lascinious Pallace. Let vs reuenge the wrongs our Parents and Kindred have received; or die most glorioufly, in the pursuite of so holy, iust and commendable a This couragious remonstrance of the braue spirited Virgine, gaue such bolde animation vnto the rest of the Ladies, as with one confent) they made a league, vowing louing alliance, and (folleninly fwearing faith, loyaltie, mutuall fuccour, and affiftance among themselves;) Land-gartha was elected chiefe commandresse, or Lady Generall of the Army, and well descruing that, or any other higher dignitie, being the motine to fuch a maine and important businesse. Now beganne a muster of all the VVo-men and Maidens, of the most noble and famous houses throughout the whole Countrey: but not without much amazment in Frollo, wondering whereto tended fuch an affembly. Hee, perswading himselfe, that they intended flight to their friends and kinred in Denmarke; fent commaund vnto them, that (on perill of their liues) they should returne home to their houses, for enjoying the benefite of their libertie; which he was content to graunt them, in regard of their beauties and gentle behaujour.

But Landgartha, the man-like woman The Heraulds champion, hearing the peremptory com-maund deliuered by the Tyrants Heralds:sent them backe with blows and iniurious speeches, telling them; that they would not take their lines, in regarde of any respect they had to their Lord : but onely, because they should let him vnderstand, in what denotion and readinesse they found them, & or feeking fome conuenient means and way whereby to make him render an account for his tyrannie and cruelties.

When Frollo heard thefe tidings, at the

first he made but a scorne thereof, laughing extreamely, at this womanish enterprife and Armie of Ladies, faying: They did well, to make a present of themselues, made a moebecause he should have the easier way to kerie of the find them, and if they came into the field; Ladies prepa the bootie would fuffice for his Souldiers meaning to pay, and likewise for their pleasure beside, marry themte in regarde he would bestow wines vopon them all, and faue them a labour from any further fighting. But this pleafant humour foone forfooke him, and converted into fury, when he was aduertifed of their being in the field, & making fuch a strange massacre of his men, as the like was teldome seene or heard of. Nor spared they the lines of any, that durst reclaime himfelfe from following his feruice, which made him curffe and fweare, threatning them with a thousand kinde of torments and afflictions, going now (in good carnest) to arme himselfe; as being perswaded that this feminine furre had extended fo farre, that it was no light matter that could allay it . Hee grew also into such Frollo prepa encreased daily more and more, both in number, victuals and munitions, brought continually to them from enery part. But howfoeuer (one way) the bad affection of the Norwegians gaue affliction affurance of his life, amongest the armed i dies.

troupes of his owne Souldiers: yet hee made many large promises vnto them, of the very fairest and richest amongst them.

with all their lands and treasure, to shew themselves valiant and coragious, against this giddy headed army of women; which Tyranny is al wayes fubica passions.

Chap. 14.

The arrivall of Reyner, K

of Denmarke

with a mighty in Norway

Armie-

his Sou ldien

fuspition of himselse, that he kept a strong to Armes a-Guard about him : as holding but Imall gainst the La to his spirits, and the favour which his / then, gentle and worthy warriours : Let owne fubicats affoorded to this womanish Army, tormented his soule as violently on the other fide : yet he feemed to fee a good countenance on his feares, declatotormenting ring no outward doubt of prenavling against them, though (inwardly) his cogitations tolde him dreadfull tydings . Nouertheleffe, being already in the field; and preparing his equipage, to get the best ad-uantage he could, of the place where the Ladies were encamped:a Courtier came galloping in poaft to him, bringing newes of the king of Denmarks descent into Norway, with a very potent Armie. What astonishment socuer seized on his soule to fee himfelfe inclosed (as it were) with two puliffant enemies, and knowing how highly he was hated, by them whom hee had ouercome and subjected a yet notwithstanding, perceiving that flight was preiudiciall to his honour; and (moreover) almost impossible in regard that the ways whereby he should passe into Suetia, as alfo enery port and paffage were in the enemics powershe refolued, first to runne his fortune on the men, who being defeated, the fight would be farre eafier against the women; and thereupon, in the forme of an Oration, thus he spake to his Army.

> The Oration of Frollo, King of Swetia, to his Soldiers.

When menbe in bad actions especially in rmes voiuft good incour

F you were not those valiant Gothes and Swetians, that have tamed and beaten this kennell broode of Norwegians, and now conquered their land : If it were not your valiancie, that hath often made pillage and spoile of the Danes; If your inuincible force were not well knowne to the world : I should then have now entreated you , to remeber your Ancestors. and the glorious conquests of your predeceffors: I should also fet before your eies. how many Kings, People and Nations were vnder-yoaked, by the greatnesse and deedes of your famous fore-goers. But, feeing that your proper vertue fufficiently (heweth it felfe, and auoucheth you to be the worthy fonnes and fucceffours , to fo many valiant and famous Fathers, and ny parts of the world. He alfo fet before that your deedes are no way indebted to their eies, the courage and animofitie of the glorie of their greatnesse: Let vs goe the Ladies, who marcht orderly vnder the vs pace on, and give Reyner to know, that this is no Countrey for him to reigne in, nor to deale in actions of Armes, with the most furious and brauest Nation of Europe . Let vs on (bold spirites) to chase them againe, which have so many times fled before vs; and let vs chastice the rebellion of the Norwegians, who falfifying their faith fworne vnto vs : haue called in our enemy to their fuccor, to quarrell with me for that , which is yours by right of Conquest.

ched on to meete use Danes, Obligation wifedome, and diligence of Landgartha, ing her forces and her Ladies, who stepped before him hers Campe. with fuch positing speede, that ere the time, as any intelligence could be obtayned of her departure : tydings were fuddenly brought him, that both the Camps were joyned together, and came mainly marching onward to bidde him battaile. Now, although this did not alittle startle his minde, and intimated a fufpitious kind offeare, left Fortune should turne her backe on him , having formerly favored him in all his proceedings : yet being a man of high heart, valiant, and borne for Armes: he shewed no semblance of dread Necessity and or distrust, but rather still sollicited his enforcemen men, to fhew themselves such as alwayes usnly coward they were knowne to be, and to account | valiant. the ennemy no stronger by the womens combination; but rather to hope, that fortune had conducted them purpofely this ther, for the larger encreasing of their benefit, and to heighten their corage against any, that durst presume to deprive them of so faire a booty. On the other fide, King Reyner, beeing come within the view of the enemie, rode among the ranks, encoraging his people, an Oration proposing to them his right, and the ins made by king Reiner of Den ualion made by the Swetian. He required marke to his them, to reuenge the wrong doone to fo folowers, in many honourable houses, veterly over- light of theethrowne by the Tyrant, and to fustain the cause of womens modesties, for whome, and in whose defence, long agone theyr Auncestours had attempted rare actions of Armes, and spent their blood in ma-

Nnun

In the meane space, while Frollomar- The noble diched on to meete the Danes, observe the gartha, joynmakes a cra-

The effect of Fighting in a good cause is an especial! encoragemét

Ensignes of valiant Landgartha, and to imitate by theyr force, that which weake women had vndertaken, to free themfelues from the violence of a Tyrant. Alfo . that they might affuredly bee perfwaded, beside the gaine and bootle, in getting the bagge and baggage of the Swetians: himfelfe would (moreouer) vie fuch rewarde and courtefie to well deseruers; that they should for ever have just cause to commend his munificence. He declared to the Norwegians, that (for the loue to them) hee would adventure to fight against Frollo, whom if he conquered, hee. would foare him no more, then the reft of his race formerly had doone. And thereforesto fnew themselves valiant, and now to bee fully reveniged on the Swetians tyrannies; feeing Fortune had almost (with great advantage) delivered himinto their

Landgarthe, beholding how every one encouraged other to the fight, and obferning fome rare galliardife ; euen in the gracefull lookes of her female followers; in fleade of further animating, thus the fpake vnto them:

Another Oration of Land gartha, made to the Armie of Ladies.

Her action, gesture and behautour in flamed the defires of all her faire folowers

Tis for vs (fayre Ladies:) that the glorie of this battaile is referred, and to none elfe is due the revenge, for our parents, kinred, friends and familiars. Men may fight (if they will) in their owne quarrell, and deale with whom them clues thinke beft : but the valorous Ladies of Norway will pur sue none other then the very Squadron of the Tyrant, and there will wee die in the middest of our endeuour, or make this the last day of his mi-Grable life . Let our horfes feeme to flie among the rankes, that we may be observed to Surmount the prowesse of men, and that wee can quickely re-unite our strength againe, if any diforder should chaunce to divide vs. Fair Fortune be our guide, and fauour vs. to die gloriously, or vanquish (with hearts be-(ceming our Sex) the onely infamous Prince in the world. In a spirit gentle and generous, fee (I befeech you) what power Disdayne bath, to behold it felfe offended, and of what woorth illustrous blood is , (touched with wrong) received by women and maydens, tender, foft, and delicately borne and bred, not invred to the trauaile of Armes, but driven by defire of revenge onely. For the rapes made on theyr violated kindred and friends : must needes bee now acknowledged, by the ornament which fayrest embellisheth our faces, and exposeth vs to all manner of hazards, amongest the gallantest troupes of men.

King Reyner; having given the affaults The valiancie fignall, aduifedly observed the behaviour of Landgartha and warelike order of the women, seeing greatly admi-Landgartha perfourme both the actions red bythek. and discreete conduct of a good Souldier, making way through the throngs, and entring (euen in meere despite of the enemie) with her faire-locked troups of Ladies, into the Tyrant of Swetiaes squadron. Hee stoode as assonied at so braue hardiment; and (in this aftonishment)he fele a kind of foftning in his manly foule, rauishing both his eyes and thoughts, with admiration & contemplation of this chafte Damofell : he foorthwith followed her fighing, yet knew he not the cause of so fodayne an alteration, and beholding her woonderfull carriage in the fight, faw no firoke returned against her, but it see- Keynerbemed to cleave his heart in funder. Hee commeth fud wished himselfe neere her, to free her from all perill and daunger; yet he tooke great delight to beholde her braue beha-

So long his eyes were led by this amorous contemplation, that (very foone after) he faw the Ladies presse on with such imperuous furie, into the maine body of the battaile; and where the king of Swetia was in person: that (in a short while) it became fo shrewdly shaken, as, both the vanguishers, and the vanguisht confessed, that the victory was more to be attributed to the wife leading of Landgartha, and valiant following of her Ladies, then to the long breathing and loofe courage, either in the Souldiers of Denmarke or Norway . The orethrow for they neuer ceased to pursue the point, ans, and death till Frollo was hewne in peeces amongest of their King them; as the corrupter of blooming by the brane youth, and violater of their chastities, whom he ought (in honour and duty) to defend. Thus in an instant, Frollo payed the crueltie due voto his difgracefull life, & was punished by celestial Indgement; for inuading the land and inheritance belonging nor of so many chaste Ladies.

Chap. 13.

victory to the valiant Land-

garsha, & her

The victory won by the Dane, he freely confessed, that he enjoyed it by the valiancy of the Ladies, and aboue al the rest by the wife and hardy conduct of hir who commanded ouer the female troops. But concealing(as yet) the fire crept into his heart, and which stole on still to the verie depth of his foule; he cunningly enquired (as one rapt with amazement, among the refl, at the dexterity of this woman Warriour) what the was, of what house, and in what country the received her Originall? Answer was returned to him that she was a Maiden to be married, so chast as possibly might be, as vertuous as any that lived in Norway, in blood Noble, of a famous house, and inferiour to no Ladie in wifedome. The vertue and wife carriage of

The kings paf

ires in a king,

are no meanic

finencreases Landgartha in war, having won the heart of this youthfull King; gaue yet a far lar-her commendable reports. his foule vubefieged : when he heard fay, that the was a Virgin Lady, and of great But because he could rather have wishe her to be his louely friend, then wedded wife; he faw how thore hee came of any fuch hope, being truely informed of her virgin modesty, standing cleere from all pollibility of corruption:neither might he dare to attept it, feeing how respectively the was efteemed, affected, and renerenced, & hardy enough to suppresse all such finister enterprises. Morcouer, as elswhere on what he had to do, and finding the powe have declared, though rapes had bene wer of loue so potent, that it exceeded all too common in that Scandian countrey; possibility of resistance, as having a priviyet it was no easy offer to her, that knew ledge about nature, and Landgartha no wel how to renenge such wrong, and had way to be enjoyed, but by the chafte emmade good proofe therof fo lately, in the braces of a marriage bed: he fent for the iuft infliction on a luftfull tyrant. In which Lady and her friends, imparting his mind respect, having a faire and gentle spirit; he to her in this manner. refolued, to cloath with grace and good acceptance, what focuer might appear vnequall in her, to fute with the greatnes of a King, and to fatisfie his owne defires, by contracting honourable Marriage with her. And because common same had noifed of her, that the had concluded to keep her virginity for ener, without admitting any man to triumph ouer her chafte honor: he laboured the more to win her, & to break this vncharitable purpose in her; affecting her as dearely as his ownelife; accounting her the most compleate crea-longing to another, and abusing the ho- / ture in the world, & such a Iewel, as none could be more precious.

If this opinion, concerning the rare vertues of Landgartha, had alwayes continued carractered in the foule of this prince; and if he had respected her as well after the enjoying her, as before hee had the happinesse to be possessed of her: she should have received no occasion to complaine of him, and he never had flood accused of such infidelity and ingratitude to her. But (the more the pitty), there is not any thing fo precious, rare, or of greatelt consequence; but if a man bee possesfed of it, and hath it freely at his owne command : he groweth diffaftefull of it; couet to inioy accounting his appetite loathingly glut-ted therewith, and nothing can feeme attended attenuated. more contemptible to him. Reyner, how great a King focuer hee thought himselfe to bee, and how powerfull in his cheefest commands a yet he felt himfelf a flaue to Loue, not daring to difcouer his thoughts the was become (contrary to precedent cuftom) a friend to fo- The perplexilitude, full of passions, compassed with york Reiner feares, troubled in spirit, martired in his fenfes, fearfe fuftaining any hope; but very coldly and breathing forth fighs inceffantly; fo that all were amazed at this fo strange behaviour in him. Notwithstanding, no one durst enter into such boldenesse, as to demand of him, whence came the causes of such comfortlesse sollitude. At length, having confidered sufficiently Know well (gentle Damofel) that it may moue fome admiration in you, vppon Thespeech of what occasion I haue thus fent foryou: language, albeit, the obligation wherein I stande bound to your high descruings, might in the presecte haue commanded me to do it much fooner,& yet a matter no more then reasonable. But to hold you in no longer suspense the hope I have, v you wil continue heere in court; was the motine to my mission, & the power I might pretend ouer your parents and frends, thold with their willing

Nnnn 2

Whatmemost

endeuor how to compaffe it of hir parent

Woersare

more folemne

stations, then they prooue found in their performance in their protecommonly

aduice to you, and enioyne you to grace | having regard vnto the duty I owe my vs with your company. I know what you are, and am informed of your house and breeding; but much more am I affured of your valor and other vertuous merits, by the commendable partes and fingular rarieties, whereof mine owne eies haue bin a witnesse. You also are not ignorant who I am, what my power is, and the meanes to make my felfe fenfible, either offauors or injures, from whom focuer I happen to receiue them. I confesse, that if there be any thing extrauagant in Loue, or furpaffeth the greatest power in man;it hath taken foundation in my foule, enflaming my best desires to wish you wel:but I am vncertaine, whether you be so courteous or no, to take a liking or acceptable allowance of this affection, and so much the rather, because you appear aboue the reach of other Ladies. Neuertheleffe, if you measure the greatnesse of a King, and of him that is your Soueraigne, with the luster of your choise perfections: you shal fee, that both these rarieties paired together, do make but one voion, & the most excellent that any man can imagine. In breefe, all my wish, intent, and affection confifteth in this that if you thinke good, or I may feeme worthy in your eye, to be a fit husband for Landgartha; I wold take you to Wife, and make you Queene of Denmarke and Norway. You may thinke heereon, it is in you to conclude all, and to whom I referre my felfe : for, of this my submission, I make your parents and friends witnesses, calling for them purpofely hither, to heare my motion, and Landgartha, who was as apprehenfiue, courteous and modest, as high in corage, and strict in opinion : considering who it was that made the motion, and how much he imbased himself in the demand. returned this answer.

vour answer.

SIR, although my deliberation from mine infancie, and continuing to this flouring condition of mine age, hath alwaies beene, neuer to fubicet my felfe to the lawes ordained for marriage, because freedom euer feemed more conforme to the disposition of my spirit, then such obedience as a wife owes to her husband, not that I have vowed or fworne to any citate whatlocuer: yet notwithstanding,

Prince, and feeing how juffly I may deferue blame and punishment, in refusing him that hath foueraigntie ouer mee and mine: I beseech you to thinke, that your thoughts being so direct as they pretend declaration, and respecting one of so meane merite as my felfe: I am also the onely Maiden of the World, ready to do you most humble service. Thanking the great God, that feeing I owe dutie to the fancy of a man (albeit against my former refolue) it falleth fo successefully, as in feruice to the most wise and valiant Prince, that of long time hath reigned in these countries. Neuertheleffe Sir, thinke it not Verie worthin strange, I humbly befeech you, if I speake ring of a dif. (perhaps) more boldly then becommeth me, to vie a filly virgins aduice, to take 10ger and more deliberate confideration in a case so seriously important as this is: humane affections being to light in cases of thefe and the like impressions; that (many times) they as fod ainely wipe themselves out of the foule, as at the first they came to be carractered there. Not that I wil accufe fo great a King of leuity, nor suspect his faith any way infirme: but to this end, that having made a neer view of my complexions, and more exactly enquired the lift of my life; you may the better cenfure my merit, measuring for hereafter, what you may now most valew in my meannes and infufficiency: fo shall you be fure, neuer to vnfay your owne words, or be fory then for that which you make fo great account of now. For know Sir, that the horiage is verie nor which you please to do me at this pre-necellary, because repenfent is nothing in respect of the great in- tance after famy, redounding then both vppon you ward cometh and me, & those that gaue you no better too late, counsell in this case, whom it may as neer ly concerne. This would be a worthy recompence, for the intire affection you beare me now, and I should dedicate my life to you in deeper denotion, remaining for euer your most loyal & dutiful seruat. With fuch a grave and scuere countenance she vttered these speeches, that the king, amazed at her wisedome, but more at the Maiesticall delivery of her wordes. and freedome of fo faire and compleate a spirit: swore instantly such loyalty to hir, as fitted with a king and faithful husband; wherein he plainly forfwore himfelfe, as you shall hear in this discourse following.

King Reyner elpould Land

gartha, to the joy of her parents, but ap

her of his affo

Rions conti-

The perfidi

ous and vnling of Reiner

with his fayre wite Land-

gartha.

Queene of Norway. Chap.13.

> to the youthfull king (who longed after nothing fo much, as to croppe the fayre flower of her chaffity) but thee returned home with her parents and frends again; hoping, that the heate of this royall fire, would be quailed in time, and her absence would be the meanes to effect it. But Reyner, who could not forget her that had fo worthily assisted him, and whose figure was lively imprinted in his foule: followed her to her Fathers dwelling; and, scorning to be delayd by many daies accesse, espoused her, to the vnspeakable comfort of her parents and frends, but fom dread and great diffrust in her self, as fearing the continuance of this feruent affection, and hauing won the heart of a King, doubted to be dispossessed thereof. Neuerthelesse, fuch was her wife and commendable carriage, as to conceale her fears with maieflicke modefly : fubmitting her felf to the Kings delightful pleasures, and the yoake of marriage, which formerly the had contemned.

But, as no loyes are durable, being perpetually followed by worldly occurrencessio Reyner (being a yong, wanton, and lascinious king)after hee had bene Father to three children by his Queene, two daughters, and a hopefull yong Prince, filled, or rather ouer-fatisfied with the embraces of this poore Lady (who broght him no other dowry but bright beautie, and vertue vnmatchable in all the countrey) coneting after matter of greater moment; withdrew thence into Denmarke, leaving his truely elected spouse in Norway, not with any purpose of sending for her, or returning to her againe, but veterly to abandon & forfake her. Being in Denmark, | yeeld him pleasure, succour, or defence, he heard report of the K. of Swetias daughter, whom he defired to inioy, accusing his indifcretion, that he had embased the greatnes of a king, and much blemished his royall title, by marrying with a fillie damofell and fending a folemne Ambaffage into Swetia, he obtaind (without war or any other great difficulty) her whome he coueted to enjoy in marriage.

Heere behold, how constant the Kings affection stoode to vertue, and howe the maske of fained loue discouered it self. He had fworne fidelity vnto his best beloued Landgartha (notwithstanding her wife & worthie aduice of inconucniences to fol-

At this time the Maiden was not married | low) with no meane admiration of her vertues and perfections: but Vertue was then bound to the Idea of pleasure, and therefore of as little lafting, as ease hath continuance in occasions of the flesh. Befide, no fooner had he received answer to his minde, from the king of Swetta; but forthwith, he advertised Landgartha of a fecond intended marriage, although vnlawfully; yet praying her patiently to endure a dinorce.

The poore Lady hearing this determination(althogh long time before, the had Landgartha both divined and feared fuch difafter) was was to bee diready to dy with conceit of greefe, to fee the Kingher her felfe despised, without the least occa- husband, with fion of offence given, or why he shold so of offence given vnkindly refuse her. At length, considering uen. that the king had some reason for this repudiatio, by feeking better aliance, which might fuccour him in his ferious affayres; because he had an enemy that contended with him for the Crowne of Denmark, & incited the Emperor to lend him ayd, vnder colour of becomming a Christian, if he would help him to compasse the kingdome: The began formwhat to affwage her minds perturbations, answering the that brought her these bad tydings, thus. The King(my friends) should not thus feek any further, for streethning his house by ftronger alliance: and well may I accuse him of lightnes, whereof I aduertised him in the beginning; and which (to my greefe) I finde now by ouer-deare experience. But if I were as reuengefull for the fhame I fuffer, as hee is voluft on my behalfe : I could (perhaps) finde him as bufy and troublesome imployment, as thee can with whom he hath fuch haft to mary. He knowes what means I have to disease him feeinghe felt part of my power in fauouring him, and should perswade himselfe, that Landgartha was never fornuch offended by the tyrant of Swetia, as by him, who vnder the flattring name of mariage, hath wronged the modesty of her, that discerneth now, how men the greater they are, fo much they think themselues dispensed withall, in breaking those Lawes, whereto they binde other in obedience.

pardon his fault, and also to accuse mine owne indifcretion, that he being blinded

Nnnn 3

abule Landgartha, because he needs not to Yet one thing caufeth me fomwhat to Kings breake their fubiects.

The gener and modeft, answer of

Chap.13.

All Ladies

are not like to Landgar-

tha in the true vertue of patience.

Men may run on in vacon fant courfes til at length they chance to pe onermatched.

name Royall: we have both fayled in one kinde, but not equally punishable, his shame being not so great as mine, because fubmit my selfe to the will of him, who durst not vse any violence towards mee; whereas he was a flaue to his owne cogitations, and transported with desire, which maketh fooles of the very wifest in the world. Let him enjoy the embracings of his new elected Lady, at his own pleafure and contentment; but I pray, (in regard of the faithfull loue I beare him, and fo shall doe for euer, being such as I am) that heereafter, he may never be fo light & changeable in affection, left fome one (offar leffe cunning then himfelfe) make him not doe penance for wrong to all the rest. And assure him, that although hee hath wounded the heart of Landgartha to death, by preferring another of much leffe merit, and forgetting the debt, which maketh him mine by bond : yet notwithftanding, the Image of King Reyner shall re-

to him that had forfaken

Her vertuous

parting with the Ambassa.

before his eyes, not any despayring cogitations in mee, but vnconquerable patience. Tellhim, I am not alittle joyful, to lianor, Countesse of Poictiers, and Dutfee my felfe free from fibiection to a hufband : but yet fo forie as possibly can be, to loofe him whom I loue more then my felfe, and without whom, my daves for eand charitable uer are dedicated to mourning. Report conclutions at vnto him, that Landgartha will live, not to be revenged upon the difloyaltie of King Reyner; but to the end, that by the effulion of her owne bloud, the may yet make him once more to know, that the is more his friend, and more carefull of his States confernation, then himselfe is. Tell him alfo, that fuch Ladies as refemble me, haue their hearts more generously dispofed, and farre more fairely furnished with vertue: then base minded men, that alwais carry gentlenes in their looks, but villanie truly stamped in their hearts. For a finall conclusion, I pray God giue more ease to my vnfaithfull husband, then (through his imprinted in my foule.

by loue, and I, by fole reuerence vnto the /difloyalty)he leaues forrow and affliction in the foule of his loyall wife: and that the who vsurpeth my place (in regard the fault is not hers) may long enjoy peace in that (being free, & without paffions) I would | bed, which vertue and merite once made me Mistresse of, and the King taketh from me, I know not by what difaster, but in meere malice and hatred to mee and my What greater constancy could be wished, in the heart of the very wisest Phi-lofopher, that euer Greece or Afia vielded, then appeared in the inuincible foule of this Norwegian Lady? What deeper defpight could be done to a worthy woma; then to reject and throw her off, as if the had beene wicked and immodest? Or what greater occasion may bee given, for betraying a husband; then causelesse sufpition, and dinorce or refufall, where reafon and inflice can show no cause why? Poets have lively depicted in their Verfes, the desperate transports of Medea, Medea distraforfaken by Iafon, and the fearefull cruelties vied by her, to bee reuenged on fuch by lafon. an iniury . Marke Anthony, by refusing Civile wars at maine perpetually engrauen in my heart, and forfaking the faire fifter to Augustus, and no accidents of the greatest disaster, attracted by foolish affection to blacke uorce. can euer deface the facred and fincere af-Cleopatra; both Europe, Affricke & Asia, fection, which his plighted faith fo lately were inhumanely bathed with the blood ofmen, the brother endeuouring to re- the long war Goe and report vnto him, the offer of uenge the iniury, which was offered vnto his fifter and the whole Family. And tell French. my feruice, and the defire I have to pleafe him, instead of seeking any reuenge. Set me (I pray yee) what a wound in France was fometime made, by the dinorce of E> themselues so strong in Fraunce? Notwithstanding all these, and many more that I could speake of, we see Landgartha fo humble, wife, difereete, and fuch a louer of quietneffe, that, having meanes to be reuenged on so high a wrong done her; fo farre was the from pursuite, heate, rage or tempest, that making Patience prowd of her example: shee offered feruice to him, by whome the was contemned and despised, presenting all duety to an ingratefull husband, and promiting fresh supply, after receit of a former difloyali recompence. You which are iea-lous of Ladies honour, and complaine of fexe of wome a giddie madnesse in theyr braines, and observe the of immortall enmity and harred engranen in their Soules; behold this rare woman, Langarita. declaring chesse of Guienne; the meanes whereof gaue way to the English, & that they made declaring truely a Christian minde, although the neuer received baptisme: Of her you may learn, that Ladies have fomthing in them rightly heroycall, which men can neuer comprehend nor tafte of, but by long, studious and wise experi-And yet Landgartha stands not alone in this example, for France can make boast of many more great Ladies, that imitated her mildnesse and constancy, & of whom I could enter into a large Difcourse: if French Histories were not so frequent among you, wherein you can lose no time to bee continually reading. But yet we have not faid all, that Landgartha (not hurried with lealoufie, or tempefled with fury for this refufall) fought any meanes whereby the might be reuenged; but in doing much more, furmounted all opinion and judgement, giuing aide to him that had fo shamefully left her, and doing good for enill, contrary to fome stearne and combustious natures of her fexe, and as the fequell will more amply deliuer.

Reyner, being a Prince greatly addicted to Armes, seeing himselfe at home in peace, and that none of his neighbours follicited him by warre; because his Sub-

Harold a chri ftian Prince

The Subjects

take occasion

gainst Reyner

made King of Denmarke by the Emperor Lewes fuch as followed his Faction. Reyner, Queene of Norway.

iects (being naturally giuen to warre, and inured to courses both by Land and Sea) might not line ydle and flothfull: he permitted them to purfue their fortune, paffing them into the Isles of Ireland, Britain and Scotland. Whereupon, the Iutes, and fome other of the Scandian Territories. that bare him but bad affection, taking occasion by the Kings absence with his Forces: elected and created for their king, a Prince of royall blood, named Harok e, who shaping his course to the Emperour Lewes the debonnaire, that made his abiding then at Magunce, having received baptisme with His followers: was facred

Emperor for his Kingdome. Harolde, being fauoured of his owne people, and affected by the most of them that embraced Christianity (to whom Reyner was no way pleasing) and re-enforced by a goodly band of Germanes, wherwith the Emperour furnished him, to put him in possession of hislands: went into Denmarke, to expell Reyner thence, and all and crowned King of Denmarke, by authority Imperiall, doing homage to the waxing weary againe of his wanton defires, returning home fecretly into Den-King Reyners marke: found strange alteration fince his returnehome departure thence. His owne people he into Denmark encouraged to stand fast with him, called and craving the Swetians also to his succour, and dif- assistance of patching letters into Norway: requested | Landgartha, affiftance of her, from whom hee might more justly expect warre then defence, and seuerity of reuenge for his vile dea-What would an angry heart haue done in this case? A minde neuer satisfied but in doing ill; what an opportunity had it heare to worke vpon? How would a man have carried himfelfe, hauing beene notoriously injuried, and so faire a way fer wide open for him, as neuer was the like to bee expected againe: what hafte would he make now to be fully reuenged? Without all contradiction, the breach of faith is very abhominable, and wrongs received by Noble natures, are not easily quallified, when times and The noble feafons shape out revengefull meanes, nature of fuch as was this warryppon the faithlesse Landgartha. Dane. Neuertheleffe Landgartha, hearing in what anguish her vokind husband was, and confidering with her felfe, that his ruine could not returne her any benefit, feeing alfo, that shee had two louely

Daughters by him, and a Princely fonne, intended to fuccour her distressed Husband, to whom thee fent tydings of her preparation and comming, in thefe few disposition &

named Fridellaus (who afterward was Fridellaus King of Norway) motives sufficient for fon to Land his longer abiding with her: face leuied Royner, was an Army of fixe fcore Ships, enery one afterward K. being worthily furnished, wherewith the of Denmarke

The Letter fent by Landgartha, to her Husband, King Reyner.

IF this my fecond duty may proue as happy, in the recovery of thy Lands & Kingdoms, as my first was against a Tyrant, and yet honouring thee with the victory : I fall account my paines well imployed, and never expest any other recompence. Make head brauely against the Enemy, for I am commine with all speede, to let him know, that

The Rebels a fraid of Land garthacs coming with her

The landing of Landgat-

The Danes

worft by Ha

garthas wor thy affiftance

in very great tha in Den-

marke.

Landgartha. The Rebells, beeing aduertized of this Supply from Norway, labored by all means possible) to prouoke King Reyner to the fight, before the comming of Landgartha, whom they knew to be wife, and very skilfull in the Art Militarie. And the king knowing their intention, delayed the day of battell, by marching further off from them, towards the place where hee expe-Sted Landgarthaes landing, that their two forces might the fooner loyne together, & then to give the enemy battell. Which Harolde well perceiving, and knowing, that such delay would redound to his disaduantage; he pursued after Reyner with fuch expedition, laying fuch traines and ambuscadoes for him, that he compelled him to handy blowes, even at the verie same instant as Landgartha landed. The fight fell out to bee very furious and bloody, and great numbers of men fel as well on the one fide, as on the other, the chiefe Commaunders beeing fiercely animated, the one to defend his Crowne, and the other to viurpe an estate whereto he pretended a just title, by reason of the quarrell betweene the King and his Subiects. And both of them standing on the adventure of life, as well understanding, that no fanour was to be expeded, which side soeuer prooued to bee Conquerour.

Now, though the Danes that followed Reyner, perfourmed so much duty as warriours could do, fustaining many impetuous efforts of the affailants; yet were they constrained to turne their backes, beginning to fall into rout and diforder. By this time was Landgartha come neare to the Campe, where the made a paufe a while, to fee which fide behaued it felfe braueft; and perceiving Reyners men in no meane extreamity, valiantly the entred amongst the thickest of them, incouraging her husbands foldiers on thus : On them braue (pirits, fet on them manfully they are our foile, as villaines not deserving to live, seeing traiterously they lift up their weapons against their king. On then (I (ay) undaunted (birits, heere is Landgartha, who hath brought you victorie, as well against Harolde, as sometime (he did against Frollo in Norway. In delivering these wordes, the dealt Landgartha is both a Queene and a warri- | fuch bold blows amog the Rebels, as they hardly knew which way to bestirre themfelues. Now the battell grew to be more fierce on either fide the before: the Danes, to repaire their disorderd flight, th'other, to maintaine their hope of victory, wherof they doubted not, but disdained a woman shold deprine them of the occasion, of wholly ruinating Reiner and his Army. Neuerthelesse, whatsoeuer manhood Harold and his men declared in the fight, yet they were oppressed by multitudes, being wearie, fpent, & closely followed by the Norwegians, who were fresh, chearefull and active, conducted by a woman of very high resolue, and as furious in warre, as modest and gracious in her Pallace. Thus Harolde and were they enforced to fight, not without his men drius great losse of the very worthiest me in the the victorie Army, and the vanquished delivered to remaining to the Conquerours mercie. But, though Requer triumphed of thevictorie, yet hee gartha and hir enjoyed it by the fortune of her, who, albeit the might boaft of her happineffe in war, and thereby attained to a great mariage; yet her other infelicity was a great corfey to her heart, to be disdained where the ought to be most beloued & esteemd. Reyner now was growne fenfible, of the shamefull wrong he had offred to his first wife, accusing himselfe of disloyaltie, and The reconcidetesting his former leuitie, entreated her liatio betwint to take such reuege on him, as she thoght King! Reyner and Landgarfirtest in her own judgement. But she, be that ing a Lady of vnmatchable mind, fearing lest the king (conquerd by this obligation of ducty to her) should commit an other fault by leaving the K. daughter of Swesia, who had brought him divers children also:pardond all his passed injuries to hir, & yowing her felfe to a widdowed estate of life, neuer more to converse with him or any man lining; after a folemne parting betweene them. The returned home into Norway, to gouerne the Countrey by her discreete care, til her son Fredislaus should attaine to yeres of rule, and whom the K. there had constituted as his lawfull heire.

The remainder of this discourse, being more at large purfued by the Annalists of Denmarke, Swetia and Norway; I purpose here to conclude the Historie, which'I haue in this place fet downe, more to relate the valour, councell, aduice, good conduct and wisdome, seldome wanting in Ladies deriued from good birth; then I care for the idle loues of Regner, or any of | The Letter of a Gentleman his Conquelts. To the end, that such Ladies, as excell in the like vertues in thefe our times : may hold on in the pursuite of their perfections, by the honorable exaples of them, that (in those precedent daies) declared themfelues admirable in their actions, & imitable for their vertues and commendable carriage.

Of the Bezaars Stone. Chap. 14.

CHAP, XIIII.

Of the Bezaars Stone, which is reputed to be very vertuous and soueraigne, against all venomes and porsons.

He Stone of the Bezaar or Pazer, is a true and affured Antidote against all poyfons, vénomes, bytings of though they are subjects to us Spaniards, yet they are our deadly enemies. Notwithstan ons of the Ayre; As pestilence, carbuncles or plague-fores. Purples, the fmall ting, they got the Boy afide and flew him, and Pox, the Meazels, and in briefe, against all afteward facrificed him, as we were given to diseases popular and contagious. And understand. because experience hath made this stone to be in daily request, and causeth it to be esteeme, placing them for Ornaments in their fought for by people of good meanes; Temples, which they call Guacas, adorning therefore sale hath bene made thereof at extraordinary rates, and avarice being fo great among men, hath therefore practifed and compaffed the meanes whereby of some admiration, that this Beast is not to adulterate it, as hecretofore they did found in any of the hither Indiaes, but in the the like by Bauline or Balfamum. But Mountaines of Peru, neyther could I fee before I write any further thereof, I will them any where elfe: albeit I have trauailed tell you from whence they bring it, and through all the Kingdomes of Mexico and how it is engendred in the bodies of cer-Peru. In the Provinces and Illes of Marataine creatures, which are like vnto Goats non, Florida, and the Westerne Islands, I heere among vs; but they have no horns, being of a reddish colour, and feed not but on good and wholesome Hearbes. whereof are plenty on the Mountaines, and where they startle at the least noise of a Piece. But for our better vnderstand-ing this History, I will infert a small par-cell of a Letter, written from Peru by a Spanish Gentleman, to Monardus a Phy-fition of Hilpalis, dwelling then in Seuill, whereby we shall perceive how they are

Whence the ftone is brogh and how it is engendred.

found.

or Pazar

gainst all vc-nonies and contagions.

redding in Peru.

THe fifteenth of June, 1568, being at the Hunting of exercise of hunting, with divers of my the Bezaar in friends, among the Mountains in this Coun- Peru.

try of Peru, continuing at the Bort for the space of fine dayes, and having flaine some of the Beasts called Bezaars, we diffected their bodies, to finde the stones. But it beeing a matter impossible for us to do, because wee were not vied thereto: we demanded of the Indians, which we had brought with vs thither to attend upon us; in what part of the body we might foonest finde them; whereto they made us answere, that they knew it not. But a young Indian Lad, aged about tenne yeares, and being then in our company shewed In what part us whereit was, and we found it in the first of the Beaff stomacke, where the food of the Beast falleth found. down, to be ruminated or chawed afterward.

enstruction given vs : but we would not fuffer them to doe him such violence, and al-

The Indians hold those stones ingreat have beene diligently informed, and by the Inleth wormes out of the body. Being put into for it but that onely.

Which when the Indians (aw, they would have killed the Boy, as being offended at his ding while we followed our pastime of hun- He that fea-also their Images with them, and many other The Indians things beside, as Gold, Silver, precious stones their temple and rich lewels . And I repute it a matter in rich maner.

wounds, made by impoyfoned Arrowes (As Wounds cuheere it is too much in v(e) it is an affured red of impoi healing, and no other remedy could be found loned Ardians heere among vs, uppon vrging them to what we these stones are proper: And Informations they have assured mee, that they are singular concerning against all venomes, eyther applied outward- the Bezaars ly, or received inwardly; but especially a- Ronce vertues vainst all harmes of the heart, and it expel-

Landgar tha encourageth gainst their nemics.

Stones are in fome Beafts more, and in other leffe, according to their yeares.

Nicholas Mo naidus a Phy

futon of Seur

Of other

bed by the Portugals. found in a Bagge like a little Purffe,9 ftones, which Nature had there engendered, onely by the benefit of feeding on good and whole-Some hearbs: and in all those which we diffe-Eted afterward, we found in some more, in others leffe, according as they were aged in yeares. It is to be noted, that although they are found also in Beasts of the same kinder which broule and feede on the Plaines : yet they are not so vertuous, as in those bred uppon the Mountaines.

Thus you fee in briefe, what was written by this Captaine (and indeed a very worthy Gentleman living then in the Indiaes) to Nicholas Monardus, alearned Physition, and dwelling in Seuill; whereby may be understood, how and fro whence these stones proceede. Now wee will heare what the Portugals fay, who have made their conquests farre off fro thence, to know, whether they agree with the Spaniards in this report or no. Garcias d'Orta a Portuguize, Physition to the Viceroy in the Indiaes discouered by the Portugalles, faieth, that in Corazine, and in the Countries of Persia, there is a-Stones of Be nother kinde of Goates, of meaner greatzaars.deferi nesse, which they call Pazans, in whose stomack or bulke are found stones of the Bezaar, the beginning of them beeing 2 fmall little straw, growing on to a certain greatnesse, by recovering many coates or tunicles: whereof fome are found to bee as big as our common Beanes, others as Acornes, and other of more or leffe quatity, smoothe for the most part, and in colour refembling a darke greene. The greatest, because the rarest, are more fought for then the leffer fort, by them of the Country where they are found, as re-

flone that weighed five ducats, broght into Pottuga

A Bezaars

where Goats are found beene often approued. This Stone (faithhe) is not found in Persia onely, but also in Malaca, and in the Isle which is named Vaccai, not farre off from the Promontory of Comorina. For, puting them to have the most vertue. He reporteth, that he faw one which weigh-worth whence it came : and in all those stones which are brought out of the Perfian Countries, a littlestraw or stalke is found in the very midft of them, as hath

In the first Beast that we dissected, wee | as they can betray those Beasts, so they kil them, and being well falted or powdred. they ferue as good provision for their Armies. In many of them are found very great stones, viknownero the people there inhabiting, or why the Portugalles labour so much in search of them : which (indeed) is more for the faid flones, then any lone they have to the flesh, although it is very fanoury.

The Bezaars stones which come from Peru, haue no strawes or stalkes in the midft of them; but onely a little cauity or hollowneffe, wherein may be found fome | Perfia. thicke dust or fand, which is of far greater efficacy then the stone it selfe. I have feene flue graines of this stone (in a little water of Mugwort) giuen to a Gentlewoman, who had beene scuen dayes in child-birth travaile: and she was instantly deliuered of a childe dead and putrified. At the Castle of Luke, in the lower Lymofine, there was a great pestilence, wherof (in leffe space then foure & twenty houres) dyed three persons: afterward it tooke hold on the rest of the houshold which were eighteene in number. Each one received two graines of this stone euery morning, with a little water of Aenula Campana, continuing fo for feuen daies space together, and not any one dyed afterward, or became further touched with the pestilence. Divers beside, that had carbuncles and fores, by vfing this ftone, preserved their lines : It is very good also in application, to botches, byles, and all irkefome paines or fwellings.

A young Gentleman, with whom it was my chance to be bathing in a River, ting by a Ser was bitten in the leg by a Serpent, fo that pent on a gen his leg was become very black, and greatly swolne: hee was aduited, to take foure graines of Bezaars Hone, with a smal quatity of Rofe-water, and a graine also was put into the wound; which caused the ed fine Ducates, and which was brought ranckling and paine to ceasie, and he was into Portugall, that would not be bought fully cured within tweltte dayes space. forthreescore Ducats, albeit it was more

Monsieur le Vicomte de Conborn, and Lord of Chasteauneuf, Licutenant for the King in Lymofine, reported to me, that he Historics of was touched with a pestilential Feauer at rare vertues in the Bera-Paris, and whereof many dyed, of every ars flone. quality, age and fexe, and abandoned of all Physitions. By the aduice of his Father in law, the Marshall de Biron, he took Bezaars stone for some few dayes,& with-

Difference betweene the Bezaars flőes of Peru and proued of the

in a little while after, he recoursed, grew to indifferent strength, and was much more luftily disposed, then any of them that had beene offended by the same difeafe, to the no little admiration of all them, that had knowledge of him and his The Inhabitants of Ormuza (an Island

Chap. 14.

An observati on among the Inhabitants of the Island of Ormuza.

eafes cured by the Beza-

How the

Moores di-

Ainguish the true stones

from falle.

Experiment

made in Lifbourne for the true kno

ledge of the

that is most rich, situate youn the red sea, and fubiccted to the Persian) after they haue purged themselues in the Spring & Autumne: vie to take ten graines of this stone, in as many spoonefull of Rose-water, for five mornings following each other, by which meanes (they fay) their health is foundly preferued, and youthfull disposition maintained. Against an inueterated fenrife on the head, or body, a loathfomeitch, the wilde scab, called S. Martins mange, and (aboue all) againfta confirmed ladry or leprofic; there is not any remedy like to this. As can well bee witnessed by a Prelate of Languedoc, liuing at this day, who would have flaine himfelfe an hundred times, and throwne himselfe out of windowes (if hee had not beene carefully respected) onely beeing tormented with that disease of S. Martine. But by vling this stone, which hee tooke three Months together cuery morning, and good government otherwife directed to him, hee is perfectly recouered. Now let vs fee how true and natu-

The Moores are exceeding skilfull in knowing them, and especially, from what parts they are broght, in the doing wherof the Moore will lay one in the palme of his hand, and closing it then fast together, he will breathe or blow strongly into his hand: if hee feele his breathing to paffe through his hand, he is all wred then, that the stone is falsified . A great number of them are oftenrimes to be folde at Lifbonne, the cheefest Metropolitane City of Portugall, where is one of the most frequented Portes in al Christendome. And fuch as there buy them, content not thefelues, with this order of triall made by the Moores : but dip a twined thred in the invec of a very venomous hearbe, which there they call Balistera. Then paffing it Bezaars stone thwart the foote, or other part of any Beaft (as of a Dog) with a Needle, hee fo rall stones are to bee discerned; from such as are counterfeir, and meerely adulteraleaueth it in the wound, vntill such time as he feeleth those aggidents, which commonly feize on them that are poyloned. And when he is perceived to draw neere death; then to make him fwallow three or foure graines of Bezaars stone, mingled with water : if it preserve his life; it is an apparant figne of the flones goodnes and perfection; but if not, it is adultera-

The Beast in whose body these stones are found, in Persia and other parts of that The variety Climate, as in Comorina (according to borne by this the writing of Garcias d'Orta, who had Beaft A feene of them in divers places) hath horns bending backward; but those in Peru haue none at all. Theues faieth, that they have but one, and that the skinne of the faide Beaft is kept, to be laid to the stomacke of Some thinke man or woman, possessed with any paine greatly misor anguish there, and to procure digesti- informed in on and that (without all question to the contrary) this skinne healeth all fuch difcases, although the persons bee aged and decreipt. Moreouer, that he faw a stone of the Pexar, or Bezaar, in the cuftody of the Greekes Patriarch of Carro, which was as big as a good great Nut : if it were fo, that from was worth no meane fumme of money. It were a thing miraculous, to finde a stone of such greatnesse; & yet he further faith, that an Arabian Captain had it given him, because hee was secretly converted, and became a Christian.

It is not to be thought, that this stone hath beene knowne but within fome fmal compasse of time; because antiquity speftone known keth of it more then five hundred yeares fince. For proofe whereof, Rafis, an Arabian Physition maketh mention therof, though not relating from whence it was brought, or where it is to bee found: yet he affirmeth, that it relisteth all kindes of poylon, and that hee made experiment thereof vpon a childe, that innocently had eaten a venomous plant, called Napellus, Proofe made which caufeth death immediately; and vpona childe yet by giving him a finall quantity of this that had fed yet by giving him a small quantity of this on a poylon-frone, his life was preferred. This frone nous hearbe, hath beene so highly esteemed, and especially in those precedent times; that, as it is reported by Abdara Warach, an Arabian Doctour in physicke, who was then at Corduba, about those later yeares, when the Sarrazins made their viurpation in spaine: he faw a Bezaars stone, in the hand great antiqui

Chap 5

The Egyptian

non how

Pearles are ngendred.

Variety of o pinions concerning the generation of Pearles.

The ludge-

ment of Cha-res of Mittlen

Americus Ve

putius recor himfelfe had deth what

on of Pearles

Abdara Narach,a skilfull Phyfit on of Acabia.

of one of the children of Amirama(a great and diligent observer of Religion) for which he gaue in exchange, a very goodly house which he had in Corduba, equall (well neere) to a Princes Pallace. And the faid Abdara further faicth (alleadging the forenamed Rasis) that this stone being worne about a mans necke, and kept fo neere to the heart as may be; defendeth it and the party from all infection, & no poylon can offend the body of him, that hath it thus about him. Seeing then, that this Stone hath fo

The Authors friendly aduertifement to the reader.

The admiraty of the Be-divers other

many good and fingular vertues in it, methinks,men (of meanes and worth) shold fildome or neuer be without it, for a prefent fuccour in fuch weighty infirmities. Beside. Apothecaries of skill and judgement shold euermore be wel prouided of them because Physitions continually prescribe it in their directions, which they would not do, if they knew men to be vnfurnished of it. For more affurance is to be reposed in it (next to the affisting power of Heauen) then in Treacle or Mible foueraignthridatum, the confection of Alkermes,& zaars ftone in of Zacinth. As is too well knowne by comparison of many barbarous Kings; gouerning in preferuatiues. those Regions, where the Beasts are bred that engender these stones, reposing such confidence in them, and making fo precious estimation of them; as they cause the expresly to bee brought from all parts. And when they are possessed of them, it is a difficult case to get any one from the: which partly is the reason, why they are so deare and rare to be had.

Heere the Reader likewise is to bee advertised, that some of these stones are All Bezaars not pointed, or marply cornerd; but ftones are no alike in forme blunt, edgeleffe and rounded, like to the & propertion. little fingers ende, or as an Acorne. And although some are found to be great, yet commonly they are but as our ordinary Almonds, and not pointed. They have alfo diners foldes or lappings, one wrapping ouer another, like vnto Onions, all fleecke and smoothe; for if you finde the > iected as falle and counterfeit. One of these stones was presented to Charles the ninth King of France, hee beotherwis, compacted they are to bee re-

ing then at Molins, which he caused to be effayed vpon two persons, that had deferued ignominious death, & both of them having poyfon given them to drinke.

One of them was holpen by the stone. who neverthelesse dyed; and the other that tooke it not dyed also. The stone being broken, was found thicke and maffine, not divided by Sphericall robes or foldings, and was throwne into the fire . And the giver, who expected to derine fome great recompence from his Maiefty; had nothing at al, but frowning looks of the King, and the Queene his Mother, for his reward.

CHAP. XV.

Concerning the generation of Pearles: where and how they are found; from whence they are brought; and of their value and e-

Haue read many Authors, to be refolued affuredly concerning the generation of Pearles: but I could finde none of one confent, or agreeing together, and namely, fuch as frequent the Indiaes in these dayes, are divers and doubtfull also in their answers. For some say, that they are engendred in Fish-shels, like to those of our Oysters heere among vs, but much greater, and somewhat longer. And when they are defirous to conceine (vrged ther to by nature, and at a certaine time) they generation open of themselnes, to sucke in and draw Pearles. the dew of heaven: when if the Avre bee cloudy or lowring, then they engender troubled Pearles; and if it be windy, they cannot conceine, folong as the wind continueth. But how fabulous this is, I refer to others judgement : because in one and the same shels, are found Pearles trobled, cleare.& of divers colours and formes.

Others fay, that the proper birth and production of the Oyster, is by egs, wherof they are produced, and that the Pearls Another opi come forth of the fand and grauelly dust, nion of their whereby they are nourished, & wherein they hide themselves: which gravell refineth it felfe, & encreaseth in them, as the graines of the Raisin in the Grape. And this fandy feed foftneth it felfe, the Oyster being in the water: but so soone as it is out of the water, it hardneth of it felfe, as we may fee daily: and this is another opinion of our Pearles production.

Of Pearles ound among day Traffique with them, and bring them from the Perfian Sea, make men here beleeue that negotiate with them: that perls are engendred in the stomacke of a flatte Fish, round like to a Trencher-plate, and as big as a common plate, which is found on the shores of Nilus; and that it drinketh the dewe of heaven, as wee formerly favd of the Ovster, all which is a meere fable. And although the Egyptians of these dayes know the matter truly; yet notwithstanding, meaning to mocke such as are ignorant in these things, they publish lies for apparant truths. Adrosthenes fayth, Pearles are engendred in Oysters, as certaine white and solide graines are in the Flesh of Swine, which we wfe to tearme Meazels, er is made of a clammy slime, congealing and hardning of it selfe . Which I thinke to be very likely: For, beeing at Paris in the yeare 1566.and(in affiftance with others) at the diffecting of a woman's body, long troubled with a discase in the reines, in each of the reines was found a folide fubstance or body, as big as a comon Pease, glistering, cleere and round, like vnto Pearles. Chares the Mitilenian faith, Pearles are made of the bones of the Oyster 31 but the sin he is much deceyned, because the bones are alwayes in feruice to strengthen the body:but Oysters have no need of bones: and likewise Pearles are not found in all of them; and if they had bones, then they would be found in all Oysters.

Americus Vesputius, in his booke of Indian Nauigations writeth, that he obserued the opening of many, & out of fome certaine Pearles, which had not attained (as yet) to their maturity and perfection, being in some pretty store or number; but ver those Pearles perished of themselves and came to nothing. But in them that were more aged, Pearles were founde in the flesh of the Oister, easily parting from it, and those were the best. And they that are found in them fo aged and ancient, were wrinkled and very darke, which is likely to be true, if we do well confider thereon.

It is a meere Fable, which fome haue divulged, that Pearles are found among the Rockes, by reason of many fishes laying their Egges, and because they cleave to the fleft, or to the fhell; but this hap-

The Merchants of Ægypt, that at this | neth very rarely. For, all Oviters are not apt to procreate Pearles, but onely fuch as are rude, white, and pointing, like to the teeth of a Combe; which the Persians call Cherippo, cleere and verie smooth within: of which thelles are made Cups, Boxes, Spoones, and other very fightly things. Some are found in other kinds of Oysters; but they are neither so great, nor fo good, as these that the Cherrippo produceth, which some have termed mother of Pearles.

Heere we may note the variety of opinions, concerning the production of Pearles, the knowledge whereof is much A reason for concealed a for Oyfters keepe alwayes at the variety of the depths of the fea, because their shelles opinions in are great, and therefore they are fo deepe in the fea. If fomctimes they are founde neerer to the shores, it happneth by tempefts of the fea; also they swim heere and there, to feeke their best nourishings; which when they have found, there they flay, votill they have eaten all they can find. Then if they fenetior perceive fuch as feeke for them, they will fasten them-

felues fo ftrongly to the rockes & ftones. ouer-covering one another: as very hardly can they be forced thence, but oftentimes labour is bestowed in vaine, and they left there, as being immagined to be

Of Pearles O

They are fished for in store of sindrie Countreyes and Regions; but the goodlieft and those most common , are fished fters are viufor in the Ific of Baharem, an Ifland bigge ally fified for enough, and well peopled; being fubicel to the Vicerov of Ormuza and is negreto the Cape of Massina, in Arabia Faller, & there is no meane fifthing for them. In the Isles of Maniel a alfo, is continual! fifthing for them (they beeing as good there, as those of Baharem) and the Isle seated on the Perfian Gulfe, an hundred Leagues br thereabout, from Calcuth, and almost throughout the inner India. In the Me of Zeilan, in the Ifles called Veigues , will fo thorowe the great Empire of Mexico At Tarate, more then in any of the forenamed Mandes, and in the Isles of the New World, they have beene fifth for in fuch plentie that the Gasico or Prince of A Casket of the faide Isle, made a prefent of a Casket to a Spanish full of Pearls, to Galpar de Morales (a Spa. Captaine. nith Commaunder) which weighed an hundred and ten pounds. He promifed 0000

The discourse of a falle ftone giuen to Charls

A tribute giué of a Quintall Pearles year-and value.

In our neeres

Seas they fill for Pearles, &

finde fome ftorc.

beside, to give yearely a Quintall weight of Pearles, as a Tribute to the Emperor, and (among them) some were as great as fmall Nuts, others as big as Nutmegs; & one (about the rest) was found to weigh fixe and twenty Carrats, and another one and thirty: it had the shape of a Muske-Peare, being very perfect and orientall.

A Merchant, being named Peter du Port, bought the faid Pearle of Gafper de Morales, for eighteene hundred Ducates of gold, and after he had bought it, hee could not fleepe for melancholy, and inward griefe he conceived, because he had given fo much mony for a stone : yet hee fold it againe on the next morrow (& for ble greatnesse the same price) to Pedrarias d'Auila, for his Wife, the Lady I fabella Bouadillia, who and of extra ordinary price also solde it to the Empresse, Madame Isabella. A lew named Daniell, bought of a country peazant of Baharem (no long time fince) a Pearle, of the greatnesse of a Musket Bullet, for no more then the fumme of eight shillings; and afterward fold it to a Lord in Sclauonia, for three thousand Crownes. There was a present made to Fernando Magellano, in one of the Isles of the Molucques, of foure Pearles, each one of them being asbig as a Pigeons Egge; and they were efteemed worth an hundred thousand Crownes, at the > entenReturning now to our former purpofe, which was to discribe where Pearles are found, I fay, that not onely they fifth for them in the fore-named places: but likewise in all other Seas, bee it eyther of the South or Occeans of Peru, the Antarticke, Florida, Canada, Guinea; yea, euen | ler. beere in our neerer Seas, of England, Scotland and Denmarke; but in some place they are better, fairer, greater and rounderathen in other. And namely in some parts of France, as at Rouen, Dieppe and Rochelle, where some are found very rare and passable. Now let vs obserue, how, and in what manner their fishing is for them.

Such as are appointed for this manner of fishing, entring into their Barques; and (leaving some to tend and hauecare of them, and to keepe the Oysters after they are brought to them) leape by great numbers into the Sea, remaining sometimes under water halfe an houres space, before they be seene againe, and so continue at the bottome : having strong pockets, or small twisted nettings hanging:about them, wherin they put their Oysters. Which being thus taken, they ascend aboue water againe, and are received into their Ships : where having a while taken the avre, and strengthned their bodies with fome fustenance; they put on their wrappers againe before their faces, which commonly are thin waxed toylers, as fine as the bladders of Swine, that they may the clearer fee in the water. Fine or fixe times in a day, thus they throw thefelues into the water, and towards night returne home with their takings, I meane such Oysters as they hope to finde Pearles in.

Vpon the Sea-shore there are a great number of flaues, as well women as men, who as often as the Oysters are brought tend on the on land; fill their Scuttles and Baskets, feruice. made of Sea Rushes, carrying them to Vessels full of fresh water, wherein when In what man the Oysters have continued foure and are separated twenty houres space, and feeling a con- from the flesh trary fauour to the Sea-water; they open & how they of themselves, and so soone as they are differ in good open, the Pearles funder themselues from nesse & great the flesh of the Oysters. Afterward, the Merchants emptying the shels out of the vessels, finde all the Pearles in the bottom of the fresh water, and thus they gather the Pearles of Peru, and likewife in other places. Nepertheleffe, they are not the hundred part fo good nor fo fair, as those of Baharem and Maniela: And observe withall, that Pearles are not found in eue-ry Oyster, but in some few, in other more,

some breeding the greater, other smal-

The Pearles being thus taken, fome- The flaues re times they eate the Oysters, and otherwhiles they throw the away, as being wearie and ouer-glutted with them by too the benefitby frequent vie. Thefe Fifters are flaues, fer- their feruice. uing (for this purpose) the Christian Merchants, Maronites, Iewes or Indians, which traffick in Baharem: and according to their taking pearled Oyffers, fo are they cherished and respected by their Masters euery night, which maketh euery one strine to be most beneficiall by his paines. Some times the Seas are swolne more high & boifterous, then the Fishers wold haue them to be because then it is an himderance to their tarrying long vnder was ter; and then they make prouision for

The industric of the diuers or fishers vnder water to finde the best

Chap. 15.

Oyfters.

flone, which cord they binde about their backes, and fo fincking downe into the Sea, by the weight of those stones, they continue firmely under water, and gather the Oysters at their ease : and when they would mount up to the Shippe, lightly they cast off the stones, and swimme nimbly in their rifing. Such as would meddle in fishing for these Oysters, it behooueth them to be very expert in fwimming and diving; because many drown themselves, through want of taking winde, or elfe are drawne into the depth of the fea, by huge and mighty Fishes, which there they met withall, and then by no meanes can escape Marcus Paulus faw this kind of fishing in the kingdom of Vara, which is in India.

ters, there called by them Abraiamins, haue the twentieth part, and the Peazants haue their payment in money. Here you must know, that without these Enchaunters, they that fifth in this manner for Oyfters, should bee denoured by certaine greedie and venemous fishes, as Crocodiles, Whales, and other fuch like denou-corde, at each end whereof they fasten a where it was performed in the fame man-Marche Panner, and he fayth, that they fifh not but in lus an cic witneffe of this the moneth of Maie, and then the Peafants or Boores are fet on worke by the ing for pearls Merchants. The King hath his Tenths or Tithes, and certain Sorcerers or Enchan-rers: but they conjure them in fuch fort, that they escaped from them without any daunger. But when night commeth, and the fifting must be forborne till the morrow; the Enchaunters release and make their conjurations to ceafe: onely to pre-Ofinchanter uent thecues, who elfe (in the night time) whole conjurations doc would plunge and diue into the water. great feruice knowing they may doe it fafely without in the fithing for pearled Oysters. perill, and so carry away the pearly Ovexpectation.

Moreover, there is no people in all the Countrey, that can enchaunt those terrible fishes, or docknow the words belonging to this conjuration, but onely thefe Abraiamins. And it is to be noted, that all fuch as trafficke in this fifthing; doe not All Countries | cause the Oysters to open themselves in not alike in o. fresh water; but in some Countries, they pening the oil open them with little knines, or tharpe pointed bodkins. And in many other pla-

fters, and frustrate the Merchants of their pening the oi-

themselues in this manner. They have a | ces, as in the Indiaes lately discovered, they fer their Oifters ouer a fire and fo by heat procure them to open, by which meanes they finde the Pearles : but then those pearles appeare of a reddish colour, and carry no chearefull water.

> Also it is to be observed, that all pearls are not white of themselves naturally, but in some places they are found to bee red? as in the Island of Zipangrie, scituate in the All pearles be East Indiaes, according as the faid Veneti-an Paulus reporteth. And yet there they felues: tut haue great plentic of them, very fingular- tome redde ly excellent, both for greatnes and round- pearles have nesse: and in those Countries, they are of white imprice dearer value, price and estimation, that & estimation. those white do carry no companion with them. Somewhat I can fay of my felfe, that I have feene feauen redde pearles, and no more, belonging vnto the late deceasifed Dutchesse of Valentinois; which had a most goodly lustre, and I was (for a while) perfwaded, that they wonne that colour by fome artificiall meanes: but after I had read the Discourse of Marcus Paulus, then I became to be of another opinion. * :

Heere likewise will I infert a great secret in nature, and (in my minde) very A ftrange meruailous, reported to mee by men of kind of moi good credite, that have feene the fifthing from those for those Oysters, and found it true by pearly o sters their owne experience. In a certaine sea- at a certaine fon of the yeare, these Oysters of pearles, yeare. doe belch and cast forth a red and bloodlike moisture, in great abundance : so that many (of the best in judgement) among those barbarous people, imagined them to fuffer a fluxe of menstruositie, as other fishes in the same Ocean doe. These Oysters have their passages, like to all other fishes in Seas or Rivers, so that in some places great store of them is to be found, and within a while after, a rare matter if tenne remayne there to be had, but all are fallen downe aboue tenne miles further Oysters con off- Sometimes, they which fifth in an o- tinue not in ther Countrey, where scarcely one is left: on the morrow or next day, shall light on more then ever was there before.

The Persians have moreover invented A later invenan other manner of fifthing, more com- Persians in fimodious, and of leffe charge and perill. thing for their By making of hurdles of Ofiers or Palms, pearled Oywell knit together with strong bindings, in such manner as the fishing observed in

O000 2

How and in what manne they fish for such Ovsters as have pearls in them.

fands, and when they find the beds of Oycolour.

Barbarous na tions made no account of pearles in clder times.

The wifeden and long continued experience of the Egyptians.

Pli.li. 12.ca.17. A king among the Oysters. and yet it is doubted, whether Oyfters derstanding. or no, and a best Natural-our Xantonge Seas for Casserons, vsing . certaine Rakes, which rash into the Sca fters, fo force the enter into those hurdls. Others walke along amongst the Rockes and Stones, which appeare about the water, where oftentimes, they finde fome of those Oysters, so fast knit to the Rockes or Stones, as very much labour can scarcely get them off, without breaking the rocke or shell of the Oysters, and then taking from thence the Pearle, fo soone as the shell is broken; for otherwise it diminisheth, and doth loofe the true and naturall

The Indians, Arabians, Persians and others, in auncient times, made no more account of Pearles, then of ordures and corruptions which the Seas cleered them felues of during the feafons of their turbulence and boyling. But now wee haue fo well enstructed them, in knowledge both of the worth and profite, that they Ægyptian hath beene quicke witted alwayes, as having knowledge in good letters of longest continuance, addicting his studious contemplations, to vaderstand the fecrets of Nature: fo that Pearles and precious Stones, at all times hath tafted of his approbation and esteeme. The flaues and basest peazants in the Isle of firme Land, neighbouring vpon the Sea; haue oftentimes found Nacres and Oyfters on the thoares, beeing dead, and yet they made fearch into them, and often they found very favre and also rich Pearles.

Pliny faith, that Oysters have a King amongh them, according as the like is affirmed of the Bees, Antes, and a guide allotted to the Cranes, and that this king charge of all the reft : And that is the Oymost to finde, being then assured, that the rest will not feare to followe. Atheneus alleadgeth another Fable, as thus: That they doe striue to reuenge themselues on the fishers, by opening their shells so to catch holde of their fingers. But fuch opinions are meerely friuolous, and they which ordinarily fish in the Oyster-Seas, make a mockerie of fuch reports. Beside, our Naturallists stand in doubt, whether Cockles, Scallops, Muscles, Oysters, and fuch like shell-fish (living in the water) have any part of understanding. And, by the same reason, if they have the meanes of withdrawing themselves, vpon sight of the fishers comming, or from any other fish (opposite or contrary to them) endemouring to eate and deuoure them.

... There is a fifh , which is very opposite | Taruphall, or to the Oyster, being tearmed by the Per- Taball, a fish fians, Taruphall, or Taball, and is of the bignesse of a midling Salmon, hauing a Oisters, liuing hard skinne, yet without scales, and his them. finnes of an azure colour. This fish hath a little head, a sharpe nose or snowt, seruing for his mouth, which is full of tharp teeth: and these pearly Oysters are his delicious diet, liuing (almost) by no other kind of foode. When he is defirous of feeding, he watcheth till fuch time as the Oican skill of the goodnesse, and value of sters beginne to open, as oftentimes they things in fuch fort, as they will fell those doe, beeing in the Sea: whereof making commodities at rates deare enough. The his aduantage, and thrusting in his nose, hee devoureth the fifth quickely, leaving the thell quite emptie. The fishermen of the Islands, labour diligently to catch this hath plenty of fifh, and first of all they open her bowells, rich Pearles wherein they finde store of very goodlie found in his belly. Pearles: then feede they on the fish, becanfe it is dainty and delicate meate. The fewer number of Pearles they finde in an Baharem, and other adiacent partes of Oyster, so much the greater and fayrer they are, and where they chaunce on anic ftore, they are the clowdier and small. Some are found to be so little, that they can not bee drilled by any meanes; and therefore they call them Seede-pearles, which are purposely kept for Apothecaries, who imploy them according to their owne knowledge and experience, or as they are aduised by the Physitian.

The most commendable forme and is elected and chosen (by being the very shape of the pearl, is faid to be that which carriemost fayrest and greatest) to take a carefull is roundest, yet that in fashion of a Peare commendati or Akorne, is not much worfe; and next tion by their ster, which the fishers or divers couet to these is that like to a little Nutte : nor doe they reject fuch as are writhed and wrinkled, nor the very fmalleft; but all are employed and made vic of : the best for the richest people, and the other for them of lower qualitie, because they are worne by all degrees of persons, as well men as women in regarde they are growne to be

Chap.15.

A doubt and demand, what may be, that

Pearle, shold exceed gold and filuet in value and e-

the reason

fo common. No Prouince doe I know, I neuer we shall light on two, that are alike whereunto more Pearles are brought, then into Spaine, and next into France, within some small compasse of time, which makes mee fo much to marnell at them the more.

Of Pearles.

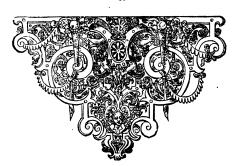

In briefe, Pearles have surpassed the riches of gold and filuer, and of Emralds brought from foorth the Indiaes. And yet I would gladly know the reason, wherefore our graue Auncients made fuch estimation of Pearles; confidering they knew them not to have any medicinable vertue, and in regard alfo, they grew quickely olde, as we plainly perceive, when they haue lost their lustre, clearenesse and whitenesse. Formy selfe, I cannot imagine what should be the reason, except it be in regarde of their whiteneffe, which is not common to other precious stones: and I perceive, that no account is made of them, which are of another colour, although they be of the felf-same substance. Some haue enstructed mee in an other reason, to wit, because they have beene brought from the new-found world, and likewise, that in times past, they fetcht them from very farre remote Countries, which needs must vrge the more affection to them, because they come from farre hence: Or else wee make such deare estimation of them, in regarde that (many times) they cost the lines of men in sithing for them, as partly we have before reported. The greatest Pearles are called in Latine Vniones, because sildome or eyther in greatnesse, roundnesse, or splendour, or answerable in weight : for wee test Pearles finde them alwayes separated one from a- latine Vninother, and not joyned together; And ones the leffer fort they vie to call Marguerites.

After that the Merchants have them in their power, they permit them to bee The Indiane period by divers people, wherein the Indians and Persians are the best exercised, test skill in as beeing naturally enclined thereto by Pearles. frequent practife. Nor do Pearles continue still in one and the same condition, for the truth is, they will fade, wither and waxe light by course of times: especially fuch as are caught after the full Moone. But being kept in the floure of Rice, ming led with Bay-Salt, they will recouer their decay & wake former beauty and weight. But they light, which are caught deepeft, and in the new Moone, are never subject to any such inconveniences.

The flesh (as they vse to call it) or body of the Pearly Oyster, is most wholsom, and of great nourishment; excellent good good for diagond for diagond for fuch as language, or are in a confumption, and also for Hectiques and Tificks. But the Indians make no vie of Pearles in their medicines, although the moderne Phylitions of the Arabes and Moores doe, which hath beene learned of them by fome of ours, and vsed in all cordiall medicines, being good also for the eyes, finely beaten into powder, and held as an especiall preservatiue for the fight.

Pearly Ofters

A Table of the seuerall Bookes and Chapters, with their particular Arguments, contained in this Second Volume.

THE FIRST BOOKE.

F the Ancient Countrey of Gaule, now called France. What Lawes, Culfomes, Religion, Ceremonies, and other manners were vyled among the people of that Nation in their first Originall, and howe (since then) they have continued. An introduction to the whold different them.

courfe. Page i Of the Temperance in cating and drinking, rufed among the Gaules: As alfo of their Marriages, and fingle condition of life. How the Gaules rufed to we are their hairs, and what kinde of garments they wifed, with painting their bodyes. Of their Coines, Gold, Silver, &c. pag: 6 Of the houfes and dwellings of the Gaules, their townes, and willages, and of what manner they were. pag. 8 of the humanity, liberality, hopitality, and courtefie of the Gaules to firangers 3 and care for benefiting each ther equally

How the Gaules made choife of their Generalles and Commanders for their warres; with a true description of their Military services and discipline.

Page 18
Of the (houts, cries, and strange noises, deuised and ofed by the Gaules, to comfort and encourage themselanes, and to affright or dismay their enemies. Also of their signs of contentiment, peace, mercy; their Barit, Songes, and Rithmes.

page 24 Of the difference between the Soldiours of Cafar, and the Ancient Countrey of Gaule, of Pompey (being the valiant Gaules) in comparing them ow called France. What Lawes, with the Romanes: As alfo of the Spaniards and the Gauls, in the Country of the Spaniards and the Gauls, in what manner the Gaules fortefied their Cities and

Townes, &c. 30

Of the service on the Sea and other waters, wsedby the bayes, and profession of Languages.

A Dialogue or Communication betweene Socrates and Phedrus, concerning what oreat difference there is, betweene the Arte of Memory, and matters registred down www.ivieu.

of writing.

A further addition to the Artes and Sciences, taught among the Gaules, by their Druides, Bardes and learned men, according to the iuftification of diners good Authors;
And what Religious Ceremonious Orders they observed.

43
Of the dinimation of ed by the Surronides, who were a kinde of Philosophers among the ancient Gaules; their manner of Oblations and Surrifices: As also of their spels, charmes and incantations.

47 charmes and incantations.

47 What Ceremonies were observed among the Gaules, at the times of their Burials or Funerals.

50
Of the Institute exercised in auncient Gaule, compa-

Of the tuftice exercifed in nuncient Gaule, compared with that of the Romanes, by duiding the cheefe men intertwo degrees, of Druides and Knights, and two kindes of Magifrates: with the purilhment of dijobedience to fuperior Officers.

00004

Of the forme of Gouernment observed in the Commonwealths of the leural Cities and Nation: And what their Rulers and Mazistrates were; As also how they attained to their Authority.

The Second Booke.

F the new Gauls, or those that are called (now adaies) Frenchmen, or the people of France, (ucceeding after their Predecessors the Auncient Gaules.

70

Of the people dwelling in the fruitful Land of France, what they were being aunciently Gaules, and afterwards Frenchmen: their manhood, valour, and fuccessfeful fortunes.

Of the Maiesty, Dignity, and high Eminency of the Kings of France: And what infinite actions of honour they have done from time to time, to renowne the glory of that Kingdome.

A Funerall Oration, written upon the most unnaturall and untimely death of Great Henry the fourth, Father to the King now Reigning. 143

The Battaile of Rauenna, which was fought in Italy, in Anno, 1512. betweene Gatton du Foix, Duke of Namures, Generall for Lewes the 12. Ring of France, on the one party: And Raymond de Cardonna, Viceroy of Naples, Generall for the King of Spaine, and Pope Iulio, on the other.

what they were, whom the world tearmed by the name of the Shillas. Of their Prophesies: but more principally of those things which they jeake and wrote, concerning Christian Religion. 160

Concerning the featurn Wonders or Meruailes of the two ld; what they were. Alfo, in what feuerall parts and places of the World, they are remembred to bee by grauest writers. 164

The Oration of Antipater, the Father to Herod, which he made before Cafar; standing accused for sollowing Pompeys part. 170

The Oration of Herod to his Martiall troopes, being woon the point of fighting with the Arabes. 171

The Oration of Herod before Anguitus Cafar, who bad conceined anner againfi him, because hee had taken part, and followed Marke Anthony.

The magnanimous answer of Augustus, instantly returned to Herod.

The Oration of Herod to the lewes, upon the partage or division of his Seigneuries, to be made to his Children.

The Battaile of Riotta or Nouara, which was fought in the Dukedome of Millaine, betweene lohn Trivulzi, and the Lord of Trimouilla, Generals for Lewes the 12. King of France, on the one fide; and Maximillian Sforza, Duke of Millaine, accompanied with the Switzers, on the other, in the yeare 1513.

Of the force of Sudden Chances and vnexpected E-nents, for the dispation of well of mans power, as of his policy. And of the hazards and doubs fulleacnts of Buttailes, and other enterprises of warre.

How our Auncients and reverend Predecesforus punified fuch in former times, as durst do any dishonour to their Mistresses.

Concerning divers kindes of Salutations, wied among our Auncients, when they met together.

What a commendable thing it is to purdon iniuries, effectally in Princes and great Lords.

From whence (at the first) came the Title or Name of King, and also of Emperor.

What was the reason, and woon what occassion, King, in ancient times were created and est absished. And of the

The Third Bocke.

Dignity Royall.

The Originall of the Switzers; and the Government of the Country, in the publike estate of their thuseene Cantons, with their Confederats both in generall and paticular, &c. 193 of the three first Cantons of the Switzers. 193 Of the Original lestate of Lucerna, before it leagued it Selfe with the Cantons. 214 Of the Original, condition, and estate of Zurich, befor eit leagued in with the Cantons amity.

How Glaris, being conquered by the Cantons; came afterward to be accepted into their louing alliance.
230

Of Zug, and at what time it came to be comprehended

Of Zug, and at what time it came to be comprehended in league and confederacy, with the other Cantons of the Switzers.

Of the building of Eerne, the feituation and conduton thereof; And how it was yeelded to the Empire. 233 Of the Towne of Fribourg; who was the first Founder thereof: And how it came into league of alliance with the Cantons. 247 Of the City of Solleurre, being one of greatest names

Swetia. 248
Of the Switzers warres against them of Millaine;4gainst the Venetians, and at the conquest of Naples. 249

gainfi the Venetians, and at the conquest of Naples. 249
Of the City of Bassile, and diversity of opinions, howevi received that name: as also the Originall and Aniquitie of the City. 251

At what time Schaffouse was received into the number of the Cantons, and the Antiquity thereof. 2,2 If the Switzers warres, since such time as they can't to be in number of the Cantons, and making them to be

Of the Originall of Appenzell: how it took that name.
The Lawes, Cultomes, and manner of Gouernment there observed.
257

Concerning the alliance made betweene the fine last Cantons: and a brewiate of their Articles, binding them together in Confederacie.

The Table.

dertooke to recover the Dukedome of Millaine.	259	nen
A discourse, concerning the alliance of the S	witzers,	ווטי
with the kings of France	260
Of them that are allied and leagued with the	Cantons,	thi and first the Abbot of S. Gall	263	the
Of the Towne or City of S.Gall	264
Of the Leagued Grifons	265	Ar
The alliance of the people of Valois	267	1
Of Rotwill, or Rotuill	268	GA of Mulhusc	Fol:cod	1
Of Bienna	269	1
Óf Geneua	Fol: eod	loi
Of New-Castle	270	1
of those people that are governed (in common) b	y the Can-	1
tons of the Switzers	271	(in
Of Bada	Fol: eod	of
Of Bremgarten and Mellingen	2 3	1
Of Rasperwill	274	1
Of Frawenfeld	Fol.cod	1
Of the nine Bayliwickes or Gouernments	275
Of Bada and Turgow	Fol: cod
Of the three first Provinces	eod	1
Of the Sargans	276	1
Of the Rhegusces, now adayes called Rhinthall:	That is to	1
fay, the valley of the Rheine	Fol: cod	1
Of the Gouernements and Baylywickes which as	re in Italy,	1
	277	1
Of Bellizona	278	1.
Of the Alliances made (by the Cantons) with I	cinges and Princes, necre neighbouring to them.	Fol: cod
Of the Alliance made by the Switzers, with th	e Dukes of Millaine	279
Of the Switzers Alliances with the Dukes of	Austria &	L
Bourgongne	280	1
Of the Aliances betweene Sauoy and the Swit	zers 283	1
Of the Alliances betweene the Switzers, and the	he Kings of
France	284	P
The Second Part.		a
		a
The manner of Government observed as	manait the	· 13

Of the Switzers warres in Italy, when the French vn-

The manner of Gouernement observed among it the Switzers 289
Of the manner and behaviour of the Switzers, in the time both of war and peace 190
Of publike Assemblers and meetings: Or rather of the Councell and Senate of the Switzers 297 Concerning senate of the Switzers in publike and peculiar differences and independents, in publike and peculiar differences 303
Of those Commonwealths, which are in each of the served Cannos: And firit, of the Commonwealths of Zurich Basile, and Schaffouse 305

Of the publike effate and government of the Townes of Berne, Lucerna, Fribourg, and Solleurre: which are not divided into Tribes and Companies, as Zurich, Bafile, and Schaffoufe are Of the Common-wealth of those Cantons, that have ither Cities nor Townes: but dwell only in the Country illages Of the sixe Cantons, which are handled together in his Chapter, according to their fenerall rights ; and alfo heir Iurifdictions Folicod Of the Commonwealths belonging to the Confederates: and first, of the Abbey of S.Gald 325

An April, of the Abberg of S. Gall 345
Of the Commonwealth in the Towne or Cittle of S.
Gall Fol. end
The Commonwealth of the Grifons
The Commonwealth of the Valajians, or people of Valains lois. 334

The Commonwealth of Bienns 355
The Commonwealth of fuch people, as are gouerned (in common) by the Cantons of Switzerland. And first, of Stipensary Townes 336
Of the Baylyvickes or Gouernments Of the Switzerland. Fol: col

Of Bada

(f Turgery

340

Of Sargans

342

Of Rhinthall

Of the Barons of Altfax

The Baylywickes or Governments which are in Italy,

The fourth Booke.

Of the Kingdome and Court of Spaine 3 the Lawes,cufomes, and manners of the people: as alfo the division and fituation of the Country 350

Of the kingdome of Portugall, the beginning, contiiance, and prefent estate thereo: with the Customes, awes, and administration of Iustice therein observed.

Of the Antiquity, Originall, Customes, Lawes, and administration of Iustice, observed in the kingdome of Naples 356

Of a Law observed among the Rhodians, that enjoyed and communited Fathers (setting aside all other businesse and assumes) to marry their Daughters with all possible speed.

peca. 302
That Tyrants doline continually infeares: and that their ends are most miserable. 367 A most horrible cruelty weed by the Numantines against the Romanes, and (in the end) upon themfelues. 368 That a valiant Captaine or Generall, ought first to embrace wifedome and prouidence, before he do make experiment of his fortune: And also, that after wittery, hee should be milde and pittifull.

Of the Salique Law, the Original therof, and who were the first Authors and Inventers of it. 370 Examples of some Letters containing secrecy, and some in fuch manner, as they might not be knowne, but onely to fuch whom they especially concerned. A discourse concerning the Originall of the Normans;

wha

Fol. cod

what valiant acts have bene performed by them, and of circkling round about. Robert Guiscardo. Of two yong youths of Paris, that trauailed to the Indiaes, to cure themselves of the Neapolitane disease, or French Dox.

why there is not found fo much vertue in the Guyacum that is brought hither; as in that whereof the Indians them Celues do make vie, against the Neapolitane disease; and the description thereof.

From whence it proceedeth, that Graine or Corne is not To long time preferued in our Countries, as it hath bin, and still is in Egipt. Also in what manner our Lands and vines Should be corrected and qualified without digging, &c.

Of the great difference, which both ancient and modern writers have observed to be, betweene the royall Title of a King, and the difgracefull name of a tyrant. In what high account and esteeme Philosophers, and other men of knowledge (in what Sciences foeuer) were held in elder times by Emperors and Kings. That Learning is not onely necessary in Kings and Princes : but also for Generals, Captaines, and Commanders, that follow the exercise of Armes. Of divers fecret naturall properties, being in the Viper: And how he may be fed on, and eaten without any danger

Of the admirable property of a little creature, the biting whereof is healed by the found of Musique. Likewise, of many other infirmities, which are only holpen by the fame medicine

Of a straunge medicine, whereby Faustine of Rome, wife unto the Emperor Marcus Aurelius, was cured of an infirmity of dishonest loue: and of many other remedies, against that powerfull passion

Of the strange and furious love of a young Athenian; and of the ridiculous love of King Xerxes: and howe that Bealts have many times affested both men and women.

Of a man, that receiving a wounde from his enemies hand, was delivered from a deadly danger, wherin he had long time lived: with fundry other examples to the same purpofe.

Who was the first that planted the Vine: and who began to put water into wine. To whom, and in what manner the Romaines did prohibite Wine.

Of many dammages and dangers, which ensue by the immoderate drinking of wine. And how it hath bene held as an healthfull thing (by some Physitions) to be drunken Sometimes

Certaine advices and instructions, against forward affection to wine. And some reasons delivered, why two things do appeare to bee three, to men that are overcome with drinke.

In what manner a man may knowe and measure, the rotundity or round compasse of the whole earth: And how much it is reputed to containe, in the circumference or Of the reason, why Snow (beeing coursed with Straw) doth preserve it selfe in his entire coldnes, and warme water in his heate : two contrary effects working by one and the Same thing. Of Sudden death happening wnto divers great per. fons that have thereto bene wished or threatned, by such as they have uniufly put to death before &c. Of the cruelty which Albouine, King of Lombardy, vsed to his Queene and Wife Rosamond: And by what meanes (he revenged her felfe on him.

Of a pleasant, witty, and honest deceipt, which a famous and vertuous Queene veed to her owne Husband, where. by lames, King of Arragon was begotten. Of an auncient and memorable Custome, observed by the Inhabitants of Carinthia, at the Coronation of their In what part of the Zodiacke the Sunne and Moone, &

likewise the other Planets were, at their first creating. Al fo of the beginning of yeares and times. That men may learne examples by Birds, Flues and o ther Creatures, to leade a vertuous life.

Of neglect in Martiall Discipline, and of an Army of Christians, that lost all their lines through drunkennelle and want of following Military discipline.

Of the miserable ends, and other strange traverses, endured by divers Kings, Emperors, Dukes and other great Princes de. That People are commonly fuch in their actions, manners, and piety; as they perceine their Kings, Princes and Rulers to be. Of the Originall of Triumphs: why they were firl granted and ofed in Rome. How many they were that triumphed What a Triumph is: And that there are two forts of Triumphs. Of fuch names of immortall honour and renowne, which the Romane Captaines had granted and gruen them. according to their feuerall victories.

Of such Crownes, with other recompences and salaries which the Romanes gaue to Soldiors. Alfo of punishing offenders, &c. Of the reason wherefore sleepe was granted and given toman: And likewife, that too much fleepe is hurtfull and Of an ancient wife and custome in Spaine, in making their account of times, by thefe words, Here de Cæsar. What that Here is and wherefore and when the veetherof was left.

The Fift Booke.

F Nobility Politicall and Ciuill. 448 Of the Nobility of the first Age.

The Table.

CI CA CI I STATE
Of the first Greeke Nobility. 45
Of the first Romane Nobility. 45
Of the divers beginnings of Nobility Datine. 46	I The Rites and Ceremonies Ved in creating of Baron by Charter. 47
The Kings Charter for the creating of a Viscount. 48
The Royall Charter for the creating of an Earle. 48
The Rites and Ceremonies for the creating of an Earl 48	4 1
The iKings Charter concerning the creating of a Man	- 0
I allelles	61
The Kings Charter for the creating of a Marchionesse
485	7 7
The Kings Charter for the creating of a Duke. 450
The manner of creating a Duke. 45	2 6
The Kings Charter for creating of the Prince of Wales	•
454	4 9
Things required unto the Creation of the Prince of	f th
Wales. Ibid	·
Of the Crowning of the King. 450	5 60
Abriefe description of the Pompe & Ceremonies at the	0
Coronation of Edward the fixt, King of England, accor	- r
ding to the ancient manner, wfed in the Confectation of	f so the Kings of England.)
The memorable and famous Coronation, of our most	m gracious Soueraigne Lord King Iames, and Queene	e de
Anne nis wife, the 25.of July, 1603.	5
A Statute and Acte of Parliament, made in the 31.0	f th
King Henry the eight, concerning placing of Lords in the	e do Parliament Chamber, and other Affembles and Conferen-	- itis of Counties.	bi
The Order of the Parliament Pompe. 512 The manner of restoring of renewed Nobility, lost be-Themanner of restoring of renewed Nobiluy, lost be-	· yore. 518	ne
Of Customes. 1bid.
Of Noblemen of the leffer fort. 526	Pl.
The Order of the Knights of the Garter, when, and by woom a was organies.	to
The Preroration, or Epilogue of the whole Worke. 543 111
The Sixt Booke,	١.
	I Pl

An excellent Relation, concerning the estate of Religion and Common-wealth, which was observed among the The first Family, being the Posterity of Icfus. 556 Of the Asmoneans, being the second Family. 562 Antiochus and Lyfias are put to death by Demetrius; the wicked behauiour of Alcimus the Priest : The death of Indus, and succession of his Brother Ionath, is. Concerning the imprisonment of Simons two Connes and their Mother, by their cruell prickle Ptolomy; and lastly their lamentable death. The valiant access of lohn

F the Government and administration of Iustice, obferned in the Common-wealth of Gennes or Geneway.

Hyrcanus, Sonne to Simon; and destruction of Sama-How the rest and prosperity of Indea begate fundrie Sects among the people, especially of the Pharifies, Saddu ces, &c. The diversitie of their opinions, and a breefe narration of the Doctrine in whe among the first Fathers'

Concerning the Originall of the Sadduces Sest, conrary in nature to the Pharifies, and what cuftomes were oblerued among them

Of a third Sect, contrary to the Pharifies and Sad duces, who tearmed then selves by the name of Essans: Their Originall, Religion, and manner of life

A returning backe to speake more of Hyrcanus, and of A breefe entrance into the description of the posterity f Antipater, holding the Principality of Indea, but not he High-Priesthood

The third Family concerning the posterity of Antipaer the Idumean of Ascalon, erc

A further entrance into the discourse, concerning the ace and posterity of Antipater, for the better clearing of ome obscure doubts in divers Authors dec

How Herode after all his tumultuous troubles and pollestations, attained to the sole government of the kingome of Iudea A breefe Collection, concerning the children of Herode ne Great, which he had by his tenne wives: As also the orer of their fenerall successions Of the Ethnarchie of Archelaus, and the plea of him &

is Brother Antipas before Augustus, for the right of go-

Of Phillip, fon to Herode the Great, and how he gouerdin his Tetrarchy Of the life and death of Herode Antipas, Brother unto hillip, and Tetrarch of Samaria, &c. The life of Agrippa, the first man of that name, coming be king of Indea

A breefe Collection of the principall accidents hapning the time of the fiege Of three great and notable doubts, which the anciet hilosophers knew not how to resolve, and for what cause.

Of such ceremonies as were wfed by the Romans, before they moved any war.

The Seuenth Booke

Of the Government and administration of Iustice, obferued in the Commonwealth of Luca. What benefite and honour it is to a Prince, to have a comely body dec.

Of the inhumane actions, and monftrous cruelties, of Aristotimus the Tyrant

The reason, why men cannot know and understande the truth of many things, while they remain in this life.648

Of divers accidents (monstrous in nature) which ferued as divining Auguries, or coniectures of thinges to come in olde and ancient times. Of a very Strange and admirable accident, which happened to an Army in the night feafon. How indiscreete a thing it is and greatly to bee blamed in Christian Princes, to permit the Duello, or fingle Combate bet weene man and man. Of strange and admirable properties in the Asse. 654 Of the fingular vertues and constancy of the noble Lady Aretaphila, the enforced Wife to the Tyrant Nicoreon : And the honest pollicy, for the deliverance of her Country.

Of the famous Philosopher Euxines: And of a Letter fent by the Senate of the Athenians, to the Lacedemonians. The true Module and Patterne of Government, to be observed in any Common-wealth, derived from the community of Bees, and how many waies they may bee examples to men. How finfull and dangerous a thing it is, to desire reuelations from the dead, or knowledge of things belonging to a future life.

Of a Disputation made in Antioche, in the presence of King Ptolomy, by feauenfeuerall Ambaffadors: to know which of their Kingdomes have the best Lawes and Cu-Stomes. Of a very proud and sumptuous Temple (dedicated to Venus) in the Citty of Corinth, in the feruite whereof were five hundred Ladies: And of the answere of an Ab Ibid. belle to a great Lord. Of the Oracle of Apollo in the Ifle of Delphos; the originall thereof, and opon what occasion it came. What care our Elders had in ancient times, concerning the performance of their facrifices. Of divers and fundry opinions of the Philosophers concerning the feate of the foule in the body of man: And a contrary coniecture of the Platonists. How men ought to foun and avoide curso fity. And what penalties and pumshments were appointed by our Auncients, for curious people. Of the three Conquells of England, by the Saxons, Danes and Normans; occasioned by the sinnes, eyther of the Princes, or of the people, or of both. The Battaile of Gaza, fought betweene Synanbasha, Generall for Selym the Great Turke; And Gazelles, Lieutenant of Tomumbeyo, the Soldan or Sultane of Egipt, in Of three severall Battailes, fought in the yeares 1516.

and 1517 betweene Selymthe Great Turke, and Tomumkeyo the Great Sultan of Egipt. Of the fecond Battaile fought at Cayro, betweene Se-

Of the third and last battaile, fought at Nilus, between Tomumbeyo and Selym, with the ill Juccesse, and disgracefull death of Tomumbeyo. &c.

Of the first invention of wearing rings, to what endit was. And of many ancient and admirable thinges, oc

Of the properties and vertues secretly concealed in precious stones : And whence the vertue proceedeth, that is faid to be in Magicall rings Whence it came at the first, that the name of Gentleman was given, as well to Knights, as to the fons of Presidents & Councellors. What Armes the ancient Romaines carried drc.

Of the Septuagint, or seventy Translators of the old Te-Stament, out of Hebrew into Greeke, oc. Of the admirable vertues and properties, which God and Nature hath given unto the Ant, Emmet, or Pi(mire, oc.

From whence it proceedeth, that some menline long, and others farre leffer while. And what complexion is the best for living long, &c.

How the life of Man hath beene abridged & shortened from the beginning of the worlde, and that in diverse times. Of the diversity of tearmes allotted to men : with many histories tending to that purpose

Abreefe Chronologicall Survey, concerning the Netherlands, divided into seaventeene Provinces : with a breuiate of the Earles and Princes there reigning, from Thierry (who was the first Earle of Holland and Zeland) to this instant time. The Eighth Booke.

Abreefe Discourse, concerning the Originall of the Venitians, and the foundation of Venice, eyc.

A Short Summary, of the lines of the Dukes and Princes of Venice: and a breviate also of the most remarkeable actions in the times of their Gouernment

Of Gun-shot, and other siery Engines

An answer unto a certaine demaund, propounded by the villorious Prince Charles the ninth, as touching the quality and effence of wounds made by Gunshotte; at his Maiesties returne from the siedge and taking of Roane.

Of the Excellencie of the Art of Physicke going farre beyond all other humane Arts and Sciences Whether it be possible, or no, to prolong the life of man or woman by Physicke Against fuch as hold opinion, that Physicions doe delay and prolong hurtes and diseases, and are abusers of the world

The Table.

A breefe discourse concerning the first foundation of That it is neyther sinne, nor any ill acte done, to call for Ierusalem, what fortunes (from time to time) befel thereto: and of the kings that there reigned What difference there is betweene Leafing and Lying ; and how a man may tell a leafing, and not lye

Concerning the ingratitude and unkindnesse in sicke Of the twelve months in the yeare : how both Ancient and Moderne men seed to figure them, and of some myste-

That the vulgar fort do account it nothing, if they be not cured and healed contrary to their owne opinion. That the latest remedies have all the honour : And happy is the Physition that commeth to the difeafes declination. 769 ries represented by them. Of a strange Consuration or Conspiracy, which happned Against such as censure and judge of Physicions sufficiency, by their successe: which oftentimes is more due to a happy chance, then skill or knowledge.

the Physicion and to ve his remedies in difeases.

That it is not for the ficke patients profite, to have ma-

Against such as complaine on the over-short visitation

How much it importeth, that the ficke patient should

Of such as will have Physitions, and yet deny to doe

Of such as (in their sicknesse) will admit no medi-

That fuch as are subject to discases, are in like maner

That fuch as know some little matter in Physicke, ata.

The manner of knowing Opportunity truely, for wn-

Of favour, grace or good opinion : how it hath beene

Of those feauen wife men of Greece, commonly called

That Auarice or Conetou nelle is a most enormous

A very fingular reason, delinered by Phanorinus the Diners examples of fundry accidents, whereby great rest. And of many being blinde, who neverthelesse were me vice and subject to great dangers : with fundry examples

Philosopher, concerning Astrologers, that it is not good to demand any question of them, having relation onto future more dangerous to bee neere ficke persons, then they that derstanding or performing fuch actions, as we wold have to be well done : And how our grave Elders ofed to depict described by Picture; And of the Morall signification.

the featien Sages: with many notable fentences. That fight is the principall and cheefest sence of all the

of diverspersons, who were extremely conetous.

cine or remedy but onely for the prefent anguish.

my Physitions, as in ordinary : but one Physition sufficeth, and diseased persons, towards Physicions.

which happen in difeafes.

of any other fort of people.

being assiduate and skilfull.

repose considence in his Physition.

as they direct and appoint them.

Subject to Physicke, and others not.

of fome Phylitions.

know nothing at all.

or figure Opportunity.

of great honour and renowne.

in the end

in the goodly City of Florence: and of the flaughter enfuing thercom A very remarkeable and worshy history, delivering in Against fuch men, to whom all things are suspected. breefe discourse, the life and memorable actions, of that faand Physitions slandered in the most part of those accidents

That there are more store and plenty of Physitions, the mous Captaine Castruccio Castracagnio. A discounse concerning the winds, and of their severall

The Ninth Booke.

IN the first Tract, is contained a Cosmographicall De-Scription of the whole Countrey of Moscouia or Russia, the Climate and Shieres, with the commodities the feuerallparts of the Land yeeldeth; and the principall Citties and Townes The second Tract, relateth the Emperors linage to defcent; his instalment and inauguration in the dignitie; the forme of publike Government, holding of Parliaments, and regiment, of the Prouinces. His Customes, Revennewes, Sophifmes, crc. The third discourseth on their Politike and Inditiall proceeding. The Emperors powers for war, and their falaries, mustering, munition, and military provision : their Collonies, friends, and enemies Fourthly, concerning Ecclefiasticall Offices & Orders, Rites, and Sacraments observed in the Mosconian church, Mariages, and other Ceremonies Laftly, an Occonomicall discourse of the Emperours Cours, his Family and houshold affaires, and more private behaviour of his people If it may bee fo ordered, or limited, that poyfons given at a certaine day, shall not cause death, untilla time ap-Of diners erroneous and vile opinions, conceyued in fantasticke braines, and verily beleeved for sound truths.

A vulgar Question : What Language they shall speak, that never heard any feech. That a man or woman borne dumbe is necessarily deafe. As also, he that is nurst among dumbe people: And not (on the contrary) that one dumbe by nature, fould also bee deafe. And whence it ensuch, that a child is fo tardy in knowing how to speake.

The Tenth Booke.

plots and defignements of great Politians have bene difsipated and overthrowne. Alfo, concerning Pollicies, that F the Kingdome of Ireland, the Antiquity, Originall, (for a time) have bene profitable, and yet proved permitious and habitation thereof, according to the confirmation of the best approved Authors.	903

A briefe Discourse, how those parts and	Countries, commonly called, The New World; were first fo 916
Of the Excellency and Dignity of Marri	iage: with many singular and worthy examples, tending t pose.	o that pur-
pole.	914
Of Partharites, King of the Lombards, who	being purfued by Grimoald, fled first to Cacanus, King o	of the Auarians or Huns, afterward into France, Jec.	922
What manner of men those were and are, t	hat bee called Doctors of Sorbonne, or Sorbonnists.	928
That the Law of the Emperour Seucrus,	and that of Solon, for promoting any one to Office and A	luthority in the Common-wealth (being first informed, of	amans, life and good manners) was much better then those	e of the Venetians, Florentines, Genewayes and Lucane	s; examining after the time of their Iurifdiction is past.	930
Of the reason and cause, why both some Pr	inces, and

. «	iolo.
3	also some Common-wealths, have alwaies prospero	ully flo-
ſ,	rished in the times of warre; and in peacefull da	ies haue
с.	runne so decay ana ruine.	022
6	That Princes ought not to erect Sumptuous and	d Chatala
b	buildings; as hoping thereby to make their names i	mmor-
r-	tall.	026
4	who was the first, among all other Monarchs &	Prim
Y-	ces, that commanded, to present by writing, wha	tlocuer
4-	was to be negotiated with him.	!
2	Of such qualities and carriage, (as necessarily	940
l- ,	quired to be in a Prince.	_ 1
8	That the eldest Sonne ought alwayes to beepr	942
f	before the younger, &c.	(
M	The Monarchy of the Cafars, or Romanes.	947
e	The ancient and honourable History of the li	950
-	tunes, and admired vertues, of faire Landgartha, t	le, jorį-	all Queene of Norway.
0		957
d	Of the Bezaars stone, &c.	669
4	Concerning the generation of Pearles, &c.	972

FINIS.

THE TREASVRIE OF AVNCIENT AND MODERNE TIMES

Containing the Learned Collections, Iudicious Readings, and Memorable Observations: Not onely Divine, Morrall and Phylosophicall, But also Poeticall, Martiall, Politicall, Historicall, astrologicall, esc.

Translated out of that Worthy Spanish Gentleman, Pedro Mexic.
And M. Francesco Sansonino, that Famous Italian. As also, of those Honourable Frenchmen, Anthonic Du Ferdier, Lord of Fauprinas: Loss Guyon, Sieur de la Nauche, Counsellor vito the Kings Claudius Grages, Parisian, &c.

LONDON,
Printed by W. laggard, 1613.

HINRAUM

Transferred by State of the Sta roman and the little and the second of the little and the second of the little and the second of the

To the Reader.

Know (Gentle Reader) that (ustome commands an Epistle to thre, for Fauourable Acceptance, and honest Entertainment of such a great Labour. But Iam (at this time) forced to Write with thee, both on the behalfe of my selfe and the Printer: in regard of many Escapes, which vsually chanceth in Printer: in regard of many Escapes, which vsually chanceth in Printing, by reason, that immediately after the Bookes beginning, sicknesses other instructions, did bereaue him of his sight. If therefore any thing do or may appeare offensive, either in Method or Matter, I would not have thee displeased in any thing what soever, or that any Argument thorough the whole Booke, should be (in the least degree) presudiciall to thee . Therefore, accept it with like Loue and Kindnesse, sit is sent onto thee, in Honest Affection and Friendlinesse.

CHAP. XV.

Of the Vertue and excellency of Hony, and how it ought to be vsed and applied.

Of Tadeus the couctous Phifition or Fle-

Of Hony and ged by Galen.

Gsl inlid.de

Confer Sanit.

Adams, the Florensine Phifition, a Man most couetous, for he would not go forth of the Citty, to vifite any fickly and discaled person; except hee might haue fiftie Crownes allowed him for his paines; and to vilite Pope Honorius, he had each day allowed him an hundred Crownes. This Man perusing the workes of Car-danus (who left a small Treatise, which was (as yet) neuer imprinted to our knowledge, for hee lived in the yeare one thousand two hundred and sourcscore) found certaine places, where hee discoursed of Milke, Wine, Beere, and many other thinges : but he observed one especiall Chapter, concerning Hony and Manna, & that he alleaged Galen therefore, but declareth not out of which Booke he deriued his Authority. I enquired of many learned Philitions, 30 whether it were true or no, that Galen had written on any fuch matter ? Some told me, that they had never reade any fuch thing in his Workes: yet others affirmed, that hee had made fome report thereof, in his Booke of the Preservation of Health. But whether it be fo or no feeing the discourse is commendable, and full of learning: this Chapter shall containe some portion 40 of his relation, to the end, that the Reader (not as yet there-with acquainted) may vnderstand the Vertue of Hony.

He delinereth it for certaine, that Galen had seene two men, very different Two Men difin yeares, for the one was old, and well ferent in opi-nion as touch neere decrepite ; and the other, in the ing Hony. best time of his age. These men were most contrary in opinion, concerning Hony yet brought to agreement , by 5 ftore of good reasons, as you shall perceiue. The Auncient and decrepite Man saide; that Hony made him verie healthfull, because it gaue warmth to his Body; stayed the fluxe in his belly, when it greatly pained him; cleanfed his Lights and Lungs, when they were

The old Mans defence of Hony.

ouer-charged with raw and indigested were cured of Tetters, Itch, and Ringwormes ; by application of Hony : befide, divers others, that had loud tincklings, noyfes, and winds in their eares yea & were almost stark deafe; yet holpen by Hony. It caused quick motion in the Pulses, and (vsed as a Gargarisme) it is a finguler remedy against the fquinzy, Kernels in the Necke, fwolne Aldmonds in the Mouth, and forenesse in the Throat. Applied to the eyes, it took away thicke miftes and vapours, which oftentimes obscureth fight. In breefe, the old man was affuredlie perswaded, that there was not a better thus disputing. The young Man being Chollerique, prompt, ambitious, Anthonius Aurelius Verus, and to his fucceffor Commodus) required filence; and having heard the aged mans report, was as defirous also to heare the young man,

Phlegme, onely by spitting; made his Vrine come orderly, and (consequent-lie) discharged the Reines. Hee had also seene some, who were impossoned with Opium, and had daungerously fed on venomous Mushromes or Toadstooles; that recovered found health by the vie of Hony. He faid moreoner, that he had had an inueterare & fordide Vicer in one of his Legs, for which he could compasse no remedy, by application of manifold very likely helpes; and yet he was thorowly cured, and the VIcer consolidated by Hony onely . He faid also, that he heard of many, who Aliment or Medicament in all the World, then Hony; according to the experience he had made thercof, vpon his owne person . Hauing spoken these things with good judgment and diferetion, he held his peace, and Galen commanded the other party, to fpeak what he could concerning H 79, fo highlic commended by the olde Man; admonithing him withall, to deliver his minde without passion or choller, and likewise to fet afide al partiall affection : For Galen found (accidentally) these two Men and impacient ; perswaded himselfe of victory before hand, and to prenayle Galon a Man against the graue man . But Galen, who of great auhad great credite in many partes of the world (in regarde of his finguler knowledge, and renowne of his learned labors, being also Phisition to the Emperors M.

The Vertue of Hony. Chap. 15.

> and giving him a fignall when to begin, he arose vp (as in anger) and proceeded in this manner:

The young mans declara tion against

The vie of

I protest to speake nothing at this instant, concerning Hony, which I have not experimented in mine owne person; and it may be more truly and certainely. then he hath any way made proofe of the like. I protest withall, that it is the most pernitious aliment or medicament, that 10 can be vinder heaven. For, I have divers times made vie thereof (vpon vrgent necessity) having beene surprized on the Sea by Pyrats, who kept mee captine for diners moneths; when I was constrained to feed thereon, enforced thereunto by meere hunger : but having eaten it , I found my stomacke wholly vndigestable, with much procuring to catting, which brought me (at length) to fuch gripes in 20 the belly, that by the meanes of Windineffe, which it extreamely caused, I looked for no escape with life. Beside these things, it brought mee to a dry Cough, and engendred fuch a number of worms in a friend of mine:that, notwithstanding hee dranke Vineger, for want of better Wine, he must needs have dyed, if hee had not voided them.

The ving of Hony, after my deline- 30 rance, made me fall into a Feauer Tertian; during which time, by aduife of fom, I dranke nothing but Hydromell, or Metheglin, which is a Breuage made of Hony, and fodden Water, boiled till the third part thereof bee confumed, and it prolonged my disease: but so some as I made pure Water my drinke, I mended presently.

Moréouer, the skinne being (by a mifchance) a little flayed off my foot by the aduile of some Women, I vsed an oyntment of Honic, which never brought any skin againe: but when I applied a litle burnt Paper thereto, it dried and healed it verie speedily. Briefly, I conclude, that Honie is neither Aliment, nor wholfom Medicament, either for the inwarde or outward affections : but contrariwife, it is verie dangerous and hurtfull to Nature, 50 He pronounced these wordes with such vehemencie and affection, according to his vie and behaujour; as if he wold have torne the aduerfarie partie in pieces with his teeth and nailes.

Galen then spake with great Modestie, (albeit he was by nature, as Chollerick as red the truth, & no man needed to make anie doubt, because hee would make it presently apparant. It is most certaine derhiche rwo (quoth hee) that this aged man speaketh Concraryants nothing but truth, declaring what goodby learned nesse he findeth in Honie; because Honie is hotte, and all Aliments or Nutriments of hot Nature, doe agree with all persons, ages, and sexes, temperately, or of cold complexion. But this man is of a Flegmaticke complexion, old, fubicat to many cold distillations, Flegmatick and Quotidian Featiers; and therfore it is no maruell. though he give fuch affurance, and finds the vie of Hony wholesome for him. But yet it is verie likely, that he doth not vic it indifferently, as it is brought from the Bee-hine, but rather prepareth it : for he causeth it to be boyled, forden, Hony boyled and taketh off the four, in which maner it norisheth and converteth into good blood. If it much holp him in restraining the Flux of his Belly, it was in this regard, that being in that maner prepared, it had no mordication in it, neither excited any gripings, as it doeth when it is crude and crates hath left written. And whereas hee faith, that it made speedy discharge of his

Vrine and Reines, from Sand and Gra-iect: furely, being boiled with Water,

(which the Phylitians call Mulla) it hath out of question, such Vertue. By cough-depend ypon age) when it is thus reduced into a Syrrope, and taken in Morninges long before feeding, it is verie foueraign, and excellent alfo, to make olde people

It cannot bee good for such as have uenture, follie, or pride of mind (as now Grecians vse to do)but it is necessary that the Honie should be verie aged, as, of ten or twelve yeares at the least, boyled and clarified in Wine often or twelue yeares old; and being so prepared, it correcteth

the great coldnesse of the saide Cpium or vindoubtedly, it is a most certain remedy, as he hath formerly faid : but it must then line merrily.

the other) that both of them had deline-good blood.

275

Hip, in lib de raw, as my Great Schoole-maifter Hippo- Dista.

uell, whereto in age he becam much fub- Against Sand ing and spitting, it cleanseth the Lightes Against couand the Liner; and the Pipes being char-ged with colde Flegmes (difeases which drunke Opium, or cold poilon, by milad- Old Honie good against Opium & poya adaies the Turkes, and a great part of the ion.

poison: Against Mushromes or Toade- Agains Must fooles (which are commonly venemous) Toad-flooles

The vertue rances, which proceede from any thicke or Metheglin. phlegme, either in the throat, Fuula or the Almondes. Concerning the fordide and inueterate Vlcer, which he seemeth to have had in his leg, and cured it by the for Hony cleanfeth, cleareth, and is vtter enemy to all fordity or fithinesse, and hauing thus neated the Vlcer; it eafily heals For olde and foule Vicers.

For deaffenes and windines in the head.

Against, Itwormes and Tetters.

> Against the weakenesse of

The faying of

tooke to defend the yong mans ipee-

be ordered into a Syrope, as in that nature it is yfed, to displace phlegme, and an old dry cough . Hidromell or Metheglin gargarized, doth very well cleanfe all hindehelpe of Hony: the case is very enident, 10 & closeth it vp. Touching that which he alleadged, of fome, who have distilled & put Hony into their eares, being deaffened, full of windes, and afcending vp into the braine : this must be understood of very old Hony, fodden with foure times as much old Wine, for all hot medicaments (as very olde wine and Hony are) they doe disperse windes very easily, and other cold causes, which procure deaffenesse, and other accidents in those parts. That it causeth the drying vp of Itches, Tetters, Ring-wormes, and other fuch like defoedations in the skinne; proceedeth from hence, that it is absterfine of his owne nature, and a great enemy to al corruption, for whatfoeuer thinges are 30 confected in Hony, will neuer corrupt. By the same reason, it worketh the death of Itches and Tetters, which are nothing elfe, but meere vncleannesse and filthineffe of the body. In regard of fight, questionlesse, being mingled with a little Fenell water, and so distilled into the eyes; it quitteth them from blearings and waterish humors, which congealing in the, doth greatly trouble the fight, especially 40 in such as vse ouermuch weeping. To conclude, Ladies and Gentlewomen doc wash their faces and hands therewith, to keepe them smooth, faire and white. And Cato was wont to fay; That to live long, we must vie Hony within the body, and oyle without.

Galen thus finishing his proofe (by very good reasons) that the olde man had ipoken truely; would not fo giue it ouer, but though the young man (who was oppositively contrary to the other) had declared fo much against Hony, yet would he maintaine the truth of his speeches likewise. And directing his eye to him, began in this manner, discoursing with plenty of words, after the Affatick course, and not Laconically, as his good and an-

time. Let no man count it ftrange (quoth he) if thou doe millike the vie of Hony, and lay fo much blame vpon it : for it is very contrary to thy nature, being of an angry and chollericke temper, hot in ac- The fignes of tion, and eafily displeased. And though I a chollericke had not heard thee speak, nor beheld any man. action of thine: yet very fight had beene fufficient to me; thy haire being red, thy skin yellowish, thy body leane and meager; these are enow whereby to direct judgement. First, let me tell thee, that diseases are neuer cured, but by their con Hony quite traries, for whereas thou faidft, that thou Feauer tertihadft a Feauer tertian, and supposed it to an. come by the vie of Hony, a food enforced in the time of thy captivity: I make no doubt at all thereof, for Hony conuerteth it felfe quickly into red choller, in any body naturally hot, as thine is, and I wonder it did not more hurt vnto thee, because it was in no manner prepared. a certaine malignity, which they have naturally in them. As Coriander, which is venemous of it selfe; Neuerthelesse,corindigestions, and filled with windenesse. In like manner, crude and raw Hony, not repurged from his excrements; offendeth the stomack, engendering a defire of cafling, and descending into the intestines, begetteth there such windinesse, and so painefull gripings, as are not possible to be declared, and therfore thou haft affirmed nothing but truth. As for the drie cough which it raised in thee, there is no doubt thereof, for but by eating it rawe; in all liquid things (that are thick and impure) received into the body. And his tartnesse or faltnesse (not being scummed away before):prouoketh a dry cough, yet auoyding nothing in spitting; because no matter at al was desceded to the lights & liuer . Which hapned not in like fort to this old man, for he had phlegm enough in him, to let fall downe ordinarily vpon in him, to let fall downe ordinarily vpon those parts. But fot that report, that Ho-not engende ny should engender wormes, it is quite wormes. contrary to all reason; because all things steeped in Hony, are exempt from ver-cient M. Hypocrates was wont to do in his For albeit that many viands are good, yet Rawe Hory there be some that (before they are eaten) doe require preparation, to correct red is danger tous. rected with Vineger, it is an excellent Coriander medicine for the Homack, transiled with venemous. fome part thereof must needs fal into the Crude Horry control of the lights and liner, as it doth in all liquid things (that are shiel, and in a dry cough mine or corruption. But if it fall out, that a man vsing Hony, had wormes before, or is enclined naturally to them : then it dorh maintaine and nourish them, euen as Suger doth; but it can bee no cause of their generation.

Chap.16.

Concerning Hydromell or Metheelin.

Metheglin, for what persons it is good.

drunke in the continuance of thy Feauer Terrian, and prefumed to prolong the same : there is nothing more certaine, then that this drinke (composed of Hony and Water) did it. But it was not caused by any defect in the liquor, which of it felfe is most wholesome, for Men of melancholly habitude, and for difeafes of black Choller and Phlegmaticke: but for any chollcricke perfon, fuch as thy felfe is, most certaine is it, that it is a true foment, and a maintainer offiery Agues, euen fuch as thine 20 then was, and he was greatly to be blamed, that thereto did aduise or councell thee. And whereas thou faiest, that it is an enimy to fuch places, as the skin is flaied or gone off: it is to be confidered, that it was no Vicer, like voto the other; for it detergeth, cleaneth, and dryeth not. To regenerate new skinne, we must not apply deterfine Medicins, but fuch as are deficcative, without any mordication. And I credit well, are not therefore good, being fitly ap-

I conclude then (by these reasons)

nion : but all your contrariety hath no 40 that you both haue spoken very well of Hony, albeit ye are so different in opi-

other ground, but that the younger man of ye both, did not vie Hony duely, and with confideration and good indgement, according as the circum-flances required. Thus Galen gaue ending to this Controversie, and it was to be feared, that if Galen had not thus moderated the matter: the difference had caused blowes between them. Such debates and contentions, are daily feen in Countrey Townes and Villages, when a man will rashly commend his

Scithe, Hatchet, Sickle, Dogge, Bull, or Cow, beyond his Neighbours, and thereupon are ready to goe to Law.

But breaking off this discourse, because

I would not be offentine to the reader:

I wil adde another Chapter, to declare that burnt Paper was much more conuenient for it : but yet we must not say. that if Medicines be badly vsed, they plyed.

Galens conclu fion of thefe two contra-whence the matter of Hony is taken, and how it is made.

CHAP. XVI.

How Hony is made ; Whence Manna proceedeth; Of the Aiery Hony; And of Sa closed in their stomackes : afterward, it

Of making Hony.

Ony commeth from the Dew of Hearier, which falleth upon the Hearbes and Flowers, and is fuckt up by the Bees, and envp by the Bees, and enis vomited or cast vp at their mouthes, and they preserve much part thereof in the hollow of their lawes to line ther- Natures proon during winter, and other hard times. Man.

Prouident Nature hath fo well ordered al thinges, for the benefit and commo-pretty Flies, in gathering fufficient for themselues, and liberall extendure for Man alfo. For it is a great merchandife, helpfull for divers Maladies, and a finguler nourifiment for some bodies, as may bee gathered by our former difcourfe.

dity of Man; that thee hath bestowed many vertues and vigours on those Nature hath beene so bountifull to Man, and ftill continueth the same affe- Hony-dew ction; that the caufeth great quantitie raine in form of this Hony dew to fall, even like raine places. vpon the earth in some Countries, vpon the Mountaines, and places where Frankinsence groweth. To gather it. the Inhabitants lay fleeces of Wooll cause the Dew to fall vpon the flieces, which drinke it in afterward, they presse the flieces, and receiving this ho ny-dew into convenient Veffels ; they boyle and purific it, making vie thereof in their foode, as also in their Medicines, as they thinke best, and it is much better then that which is wrought by the Bees.

under the Trees, and bear the Trees, to

Galen faith, that there fell fuch great | Galen his requantity of this Dew (in his time) in port of Hony his Countrey of Pergamus; that the Countrey people (greatly delighted therein) gaue thankes therefore to Inpiser. Ælianus writeth alfo, that there fell fuch plenty thereof in India; in a Region which is called Prasia, and so moistened the Graffe, that the Sheepe, Kine, and Goates feeding thereon, yeelded Milke sweete like Hony, which was very pleasing to drinke. And when they vfed that Milke in any difeafe, they needed not to put any Hony therein, to the end it should not corrupt in the stomacke: as it is appointed in Hecticke Feauers, Confumptions, Tifickes, and for others that are vicered in the intestines, as is confirmed by the Histories of Portugall.

Euripides faith, that meere Hony fell vponthe Trees in Media; and Alianus faith, that in Trapezonde, the people gathered Hony on the Boxe-tree leanes;

and albeit it was bitter, and of strong fauour, yet it cured fuch as were mad, and them that were tormented with the falling sicknesse. Doubtlesse, it is very likely, that Hony should rellish of the Plant or Hearbes quality, from whence it is gathered : for if the Tree be venomous, fuch will the Hony bee, and if the Hearb or Graffe be healthful, so is it likewise. Which was very well observed by Diosearides, who faith; In Heraclea of Pontas, there was some Honie fovenemous, that it would reduce all the fes, that aid eate thereof: but the Hearbe

Rhue being presently taken, was animme-diate remedie. In Sardignia it is gathered of very bitter taft, because it may bee, that much Worme-wood or Sothernwood groweth in that Countrey : and yet notwithstanding, it is not veno-

And to the end, that nothing may be omitted, of what may be faid concerning Hony; I finde, that there is another kinde of Dew, beside the former,

which congealeth of it felfe, & is found and taken vpon the leaves and branches of Trees, vpon Hearbs and flones, and fometimes on the very ground, forming it self into litle Grains, like Gum, of day being very sweete in tast . And this dew or moissure, is called grained

Manna, the best whercof commeth from Calabria, where they take it on their common Ath-trees, vppon the wide commons, and (many times) vp-on some other Trees, by some secret of which falleth from heaven before break 50

mous, but irksome to tast.

Euripides and vertue of Ho-

Hony hinde-

reth Milke

ting.

from corrup-

Sec. 1 Hony both & venomous

Dioscorides con cerning hony body into a sweat, and take away their sen-

Hony gathered in Sardig

Another kind of dew belide

> Grained Man na, the best is Nature. It maketh the belly loofe, the vertue of without any violence, as by daily expertis Mannain rience ir is to be feene, for if a man take vie. the waight of two ounces and an halfe thereof; it releaseth the belly gently, and purgeth choller particularly : nor is there any feare, in giving it to Women great with childe, and young fucking Children, if they neede any purging. Now adaies, because in stead of Hony most part of men doe make vfe of Suger, as being more amiable vnto Nature; it shall not vary much from our purpose, if wee enter into some breefe discourse thereof.

Suger is but the Pith or Marrow of The definitiof the Cane, by a rift made thereinto, as being over full of fugred pith, which congealed to the Cane like a Gumme; and long time (both before and after) only through defect of knowing Suger in those times.

But fince Madame Auatice discoues Couerousines red the Art, of preffing and boyling the first inthose Suger Canes, deriuing thence ger. great aboundance of Suger : it hath happened, that the Indians have (and yer yearly do)cut the Suger Canes, making also a yearely planting of the. And therefore there needeth no maruaile, if those great Suger Canca be not to bee foundiwherein nature shewed her effects, and fo (by confequent) the naturall Suger yfed by our fore fathers, is vtterlie loft. In flead whereof, our moderne rimes have vied Suger-candy, which is arteficiall and cleare, drawne Surver candy forth of minerall Salt; being fucked vp of thefe dairs on the tongue, whereby is wholely refembleth the Suger of out Auncients! The transfer of The certaine cultiued Reedes or Canes, on of Suger. naturally produced, and boiled in Water, vntillit grow to fome hardnesse. The Suger, whereof our auncients (as Pliny, Galen, Dioscorides, Paulus Agine- Pliny, Galen, pliny, Galen, Diofeorides, Pantos Inglorides, paulus Aegme none other, but that which came forth tus. no other kinde of Suger was knowne, The naturall but onely that, which quenched thirst Suger wedly in the horrest fiery Agues. Quite contrary to the Suger of these daies, which prouoketh thirlt, and turneth it felfe into bitter choller, euen as Hony doth. This Hony was then rare, and all Sauces, Conserues, Confections, Opiates, Electuaries , and other medicinable compositions, were made with Hony;

Chap.17. Of Kings among the Gothes.

Difference between Hony & Sugar in

The comparison which our Physitions make betweene Hony and Sugar, is, that they are both Absterfine, Desiccatine, and Refolueable; but yet Sugar much leffe then Honie. Sugar is not fo contrarie to the stomacke, as Honie, neither so hot, that it may be numbered amongest those Medicines, which may be adminiftred in Feauers: and this is the opinion both of Galen and Auicen.

The invention of boyling, and making

How long time it is lince fugar was firf

Maiorque and Minorque.

it into a Licquid kinde of Loanes, for common Traffique and distribution (in fuch great quantity) through all parts of the world, began within these last 800. yeares. In which time (vet farre off from the Originall) the Affricans, and people of Asia, being Neighbors to the Indiaes, got the fight of making Sugar in India, & preparing their grounds aptly for Sugar Canes; by transporting some of those sigar Canes into their Countries, and hufbanding their tillage for them . Afterward, they communicated the manner therof to other people, as (at this instant) there is verie good Sugar made in Egipt, Madera, the Canarie Illands, throughout all Barbary, Sicily, the Ifles * Baleares, in fome partes of spaine, and other places . The Reader may perceive by this Dif-course, in what case Honie is good, and in what euil: how it ought to be applied. and in what things it is best vsed; What difference there is betweene Honie and Sugar, and the generation both of the one and other . By obseruing also the disputation, which hapned between those men of different yeares, some profit may bee gathered; in what kinde it is wholefome, Nutritiue, and Physicall ; and in what Nature alfo, dangerous and hurt-

CHAP. XVII.

How the Gothes vied to elect their Kings. Great, Fat, and Corpulent of Bodie . Contrariwife, how the Sarrazins wold have their Kings to be Meager Leane and of (ma! stature.

T were needleffe to declare, what maner of people the Sarrazins vvere, haning formerly spoken sufficient thereof, in a Chapter onely thereto appertaining. And for the Gothes likewife, fomewhat hath alreadie bin faide, and the rest remaineth to more convenient place. My instant purpose is, to relate of what stature and habitude of bodie, both those Nations vsed to create their Kings, therby to appeare more apt and proper for command ouer them. The Gothes would not elect anie man to be their King, except he were tall, great, groffe, and verie corpulent. On the contrary, the Sarazins would have no King to commaund over them, except he were little, lean, and low of stature. Whosoener considereth well on these matters, will find neither side to be voide of reason, albeit their opinions were so opposite; and therefore wee will begin with them of great, grofe, and cor-

mendable in a young man, and it begesteth him much grace; but it is an unprofitable charge to age, and much worfe then smalneffe. Doubtleffe, a Prince of high great apparaunce, and goodly shape, is much more respected by the greater part of his backe in their Ships divers Captaines of the Caribes, and made a present of them to King Charles the ninth, who was then young in yeares, onely about the age of fifteene. The Saluages perceiuing his pulent condition.

Hippocrates, the Prince of Physitions, Aphor. 94.lib.z faith; Great flature is verie feemly & com-

Kinges for, great, and tal, and others leane,lowe,&

279

people; then one that is lowe, leane, and little. To approue this certain Normans, hauing made a Voyage into the Countries of Brafile (where the people were The Normas tearmed Saluages, and went whollie Naked, feeding on humaine flesh) brought great attendance, and that enery one was verie respective of him, demanded what he was? One told them, that he was the King, who absolutely commaunded all France, a Countrie of large extendure, and well peopled. The Caribes answered, faying ; Surely, there was but ill proceeding in the election of fo young a King, rather ger in choise pointing their fingers to two Switzers, of great corpulence, and were of the Guard belonging to the faid King. It is contemptible and vnseemelie, to behold a chiefe person, as the king, Captaine, or other men of command, to bee of finall stature, and their servants great. The first King of I/rael, which GOD chose and gaue to his people, was Saule;

The judge-

Men of fmall

3. Booke.

Small stature

Hippoc Aphorif.

Great flature is very hurtfull to age.

in them of leffer corpulence.

The discommoditie of great or grofe corpulence.

A good rea-ion against corpulency of Concerning men of indif-ferent flature

a man of high and great stature. After fuch fightly personage, commended by Hippocrates in a yong man; he addeth, a great discommoditie, saying ; Great Corpulence is insupportable and hurtfulto ages because a great man being old, becommeth bending or bowing, and hath labor enough to beare the bigneffe of his bodie by the puffing up or swelling in his legges. Moreover, for the most part they are Cowardes, without magnanimitie or bodily strength : For neither their spirits, natural heat, or animal forces, are fo well affembled and united, as If occasion so required, that such men should be exposed to danger, either by Sea or Land, or some misfortune or aduerfity shold befall them, they wil quickly shake and tremble with feare: which hapneth thus to them, because their Na- 20 turall heat languisheth, their spirites are thin and little, and their blood leffe boyling, Besides, Naturall Vertue spendes it felfe, when it spreads into a long & large extendure; which vniting and enclosing it selfe in a little bodie, is much more vigorous and powerfull then that which is heer and there disperfed. And that which yet is worse, what grace could the Gethes finde, in a bodie fo great and groffe? For ouer and beside, that they must needs be vnable for all royal actions, either in bodie or understanding; fo likewise, life could not prolong it selse so wel in them, as it commonlie dooth in leaner bodies The reason is, because grosse corpulency hath not so manie vitall spirites, neither fach plentie of bloode in the Veines and Arteries, as Leannesse generally hath. For, Fatnesse doth cause great oppression, whereby (fuch men) doe verie foone fuffocate vnder anie laborious trauell, or sharpe disease. It procureth also, that in the least ficknesse or indisposition happening to them; they thereby become daily tired, panting, fighing, grieuing, hart-leffe, deie&ed, and in fuch fort emptied of all courage, that life it selfe (thogh ten-derly affected) is tedious and irkesome to them.

Men of leffer flature, haue (naturally) a meruailous vigor, and the faculties of Nature strongly combined. We may discerne in them verie excellent graces, both Corporall and Spirituall, with fingular promptitude and subtiltie of mind, and that in fuch fort, as not only they excell, or equall (at least) the others in any disposition: but likewise, in strength and fwiftnesse, as also in goodnes of stomack for eating or drinking. I have oftentimes noted in our Armies, some French men of flender flature, who have bin drinking a Vie (as we terme it) with Switzers and Germaines, great of bodie, and verie fat: fore fat Cor but the Switzers and Germains were foo- pulence. ner drunke, became fleepie, reeling, and fell to the ground, vnable to vse any function of foule or bodie; then the other light timberd men, that went away clenly. The cause of all these thinges remaineth, not only in great capacitie & largenesse of the Veines and other Vesselles:

but likewise in heate both Naturall and vehement, which boileth, concocteth, and confumeth all Likewife, in a strong and firme braine, which doth not eafilie apprehend or receive fumes :but, in fuch maner, as a Tile made red hot with fire, or asa hot Iron, that flips water off, being cast vponthem; also, like to a verie drie ground, which suddenly dispatcheth and confumeth Water cast on it, for there it loofeth it felfe, and paffeth away, as in a fubile vapour.

Moreover, that commonly there is more magnanimitie and valour in a litle bodie, then in the corpulent, may be approued by the Annals and Histories of Pepin the lide Fraunce, in the life of King Pepin, called man preferd before Childe the Lowe or Little man, Major of the rick the great Pallace, who lived about the yeare, 750. He was of no corpulence, yet contained in him a great spirite, generous and robust of his members : which was the cause, that all the people of France, reiecled Childerick (who was their legitimate and Naturall King, a man of great stature) and hauing (i orne him as a Monk, did locke him vp in a Monastery, there to end his daies, because he was tearmed De Nothing, a Coward, dull, and ordinarily addicted to drunkennesse.

We read in the Romain Histories, that aman of Gaule, of immeasurable great- Ofa great neffe, and higher (by the head) then anie little Romain in the Army, called or Challenged anie Romaine to fight with him in fingle combate. Among all the rest, Marcus Corninus (being a man of lowe stature) could not endure this infolence and arrogancy in the Gaule, but vndertook the fight with him, and flew him, in faire warre, as we yse to tearme it.

Chapits. Of Perfunes and Syreet Povvders.

The addifed led tweete fa-

Tho Corthageniant weter of no fuch humoun asithe Gothes and Sangarase left their eyes were not fixed on Eatuelle 94 Leannesse fireacon small stature; but 198 auman that was originanimious and Wertumes, documentally refrecting dithet ben dilybonney or feature ... broprices kind dist. the Corbrowest not lookly in the election of their Kingos, deale Sagrarias Indicomminer, they worepdople word of A dictions or Hearning, and wole between which they won conflict by are in the ritudes of men , then anylindistry of Thunis by the Spaniards, whiminengem 10 On the donmario, the Barazini Affeit canes; and Ambians; had amongs them many men of girdar Learning, and woll read in all the Sciences a Manonett all other excellent qualities, they were very skilfull in the chose of their Kinges as being able (by Philiogndenie) to gather mature judgemendof their Magnapimit tie, Vertue, and Vices, well knowing, that in great and groffe Bodies, neyther Science; Godeh Spirite, but Generofitie, hath (commonly) any labiding . And to this Day, they are knowne to be good

Of the abuse committed, in carrying sweet Drugges, Powders, and, Perfumes, 41 bout Men or Weomen ; What harms thereby ensueth, and at wwhat time they came to be first veed, and of their. properties.

Ethinks, that the Romans deals both wifely and worthily, in ordaining (at the request of their Cenfors, P. Licinius Craffus, &

C. Iulius Cafar) that no man shoulde fell any fweet Odonrs, or Arromaticall Vnguents, which commonly were brought forth of strange Countries. For this law, they had (vindoibtedly) very great reaeidents infering by the carriage fon, because such sweet perfumes and sanours, do make men effeminate, weak in the brain, and all the other animal parts: engendering nothing alls, but vertigino-frie or addinethe, and great to ments in the head with trembling of the Nerues, Henergy with the interest a pale and the about the color in the face, and the same left-fluor ascident, which Quicklines causely, among the Viorsers, in Gold Sub and removed a sub do sub do Histograph Substance Both Soft Graph of Third Alex

debegge great paines in the head, and al

Suchas make vee of them in wearing them rifin.28 Lib. 9

dies imperfe-

about their hoods: tis is only but to attract voluptuous Loue, whether it be in Men or Wanter, It was never feen, that any brave Princes, Captaines, or men of great crudition, and that made account of verrue, did vie any of those Perfumes, or Muske (auours. Not any (as I have already faid) but the voluptuous, or fuch as hane form defect in their bodie, do carry luch finels about them; as aftrong vulauoury breth, Sweete Per-

Vicer in the Lights and Lunges, beging commonly called, a corrupt & finking breath Or for rotten teet 1, ful of psyrifed food flicking in them. Or for luch as have a Goat-like favour, by reason of an ill-forting fweat ynder their arme pits, & other parts of the bodie. For fych people, I fay, it is permitted (as a Maddow) Who are alow to their defects) to carrie Bertumes, or edio weare fweete Powders about them, or elle to perfumes. haue their Garments perfumed. Martial fpcaketh the verie fame in his Epigrams to Pollhatyus. The Eaftgrue people did much more vie these sweete Vinguentes, then they of the VVell; and were extraordinarily addicted to Luxuries and Vo-Iuptuousnesse, beyond all other parts of the world.

Face.

The verie greatest antiquitie that I The antiquitie can finde, for the vie of these tweete Vnguents, is in Genefit, where it is faid, That Jacob fent fuch guiftes into Egipt, because there was a great dearth of Corne, and to be favoured of Infepts, who distributed the Kings corn out of his Garners, which he hadde referred to preferue his people. or to make profit thereof, or rather, by divine inspiration. Salomon in his Canticles, speaketh of most sweete Oyntmentes, especiallie in the first Chapter. The like dooth his Father DAVID,

Cant. 2, 1, 11

and that hee did Annoint his owner After

XUM

Very bad ac-

281

The Sarrazins were great louers of lerning

Phyliognomifies, and, burfor them, all the Learning which the Gregians left vs.

had veterlie beene loft, thorough those 130 bloody warres of the Gethes Wandalles, Ostrogothes, Wwife other, and other bar-> ាស៊ី ទ្រង់នៅ សាយ២៤៤៤ ប្របិទា and the control theory CHAP, XVIII invoce. W Large entreur of his morning barous people in a mileness are roani galifican i dilani riana

Genel.43, Iz.

The composition of all per-

Plutark invit.

Herodot in Es

Onwhat

beaftly plea-futes fweete periumes are imployed.

After that Alexander had conquered on Darsus, there was found (amonged the other spoiles) a fittle Coffer full of thost fweet and fin gular Vnguents. We read in Herodosus, that Cambyfes King of Perfla, and Sonne to Cyrus, Tent His Ambat fadors with very rich prefents, and vellels full of precious Oyuments, to Macrobi-M, King of the Ethyopians. But the King having viderfloode by the Ithyophages, (who brought him this Present) in what manner those compositions were mades would by no me anes accept them, beecause, they were too effeminate for a good Lesson to vs that are Christians, and thinke our elues to excell all other in the worlde for Vertue: that wee are his Countrey of Ethyopia. For, in thefe our dayes, wee cannot bee content with perfuming our Garments, and the haire on our heads; but many are growne to fucli horride immodesty, as to annoint those secretes both in men and VVeomen (only to prottoke Luft, and for the more lascinionsnesse) which were not ordained for any such brutish wickednesse. fiveet Perfumes, not to vie in their prinat Orifons, but only for Vaine-glorie, and where any interchange of affection is, to procure the better meanes for voluptuous pleasures, and seeme more acceptaperfumed but with Sitim woode, accor-

The Authors

In troth, this barbarous Moore gane much more barbarous then hee, and all 20 Many alfo, have their Beades made of 30 ble to his wanton Mistris, or thee to her as idle feruant. Incense bestowd in churches, or on hallowed Altars, are matters of no great value or moment. And yet the Altar of God in Ierufalem, was not 40 ding to his owne appointment: Let me not heerein be miltaken, as if I would inferre, that Benjamine, Storax, Amber, Muske, Ciuette, and fuch like, which are the principall foundation of Vnguents, Ponders and sweets, are wholy to bee rejected; for they are of great Vertues, and have peculiar properties against divers diseases, and then they may lawfully be yied, but not abused. Not as did Muleaffes King of Thunis, who in the yeare, 1554. having left his Kingdome, to require aid of Charles the fift, Emperour, fearing the Turkish forces, which the Admiral to Barbaroffa prepared agains him; wherefocuer hee went, hee abused these blefsings very highly. Frontie had ordina-rily (well-neare) ferued in to his Fable al Peacocke and two Phefants, farced full Orion previous and odorificious. Val giring amounting control and Corows feet beliefdis other delicious. Sawaes ied weet fa-Pottages se indats dreffed in like manen and this was plainly feene at Waples. He was for extremely befored in the forweare fatours, and yet without came onneedel, that when he was cast out of his kingdorn for his cruelties, wherein he was re-feated by the faid Emperor, and at the facker of Thunis by the Spaniards, when he return ned to his Cafile, and found his Cabinet emptied of those precious persumes, which the insolent Souldiers (not knowing their value) carelelly threw away, he faid. That he grieved more for his Delicate Drugges, then if he had lost his wholkingdome, which he had but newly reconques ceitin a King red, by the helpe of the Emperor. Going afterward againe, to entreate fresh succour being still feareful of Barbareffa) while hee went about this bustneffe, he placed his Sonne (as his Lieut- The fon fuptenant) in his Kingdome; who feazed it planteth the only to himfelfe. Which when Muleaffes heard of the returned (with a few people) backero Thuris, thinking they wold open the Gates vnto him ; but hee found the contrary, for his Son having flain about fifteene hundred of his Followers, and finding the King to be none in number amongst them: at length his Father was knowne, only by the sweete smell of his Odours and Viguents; and his Son Amades beeing possesses and nis Son The milerable end of his eyes to be pulled out. Beholde, what mitassis. benefite this wretched King gotte by his fweete failours and perfumes, being vied vpon no cause or necessity. I have known too many, that bearin gover-muhaffection to this vanitie, and enriched with more wealth then wisedom, haue vtterly loft their health, and falne into exceeding

Thus yee fee , what I have collected for yee, out of many good and auncient The Authout Authors concerning the viage of drugs his condulion or fweet Perfumes; what euil vie is made of them, and how being vnfitly applied, they are the chiefe causes of manie maladies, and feruing (for the most part) for nothing but voluptuousnesse. I hold Opinion, that no man dooth more abuse them, then a man that shouldemostre-

Of the name ambar or Am-spect his honor, and hold it in highest recommendation; to be fo much forgetful of himfelfe, as to feed his efferninate and voluptuous apetites, with thefe vnfitting & wanton procurements. Now, because there are great controuerfies, and manie are ignorant, from whence wee haue our Amber-Greece, Muske, Ciuit, Beniamine, and Storax, wherewith are compofed the faid Vnguents, Powders, Sweete Pomanders, and Perfumes, it shall not alter our determination, in our next fucceeding Chapter (to recreate the Readers spirits) to speake something more of them, and of their faculties.

CHAP. XIX.

of Amber-Greece; From wheree it is brought : The wearth and properties thereof. And certaine Fables (concerning the (ame) refuted.

There are twe fenerall kinds of Amber.

Y purpose is not, to speake of that Amber, which is bred among Rockes of coloured ftone, and (by his Natine Vertue) attracteth

Straw thereto, as the Adamant doth Iron : But of that fweet Aromaticall juice of Amber-Greece; wherof, because many men haue diversopinions, concerning the production of a thing fo rare & precious, I thought good to make some briefe discourse. I woulde gladly also refute diners Fables, delinered in publicke conference thereof, without alledging any Authours in my conclusions, that write or speake by heare-fay; but onely fuch perfons as have feen the places from whence it is had.

Concerning the name of Ambar or Amber, it is so called in all Countries of the name. Our ancients have supposed, that it is the feede of the W hale, which is left by her vpon the Waters, and fo is gathered, because in the Bellies of some Whales, there hath beene found thereof, Nicholas Monardus, a Spanish Physition, faith; That in the year, 1590 (himfelfe being prefent) a Whale was taken neere to the Canarie Islands, which are tearmed the fortunate, and in the Bellie thereof, was found about four pounds waight of Amber. Afterward, he was alfo present, at the taking of manie other, with their young Ones, but not a jotte was to bee found in any one of them. Others are of the minde, that amber is nothing else but the excrement of the Whale, which he attoydeth by his egestions in April and May: because hee then feedeth on certaine fruites growing on the Sea-bankes, which are verie odorifferous. Some do affirme, that it is not any excrement of the Whale, but of another huge Fish, as great; or much more in greatneffe exceeding the Whale, and it hath a head more hard then Marble,& neuer swimmeth but in the Northerne Seas. But all these conjectures come up thing neere to truth, because all thinges of good and great fations, do com from Countries and Regions which are hor; as experience deliuereth by our Spice- A firange Fifth ries, of which, no one kinde was euer

... I finde fome other Authors, who fav.

that Amber is fought for and found, beingdeuoured by a Great Fishe, named the Azell, which dying, and floating vp-on the Waues, hee is quickely knowne of truth heerein; for Amber is not anie ly or cold Countries.

knowne to be produced, from Norther- befound.

by Marriners, that feaze on him with their Hookes, and so dragge him on the frore. There opening his Bellie, they Amber is alounde flore of Amber; but that is onelie user and friend good and pure, which they finde against his chine-bone. But there is no aparance kinde of poilou, but a dear Friend to the heart and life. On the otherfide, Fithes doe never feeke anie thing to hurt them, except by Trecherie vied to them, and that men do mingle Venom among other foode, which is apte and proper for them, as they do to Lyons, Wolnes, Foxes, Leopards, Rattes, and diners other harmefull Beaftes, that live on the land-Many also have bin perswaded, that Amber is a kind of froth or four of the led to bee a Sea but this Coniccture, is even as Fabulous as the other . For , Amber is not found in those Seas, where W hales place, where the Sca is continuallie full of Eillowes, or store of froth appeareth. Theuer faith, that hee Learned of diuers Arabes, lewes, and Eafterne Greeks dispersed heere and there thorough the Turks jurisdiction, that there are certain

Bbz.

doo frequent, and much leffe in any

Variety of O. jound, & how men come by

Amber fuppo

Birds in the Isles of the Voiques (which A verie erroneous opiui-on of Andrew Theuet, concer arescituated in the way leading to Mozambique, towards the North) as great as our Geele, and called by them Afchibobne. These Birds, doe ordinarily withdraw themselves, farre off from any Inhabitations of men, and pearch in the Night time, either in these vn-inhabited Mands, or on the toppes and pointes of Rockes and Clifts, for auoyding difturbance in their rest: and there they mute in great aboundance, because they company in huge flightes together, euen as our Cranes or other Wilde Fowles do with vs. It is faide, that this Dung or muting of these Birdes, is true Amber, Which beeing concocted in the heate of the Sunne, purified by the Moones power in the Night, and refined by the ayres Subtilty, which keepeth continually vpon those promontories: it so remaineth, till the Sea doth swell and rise (either by those violent Windes, or some out-ragious Tempest) and carrie it thence away. Floating thus, by Morfelles or Fraggements upon the Waues, it is one while cast into Creekes, Hauens, or Neighboring Strands: and another while, deuoured or swallowed up by Fishes . But, it beeing a matter undigeftine, they are en- /30 forced to cast it uppe againe. And the other, that continueth still swimming hither and thither, yeeldeth a reason (by Three feueral these seuerall meanes) of three kindes of Amber. The one, is of a Whitish Colour, which is the true Naturall qualitie of fine Amber-Greece. The second, is more Clowdie and obscure, and yet good account is likewise made thereof. But, as for the thirde fort, which hath beene swallowed by Fishes, and sent vp againe, thorough the lacke of Digestion, being Blacke, waightie, and of much leffe fauour, they reckon it to be of flender perfection, and therefore, make no esteeme at all thereof. But all these thinges, come nothing neere vnto the trueth, and I am verie forrie, that Theues (having travailed fo much) shoulde set downe this in Writing, euen in the verie same manner, as I have delivered it, beeing a matter no way likely or pro-

Authors, who onely and chiefelie hatie spoken of this Amber, do say; That it is a kinde of Bitumen, comming foorth of Acius, and Simeon Sethius, Greeke

Ecius and Sionly Writers concerning Amber.

the Pountains of Springs in the bottom of the Sea, and that by floating upon the water it becommeth hardened, as manie things elfe doe, which honer vppon the Seas, being first bred in them; all which while, they are fost and tender, but comming forth, they wax presently hardned, as Corrall doth. This Amber thus floating, when the Seas are angry and tempestuous, as many times they bee: there the Amber is is store thereof found among the Rocks tound. and stones, as also about the trees growing on the Sea-shores, when the Eastwind, or else the North-east (but more enclining to the East) bloweth. A great quantitie thereof is found in Islands where Sofa'a, and in the Isles of Comaro, Demo- the bestiAmgra, Mozambique, and along this Tract, ber is found. cuen to the Isles of Maldina, or Naledina, which looke into the East. But when Zephirm, or the Westerne Windes do moue the Seas to choller, then is a great quantitie found in the later named Islandes. There have beene fome fragments found floating on the Sea, as great and tall as any man; and others of the bredth of foure spannes, and twentie in length. Some do affirme, that they have a whole Ifle (as it were) all built of pure Amber; and within some fewe daies after, when fearch was made for it, it was dispersed, and could not be found.

Garcias d'Orta, a Portugall Physicion, from whom I tooke this latter opinion: Orta, a Portugate opinion: and with whom, the best judgements of these times doe give consent, for, being witnesse. alwaies found veritable, and hauing been present in the Countries where this drug is had, where heekept possession of an Island belonging vnto the King of Portugal, wherein great quantity of Amber was daily founde : hee was of the fame minde with Æcus and Sethius , & heard them when they delinered their ludgement therein. Hee faith also, that in the yeare, one thousand fine hundered fiftie fine, neere to the Promontory of Comaro, a great lumpe or proportion thereof was founde, which waighed more then three thousand pounds waight, and hee that found it (supposing it to be a kind of Pitch or Bitumen) fold it almost for nothing. For himselfe, hee sayeth; the very greatest lumpe that ever hee faw, did not exceed about the waight of fifteene pounds. But the Merchants which tranaile into Ethiopia, giue good affurance,

Chap.19.

The Merch-

that they do ordinarily behold pieces of inuch greater feantling is for all the pafants that com fage from Sophala, euen to Brana, aboundeth plenrifully in Amber. In the country of Brafile, there hath bin some found, and yet is, but very rarely. In the year, one thousande fine hundered thirtie, a fragment was there found, contayning the waight of foure poundes, in fayling vnto a Porte of Portugall, called Setu-

Of Amber-Greece, &c.

Aniber found in the beakes of Birds, and cleaning to

by the rich

Some fay, that Amber hath bin found in the Beakes or Billes of certaine Birds. which may be fo : and cleaning to fome Cockles and Scallops of the Sea, which I immagine happened, by being fastned thereto. But, Maister Nicholas Raffess, a verie Learned Man (my intimate Friende, living yet in Para) and curious in fearch of the rarest thinges; shewed mee what manner of Beakes those were, and we plainly perceived, that they were the beakes of Sounds or Cuttle-Fithes, and not of Birds.

Amber, is of great estimation among the Wealthie Indians, for they eate it in their Meates; and looke how much the price appeareth in bigneffe, so much the greater is his price in Value, euen as of precious Stones . There is no Countrey or Region, where more fale is made thereof, then in China : for, as the Porsugales obtained fauour of the China Kinges, to Trafficke with that kingdom, and bringing thence some small quantitie of Amber, they folde the Waight of twentic Ounces, for fifteene hundered Crownes: Which beeing vinderstoode by other Merchants, they broght thence more store afterward, because (thence-

In Fraunce, it is commonly folde (at this day) for eight or nine Crownes the Ounce, at the leaft : Neuertheleffe, it is fometimes more, and fometimes forward) they would not pay fuch a hye price in that Countrey.

Amber maintaineth helth and long life.

Amber fold at deare value

end other

The Vertue

Let no man count it straunge, that it is fo curioufly coneted by Rich and Noble persons ; for it hath manie especiall 50 properties, whereby to preferue foundheffe of Health, and to maintaine long life, as I will briefely declare . First of all, it ftrengtheneth the Praine, appealing all phines therein; either of the Netues or Heade; comming of Colde califes by chafing the fore-head therewith, and all the Head oner, or making a good bigge Emplaifter, and mingling a little Oyntment of Muske with it, lay it fo to the Head. If a good lumpe there For memorie of, be hanged about the Necke of Man braine. or Woman, tempered with a little Lignum Aloes, and a finall quantity of Musk, the very finell thereof cheareth vp a dult braine, augmenteth memory, and reuiueth both the spirits and heart extraordinarily. Refides, it is a fingular remedy . gainst the plague, and all colde deflu it ons, onely by petfuming a Night-Cappe therewith. There is nothing more beneficiall for auncient people, and toilengthen life in them, if they moderately vie it in finelling either in perfuming their Garments, anointing their faces or mingling it amongft their Meates . A little For Women pouder of the Load-frone compounded with it, and applied Emplaifter wife to the Nauell, it holdethand restraineth the Fruit, that it fall not before due and con- to them. uenient time. It is a fingular Remedie. not onely against the procidence of the Matrixe, but likewife to pretient the fifffocation; being applied with a litle Corton, and yied in the focret parts: Applying it both outwardly & inwardly it maketh Women fruitfull, whose barrennes is caused by coldnesse. It profiteth greatly for paines in the heart and stomacke. occasioned by windinesse. Such as are For the fal-afflicted with the Epilepsie, that is to say, the falling ficknesse, or disease of S. John. if they vie it as an ordinary finell, or receine it as a perfume, it quite appealeth it, or caufeth a mightie affwaging thereof, as hath beene many times crediblie experimented. In like maner, it is verie For the Pally finguler good against the Palife, if, be-fide taking it inwardly, yee vie it as an Oyntment to the necke and Chin bone of the backe, mingled with fome nernall

If it be taken in Wine, as some Physitions (not well informed in the Nature thereof) have appointed; it presentic half, and all to caufeth drunkenneffe, and brings a man be vied. (at length) to a trembling in al his joints. But if any necessity doe require vs to vse it, it must be mingled with the volke of a new-laid Egge; and the Dofe or quantity to bee taken, is commonly fixe Graines each day, & to drink no wine in the space | For a hot or of two houres after. If a man that hath a dry traine. home Chafing Braine, fo procured by Bb3

For the Peffi

of Heaven's

For auncient people víca moderately.

For what peo

Amber of 4.

Scuerall Colours, and to know the bel

Nature, do either vie it as a fauour, or receiue it inwardly: questionlesse, it will proue verie troublesome to his memorie and understanding, and cause divers difeafes in his head, endangering his fal into frenzie or madnesse. And therefore, it is most availeable for olde decrepit people, and fuch as have a cold braine; and for fuch Difeases, whose Causes or Originall do proceed of frigidity.

There is Amber of foure fenerall colours: White, Gray, Red, and Blacke; which commeth according to the variety of places or Regions, where it is found out. The Gray, is preferred before al the other, and is knowne to be good, if when pricking it with pin, it deliuereth forth a moisture like Oyle. It hath bin tempered in Torches, Tapers, and Candles, for Emperors, Kinges, and Great Princes: as in the Court of Camplon, the last Soldane of Egypt, Muleaffes King of Thunis, and divers others. It is mingled also amongst other Drugges, for making of Chaines and Bracelettes, worne viually by Ladies, and Great Courtiers, without anie great offence or discommendation, the causes in our precedent Chapter alwaies remembred

CHAP. XX.

Of Muske, and of Civit, howethey are ingendred, From whence they are broght, and how they are any way good.

Extento Amber, me-Ext vnto Amber, me-thinks that Musk ought to haue his due ranke. The Barbarians call it Patt, and there are manie forts or kinds thereof. The best of all, is that which commeth from a Countrey, that leaneth very much into the West, as faire as the Citty of Chorasa doth, and is yellowish, or of Gold colour. The best, next to it, is that which is brought from the Indiaes, and appeareth blacke, whereby it is not fo good as the first. The worst of all, is that which they bring from the Land of Sini. All these kinds of Musk, are engendered in the Nauell of a certaine Beaft, like vnto a wilde Goat, which hath only one home, and is verie great of bodie, When this Beaft is in paine, by a raging fwelling in his Nauell, which filleth it felfe with a kind of groffe bloud, in manner of an impostume: he afterwarde voideth this bloude, halfe corrupted, and within a certaine while after, it becommeth of very fweet fauour. Serapie (among the Arabes) hath writ-ten diligently and carefully concerning Muske, speaking in this manner : The Beafts that make Muske, and are like vnto wild Goats; are principally bred in the Countries of Tumbafco, & of Sini, which bee neere neighbouring to each other. The Muske of Tumba/co, is better then that of Sini, because the Goates which make the Muske, do feed on nothing but Spicknard, & other odorifferous plants, whereon only they live. Which hapneth not so in the land of Sini, for, albeit the Musk-Goats do there line also on sweet hearbs and plants: yet are they not to be compared in their Muske, neither to the Spickenard, nor to the other plantes of Tumbalco.

The maner also of gathering the Musk, is some reason of the difference, for they The maner of of Tumba co, do neuer take the Musk out Musk in Tumof the thin skin or wrapper, to fophisticat | Musk in 1 min. it; neither will they gather it, but when the feafon is bright & clear. But the men of Sini, they vie to squeeze the skin of the fwoln impostume, and mingle and fophisticate it even in the iffuing foorth, not caring whither the time be foul or faire, and so they shut it vp in purposed boxes. That is the best Muske, which is the most odorant, and is very ripe when it cometh forth of the swoln bag. These goatswhich Difference of carry the Musk are no way different but onely in their teeth, for they haue teeth of the musked Goats only in their reeth (there commonly cald Dogs teeth) very long, stading out of their mouths, aboue a span-long, like to the wild Boare. Musk that is not mature & ripe, hath Muske not a most offensive smell: but they which feek for the Musk, do shake the thin skins and how they wherein it is not ripe; and hanging them ripenit. in the open aire, there leave them fo, vntill they be ripe, and the foule fauour bee vtterly gone. It becommeth very odo-rant of it felf, when it is perfectly baked in the aire : neuerthelesse, the best Muske is that, which naturaly receiveth his maturity, euen in the thinne wrappers of the Musk-Goat. The people of this country,

The errour of matus a Phi-

Howthey find | doe gather it among Stones & Trunkes of Trees; for the Beaft, when he feeles his impostumation ready to ripen thee taketh great delight, in rubbing his body against the Rockes and Trunkes of Trees, vntill the Bag be broken, and all the congealed matter bee voyded out. This Muske is better then all the other. as being that which is plainely ripened; uen, and perfect concoction of the fun.

Ghap.20.

The best Muske, and how it is foss

In what man ner we finde Muske to be hurtfull.

and vied.

both by the good temperature of Hea-They then that seeke after it, so soone as they have found and gathered it; they close it up in the thin skinnes and Bladders, of fuch Beafts as have bred Musk, and have (formerly) bin flaine by them in hunting.

Of this Muske is it, that prefents is made to Kinges and Princes, & whereof they make vie. It hath (almost)the 20 equall properties to Amber, but herein it is much worste; for if a Man beare too great quantitie about him, or if he receive over much inwardlie : it brings him to a palfie trembling, and raifeth great torments in the head, enforcing To vehement an attraction of blood to the Nofe: as many have fuddenly dyed by bleeding. But in a small and modetate quantity, it is good against all 30 paines in the head, comming of colde caufes. I have not found any Author, either Greeke, Arabe, or Moderne, but inma peth with this Man in opinion, and in the gathering of Muske except one Amatus, a Portugall Philition, a Man of very great inconstancy, as divers have declared to mee, that had knowledge of him in Turky. Hee makes a moc- 40 kerie, of that which hath beene deliuered by divers good Authours, concerning Musk, and laboureth to affure vs. that in a certaine Countrey of India, there is a Beaft as big as the Hares here among vs, which being taken, and beaten to death with rods; the bowels and inwardes is then taken forth, and the Flesh bruised or beaten in a Morter. Afterward it paffeth through a Searce, 40 to the end that no bone may remaine unbruifed, and then the flesh is made into round Bals, and wrapped up in piewes of the faid Beafts skinne; ftil to preferue them in a round forme, and because the Merchants, that buy them thus readily prepared; may make no doubt, but that the Muske is of the very The opinion fame Muske-beaft. But both Portugals, Arabes, and Iewes, who have travailed of Amatus ftrongly reinto those partes, and seene these matters thus gathered: are of Serapios mind, and hold the courte which I have formerly alleadged; and that our Muske commeth from a Beaft like vnto the wilde Goat.

Marcus Paulus, a Venetian, in the first Booke of his Voyages, and the first Chapter, faith; That in the Pronince a worthy Veof Singuil in India, himfelfe found the ler, best Muske in all the world. For in that Countrey, they have a Beast, of no strange kinde, but about the bignesse of a Cat, with haire like to a Hart, or red Deere, very great Clawes, and foure teeth only; to wit, two aboue, and two beneath. Neere, or about the nauell of this Beail, betweene the Fleih and the skin, there is a bladder full of blood, which is true Muske, yeelding the vertuall fent and fweete fauour. I would be loath to belve fuch an approued Authour : For it may very welbe, that this Beaft is of the fame kind, as the Muske-Goat is, notwithstanding the smalnesse in body : because (heere among vs) we fee Dogges, Horfes, and other Beaftes, of all shapes and formes. But yet he agreeth with all the reft in this that the Muske is found about the Nauell, as hath formerly bin faid. Muske (by length of time) loofeth Of Muske his good fmell, or beeing rainted with loofing his fawind, or too closely kept . Therefore, wour. to preserve him still in his goodnesse, he must be kept in Boxes of Lead, verie well Ropped. Platearius, a learned man, is of this Areceiptto opinion; That if Muske haue loft his re-accommo vertue and good odour; it must be hanged in a Viall of Glaffe, with the mouth open, in the midst of a Sink or house of Office, and fo it wil recouer his former fauour. There is some found composed of another fashion; but then it is sophisticated, and how that composition is made, Gefner enstructeth in his History

Ouer and beside Muske, we have yet Of Cluet. another licquid matter, which is not onely odorant; but also pierceth all the sences and spirits at the first encounter. Perfumers make great vie thereof, in their compositions of sweete smelles,

The Authors

How the Mus kes are en-gendered.

ties of Muske

How the Ty-

his peoples Monies, and ouer-awed

affceted.

brave and

The mighty

A Tyrant ta

keth aduan-tage on all

How Ciuet is engendred.

The vertue &

power of Cigendred in the skinne of the Testicles of a Beaft, much like vnto a Feyne, fome calling them Cats. To speake more properly, Ciuet is as a sweate, passing betweene the Testicles of this Beast, being of a temperature hot and moyft. If it be put into the pits about the Nauel, or into the Wombe-pipe; it serueth manualously against the suffocations of the Matrix. Many times, vpon vrgent extremity, the Husband vieth it to his owne fecrets, and fo conuayeth it vnto his Wife; whereby immediate remedy enfueth for the paine.

which they tearme mixtures. It is en-

And as we have already faide, that Muske being tainted, or ouer-aged, recouereth his strength and quicknesse by flinking ayre, as of a Sinke or Priny, as by one contrary to correct another. 20 Euen fo, in those Countries where these Ciuet Creatures are bred , there is another Beaft, equalling the Ciuet Cat in bigneffe, called Agobdilhat (which fignificth nothing elfe but foule fauor, and this beaft is (indeede) the most stinally betweene the Agobdilhat and the Ciuet Cat. king of all other) who continually is at Warre with the Ciuet Cat, his colour being very pleafing,& somewhat neere

A History of Ciuet Cat in France.

War continu-

to a Sky-colour. I call to memory, that beeing (one day) in the House of the Constable of Fraunce, Anne de Montmorancye, a Cat (not being discharged of her Ciuet, according as her felfe fought meanes and place) emptied her burden vppon the Gowne of a young Gentlewoman, de-livering thereon such a great quantitie of Ciuet; that all the spacious roome was filled with the ouer-piercing fauor 40 thereof. Wherevpon, diuers were readie to fall into fownings, others felt grieuous paines in their heads, and (among the rest) the young Gentlewoman fell fuddenly into a fuffocation of the Matrixe; yea, and in fuch extreame manner, that the was reputed dead for the space of twelue houres, and was cured by flinking fumes and ill finels onely. The Gentlewoman gaue sufficient testimony, that she had neuer (before) beene subiect to that perplexitie: and yet notwithstanding, when Women are vexed with the anguish forenamed, if Ciuct be put into the Nauell pictes, they feele presently ease. But ye must vnderstand, that it ought to be applied in a very small quantity. For this cause How Cinet is it, that Muske and Amber are wholefome formany cold difeafes, being applied and advant in the state of plied and taken in fmall quantitie. Here also the Reader may be aduertised, that there are people of fuch complexion, as do affect fuch fauours naturally : and others againe, who finde them very hurrfull, and therefore doe fly from them; of which fort there are many more, then of the other. Therefore, when any vie is to be made of them, let euerie one well vnderstand his owne naturall inclination, or take the adnise of some skilfull Phisition: for oftentimes, by vsing them indiscreetely, they have beene the death of divers people.

CHAP. XXI.

Of an Edict, made by Dionisius the elder King of Scicily, against Women, Maids, and youngest Virgines ; whereby he pur chased a double returne of Mony.

Hosocuer readeth the Grecian Histories, shall water aigned finde, that the Isle of Scicily hath anciently beene fubicit, to be gouerned and commaunded by Tyrant Kings: 2mong which Tyrants, it appeareth that Dienisius (whom they vied to tearme the elder) furpassed all the rest in tyranny. For, after he had drawne all meanes from his people, by frequent, great and intollerable impositions : hee surchar- plutarek.in ged them againe with a new taxation, vit. de Dim, much more irkesome and burdenous, then any one, or all the other gone before, Which was an expresse payment, by poule, or head (as they call it) both for Men, Women, Maidens, children, Anintollers great or little, young or old. And albe-ble taxation it the Collectours of these imposed by the poule Monies, made great and grienous execution in the leucy , as well vpon Cattell, as feazing mooncables and immoueables , year, imprisoning the people (euen to the death of many) by cruell vlage, and bad handling : yet, notwithstanding all these extreamiries, no

Mony could be had, because the Tirant had drawn them dry, euen to the vtter-

Island, hee had imployed (in daily payments) for ten thousand foot Souldiers. to guard his person, and ten thousand Horffe-men, befide foure hundred Gallies, well armed and furnished. Beside this, he payed great pensions to other Common-weales, and to strange Princes; to the end, hee might have their ayde when neede required; repofing little (or no trust at all) in his own Subiects. In breefe, he exercifed all kindes of prodigalitie towards Straungers, at the cost and expences of his owne people, for the more fafe affurance of his Estate and dignitic. He had aduertisement, that there most penny. All the Mony of this rich

Signes wher-by to know the pouerty of the people. was no more Money to be raifed, nevther by Wine or Corne, or any other Commodities : for there was great 20 dearth of Victuals two whole yeares together. He knew it enidently because the people were growne carelesse, and did nothing but laugh at his impositions; as knowing, that he could not bee paide, when they had nothing wherewithall to pay, which made them then raife that memorable Prouerbe: Where nothing is to bee had, the King loofeth his

But this old Tyrant Foxe, knew wel The Scicilians enough the Custome of the Scicilians, which was, to be pompous, affecting proud appar-rell, both in the Men and brauerie in Apparrell, and (aboue all) to be richly decked with Iewels of gold and Silver, embellished with costly precious stones : neuer regarding their owne condition, as Husbandes and Wines, nor good of their Families; but fuffering all their provisions to be fold, 40 to feede the Kinges impositions, and ferue other Negotiations, prouided, that they might fill enjoy their Iewels and brauery. The Men (for Antiqui-ty of this idle Custome) did willinglie tollerate it, though they were to endure all the necessities in the World; yea, death it selfe. And this was all which riches of the remained, of the mightie riches of Sticilie: for the Island had abounded in 50 plenty of Corne, which was the maine hope of all the Inhabitants, and (next to Ægipt)it was one of the best Garners in the whole World. Heereupon, he would instantly help himselie, according as the time fitted him with occasion, which was (in regard that his tyranny, and the two precedent years, had greatly impouerished the Kingdome) notwithstanding al former oppressions: he would now have the Iewels of the Women and Damfels, then which, they had nothing elfe remaining to them. And for his more cleanely conveyance heerein, he caused to be published by the Priestes and Saerificers (whose Ceremonies hee gaue no faith to, nor any way beleeved) that the Goddeffe Ceres was very greatly offended with the Islanders, because there | A cunning fubrilly of the was no worshippe given her, but in an old Temple, ruined, darke, and otterlie unpleasing wherefore, she would have a new one crected to her, built with faire shew, and sumptuous cost, else there hould no more happy daies bee feene in that Island. According to these remenstrances, made by the Priestes and Sacrificers, with interpolition of his owne anthoritie: it was credibly giuen forth, that the Goddesse her felfe had appeared to him, & this the Priests follemnely inftified, being well enftructed in the treacherie. Vpon this vrgent occasion, and pretending carefull respect of the Common weale, as also to appeale the high disfauout of Ceres, (the being the Goddeffe of Corne and Fruites of the Earth:) he had determined, to erect her a new and magnificent Temple. Now, because he had no Mony, nor the people neither, who are called the Kinges Purfle: he willed and commanded, that all Women, Wines, Widdowes, Maids, & Damfels, should bring foorth their Iewels of Gold, Siluer, precious stones, and all other matter else whatsoeuer, to a certaine place, and at a time by him appointed; impo-

Now, for the better obtaining his purpofe, and inducement of the people to more willing forwardnesse heerein: he caused a spacious compasse of grossd fing grieuous paines and penalties, on any that durst vie the least contradiction. The female fexe were in wonderful perplexitie, and durst not hide any of their Iewels or brauery: because they had so long openly worne them, and good note was taken of them from time to time, both of the riches and value, on feastinall daies, at follemne factifices, publique plaies, banquets, and marria-

A cunning

A feigned apparition of the Goddesse

An Edict very displeasing

The deuile of the Tyrant to people.

> Neighboring people also cheated by the Tyrant.

to be prepared, in an eminent place of the Citty Stracufa, not far off from the Fountaine Arethusa, where hee made fome project, of present building a goodly Temple, by a forme or Modell thaped thereof. Farre off was his mind from any fuch intent, but day by day to get possession of the Womens Lewels, and hanested the levey of them with all possible speed. He gaue notice heereof alfo, to the round neighbouring Itles and Countries, where he had no commaund: from whence he got almost a Million of Gold, where-with they wil-lingly furnished him, onely that the Goddesse would be gracious to them. And thus he held the people in suspence the space of the three whole yeares. In his time, the Land began (naturally) to waxe fruitfull againe, yeilding as great plentie of Corne and all things, as formerly it had doone: by which good meanes, Corne, Wine, and Cattell, thriuing stil with them, the Inhabitants became rich and sufficiently flored. When the women began to taft of this well-rellishing fertility; they could not forget their former vanities, but faine would fall againe to their pride &

The women could not forget their pomp

Tyrant.

rich brauery: Only their feare was, least | 30 the Tyrant should play the like tricke againe with them. To make an estimate, of the inestimable masse of Wealth, which they were copelled to lay down, for building this new Temple to the Goddeffe Ceres ; is a matter exceeding my capacity, and yet no Temple at all builded. The Tyrants ayme was only at wealth, and having compaffed what he intended; by the aduite of fome well- 40 willers to the Women (pretending comiseration on their disfurnishment of Iewels)a counterfeit request was made vnto him, that he would be pleased to permit their wearing of Lewels againe. Standing (like a crafty Reinard) vppon Some strangenes for a while, the suit at length was granted with this Prouiso. tilty of an old That enery one of the Female fexe (of what degree or age focuer) should per- 50 ticularly present her offering to the Goddes Ceres, cither in Goldor Siluer, according to the number and value of those lewels, which thee purposed to weare: whereto they confented verie gladly, to foolinly fond were they of their curious adornments, which gaue way to the Tyrant, to make a double benefit of one and the same Edict; And to this very day, the Women of that Island do continue this proud humour, in beautifying themselves with lewels, beyond any other Country that I have read of. The riches that he compassed The City of by this Edict, is not to be valued, for Syracufa, now the Isle was (in those daies) much more is called Sartagoffa. peopled then now it is: And then the principall and royall Citty, was called Syracu/a, which at this present is named Sarragoffa. This Tyrant, hauing occasion then to vie men of Armes, beside such Strangers as he kept in pay : could leny fixescore thousand socte, and twelve thousand Horsemen, beside foure hundred Ships and Gallies; whereas at this day, the Land will hardly yeeld fifteene hundred able fighting men. When it was furprized by the Romaines, for hauing taken part with the Carthagenians; there was found in one place (called the Magazine or Store house for war) furniture to arme feauenty thousand men; and fuch large booty was found therein, that Carthage (which fought for the Empire) could hardly yeeld the like.

This Dionifius was an affronter and Concerning Deceiver, who knew better then any Man elfe in the World, how to finde meanes of non paiment, when reason & equity did require it. Among divers other, he had entertained a young man, who was reputed to be very skilfull in playing on musicall Instruments, and tearmed the very best that those times afforded, to whom he promised liberall wages. The Mulition having ferued A Hillory of him a long while, requested to haue his due recompence; whereto Dionifius replied : That he ought him nothing ; Becaufe (quoth he) I have given thee as much contentment, by hope and promise of great wages and enriching thee, as thou hast yeilded me, for I have taken paine enough , to heare the idle found of thy instrument.

In breefe, he cared not how he came by any thing whatfocuer, prouided that it would yelld him profit, making spare, neither of Statues of the Goddes, or any other facred thing, but made a meere mockerie of all, as I shall have occasion to speake else-where. The Scieilians have neede of fuch a King in The Scieilians these daies, to punnish that shamefull murder and massacre, which they commurder and maffacre, which they com-

former times

The name of

The ancient Latines in Cice

> Grammarians cald Critiques

Grammarians were moft vife and learned men, and acounted the best Schollers of those times

Of the Name Grammarian.

The Scicilian Volumes

Chap. 23.

mitted (on a day in the Euening time) vpon fo many worthy French-men, called thither in their aide and fuccour, to deliuer them from the seruitude of an other Tyrant; and when they were at libertie, they did bloodily put them all to death.

CHAP. XXII.

Of the Word or Name Grammarian, and what it is truely and properly.

Hose persons which the Latines properly called Grammaticos (which in all other Languages is tear-Latines properly called med Grammarians) were not any fuch men, as knew not how to speake congruately, or write Orthographically, with good observation of accents in their speech, as being viskilfull in the Etimology of Dictions or Vocables, according as fome (to this day) haue supposed. For well I know, that it hath beene a common matter, when one would point at a man flenderly learned, or little feene in the foundnesse of learning, as vnderstanding nothing but the very principles: they would tearme him a Grammarian, or a Grammer Schoole-Boy, for his greater scorne and open disgrace.

But contrariwife, the ancient Latines, as in the time of Cicero, had no other vnderstanding of the word Grammarian: then of a learned Man, well skild in all 40 the Sciences, and thought fit to be the Interpreter of our grauest Authours. The Greekes called Grammarians, Critiques, of the Greeke Verbe xelve which fignifieth to be judged. For when learned men (were they Greekes or Latines) had any doubt about the interpretation of fome Text, sentence, or faying, in any Science whatfoeuer: it was then wholely referred to a Grammarian.

Suctionius was of the same opinion, in his Booke of famous Grammarians, who were likewise called Learned, as for example, Mesala. Corninus and Macrobius write, that one Didimus, fufficiently learned in the Sciences; was esteemed to be a great Grammarian . Cisero made high account of one named Emiphon, whose Schoole continuallie he frequented, after his handling causes in the Senate . Nidigius Figulus, and the excellent Wife-man Varre, are faid to be the learnedst Grammarians of all other : as alfo Mareus Valerius . Probus. and Palemon, the most audacious of the that euer professed Letters, with many more beside . And among the Greenans, who triumphed more then Ariftarchus, Aristotle, Theodorus, and divers o. thersaall which were eftermed admired Grammarians.

CHAP, XXIII.

A Paradoxe maintaining by witty Arguments : That foredy death is much better to be defired, then a long & tedious late of life.

any other hope of speedy amendment) hath made the better fort of people to affirme and maintaine : That it is more fured way of our eternall health) per-formes no other good or fauour to Men; but takes them from the afflictions of this World, hindering them

(thereby) from offending GOD most strangely, and delivering them from feruile fubiection, being in the hands of rauenous, cruell, and bloody Tyrants:

most highly to be extolled and praised.

For, without this happy helpe, wee should be miserably condemned to vnfufferable pains, and altogether preffed downe, or smothered, by vnresistable stormes. Our hope (without this) would be quite quenched. And, without this) what is the Sinner, be he neuer fo great a Prince or Lorde, not knowing, fearing, and regarding God?

O great is the difafter & milerie of worldly occafions; that long griefe, and our-burdenous copaffion of them (without expedient for a Man (who feareth GOD) to wish for death quickely; then long to en-A definition dure in these labour some tranailes. For alof Death, and beit that death (the true Minister of Iuwhat good he performeth. flice, end of all vexations, and most af-

yet for this one and onely reason, hee is An especial

Chap.14.

A memorable custome obterued in rowes and mishaps. This was the reason, why the ancient custome of Thrace was fo denoutlie obferned, that at the birth of enery Infan-they vied great forrow and lamentation . Contrariwife, when any (eyther aged in yeares, or of what time foeuer) died : They would make much 10 ioy, rriumph, and feafting, and (according to the parties Dignity) celebrated the Funerall, with sportes, plaies, and other varietie of pleasures. If such a barbarous Nation as this was (depriued of all vie of Philosophy, and good Letters) could doe fo great an honour to death: Is it not a shame for vs, that call our felues Christians, and know, that our very best benefit came by his death, to whom we pretend both Faith and service : to be so wretchedly amorous of life, which is nothing elfe (according to the learned Poets opinion.) But an obscure Prison, enthralling the best ennobled Spirits.

Bleffed Saint Paule, The Veffell of election, did not he defire to dye, That hee might line with his Lord and Maister?

Yet we (onely to compasse leyfure, for committing ten thousand horrible exceffes)make life our great God; adding daily one paine vpon another, and augmenting the Register of our numberlesse offences. Are not we so obstinately affected to this thort and dangerous pleasure (if that may be called pleasure, which is the plaine high-way to euerla-fting death) that for it onely : wee care not to loofe the life celestiall, dinine, &

(then which) the like can no way be fo much as dreampt on ? Ezechiel wished for speedy death; That hee might ioy in the beauties and excellencies of Heauen.

But we couet long life, the more to entangle our felues in the filthes of this World. Simeon, that good, iuft, and holy old man, Defired death with all his beart : But we (blinded, or deprined, e-

By death we line eternally, and by death

we are freed from the prison of all for-

Foolifn men doe couet long life.

Pindarus.

Ezechels desire

Old Simeon defired deat

Why death was called Thanalos.

uen of naturall discourse) hate Death, and speake all the cuill we can imagine against it. Wherefore (thinke ye) was it, that death was (by our Elders) called Thanates? But onely in this respect: That (in the end) it makes vs all loyfull, and wel pleased with that, which we ought most of all to defire. Are we then so ignorant and fenceleffe, as not to acknowledge the aboundance of benefits; which we gaine by beeing taken out of this fo hatefull a Labyrinth? Do we not plainly perceine, that he which escapeth longest, and tarrieth the longest while in this world; beholdeth (euery day)more troubles and discontentments, then reall loyes, or true recrea-

If ye alleage vnto me, the noblenesse An Allegai-of Age and length of life, for great experience in things past, as feruing to dif. Age or length coner and approue them which follow of life. after. Let me then aske ye, of how much happinesse may we boast, in proouing our vnhappinesse? Considering, that (whether we be well or ill-pleafed) wee must patiently endure those thinges, which we canot tell how to fhun: hearing that which our cares hateth, and feeing things, wherewith our eyes are most itrangely offended.

But what is that which we call olde What old age Age; if not a continual dolour, and lan- is. guishing disease what other fir-names can we give to aged men; but moving Anatomies, or living Mortuaries ? Filling them with fo many distillations,& falling humors; as leaues them not one good houre, during the remainder of al their poore life time. If then, the verie memory of death, and hourely cogitae Remembrace tion of our departure, makes fuch a certaine aduantage for vs, and affures vs infallibly, that we are (thereby) permitted immunity from fin : how much more then would deaths reall presence prenaile with vs ?

Who are more fearefull of death, then fitch, as neither know, nor under fractell of fland the faire straine passages thereof? which indeede are fuch, as all the art in Man canot corrupt or blemish; except (like a Monster, and no sensible Creature) he would deface al Histories both facred and prophane. What had the famous Romaine people bin, if the valiant Horatius Cocles had feared death ? If Quintus Curtius had bin fearfull and ti-morous, and had not preferred glorious cartius, two death, before the irkefome life of the mainer. world: had not (but for him) the goodly Citty of Rome, bin fubicat to the most daungerous Hell, as can be deuised to name vpon earth ? VVhar shall I say of Cheereful go them, chem, who for the freedome of their country) went cheerfully to death with Briking vp the drum, and thowery higheft founds of the Trumpor leuen as if they had been bidden to lone triumph? Did ye ener know a manifehat feared death) worthy of fo greadan honour For this cause was it that ancient His Rorians fo highly praifed & applauded, the Custome of some barbarous Nantons, who, with like promptitude and alacrity ranne to their death ; as if they were to be presented in some publique triumphe, or other greapploafures and Iouial speciacles . Why are the Gamaines entred into fuch credit with vs. if it were not onely for this that they are knowne to be a Nation, meerelie prodigall of their lines, and concrous

The Musicke vled in warre. Conclusion,

The Cuftome

of fome bar-

Of the Ger-

battery of warre; as Drummes, Phifes, Trumpets, Clarions, and Harps (albeit theyfe of the Harpe is now altogether left) did it for no other occasion, but for a found affurance to Souldiers : that to dye, was, as if a man were going to the Fountaine of all consolation i yea. euen to the perpetuall ionifance, of eternall and immortall Treasures with the highest. Conclude we then, that it much better availeth to dye quickely, then long time to languish in this wretched world. Let vs also maintaine, that death is more noble and excellent, then life: Because his power extendeth ouer all, without any limit or exception; and in regard likewife, that he is the Maister Controler of this life . As, not 4 without iust cause and good reason, a Philosopher (being demaunded whar Death was) readily answered : Angeordent and passage ineutrable, from which, neyther by teares, entreats, fighes, or the (weetest Kiffes, we can be delivered.

A Philofophers answer concerning of most precious death? Hee that gaue the first enstruction. for entermedling Musick with the harsh

CHAP. XXIIII.

The Saying of Plato familiarly interpreted. That Kings should be Philosophers , or Philosophers raigne.

milmiliker.w., 2012, 2012, 2013, 2015, 201

the more defirous; to interpreted to ing of Plato, to often spokened within the sale wo thousand years, biomany learned and excellent Morral affis words are thefe; Those common weales faill be most happy white Kinger be ishila-Jophäria on philosopher are fauntes the places of governments. And Socaute that diving Men (especially such as are not convertant in State affanion idoe wish for a King, who might alidgether beegiven to learning; and not worker pollicies firting his Kingdoine igreatic abile their judgement hecrein, for this would bee the totall ruine of his Monarchy: therefore I will fer down forme obsernation, what Philosophy it is what Plate meaneth, wherein a King olight to apply his fludies, and wherby, there cannor bin tedound extraordinary good and profit to all his people; and

This Dinine Man Plate, viderflood nor by a King Philosopher, a Prince so addicted and bene to fludie, that if hee should chance to be deposed from his Dignitie; he might thereof make abenefit of living afterward. This humous appeared in Dyoniftes, the younger (King of Sarragoffa, and the greater part of the Isle of Sticily) Sonne to the affronter, and impofer of Nouell subfidies; for he beeing offended with his Subjects, and doubring least his estate would have no long durance fell to learne good Letters, to the end that if he happened to be expulsed his Royal. ty; he might become a Schoole Maifler, for the better support of his life; as indeede (afterward) flich fortune befell him. This his fludy of Philosophy. (which is as much to fay, as the loud of wifedome) while he raigned King profor he had done much better, in effecting fome worthy pollicies in his kingdome, then frequent vie of vices quand exercifing tyranny, thereby to have prevented the office of a Pedant; and liuing in fuch an ablect manner. 2008. Nero was enstructed (from his youth) in the three partes of Philosophy and

bor morning bishmacad

Suds Art of Vpon occasion, that kings were addicted irshimi£...C

The ayme and intent of Dvonificis the von ger in giung ftudy.

Los anteins andebare i Conference dolophy.

eckenedas. Nero learned

In like maner, he ought to make no beeing created Emperor, was skilfull in Poofie, much addicted to Musique, and to play on the Harpe: yet would hee fay, that he could live well, if he were depoted from the Empire. We find recorded, that many Princes were ginen to learning, as Tiberius and Adriancy lio found good companions of Onids loue-Books, and Martiel his Epigrants. But this is no part of Philosophizing, neyther labour of minde, how a Prince should live after his falling.

How a Prince ought to be a Phileiopher.

For a King to bee a Philosopher, it consistes in establishing his Throne so affiredly; that he may never fit tottering in it, or be haken out of it. In rendring himselfe necessary to the comonwealth, as well by his vertues, as generous disposition; he sits safe from all deiection : carrying himselfe in such fort, like one that is a Tutor over many inferiours, as well in charge, as in correction, and (as he) when time respireth his Office; thento take delight and recreation. Princes that read plenty of Books, doe it (oftentimes) for pleafure, rather then to deriue any observations thence, for profit of their people. And when they cherish learned men about them; it is onely in hypocrific, and to let their 30 in fom Princes Subjects understand, that they are gouerned by their aduise, and by Men of knowledge. So dealt the fore-named Dyonifius the elder, as himfelfe would often reueale, to fuch as were his familiar and intimate friends.

The Emperor made but bac benefit of his Philosophy.

Dissimulation

The Emperor Commodus (Sonne to Marcus Antoninus, and Emperour likewife) fir-named the Philosopher; was learned, and readouer divers Books of Philosophy: Andyet notwithstanding, he couldnot refraine, from beeing the most detestable Emperour, which had beenebefore, or came after him. Contrarlwife, his Successour, who had imployed all his life time, in exercifing Marchandize about the sale of Wood or Billets: is numbred among the most bemoaned Emperors; and Traiane likewisc(who scarcely could write his own 50 name) was esteemed a very vertuous Prince and Emperor.

Princes are not to be repured Philosophers, if they can reade lascinious Poetry is not Bookes of Loue or compose in in poctry ; as Thibaulte, Earle of Brie & Chambe Philosophy paigne, and Raymond, Counte of Tolofa, whose Poems are yet (at this day) to be ifcene, and they accounted rather ignorant, then learned Philosophers . This is no fuch Philosophy as ought to bee exercifed but that of true and especiciall import, I will come now breefely to relate : a Le is to be understood ; that Philosophy is deuided into three diftinet parts, to wit : into Phificke, Logicke, and Morall Philosophy, accor, Thehree parts ding as Cieero faith in his Oratour, The of Philosophy first, aymeth onelie at an intire fearch into the obscuritie of Natures secrets.

Logicke diueth into the subtilty of difputations and discourse. Morall Philofophy, speakes of Life and civill manners; & this is that which Kings ought Which part of to feeke after. The best exercising Philosophy is whereof is neyther read or fludyed in bell in a King. the Bookes of the Romaines Lawes, called Ciuill Law : For, how euer it produceth some honourable effectes, yet (questionlesse) it is the onely Motiue, whereby we enter into a Labyrinth of fuits. Because, in not beeing built vpon one only piece, but running into diverdity of scantlings; ech man makes a cloak thereof after his owne fashion. Therefore, let Princes neuer meddle with fuch intricate matter, but referre the ftudy thereof, to men destined for so troublefome a profession.

The first Lecture that a Prince bught | The first less to take, is out of facred & vnreptouable for a Prince. writ; because (thereby) he shall learne knowledge both of God, & of himfelfe, and that the beginning of true Philoso-phy, is the fear of God. Next, he ought (aboue all things else) to bring his people in obedience of the Magistrate, and the Magistrate of the Law, without any infringing or violation. We read of first, and the Magistrate, and the Athiopians, that at the receipt of Magistrates their Lawes, they protested ; that they would be subject to those laws, & passe no other letters contrary to them. The people of France. when they place their K.in the feat of Iustice; they deliuer him a staffe in his right hand, on the toppe whereof is the figure of a hand : Giuing therby to vuderstand, that the K. should lend a strong hand to Iustice; and then they give him a scepter in the left hand.

He must study to quench civill warres in his Kingdome, if there be any, and in his Kingdome, it there be any, and Akingtokeep preuent fuch as may enfue, vppon the his word with least presumption or apparance; euer- Lis subiects.

cicero. in Orat. Wickedcoun chianel.

Chap.24.

Of Flanders 8 the Law Coun-

How a Prince ought to begin watre.

more keeping promife with his Subiects, for otherwife it may fall out, that delay and length of time, will bring his life and the State into great daunger. The death of Henrie the third, King of France, happened thorow euill councell given him, and also to his Predecesfour; as the Histories of Fraunce and Flanders (written according to truth) doe credibly declare: without credit 10 ting, what detestable Macchianell hath written on that Article. By the last ciuill warres in Allemaigne, the French brought their Frontiers into the Cities of Mentz, Toula, and Verdune, which are three goodly Imperiali Citties, and held by them to this day. They that are called the States of the Low-Countries, and of Flanders, hardned by long-Warres against their naturall Prince, vpon refufall of some serious requests: are become Cantonned; fo that in comon opinion, the whole Countries have fuffered grieuoufly: all which had bin well eafed, if no Marchiauelist had medled among them.

As for itrange warres, which a King may haue with other Princes; he must bee mindfull of Faith therein, for they are euer the least hurtfull. Prouided, that he do it in fuch fort, that being fortefied with alliance and Confederats, strength, and meanes; hee may have peace when himfelfe pleafeth. Euermore remebring, that he do not imitate Mithridates, King of Pontus, who coueting to make himselfe great, lost both his State and life together. And Frances the first, King of France, in seeking to ioyne Millaine and Italy to his Crown, 40

He must not likewise lend eareto in time of their continuance, hee may impose great taxes and subsidies on his people, which the faide people, taking then to be a matter extaordinary; doe ordinary. These meanes (indeede) may encrease his reuenewes; but somtimes

they reach to troublefome rebellions, wherein the Prince loofeth both his land and subjects. The leagued Countries of Germany, had neuer come vnder their Lords obedience; but for the like was fondly taken Prisoner.

Taxations for fome kinde of Courtiers; who comw rre ought monly are prating, that a generous nor to be con-King should neuer be without war : For caufes.

ry vrgent necessitie; for it doth but declare contempt and diffrust, conceined People. in the Prince against his people, procuring (oftentimes) a revolt in the fubiects, with defire to feeke a new Maister. As the like was imagined to have happened at the good Cittle of Lyons, which hath euermore beene very obedient to her kings, and lent them ftrong aide in their necessities, when they have beene thereto required. Neuerthelesse, through some bad counsell, and uppon finall occasion, the Kings of France did build a Cutadell there, a meere retreate for al scelerates: who, by the cautels of diners loofe Captaines, too much diminishing the renenewes of the * Donane, and the Souldiers committed many in- of the customfolencies in the Citty, viciating diners Virgins, & making pillage of althings. Which was the cause, that the men of Lyons arose to ruinate this Cittadell, that ferued for nothing elfe but wicked purposes. And albeit they were folliei- the Cittadell. ted to take a new party, yet would they not yeild thereto; but kept themselues in obedience to their King, being contented with the demolition of the Cittadell, how cuer the king otherwife mistrusted them. Such Cittadels ought not to be erected, but in countries newly conquered, and not in ancient and obedient Citties, whence Princes can receine nothing, but commodity & pleafure. Nor ought he to exercise prodigality, or give immense gifts, especially to fuch people as have no merit: for wee know very well, that it is the blood and labour of the people, which is fo pro- mealurally to digally wasted. And for offending in fuch manner, fome Kings haue been deiected from their Thrones; as hapned to Edw. King of England, second of that name, in the yeare 1325. who affected nothing but the Family of the Spencers, giving them all great confiscations, and the Mony of his subsidies. These exfinde them (foone after) to hold on as | 50 treame and vnsufferable courses, raised his Queene, Sonne and people against him, who were punished with death, &

Of Kings Philosophers.

the King (at length) strangled. Adde we hereto, that it is a great blemith and deformity in any Kingsnot to bee liberall : for a couctous Prince is contemned of every one, and hath few

Forts or Cittadels, except in case of ve-hatred in the

* The name house at Lyens.

Lyons impaci-

Prodigality is a Prince, when inwerthy m.c.

Couetouinelle di commenda ble in a King.

A Prince finalld inquire what is reported or him.

Friends . He should informe himselfe, what is reported of him, to understand who are malecontent, and who pleased, providing for both in good difcretion. As (very wifely) did Phillip, King of Macedon, Father to Alexander the Great, who was informed, that an auncient Knight (following his Court) did nothing but speak badly of him, and raised ditters enemies against him. The King comming couertly to know the cause of this obloquy; heard the old Knight complaine, that he had imployed both his youth, age, and vttermost meanes in the Kings fernice, whereby he was not onely growne poore, but also vnregarded. The K. well noting fo foule a fault in himselse, prouided for the Knight in fuch gracious manner: that he had not (formerly) fo greatly reproued him, but | 20 now he did much more exalt him. Whe the King heard thereof, he faid to enery one about him ; I was the fole cause of the Knights iust complaint, but hence-forward I will take order, that others fhall not have the like advantage against me.

A gracious & in a King.

The bad and dangerous

The cau'e

why Richard

King of Enga-

bad man in great authority, and to have rule in his Kingdome, euen as his Lieutenant : to the end, that he may bear all 20 the blame, and if the people fall into commotion, they may rest contented with killing him, and so the K. shall remaine safe. This is the Philosophy of Maister Macchiauell, a matter verie dangerous; for hereby, both the one & other may well loofe their lines. As we may read in the History of England, that King Richard accusing his Earle Marshal to the people, to be the onely cause of Subfidies, and robbing them of their Monies, feeming willing to content the people; he banished him the Land. Which man, could finde no place of fafety, either in Fraunce, Flanders, Allemaigne, nor thorow all Europe, where to make his abiding. After this bad man, the king committed the gouernment of his kingdom to four other Men, against whom, the people conceined as great hatred, as before they had done against the Earle Marshall. Which caused the faide Richard to be imprisoned; where those soure men were beheaded before his prison window, and he himselse (afterward) loft his life.

He must be careful to constitute some

He shold study, not to be over dreadfull to his Subjectes, nor too familiar; Nut to be ofor the one begetteth hatred, and the othercontempt. He should punish the liar to his sub-wrongs of other men, and be sparing in his owne. As did good King Lewes of France, the 12. who in the time when he was but Duke of Orleance, having some enmity with King Charles the eight, and the Duke of feeking to feaze the Citty of Grleance, Orleance, for security of his own person, least the King should surther labour to disquiet him: the Citizens made fast their gates against him. It happened, not with standing many traneries and misfortunes; this Duke came to the Crowne, after decease of the said King: And then the people of Orleance came to entreat him, not to remember precedent accidents, but graciously to grant them pardon. The King made aunswere, that he had An answere forgotten all iniuries doone him: but ly Royall. wished them afterward to be carefull, how they offended another man. After that Haniball with-drew himselse from Italie, the Romaines found no better means of raigning in quiet for the time to come: then by forgetting those iniuries, which they had received by the Common-weales of Italy, that had ioy. ned with Hamball in making the warre.

In quarrels among great men hee How he ought ought not to entermedle, to support to behaue him one fide more then the other: but cause felle in other them to lay downe their Armes, by his mens quartels absolute authority, and seek best means to reconcile them. For, in formalizing himfelfe, more for the one then the other, it hath many times occasioned intestine war, and sometimes the losse of Royal dignity, as hath too often happenedboth in France and England. He should not be addicted to wine, A king should but fhun drunkenneffe as poyfon. For a foun drunken King being drunke, is like a Lion, or a- nesse. ny other furious beaft, that bites and teares the first he meets withall. It caufeth beside, that the K (having his spirits fiered and troubled with wine) may kil some one man in that fury, or otherwife so offend him : as may afterward endaunger both his Royall person and the State. He must moderate choller, so much as in him possible lieth, without wing either a Sword or Staffe. Imitating heerein the Bees, whose King hath dangerous. no fting at all: For choller and fury are the chiefe hinderers, that the foule can-cy al-hominable in a King.

led tarre off, full of loffes.

Examples of ty in Subjects

t their Prin-

not forme her functions according to Incontinency, who redome, and obscenity, should be detestible to him, and for his better support, he must frequent no luxurious company, nor haue any fuch person about him, whose ordinary talk is cuermore thereto enclining but fuch, whose speech is alwaies vertuous. Luxury makes a mandull, neglect, and effeminate, and a King (ginen to that vice) should rather carry a distaffe, then a Scepter. Sardanapalus, King of Afiria, loft his life, by being over-greedily giuen to this fin. So did Nero, Emperor of Kame. King Frances, first of that name, became very vnhealthfull in his aged daies, by being too much addicted to this vice; and yet otherwise, he was ver-mons, and a louer of learning.

Being affected of his Subjects, for his

Where the nedure Royall most confi-

Examples of

Chap.24.

Whoredome

good life, his treasury is the purffe of his people, who will fuccour him liberally when he shall have any needfull occasion. Which, in our memory, and not long fince, Elizabeth, that famous Q.of Eng. found to be true. For in al her time, the neuer oppressed her people, but declared her felfe to be the lively Mirrour of true Maiesty. And therefore, when there came a very potent Army (verie strongly bent against her and her Kingdomes) fuch as (in humaine judgment) was likely to prenaile; yet her subjects Bounty & Loue (next to heavens bleffing)flood fo ftrongly to her, that when her enimies supposedher ruine neerest. they were thamefully foyled, and the gloriously triumphed. Cyrus and Alexander, two great Monarches, made thefelues mighty, not by their Money (for they had none avall, or at least very little, at their first adventuring) but were only affifted by friends, and the purfe of their people. Wheras on the contrary, Darius and Crafus, two Kings that had aboundance of treasure, and no loue of their people; were brought into most miferable condition.

Let him not be eafily led, to beleene some Courriers, men affected in the scarch of nouelties, vsing persuasion, to attempt Conquests and far off voyages; as croffing the Seas, either to Barbarre, Afia, and the foure quarters of the world, 500. a thousand, or two thoufand leagues distant from his own kingdome; and ther to make war: flich wats doe (oftentimes) beget the totall juine of his owne estate. As hapned to King Lewes of France, ninth of that name, who loft a goodly Army of Noble-men and braue Souldiers in Spria, himfelfe alfo beeing there taken Prisoner, to the no little coft of his owne Kingdome. After his returne home, he would needes be gone thither againe : but he died before the Citty of Thunis, and loft the verie

Counte of Neuers, was fent with a worthy French army into Epire, against Baiazeth, Emperour of the Turkes, in affistance of the Hungarians: but there hee was furprized, and kept as Prisoner, with the Constable of France, and di-uers others, and the whole French Armie quite defeated. Lewes of France the twelfth, fent an army against the Turks, that befiedged Mitylene, a Cittie in the Isle of Lesbos: but vererly in vaine, for withstanding, if a King make a league against any Infidell Prince, and that all Christian Princes (or the more part of them) are thereto likewife mooned and follicited, vpon good reason; the King ought to contribute both Men and Money, but not to goe in perfor.

except hee haue an affored peace with all his Neighbour Princes. Now, al-beir a King had conquered a farre-off

Country, yet scarcely knowes he how to keepe it for any long time : because the manners of firangers will hardly agree with theirs of that Countrey, and then the building of Cittadels is to be talkt on, but yet he must Philosophize how to maintaine them. It much better lity of his Subiccts 5 then on the frongest wals he can huild. Which the Lace-demonians practifed, by the adulte of Lycurgus. But after they had engire the Cittie of Sparta with Walles, and gaue themselues wholely to the forti-

greatest part of his Army. By perlivation of the Genewater, Charls King of France, the fixt, fent an Armie into Barbarie, against the chiefe Cittie of Affrica: but one part of the French | pupole. dyed there thorow Famine, and by inclemency of the aire, and the rest returned home; not having performed any one act of honour, John of Bourgonene,

Diners true & well knowne Hillories cending to this Exceptions in he loft (well necre) all his people. Not- this cale to be No truft to be for any King, to fuffaine himfelfe ypon terong wals, the forces of his men of armes, and fide- | but in the faith and power of

ນອ ຄານຄອນ

XUM

no it stan

fying of places : thence forward, their Common-weale grew to bee infrnothing. The Turke practifeth the verie fame yet to this day. The first Cantons of the Suitzers, had never any wals, and were no other then great Villages; for they relyed more uppon their strength, then any trust in wals.

What profit a Prince should make of rea-

Bookes of Hi

ftories.

But it may be alleaged vnto me, that it is good for a King to read, to the end, he may learne something, as other men doe, and as other Kings have formerlie done. This I approoue, and do no way mislike, at such times as he is not to bee more seriously imployed: For, 2 King that will well discharge his duty, shall find very little time of respit or leisure. Bookes that discourse on matter of good manners, should then be most familiar with him: because, in them hee 20 shall learne such lessons, as no man else dare be so bold as to teach him. As for Bookes of Histories, he must have choise and plenty of them, because in reading fuch as are another mans Collections, that neuer faw, or came where they were acted: they cannot alwaies talke of truth, in regard, that hee giueth credit but to what he finds in another mans Papers, and Writers, will (vfually) speak fauourably of their owne occasions. If they be Histories, concercerning the time when the Authour liued:he wil be fure to fauor the Prince, and the party which hee best affected, or to whom he was Pentioner. As may be noted in Paulus Jouius, the Italian, and Sleydan, the Germaine Historian, who haue written well enough : except whe they fall into some particular matters, 4 as of Religion, or fuch like; there they are enidently perceived to wander, in speaking partially, or out of prinate affection. Likewife, he should not judge Bookes of Hiof good and lawfull enterprifes, according to the bad successe they have had, or fo to condemne them : neither, whe affaires haue bin ill grounded, & worfe mannaged, to repute them good, because they have passed with fortunate euents. Therefore it behooueth any Prince, to read Histories, with good stories are to be read with good delibe-ration and iudgement.

Concerning the reading of fome Princes.

and deliberate indgement. Alexander Seuerus (at an houre of leifure) would read Platees Commonwealth, the Offices of Cicero, and fententious Horace. Wife Scipio, when occasion ferued, would read the Institutions of Cyrus, proposed by Kenophon. Charles the fift, Emperour, neuerreade any Authour, but Phillip de Commines, who wrote the life of King Lewes the cleauenth. I would not be mistaken herein, as (feeking by thefe allegations) to restraine a Prince from reading, or limit him none other, but these Books onely. But I say, that the principall Bookes, and those which bee most neceffary for him:are fuch, as do discourse on the affaires of State, and of matter belonging to the Common-wealth.

Many times, it fals out, to bee more Bridge of mo expedient for a Prince, to buy a Town | ny into the eby intelligence, or giving Mony to the nemies coun Enemy then to take it by force of trey. armes, though it cost him not so much; fo is the Land fure to be no way ruina-

To conclude, let a King stand vppon Alwaies to be his Guards, and have affired and trufty provided of people about him; euermore ready, least occasion should present it selfe, & he be fuddenly furprized: fuch as were the Legionaries, or those trained Souldiers, instituted by King Frances, first of that name.

And for conclusion to his Philoso- Hamility anaiphy, he should be little, or of least rec-koning in his owne eye, how great or potent soeuer hee appeareth to other. As it happened to Alexander, who had no sooner ended his Conquests in the East, but (standing vpon his own pride) he was calt downe, and poyfoned by his owne Followers. Baiazeth, the verie greatest Emperor of all the Turkes that were before him: was vanquished chained, and carried about in a Cage of Iron, by Tamberlaine, King of the Tareares, who was but a Neat-heard by his first profession.

Behold (in fumine) what Philosophy The Authour Princes ought to learne, which is not fo much comprized in Bookes; as it is the braine (provided of good and solid iudgement) the seare of Godbeeing alwaies principally preferred So shall the faying of Plate be truely found in them: That Kinges ought to be Philosophers , or Philosophers raigne.

The end of the third BOOKE.

iras the chief

Chap.1.

The Gouernment of the great Sophy,

The Fourth Booke.

CHAP. I.

Of the Kingdome of Persia; Nature of the Country and People; Condition of their Court, Lawes, and Commonwealth affaires, &c.

Ersia hath caried the fame name, from the beginning to this day, containing it in these seucral Regions, Lar and Requelmall. The elder times tearmed Perfepolis; which is gouerned by the Sophy, Great Lord of all Perfia and Azimia, called (by our Elders) Affyria; and the Kingdom of Dearbech, fometime named Melopotamia; and Seroan that was Media; and Parthia now called lex; with His ca, now tearmed Coraxan; And Sarmania, now Dulcendana; and Afia, at this inftant called Hetti. All these Regions, with the greater Armenia (which is a part also of them) are gouerned by the Great Sophy, and the greatest or largest Citty under his command, is named Tauris, being built in the midst of the Mountaine Taurus, foure Dayes iourney off from the Calpian Sea. Next vnto Tauris, there are other Citties befide; as Soltania, Coneaffan, Saphan, Corazan, Lera, Mora, Sarmachand, Gefti, Far, Siras, and Ormuz, a City in the Perlicke principall Citty thereof is called Siras, in Sea, which at this day, is called Mare Mısındia. In this Citty, is great Com-merce of Merchants, made with the Portugals, and there they Fish for great a-bundance of Pearles. There are also o-ther Citties, as Cureh, Iex, Casmine, and Coy, with infinite Castles. On the westfide of the Cittie Tauris, are the Calpian Mountaines, which bee now called the Mountaines of Ararat : And on the Bacchan Sea (aunciently named the Caspian Sea) are these Citties ; Summachia, Derbent, Bacchan, and Mamutaga. All thefe Provinces, and their Regions, are very barren, because they have small store of Rivers: the greatest whereof, is cald Bindarin, but (in former times) they entitled it Bragada. The people of these Regions, are warlicke, civil, and very valiant men: ther is not fo much civility found in al-Asin these people, but they are al Mahumerifts.

These Provinces do produce the best Horses that are to be found in the world. And there they make the best steele Armors, that is in any Lande, which are made at a place called Azimina, where there is great abundance of Silke. As concerning the Gouernment heere obferued, Zenophon (fpeaking of those elder dayes) faith; That they have a certaine cheefe place, called by them, Preedome; cerning their wherein flandeth the Kings Pallace, and all the houses of the cheefest men Neere vnto this, ther is fuch another void place made fit for Merchants, and things to be fold by Mercenary Artificers, seuered farre off one from another, to the end, that fuch as are addicted to vertue and Liberall Arts, may not be molested with Merchandize, and fishing to: Peatles.

The nature & qualitie of the

The bestbreed of Horffes in Bad people fcgood and ver-fooles, and their yelle chatting; besides, beastly people, and the rude misgouernd multitude, may not prelume to meddle with them.

Fourt Court for foure degrees of peo-

The Market-place of Freedom or Liberty, is deuided into foure parts or habitations, and are rearined Courts. In one, dwelleth young Children In the fecond, Youths without Beards : in the third, men of mature yeares : and in the 10 fourth; fuch as (by Age) are no more able or bound to follow the warres. Each of these (by Law) hath his place and exercise: the Ghildren and men do affemble together daily, in their feuerall quarters; but the Olde men not so often, but only vpon some appointed dayes. The young men, with such Armes as they are allowed to exercise, doe tend about the the Princes dwelling in the Night time; except they be fuch as haue wines, who, not being subject to such commaund, is fauoured for the Night-scruice. But they account it not honest but rather a shame and difgrace, to be ouer-foone married. Each Court hath twelue Prafetts, acording to the number of the Persian tribes. To the Children, are old graue men appointed, apt for their better continuance in good manners : and fuch men likewife to the youthes, as (by their Vertue) can yeild them best example of immitation. For, the men of riper yeares, there are Gouernors elected, that by conformitie of their passed lines, and regular sway of authority, may holde good disposition with them, not anie way to swerue from the wil and direction of their Prince, but doe containe them in verie facile obedi-The exercises of each age and degree

(to the end that euerie mau may knowe, with what care and industry he must become a good Cittizen) are these. The Children of Perfia (like to ours) doe attaine to Learning in Schooles, and there they are taught to vnderstand, what it is to line according to Inflice and honesty.

Such as are their Gouernors there, doe frend the most part of theday, in judging and giving fentence on fuch Delictes, as are reported one of another. Such as are accused of Thest, Rapine, Violence, Deceit, Dishonest Language, and such like offences, being found innocent in these Crimes, the falle accusers, are presently punished. About all other Vices, In-

The exercises of each age 30 degree.

lowed to each

Court,& their

The Children are enstructed gratitude is most seuearely chastised, as being the occasion of infinite shames among men. And he that is found negligent, in returning like thankfulneffe for Ingratitude is a benefit received, they flicke not pub- feuercly punilickly to maintaine, that out of this Vice, fied. iffueth contempt of the imortall Gods, their Countrey, Parents, and Friends: & finally, that it is the head and manifelt originall of all other enils whatfocuer. Be- Offining tent fide this, they learne to line temperately, perately. and for inducement thereto, they repute example of the most ancient, to bee best availeable, and the beholding of their temperate behauiour.

In like manner, with no great difficultie, they are incited to continencie, with abilitie to endure both hunger and thirst: by feeing men of fuch grave yeares, not part away thence to eating or drinking, without license obtained of the Prafects. They eate not in the Mothers compa- Children eate ny, but alwayes with their Maisters : for their diet is brought to the School, whi-che is Breade and Hearbes, commonlie called * Nofurtium . Little need of drink haue they, because they vie nothing but crestes. Water, vitill the age of fixteene yeares. They have Bowes and Arrowes, wherewith they practife shooting, and afterward are fon to dwell among the * Ephr-b, who are young youths, that likewife haue, and do ftill lead the fame kinde of

Their attendance and fleepe time, is The attendace as we have already faid, about the Prin- of the yourbs ces Lodgings, and as well for a Watch or guard to the Citty, as also to preuent fuch Luxuries, which commonly do oner-abound in these young years, except they be holpen by diligent solicitude, & verie stirring exercises. In the day time, they waite upon their Prafects, to the end that they may bee alwaies in readincife. When the King rides on hunting (which The Kings of happens ditters times in the month) one part of them do go along with him, carr and how an ended. rying each man his Bow, and Quiuer of Arrowes, his Axc or Long Sworde, his Shield, and two Dartes : one readie to draw, and the other to hold in his hand, as well to defend as offende with them. The King, as in a vion of a King, euen fo in Hunting, he is the Captaine, purfuing the chase with greatest dilligence, and commanding all the rest what is necessary to be done. So that this exercise, ap-

*Water-Kars,

*Striplings of

Who are mof

Concerning loch as remain

In causes of vigent necessi ty, who are

Of the Kingdome of Persia.

peareth like vnto warre, by carefull forefight, to keepe a good houre of rifing in the morning, to endure both colde and heate, to run after Wild-Beafts; and (by the Tharpeneffe of a fauage Countrey) to make the body able to enery labor. They are likewife (manie times) enforced, to awaite the wilde Beafts comming against them, respecting alwayes, that if hee be more powerful then he was reputed they to may all stirre presently, exercising still that small respit of time, euen as if they

Euerie man bears his own

Chap. 1.

Hunting com pared to war-

were in the Campe for battaile. Eucry man carries his own food with him; and yet they cate not before the houre of supper time, except they have leyfure to stand still awhile, in expectation of force wilde Beaftes comming, or have given better order for the Chafe. When they have fupt, the next day fol- 20 lowing they purfue still the Game, vntill the fame houre of Supper againe, enermore without feeding, making two daies together but one, in respect of eating: which habitude is also most profitable in Warre, respecting times, which often do enforce a great scarsitie of Victuals. If there bee any dearth, then they vie to temper their bread, with the aforesaide Nafturtium, for no man there will cate, till vrgent hunger compell him . Farre differing from them, that care not what excesse they feede Gluttony withal, who can neuer judge truly, how little woulde scrue, or be really delightfull to Nature: like to him that can please appetite with fimple Bread, or a poore finall Cake, & feekes not to flake thirst with Wine, but harmeleffe water. They that remaine at home in their houses, for safegard of the Cittie , haue 40 publick places appointed, for like exercifes in them, They have a care of all occafions, even from verie Childe-hood, to fee them vie their Bowes , hurle their Darts, and exercise Armes. They that are most vertuous, wife, learned, and actiue of person, doe carry greatest Commendation, and are honoured of the people; not onely the Prafects, but euen fuch alfo, as have, bin any occasion (by their diligence) of their education from Child-hood, they carry worthic Commendation, and are contained in highest fauour.

If any lewd Offender should be fought for, any Theefe apprehended, or speedy fuccour fent to fome needefull place, in dealing with these occurrences, which require haft and firength of bodye; the Gouernors make vie of none but young lufty men, who (having bin trained ten yeares in fuch Disciplines) are ranked among the number of men, that (to the age of fine and twenty) have hadde the Gouernment of them, as the Præfectes had of their Childe-hood, euer to make them ready for service of the Commonwealth. When they go in battell order, they we neither Bowes, Darts or Weapons, to offend a farre offe but ech mans brest is armed with a Cuirace, his shield vpon his arme, and fo he confrontes his Enemy, either with his Axe, or with his Sword. The Heads or Commanders are all Prefittes, yet none of them abide in the Citty, having care of the yong Chil-

When they have past this time, and attained to the age of fiftie yeares, they What they do are placed among the old men fent forth at the age of no more to warre:but rest in their countrey, where they elect Præfects, ordaine Indges for publicke and prinate causes, and likewife (as Iurors)do paffe vpon the lines of men, that sentence may be given vpon euery delict, acording as the crime appeareth by due enidence, in which ca-fes, eueric man offended, hath free liberty to accuse. He that stands condemned in the whole course of his life, is reputed most infamous. The whole Common-Wealth of the Persians, containeth in it an hundered and twentie thousands dren and youth.

Whenthevgo

There is no prohibition, of being inftructed in the publicke Schooles, where nied infructi-Inflice is truely taught, neither is it for-bidden by any Lawe, but that a man (by licke Schools, his Vertues) may attaine to dignitie and honor, no exception is made, but onely want of Vertue. Yet let me tell ye, most choife is made of Rich mens sonnes for the Schooles, not because their Parents have least need, but that themselves are foonest infected with Vices. And poore Difference bemens fonnes (for necessity of common maintenance) are fent to Shoppes, to fennes. learne Mercenarie exercifes, whereby to

The Children that have been enfiructed in the Disciplines fore-named, may converse with the Ephebi, but not the others. The Ephebi, that have lived accor-

very needic o much betten.

Seauen Towers ful of mo-

Three kinds of Soldiers in condition.

Order of delcent from one degree to ano

The Perfians

temperate life.

mong the men, and attaine to Honours and Magistracie. And these men, after they have lived according to the Persian Discipline, may go amongs the Oldest Men, who having lived (all their time) with greatest Instice, are most woorthie

Persians, is, that they can endure labour enough, yet live moderately. But among vs, there is little or no respect at all, albeit they hold it for the greatest infamy, to fpet in company, or make clean the nofe, and to voide Vrine publickely, or do any fuch Offices in open fight. All which, we might eafily thun, if wee would eate but little, and the groffe natural humors

many notable victories, and being neuer foyled in any place; hath brought verie great and important warres to end. It is a matter also verie vnbeneficial to the Per-fians, that they vie no Shotte, neither abounde in any Artillerie on Carriages;

with which terrible helpe, enery attempt is soonest concluded. As was too wel exampled, by the vnhappy proofe of Vlan-

Caffanus, and of Ifmaell, whose Cauallery were then honourably victorious.

Lately also, in the Caldean Fields, and (in memory of our Fathers) at Harfengs and Emphrates, where they could not endure the great and vn-accustomed noise of their Horsses, in that most cruel & bloodie Tempest. Wherefore, in no place may the armed man of Persia, compare with the Turke, if he were difarmed. Because the Persian is (of all parts) couered with a scalie Cuirace; his Panciere or Belly-peece, of Iron; his buffied Helmet strongly creasted, and hung thicke with Feathers, his Shield or Target rounde, and curioufly embellished with Golde.

But the Turke of Europe, as vtterly vnar-med, is fearfly halfe conerd with a round by labour and exercise of the body. The Perfects in thefe dayes

Their want of

Their lacke of Shot & great Ordinance.

Example of

Difference be tweene the Turks arming and the Persiding to the Lawes, may likewife abide aand excellent Citizens in the Common-An expresse note of abstinence in the of the bodie, would confume themselues 20 In these daies, all things in the world being altred the Persians make theirwars with most vnindifferent course, and (for ought I can perceive) bad conditions, because as they have a wonderful Caualerie, so they have no certaine power of Infanterie or Footmen, either ordinarie or aged. By which part of strength, the Turke (euen in our times) hauing gotten 30

> All these thinges being equally compared together, the armie of the Sophie, The Sophi euen bounde and deuoted to the King, army feemet (by an opinion of a high and Diuine minde, and by a certaine Religious Sacramentall reason) not being searefull of death in any place, although it bee inferiour to the Turkes in number, might feeme inuincible, if it were not oppreffed by Treacherous and vnworthie men of valour, furie of Artillerie, and vnvfual multitudes of men.

Tartars manner, and his fall is almost

I finde, that the principall occasion, Thereafond why I/mael brought fo many Prouinces (uccelle in was (by glorious Armes) vnder one fole Emperie, yet with leffe number of Soldiers then others would beleeue (especially against Ottoman, who ouer-ran the countrey fo farre as Armenia, and wasted all bended Target, after the manner of the Alian Shieldes, inter-wouen with Reeds, hibtilly sweetned with Cinnamon, and embroidered with Silke of fundrie Colours. The Persian likewise couereth his arme and right hand, with a false sleene and Gauntlet of Steele, galloping with a Launce of Ash, which hath two points; Launce for the Launce of Ain, which nath two points; ing from the and being met in the middeft, (after the Turker. Moores fashion) oftentimes beares off the blowe on high, for easier passage of the men and Horse disarmed. But, the Turke (according to the Gracian vie)placing his Launces butt-end in his flanke, and stouping it vnto his horses care (like them that are made of light and brittle Firre) runnes swiftly vppon the spurre, breakes it at the first blow, and so passing on to the enemies Armie, is constrained to lay hand to his Semitar, or to his iron Mace, as vnable to gouerne the Persians furie. For, they are mounted on great & verte strong horses, that have their foreheads armed with Iron, and their bodies covered with fodden Leather hides(after the manner of the Italians Capparisons) plaited together in narrowe foldes, and Ruffed with Bumbast or Silke, to beare off every blow falling thereon. In which regard, no one of them (except ouer-audauciously) will compare the best Persian, either with the Archer on Horsebacke, or foote-Soldier of the Turk. For fed by the he being armed with a big ftrong Bowe, Turker. full of manie knotted Nerues, drawes an Arrowe of good roundnesse, after the

Liberality to the Kinges

In times when

(things) was onely this pare released all Tribinestandrooke away enery taxation concly to purchase falme by liberality to tien who has very enmance And it much imported this new King dien; fo to doe, because (by force of Armes) he expulsed the lawfull heires I from the State and Empire after Van-Caffanus the Grandfire, and ratoppo their Father. In which respect, her was ener needle of Money; and therefore, when any warre arole, he brought forthino Armies, combined by their strong and just Nerves, albeit the countries of the East (abounding in manie things) belide fuch ditterfitie of rich Kingdomes) benignlic and largely wold have affoorded supply of pay, for all fiecessaries belonging to life and warfare. Quite contraty to solymins case, who cotinually was ferued with Infanteric and 20 Horsemen, Maisters of the Artillerie, Captaines of the Army, and all fuch befide, as were either Officers for the field, or attended in his Pallace, who were daily and monthly paid by the treasurer, that deliuered forth monies. Nor in this cafe is there any want of Freafitries, because that in Constantinople there are schen Towers or Caffles, which containe in them inestimable mountains of mony, both of gold and Siluer, with perpetual entrance yearely, of so many tributes and taxations, as do exceed all expences whatfor-

Among the Persians there are 3 forts of Soldiers, to wit, of the Guard; of men vnder commaund; and of voluntarie affiftants. Those of the Guard, are at a certain pay, and are dieted at the Kings coft. and he likewise (according to an auncient Custome) and at cerraine times of the year, observed in writing, as an overplus of bounty, gives them Armor horfes, Garments, Pauillions or Tents for the field, and victuals. At these times, being attended with a goodly companie of Lords; as also the Soldiers at command, and braneft voluntaries : hee maintaines the reputation of a frequent Court, and Progracing vnto places of best maintetenance, proceedeth on to visit the most Noble Citties of the Prouinces. When ther is no wars, the Dinafti Lords Detrarchi, and Feudataries of ancient Nobility (who enjoy the Signories of the Caftles and Countries, given by their elders, do find all the prouision in Prograce; or if uer, by the fourth part.

it be given them by the King, it is collected againe by Edict. They do also whatfocuer elle is commanded them, according to the fame reason, or equality in condition; as (vniner(ally) al the Nobili-tie in spatial Praduct and Will), Weeke to forue their Lord had King Withan.

The number of the Soldleis Is great. and when they are in Armes, they refort to their Enfignes; but if a diligent inquiry be made they never amount to 20000. Horfe Wor doe the third part of them (furnathed in hichelich manner syve have before declared) go for to battely for all the rest are consented with their Fiel mets Mantles (of hard and thick-woulen fluffe)wrapped about them; and churged with fundry thickle their fight is onelic with the Lance and Bow. For they have novelearned to lielpe those former kinde The Persians of Armes, and according as place & oci cafion required; dollar the third ouer | mes. the Moulder, to to evening the Launce of a purling enemy and flaids voor luedefence before with his Bow and Antows. Those Shields which are truely fande to come from Perflur and from the Royall City of stires (where Airnor is made of mortexcellent temper and verie worthy certes in him, which examination Next vnto thefe, are the neighboring

Affirems, by authority of numer sethorer fore the Kingdoms of the Medes of Dara thians, do affoord the verie befrandvaliantest Archers, beyond all other except the Tarvars. But the Armenians docouct most of all to fight on foor & write them felues of the Infanterie . For they plant (vpon the ground) a long preparation of in lland Shields, great and plaine, even as if they had a Rampier before them, and for defend themselves against the first of the Horlemen, fighting with Piker, and wery Thort Axes, as also Bowes and randwes: yearmany times they fight both neer and far off, with Slings that hange shore hairdles. People that come to helpe them as Voluntaries voluntaries, are fent out of Iberia and Albania, who are their confederate Kinges, and neighbor vpon Media and sermenia. beeing (for the most part) halfe Christians, and therefore do maintaine equall hatred against the Ottomens, and warre againft themasol of the additable

The Perfian Soldiers great in number.

> tice (pecial) a Chapter.

are altered iro their first ar-าในก*ับสา*เส vas an excel-THE MER THE the Perstans.

The fighting of the Armen fent from con federate Kings

ATA HO dere or difparel.

four of April 11 . . . for up 1 it be giuça them by the King, it is colred againe by Edick, They do allo what Couer elle it. I In & Au HO them, accorconstroide (i. ne senter, es equalistical de la constitución de la collection de la constitución de la const mentaries of the Warres in Gaule, he of tentimes culleth the Gaules (at this day Erenth-men) Barbarians.

The especiall occasion of this Chapter. Harwhich I haue purposed to handle in this Chapter, proceeded not either from affections or over-great animosity; but rather to defend (against the Spaniard, Ralian, or Greeke)

the famous Kingdome of Frances: For, when they are growne discontented with the Erench, or be chafed, and over-come 20 by them in warre, they spightfully rerine them! Harbarians, Incivill, and Saluages, and fay, they learned it of Iulius Cefar. Novel to discusse whether it bee true, or no that the whole Civility of the world was amonigh the Romaines, and that the Ganles hadde not as much or more then they it remaineth you fufficient proofe and triall. Althogh that Julius Cafar was a great Captaine, having all those good 20 partes in him, which are required in an Empelour vet notwithstanding, it may plainly bee noted, that beeing vnable to effectuate his Conqueltes in Gaule, hee therefore calles it a light Nation, inconftant and barbarous.

cause they ysed humaine. Oblations in their Sacrifices, facrififing fornetimes, their Schildren, other whiles their flaues, Romaines were both cruell in their factifices and veric often themselves, vppoh some Vow or folemne Oath taken: for vanquithing their enemies in Warre, or for fom other special matter. Which I must needs confesse to be a great cruelty, and farrefrom all humanity: albeit that in thoforimes and parts of the world, they vsed the fame manner of facrificing. And yet the Romaines did much worse heerein, then all other Nations whatfoeuer. For from all Antiquity, in the Country of the Latines (where Rome is built) they threw manie men off a bridge, into the River of Tiber , having their Feete and hands fast bound, to honour their facrifices of Saturne. Nor would they otherwife malfacre or dispatch them, in reigard offen anticon Oracle(se Korre faith) the last Veries, whereoff contenneth thus nucles. Send the abeefelf least abs and the lugar roll arbor. Surarnes, that was 63%, the ingoined this new King them to saul. Titu Liuing a Romain Hillorian who was from the time of Iulius Calar, buth left Written, That the faid Romains had a Cultome when they behelde them felues in any great perill to yow and promife folemnly, that they woulde intino rower of the late to Jupiter, all creatures that received life in the next Spring time scalling the Spring time Hely. In these vowes, were comprized at the Infants lives that shold be born duting this feafon. But at length, they converted this facilitieing of infants. by fending them into exile which like wife feemed verie cruell, to banish poore and innocent Infants.

For ought I knowe, there is not arrie Who have bin people or Nation, that can fay of themfelues, they have stood cleare from these horrible Sacrifices. For, in Chier, a Greejan Island, thy yied the fame. In Agypt, in Heliopolis, where every day they maffacred three men to offer them to the Goddeffe June, The Lacedemonians, Sacrificed to God Mars. The Phanitians did as much to Saturne, when they were vexed with Pestilence, or persecuted with great warres. Hiftrens, an auncient Author, faieth; that the * Curetes, a peo ple of Creete, vied to appeale Saturne, by called alio Co. offering young Infants in facrifice vnto him. In Landicea, a Cittle of Calo-Sy ria, they did the like, to make the Goddeffe Pallas placable. The Jewes do ftiffely denie, that they did not immolat their Infants to God Moloch. The Thracians. Carthagenians, Scythians, and (wel-neere) all the Grecians, did exercise such detestable Sacrifices. And it was common euerie where, vntill the time of the Emperor Claudius, who made an Edicte to the contrary. And yet at this day, thorow all the Great Provinces of India, o-

on humaine flesh. If Julius Cafar reputed the Gauls to be Thefe offings barbarous, because (hauing promised & reputed piette and religion in the Gaules. win battailes against their enemies, they offered fuch Sacrifices to them: I should rather judge it great Picty and Religion in them, towards their Gods and Countherwise called the New-world, not only do they still facrifice men, but also feed

Chap.2.

Oblations of the spoyles of the Gaules & pared toge-ther.

The Gardes

neuer flew themselues

but in adue

Verie cruell

Once (thofeed on hufacult de Alz-

trey, because they made no spare of them felues, but Sacrificed also (with them) all that which they had conquered in wafre, of what great value and estimation socuer it were. For it is especially to bee noted, that wherefoeuer Religion & Justice is, there can bee accounted no barbarifine. Contrariwife, after victory obrained in fome battalle, the Romaines facrificed common Creatures, and made particular profit of the very greatest Riches conquered by them as of Cap-tiues, Gold, Silver, Horfes, and fuch like, offering to their God Inpiter Pheretrue, mooueables of small value; as fome Armours, price-leffe Rings, and Garments. Moreouer, such was the vertue and magnanimity of the Gaules, as to endure fo many tribulatios, which time could lay vppon them while they | 200 lived. But the Komaines, to free themfelues from all perils; would commonly kill themselves; if they were detained in prison, or otherwise, which is the act of men downe-falne in hart. If he hold them for barbarous, because they have eaten humaine fiesh, as it is very true: he must vnderstand, that it happened vpon an extreame necessity, when himselfe came downe vpon | 30 them with three hundred thousand Cymbrians, Teutons, or Allemaignes into Gallia Sequana, and befiedged the Citty of Sens. For victuals failing them, by reason that all the Countrey was spoiled about them, and the Enemy kept a long and first fiedge voon them this poore diffressed people (vnable to de-fend the Citty otherwise) consisting of aged persons, women and children, very young in yeares, did voluntarily expose their lines, to feede their bowels that defended their Countrey, and for preservation of the Gaules Commonwealth. But this was not ordinarily done, nor vpon any wanton or lickerish appetite; likewise, neuer was it cuer heard to bee done , either before that time or after. Contratiwife, much more barbaroufly, and without any necessity at all; the Romaines made it a Iouial vie. to feed on mens flesh in their feasts and banquets, as Galen affures vs, that himfelfe hath scene, in the time of the Emperot Commodust Some Spaniards (euen in our times) have done as much in the Indiaes, for having no other victuals;

In Defence of the Gaules. they would eate their owne compani-or famine.

Inlius Cefar also makes a mockery because there were certaine people, tearmed waged or mercenary Souldiers among the Gaules, who made a free gift of themfelies to people of wealth, to do all fuch feruices as they would imploy them in 3 receiving their whole nourithment and maintenance (from them) while they lived . But looke of what death focuer their Maifters dyed; they would gladly and willingly follow them therein, to keepe them company, of Gaule wher and do fernice to their Lords foules, in to they were another world, because this was an Article of their Religion. But the Romaines had an inuiolable law, which was, that if a mailter had few or many flaues, and he hapned to be flaine (albeit that fome other had kild their Mailler) yet all the Slaues must be flaine. Nay, they had worse customes, for if a Captaine were offended with his Soldiers, or fome idle toy tooke him in the head; hee would haue every tenth man in his Army culd Decimation out, and cause them to be hewen in pie- of the Romain ces before him, by the other Souldiers of the same company. More, the great number of Gladiatores or Fencers, that they caused to kill one another (either in their open Theaters, or other publique places strewed with Sand) with very keene edged and sharpe pointed Gladiatores Swordes, before all the people, with-out any pitty or compassion, saying: Thus did the Romaine people, and so affured of their vovces. Perhaps he called them barbarous; because that the Gaules (in his time) had familiar food no other food for their ordinary prouifion, but Swines Fleih. I aunswere him, that it is one of the best and wholefomest meate, which can beg vsed for any nourishment; for it verie

Dd a more cruelly in war. Nor might thefe

Fencers gine ouer the fight, what hurts or woundes foeuer they had received except the people were fo pleafed. They would make their Captines also fight with cruell Beaftes; as Lyons, Beares.

Tygers, and others, not in any small number but by thousandes at a time;

only for a pastime to the people, and to win themfelues credit, that when they fought after any office, they might bee ons, and Indians, that died on discales;

Of hyred &

Swines Flesh

caffiv

mong the Ro-Iulius Cafar was an excellent Captaine.

The first reason was (as I thinke) bee-

The Gauss and

sharmdoV ent from

All Cigility adi manano

tony and Lu-

Cornelius Cel-

The Gaules

(at all times)

on the harde

The Gaules

vied to weare

ground.

eafily converteth into the substaunce of man, as being almost of the same temperature. The Athletes and Wraftlers of Greece, to make themselus, sturdy, strong, and of the best habitude, would feed on no other Victuals, but bread and Porke. But the Romaines of Cafars time inriched and made fat with the spoils of the world; were become Gourmandes, dissolute, and prodigall, as the like could not bee 1 found in any other Nation. One may ferue for an example of the rest, who termed himselfe a great friend vnto Casar, named Lucullus, that spent vppon one meale, twentie thousand Crownes. But by this kinde of badde life, multitude and varietie of Dishes, and extreame Gluttonie vsed amongst them: the Romaines grew to be verie vnhealthfull, according as Cornelius Celfus writeth. And no man is so ignoraunt, but knoweth verie well; that leading such a life, doth rather truly fauour of Beafts lines and barbariline, then of the least part or iotte of Civili-

Hee should not call them barbarous, because when they were at rest in their houses, they slept not vpon fost featherbeddes, but ordinarily vppon the harde ground; which the Romaines (in those times) could not doe. Most certaine it is that it is rather a Vertue to fleepe in fuch manner, then otherwise, for more easie support of such discommodities, as commonly doe attend on men of warre: who (as it should seeme) are sent of heauen, for defence of their Countrey, to fubdue incivill people for their finnes. fhort garmets Nor, for wearing of thort Garmentes, could he call them barbarous, because it is the nature of a Warlicke people, rather to bee clad in Garments which are fhort, then such as be long and trou-

Besides the Title of Barbarous, he ac-Cafar termed counts them to bee a light-headed peothe Gaules to ple, verie mutable in opinion and counbe a light-braind people fell. Hee speaketh these thinges, as a fworne enemic vnto them. For, when he had fowne divisions and Quarrelles among them, hee would feigne to bee on one fide, and quite against the other. But they perceiuing his fubtilty, disclaymed from his kindnesse, and brake the agreements which they hadde made with blesome.

He neither furmounted or went beyond them in open and faire warre, for indeed he could not : but only by trecheries, because his intent was, to possesse himselfe of Gaule, and be King thereof, if colors ambiti-he had vanquithed pamper. Now, be-cause they differend his deusles, & knew the Dominion of the Romans to be more insupportable, then that of the Allemaignes, whom the Gaules of Sequana had called to their aide, against them of Anuni, and fo leagued theinfelues together very gladly: therefore he cals them light and inconstant. I leave to further consideration, whether hee had fufficient subject to hold them for fuch.

If he conceited them (then) not to be Lettered, hee was much deceived; for from all antiquity, the Gaules had knowledge in that part of Phylosophy, which In what Phywe tearme Naturall, and of the Ethique Gaules were or Morrall too, instructing pollicie and skilfull. good manners, which ought to support a Common-wealth. Nor went they among the Greekes to feeke instruction, as manie haue immagined. For, whereas Cafar faith in his Commentaries, That they vsed Greek Carracters in their writinges; hee meaneth not, that they fpake the Greeke Language. But three hundred yeares (or thereabout) before that Rome was taken and fackt by the Gauler, it was (as their owne Historians haue recorded) both without Law and Iuflice. The first Ro-True it is, that they were good Warri- maines begd ours, and that tenne men were fent from their Lawet in Greece, to feeke lawes, whereby to pollicie their Common-Wealth. The Gaules on the contrarie, woulde neuer vie the Lawes of any other; but contented themselues with those, which they hadde received from eldest antiquitie, as manie people yfed by their example yea. cuen the Romaines themselues, immitated them in Articles (enow) of their Religion, hauing withdrawne fome of their Phylosophers and Priestes, who coulde not followe those other Gaules, when as they departed from Italy to goe into Greece, by reason of the Dearth of Victu-

The Reader, by conferring both ma- The Reader ners and fashions in behauior of the one to be an indiff and other; will finde as much, or rather ferent ludge more Barbarisme in the Romaines, then in the Gaules. And although they have changed their Name, for that braue nation of Warriors in Franconia, who are

A long continued vice in

Of the Switzers Cantons

Chap. 3. mingled among them :yet doo they carrie (to this day) the Fame and Renowne, to be the Gallant, Civill, and most courseous Nation of the World, and where Learned men abound, more then in any other Province . But the Romaines and Italians, have had this Vice for long themselves . For, it is plainely seene in time; to make estimation of none but all their Histories, that they make themselves to be evermore Conquerors, with out attributing anie thing to others . As may be evidently noted in the very commentaries of this Cafar : but if it were fo wel knowne by other Historians of their owne Nation, how often the Gaules did beat, vanquish and put him to his flight, ouer-throwing the Pallifadoes of his Campe, by their cunning Mines made Vnder-ground, wherein they were verie skilfull Maisters: the Gaules (as I have faide elfewhere) neede care for no other Written Histories; knowing that (for the most part) they are either Flatterers or Lyers.

Scaliger, borne at Verona, in his fourth Booke against Cardanus, sayeth, That there is not any Nation, which hath a more lively spirit, in doing whatfocuer themselves would, then were the French, be it in Armes, Learning, Merchandize, or Well-speaking ; but, about all the rest, they have (saieth hee) a most Generous and innocent heart, keeping Faith most constantly, with anie people whatsoeuer. Beholde the Judgement of a man, reputed the cheefest of his qualitie, against the opinion of the faid Cefar; Tacitus, Trebellius & PolCHAP. III. ""

How long time it is fince the Switzer's were Cantonned : and uppon what occasion their Countrey was called. the Land of Leagues.

Efore we speake ame thing of the Switzers; Efore we freake anie I should describe the feituation, Grounde tation of the country, which was given their; to bee Mountai-

An aductrife

3125 N

ftory, purposely intended for his inffrue tion, in knowing, why the people vvere Cantonned. To thew yee then, what the Country is, which is cald of the Suitzers, or the Lande of Cansons, or of Leagues; ye must understand, it is that which was called by the Romaines, Heluctia. It beginneth in the veric highest Alpes, and endeth (on the East side) at Rh. ine., defcountry of cending towardes the North, fo farre as Laugher: Waltzhut and Laufembourge ; and from thence it turneth towardes the West, as in a direct tracte, by the Mountaine /#ra, even to the Lake of Geneua: and afterwards, remounteth vppon the Alpes nous and ftrong (the onely benefit of begetting Liberty) to the end that the Reader may the better comprehend the HI

The Country seemeth to be straight feription of and narrow; as appearing, that the veric the Country largest place, thould not extend it felfe a-much leffe: the length alfo to confift of about an hundered and ten Leagues. It is verie Mountainy, populous, and yet more then other Countries, cannot nourith or maintaine men. They are a warlicke people, able to endure all trauailes in warre : Manie of them (at this day) Switzers take doeling yppon fucit Wages, as they re-ceine of ftrange Princes that will imploy mony. them : not that they take part with fuch as will give them most Wages (as some think) but in willingnesse to serue whom most they loue.

boue forty Leagues, and (in fome places)

In this Countrey, there are manie goodly Citties and I ownes, as also verie great Villages, and very well pollicied

The cruell

Gouernour

sensi kanal

Foure Switzers enforce to eate their owne cares.

The region 8 tonning the Countrey.

308

Exaction by the Romaines ypon the Switzers.

> Of the Gouernour of three Vales,

three yoak o

Oxcn.

Cruell tyrannics and oppreflions in the Gouerwhereof we meane to speake hereafter. The occasion then, wherefore this Country was and is reduced into Cantons, and to become leagued, against those that oppressed them; was thus, according as Blondus maketh faithfull relation thereof. About the yeare 1305. the Emperours and Kinges of the Romaines, during the Schismes of the Empire, did place Gouernours good ftore in the Switzers Countrey, as to recompence fush as had taken part with them. not having where withall (otherwise) to reward them. They gave them leave to do whatfocuer feemed good in their owne opinion, being as many of them there, as there were Cittles, Townes, and Villages, or few wanting: who molested the people with subsidies and borrowings, extorting all thinges elfe whatfocuer from them, according as it came into their fantafie. And yet notwithstanding, a great many of the Citties, Townes, and Comminalties, had long continued their immunity & franchife; eyther by especiall grace of the Emperours or by buying fuch priviledges with their Money, for which they had good & fufficient Patents to fnew. Neuerthelesse, these Harpie Gouernours, by perfusiion of fome Noblemen of the Countrey; did manifold wrongs and injuries to this people.

It happened, that the Governour of three Vales, wherein are three great Townes; to wit, Vri, Suutta, and Vnderualden (that were free of long time) fent fundry of his Catch-poles or Sergeants to demand three couple of Oxen, which belonged to a man of Vnder- 40 ualden,& to bring them away perforce: vfing no other reason, but: that Country men should labour with their hands, and not with the help of staule-fed Oxen. The Sonne to the man, from whom the Oxen were taken, impatient at his Fathers oppression; laying hand on his Sword, chanced to cut off a Finger of one of the Sergeants. The poore youth was afterward apprehended, and the Tyrant (beeing extreamely enraged) commaunded his eyes to bee pulled Another Gouernour of the faid Vnderualden, sent for an honest Woman, that should prepare a bath for him in his owne House; which she did accordingly, as not daring to disobey the Tirant. No foonerhad the made ready his Bath, and pliroofing ap part thence againe : but the Villaine rauished her, for which thee was flaine by her Hulband, with the helpe of his Friends.

There was another Quernour of Anotorious Vri, who, befide his exacting on many Gouernour. meanes of the people, entredinto fuch folly and prefumption, that he erected (in a faire spacious place of the faide Vri), an high pearch or poule; on the top whereof was fastned a Hat or Bonnet, which he himfelfe had fometime worne, commaunding the like to bee done in the Villedge of Suuitz. Af- Reuerence of Countrey people should performe as much reverence to the Bonnet, as if himselfe were there in person. There was a man of very generous Spirit, and borne in that Countrey, named Guillaume Tell, who refuted to doe this friuolous reuerence. Whereupon hee was apprehended, brought before this proud and insupportable Gouernour, and sentenced with death: except hee Acruelimpo could falue his disobedience, by taking Father. a young Sonne of his owne (about fine yeares old) and standing fifty paces off from the Childe; cleaue an Apple vpon his bare head, with an Arrow deliuered from a Croffe-bow, without any harme done to the Childe. The man was both famed, andknowne to bee an expert Crosse-bow-man, and being heereto thus rigorously constrained : he performed the deede, without any hurt to his Child; but it was more by the grace of God, then his owne industry. The Gouernour beeing offended A further pro that the man had sped so well, and perceiting that hee had another Arrow by the gouerleft under his Girdle; demaunded, for nour. what purpose hee had that other Arrow, when he was enjoyned to shoote but one? Guillaume Tell answered. If I had flaine my Son; this other Arrow should have had thy life. In regard of these words, he was taken, bound fast with Gords, and put into a Boate, to be conveyed to prison. Now, it fortuned, that they were to passe a Lake in rowing thither, vpon which Lake hee escaped very strangely from them. For, having (by meere firength) bro-

idle tolly in a

The rich Abbot of the her mits claimeth an interest in fecution of

The first victorie of the Switzers, a-gainst the D.

ken his bonds, he threw himfelfe fuddenly into the Lake, and recovering certaine Mountaines not farre off, lyued there verie concertly, and awayting for the Conernour (one day) in a verie narow passage, there slew him with the fore fild Airow.

-1 Another Conternor, caused the cares of foure Country-memof switts tobes cut off then commanding them to bee roafted, he compelled them to eat them. The people of the Countrey, beeing not a little mooned with these extreame injuries, and manie other out-rages in the Gouernours: expelled them quite out of those three Vales & from thenceforward) entering into Confederacies), beganne to Cantone or quarter themfelies, fwearing a folemnet rague, with absolute promise to succor one another 20 if they thould livereafter be modlefted by any wholoetier.

Within thort time after, a tich Abbot, entitled of the Hermits, faide , That hee had right and Title . To leavie fome Provision of Corne, and of Mony alfo, vppon the Village of Switzd and fummoned them to make payment thereof. They answered, that they houer hearde before of any thing due vito the fayde 30 Abbot, nor did nnie fuch right (to their knowledge) appertaine voto him: and therefore, they would pay him nothing. Hee growing verie anglie at this auni-Iwere, and beeing descended of a Great and Noble house: leavied an Armie, accompanied with Leopolde, the Duke of Austruche, who had great Landes both within, and uppon the Frontiers of the Swatzers . Befreles manie Barons and 40 other Gentlemen of the Country; came vnto him (Voluhtarily) from all partes, haning alreadie gone on, and yfed thofe places where they were to paffe, more then Hostily.

The Armie of the three Vales, which coulde not amount vnto thirteene hundered men, charged with humble heads. (yet vnconquerable spirits and affurance) the Armie of the Duke and Abbotte; and having purthom to flight; flewe verie manie of them, and a great number likewife were taken Prifoners, befides, the Dukes best safetie of his life, was speedie flight. This Victorie of these fimple, but verie Warlicke people, enconraged them to attempt and put in pra life much greater matters, and to thand upon their best desence, in all coluing occasions.

Thefe leagued Vallies, within little The fecond while after; to wit; uppon the fixteenth switzenship day of Youember, according as Matta, sainf, the part declareth, in the years one thousand three hundered and fifteene; ouercame, another Army of twentie thousand men. which the Emperout Fredericke of Au-Striche and Duke Leapolde his Brother had prepared, to ruinate those three Vil lages because they would not take the Outh of allegeance to the hide Enter rour, athis news creation; and youthey The occasion had formerly doone into Lewes of Band of this found red, who called himfelfe also Emperour, and lawfully elected. The big vrgedon, and thereto vehencetly perfwaded, by a great number of Noblemen and potent Lordes, who had made great spoyles both of Castels & Towns, But, the Confederated Switzers, being advertised of Freins HICKS intention, closely ambushed themselves (to Apoliticke the humber of fifteene hundered men) the Leagued vppon the grappie hie Mountaines, and Switzers. narrowe paffages, full of great Rockes and Quarries of stone s whereof they chose the biggest, & rowled them downe vppontherAtmie, as it came vppe from the Mountaines foote, and went along the strait waies. The meeting For, from the bottome of the Mounraine, the one fide of the Rocke feened like an vpright Wall on the one fide. and on the other, were greate Lakes of Deepe Water, not easie to bee wadget and the huge stones tumbling downe so fast vppon them, drowned no means number of them in those Lakes, or did beate out their braines, and the reft beeing disfronted, Duke Leepolde was glad and faigne to shift for his life the second time.

Notwithstanding these two sustained foyles and loffes, Duke L B O PO L+ b a loftnot a lotte of his Courage and Valour, but made againe uppon them with freth Forces; perfwading himfelfe, that hee thould get the Maistry of these Boores, Peazants, and Shepheardes, for so hee tearmed these Confederates. Calling the Men of Strasbourge vnto his ayde and assistaunce, with divers other Townes, that tooke parte with the

Duke Leanolde faueth his life

The third at onthe Swire

The third vio tory of the Emperour Fredericke, and manie other great Princes:he entered agains into the Confederates Country, by the Valley of Vndernalden amog the Mountains. Now was he the third time well beaten and repulled, by eight or nine hundred people, & yet his army consisted of about 1200.

Some Write, that the Duke himfelf, was not there in person; but the Count of Haffourge, who went as his Lieute-nant. From this time forwards, thefe-three Gantons tooke hart and boldnesse of spirit vppon them, seizing (by waie of Warre) the Castles, Townes, Forts, and Signeuries, offuch Gentlemen as had affisted the Duke, quite ruinating the faide Forts and Castles, or appropriating them to their owne reuennues. For, before these fortunate successes, they had 20 not any thing in proper, but onely their Townes and Villages : but nowadayes, they have reduced those lands into Bayliwickes, whereunto they depute Gouemors, which either they change yearly, or continue to further time; according as it is adulfed by the Senate, belonging to each Village of the confederats, and some others, that have (since then) Cantonned themselves, and entred into alliance with them.

Duke Leopolde, and the Emperor his Brother, died within fewe yeares after these losses, without any Children, and their fucceeding heires fuffred these confederates to live peaceably, till the yeare, 1390. Neuerthelesse, they were mollefted by other great Lordes, whom still they manfully withstood, and stil got the better hand of all in their attemptes. At last, there came one, named Leopolde alfo, descended of the same family of Aufriche, an audacious Prince, ouer-light in beleefe, and fearfely aged xx. yeares. He was prouoked by those Noble and Gentlemen, who either were expulsed from their houses, or elfe had voluntarily forfaken them, and albeit there hadde past some transaction and truce between them: yet now they would breake their faith and promise made to these Confederates. All the pretence that this young Prince had for warre, was, because Lucerna, which was a goodly Towne, had leagued and cantonned it felfe with the fore-named Villages, and many subjects of Duke Leopoldes, in regard of his often mollestations, were now (bythis means) become Bourgeffes, and quietly enjoyed the benefits of their Country, Their matters, intermedled with the Princes rash furie, made him so violent in spleen against them: that so manie as hee could cause to be taken of Lucerna, or those other subjects that had the office of Bour-strangled in the open fields. The leagued Inhabitants, not a little displeased at these cruelties, broght their armed troupes into the fielde, and (by a fidden affault made vpon this yong Du, Leopolde) tooke the firong Caftle of Pter-phicon, and pureynto death all that vvere Theswines found therein. At the very fame time al- honourably re fo, they tooke two Townes of Duke Let young Duke opoldes, to wit ; Deelibouch and Sampach, Leopolde. that gladly yeilded themselnes into the protection of the Confederates, and Bourgeship of Lucerna. The Duke beeing highly heerewith displeased, hauing an Armie readie of ten thousande men; entered into the Countrey of the Cantones. But notwithstanding all his heate and haft, by the aduise of some: peace was made betweene them, under certain a peace made conditions, fo that no battel was fought, or Towne taken. The yong Duke being returned home to his Court, with intent to sport and recreate himselfe, was perswaded by many Noblemen, that he had greatly difhonored himfelfe in making anie contract of Euilleounfeli peace with his fubicets, and that al Lords were dispensed withall, for anie oath taken in that nature. Moreover, they obiected, that this might prooue a principall cause, to hinder him from succession in the Empire, whereto his predeceffours had formerly attained. Being ouercome by their foolish perswasions, he emploied a great part of the Empires forces; and A fourth premost of the Nobilitie, beeing numbered gainst the con twentier thousand men, both horse and sederates. foote, all verie expert and wel tried Soldiers, the greater part Noblemen, pretending interest in the cause, and accompanied with manie Princes of power. Thus came they vnto the field, with all kinds of munition, to befiedge Sampach: where the Armie also of the confederats met them, who were (in all) but a thoufand and fix hundred men. But shey being possessed of the most advantageable place in the field, and where the Horsegeffes, they were forthwith hangde and to the Confe-

Violence done

Crantz Lib 1 c Minist Lib. 3

The Castels mined about Bearmoand h

A fift victory of the Suitzer.

The Switzers.

The Army of

he Abbot of

S. Gal, van.

quithed.

The great and goodly Cattle of Zurick wher the Earle of Hafpurge was taken priloner

Chap.3. Of the Switzers Cantones. men could do no good for them felues, or prejudice to the Suitzer pithe Mobile men were feigneso dismount and batraile being giacu, the honor of the daig remained to the Cantons Lewas flich an extreame houdays that the Noblemen were not able to endure any part of the paines (which the puote Ruflicks were not formuch conformed voto; but could ably out fland farrel greater to toyle) but were glad to flye. Albeir, young Leopalde Roud fining and noura-gions, vntill bewas flaine, with manie other worthymen ; as Other Marquelle of Hich, John Earle of Fust denbange, and divers others for very few ofcaped, but they were eyther taken Prisoners, or flaine. Two yeares after, fome of the Gentle-men which had then ofcaped, returned thither agains with fixe thousand fighting men; but two hundred men of Glarouna flood against the, and flew two thousand and soure hundred of them, compelling the reft to faue their lines by flight, according as I finde it recorded in the Books of Crantcins and Muniter. Now, these Noblemen and Gouernors, did not onely molest these three Vallies and Lucerna; but likewife all 30 them inhabiting about Bearne, pillaging all the goods in the fieldes of Bearne. Yet notwithstanding, by continuall waging War with them, the Cantons deteated all their purpofes, ruinated their Castels, and appropriated all vnto their owne Dominions; except it were of fuch, as contracted amity and alliance with them. I forbeare heere to fet downe, the potent war which they 40 which the more part of the do now pof had against the Abbot of S. Gal, especially those of Appenzell, because they vrged a right vnto their corne and other fruites : but they could get nothing of them but blowes, albeit, their Armies were verie great. Glaris, in fhort while after, being troubled by the Noblemen and cruell Gouernours, which they of Austriche had fet ouer them : entred inother of the foure Cantons.

Zurick, a great and worthy Citry, feated vpon the River of Indmat, had beene vexed about fiftie yeares by the Nobility, and a puiffant Prince, who was the valiant Counte of Halpounge, and extream in hatred to them, because he was taken in Zurick (beging entered thereinto in the night time) by meanes of the treacherous Inhabitants, with foure hundred men he being made Priv foner, and all his men flaine, Yet, with in some few yeares, he was fer at liberty, at the follicitation made by his C90 zin Albertithe Emperous, and thence forward, Zurick came into the number of the leagued Confederars. This Citty | cause. called it felfe Tigurum, and is the most rich and powerfull Cantone, about all the reft, next voto Bearne, and holdeth procedence beyond all the other : he caufe all Ambaffadours refore thisber, and the affemblies are most of all there made. Whereby plan ely appeareth, that the Cantons doe not hold place of precedency, according as they were re-ceined into the league; and I confesse mine owne ignorance, nor knowing how these degrees have passed among them. It is presupposed, that because there Almost all -W45 (then) no Luthice for the people; the Nobility of the Switger. burthanalithe Noblemen (almoit) in were bately their quarters of the Heluctians, were minded. (as we yes to fay) cut out of one cloath, that is to fay ; had fworne the ruing of the third estate : Therefore, Zong; Bafile, Fribourg, Soleurre, and Shaffonze, (by laps of time) confederated themfelues with the feauen before named. All which together, beeing in number thirteene, had many warres against the Emperors, and other great Lords, and were euermore Conquerours. It is therefore to be prefumed, that they got nor their libertie, nor the goodly lands feffe, in a day but before they could haue peace with their Neighbors, they paffed ouer (well neere) fix (core years, This Countrey of the Leagues or Cantones, neither knew how to gaine cause of re-their freedome, or conquer fo many bellions. Countries as they have done; if the Emperours had not beene bufied in ciuill warres, whereof the Popes (for the to league with the men of Bearne, and 50 most part) were the fole occasion, or Germany had beene united, as fametime it was . But the Nobilitie being become infolent by Cinill wars, acknowledging no Superiours nor Goucenours, that kney well enough how to fish in troubled Waters conferred by their tyranny) the people of the Helic

The death of the Emperour and Duke Lefucceffe, vpon thele obtained victorics.

The Switzers

trace of water agaipft Can-onned Lucer-

tians, to shake off the yoake of their superiors also, and to expell them thence.
At this present, and since the time of King Frances the fifth, they saue made confederation with the Crowne of Fraunce, receiving both presents and pentions. Mine intent was not (in this breefe

The Authors purpose in relation of the Switzers

Aduise to Princes and Noblemen.

difcourse) to shew my selfe any Histo-rian, neither to set downe all the gestes and warres, which this warlike Nation have made, fince they began to fecke their liberty; for, to performe that labour, it would require three or foure great volumes . Beside, I haue spoken but of three or foure, the most notable and chiefest in the Countrey, thereby to let the Reader vnderstand; whereforethe Region of the Switzers, is calledthe Country of Leagues, or of the Cantons . Wherein I have followed the best Writers; as Blondus, Crantzius and Munster. By this discourse, I would gladly give adinse to Princes and No-ble-men to deale better with their subiects, then these Lords did in the Swiszers Countrey; least (by successe of time) Heauen frowne vpon them, and they be throwne into the like disaster.

CHAP. IIII.

Of the excellency and deferued commendasion of Trauaile; And what great daungers are begosten, and doe enfue of idie-

Travaile first commaunded by God

E are enioined by the law and commaundement of God, that wee must tranaile and labour in this world : For the very first

Man that euer was, having broken Gods commaundement, was throwne out of Terrestriall Paradise, and the Earth was given him to enjoy; but yet with this condition, to labour therein with continuall Tranaile, without any limitation of time, but even folong as he lived. And yet this was not imposed vpon the first man onely ; but it came as an iniunction also, to all his posteritie. Now, notwithstanding holy Scripture tels vs; that Trauaile was laid on Man as a matter of repensance: vet it appear rethlikewile, to be a proper medicine, whereby to recousuand help fome paffedenils io For a man arramerh by I fa- fed offences, uaile; wregaine that which lie loft by feeding And thoughthis came as mea-frigation, yet God commanding no-thing bury habis good inst. felfe; hath (in this nature) given man time to en togring land by liboury according as Job faith; Man u borne to trauvile. (slyo) lebs.7.

Looke vpon our Saniour and Rey Thelife of deemer Jefus Christy our Sourgage our bleffed Maifter, who, as an example to vs. all; trauailed continually in painefull exercifes, enen till his death. And beside, in his parables, heblamed and reprooned the fleepy Virgines, that were neglect and flothfull: euermore fauouring and commending fuch as transiled, faying, in an especiali place of note; Come unto me allyothat Francile and are heavy laden, and I will eafe ye. If we would fit downe to read, we should finde, that the auncient Saints, imployed all their time in continual exercises and labours. More Trauaileis ouer, Tranaile is not onely healthfull beneficiall for the Soule, but it is likewise as befieandbody. ficiall to the body for it caufeth agility, ftrength; and quick disposition; it cheareth and encreaseth good Spirits, and consumeth all bad and offensive humors ... And concerning the Soule; it cleanfeth it from all occasions of euill doing, and conucreth bad thoughts into better endeuours. Most certaine is it, that (without paine and tranaile) neuer did matter of any great confequence fort to good effect; but the paines feemed the fweeter, because no flothfull eafe was interposed in the action. He that transiles and takes paines, Paineful men takes quiet repose and rest also, because doe best take to a weary man, all thinges are sweete their rest, and acceptable : his meate is fauoury are to him in truest contentment. But returning to the benefits of the Thebenefits body, trauaile maketh a man differency vigilant, welladuifed, wife, & all good-neffe elfe proceedeth thence. It is transpille the approach to the control of uaile that apparelleth and beautifieth a Man: it maketh lodgings for him to rest in; waies to walke in; Ships to saile in; Armes to defend him; in breefe, innumerable are the bleffings thereby abounding. By trauaile, barren Landes to him, fleepe casie, and all pleasures

The way to Heauen is 'X

paine and

Chap.4.

The comme

dations of

paine and trauaile.

Travaile is a

ielp to natur

peciall objeruation in this

A'exander and lalius Cafar.

are made fresh, teeming, and fruitfull: to fuch as are dry it giveth water, by opening the earths Wombe, to let forth her owne moyfture. It exalteth humble Vallies, where neede requireth, and throwes down high Mountaines, whose fleepe paffage offendeth. It turneth foorth-right Flouds and Ruiers; to take their more needfull coulfe by dry landes without waters, helping (thereby) to a dorne and pollith Nature, compelling her fometimes, to engender fuch things, as in her own proper wil the would not It tameth the wildest beasts, and maketh them familiar. It maketh mens Spirits prompt and fubtile, having the like po-wer in all the other fences of man; and he that makes due tryall, findes the will ualuable riches which is got by Traualte.

Veffels to comie to Heauen, but by the rugged pathes of paine and travaile. If fumptuous buildings, goodly Pallaces, and populous Cittles doc feeme mightie thinges: then know, that all those were performed by the labour, fiveate, and tranaile of thy Predeceffors. If likewife, Arts and Sciences doe highly content thee : why then remember, that they were the spiritual! I rauaile of learned Men in times past. If thou looke vpon faire fields, beautiful Gardens, and plenteousyeelding Vines : fay to thy felfe, all these proceeded from the workes of Itauaile because idlenesse dooth not any thing, but rather destroyeth whatsoener is already done . By Travaile, men attail ned to very great and famous renowne. It was that which made wife Plate, Art. flotle, Pythagoras, and the rest of those learned men, neuer cease to trauaile their bodies and studious Spirits; both in

What was it that made Hercules fo famous and farre honoured; but onelie his twelue labourious Tranailes? What was it that gaue fuch plendour to the Names of Alexander the Great, Inline Cafar, with all those excellent Kings and Captaines; but painefull exercise, and industrious Trauaile? Whereas on the contrary, Sardanapalus, and other fuch Sardanapalus, like idle and lascinious Princes, both ruined and oppressed their Countries, and themfelies dved very thamefull deathes. Whereby may early be gathered, that if the World were deprined of Transile; all would turne to nothing. Offices in The injuries all would turne to nounces. Charles the manage humanity would fall into Decaderice; entaining by humanity would fall into Decaderice; entaining by Mechanicall Artes, Letters, Studies, unic. Goods, ttemembrances, tuffice, Lawes and Peace; no one of all there could continue without Tranaile. Aff the verthes are supported; only by incalles ther. The vermes of and without they could no way be maintined to Training exercifed because, he that will minter Infriee, blight to tratialle and tave pains. To conclude, no vertue can beet let on Worke; Without Travalle, and therefore Historia faid by fiven and punched Travalle, Vertue is to be with. God would not have his owne chosen 20 1 wee would well and exactly con-contemplate all the things which God hath works of created; we shall find, that by how much God, & how the more they are perfected in a certaine media. By so much the more may we tru ly fay, that hee hath ginen to them great rall kindes.

Trailante, Leeve bellold his superfor handy-workes'; the Sunne mooneth it lelfe continually; the Moone never standeth still; the Heavens and the Planners have beene, are, and thall be daily in continuall motion. The fire cannot containe it felfe, Without some operation; the Ayre goes alwaies to fome place or other. In the inferiour bodies, the Water, Fountaines and Rivers flow inceffantly, and the Sea mooueth without ceffation. For the Earth it felfe, albeit it were immoueable (for it ought fo to be, & vpon necesfity, both that men may Transile whether they would thereon, and afterward take their reft) yer notwithstanding, it neuer emoyeth any repole: but continu-ally bringeth foorth Hearbs, Trees, and ally bringeth foorth Hearbs, Trees, and Plants, even like a diligent and panyifull Mother, that counts her felfe obliged to maintaine and notifil both their and Beafts. And therefore, five would bring all thefe thinges to due confidention, we ould then finde, this Nature is intended the finde, this Nature is intended. tiue to no other thing but onely to continual labour and trauailte in creating forming, making symmaking producing and Beeth. corrupting, altering, or gazing and toiling, without the leaft repite of felt or repose in any kind whatsoener.

That this which I have saide must ו יטר, וטר diam'r. a hna par

XUM

or HeF.re.

Plato, Ariflotte

writing, enftructing, & disputing, withont any care at all for fleeping, feeding, or cloathing their bodies; and yet, at fach times as Nature compeld them to thefe necessities; they seemed much more sweete and pleasing to them, then they can doe to idle and floathfull Gluttons.

Herenles Tra-

Quint. Curtius

When the Ro-

A Romaine

Scipio Nalica.

The labour and trauailo the body. Vargill. Horace.

Euripides.

Menander.

Democritus.

Hermicon.

labours, that they were neuer weary in commending the trauaile & exercise of the body . Virgill faith, That continuall labour surmounteth all things. Horace, the Lyricke and Satiricall Poet, faith in his workes : That God gave nothing to Man, but with paine and labour . Eurypides faith: eth him that transileth : without Transile, there is no true renowne, praife, nor happie aduenture. The Poet Menander wrote ve-Pythagoras. Salomon.

The onely meanes that made any man famous

> The fruits of idleneffe and Quid concerning idlenelle

Examples al-leaged by the Author, for defence of labour and tra-Of the Fire.

needes be true, the wife Philosophers (in times past) fignified by their daily Travaile is the Father of Fame : God helpry wifely ; a healthful man idle, is in worfe condition then he that hath an Aque. The faying of Democritus pleaseth me highly, where he faith: Paines taken voluntarily, are never distastefull when they bee enforced . When Hermicon was demaunded, of whom he learned those deepe Sciences which he professed; he answered: Of Trauaile and Experience. It was the faying of great Pythagoras; That a Man ought to make choise of a good life, and to let it appeare, by paine and Trauaile, which brings it to a sweete and casie custome. Salomon faith; The flothfull man hould learns example of the Ant.
I should never end, if I were to name heere, the plenty of testimonies to bee alleadged in this kinde. It shall suffice then, for me to fay, that never was any man famous for Armes, Learning, example of good life, or any of the Arts; without great Tranaile. And, to fpeak truly, neuer were any idle people great, or knowne, but if it happened that a Man being borne great, liued neglectly or idle : most cerraine it is , that (by flothfulnesse) his estate was ruined, or else hee lost his renowne, quiet or life, the loffe being the true fruit of floathes Tree, whereby all vices are multiplied, as the wife man wel witneffeth, faying; Idlenesse enstrusteth many mischiefes.Ouid could affirme, that Without idlene fe, Cuped bath no power, and hee spake truely: For in idlenesse, wickednesse is dreampt on, treasons inuented, and foule sinnes acted . Ezechiell numbreth idlenesse among those fins, which were the cause that Sodome was destroyed. To fpeak mine one owne judgement in this case, I neuer knew any thing, wherein idlenesse got entrance, but it came to vtter ruine. We fee the fire, if it be not maintained, it quickly quench-be continually mooning; for if it bee with held and restrained, it will breake forth of it selfe. Water, compelled to any limitted place, and where it may not have his course and free passage, it putrifieth, corrupteth, and stincketh. red; it will produce nothing but Brambles, Bryers, Thiftles, and other vaprofitable Hearbs. It is cuident to our cies, that Gold, if it be not much laboured and purified, it will neuer appeare in his perfect beauty. Iron likewise, and other Mettals, will meerely rust and canker of themselues; except they bee wrought to some kinde of service. Prouinces and Countries, if they be not inhabited and laboured; they will proue barren & subiect to pestilence. Houses and dwellings, let them stand voyd and empty; they forthwith fal to ruine and decay. Common high-waies, let them not be trauailed and frequented; they will thut vp themselues into impossibility of passage, so that all knowledge of them will be veterly loft, All things whatfoener, if they be not imployed, and made vie of by labor; they perish, impaire of themselues. Yea, euen the if they be not quickned and viuified by daily exercises; they will become lazy and flothfull; fo that the hart and foule will confume themselues, the powers of the body be so wasted and weakned, that no vie or motion can be made with

I haue already (in this Chapter) told ye, that trauaile makes a man agile, and chearefully disposed: and now (on the contrary) I am alfo to informe ye, that floath and idlenesse spoyleth the complexion, corrupteth all good humours in mans body, and gives Dominion to them that are bad and naught. Galen faith: It is impossible for a man, to keepe himselfe healthfull, except he tranaile and labour . And Auicenne is of the same mind, with Cornelius Celfus, and other very excellent Phisitions . Horses, and fuch kind of Beafts, if they be kept idle; Of Horfes. they become unprofitable. Ships rot and feemely vgly, if they be kept still in Ports and Hauens: but when they faile abroad, they are both beautifull and beneficiall, and keepe themselues from eth of it felfe. The Aire likewise, it must | Of the Ayre. Of the water. If the earth be not opened and labout- Of the Earth Of Gold and other Mercals Of Lands and Countries. Ofdwelling Of common rode-waics. All things very vitall Spirits of Men or Women, The vitall spirits, Hart and Soule.

Idleneffe is

The faying o Galen, Auice

Of Souldiers, base corrupting. Souldiers, and men inured to Armes; they grow our of heart, in the times of rest and peace. Befide, I finde it faithfully recorded, that Hanibals idle-Hannibals idlenesse at Capna, was the onely cause of the Romaines victorie a-The flothfull gainst him. The floathfull man hath no other Lesson; but that all imployment is painefull to him. He that marcheth best in Warre, fights alwaies in greatest security: but hee that abideth still in one place, is apt to all inconveniences, and the Sunne burnes him with the more advantage. The Archer herein serues as a Schoole-maister to vs, who neuer drawes his Arrow at a Bird flying; but when he findes her flothfully

Of instruvoyces.

Example of the Archer.

Chap.4.

neffe at Capua

Of Wines, Of precious stones.

Of Iron. Ofbrute

> is wanting, for full confirmation of this needfull discourse. Saints have cursted it; Philosophers condemned it; Onid, Plato, Horace, Claudian, Virgill, and all other Poets have fung against it. All Histories are full of the cuils derived from it . Plato and Aristotle, condemning idlenesse, doe highly exalt the Art the clearer it shineth. Among brute beasts, they that take the greatest pains, are most esteemed of men. To support this cause, I could alleadge so many authorities of Philosophers and Poets, al that was called Gymnastia, whereby, all necessary occasions and matters for war were enstructed. Of the Empe-The Emperor Adrian had long time educated, favoured, and (at laft) exalted a man, named Turbo, who was a most diligent and labourious follower of his affaires, and the Emperor, noting him

We do ordinarily behold, and finde it true in common experience, that both voices and instruments, not being imploied; they lofe their vertue, found hoarfly and discordant : whereas on the contrary, vie refineth, concordeth, and makes them most pleasing. There are some kindes of Wines, that must bee rackt and roughly mannaged, to pre-ferue them in yeilding the better rellish. Pretious stones, if they bee not pollifhed and purely cleanfed, they cannot 30 appeare in their perfect lufter : but by painefull labour and trauaile, they are discerned in their highest excellencie. Rude Iron it felfe, the more it is vied, gine leylure. Apuleius faide, that nothing feemed Apuleius conblaming and rebuking idlenesse: as would serue to compleat whatsoever more commendable to him, then Fen- cerning Fencers, who had idlenesse in such abhomination; that the Maifters would neuer fuffer their Schollers to eare, till they had first performed some act of vertue and man-hood. Citero declareth (to the same effect;) That Men were truely borne to good deedes and adventures; The faying of whereof our Soule is a sufficient argument. for it is never idle, or at reft. Draco, the famous Law-maker of athens, among the most notable Lawes which hee deuifed, he had one deferring the chiefest praise of all ; which was : That such men were fentenced with death, as The Law of should be found idle, or walking at their Drace against idlenetie, pleasure or pastimes, when others were one day, that (in his opinion) hee was too earnest in his businesse, he said vnto him. Turbo, doe not kill thy felfe, but be more carefull of thy health: whereto Turbo replyed. My Lord, the Manthat bath beene nourished, fauoured and advanced by an Emperour, as I have beene, ought to dye in Tranaile at his foote . Quintus Curtius declareth, that the diseases of idlenesse should be cured by Trauaile. The Romaines had a custome, to begin the day at midnight, to the end, that at the rifing and apparition of the Sunne; they might all fall to labour together: for they were perswaded, that (already) a moity of the day was pall, and yet no good Act performed by them. A Ryman fought to perswade the Senate, that the Senate. Carthage could not be destroyed; least the Romans boafting offecurity bywant of imployment there, should become idle. Vpon which occasion, Scipio Nafi- The words of ca, perceining that fome held Rome to be in fafety, after that Carthage was made defolate, and Grecce wafted; gaue them this answere. I am of a contrary opinion, and doe thinke our selves now to be in much greater perill, because we now stand in feare of no body. Whereby this worthy man inferred, that idleneffe was the idleneffe caucause of more dreadfull daunger, then feth more either warre or neighbouring enemies; because feare yeeldes more aduantage of safetie, then when we stand free from all doubtfull confideration. And therefore the French have a prety Proucrbe : Make Hollidaie when the times feriously and honestly busied. It defer-

Three Idols elteeme among the Gentiles.

ueth some consideration, to note in what account trauaile was among the Gentiles; in regard, that they had three Idols : the first was named Serenna, that is, dexterity, or agility: the second, agenoria, which signified virility, or manlines: and the third, Stimula, which is as much to fay, as a spurre and pricke to honour and vertue; and trausile was (with them) in fuch precious reckoning, that they erected these Ideaes to But not to flay our felues (ouer long)

on the Gentiles opinion, let vs come to the facted Scriptures; where we are no lesse bound to tranaile, then restrained and prohibited from prophane thinges.

other places, where he fo deepely con-demneth idleneffe, faith : That the fluggard or flouthfull person, which forbeareth to worke in Winter shall be a Beggar. Saint Paule, the Doctour of the Gentiles, taketh glory in nothing more, then in not beeing idle, commending labour and trauaile aboue all things. And writing to the The falonians, hee tels them, that they knew wel enough how to imitate him, for he was neuer idle among them, day, in that he had gained them; not by any indirect meanes or charge to them, but in giving them good example. Sai-ing moreover, that hee that would not labour, ought notto cat. The like did he to the Corinthians, recounting his Trauailes taken for their example; and fo in many other places beside. Let vs then (hence-forward) imploy our time in floth aud idlenelle, that neuer can per-forme any act of estimation.

good and honest exercises, shunning 40

And yet wee are not commaunded, to follow labour and trauaile, with fuch extreamity or rigour; as to leaue our meate, drinke, fleep, or honeftly taking our rest and quiet : for decent recreati-ons, and honest repose is sometimes lawfull. In which regard, Cicero exalted he was never leffe at rest, then when he was at rest . Which Cicero maintaineth to be a notable faying : Because (quoth he)

be declared thereby that in his idleneffe, he thought on his businesse, and so in solitude, he could take councell with himfelfe. Moral Seneca alleaged; That idle time, without and commaunded Scipio, who faid : That 50

but it was foode to him both night and | 30

The holy Scripture binderh vs

Salomon in his Prouerbs, among those

I Thef. 2, 9.

2 Thef. 3,8, 9.

2 Corin, 5,7.

In what manner trauaile is commanded.

ning the fay-ing of Scipio.

The faying

Man, and onely they that are exercised in knowledge, know best what sleath and idlenesse is. Plutarch would have a man to Morralles. make some dispensation of his time, in exercifing the difference betweene knowledge and experience. O that men (then) would but ducly confider, how their time is to bee imployed; which glides away fo fwiftly, and remember withall, that they must render an account for enery word spoken vainely & idly. Cate, although he was a Pagan, Men did Stand as much bound to yeilde an account, for their time lost or neglected; as bonest imployment. To conclude, we should make such The Authors good expence of our rime, in honeft, concurring lawdable, and blamclefte exercises labour and that the fruites thereof may be aduan-trauaile. tageable to vs, and we efteemed as hyred Seruants for heaven ; which is prouided for none, but fuch, as are called to travaile in the Lords Vine-yard, and shall have their Wages according to their worke. And Saint John the Dinine faith . The dead which dye in the Lord, are Renel, 14,13 fully bleffed, for they rest from their labours, and their workes and transiles follow them. This authority doth well approue, that trauaile is the merchandise of this World; heere bought and fold but rewarded in Heauen . For fo Saint Paule testifieth, faying : Euery one Shall receive his wages and payment according as attribute to Conquerours; and Lawrell observed as a signe of victory.

Oft certaine is it, that (in elder times) the Romaines gaue the Palme to Conquerours, in figne of Triumph; and it is fo true, that by writing in Latine the word Palma, it is meerely understood for victory . Plu- Plutarch in tarch also affirmeth, that for each Traff, de Cam kind of victory, there was a feuerall putat.

Letters or fludy, is death and buriall to a yet he could fay : That great and worthy faving affecting they that could best deliner reason for their

he hath travailed here beneath.

CHAP. V.

The reason, why the Palme was given as an

Of the Palme and Laurell.

Romaines for Conquerors.

Plin Lib. 6.

Anius Gellius.

before the male.

Chap.5. Crowne defigned, where with their heads were circkled, that had obtained fisch honor in field. One was made of Oline branches; another of Laurell; a third of Oaken Leaues, andothers, of other trees; but among them all , the Palme was the general figne of victory. Those ancients do likewise say, that the cause why this fignification (more then any other) was attributed to them:proceeded from an admirable propriety in the Tree it felfe, which (without any other proofe to confirme it) is allowed to be most certaine, by authority of the that have written theron ; as Pliny, Ari-Storle, Theophrastus , Aulus Gellius, and Plutarch. All which learned Writers do

Theophra lib.s. maintain, that the more the Palmetree (or one of his branches) is charged with any heavy weight or burden; the more it refills and withstandeth the oppression. And whereas all other Trees doe yeelde under fuch lading, and are furmounted by the burden : the Palme only refisteth, and cannot be ouer-awed; because the greater the weight is, the more doth it still our stand it. In this respect, both Plutarch and Aulus Gellius fay: That he which goes with an intent to Conquer another, must not fuffer himfelfe to be surmounted by feare of the perrill, nor waxe weake in the attempt : but rather tranaile on with height of courage, and (with resolute resistance) pursue victorie, as being a man, meete to carry comparison with that Tree, which bath the fame naturall quality, both in refisting and overcomming any weighty oppression, and therefore it is given as a signe of victory. Others fay , that this honour was 40

The Palme practifed by the Gentiles, because the ted to Phabus, Palme was confecrated to Phabus, long before the Laurell was, and was held to be a most auncient figne of victory. Pliny and Theophrastus, doe write of many other properties in this Tree, whereof we neede not speake, to avoide expence of time. And yet notwithftanding, I am very loath, to conceale that which is affirmed by fo many; to wit, that as the Palme hath contrary effects to all other Trees : fo is there of them Palme-trees both Maile and Female, and the Fethat are both males are they which bring forth dates: male and fethe Masses onelie flourish, and when they happen to yeelde any fruite, they are verie small, without good tast, and no profit is made of them. It is also to be observed, that in what place foeuer the Females grow, if the Malles be not neere voto them, they will not beare any fruit: but if it chance, that the Mafle-tree bee cut or disbranched the Female (like a Widdowe) thence-forward, will neuer yeelde any more fron.

But ceafing further speech of the Palme, we are heere to remember, that Crownes of in the Triumphes at Rome, the Triumphers vsed to bee Crowned with Laurell, and the Captaine that triumphed, carried a braunch thereof in his hand. So is the Triumphe described of Scipio Affricanus, by Appianus Alexandrinus, Plin. Lib. 6. and many others, whereof Plany yeeldeth fomereason, and faith. The Laurell was confectated to spolls or Phabus, because that on the Mount of Pernassius there grew great store of them ; And hee beleeueth, that for this reason, the Triumphers Crowned themselues with Laurell. He delivereth another reason, concerning a wonderfull propertie in the periyot the Laurell, to wit; that (naturally) it is an enemy to Fire, and Thunder, and Lightening (be it neuer fo violent) hath not the power to touchit. Heereupon was it, that fo often as the Emperour Tiberius heard any Thunder, and beheld the lightning flathes; hee tooke a The Emperor Leafe of Laurell or Bayes; and laide Tiberius, it on his bare head, judging himfelfe (by that meanes) to beefree from the Thunder and Lightnings daunger. The Priefes of Divination in Rome; vied alfo to Crowne themselves with Laurel, Laurell and afterward burning them; would divine (by the noise it made) of that which was to enfire and therfore Claudian called this Tree, The Dininer of things to come. Piny and Suctonius, in the beginning Pln 16.7. of the Emperour Gelbaes life, doe de- Galb, clare a matter very ftrange , faying; that Linia Drefilla (who afterward was Of Linia Dru named Augusta, hecause the wasinanried to Offanianus Augustus) going Augustus from Rome, to a place out of of the Cirtie, called Veietana; the chanced to fit downe under a Laurell Tree, and very foone after, an Ergle flying ouer Wreatheson Laurel worne Triumphes.

The Dinina-

CUDAY.

The carryin of Laurell

triumphes.

Another Hi-

ched by Sueto

Nero the laft

Emperor of the Cafars 1200

the Laurell.

her head in the Ayre(through the branches of the Bay-tree) did let fall into her lap, a Hen as white as Snow, that carried a branch of greene Bayes fast in her Bill . Liuia beeing fomewhat amazed thereat, caused the Henne to bee well kept, and of it came many more befide; wherefore, the name of the Graundge where thee kept the Henne, was euer after called Gallina. She commaunded also, that the braunch (found in the Hennes Bill) should be planted, which grew fo faire, and prospered in such plenty; as it was wonderfull to behold, what aboundance of Trees came of that one Plant. So that, from that time forward, both Octanianus and his Successours, (in a kinde of Custome, or superstitious Religion) when they triumphed: would cut braunches of those Baytrees, and beare them in their handes; but when the Triumphe was ended, they would plant them againe by those Trees, from whence they had beene cut, and they prospered as well as the other did. This History is (in this manner) related by these two credible Authors. Suetonius, whose authority is of great reputation, addeth yet another matter, whereat I doe not a little maruaile. He faith, that at fuch times as any Emperour dyed; the Plant of Laurell likewise withered, and all the branches cut from those boughs, which had bin planted at the time of his triumph. And when Nero died, who was the last of the Cafars Linage, all the Bay-trees dryed vp and withcred, that had grown cheerefully before, and came of that one braunch, which the Hen brought in her beake, and had bin planted by Lsuia. Beside, all the thrining store of the white Hennes brood, dyed, not one remaining, and in the Imperial Pallace fell fuch Lightnings and Thunder: as smote off the heads of the Emperours statues, crected there in their remembrance, and the Scepter which Augu-Stess Cafar helde in his hand, was also finitten downe to the ground. Continually they placed Crownes of Laurell vpon enery Cornish of the Emperours houses. Ouid, among many other things in his Meramorphosis, faith; That the The Romaines Romaines reputed the Laurell, to bee estimation of a very facred Tree, and would make no vie therof, about things that were vile, vicleane, or prophane: but euer accounted it as a figne of peace, and therforetearmed it the Peacefull Laurell. Pliny faith, that the Laurell hath a vertuous property against the Pestilence, & against all venemous Serpents. Ouid declareth, that the faire & chast Nimph Daphne, was converted into this Tree, and in regard thereof, it was confecta. ted to Phabus, who (among other vanities) was adored by the ancient Romain's as a God.

CHAP. VI.

Of the abhominable and most detested vice of Cruelty; How horrid it is to humane Nature : With many excellent examples depending on this Argument.

Mong all vicious pollutions, which are most repugnant, euen to common humanity, and make men to become abhominable; me thinks, that cruelty is the fupreame and Soueraign of all other. For, man is a most Noble Creature, made in the Image and fimilitude of God; yea, borne to exercise nothing but mildenesse: but being feruile to cruelty ; he becommeth a brute Beaft, terrible, furious, wicked, and an vtter enemy to God, who is the Prince of clemency, and would not have one man to be bitter, or tyrrannous to another . Aristotle faith, that fierceneffe, cruelty, and inhumanity, belongeth only to wild and furious beafts. Seneca, in his fecond Book of Clemency, termeth 40 it Fellony against the Soule, and from thence concludeth; that it is opposite and contrary to the vertue of Clemency. Cruelty is the greatest enemy to lustice and reason, and is a more detestable fin then Pride or Anger . For it feemeth, that anger proceedeth from fom meth, that anger proceedeth from for conceined displeasure, to behold any euill offered to another : but in a cruell disposition, there is found far other maleuolent matter, because in smiles (and without any disdaine, but only in meere mallice) mercileffe torments are inflieted on men; yea, enen to the deprivation of life. Therfore it is capitall enemie to Iustice, which honorably defendeth, and will permit no man to receive any domage or harme; without fome fault my to Iulice.

Arlft, in Ethic

Sence in Lib de Plin, Lib. g. the lewes, at

Chap.6.

The cruelty of Herod at his death, against our Saulour.

for his bloody

The cruelties of Abimelech, the Sonne of Gedem, vpon his owne Brethren, and the committed, and yet taketh order alfo, that offenders that have milde and remperate correction. Seneca, in his Booke of manners, faith; If we vall them Hangmen, that whe no measure in the correction of vices: what then may wee tearmethem, that cruelly oppresse and murder Innocents?

Examples of cruell men are infinite. among whom was Hered, King of the Jewes, who raigned at the time, as our Lord & Saujor Iefus Christ was born. For, after the flaughter of fo many Innocents (purpofely performed in hope to have flaine him among them, that came into the world for our Redemption) he would yet make further shew of his cruelty, not only while he lived, but euen at the instant of his death. And because he well perceived his end approaching he called all the chiefe persons of 20

Jerulalem, who being come before him: he caused them to be seazed on, and fast lockt vp in a place neere to himfelfe, giuing frict charge to his Sifter that at the point of his Soules furrender, shee fhould fee them every one put to death; wherein the failed, in regard that God appointed the contrary. And what was his reason for his bloody intent? Onely this, as himfelfe confessed a little before his death. He knew very wel, that al the people of Ierufalem would be very iovful for his departure, because other matters had happened to the people, then they expected; and therefore (mooued onely by cruelty) to make this the faddest day that ever they endured he concluded this bloody flaughter and horrible murder. The cruckties of Abimelech, the Son to great Gedeon, were as wonderfull, for, that himselfe might enioy the Kingdome alone, he put to death threefcore of his owne Bretheren : one onely escaping, named Ionathas, who fled (by the will of God) that the Traytour might live in continual fuspition. Now,1 know not whether this cruelty, or the other following, may be counted the greatest, acted by the same man, againft the Siehimites, and in reuenge because they had expulsed him out of their Citty. But he getting entrance againe by power, and in the night time : flew all that were therein, Men, Women, Children, great and finall. And because fome were fled into the Temples ; hee caused them to bee round engirt with wood, se putting fire thereto; the hear and smoak was so great, that there they were all smothered . Then destroying the Citty, he caused the ground to bee ploughed, and gaue commaund, that it should be fowen with Salt.

Of Cruelty.

Very great alto, was the truelty of the Of dulles Ke-Carthagenians, executed on Attitus Re- guillus, the tagulus, who being taken Prifoner by the Captaine they fent him (vpon his owne word) to gainst the the Romaines; to worke the meanes of Carthageniane. peace by the permuptation of Prifoners and Captines. But he not regarding his owne life, but preferring the honour of his Country before all other respects: returned againe to Carthage, where (for confernation of his faith)he willingly veilded himfelfe. They, in extreamity of cruelty, made him vp fast in a Tun of wood, which was fluck thick with there pointed Nailes of Iron, not affoording the least place, where any member of him might be free from torture: and fo, rowling him vp and down their streetes, did put him to death in that miferable manner.

All Tyrants have a custome to be cru- Of cruel Pistell by nature, but aboue all the reft, the land, the blooexecrable and bloody Tyrant Phalaris of Steily, carrieth the chiefest place of Builof Breste eminence. He flew infinite men, with- made by Feout any offence committed against him, and (if it were well confidered) he was much more cruell in affection, then in action. For he had a Bull of Braffe, which Perillas (a cunning workman) had made for him, wherein the party was enclosed, whom he would have to bee put to death. Then kindling an hot Fire round about it, the voyce of the poore pacient (fuffering this torture within) feemed to the Tirant, as if it had bin the bellowing of a true Bull. And this he did, to the end, that the cries of an humane voyce, in fuch extreamity, might not moone him to the least fot of compassion. Yet one thing is much commended in him, that Perillus, the inuen- rant, ter and maker of this terrible punnishment; was the first (by the Tirants command) that made proofe thereof-Nor can I well aduife my felfe, with what kinde of crucky, to compare that to enjoy his of Tullia, daughter to Tarquine, king of Kingdome. Kome, who caused her father to be flain, because she might inherit the kingdom; which himfelfe had willingly given her;

Ec 2

Inflice execu-

Tullia flew hir owne Father

Extraordinary cruelty in a Daughter.

Thehorrible

huing men.

and Maxestin

The cruelty

Phereus.

cruelty of the

she would but have stayed a little longer. And that which is much more note worthy in her cruelty, was; that her father lying dead voon the ground, & she being mounted in his Charlot; would needes ride ouer the dead body. And wheras the Horses that drew the Chariot, being fearefull at fight of the dead body, retused to goe on ; as also the Coach man that guided them (moued with compassion of his murdred Maifter) would have turned them another way, to the end, that the Kinges body might not be difinembred : yet took the pleasure in her cruell affection, & what the dumb beafts (in pitty) denied to do; (he (in meere cruelty) would execute, compelling the Horses to obey hir wil, and trample vppon the body of her Fa-

The Stythians, a people very furious & valiant in warre, are likewise recorded, (by Historians) to be exceeding cruell: but among their other cruelties (which gaue much matter of maruaile) this one is especially remebred. They wold that their greatest beasts, as Horses & Buls, and fuch men as they would have to be tormented, must be bound fast within the opened bodies of the flaughtered Beafts, so that they could not possible flirre any way. There would they give them food to eate, that while they thus lined: the Fleth of the dead beaftes might putrific and flincke, and the Wormes issuing forth of the putrifa-Ction, thould feede on the living men, and they dye in this cruell torment. We reade that Maximinus, Emperour of Rome, did as much, having deuised the most horrible cruelty, that euer entredinto the heart of Man: hee caused living men to bee fast bound to the bodies of dead men, and left them in that manner, till the noyfome finell of the dead had kild the living.

Virgill affirmeth the like of Maxentius. As ftrange horrid cruelties doe we read of, done by Alexander Phereus, who commaunded living men to bee 50 buried, being bound face to face one against another. Others, he caused to beecloathed in the skinnes of Beares. and other wilde beafts, and then threw them forth into the open fields, among Wolves and Mastines, that they might beetorne in peeces and denoured of them. I know not, whether the cruelty done The Hillory by Affiages (King of the Medes) to Arpalus, or Harpagus (one of the cheefest and dearest Friendes of his Kingdome) may be reported; without amazement and dreadfull aftonishment. This Affiages appointed a young Sonne of his owne to bee flaine (in regard of a troublesome dreame, concerning the faid Child) and gaue the charge of this bloody execution to Harpagus. But he, mooued to compassion, by the moanes and teares of the young Infant (which was afterward called Cyrus the Great) and franding in feare also of the Childs uation of Mother, the being daughter to Afliages: young cyrus, would not kill the Infant, but with all care and diligence, tooke order for the fafety and education therof. Long time after, Affiages was aduertifed, that the Child was not dead, which fmothering inwardly to himfelfe, with a countenance declaring no discontentment : he closely practifed, how he might repay the pitty of Harpagus, in breaking his commaund, and preferring the life of young Cyrus. Harpagus hauing a young Sonne, Astiages (by fecret meanes) got possession of him, and having invited The cruelty Harpagus to dine with him the next day. among the other viands ferued in at the Table sthe Father fed vpon the flesh of his owne Childe, with exceeding appetite and good liking, because the Kings cruelty was vnknowne to him. Altiages not fatisfied with the bloody deceipt, did another most cruell deede : for, among the fruites and delicates to finish this dinner, vpon severall plates and di-fines; the head, feet, and hands of the In-fines; the nead, teet, and nands of the In-fant was fet vpon the table, and prefen-King. ted so apparantly before the father, that he could not avoyde the knowledge of his wofull dinner. Betweene the two Warlicke Cap- Contention taines, Marius and Silla, being Capitall between Marius and Silla Enemies to each other, were fo many to exceedeth tyrannies exercifed; as it feemed, they elty. listned to nothing else, but contended which should exceede in the greatest Crueltie. Silla caused foure Legions of Souldiers to bee flaine in one day. Likewise the Pranestines, a people of Italy, that defired mercy of him, because they had received Marius into their fafetie and keeping; they could get

The crueltie of the Emperor Tiberius. throwne on

Chap. 6.

An incompa-

Violence don

The words of the Emperor defeated. -iMain on roy to a fathin

Anablenina ble torment.

no release from his nyranny but were all generally flaine, and their budyes throwne into the fleider in feed Vultures and Rauens. The like son the other fide, dist Marine, that helmight not come a lot behindhis enemblineruelty of lose Could he World weld an equal to the Emperour Tibernia, the Succelfour of Octanius? Heey after a feigned elemency at the beginning of his raigh, fuffered no day to paffethim, without fredding the blood of roop. Innocents. Moreouer, he denifed a kind of crubley, the like whereof (in mine opinion) was heuer heardiFor he prohibited (on pain of death) that no one should be so boild as to wespe, or make anythew of forrow, forthem whom he had innocently put to death. Truely, this was a verie ftrange critelty, for I am of the minde, that there can be no greater paine, then that which bindereil an affliced hears, from calinghis ouer-weighty butthen of woe, by fighes and teares, the poolrest remedischar oppression can have. That which he afterward did to young Maides and Virgines, deferueth no repetion, but onely to his endlesse shame. For, before their death, he would have them violated and defloured by Ruffi- 30 ans and Hang-men, to the ende, that (with death) they might lofe their chiefest honour and palme of victory. And fuch was his delight in putting people to death, that when newes was brought him, that one (whom he had condenined to death) had flain himfelfe; he cryedout, faying. Ch how could this Corneliw (for fo was the condenined persons name) escape me? Hee (bould have vnerflood, Infe to torment patients in fuch fort before they dye, that death it felfe is the greatest grate Loan dot them. There then lined not any man, but he was amazed at his variety, of inventions, wherby he cormented and put mento death. Whe he was disposed to fee fore men die. he would have them first to drinke exeffinely, and when they were able to drinke no mores then frould their cunduit paffage for Vrine bee to friellie bound, that the least droppe of Vrine could not be voyded, and in this mereileffe Agony must they be left, vntill they dyed with extreamity of anguish.

Befide, onelie for his pleafure, men must bee throwne head-long from an high Rocke (named Capraria, neere Naples) into the Sea, and because he imagined, that (thus dying in the Water) was roo eafic a death . hee would have armed men to fland beneath, to recountrie bound bodies on their Pikes and Halbardes, fo to mangle and cut them pieces, before they were thrown into the Sea.

uen fuch a death as hee worthily deferwish to this ned; Caius Caligula succeeded in the People of Rome. Empire, and in the violent affection of his Prodecessours. He wished, that all the people in Rome had but one head; that (at one stroke) himselfe might imite it off. He thought himfelfe vnfortunate, & complained of the felicitie in his time; because that (while he gonerned) there was no Famine, vninerfall Pestilence, Deluges, Ruines, and inbucriions of Countries, for veter desolation of the whole World to. gether . A man was brought before him, that formerly had beene banifhed him, that formerly had beene banifhed him that he demainded; berial, twhat he did all the house he demainded; berial. what he did all the time of his bannishment? The man made answer(in meere adulation) that he praied to God, without intermission, for the death of Tiberius, & that his Maiesty might succeede in the Empire. Which when Califoula heard, he remembred himfelfe, howingny thousands of menhad bin banished, & thrust into exile by him, who (doubtlesse) might make the like Prayer for repealed and lim the forthwith gaue command, that | put to death, they should be all repealed, and everie man of them put to death. Such as (by him) were fentenced to die, hee would have the manner of their dying prolonged by little and litle, and inflict (at first) longed by lit but small woundes on them, that their the and sinte paine might last the longer. For he vied to fay to his Tormentours; Deale with them fo that they may feele them felues die. He observed also a saying of his predeceffor : People wish me il because they fear me. Afterthis Caligula, Nerofucceded Nerofucceffor

inwhom (if possible it might be) all the others cruelties were enclosed, and all elfe that could (by Men) be imagined.

For without any regard of fanctified chinges, or persons (of like qualitie)pri-uate or publike : hee caused the Citrie Èe 2

Banishedmen

in the gouernment, & in no leffe fierce- to caligula in nes and druckey hechuse he was a Mad tyranny and nes and cruelty ; because he was a Man, cruelty.

aideosa ed

Rome fet on fire, and not to be quen-

> Nere murdered his owne Mother.

Nero exceeded all other in wickednes and tyrannic

> The cruelts of Dioclefian against the Christians

dus, Maximus, and fuch others : but the cruelties of Dioclesian against the Christiank, and whereof Eufebius maketh declaration in his Ecclefiaftical Hiftory, I can-bad people now lining, may fee what the Christians endured in the Primitiue

Church, because they woulde not denie be dragd thorow the streets, at the tailes of Horses, and their bodies beeing thus fore bruifed and broken, they were fent backe to prison againe, where they had Potshards, and such like vn-easie matter, whereon they were fure to tafte no reft.

He would also cause the lofty branches of trees, to be gently haled downe without breaking; and then binding the limbs of Christians vnto them, command their fudden exaltation, that fo their bodyes

the name of Christ.

not well let passe, without some breese note, to the end, that Blasphemers and

This wicked Tyrant, caused men to Christians dragd at Ho

> The limbes of bound to the

might be remaindrome in pieces. In the of Rome to bee fet on fire, with expresse Cityofidlexind in ho commanded ma prohibition not to quench it, or any man by to be diffmer which, the incares works, to make fafety of his owne goods. So the lippes handspaile feere con offy leaving fire continued seauen daies, and seauen mytheir eies/abut they mighthicholde nights, burning the Cittie; and hee beeach others wofull extremitien He taufed ing on a high Tower fome small distance fharpefplinters of wood tolbe made, and off, clapped his hands, and loyed to bethrust into their maked bodies, betweene hold this difinall spectacle, so far exceethe flesh and bones, and likewise under ding all humanity. He flew his owne the Nails of their Fingers and toes. Moh Mother, and put to death the Husbands ten Lead and Braffe, in extremity of the of Octania and Sabina, which Ladies he greatest heat, he would have throwne vpmarried, and soone after deprined them on their naked bodies, and into their Seof life also. Indeed this man attained to crets: making Women also to haue butthe verie height of all cruelty, for he was ning Irons bound to their Breafts, and all the first that persecuted the Christians: violence elfe that could be denifed. By al and in his time was the first & verie greawhich cruelties inflicted on their weake test persecution of the Church. And wel bodies, hee fent infinite constant soules did he declare, that hee surpassed all the to God, who made this Typant and his other in wickednesse, and was the Prince Tormenters, Instrumentes (thus) to adof all furious brutality: for he would ofuance his glorie, and his ferwants afflictiten repeate a Greeke Verse, to this effect. ons to shine more clearly. All these Cru-After my death , let heaven and earth conelties are written by faithfull: Authours found themselves togither. Or I could rafor , besides those recorded in Sacred ther with (quoth he) that fuch a generall Scripture, the rest are recited by Tofephus dissolution might happen in my daies. in his Antiquities of the Iewish Warres, For I had rather deriue mine examples by Suctonius Tranquillus, Plutarch, Titus from barbarous people, then anie touch Luius, Iustine, Valerius Maximus, Eufeof our precedent Romain Emperors. But bius, Panlus Orofius, Iulius Capitolinus, & the successours to these men, who imitaothers of no leffe authority. ted them in all vilenesse: barres my further proceeding, because they were such in tiranny, as no where else are they to CHAP. VII. be fellowed. And therefore I wil leaue the lives of Domitian, Vitellius, Commo-

How that oftentimes wicked Kings and Tirants are Gods Ministers, and yet neuertheleffe, they have continually bad and enill endes , in open viewe of the 4 44 MARCH

Vch as haue beene, & yet
Are fishiceted to wicked Tyrants, lought to confidence that though they are ore awed by fuch opprefiours, they are (notwith the state of the state withstanding) the Ministers of God. In no other beds to repose on, but broken 50 many places of the Holy Scriptures, they are named the feruants of God, because (by them) God punisheth the wicked, & perfecteth them that are good. The Hæbrewes having beene governed by Indges and Priests, Samuel growne into old yeares, and finne and contempt of God encreasing among the people; Kings wer the farge-Th. freange and Braffe of to throwne on Christians na pibility is ked bodies. Janu Budy > med Gods Miniflers.

Efay. 13, 3.

Bot & co

Execb . 26, 7.

Totila called the Flayle of God.

> Tamberlaine wrath of Go

Wicked men are faid to be Gods inftru-

Of wicked Kings and Tyrants.

Saul was a good King at his beginning

Chap. 7.

gitten yoro them, and the people shem. felues required the chaftifement which they worthily deferred sirtasking a Hing to be given them This Bing Mas Shale algood man at his beginning a bir offer! wanda cruelt Tyrant : foblinspoke from shorn their goodles and Alberting land although he was tainted with many wicked vices, yet we can bor deny, but that hee was called the Lords annihinted by mostare whereof, God kept them all in foare and terror.

But let vs fet afide, both him & diners others, who lined under the law of God Idolaters naand knewe him; and come to Idolaters, who likewise are named by the holy scrip tutes, Ministers of God; for fo faith the Lord by the mouth of Efay. Les the Captaines enter by the Port of Bubylon, I bane commaunded my fanctified, and delled the 20 mightie to my wrath, to the end shat they may glorifie them felues in my glory . The Prophet spake these words on the behalfe of King Cyrus, and King Daring, Behold, how he called the Meder and Perfiant his fanctified, who (neuertheleffe) were nevther holy nor just, but only executioners of the will of God, for the putnishment of Babylen. In another place, by Exechiel he faith, I wil bring my Jeruana Nabucho-

dono for, and because he bath served me wel neer to Tyre I wil give him Egipt alfo, And yet for all this , these men were no Seruants of God, because they neither knew him, ferued him, nor beleened in him:neuertheleffe, they were executioners of his luffice, and (in this understanding) were named his feruants.

Cruell Tetyla, King of the Goths, was named the threshing Flaile of God, and 40 justly reputed so to be . Great Tamberlaine, who lived in the time of our Grand fathers, a most powerfull and cruel Captain, fubduing and vanquithing numberles Prouinces; when he was demaunded wherefore he was fo cruell and inhumain to men by him vanquished , Answered in great Choller ; Thinke ye that I am any other then the wrath of God? Hence therfore may we wel conclude, that (very often) cruell and wicked men are Inftruments, whereby God punisheth the finfull, and appropueth the vertuous. And yet notwithstanding, he doth not thereby cleare thefe men from beeing wicked! ftill, and worthy of greater chaftifement, euen for these actions of theirs : Besaufe

(according to bur Saniours worden) in it mose flara that foundals forgeta be, but me be de themibushofe actifiun they comai Allo; ie is a cole most consindutiat. Godinduit leaneth them enpumitioned, a mobile othis world (beliede sterpensall diffictions quies pared to which the world to contend and that by most stratinge and critell deaths, abhverable to fuch askirdy have inflicted aske a redious relation, died ainsholde ofibalaris, the Tyrant of Sicilia died mifemblyarithe Brazen Bull, which hadde The death of beque the death of many of his fibrons, the Tyrans and make like Mufickethen to binhfalfs, as both fet taken delighe in heare. fform of theis A March doclareth, that Sylla was miferable eaten with there, and by no Thedeath of possible meanes could get any remedie. Silla. Beside, pliny tels vs, that he dide biting & tearing his felh with his own teeth. Marius his Capitall enemie, and enerie way as cruell, inhumaine, and wicked as hee, Marius. was brought into fuchedeforate conditi on: this flying to hidehimfelfe, he was glad to wilde into the handes of Pantius The fletimes, and entreas hish to curoff his head to russe which a bed descripted . The Emperour Tiberius, was murde red by his owne people, being finiotherd to death with pillowes : and yet Suetoniw affirmeth, that his death was wrought by poylon. Caligata having received to wounds by the hands of Cheroses Cornelius Sabinus, and many others fworne in The death of the same Conspiracy, there ended his daies among them. Cruell Nero, before he died faw himfelfe deprined of his Empire, & judged a deadly enemy to Kown, by which means, beeing enforced to hide himfelfe in hollow Vaults, which were wholly infected with humane exgrements, he wold needs kill himfelfe. But wanting power to execute his owne will, and calling others to helpe him in the action ! three Villaines came and murdered him, mocking him extreamely all the while, which they delayed fo long as they could, for his greatertorment, according as Suctomus re-porteth. Dioclesian likewife, having lefe the empire, died by poison, which he had secretly prepared for himselfe. Domitian also died, having received feuen woundes by Stephanus, Saturnius, Maximus , and otheiss Tullia, of whom we spake before, The death ? that yied her owne Father fo cruellie be-

323:

The death of the Emperor

The milerable death of

The death of

That speech to man onely

The death of

ing banished from Rome; died poore and miserably. Assinges, Grand-Fadrer to Cjra, whom he would have mendered in his Infancie, by the aide of Harphen, and whomhe made to feed on the flesh of his owne Childe, was despoiled of his Kingdome by Crrus, and died wretched ly. Herodlikewife, and many other wicked Tyrants, of whom to Totale, would aske a tedious relation, died all the like infamous deaths. Let fuch them, as now do command & bear fivey in the world; Chimertieltie, and embrace clemencie, that they may the better beloued of their fubicats. For the verie greatest and furest safety of a King, consisteth in the amitie and affection of his people. in block

.... CHAP. VIII. edited

The strange fortune, which happened to the Sonne of Crafus, King of Lydia, and likewife to the Sonne of another King. in regard wheref it is discourfed whither speech bee athing natural to man or no : and whether man only feaketh, Senocreature elfer

Herodoths and Aulus Gellius

Crafus bereft

bodie A-

Enadotic writeth, a merue-lous accident happening for the fonne of Crafic, K. of Lifits; and in the fame mainter, is it reported by Aulus Gellius This Crafus was a Rich

King, and the fame that was vanquished by Gyrus; as many good Historiogra-phers haue declared. During the time that this King lined prosperously in his Countrey, he had by one of his Lawful Wines, a goodly Sonne, healthfull and compleate in all his parts and vinderstanding. The Child having attained conuenient yeares, to forme speech,& make vse thereof, was (notwithstanding) by the meanes of some vnknowne ftring, or other hinderance in the tongue, debarred from speaking for long time after. Yet grew he to good flature, and aptly dispofed to divers enterprizes, which caused him to bee much pittied, & this restraint of his speech, made euerie one to repute him dumbe, albeit hee had good knowledge, and heard verie perfectly;, which is against the order of Nature, for neuer was any quanknowne to bed Naturallie dumberburbiewas delle likewife, could It formied the orlefus was various flied, and the City wherein hee was far ken by the enemies, fo that the forwarde Soldierspressed on tornel Pallace where in the King and his dumbe Sonne were hidden together: Butbeing found by a Soldier who had perfect knowledge of them both randlifting vp his fivord with full intent to kill Crofus "his Son was fo affrighted at the bloody proffer, and puffion had fuch dipowerful working in him that he strone for speech extraordinarily. And pressing the extreame Dominion, which the foule harh of the body, immediately the corporall Organes yeelded to the firong determination of the will, and breaking the strings that had fo long restrained his liberty of speech, he spake out alowd, faying, Oh do not kil him, confider that hee is King Crafus , and my father. When the Soldier heard these wordes, he with-held his stroke, and woulde not finite the King: fo he escaped death, and from thence-forward his fonne continua ed in perfect fpeaking, even as if hee had spoken all his life time till then . Surelie, this was a matter verie maruellous, and I cannot immagine, what naturall reason may be fufficiently given for it.

Ariflotle faith, that men are born commonly dumbe and deafe, because they are not formed with such disposition of these two apprehensions, neither in such perfection as is required . Afterwards; in further growing on, they dispose them felues, and striue first of all to begin with hearing; and after they have hearde (for many daies together) then they labour how to fpeake. Pliny faith alfo, hee that is borne and continueth deafe, is compeld likewise to bee dumbe . For, most certaine it is, that if a deafe man hearde, he would eafily learne to speake, and speech is impossible to be taught him that is entirely deafe. Ariftotle alfo faieth : It may well happen, that a Childe may pronounce some words before ordinary time, and yet not- Nat. Lib. 2, withstanding, he will begin to lose those words againe, vntill fuch time as Natures allowed houre (for Infants to speake) be come, and when (by her appointment) they commonly vie to fpeake. To this purpose, Pliny speaketh of this sonne to King Crafus (whose History we have in plink tib.s.

The strange extasy of a fon, seeing his Father readic to be flaine.

> each Fraid z stanki The ffraung E . : 1 4 9 2 wordes of a yong Infant.

A wonderfull recouerie of ipeech.

The Allegation of Arithmia

The faying o

The opinion of astrologers

Whither fpeech be naturall to man, naturall ap-

Plin.Lib.6.

briefe related) and faith; That at the age of fine moneths, hee pronounced fome words, which were reputed as Prognoflicaters of his Fathers ruine : and foit feemed, that fuch effect proceeded from that fore-telling, for he neuer spake afterwardes, vntill the memorable accident which we have already declared. I call to minde another aduenture in Another Hifloric of the like nature.

Chap.8.

the like case, recited by Haliben Ragel, in his Indiciare, wher he speaketh, as an eiewitnesse; and being present in a Kinges Court, who had a Son borne, that within foure and twenty hours after his birth, began to speake perfectly, and stirred his hands, whereat al the Beholders maruelled not a little, for with a ftrong voice, he delinered these words; I am borne whappily, because I come to fore-tel that the King my Father (hal loofe his Scepter, & that his Kingdome must be destroyed . At the ending of which words, the Childes life ended also. This accident (vndoubtedly) was verie dreadfull; and yet it feemeth to mee, rather as an Aduertisement sent from God, then any wonderfull woorke of Nature. Aftrologers do tell vs. that the Child whose birth shal happen when Mercury is Lord of the Ascendent and Orientall; hee will speake much sooner then anie other, who speake not, but according vnto the ordinary course of Na-

I remember likewise another matter, conformable to the case now in hand, to wit; that some haue helde opinion, That fpeech is not a thing naturall to man, but is learned and gotten, as other Artes and Sciences are. Others hold directly, that our speaking Naturally, is not a matter proper and peculiar to man only. The first, who are of the minde, that speech is not a thing naturall, do labour to proone it, in faying: That that strength, which is naturally conucnient to one kind, should be, and is as meet to all of the fame kind. As wee may perceine by barking in all Dogges, by Lowing or bellowing in all Bulles, Oxen, &c. and fo (in like case) to al other kinds of Beafts, And yet not with Randing, wee behold in men, that fome speake in one manner, and others quite contrary, so that they do not understand themselves naturally; and therefore it feemeth, that speech proceedeth rather from Art, then Nature.

Againe, according to Pliny, there are fome people that speake not all, but their speaking appeareth to be rather a kinde or forme of bellowing, then anie fetled fpeech, which never could so happen, if all men did speake by the guist of nature, for, if it were fo, then all men wold speak in one and the fame manner.

Now, as concerning the other opinion, in such as fay, that speech is not perticularly proper to man, they ground their judgement on the 'A ords of Lanctantius Firmianus, who tels vs : That wee haue some parts, which seeme to vs, proper to men onely; and yet nevertheleffe, the verie same are found to bee in other Creatures; as dinerlitic of voice in Birds, by the fenerall tunes wee heere difcerne | Birds do nain one another; whereby we plainly per- turaly vnderceiue, that they do vnderstad each other, fand one anfo that it can bee no otherwife, but as a meere forme of Language among thein. Moreouer, they maintaine their argument uppon this ground, in that manie Parrats, Pies, Popingayes, and fuch like Birds, are heard to fpeake plainly.

But the truth of this matter is (albeit Speech, the their opinions haue fome apparance of only to man, veritie) that speech is the guift of GOD only to man, not that he purchaseth it by Art: but is proper and peculiar to him, and not to any other creature. True it is that other Creatures have voice, and yet notwithstanding, they have no Speech: and fuch is the opinion of Quintilian, & Quintillian. likewise of Aristotle.

In like manner, wee have good aunfweres to these contraty reasons : As, to the first Argument we may well answere, Answeres to That a thing may be Natural vniuerfally, but in perticuler, it may be exercised according to the will. It is naturallie enill done, and he deserueth punishment for it, that killeth another man, or robbeth him of any of his goodes; and yet neuertheleffe, to inflict one kind of correction or other (vpon him) for the offence, proccedeth from the will of the Judge. Therfore, although that men do speake divers tongues, yet is it not to bee faid, that this their speaking commeth from Nature. And so much the stronger is the Argument, that fuch divertitie and confusion of tongues, was for the punnithment of their pride, that laboured to builde the Tower of Babe! : for, as we have alreadie faid, there was then but one language in the world, which could be faid to be na-

Speech is not

are also deafe

The language of the Troglodytes.

Of Birds that ipeake,a Par-rat that could speake all the Creed.

are faid not to speake at all, it is reputed, that this infirmity proceedeth, by reason that their tongue is ouermuch barbarous and imperfect, and they feele nothing, as it were, of humanity; and yet notwithstanding, it is a kind of Language among them, whereby they feeme to understand one another. And whereas it is further faid, that there be divers Birds that fpeak, as the Parrat, whereof Lodonicus Calius maketh mention, that belonged to Cardinall A feanus, which Parrat (in his prefence) pronounced (word by worde) all the Creed in Latine, without fayling in any one fillable: We may lawfully aunfwere, that this is no speaking, for they knowe not what they fay; but it is a cervolle; but a true worde is conceyned in the foule, before it is pronounced, whereof Birdes haue no fuch Capaci-

The diversity of Voyces amongest all creatures.

eth, that wee knowe all creatures by the divertitie of their Voices, that they vnderstand each other, and call one another amongst themselves wee may not heereby inferre, that such a Voyce is a word formed. For, as Aristotle faith, the Voyce loofeth it felfe, and so can wee, (without any formed word) fignifie and giue to be vinderstoode, either ioy or difcontent, and all vniuerfall passions: as presseth it selfe in laughter, & with pleafure, or by fighes and laments, in deepe forrow and anguish.

among beafts

Man onely hath the be-nefit of spea-

And as for the Troglodites, who are taine custom taught them for many daies together, whereby to forme fuch a

And to that Argument, which implywee see by the Voice, when it thus ex-

And for the respect of brute beastes, that have difference either in their fong or voice, and may be knowne when they are displeased or contented : and the like in Birds, either by motion of their winges, loftie flying, or some such other sign according to the effect : these are matters not incident to the case in question. For to speake and otter wordes, whereby may perticularly be expressed, profit, necessitie, harme, Mallice, Instice, Iniuflice, honestie, goodnesse, and whereby also passed actions are delivered, and forfight of them to come, by folide reasons and words, in declaring themselues, and other things are done, answerable to the benefit enfuing by speech: this is a blesfing bestowed onely vpon man, even as Hereditarie to him by Nature, & whereof no other Creature whatfoeuer, can any way be faide to ftand in neede, or is so meete to merrite so gracious a bene-

CHAP. IX.

Of a Woman that was married manie times And of a Manthas had manie Wines, and hapned at length to ioyne in mariage with that woman.

Haue many times noted that the honor of Widdowes of mon and publicke taxation, if they had beene married, the married three or foure times. Now, albeit it feemeth exteriourly, that men had good reason for this detection; yer notwithstanding, no man ought to judge of another bodies fecret Conscience.

Marriage, was first instituted in Para-dise, and is allowed by the Church to be Sacred and Lawful; in which respect no man should or ought vse any reprehension against it. And yet wee must not denie, but that a Chast life, without subiection to marriage, is the more perfect e- A chaft life state, and is to bee elected as the better. I most comen Neuerthelesse, the bounty of heauen diminisheth no iot of eithers goodnes; but both estates are godly and commenda-ble. If then a Widdow do marie, the offendeth not God there n; and besides, as concerning the World, it may very well be answered, that it is the smallest faulte the can commit. And because I would no way be mistaken by the Reader, I will produce (vnto this purpole) what I have read concerning a Widdow, and it is recorded by Saint Hierome: of whose Authoritie (I thinke) no one will make scruple, in regard of his Religion and great holinesse.

He faith, that in the time of Damafus, A Widdowin he both law and knew in Rome a woman, Rome that had that had lawfully beene married to two bin maried to and twenty feuerall men, and remaining a Widdowe, after the decease of the two and twentith Husbande: there was a man came thither, that likewise hadde

Chap.10.

Of Sudden Conceit.

ried to twen-

bin married to twenty Wines; and was then a Widdower of the last, and both of them at freedome and libertie; which being understood to either, no difference in their degrees, but both of equal mean condition : they contracted Marriage together, which was a thing verie notable; and raised a generall defire in the people of Kome, to fee which of this strange maried couple frould first die.

It fortuned that the Woman first deceased, to whose obsequies, al the Roman people mainly flocked, to congratulate the Husbands happineffe, as beeing victorious in no fimple Conquest: fetting a Crowne of Lawrell vpon his heade, and placing him first in following the bodye of his Wife, bearing a branch of Palme in his hand, in figne of his victorie, and numberleffe people accompanying him 20 in his triumph.

Another Hiflory repormen compa-ted together.

A Victoric of no mean moment.

The fame holy Father, recounteth another matter very notable, which he fetteth downe for truth, because it was deliuered to him by fuch as deferued credit: The case concerneth a woman also, who to shewe her selfe some-what charitable. tooke a young Boy from verie poore parents, that had no releef but fro the Hofpitall, intending to nourish the childe as 30 if it were hir owne, feeding it at hir owne Table, and nightly lodging it in her bed. When the child had attained to x. yeares of age, the woman grew to be fo incontinent, that the woulds needes have carhall knowledge of the Ladde, and that in fuch manner, as at the terme of fixe moof conceiving neths, the became quicke with Childe by him contrary to the rule and order of na ture, which neuer doth permit any fuch 46 conception at ten yeares of age . But, it rather feemeth that this happened by the permission of God, to the end, that such turpitude and dishonesty in a Woman. (vailed under prefence of charity) (hould be apparantly discourred to the worlde. So that, although the other woman had married three and twenty feuerall times. yet are not we to judge or conceite, that therein the finned. For, I am perfiva- 50 ded, that in being fo oftentimes fawfully married, in publicke confirmation of the Church, and without any insteause of contradiction: the did much better then this other luftfull lewd Woman in committing fuch a foule and inordinat finne; for which, no colour or excuse can anie way be made: whereas, on the other fide the faying of bleffed Saint Paule Standeth in force : That it is bester to marrie then to

CHAP.X.

The frange fortune which happened to two Princes of Callile.

HE power of fodain conceite, or immediate appre-hension of some inward diflike, is knowne to bee of powerful on the life of ma fuch strong impressio; that it is able to be the death of man or Woman, and vnto this purpose tendeth our present discourse. Don Alphonso, deauenth of that name, who was Father to Don Peter, having finished his raigne in Caftile, left his Sonne Don Peter, a verie young King . In which regard, the kingdome was gouerned by two Princes of the Countrey (who were Vnickles to the King, the one named Don Reter, and the cles to the other Don Iohn) and likewife by Queene youg King. Mary, that was his Grand-mother.

In the yeare one thousand three hund dred and fixteen, these two Princes, who were Vnkle and Nephew, liquing manie times(like valiant and worthy men)made warre vppon the Moores, for exaltation of the Christian Faith, and returned with famous Victories, as well approued and vindauntable Captaines: concluded togither to make Warre on the kingdome of Granado, with purposed spoyles & dammages on the Countreves belonging to the Moores; having joyned with the Alcantaro and Galacrana, Great Maisters of Saint lames in Galicia, and the Arch-byshop of Toledo.

The businesse being growne to full warremade effect, and great numbers both of horse kingdome of and foot affembled, they began to inuade Granada athe Country, and fped fowell in the aduenture: that (with very faccessefull fortune) they came before Granado, where they fought valiantly, and furprized di-uers Castels, among which, was that named Eliora. When fitting time for retirement cam. they returned backe againe by the Chriflians Countrey, and marching in good order.

Don Peter, and tharply affalted by the Moores, in their returning backe.

Don Peters fol-

fully danted.

multitude of Moores, that had affembled themselues fro all parts, and their affault was fo furious, as he was constrained to fend to Don Peter, to leave his leading, & to come to his assistance in the Arriere. Don Peter verie gladly yeelded thereto, and marching back with admirable courage: founde his men to bee fo daunted and weakened with difmay, as by no meanes possible, could he eause them to returne with him . By meanes whereof, he entered into fuch a fudden alteration and conceined displeasure, that albeit he contended woorthily to effay a fresh march vppon the enemie, inciting both his horse and foot thereto, and by no reathem become obedient. But all prouing

The ftrange death of Don

The violent apprehension in Prince Iohn phewes death order; Don Peter was in the Vant-garde, and the Lord Don Tohn in the Rereward, wher he was fuddenly charged by a huge fon could preuaile; hee drew foorth his fourd, and fmote fome, thereby to terrifie the rest, and that terror might make in vaine, his trouble in minde was fo excessine, that perceiving he could no way helpe his Vnkle, he was no longer able to manage his sworde, but speech presently forfooke him, & understanding likewife, fo that he fell downe from his horse dead to the ground, without either stirring or 30 fpeaking one word. This wofull accident, was (by some) too speedily reported vnto Prince Ichn, who fought manfully against the Moors, and had (in a manner) quite vanquished them. When he understood the occasion of his Nephews fudden death; as fuddenly likewise entred he into an extream passion, and gaue outward testimonie of fuch a violent inward alteration, that he fell also from his horse, losing the stregth and vigor of all his members, and neuer after could vtter one word, fo that he was taken vp by his people, and kept (in that ftrange maner) from midday to the Eucning . In which time, the Moores being ignorant of these seuerall mishaps, were put to flight by the Christians who marching onward in forme of battaile, at the instant, as the body of Don Peter was laid vppon an horse, Prince John gaue vp his latest gaspe. These accidents were veric remarkeable, and the like very feldome heard of: whereby plainely appeareth, that fudden conceit may cause the death of a man.

CHAP. XI.

The strange and variable complexions of two Phylosophers: the one of them weeping, and the other laughing, at the government & condition of the world.

N the recitall made by Dio-genes Laertius, concerning the lines & diuerfity of Phi-lofshers: he speaketh perticulerly of two; the one being named Heraclitus, and the other Democritus, because each of them was in Nature and Complexion verie strange. Heraclitus observed (as a common Cuftome) that alwayes as hee walked along the freetes and publicke passages, hee Disposition of would weepe and shedde abundance of Heraclius. teares, in regard of the compassion hee had on humaine Nature. For, hee was abfolutely perswaded, that all our life time, confisted in nothing but miserie,& that all the trauailes, labours, and endeauers of men, feemed worthy both of pit-tie and compassion, both in their paines and afflictions, as also for the fins by the daily committed. This is much better, and more amply described, in a letter sent by this Phylosopher to King Darius, ac-

All men that walke upon the earth, are ve-rie farre off from Iuffice : for they ferue A-uarice and Vaine-glory, with too much affection and loffe of time. As for my felfe, Ineuer thought any enill thing ; and to the end that I might shunne the paine, which I feele by beholding and knowing these thin-ges: I have evermore beene desirous, that I might containe my felfe in some fuch place, where I might never looke on men, because I can sufficiently content my felfe with that which is onely necessary for me. We read of this Philosopher, that (in all things) he was conformable to this perswasion. For fubstance. All the while he was yong, he faid he knew nothing; and when hee attained to greater growth, he faide, hee knew all things, and that nothing els had cording as our fore-named Diogenes La- The Letter errius reporteth, and in thefe very words. Heraelius to Thegreat natural thinnointing.

was comormanic to this pertivation. For lie lined the very greatest part of his time in follitude, and in the fields, contenting thimselfe with hearbs and food of slender this lines.

Chap.11. Of divers qualities in Men.

beene his enstructer, but contemplation

The Complexion of Democritus was no leffe strange then this mans . For, although he would leave his lodging, and frequent mens companies, yet would he laugh immeasurably at al the actions and behauiours of men, tearming the life of man to bee vanity and folly, and that all appetites and defires, were foolish, true 10 fubicets to fuch Mafters, and meere matter of laughter. And such was the immagination of this Phylosopher, that it was only enough for him, to go laughing along the streets, as the other went weeping: and confidering the paines and tranails of men, it feemeth that ech of them had reason sufficient to do as they did. Seneca in his Booke of the Tranquility of life, speaketh of these two Philoso-Sence. in lib. di

The words

an 109 years

The strange Nature of De

phers, approuing rather the Opinion of laughing Democratus, and aduiting to immitate his merrie humour, rather then that of weeping Heraclitus. And it apcareth, that Invenal was of the fame mind, when speaking of them both, hee sayeth, That he was amazed, whence and how Heraclitus could receive fo great quantitie of moisture, as satisfied his liberall expence of feares. And to speake truly of both these follies (for I hold these two complexions to be no otherwise) that of Democritus is allowed for the better, because wee read that he was a man taking no diflike at any thing whatfocuer, and lived an 100 yeares. I find of him, that he yied verie often to feed on Hony, and beeing on a time, demanded whither it were good to preferue the health of man, or no, he answered; These are only fittest for mans Health, Hony taken inwardly, and Oyle outwardle, giving thereby to vnderstand, that Hony was good for feeding, and Oyle for an-

Laertius reporteth many thinges of ludgement of him, whereby is cuidently differend how great his knowledge was in naturall thinges He faith, that one day among others, a meffe of milke was brought him, & after he had looked on the Milke, he faide; 50 This Milke is of a Goat that hath had young ones of this is the first time of bey Kidding; and indeed it was fo. Another time, hee met a yong maid vpon the way, and with doing reverence to hir, he faid; God bleffe ye Maid. Meeting her againe on the next day following, he made no reuerence to hir, but faid: Farewell Woman. Such as had heard thefe feueral falutations, greatly meruailed thereat, and gathered there by, that thee had companied that Night with a man, which Democritus knewe to be true, onely by the Womans countenance. Tertullian likewife telleth vs., that this Democritus did put out both his cies, because he would not bee tempted with carnall concupieences, which ordinarily are occasioned by the fight of weomen. But An in Gellins Taith, that he did it only the horarres and in a second to the concession of the better to addict himselse to the contemplation of natural thinges, for which this Phylosopher was very highly commended by the learned.

Cicero writeth the like of him, fo doth

Cicero writeth the fire of final transfer and many others. Pliny reported in Tuculan, Plin, Lib. 22. divers places, that hee was a great Aftrologer, and a Magitian, and that to learne al the Arts and practife them among the skilfull; he trauailed through all Afia; A. rabia, Egypt, and many other Provinces . And Solimus maketh mention of his Difputations against Magitians. Concerning mine owne opinion of this man; I will conclude further speech of him with a matter meruailous, and not to be omitted, to wit; that by the means of naturall light only, he fought for and beleeud the immortality of the foule, and the refurrection of all the dead, in which contem- Nature only. plation, and many other of like quality, he fpent the length of life before remembe-

But as for Heraclities, by his wretched Complexion, and feeding on nothing indgement but hearbs, and fuch like Viands, which concerning Heraclitus. continually kept him hungrie: Hee dyed confumingly, and full of Gowtineffe, being wrapt in an Oxe-hide, wherein hee had put himselfe, in hope to bee cured . And some do say, that being thus hidden in an Oxe-hide, hee was denoured by Dogges, that knew him not to be a man, Neuertheleffe, he wrote Books of great Learning, but so difficult and obscure, as few attained truly to vnderstande them: which is a fault wherein many great perfons have finned, only thorow prefumption and arrogancy.

> Ff CHAP.

a of Ale

Cicero lib. 5. de

À rare vnder-

Extreamitie

in both kinds

Variety of hu-

Concerning

the Citty of Constantinople

Of Sampson

maine accidents.

CHAP. XII.

Of some perticuler notable occasions, which have happened in one and the same maner, and rather in one place more then in another.

Hose things whereof wee haue spoken in our precedent Chapter, may vvell cause great meruaile in the consideration of men, whose Conditions and Opinions haue beene so extreamely estraunged from one another; that the verie fame thing, which hath made one man to weepe inceffantly, hath caused another to Laugh without any intermission. It is likewife amatter well woorthy of Contemplation, to obserue, that in such rarietie of humaine occasions: and amongest so many of divers difference, fom are found that do feeme as if they were meerly constrained, and that it ought vppon necessi- 30 ty, that (in some places) aduentures shold perticulerly happen, as we shall discerne by our ensuing discourse. First of all, it was a matter very admirable (as wee haue alreadie faide) concerning the Cittie of Constantinople, to witte; That the first Emperour which builded it, and made his abiding there, should bee named Constantine, and his Mother Helens. In like manner after-warde, that the last Emperor there raigning, and during whose time the Cittie was loft, shoulde bee called Constantine, and his Mother also named Hele-

It deserueth likewise due consideration, that there should be two such most Valiaunt men, as were Herenles & Samp-(on, and that both of them began their great deedes of Armes, with each mans 50 encountering of a Lyon, and both of them deceyned and vindoone by Weomen, euen as if the one were obliged to the others Fortune. It is yet a matter more notable, that in Arabia, fur-named Happie, Cham the Sonne of Noah, and his Successours, should forfake the A-doration of the true GOD, to vndergo the Idolatrie of Men. And that in the fame Province also, after so great and long revolutions of yeares, shoulde bee bred and borne Mahomet, the perfecuter of the true Faith and Doctrine given by our Saujour Iesus Christ, God and

The Cittie of Carthage, a most po- Of the Cittie werfull Common-Wealth, had fo ma- of Carthage. nie seuerall forces in Armes, that no King or Captaine could refift against it. And yet notwithstanding, it was two seuerall times vanquished by two Romaine Captaines, both bearing one name, and called Scipios; fo that it feemed, in that verie name confisted the power of Con-

It is likewise verie remarkeable, in the Historie of the Byshops of Rome, of the Popes that all the Popes which bare the name of the Alexander, were all Anti-popes, and that (in their times) grew the Scismes in the Church, as in the time of Alexander the fecond, third, fift, fixt, &c. Another meruailous matter was noted in Spaine, that Of the King commonly all the Kings which were na- of Spaine. med Ferdinands or Alphonfus, were very good and excellent Kinges . Cafar and Pompey were two Captains of Rome, very Of Cafar and famous and most puisant, great enemies Pompey. and competitors one against another:yet it happened, that they both died on their very Birth-dayes, yea violent kindes of very Birth-dayes, yea violent kindes of death, and by weapons. As worthy war-mous warring death, and by weapons. Its words, was increased in their forms likewife were Hannibal of Carthage, King Phillip, Father to Alexander, King unes. Antigonus, Father to Demetrius, Sertorius the Romaine, Viriatus the Spaniard, and in our time, Fredericke Duke of Vrbine, and divers others befide, refembling one another in behauiour and Regiment of Warre; but in one thing, they were all truly equal, to wit, they halted euery one vpon one and the fame leg, and each man loft his left eye by misfortune. The Emperour Charles the fift, was borne on the Of charles the day of S. Mathias the Apostle, on which fift Emperor day also (in course of his life) was King Fraunces taken by him in battaile, and the victory likewise woonne at Biccoque: Hee was also elected and Crowned Em-great Fortunes befell him still vpon that Yet I cannot choose but reproue such men, as in their woorkes and especiall perour on the same day, and many other on of perticular dayes, for vindertaking of our affaires good or cuill

Secret caufe large.

are onely knowne to

Chap.13.

Of Men resembling one another. actions, do obserue perticuler dayes and names, wherein to beginne or undertake their purposed businesse: neuerthelesse, feeing that fuch things have formerly bin confidered and read of I make the leffe account of their humour. It hatly beene noted, that not onely the French but form others Nations belide, do holde diverse dayes to be vnfortunate, and that no refpect in the world whatfoeuer, can caufe 10 them then to vndertake any fight or com bate, because vpon those daies) commonly fome great mis-fortunes haue befalne them . And yet they esteeme some other dayes, to have a kinde of happineffe attending on them, because that on them no loffe or euill mischaunce hath happened to them. All these things may wel vrge amazement, in regard that the caufesare vnknowne to vs, albeit neuer fo good a rule or reason may therto induce vs : firch fecrets are only known to God, and such hath beene, and is his appointment. Of Accidents that have hapned, and actions of notable fucceffe (enfining by one and the fame meanes) both vnto

CHAP.XIII.

the Romaines and Gracians, Plusarch hath

Written a Treatife called his Paralelle, wherein hee alledgeth manie excellent examples, which the curious Searchers of Nouelties, may there reade more at

That divers men have beene foreally alike, both in hape and countenaunce, that they have many times taken one for an- 40

À wonderfull feeret in Na-

Ccasion doth heere freelie offer it felfe, to make mention of fome perticuler perfons, that haue (in figure & gesture) beene alike and femblable each to other. And indeed, it is one of the greatest secrets and wonders in Nature, to behold fuch an infinit number of men, the varietie of their geflures, and all having one kind of forme: ye tnotwithstanding, it seemeth a matter of much more meruaile, when (in fuch a variable multitude) fearfly but two men can be culd ointhly do the thing the men can be culd ointhly do the which be in all parts, each politics. Of which two femeral matters, were will relate the causes arent - Jaffer, we have in the political causes arent - Jaffer, we have in the politics of the causes arent of the causes are the causes a and perfect refemblance varo apparant

Inggenent.

First of all then, we will space of the same of the sa of antiochus King of sgria, being (according to Pliny and Solinus) but of preance condition, albeit Valence Maximus af firmeth, that hee was Kinfman ynto the King and refembled him fo trucke that the Queen (having murther de pricebus) concealed her Wicked Act by the meanes of this arthenius, whom the had acquainted with hir purpole dinerle dayes before . Arthemius was laide in the Kings bed, as if he had been the Queens fickly Husband, for for fine then salled him, and fo was he reputed to bee being vilited by all the Princes of the kingdon euen as if it had beene the King himfelfg. Thus vnder frew and supposition of the King, hee maden, Whill and named (as heire to the Kingdon) flucts an one as the Queene, had determined to wherein hee was obeyed, for eueric one tooke him to be the true King indeed, which was a verice fraunge and admirable deceipt. But (to this purpose the adventure of Queen Semiramis is much more notorious, of whom to many commendable Authors hane Written memorable actions. 14fline, and diners others fay, that hir fonne Ninus refembled her fo perfectly both in speech, gesture, and disposition of body, that after the death of the King her hufband, the cloathed her felfe in the habite of a man, and reprefenting the person of her Some, held and governed the king-dome for the space of forty yeares, with absolute beleefe generally, that shee was her some Ninus, whom the so neere refembled, that in this maner was the State abused. In the time of pompey, there were two men in Rome, the one named Biblius, Publicus, that and the other Publicius, who wer both fo were like to like to Pompey, as if there had bin no other difference, then in the plain figure, it was very difficult(as Plin) reporteth) to know which of them was Pompey or no, and euery man supposed, that this resemblance cam from the father to the fon by friccef-fion. In the time of Pompeyes father, there

Solonya in Po-

The History

the anni--88° N . 10' N . 1

Of the great according to drage tions,

Of Cham and

Chap.13.

Of Francis

Sforza Duke of Millains.

Of Menogenes that refembled Pompeyer father.

There was one li ewife, named Tu-

Two infant Slaues brogh to Rome, and bought of The ranspus By Marke Antho

ys. Mari

The cunning antiwere of 2 krannus.

> . ang midi or Ashra

A plefant accident happening to the Emperour Offanus.

was in Rome a Cooke, called Menogenes, that to Hinely refembled him, as (for that very cause) the people imposed the name of the one vpon the other; and this is affured for tructh, both by Pliny and Solirangius, that brought two Infant Slaues to Rome, of equality in age, and they both (in geffure and all other thinges) were of fuch refemblaunce, that people went to fee them as a matter of merciell. Turannus alfo faide, That they were Twin-brethren by birth, but it was falle; for the one was of Ma, and the other of Allemaigne . In regard of their fo necre likeneffe to each other, Marke Anthonie, Cozen vnto the great Ottains, bought them : But after hee had intelligence of the Deceite, and that they were not Naturall borne- 20 Brethren hee fent for the feller of them, and tolde him, that hee must restore the mone backe (which was a great fumme) beerafe hee had beguiled him, in making him beloeue, that the Slaues were Twin borne Brethren. But Turannius With cumingly anoyded repayment of the Money; in replying, that (in this refrectiy hee ought to have a farre greater furnitie paide him 3 confidering, that it 30 was a matter of more merualle, that the two Infants (being borne in divers Nations) shoulde have such a perfect resemblance, as if they had beene borne vpon one felfe-fame day, and of one Mother . Which defence, was well accepted by Marke Anthony, the reason appearing to be found and good, and therfore he held himselfe well contented.

Concerning this case of so meere re- 40 femblance, a matter of pretty merriment happened vinto the Emperour Octavius. There chanced a young Ladde to come and dwell in Rome, who had the feature of his face and bodie; so absolute in likenesse vnto the Emperour Octavius, that no man in some could difcerne anie difference. This being brought vnto the Emperours knowledge, hee foorthwith fent for the youth, and then the portrait 50 of each other was more apparantly difcouered . Which when the Emperour hadde well noted, hee being a man verie affable, pleafantly disposed, and mooued (with the least occasion) to mirth, he faide to the young man, Tell me Brother, did thy Mother vee at anie time to come to Rome? As inferring thereby, that then his Father might have knowledge of hir. The youth perceiuing the facetious and pleafant humour of the Emperour, replyed to him in as merrie a Disposition, made to the with these Wordes: My LORDE, con- Emperour. cerning my Mother, thee never came onto Rome, but my Father reforted hither many times.

Pliny writeth of a man, named Surras, Pro-Confull to Sylla, and borne in Proconfull, Sicily, to whom, there was a Fifterman and a Fifterof verie neere likenesse, both in speeche and behauiour, for they both stammered in equall manner, and fashioned all their actions in one forme: fo that when they were cloathed alike, it was impossible to make any distinction, neither could anie man dire tly fay, this is the Pro-confull, and this the Fitherman; which was no meane meruell to the people. And yet Albertus Magnus, in his booke of beafts, declareth a much stranger matter. Hec faith, that he both knewe and behelde in Allemaigne, two Infant Twinnes, who resembled each other so truly, that when Of two infant they were seperated assunder, the one twinnes in Allemaigne, could not bee discerned from the other. Moreouer, beside their iesture and actions, they had fuch a conformitie in all things els, as the one could not live without the other. So that when they were fometimes for triall fundered, they indured verie straunge Agonies. They spake both alike in founde of voice, and when the one was ficke, fo was the other like wife: whereby plainly appeard that they were two bodies formed of one Nature and complexion. For my judgement in The Authors this case, I say, that this likenes must needs oution conproceed, that they were both begotten in Twinnes. one instant, of one and the same matter. ftrongly difposed: by reason whereof, all parts were equally and perfectly conditioned. S. Augustine, in his Booke of the Cittie of GOD, reporteth the verie like Story. And although thefe thinges doth feeme verie maruellous, yet may we not fcornfully feeke to difcredite them, in regard of Natures powerfull working, and vindoubted Authority of fuch as confirm them. For we could fpeake of matters more lately happening, yea, euen in our times; as of the Lord Count John Giron, who fo abfolutely refembled his brother, happening in later dayes. the Great Maister of Calatrana, that was counte lone flaine by the Moores, that by their owne

A witty and

Albert, Magin Lib, Animal

Concerning gesture and Like accidents

rents and housholde servants, they were equally taken the one for the other. I remember that I have read in the Historic of the Dukes of Millaine, that Fraunces Sforza (of whom somwhat hath bin saide already) had among his warlicke troops, a Gentleman belonging to the company of his Light-horse-men, that was of such perfect refemblance vnto the Duke himfelfe; as he was verie often both taken for him, and called by the name of Duke. I could alledge many other examples, which I am forced to forbeare, because I would not willingly offend anie Reader: wherefore, I will speake of the occasion of fuch usere refemblance wherof I find three principall, that (according to their degre es and places) shall speak for them-

The first is, that nature enermore tra-ons of neere refemblance. The first rea fon of nature working, in maile or teuzileth and striueth, to make the best Workemanship that possibly shee can; and this reason is helde by all Naturall Phylosophers. Hence it proceedeth, that The effayeth to make the Male childe, rather then the female, and to fashion him more like the Father, then the Mother; in imitation of the Painter, that portraiteth one thing (according to Nature) by another. Now, if Nature be noted foritime to faile heerein, wholly, or in part, it is alwaies by defect and debilitie in the matter: For, when a man hath not fufficient perfection in him to procreat, then is he faid to forme a female childe. Likewife, concerning the gesture and figure, when that Vertue which makes the form (which the Phylosophers call the Vertue informatiue) is most strong and powerfull in the partes of man: the childe doth then more refemble the Father, then the Mother. But when (in this Vertue) there happeneth forme indisposition and defailance in strength, and that the Vertue and power of the VVoman prooueth to be the stronger, the Child dooth then resemble the Mother . There are some other causes beside, whereof wee thall speake heereafter; and principally (in this cafe) the good or cuill disposition in the 50 matter of the parties generative, is much auailcable.

Three occasi-

In the first place, it behooueth, that Of the partics patient the Woman thould be as the partie paand agent in tient or fuffering, and the man as the Atheir enerall gent which maketh the worke, because vertues. that (according to the disposition) nature bufieth hir felfe in the fimilitude, and frameth not only the vertue of the Paternall or Maternall party, in the likeneffe of gdfture, and of the members : but likewife in the complexion, disposition, strength, and (befide) in fome passions, diseases, & other things. As wee may and do manie times obserue, that the Sonnes of Baldeheaded men, doe likewife become balde theselues, & deaf mens sons, are deaf also Very often (in like manner) as Galen affirmeth, the Sonnes do becom heires to their discases, as to the Gout, the dropsy, Palie, falling ficknes, &c. Auten addeth Leprofic, Tilicke, and Melancholy alfo. infirmities. And that which is yet much more admirable, Nature, in meer deceining hir felf, doth give formetimes to Children, fuch forming likehurts and woundes, as their fathers have neffeformerly received, which is plainly to declare, that thee continually laboureth to make true likenes. Columella maintaineth Columella in the fame argument, and fo doth Pliny the Lib. 8. de Reb. yonger likewife, in an Epiffle which hee Ruft Plin. wrote; where speaking of the wife to Cornelius, he faith; That the died of the gout, cap. 12. which was the disease of hir father, & of all his linage. This Author further faith. that infirmities discend from the father to the for and oftentimes from children to children : as it hapned to Nicerus the the Poet, borne in Constantinople, of who Pling writeth, that his Father & Mother Plin found. being white, yethe was borne blacke, be- Lib. 2. cause that his Grandfather (by the mothers (ide) was black. These accidents we daily behold by proofe, in horses & other creatures, that doe refemble their Sires most of al, not only in colour, but also in greatnes and disposition. This is the reafon of Aristotle, and of Empedocles, as also Aristotle. of Albertus Magnus. In this maner is formed the variety of geltures in men, the nus. disposition and shape of their members, according to them of father and mother, euen then in the generative action.

The fecond reason, is likewise derined The second from Ariflotle and Plinie, and they fay, ariflorible de That it is the immagination of the Father, enen in the instant, and likewife the prefent affection or passion then working in the foule. For, fight, or present immagination, is greatly analyling in this case, and is a most strong occasion, being joyned to the former ; because the Father or the mother then thinking on fom beauty, it is a great ocalio of begetting a bentiful

Natures en-

Albertus Mag-

Emped recit. per Petrarch is lib de placitisp Alb Magin lib 16,0 18 de

Gen. 30, 40.

Aduise of naturall Phylolophers.

Alexan Approf concerning Baftard chil-

Ariflotles aciri wer concerin figure.

Childe, and forming it answerable to the immagined subject. And because it many times hapneth, that Fathers have diuers immaginations; they do likewife engender diversitie and difference of gestures, so that the Infant will resemble diners persons. And this matter is reputed of fuch importance, that Empedocles faieth, Some Women have beene noted, that they have conceived, and beene delivered of 10 Children, that have refembled Statues, Figures, and Pictures, that hung in the chambers, at the time of their conception. That this hath hapned in Beaftes, is sufficiently probable in the History of Iacob, who layed the pilled rods (being White and Blacke) in those places where the flockes conceyned, by meanes whereof, partie coloured Lambes were also engendered. And it is further to bee observed, that not onely this immagination hath power on the Corporall Members; but likewife on the Soules of Children. In regarde whereof, Naturall Phylosophers haue aduised, that when a man is angry, or Melancholy, or Drunke, he shoulde not companie with his Wife : Because (commonly) Children are of the same Complexion, wherein the Father was, at the generative action. And yet, it 30 hath oftentimes come to passe, that a merrie-hearted Father, and deliberate of Nature, hath gotten a Melancholly Childe.

To this purpose, Alexander Aphrodifeus declareth a verie notable thing; that (manie times) Ballard Children, begotten in Adulterie, are wicked and vicious, in regard of the bad immagination, and fearefull terrour, wherein their Fathers were at the time of their begetting. From the verie fame reason, may an anfwere be framed to the case following. For, if it bee demanded, whence commeth it, that among men onely, there is fo great diversitie in figure ? Aristotle replyeth, it is, because that Beastes haue no Cares, Thoughtes, or Immaginations, but onely in their present Action: whereas (on the contrarie) men haue their thoughts in many places, and on diuerfitie of thinges, whereby enfueth, that manie children are borne, which neither resemble the father or mother.

Aristotle gineth (almost) the same answere vnto the Question propounded: Wherefore are foolish Children begot ten by Wife Fathers ? Hee faith, That men which know little (as wee haue formerly spoken of Beastes) are very intentiue in the generative acte: by meanes whereof, the matter being disposed, and Fathers doe without any alteration children are then beget foolith borne perfect, because nature (in the verie same instant) was busied about no other occasions. But in wife and learned men, it doth not alwayes fo fall out: because they (commonly) having their spirits more fubtle and penetrative, have alfo their thoughts otherwife busied most part of the time, which is a great hinderance, when the power is not wholy imployed in the action . From whence it proceedeth, that the matter being not perfectly disposed; . Nature coulde not perfectly perfourme her Workeman-

The third reason, rendered for aunfwere to this doubt, is from Aftrologye derived from caused by influence of the Stars, accor- Afrology. ding into the opinion delivered by Ptolomie. For, by the disposition of heaven, Ptol. in Cetiloq and the figne or Image ascendant,& the Aspects which the Planets haue, both in the Conception and Birth of man: the manners and Naturall disposition are infused, rendering themselues semblable or different to the Father, according to the proportion and conformitie of the Father, or of the Childe, at the time of Generation. Wee might heere rehearfe the Influences of these Plannets, by their seuerall proprieties, but it would require too long a time : Besides, Ptolomie hath Spoken thereof sufficiently; so hath Iulius Ptolo. in Qua-Firmicus, Haly ben Rosel, Guy, Bonatus, and others : And the reason is so strong, as it cannot bee denied; Confidering and perceyuing the Influxion and power, which the Superiour Bodies haue ouer the Inferiour, with their Ef-

Now, in regard that this enfueth by The cause of motion or agitation, which is the cause generation of generation and corruption, and is that corruption, which first disposeth the matter, and afterwardes formeth it: it followeth, that as the motion of time dooth neuer cease, and that there are divers times, and diuers Motions . And besides (as vvec haue alreadic fayde, that they haue diuers Natures; euen fo, the matter dispofeth it felfe dinerfly ! and caufeth variable actions and dispositions in the creatures,

Thefe three gaufes concu ring together

Chap. 14.

Goodly chil-

Ariflotles anfwerwhy wife

dren procee-ding from vn-fightly fathers

Thechiefe confpiratours of Cafarideath

Marcus Varro

achiefe man

He chiefe men in the confpiracy for the death of In-lim Cafar (according as Plutarch and others have declared) were Brutus and

20

Casins, who afterward (with their Adherents) were profecuted, and proclaimed open Enemies to the people of 40 Rome by Octavius, Lepidus, and Marke Anthonie, that had gotten possession of the Citty . Among the complices of Brutus and Cassins, Martin Varro was a principall man, who (beeing present in the battaile, which Octaules and Marke Anthonie had against the conspiratours; and when Offaning was the Conque! tour) for fafegard of his life and escape of apprehention, chausged his habite with a poore Souldier, and appearing rancked among them, and fold (in confused manner, as the rest were. It was his happe to be bought by a Romaine Knight, named Barbulas I who (within fome while after) iceing his faire de-

Of Equal Courtesie.

fometimes refembling one another, according to the conformity that was in Heaven, and in the one time, and in the other. Likewise, sometimes these causes and occasions are occurrent all together. Sometimes, one, or two: And (very often) the one proueth contrary to the other, from whence enfireth fuch divers effectes, which daily offer themselves to our view. By the very fame occasions, wee may easily difcerne, whence it commeth, that goodly Children are begotten by deformed and vgly Fathers, and likewise the contrary; wherein there can nothing elfe bee alleadged, but the good or bad difpolition of the matter, and the imagination of the parties agent and fuffrant; with the Celestiall influence at the inftant, all which we have delivered to be 26 doubtfull, according as other things are of the like nature.

CHAP, XIIII.

Of a very Brange and memorable fortune.

which happened in one kinde, though at fundry times, to two Knights of Rome.

borne; albeit; he contectured the fame by no other relation. To be resoluted in this doubt, he tooke him (one daie) afide, and inftantly entrearedhim, to tell him of whence, and what he was, promifing him withall, to purfue his pardon to Octavius and Marke Anthonie. But Marcus Varro, diffen bling fill his aduerse fortune; by no meanes couered. would disclose himselfe : so that Barbulas altered his former opinion, and perfwaded himfelfe, that he was no Roman; according as his judgement had before imagined. Soone after, Octavius and Marke Anthony returned to some, and Barbulas alfo with his Slave, who (perhaos) was a better man then himfelfe.

meanor, and honest carriage of life;

began to suspect, that he was a komaine

It fortuned afterward, that Marcis Marcus disco-Varro being at the Senate-doore, attending for his Maister, that stayed within fetat liberty. vpon fome vrgent bufines : was known by a Romaine, that prefently advertised Barbulas thereof . Barbulas, not lecming to know any fuch matter, and vfing no further speech thereof; so labored with Octavius (who governed then in Rome) that he obtained his pardon; by meants whereof; Varre enjoyed his liberty, and being brought to Octavine; hee was honourable entertained, and thenceforward refrected in the number of his friends.

Within a while after, Octanius and Barbulas in Marke Anthony fell at discord and vari- the like diance. & Barbulas taking part with Mark Marcus Varro. Anthonie (who was vanquished in the adventured triall of fight) grew to bee doubtfull of the fame for-Offanius, and made his recourse to the fame remedy, as formerly Marcus Varro was forced to undergoe, by changing his habite, and feigning himfelfe to bee another . Mareus Varro not know in him, by fome length of time fince last he faw him, but especially by the pomanner as himfelte had been. But comming afterward to knowledge of him, he wrought fo with Octavius, that his offence was pardoned, and hee fet at li-Bertie. So that in fatisfying what he Courteffe eflood bouind to doe, and repaying the qually requikindnesse which he had formerly receiued heeleft a linely example to vs , of the inconstancy of our lives best condition, with a rule and enstruction to all time denided into feauen

Mans life

Ages. Infancy the first Age.

CHAP. XV.

The Ages of Man Severally distinguished, according the enstructions of Astrolocommon denision of Astrologers, Arabians , Chaldeans . Greekes, and Latines, and perticularly by Proclus, a Greek Au-thour, Ptolomse and Haly ben Razell; the life time of man is divided into seaven Ages, ouer each one of which Ages, one of the seauen Planets is said to rule and gouerne. The first Age is called Infancy, containing the space of soure yeares, during which time, the necreft Planet to the Earth hath Dominion, that is the Moone, because the qualities of Infancy hath vrged men to fay; that the influence of this Planet is wholelie conformable to this Age, wherein the body is humide, tender, weake, moueable, and altogether like vnto the Moone . For the very least matter caufeth alteration, his members (by the smallest Trauaile) is weakned, and the body (in little time) encreaseth, euen plainely to bee discerned by the eye. These thinges doe happen generally in all persons, by reason of the Moones gouernment, neuerthelesse, more in fome then in others, and not equally alike ; in regard, that other particular qualities, which hold no subsistance of the Moone, doe receive their originall, in manner as the Childe commeth into the World, according to the estate and disposition of other Plannets. The fecond Age continueth tenne yeares, vntill he attaine to the yeares of foureteene : this Age is called by the Latines Pueritia, or Child-hood, which giueth a ceffation to Infancy, and proceedeth on toward adolosencie: In this Age raigneth another Planet, named

The fecond Age, is called Child-hood.

The Moone

gouerneth

Mercury, seated in the second Heauen, mercury go-uerneithe This is a Celestial body, apt and easie second Age. to change, being good with the good, and bad by the aspect of euill. During this time, nature composeth it selfe, according to the quality of this Planet. For then doe young Children declare fome principles whereby to make relation of their Spirits : bee it in reading, writing, or finging, then are they docible and tractable, and yet not withfranding, light in their speeches, inconstant and mutable.

The third Age, confident of eyght the third age yeares, being named by our Auncients is caldyouth Adolescencie, or Youth-hood, and it la. hood. steth from foureteene, till two and twenty yeares be fully compleate; during which time, the third Planet, called Venus ruleth. For a man then begin, venus gouer-neth to be prompt by Nature, power-neth the third full, and able for procreation: as enclining to loue, to Women, and addicted to Musicke, sports, pleasures, bankets, and other worldly delights. This is to be vnderstood, of naturall prouocations in Man to any of these; for, having loft the benefit of his own free will and Naturall pro election, hee leaueth or taketh fuch in- uocations in clinations by influences. And yet wee are to know, that neither the force of the Planets, nor power of the Starres, hath priniledge on the liberty of the Soule; although they incline the fenfitine appetite, the members and Organs in the body of man. The fourth Age paceth on vntill a Thefourth Man haue accomplished two and fortie is young Man yeares, & is tearmed young man-hood, the course whereof continueth ningteene yeares , and hath Soll the Sunne for Gouernour and Commaunder sel gouerneth the fourth Heauen, called the fourth se by most ancient Astrologians, the fountaine of light, the principall eye of the whole World King of the Planets, and hart of the widsyniuczie, iln iks man-ner, this Age is Prince of all other, and the floure of life, during which times floure of life the facultids and powers of the body & of the Spirit, doe acquire and attaine so their ftrength, and man beeing then apprehenfine, bold, and hardy ; knoweth, how to, order and dispose of his owneaffaires. He then defireth and purchaseth Treasures, he coueteth to be excellent, and well famed and is full

Mars course. neth the fitt

Saturn gouerdeth the laft

The feauenth

Age is decrepite Age.

Saturnes greated kindnesse to decrepité Arc.

The seauch Ages of Man. enclined to well doing. Briefely, in all thinges generall, he delareth apparantly, that the Sunne raigneth ouer

The fil: Age is ripe man-hood.

The fixt Age is Old Age.

Iupiter ruleth the fixt Age.

Age.

Chap.15.

The fift Age, named Mature Manhood, hath (according to the faid Authours) fifteene yeares of continuance, and therefore makes his Prograce fo farre as fix and fifty yeares, ben glubiect to the Planet Mars, which to (of it felfe) is enill, dangerous, and hot, enclining men to Auarice, and making them chollericke, fickly ; yet temperate in cating and drinking, and conftant in their actions.

Afterward, in adding twelve to fiftie fixe, you shall make up fixty eight years; which reach to the end of the fixt Age, and is called Old Age, whereof Jupiter is the great Governour . This is a Noble Planet, the fignifier of Equity, Religion, Piety, Temperance, and Cha-flitie; proudking men to finish al pains and hazzards, and feeke quiet repofe. In this time, men addict themselves to holy works, affecting Temperance and Charitie, defiring honour, accompanied with due praise; they are honest; fearefull of thame, difgrace, and reproach.

giueth a true and apt name to it felfe, being called, weake, declining, and decrepite Age, in regard whereof, Saturn commaundeth oner it, as the most tarnamed. His Complexion is cold, dry; and melancholly, weariforne, and troublesome. By this meanes, he cloatheth aged men with follitude, choller, meagerneffe, difdaine, and anger. He en-feebletir their memory and their strength, then doth he ouercharge their bodies with griefes, long tadneffe, languifning discases, endlesse thoughtes, and with an earnest defire to enterprise 50 feeret & concealed matters; and which that hee will returne to his first condition of infancy againe, and haue a part of the Moone to bee his Gouernour, which was his first Planet (as I have al- againe. ready declared) in his first Age of all. In regard whereof, they are then viuallie dealt withall, euen as we doe to young Infants, according to their conditions

Marcus Varro, a learned man among the Romaines detrided the life of man in-hood, as being but an entrance into further growing. The fecond was Adolefeentia, the fpringall or ftripling effate of a youth, which hee tearmed the en-creating time, for then the body goeth on by encreasing. The third fifteene yeares, mounting vp to forty fine years, of helping; because men doe then service as helpers to their Countrey, cyther in warlike occasions, or other affaires fir for the Common-wealth, and this Age gers, whereto every man may give credit, as himselse best pleaseth. Let vs now come to the denission made by part of their report, that young Spirits may exercise themselvies a little. The great Philosopher Pythagoras, how to the foure feafons or quarters of the time, when al things are in their floure, beginning to encrease and augment themselues . Youth-hood, he compared to Summer, by the Ardour and ftrength that men haue in that Age.

The seauenth and last of these seuen Ages, is limitted from fixty eight years, fo farre as fourescore and eight, and few there are that attaine thereto. It dy, and yet the very highest Planet, and which enuironeth all the other before 40 is more, they will be alwaies Maisters; Superiours, and wholly obeyed. If any man chance to goe beyond this Age, which is more admired, then noted in many : you shall cuidently perceine, and daily inclinations.

The denision of these severall Ages; The Aftroloin manner as formerly hath beene difcourfed, was the invention of Aftrolo- on ot Ages.

Philosophers, Phisitions, and Poets, The dentition who were of diners opinions : yet be- made by Phicause in this Argument there are some losophers, we wil enter into some and Poets.

long ficuer the life of man was; made The denision but foure partes thereof, comparing it the made by Py-yeare. He faid, Infancy is the Spring- Spring time.

Summer.

Manly Age is Autumne, because lin this time, a man hath experience, is Autumne. ripe and apt for good councell, with certaine knowledge of all thinges. Old Age he figured in winter, being a friit- Winter.

leffe time, cumberforne, and hauling no benefit of any bleffings, but what haue proceeded from the former featons.

to fine partes, attributing the space of fifteene years to each one of them. The The denision first fifteene he named Puerita, Childe-madeby Mar-Adolescentia.

> er Antinis anoine.

he called tunentus, as comming of the Latine word lunare, to fignifie the time is held for the flability or firmenelle of Maturitas.

the Age of man is called Maturitas, maturity, full of ripenesse, because (in Lais to fay; Ancient men, or grave aged men, in respect of the precedent condi-

Hippocrát, in Lib, de Dier. Nat. And his deuifion.

Sentelus.

The deuision made by Solon

Ifidor lib. 11. de Etimol And his deuision.

Horace in Art. Poet Andhi denifion.

life. After forty fine, euen to threescore, tine) fuch men are named Seniores, that tions. Alfo, in these times men doe begin to decline, and walke on toward Old Age, which accomplisheth the last fifteene yeares, after threefcore, and containeth the rest of mans life time. Behold how Varro deuided the life of man, according as Cenforines hath de-Hippocrates the Philosopher, he de-uided it also into seauen Ages, the two first seauens, rising to fourescene; The third, ascending from loureteene, to eight and twenty. The featens that make up the fourth and fift, doerife to forty two : The fixt, from forty two, to fifty fixe; And the reft of mans lite, he attributeth to the featienth Age. Solon the Philosopher, as the same Cenforinus relateth, brought these seauen parts into fixe, deuiding the third, the fixt and the featenth in the midft, fo that each of the fixe parts should last scuin yeares; And the like description is made by the other Philosophers . Bur Isidore hath distinguished it into fixe Ages, agreeing in the two first with Hippoerates, making every one feaven; naming the first Infancy; the second childhood. Afterward, from foureteene to eight and twenty, he tearmeth Adolefcentie, or the encreasing age. From twenty eight, to forty, he nameth it Iuuentus, or the helping time, which is the 4 in order. The fift, which he calleth declination, or the beginning of Oldeage he maketh to confift of 20. yeares, and amount (in all) to fixty. The remainder of life, he attributeth to Olde Age, and nameth it the fixt Age.

Horace, the excellent Poet, hath likewifemade deuision of mans Ages; but it is into four partes onely, according as Pythagoras did, to wit ; Child hood, Youth hood, Man-hood, and Old age: 50 all which he hath elegantly described in his Art of Poesie, with those conditions belonging to men, in all those seuerall times. Neuerthelesse, according to the rule of naturall Philosophy, the life time of man should not be deuided, but into three Ages : The first, the encreafing Age; The second, the continuing Age, or, while a man remaineth in one citate; And the third, the Age of Diminution : For, according to Aristotle; Allthinges that doe procreate or Anima. engender, have augmentation, retention of Effence, and diminution: fo, in like manner, three Ages ought to be affigued to Man. The Philitions of Arabia haue beene of the same opinion, and yet notwithstanding, Auicenne, a very learned man, diftinguisheth our life into foure Ages, or principall partes. The first, which lafteth thirty yeares, hee calleth fioninto four Adolescencie, because, during this time, all things go on by encreasing . The fecond, from thirty, fo farre as forty fine, he calleth the stayed and setled Age, or of beauty and comelinesse; for at this time, aman is in his best perfection. From thence onward, and so farre as to threefcore yeares; he tearmeth, fecret diminution, and the way to Old Age. The rest that a man liveth afterward, as being his fourth and last estate; he namethit, clearely discouered Old-Age, or falling, and downe-stooping Age. Now, notwithstanding this opinion of The first age his, it is to be noted, that albeit he haue devided by made this principall denision : yet hee duceme into forgetteth not, to deuide the first of there foure (which containeth thirtie yeares) and maketh three parts thereof. Whereby wee may well fay, that hee confenteth with fuch, as denided it into Now, after wee have confidered all these variable opinions, I cannot tell to which I should betake my felfe, as beeing the trueft; and to speake vprightly, no man knoweth how to give an affu- in this case, redrule, or any certaine ayme; as well in regard of the divers complexions & dispositions of men, as also their dwelling in fundry Landes and Provinces, and their nourithing by good or bad foods, by meanes whereof, men arrive fooner or later at the state of Old Age. For which cause, Galen would have no ages: which being well confidered, it danged maketh all these discordances of formany Authors, need no water formany and the second formany and formany and formany formands for many formands f maruaile, confidering that each man had a severall consideration. Accorhad a fenerall confineration.

Servins Immunity of Rome his desification of Aulus Gellius) Servins Immunity of Aulus Gellius) had, who (according to Aulus Gellius)

Arist,in lib. 3.

Mellow Age. Old Age.

Viridifque In

Yeares called limattericall, dangerous mans life.

of much more perill and danger then others be; which they named Climactericall, by reason of the

had no respect but to common benefit, when he deuided the people of Rome into fine estates. And yet he distinguishedthe life of men, but into three parts, calling the first age (which he affigned to be scauenteene yeares) Childhood. From that estate to forty fixe; he declared them to bee men, able for the Warres, and so caused them to be fet downe in writing. Lastly, from fortie 10 fixe onward; he called them, ripe and mellow men, fit for graue imployment and counsell.

This denision not contrary ing the for-

Chap.16.

This devision doth not contrary any of the other, because it is vniuerfall, and includeth the meanest particulars in it, and it feemeth, that he grew conformable to the common denisions, when it was viually observed, to separate (in divers kinds) the Greene Age, Ripe-age, and Old-age. The Greeneage, from the time of our birth, even to the ending of our youth, which goeth fo farre as forty fine yeares, little more, or little leffe; according as Virgillfaith, Viridifque inuentus, that is to fay ; Greenyouth. The Ripe and Mellow Age, proceedeth on to threescore yeares, which time was attributed by Sernius Tullius, to men of Wisedome, meete for grane counsels and consultations. The rest is tearmed to be decrepite Old-age. Thefe three parts, may likewise be denided into other proportions; and (by that meanes) be answerable to the varietie, which appeareth to have beene (by diuersitie of coniecture) among so many

CHAP. XVI.

That there be certaine yeares in the life of Man, which our Ancients have indged to be more dangerous, then any other; And for what caufe.

good Writers.

Ncient Philosophers 50 & Aftrologers haue obseried, that there are certaine yeares in our course of life,

Ladder or forme of degrees, finguity ing thereby, that frich yeares are limitted, in the fashion of degrees on Aldps, but hard to paffe, during the nece of this mortall life. For like as they maintaine in daies, that the fearenth, ninch, and fourteenth, are dangerous during mens fickneffes and infirmities ikn like cafe, they have especiall tespect withat fuch a numberd limitation, takethplace also in the course and yeards of our fraile life; in regard of the members firength, whereof great account hath beene made by Bythagoras, Themistius, Battus, Averroes, and many others. Al- Battus. fo, in regard of the influences and domination of enill Planers; as I may alleadge of Saturne, who reigneth indiuerfity of feafons, and fundry Ages. Whereby they gather judicially (according as Marsilus Ficinus, Cenforinus, & Massius Fi Aulus Gellius doc testific) that all the Conformation Collins Septenary yeares ; or those comprised of seauens, doe portend great alterations, changes; & impossible (as it were) that flich tearmes can bee paffed, without mighty hazzard, alteration of life, estate, health, or complexion . Vpon this occasion, the yeare feauenth, fourteenth, twenty one, twenty eight; thirty fine, forty two, forty nine, and fo for every scauenth yeare, is to bee fea-

Greeke word Clima, that is it gillane 3

And because they defend the number Tenarie, or of three, to be likewife ber of three, of great efficacy; they fay, that three times feauen (which maketh one and twenty) is of maine importance. The like speech doe they make of the yeare forty nine, because it is composed of feauen times feuen. But the yeare (most of all other) to be feared, is that of fix, ty three. For like as the number of one and twenty, arifeth out of three times feauen: fo, likewife the number of fixey three, begetteth it felfe of three times one and twenty; or of nine times feauen, or of seauen times nine; which compleateth the number celebrated & recommended by the very aveileft. When a man therefore commeth to the age, of entring into the year ahreefcore and three; he ought to be carefull of his health and life, waiting (dain by day) for some change therein; or whatfocuer elfe may happen vnto him liaco

Bearing Fr

States Louisia Character to

Daies maintained to be

Masilius Fici-

credin/A sa

Of the num-

The dangerous yeare of

> Coldul not 4 Son

4.Booke.

Inlins Firmicus in lib. Aftrolog.

The Letter of Octavius to Cassius.

The death Ariftotle.

> The death of Dioine Plato,

The Authors thisargument famous persons.

्रक्षा अपूर्ण जनकारी Man fubica to the will of God.

cording as Tulius Firmieus affirmeth in his Books of Afrology

To this purpose; Aultus Gellius ma-keth mention of the Emperor Off aulus his Letter, whereby he fignified to his Nephew Cassus (having escaped this yeare of fo much danger) how carefull he ought to be of the yeare fixty foure, because he had preuented the yeare fixty three; fo that he declared a good intention, to celebrate his second Natiuity . For these reasons, our Elders made doubt of this yeare threefcore and three, perceiving many worthy men to die, euen ar the arrivall thereof: for in the fame yeare dyed Aristotle, and divers other notable perfonages. And, as I have formerly faid, the number of nine was also feared, because they faid, that he which escaped the yeare fixetie 20 three, could not passe the boundes of fourescore and one ; in regard that this age was composed of nine times nine: at which age died dinine Plato, the great Geographer Eratosthenes, Zenocrates, the Platonicall Prince of the auncient Academie, Diogenes the Cinick, and other

Gentlemen, I was willing to make some observation of these matters, more for curiofitie and exercise, then for any credence given to them : albeit they are not veterly impertinent, nor voide of naturall reason. For, as wee may behold, that fome fickneffes and humours doc end in a man, and, that in other Creatures, the change of teeth, encrease of Beard, the voyce augmenting, and nature worketh other effectes and notable changings, on such complexions as are knowne by the tearmes of yeares: wherefore should not wee credite, that (by the same meanes) limited times doe make other alterations and impressions? Why should we not beleeue, that our humaine body hath communication with the Celestiall influences, as with humours; by fome efpecial meanes; which is hidden from vs Because, man is subject to the will and government of God. And God, although he hath formed all things miraculoufly; and fuper naturally : yet notwithstanding, he will have his works to be naturall; onely fuch excepted, as were created by him against the Lawes of Nature, and according to his owne fecret and inscrutable judgement.

CHAP. XVII.

That Orpheus, Homer, Pythagoras, Plato, and other of the ancient Philosophers and Poets, did read the Books of Moyfes, and haue taken many particuler points out of

T is not to bee found, whether any that any man (before man wrote be fore Moyfes) hath left any thing written ; except it were Abraham and Enoch, whose learning,

Moyles (as their lawfull Inheritor) harh comprehended in his Bookes, adding thereunto, those things which he heard from the mouth of the living God, by Oracles daily received from him. At fuch time as Pythagoras and Plato learned the Sciences in Agypt; they would (first of all) study the Doctrine of Moyfes, whose name (in those times) was in great admiration through all Egipt, & out of his Bookes they conceined the reason of God; to wit, of the first cause. After whom, Numenius the Pythagorian, Numenius the wrote down in his Bookes, many thinges concerning. Moyfaicall Doctrine, us Bafile the great witneffeth; and the fame Numenius faith, that Plate was no other then Moyses, speaking in the Greeke Language. Clemens Alexandri- Clemens Alex mus, and Eufebius, doe both fay, that the Eufebius, Gentiles receined their very greatest Mysteries from the lewes, wrapping & enfolding them in their Fables. That of Dencalion, was taken from the Historie of the Deluge . The fixion of Phaeton from the retrogradation and going back of the Sunne, which was in the time of Ezechias.

They that would behold the building The Tower of the Tower of Babell, which Nimrod and his pertakers undertooke, meaning (by Ladders) to climb vp into Heauen, and fee what was done there : shall find it under certaine Allegories, amply de- The Gyants fcribed in Homer, under the Fable of the Octo and Gyants Oetus and Ephialtes, Sonnes to iphimedia, where hee describeth their zib. 11. height height and wonderfull greatnesse, and how they would lay the Mountaine Of-Ja, vpon that of Olympus, and Pelion vpon Offa. The Poet Ouid, borne in Sulmo. tooke that which hee fingeth, of the beginning and Creation of the World (like as Homer, Hefiodus, and Linus, borrowed their Songs, of fanctifying the

Chap.18.19.

Hefiodus,Li-

Saturnes golfeauenth day) from none elfe but Moyfes. Many haue fung the golden Age and raigne of Saturne, hauing gathered it from the most happy estate, wherein Adam was before hee finned. Many more before them; as Orpheus, who learned divers things from the doctrine of Moyfes, especially in the Book which he made of the facred word : he confeffeth, that he took out of the Moyfaicall Tables, that which hee fingeth concerning God, knowne to the onely Chalde- 20 an Moyfes, by these Verses, which Frances George, in his Hermony of the world, hath reduced into Latine.

Fran. Georg.in lib.de Hermo

Prius perfectus Dens est, qui cuntta creanit Cuntta fouens, atque iple fouens fisper emmia in st. 2 du capitar mente tantum, qui mente viuletra Qui ma llima e unatum mortalismi interbit vanquam; Quem perter mon est attus i u cuntta violeto. He inform in teris matina quo carrer e pesse. Hi cettumi viulen i presenti perfectus della processione della proc euc cientin video: spint velifica forcin: Hicque manum video : verum ipfus, cernere, quis fit, Nequaquan valeo, nam mubibus infect altis. Nemo illum nifi Chaldeo de fanguine quidam Progenitus vidit: quem calorum aurea fèdes Sublimisque tenet : cuius se dextera tendit Occani ad fines : quem de radicibus imis Oceani saj unes : quem sa vasicious imms. Consulfique remuni montes : rec pindere quamuia Immunfi fast, ferre quiumt : qui cuboine cati Alta colons : terri immquam tamun tile fit affirm, 196 sil principium, medium quoque, & exitus idemi, Priferum mahe abe descurant omnia voices.
Quæbinus tabulis Deus olim tradidis itlis.

Some haue been of opinion, that Orpheus meant by this Chaldean, Noah, others, Enoch, and the Platonists tooke him for Zoroastres, who was the Sonne of cham : but to none of them were the Tables of the Commaundements giuen, but to Moyfes onely.

CHAP, XVIII.

A Mystical Signification, concerning the body of Elifeus, and of the dead man raifed to life in the Prophets Graue.

Of the body of Elifeus.

T is written in the * fecond Booke of the Kinges, and the thirteenth Chapter, that as they were burying a Man, they efpyed the Souldiours of the Madutes: wherecond Booke of the fourth backe

341 fourth backe.

The myfticall application of this History.

fore, they threw the dead man into the Grave of Elifeus, and the man beeing downe, and having touched the bunes of Elifeus; he remited, and stood vppe on his feete . This History containeth in it, the figure of our Lord lefus Christ, and under the superficies there of, is hidden a very great Mysterie. Dead Elifem, is mysticallic vnderstood to be Iefus Christ, who died for vs; and the Souldiers or Thecues of Moab, doe represent wicked spirits, and the sinnes of the world.

The Men that espied the Moabites, and threwe the dead bodie into the Graue of Elifens; doe fignifie the Apoftles, who prouided for the peoples fauing health, against the mallice of wicked Demons, and against the burthen of finnes and therefore plunged mankinde (being dead) into the Sepulcher 30 of Christ, that is to say, into the Water of Baptisme, because the Water of Baptisme is Christes Graue or Sepulcher, wherein wee are fanctified three times in the name of the bleffed Trinitie, in regard that Iefus Christ continued three dayes and nights in the Sepulcher. Whereupon, Saint Paule saide to the Romaines : We are buried with him in his death by Baptisme. Concerning the dead man, that having touched the bones of Elsfeus, renined, and rose vpon his fecte : read but the fame Apostle. in his fecond Chapter to the Cologians, and there you shall finde him perfectlie

Rom. 7, 9.

CHAP.XIX.

The Interpretation, of the Dreame of the great King Nabuchodonofor. ∍ไลเไม่ที่ จะ ระกง ท_{ี่}นัก

Nabuchodonofor, King of Babylon, beheld

Dan.z.

fors Image.

or statue, the glory whereof was high, and it had a terrible regard. His head was of fine Gold; his Breaft and armes of Siluer, his belley and Thighes of Braffe; his Legges of Iron; and his Feetewere partly of Iron, and partlie of Earth. He saw afterward, that a little stone (came of it selfe) out of a Me antaine, and descended from such an height; as by the very blow of his fall, the Image was broken in all parts, and beaten into Powder . Daniell Interpreted this statue, and gaue the fignification thereof in the Kinges prefence, as is contained in the fecond Chapter of his Booke : but heere it is more amply interpreted, and in a larger

The fignificamage, which for faw in his

Good reasons to perfwade that we liue in the latest age.

Exaltation of the Arts and Sciences.

Shortneffe of Forwardnesse

beheld (in a Dream) a very great Image The Image or Statue, denoted the Monarchies of the World; the head of Goldwas the Kingdome of the Asirians; the Breast and Armes of Siluer, the Empire of the Persians ; the Belly & Thighes of Braffe, the Monarchy of the Grecians; the rest remaining (consifling of Iron and Earth) the State and Dominion of the Romaines. The stone is Iesus Christ, who descending from the Celestiall Mountaine, hath 20 humbled al these Kingdoms, & brought them to nothing. By this it appeareth, that we are in the last age, and that smal time of passing hence remaineth: because, this world must be ouerthrowne and ruined, all the Kingdomes having already paffed, and all Prophefies fullie accomplished. All which, if we were not able to coniecture; yet might wee easily comprehend by good reasons.

In the first place, wee cannot deny, but that vertue is at her chiefest height, and all Vices at their pitch of extreamity. In the fecond place, who ever beheld Divinity and Learning more exalted, then it is at this day? Philosophy, Musicke, Armes, Carning, Painting, and Eloquence more common, then now they are? very children neuer grew so soone to be perfect. We daily behold, that men do not now reach to the yeares of an hundred, or if they do, it is very fildome; as in former times they did. And we may perceive withal, that at the age of 18. yeares, a young Springall shewes himselfe of as good shape, and provided of as able firength; as a young man at the age of thirty in elder daies. I cannot deliuer any reason, why men doe live in this World fo short a while; except it be thorough their bad the breuity of gouernment, and that diffolutions and life. vices are the maine cause thereof: or rather, that God being willing to hasten the end of the World, would have all these predictions, to be as warning pieces of his neere approach. We can deliuer another Allegory, or Expositi- Another exon of King Nabuchodonofors Dreame. Defion of this Dreame. wherein we are Inhabitants, and where the more part of Mortall Men, are called Rich, Noble, and Mighty, vnder which Titles, we comprise the head of Gold. The cleare fhining Siluer, and of Siluer, very good found; is the Learning of Braffe. Men, tearmed wife, religious, and vertuous. By the Brazen part, wee vnderstand invented Artes, by which ensue the benefits of life and maintenance. As for the feete of Earth and Iron, wee Earth & Iro may well admit them to be our bad actions, the very best whereof, will scarfe allow any boafting: because they are full of filthinesse, soyled with hatreds, enmities, and rancours, that (too foone) get possession of our harts. Our stupidity and vnaptnesse to good workes, and our iniquity of life, which is all made of Earth; both gouerneth and supporteth this huge masse, this vaine corruption, despoiled of all this, euen by it felfe, by this ouer-burdening and loading it felfe. But our Lord will The little descend from Heauen, the little Stone, fone.

CHAP.XX.

euen that (I fay) which became fo great;

and at his fecond comming, he shal cast downe to the ground, all humaine Estates, and shall judge (in the last day) the Gold, the Siluer, and all the rest of the actions of our life.

when the ending of the world shall come, by the coniect ures of divers learned Doctors, and other great personages.

COme have delivered their opinion, Othat the Worlde is to endure fixe thousandycares, to wit; two thousand without the Law; two thousand with the Law, and another two thousand after the first comming of the Sonne of God. This was not the Prophesic of Helie the Thesbite, but rather the innen-Genebrad in tion of another Helie, a Rabbie of the Iewes, uppon the Talmud; in the tract Sanedrin . Chapter Helee ; in the tract of Idolatry, Chapter Libne; and in 10 the Tract of the Sabbath. The coniectures of whom, are reported by Rabbi IJaac, upon the first Chapter of Gene-

fis, the principall whereof are thefe that

The coniccred by Rabbi follow.

The first Versicle of Genesis, contain neth the Summary of the workes of God, expressing fix times the Letter N. Now, Aleph fignificth a thousand, Moreouer, Godperfected the World 20 in fixe daies, the featenth bee ceaffed from his works, and fanctified the Sab. both: And, a thousand yeares are with God, cuen as yesterday which is past, so faith the Pfalmift. Finally, the fixe first Fathers, Adam, Seth, Enos, Caynam, Malaleel, lared, are dead; the feauenth; to wit ; Enoch, was transported alive vp into Headen. After fixe thousand yeares then, during which time, transiles, and 30 death wil be in their vigour : thal begin the feauenth thousand of repose, and of the life immortall. Nicholas de Cufa, a very wife Cardi-

The conicetutes of Nicha Lu de Cufa, Cardinall.

nall, gaue many other conjectures of the last times, which I wil relate here at large. If wee defire (faith he) to have knowledge of the time (how little focner it be) concerning the ending of the world, and the last daies : wee haue just 140 cause then to meditate on the tranailes, which our Saujor Jefus Christ endured in this World. For, as himfelfe bath four Saujor taught vs, if we will line as Christians, we ought to follow, and learne of him. Learne of me (faith he) for I am humble of meeke of beart. In like manner, himselfe hath given vs example, to doe as hee did, if wee define to bee his followers. Moreouer, hee affureth vs, that all the faithfull are his members, when hee faith; that which is done to the least of his, he reputeth it as done to himfelfel The Church then is his myflicall body, and thee, in her totall perigrination in this World; imitateth her head lefus

Christ, who opened Heauen by his afcension. He hath gone before, as her rule and example this Church followeth after, ashis Image and refemblance. Morfes behelde the truth the the flaming Mountaine Smal, by vision of the versty, and after the Milian Mas. vanished, hee did according to the vaample which he has feene, lefus Chrift Chrift his enentredinto this World, in the forme trance into of a young Infant, beggereafed in age this world. and Wildlome, became a many entires Cling the truth, and walking in it 3 vntill fuch time, as (to bee a Testimonie thereof) he was taken from this world, by the mallice of the leves, who made hun to fuffer death appointhe Croffe. Menortheleffe, hee bath left his leedey which is his Church, in whom he abideth, as Adam in Ene, his Wife formed The Church of his Fleth, and brought forth of his the Spone of Ching. fide: to the ende, that his Spoule the Church (full of his Seede) thould afterward be nourished in the House of his heavenly, Father, by her glorious affumption wo into Heatien . The Church was regenerated from hir Infancy, cuch like an Infant; thee bath encreased in yeares and divine wifedome, and (bylitle and little) the shall accomplish and finifiche time of her (Travailes in this Worldshirt Now, if we would have a linely expectation of the time of chirts being ample, we may fay by confecture, that the time which lefus Christ lived vpon really the mi the Earth; is represented and declared; litant Church by his Militant Church . We knowly that hee is called the Sonne of Many and the Lord of the Sabbath. Likewife, in him was accomplished, that which was prophefied by Efay, to wit; The yeare of the Lord, which yeare of The yeare of the Lorde, is the yeare of Inbilie and Jubilie. freedome. (For lobell in Hebrew, is as much to fay, as the fiftith yeare, at which time of Iubily in Ifraell, cuery feller might (by right) recouer againe the hins parenthings which he had fold, without re-floring the price received.) All this Nichala Co. time is revolued by the septenary number, to wit; from feauen dayes, from featien yeares, and from featien times. feauen yeares, which are fortie nine yeares . After which, the fiftith yeare following this laborious renolution, is the yeare Inbilie, free and full of liberty, in which all fernitude ceafing, liberty returneth freely againe. Andit is to

ot. gast.

The Church is the mystical body of christ

* This is out of cufa, who liued & spake

yeare: 464. made Cardinall vnder fecond. So that, in perfect account

yeare, is the 31. Iubily, fince Ielus Christ.

the instant

this, in the

Now if we will confider further, the things which our Lord & Sauior hath done, and those which he suffered after the twenty ninth yeare of his age, vntill the day that he arose, triumphing ouer Sin, Death, and Hell, and then, if wee | 30 extend those yeares into lubilies: wee may (by coniectures) foretell what shal happen to the Church. So that, in the foure and thirtith Iubily, after the refurrection of the Redeemer of al mankind; the may well hope (by the goodnesse of God) to be raifed vp into the glorie, to the ruine of Antichrift. And this is thought, that it will happen, after the birth of our Lord Iefus Christ into the World, 1700. and before the yeare 1734. And as in the time of Noah, the confummation of fin came by the Deluge, the 34. Iubily after the first Adam, according as wife Philo the Iew hath written: we may also fore-tell by coniectures, that in the 34. Iubily after the A comparison fecond Adam, both fin and the World shall be consumed by the fire of the holy spirit. And then shall the Church be transferred out of this corruptible world, into the glory of the liuing, by the comming of her Spouse to Ludgemen. And yet the houre of his fecond comming will be vncertaine, for come he will, & when least doubt is made of him; like as a Thiefe commeth in the night, and as the deluge came vpon the might, and as the deluge came vpon the earth. Philo the lew declareth, that Moyof a reueland fes (at the houre of his death) defired made to Moyof a reueland made to Moyof God to reueale vnto him; how much fer, concerof the time was passed, and how much ning the times, (as then) remained : whereto God aunfwered, that two had already paffed, & two wer as yet to come. And so Moyfes being full of vnderstanding, yeilded vp his Soule. Heerein then (faith he) God reuealed four times to Morfes, two paft, and two to come: of which, from Adam to the Deluge or Floud, paffed the first time. The second, after the floud, vntil Moyles. The third, from Moyles to Lefus Chrift. And the fourth, from Iefus Christ, to the end and consummation of the world. Now, the last time took beginning at the Refurrection of the Son of God, and continueth to the ending of the world, vpon which good reason, the Saints (oftentimes) called them the latter daies, and the ends of the world.

Now, notwithstanding that these sup- Concerning putations of yeares are very divers, according to the truth of the lewes, according to the lewes a ding to the 70. Greeke Interpreters, as alfo according to Iofephus & Philo: I am of the minde (neuerthelesse) it is much more true, that there hath passed so many Iubilies from the death of Morfes to lefus Christ ; as from Adam to the time of Noah, and as many from the floud vnder Noah, vnto the death of Morfes. In like manner, as many Jubilies haue and shall run their course, from the resurrection of our Saujour, to the end of the last times, and of 34. Inbilies. Moyfes died(according to that divine revelation) in the midft of these 4. times, whereof two were finished, & two were then to * All hitherto come. * There are many other coniectures of the latter daies, which are found cholas de chifa written, and vet are so diners, as no one agreeth with another. And to speak truly, the ending of the world, and the generall-judgement is vncertaine to any creature; for it is onely in the hand and onely known power of God, whose secrets are con- to God. cealed to himfelfe, and he being God referued them to his owne peculiar knowledge. So that, if those auncient men would needs undertake to write thereof fom perticularities; yet they al deceiud themselues by abusing coniectures, far off from all verity. We then of thefe daies, who have much leffe learning & to come, especially daies, houres, and moments, which God hath so restraind to his owne power, that the Angels in heauen do not know them. For so himfelfe faith; Of that day and houre, no Man knoweth, no not the Angels of Heaven, but 10 my Father onely. But fure and certain are we, that the world shall perish by an vniverfall flame, and shall bee renewed: which the Spirit of God delinered by Moyfes, in his Song in Deutronomy . Fire is kindled in my wrath, and that burne vnto the bottome of Hell, and Shall consume the earth with her encrease, and set on fire the foundations of the Mountaines.

judgement then they had, without any comparison, and enjoy not a sparke of the like functity; ought to cease and de-fift, fro ouer-curious fearch into things

Sophocles rela-ted by John de Maulment,

2 Pct. 3, 12.

August, in Lib.

Actes 1,7.

Sophocles the Pagan Poet, feemed to 20 touch with his finger (as it were) the ending of the W orld, in divers verses, translated by John de Maulmont, the meaning wherof briefely folowes thus. The Age shall come that wil bring vsriches from the high Heauens, when they shall be filled, and round engirt with fire. All places on the earth the flames (hall enclose, and burne all things, as well in the water, as in the Ayre. Not any thing in this world, under earth, or in the deepest Sea, fall fcape from burning. When then, by fo cruell a flames fury, all things shall be consumed: the springes of all waters (hall be without cour fe like a bottomles gulfe. No fields shal produce any more fruits, nor the earth be inhabited : No this Shall floate upon the Sea : No Birds fly in the Ayre. But a cruell tempeft of ferie thunder. shall burle Heaven and Earth into eternall ruine; burning the Earth and all things into Cinders. Then Shall her great backe re-af-Jume no other effence or ycelde any nourish. ment, for all is brought into putrifaction.

Saint Peter writeth ; That Heanen and Earth which is at this instant, are referred for Fire at the day of Judgement, and the Elements (hall refolue them fe ues into fire. Saint Augustine anniwered a demaund which might he made, as thus. When after the Indeement is ended this World shall bee burnt, before (instead thereof) a new Heaven be created, and a new Earth: in what place shall the Saints be, when this burning is performed? Confidering, it followeth neceffarily, that they thould be in fome corporeall place, because they all have bo-

Chap.21. Of the Conquest of Naples. dies. They fhall be (faith he) in high b'a ces, whereverothe flam s can never mount, as likewife the Waters of the Deluge could not . For they Shall then have fuch bodies . as they may bee where they will be, without fearing the Fire of barning, being made immortall and incorruptible : as the corruptible and Mortall bodies of the three Dan. 3, 24. Men, Sidrach, Mifaack, and Abednago lined, without being offended in the fiery fur-

> Now, if we will be Christians, wee ought to beleeve, that the Refurreeri. I Cor. inig. on of the dead, is in Flesh, and that it will bee done in a moment, or in the twinckling of an eye, faith the Apostle: but our Faith heerein is not ynprofitable, although our understanding doe not perfectly comprehend, howe, and in what manner it shal be done. Let vs leaue then to God, the causes and reafons whereby this is to bee done, and let not vs enquire (ouer bufily) after his admirable secrets I could continue on this discourse, with divers other Chapters, and handle in them this Refurrection, fetting downe the folution and aunswers of Doctors in Dininity, touching those high questions and demaunds, which may be made in this matter. But I will faile no further in fo high a Sea, nor enter into an * Eurypus * A narrow of reasons, where the Billowes may fea betweene of reasons, where the binoves may thehauen Aufhip ; therefore here shall be my Hauen which ebbeth and landing.

and floweth leuen times a day, and lo vi-olently, that it carryeth (with it) thips with full faile

CHAP, XXI.

The Conquest of the Kingdome of Naples. by Charles the eight, King of France.

Hillip de Comines, a worthy learned Gentleman, mens in Caroli who was Counfellour to 8.
King Gharles thy learned Gentleman, who was Counfelour to King Charles, and ferued him insteaction; given him the section of the country and the country and the country and therenotable restimony thereof, and therefore I think it not amiffe, to vie his own words; in regard of his grauly and authority. He relateth finit, the critelty & tyranny of Ferdinando, King of Naples; and of his Son Alphonio, in canfing 24.

This is onely conceined in opinion.

first and se-

. Pet.3, 10.

against the winde.

Noble-men (their Subjects) to be most cruelly murdered in Prison: then, difcourfing of their vices and wickednes, he afterward speaketh of Gods indgements vpon them, proceeding in this manner.

man were richer then the reft ; hee forced him to lend him great fummes of Money. He tooke from his Nobility their races of horses, or else made them keepe them for him, whereby he had many thousands of Horses, Mares, and Coltes. Both the Father and the Son neuer had reuerence or respect to the holy Church; but fold By shopprickes, as for example, that of Taranto, which Ferdinande the Father fold for 12000.

Ducates, to a Icw for his Son, who (he faid) was a Christian. He gaue Abbaies to Faulconers, with charge, to keepe him a certaine number of Haukes at their expences. Alphonfo the Sonne neas any shew to keepe it. He neuer made conscience of any committed sinue, nor euer communicated : and, to conclude, it is not possible to doe worfe,

Thus faith this Authour, of the liues and manners of these two Kinges, and then they both did.

The Indgecruell, more wicked, more vicious, nor tip de Comines, of the Conquest of Na-ples, for the finnes of the Kings thereof

The tyranny. cruelt e, and vicious life of the Kings of Bifhoppricks and Abbaies

then hee further addeth, concerning Phillip de Co-Gods Iudgements vpon them. It may (faith he) seeme to the Readers, that I haue spoken this on some particular passion, or hatred towardes them. But (in good faith) I haue not faid it to any other end, then to continue the course No man (faith hee) was euer more of my History, and that it may appeare, that this voyage to King Charles to Nagreater Glutton, then Alphonfo, ples, proceeded onely of the will of Although his Father Ferdinande was mighty GOD, who ordained, that fo the Comiffamore daungerous then he: for, in mayoung a King, destitute of Councell, ry of God to chassise the king men faire weather (as we tearme Mony, and all fufficient meanes for fuch | kingsof Naples it) and good cheare; he commonly bean enterprise : should be his Comissary trayed them. As he dealt by Count Ia-(as it were) to chastice these Kinges, ques; whom he murthered villainously, who were wife, potent, and rich, and though hee were Ambassadour with had many wife Counfellours and grane him for Frances Sforza, Duke of Milpersonages about them; yea, many sublaine, and so he dealt likewise with maiects, friends, and allies, abroad in Itany other, neuer vling mercy to any,no, ly, whom it imported to conferue and not so much as to his owne Kins-man. defend that Kingdome. And yet neuer-Besides, he neuer had any pitty or comtheleffe, though they fore-faw the passion on his poore people, for hee ftorm long before : they could not find made a very merchandize of his Kingmeanes to anoid it, nor make refistance dome, infomuch; that hee forced his any where. For, excepting onely the his facility Subjects to feede and fat his Hogges, Caftle of Naples, there was not any the Conquest and pay for them if they chanced to die. place, Town, or Fort, that flayed King of Naples. He bought vp all the Oyle and Graine Charles at one whole day . Infomuch, in the Countrey, before it was ripe, that Pope Alexander faid very wel; That and fold it afterward extreamely deare, the French-men came with Chalke in their compelling them to take it at his price, bands like Harbingers to make and take up and, while he fold, no man elfe might their lodgings wher they pleased : For they fell any. If any Noble-man or Gentle-

their Armour, in all the Voyage. Therefore I conclude, according to the opinion of very many good and religious men, and other forts of people (& the voyce of the people is the voice of God) that GOD did punnish these Naples. Kings visibly, and in such euident mantooke many Women by force. They 40 ner; that it might ferue for an example and admonition to all Kinges, to line well, according to the commandement of God. For these Kinges whereof I haue spoken, lost their Honours and Realme, great riches, and mooueables of al forts; yea, and their owne persons in the ende, three of them in the space of one yeare, or little more. And, as I haue understood of some (that were veuer kept any Lent, nor made fo much | 50 ry neere them) they found (in pulling downe an olde Chappell) a Booke, whereof the Title was ; The Truth, with her secret counsell; in which Booke, of the Conwas contained all that had happened after vnto them : And when they three (onely) had read it, they burnt it.

had not occasion, so much as to put on

The enident

King Ferdinan do of Naples. before King Charles entred into Italy. And Alphon to his Sonne (who then The idle brag ging of King

Guiteiard 1btd

The spirit of King Ferdi-nand apeared after his deth

The Kings of Naples depri-ued of their Kingdonie.

Guic, ibid. The torments of a guiltie Confeience.

Of the Conquest of Naples. Chap.21.

Thus much I thought good to fet down in the words of this wife and grave Authour, to the end, that not only the bad lines of these Kinges, but also his indgement may appeare concerning Gods Iuflice showed upon them and their whole Kingdome for the fame. And this may alfo bee confirmed by other perticulers. which Guiceiardine recounteth of them, and of the successe of that warre, signifying, that Ferdinando the Father being verie wife, and understanding of that intention of King Charles, to come and inuade his Kingdome; he feared so greatlie the fuccesse (in respect of his owne bad life and his fonnes) that hee laboured by all meanes possible, by Ambassadours and Friends to diverthim from his purpose, offering to pay him yearely Tribute, of 10000. Ducates, and to holde his King- 20 dom of him, by fealty and homage. And when hee faw that nothing woulde preuaile, hee fell ficke with forrow, and died fucceeded him in the Kingdome)though he bragd long before that he woulde go so farre as to the Mountaines, to meete King Charles if he came forwards (which he faid, he would neuer beleeve he durft | 3 do) yet afterward, when the French were in Italy, and came so farre as Rome, hee tooke flich a fright, that he cried out every night, he heard the French-men comming, and that the verie trees and flones cried France. And, as Guicciardine affirmeth (who was not a man either eafily to beleeue, or rashly to Write Fables) it was credibly and constantly reported, that the spirit of Ferdinand his father, ap- 40 peared to one that had beene his Physition, and bad him tell his fonne Alphonio from him, that he thould not bee able to refift the Frenchmen. For God hadde ordained, that his progeny should (after many great afflictions) bee deprined of their Kingdome, for the multitude and great enormity of their finnes. And efpecially, for that which he had done(by the perswasion of Alphonso) himselfe, in the 50 Church of S. Leander, in Chaia necte to Noples, whereof he told not the perticulers.

Furthermore, the same Authour signifieth, that A phonfo was exagitated with fuspitions and feares, whiles he was waking, and in his fleepe, with the reprefentation of the Noblemen, whom hee had caused to be secretly murdered in prisons (as I have declared before) and that being in this miferable perplexitie, he refigned his Crowne vnto his sonne (that was called Ferdinando, after his grand fathers name) and ranne away into sieily in fuch haft, that his Mother in law (with whom. only he communicated his intention)beto ling defrons to flie with him, coulde not perswade him to stay for her so much as three dayes, which the earnestly defired, to the end, the might have that comfort at least, to be Queen of Nap'es a ful year. But he told her, that if the would not go presently with him, he would leane her: protesting(as Phillip de Commes testifieth) mines in Carolo that if any fought to stay him by force, 8. hee would call himselfe, or t at the Windowes. Asking hir further, if the heard on the ling Brangely not enery one crie France, France. Thus tormented being tormented with the horrour of his with the horowne Conscience, and the terrour of conscience, Gods Indgements alreadie falue vppon fled into skily him : he fled into Sicily, taking with him divers fortes of delicate Wines, (which he had alwayes loued ouer-well) and form Garden feeds to fowe, and a few Iewels, and a little mony, without taking any order in the Worlde, for his goodes and Moneables, which he left in great quantitie and aboundance, in the Castle of

But being arrived in Sicily, and touched with Gods grace, he fell into the ag- King Alphosis count of his bad life past, and of Gods iu- very tepenflice executed vpon him, he becam verie tant. penitent, gaue great almes, and entered into Religion, in which offate, hee dyed foone after of the stone, with the extreamest torments that could be immagined, as fome of the Religious, with whom he lined, tolde after to Phill p'de Comines as himfelfe writeth. And to conclude the bid Cap. 19: Tragicall Hiftory of the Kings his forme Ferdinanday to whome hee refigned his Crowneili uing affembled al his forces, durst make no resistance any where your the French but fieldelbefore them from place to place, vitill artength, almost all his fubicates forfooke him, and reballed against him; whereupon; he fled also into Sicily, and within awhile dyed there. Loe heare the miferable calamity which (for the finnes of thefe Kings) fell not only vpon them, but also vpon their whole Kingdome, ferning for many yearesaf-

K. Ferdinand forfaken of his fubicets, fled into Sici y ana ter, for a prey and spoile to forrain Nations, vntill at length it injoyed the repose, which now it hath vinder the K. of

CHAP. XXII.

Of a Courtier; And what manner of man he ought to be.

Popular opinion concer-ning a Cour

He reason inducing mee to write of a Courtier, is to write of a Courtier, take away a falle perswasi-on, imprinted in common on, imprinted in common and popular Indgement, in thinking; that a Courtier is none other, the an afronter of Merchants, a Diffembler, a Flatterer, Incivil; a Lyer, a ruffian, a Swaggerer, a troublefome fellow: In briefe, a man made vp of all Vices, because that in the Kings times, the Sonnes to late King Henry the second, raigning in young yeares; many then were fuch, which being well observed by that worthie and great man, the Lord de Pybrack, inhis Poesie of Quatraines , hee sung 30 thus:

Le Sieur de Pv brac in fon Quatrains.

The Authors

Proposition,

Go not to Reuelles, if thou loue no dancing, Nor venter on the Sea, if thou feare danger Go nor to Bankets if thou canft not eate, Nor to the Court if thou speake what thou thinkest.

Now at this present, living in such a time, when wee have a King of a confistant age, of a ripe ynderstanding, and Princes and Princesses, that will have none in their Courts, but people of vertue; I purpose to propound, what manmer of man a Courtier ought to bee, and his cads. To qualify this errour of the people, wherein they have beene led ful manie yeares. Moreouer fuch as would or else pretend themselues to be. Courtiers, may heerein marke and learne, by what meanes and with what great faciliity, they shall attaine thereto.

First of all, he that defireth to followe the Courts of Emperors, Kings, Queens, A Courtier Dukes Dutcheffes, Marqueffes , and ought to be Noble by rac Earles, or other illustrious persons, ought to be a Gentleman by birth, and of a noble house of Antiquity: because it is lesse repreachfull for a Ycoman, to fail in the exercise of Vertuous actions, then for him that is Noble borne; who erring from those steppes which his predecelfors walkt in, foyleth the name & honor of his house and race. Before hee go to Of what yea-Court, he must be past the age of Adolescencie, which is about twentie or fine and twenty yeares of his age: for beeing much older, he will not finde it to his liking. Hee must bee well featured and formed, both of his bodye and countenance, least he be misprized and scorned. He must bee of an indifferent stature, to Of what stawit : neither extreamly high nor low: for men of fuch fort, are lookt on like things of monftrous shape. Hefide, men of fo great stature, ouer and aboue their common addiction, to dull vnderstanding are verie vnapt to all exercises of agility, matters verie commendable in a Cour-

He must be expert in all kind of arms, mes. to helpe himselfe, as neede shall require, both at all times, and in all places. He A goodhorfe must be a good Horseman, and actiue in managing him; that he may bee knowne (among others) to be hardie and valiant. He must be loyall and faithfull vnto him whom he ferueth, and addicted to acord quarrels and contentions, his own honor fafely kept, and his for whom hee maketh the agreement. Besides, as hee ought to be skilfull in Wrastling Leaping, dancing, and playing on fome or manie Infruments of Musicke, so should he likewife readily fing any Poet or Historian. He must be exquisite in speaking divers ker of manie Languages: if he be French, English, or by visiting what elfe, he ought to speake Latine, Ita- Countries. lian, Spanish, yea the Germaine tongue tongue also, if it be possible. And for his better attaining thereto, before hee pra-Ctife any of them, he must have visited the Countries where the Languages are naturally spoken. For, to learne them by Bookes, he shall never pronounce them truly. I meane the like of other Nations, in regard that the Frenchmen ? Italians, Spaniards, and Germaines, do ordina. rily converse together.

He must not vie any fortish presumption, nor bee a reporter of weariforne his goodpath Offenfine speeches, in steade of such as may better please . Hee must not bee Opinitiue, or Contentious, as some doe feeme to have no other delight, then in

Of what form

No vanter or

Iells comended for wit &

The Historie

of a Malon of Habit oftentimes makes

A lovall Ser

Actine in ex-A good Mus

A ready fpea

No learning of Language

> The Spanish pieces of fixe pence Value.

> > ling fearfe ommenda

Of a Courtier.

No troblesom being crosse and troublesome, like Flies

Chap. 22.

Bad and vndecent quali-

Fame purfu-

or Waspes, and make it their profession, to gainfay euery man despightfully, with-out any respect at all. He must bee no prater, Vaine-glorious Boaffer, Lyer, Flatterer, or Knaue; but moderate and peaceable, vfing enerinore (efpecially in publicke) reuerence and refrect towards his Lorde, which is most commendable in a fernant. Fame and renowne do follow all good parts, if they appeare in action, both in due time and place, and he canot faile in thefe things, but to his own great dishonor. He must make no vants of himselfe, except he be truly valiant, & haue acted fome great enterprizes, or done fome memorable Stratagems, Neither must be vie any lests, that may offend his Prince, or others : except hee order his icfts, and fo fattor them, as the Prince may speake their woorth for wit and discretion, and not reproue them with want of Judgement; but, insted of displeasure, thinke them to deserve both respect and

To this purpose, wee may alledge the Historie of a Marshal of France tearmed of S. Andrew, who knowing that King Henry, fecond of that name, could hardly finde an Architect to his liking, to forme him a model for two bodies of lodgings, which he purposed to build at Fontainebleau, brought him a man of Lymoline, a Mason by his trade, yet ignorant . But hauing fitted him with fufficient habite. he made the King beleeue, that hee was a great Architect, verie deepely experienced in that Art, & that it was the fame man, who had projected al the buildings which Charles the fift, Emperor and king of spaine, had caused to bee made. And indeed, this poore man had bin in Spaine, in his yonger years, to gaine fome knowledge by Trauaile, for his best practife could not maintain him in his own countrey. And having gotten in Spaine (in the compasse of fixe or seatten yeares) some fiftie*Reals of filuer; thinking himfelfe to be the richest man in his Countrey, hee returned home againe. Hauing spent a good part of his Money, he had married another Wife; for all Lymofines, or pcople of those parts, vling Mechanical professions, when (for lucres sake) they trauaile into Spaine: they marrie there (for the most part) to weomen that doo but lend themselues (as it were) for that time, and comming into their owne Country there they are at libertie againe to take other Wines.

This poore Mason came to dwell at Orleance, having spent well-neere all his Reals, and eaten up his Wiles Dowrie befide, which might amount to twente pounds the heard there of fom other Mafons, that earned daily featien or eight *Sols or Sous, and in his Countrey, they had no more but two Sals, or fix *Blanks. The Lorde Marthall meeting with this Mafon by chance, as hee walked one day abroad in the Fieldes, to paffe awaie the Halica sal time pleafantly : he fell into Conference with him, and found that he had a verie proude and ouer-weening prefumption of his owne fufficiency. So much the rather, because hee was a workeman at the building of the new Concent of Nostre Dame ae Monferrat. Wherein indeed he Prefumption holpe to Supply the Masons with Mor- never warmed ter, which made him of opinion, that he felly. was the verie best Architect of his time : Albeit hee vnderstood little or nothing, scarsly knowing howe to order or lay a

Stone in a wall in his right place. The King crediting the Lord Marshals wordes, spake a long time together in good French to the Mason, and yet vn-the Mason, and yet vn-the Mason, the Mason, the Mason derstood nothing backe again from him: for he stoode with his Hat on without vfing any renerence to the King, or respe-Ching him any more, then if he had beene his daily companion. Sometime, hee called his maiefly Mounfieur, or my Lord the King, fpeaking one while Limofine, then again thrusting forth a word or two of spanelb: the King perceiving nothing all this while, but continued his speeches earnestly to the Mason, that hee might at full vnderstand his mind. At length, the King beholding that all the standers by smiled, and aboue all, the Lord Marthall, defired to knowe the reason of their Laughter; which beeing disclosed to him, himselse fall into a verie mirthfull humour, and laughed heartily, because he had no better noted the Language, the Crifpe countenance and ignorance of the poore Mason. Nor did the King any way take the ieft offenfinely; but contrarywife, was well pleafed, & much commended the Lorde Marshall for it: The like maner of iesting, innented by a quicke and apprehenfine spirite, An aduertifewith observation of time and place; may Courser.

*The French thi ling, ten whereof doe make one rioufly speak-bee

of the Prince

Of Speeches

Of Requests.

Chamber.

Of mockes, girds, & tants vieno bitter or vnfanoury mocks, girds, or tants, neither towards poore or Rich, and especially not to women, who (in regard of their imbecility) are to be respected. He must forbeare entrance into the Princes Chamber, except he be called, or commaunded thither. If the Prince haue retired himselfe, to recreate his spirit, beware of vsing any speeches to him, that may fauour of irkeformes, but rather of Delectation. Let him not request any thing for himself, that former-

Of Princes fauours.

Of vndecent feruices, if they be vrged

Of reprehen-

A Courtiers ainse and end

Of Garments

Election of

Companie

keeping, and behauiour.

ous friend, and not two (for two will carrie themselus better together then three) conformable to himselfe in life and manners. Neuerthelesse, hee must loue, ho-

be permitted in a Courtier, not offending his Prince, but vsed with such discretion, as may rather procure recompence, then any difgrace.

In these pleasant behauiours, he must lyhath beene mooued by another, and may be to his aduatage, euermore fhunning importunity in fuch proceedinges. Let him attend the fauors of his Prince, and not demand them; anoiding folitude least either he be thought vain glorious, or weake spirited.

By foule and vnfitting actions, neuer feeke to compasse fauour, as seruing in murderous or Bawdy employments; but if such occasions be offered, let a diffembled deafenesse excuse it, or some other prinate matter, cause present retirement, which may returne answere, without any other reply. For a Courtier that falles into fuch imployments for his Prince, vpon ouer-much pressing, may well declare the case to be dishonest: and if hee still persist, let wisedome give direction to withdraw from his Court. For, reprehensions may not bee given to Princes publickely, but private and apart, albeit he exceed his Prince in yeares . For, a Courtiers aime only should be, to teach his Prince A Courtiers Garmentes ought to be of blacke colour, or of such darke decencie, as may rather expresse grauity, then giddineffe or glory. Except it be in Armes, Maskes, or Triumphes, where gay and goodly colours are more fitting, and Imbroideries, Iewelles, and Magnificent pompe. Let him entertaine one only Vertu- 50 nor, and respect all other friends, according to their worth and merit. He must also endeuour daily, to confort himselfe with men of esteeme, Noble by Nature and birth, and fuch as are truely knowne to be men of Honor and Honofty, rather then Villaines, or prople of no credite. His care likewise must be, to be beloued and honoured of them, which he cannot faile of, if he be courteous, humaine, liberall, affable, and kind in company, ready to pleafure any, diligent in feruice, & carefull of his friends honor, eyther abfent or prefent; supporting their naturall and tollerable defects, without breach of Nottoo much amity betweene them, for final matters, correcting fuch errors in himself, as shall pending o be louingly thewne him, without effections ming himselfe about others, or affecting the highest and most honourable places. And he must not imitate some humours, that seeme to despise the world, & strine Austere life (by a kinde of troublesome austeritie) to prescribe Lawes or directions to others: fo that, besides their mollestuous and quarrelling condition, even for the leaft Trifles in the world; they will reprehend where they should not, and seeke all oc-casions to complaine of their verie best Friends, which is an odious and bad behauiour.

If it happen that he bee called or chal- Of the Duelli lenged to the Duello or fingle fight (as of- or fingle com tentimes it fals out in the courts of Print bate. ces) and by indifcretion or rashnesse, he must not ouer-violently and vnaduifedly present himselfe thereto, but with a cool and temperate carriage, even as compelled or enforced to his aunswere. And if the businesse can fall out no otherwise, but he must needs proceede to the acte; for fafety of his honor, he may boldly vn

40 dergo it. It is also absurde and ynfightlie in a Ofsports and Courtier, to carry himselfe extreamelie Passines. or enragedly in any sport or recreation: for then hee resembleth rather a furious Madman, then one of civill and fetled condition. His conversation must be Violence in fober, and (aboue all things) hee must auoid drunkennesse, and beware of those trickes, which are too ordinarily vsed in Courtes, in strining who shall foonest Of Drunken make a man drunke, onely to shame and nesse. difgrace him. In being a man of fuch behaujour, cuery one will bee fure to note and fcome him; and the Prince himselfe will ftande doubtfull of his honeftye: or, how he should trust him with any case of Consequence, for Drunkardes are vnapt perforts for State affaires. Playing with the Prince.

Maintenance

If he bee inuited by his Prince to anie play or pastime; he may safely yeild therto, not in hope to make gaine of himsbut only to yeild him contentment. And let him be careful, that he be not too opinitiue in any accident against him: but giue way to him in all, and by al meanes, in regard of fo great inconveniences that thereby do daily happen. Likewise, let him not immitate some,

who will spare no time (either daie or night) from playing, but thereby do lofe many faire occasions, of performing fom good Offices vnto their Prince, whence might be deriued great merit and fauors.

Some haue beene noted to assiduate and earnest, that they would play away lands, houses, Garments, yea, their verie Hor-row (by importunitie of their Friendes) without any re-payment, whereuppon, haue enfued Contempts, Quarrels, and Let him not speak of any thing which fes and Armours: and afterwards, bor- 20

Too much de light in play or sport.

Chap.22.

he vnderstandeth not, wherein hee shall expresse more Wisedome to bee silent: How to couer his ignorance and imperfe-tion of bodie. for it is an honest shaddow and cloake to his ignorance. Likewife, if he have anie imperfection in some part of his body, let him hide and concease it by all possible

Bloud.

meanes. As did Ferrand King of Naples, who would neuer plucke off his Gloues, because his hands were not white. Inline Ferrand King Cafar also did daily weare a Chaplet of

In his talke and discoursing, hee must report no Myracles, that is to fay, things that are not likely, nor neuer were. They that make profession of relating such noueltics, are enermore held for Lyers; and Courtier.

Bayes, because he was bald,

He must keepe his credite with Merchants and others, not following the dealing of many, who are beholding to fuch as lend them: yet must be daily importuned to make repayment, even vnto fuch enforcement, as their goodes and landes must be seazed on, yea, sometimes their bodies confined to prison. These beha-tiours, do rather rellish of a man veterly lost and forfaken, then of a Vertuous euery man that is a lyar, will cary the like credit of beleefe, when he speaketh truth. Laughter likewife, except it light vppon, good ground, is no vvay commendable: For any man, that is subject vnto long laughter, and without some sounde subiect, deliners no better vuderstanding of himselfe, then of a meere Foole.

Now, because no Court appeareth to be compleat, except it be accompanied with Ladies; let vs admit the case, that our instant described Courtier, bee in fuch a Court fo worthily furnished; and and loue. where he may bee become an amorous feruant to some beauty, and to an honest end for (otherwise) he will find his own perill. He must not immediatelie make knowne his passions by parlannce, with furious gestures and obstinations, as many vnaduised Courtiers have done: But the best bewraver of his affections, are amorous continence, a figh, respect, fear, & humble meekeneffe, which availe more then a thousand fond words can do; and hee may fo order his carriage, that his eyes may ferue as his best messengers, & beare the true Embassie of his heart, to his deareft efteemed.

Afterward, by equall degrees, he may attaine to speak with his Goddesse, when a touch, or kiffe of the hand, and fuch like honest fauours, may civilly be derived from any Ladie of respect, honourablie affected . Wherefore, hee that hath not lost the restraint of reason, will Gouerne himselfe wilely, observe fit times and place; and (when neede requireth) will containe due regard verie diligently, although it bee in neuer fo fweete a pa-

Ature, because publick and apparant loue, is a matter of great difficulty to order. The ends then of a perfect Courtier, The end and fuch an one as I cannot heere fufficiently describe; is (in mine Opinion) to win by feet Courtier is to make his the meanes of those qualities which I Prince Verhaue fer downe to him, the fauour and tuous. affection of his Prince in such fort: that his fernice may bee alwaies commendable, and to tell him the truth in all things that are convenient for him; to wit, without feare or danger of displeasing him. & fo to order himfelfe, that when he knowes his mind enclined to matters inconuenient for him, to bee so hardie as to gainfay them. Scruing him in gentle maner, and gaining fauour by the good parts in him, to the end that he may preuent all bad intentions in him, and conduct him the pathes of Vertue. And fo, our Courtier having nothing but good! cf a complean neffe in him, accompanied with promp titude of spirit, chearefulnes, providence,

Behauiour in cafe of Ladies

The best Ornaments in an

A Vertuous

keth a good

wifedome, knowledge, in learning, and all other vertuous qualities: hee shall (in all occasious) woorthily make apparaunt to his Prince, what profite and honour commeth to him and his, by meanes of Iustice, Liberality, Magnanimity, Affability, Familiarity, and all other Vertucs which are conuenable for a good prince. And contrariwife, what infamy and loffe proceedeth from those Vices, which are fworne enemies to these Vertues . And for a full conclusion, 'as manie times it happenerh, that a Vertuous Courtier maketh the Prince good; fo a vicious Courtier maketh his Prince wicked and detestable. Of this mind were all such, as haue medled in Writing of a Courtier; and among others, Balthazar the Ca-Rillanneis.

CHAP. XXIII.

How a man may give praife and commendation to himfelfe, without impeache or preindice to others.

The faying of Ciccroin lib.3. de Orat.

Icero, in the third Booke of his Oratour faieth; That no man can honestly commende himselfe, but others will conceiue enuie thereat, and re-ing, albeit it hath beene allowed by many; yet it is not generally receyued and warranted. For, a man may lawfullie commend himselfe, without attraction of enuie vpon him: especially, if hee be a worthy Soldier, or a man of fuch merit, as can speake of generous actions, or valiant employments, if they beene perforbyhim, and their Carracter apparant. Iulius Cefar may ferue for an example , who hath spoken great matters of himfelfe, and yet (for al that) no way discommendable therein. His Commentaries which discourse of nothing, but his braue and generous exploits in the Gaulifb Warres, were seene and read of all men in his time, yet no way blamed or despited, so farre as we know; but on the contrarie, were highly praifed, both in regard of his eloquence, as also his singular expeditions.

But, if he had attributed to himselfe. or made vaunt of more then was performed by him: hee could not have stoode cleare from mallice, yea, in great men, who durft and would haue boldly tolde him, that hee lyed And all fuch perfons as doe make vaunt of finall matters, or of any thing done by the meanes and helpe of others, attributing fuch actions foly to themselues : they cannot doe it. but with great shame and infamy.

In men of good and worthy respecte,

Of personner

it hath beene, and is permitted (cuen for permitted to the benefit of others) to speake descrued-ommended by of themselves, and to their owne ad-themselves, uantage. As, if in procuring to bee credited, we render a reason of an honest integritie, by some effects of our owne past before; to the end, that having the meanes to continue our Vertuous actions, for the profit of manie : we may imbrace their praise, in despight of their ownespleene (as we tearme it) and conftraine them to receive both profite and pleasure from vs, euen such as would else thun all like occasions.

This was it, which made Themisto- the Athenia cles vie these wordes in the Counsell of the Athenians, even when be fawe them fully glutted with his good deedes. O poore people (quoth hee) why doe you suffer your felus to receive so manie benefits from one and the same per son? At another time hee vied these Words to them. In time of Raine and Tempestes, you make your recourse to me, as under the spreading armes of a Tree. And when faire vveather comes againe, you teare downe each branch as you pase by. Homer maketh Nestor to speake his owne Valiant deedes, to encourage Pa-Homer of No. trotlus, and nine other Knightes, in at- flor. tempting the Combate (bodie to bodie) against Hetter. In like maner, the words of exhortation, action of the hande, and of exhortation, action of the hards, The verue example with the Spurre of amulation; of words well delivered delivered. is lively, and pierceth meruailously; yea, it bringeth (with courage and affection) hope to attaine vnto the heighth of anic thing, which otherwife woulde appeare impossible, A man mayallo commend himselfe gratitude.

before an ingratefull person, to shewe

him his fault, in forgetting former benefits received. A ftraunger, to gaine the good opinion of Inhabitants, amongest whom he is newly arrived may attribute fome honourable Title vnto his present condition, and speake well of himselfe. As it is to bee noted in Virgil, that Aneas did, after the Destruction of Troy his natiue Countrey, wandering by Sea and Lande, to feeke a newed welling, vfing these Wordes (when Enquire was made of him) Sum pine Eneas, that is to fay, I am Eneas the Troyan, full of Pictic and Religion, it ewing the Goddes his aged feeble Father, and his verie young fonne, whom (with great perrill) he had faued from the ruine and destruction of his Countrey; and this was not vnfitting

I have many times beene amazed at Cicero appro-und to be forgetful of him-

Chap. 23.

A straunger

the reason for

Cicero, who Writes (as I have fayde in the beginning of this Chapter) that a man in praising himselfe, dooth but attract Malice and Enuie on his own heads And yet notwithstanding, there is an Epittle of his owne, which (in verie vehement affection) he wrote to an Historiographer; wherein hee entreats him, not to bee vomindfull of inferting in his Hiflories of memorable actions, what hee 30 hadde written perticulerlie of himfelfe. In mine opinion, there was neither man-ners nor Modesty, but excesse beyond al reason. There is nothing more vaine, or fur-ther off from equity, then for men to purfue the Quest of their owne praise & re-

Men fhoulde not couet their owne thrifippus and

The vanity of

nowne. Chrisippus and Diogenes vvere the first Authors, and firmest of al other. in the contempt of glory; for they faide, 40 That among al defires, there is none more daungerous or with greater care to be aunided, then that which commeth to vs from the approbation of others. And all the glorie of the world, is of no fuch merrit, as that a man of on terflanding , (bould fo much as fretch foorth his finger, onely to gaine it. There are manie men in thele dayes, that will never adventure in the portilles of Warre, or where their duty most com- 50 mandeth them; if they thought that they frould not be seene, or it should not bee publickely reported, that they have perfourmed some perriculer deed of praise, beyonde the honour they presended to enion, only because they are couetous of glory and reputation.

(where is the true feate of Vertue) hould ferne vs to no other end, but to vie them as a rule and order, without any endeuor to attain the knowledge of them in other persons: Vertue then thould bee a verte vaine and friuolous thing, if thee deriued her commendation from Glorie. For what is more cafuall and accidentall then reputation ? To cause that our Actions Thould be feene and knowne, belongeth Not to be no to the Handle-worke of Fortune Of ted, is to do tentimes, the reputation of an action wel | well continu three or foure dayes ? Other whiles, fo long as hee and his lineth; and yet foone after, no more memorie remaineth of

Of Praise or Commendation performed, continuent (it may bee) but

Some there are, that will rashlie and willingly fall into daunger, to purchase Fallehonour falle Honor; and dving fo, he is neuer after fo much as talkt of : whereby both he and his renowne dooth perith together. It hath been meere hazard, that is reported of some Captaines ; Crecians , Romaines, Persons, French, Germaines, and others; as also of an hulldered thousand Fortunentuch men, that are dead, in execution of worthy enterprizes, or hindering of them, commendati yet none spoken of, because all depended on. on Fortune. Wee reade , that Cafar was neuer wounded; yet was he prefent in more then fiftie battailes, and at infinite Citties furprizing. Whereas others. voon much leffe occasions, have beene maimed and flaine : and what can be faid of Cafar heerein, but that it was his good Fortune? It hath beene, and yet is an ordinary Vice, that we are more defirous of great | The common then of good Reputation : And it appeareth to be sufficient, that our names run thorowe other mens mouthes, as recevning there both life and lafting, and must Beetherekept, out of our owne pofferfron. But Wise men do propose vinto themselves a more just and certain end, in any Important enterprizes, to wit; actions of Vertues, which are fo Noble of themselus; is there needs no other praise or recompence to be fought for, but ente endeauor of their owne Worth & value; and Namely, vertions man not to fecke for their effective, in the val nitie of humaine judgements. And yet notwithstanding, this falle opinion fer-

The duty she

Ηh

An exceptió against the laying of Circ-

Of Cafars Co

353

ueth to containe men in their denoire, that it may bee executed with a certaine caution and modesty. In this manner, Women of what degree focuer, may be aduertised, when they are sought after by lascinious men; not to make refusall, by faying, they holde their Honour in account: but rather to tell them, that it is their dutie to gouerne themselues chaft-

Of Lyfander the famous Lacedemonia Soldier.

Lyfander, the great Lacedemonian captaine, answered a certaine odde Fellow, who told him; That he would commend him enerie where, and counter-checke all his Dispraisers. I have two Oxen (quoth he) in the fielde that cannot speake, and yet nevertheleffe, I know that which is good for labour, from the other that is not. Heereby he gaue to vnderstand, that vertue stood in no neede of mens Commendations, confidering thee carrieth with her felfe good renowne and honor: but fuch men as do not performe any Vertuous acte, they (indeed) haue need of popular prai-

Antifthenes the Athenian, made a mockerie of fuch, as by fumptuous buildings, Statues, Trophies, and composition of Books, promised vnto themselues an immortall reputation: for he taught them, 30 that the true and only means of compaffing praise, was to line justly and Religioully. It was also one day told him, that certaine scelerous and bad persons commended him: whereto he replyed If Juch men praise me, I feare that I have commitsed some foule offence : perswading himfelfe, that fuch kind of people can neuer giue any good reputation. Erethrion the Sophister, hearing that he was ordinarily commended by Alexi-nus, answered; That is a great meruail, for

I do nothing but detract and speake enill of him in all places where I come . Declaring by this answere, that he would not have his renowne to be wronged and baffeld

by fuch an one as was worthy of nothing but reprehension . And to speake the truth, this Alexinus was a man of no reckoning, or deserved to have anie good speeches vsed of him. For, vpon a time, as hee was verie vehemently depraying

Stelpo the Megarian, reputed in those times for a great Phylosopher, one suddenly told him, that it was not long fince that Seilpe had spoken verie well of him, and with great respect, giving him extra-

Of Erethrion theSophister

The praises of bad & wic-ked persons, are worth no

ordinarie Commendations: By Impiter (answered Alexinus) I fay at this prefent, that Stilpe is a very braue & excellent man: Thus yee may discerne, what vanity and inconstancy was (in an instant) apparantly discouered in Alexinus.

The Reader may gather by this Dif-courfe; that hee should neuer give anic Conclusion praise of himselfe, except hee haue done on this Argu-Tomething that commendeth it felfe, and may thereby incite others to Vertue, although thorough want of Modestie, he shall otherwise bee blameable. In like manner, not to deferre or keepe himfelfe from dooing well and Vertuously, when any occasion shall aptly offer it selfe, and where his owne perticuler dutie both bindeth and commandeth him, albeit no Witnesses, Beholders, or Scriueners stand by, to Register or set downe his actions in Writing. So banishing from ys all fuch vanity, wee shall well content our felues with that recompence, which Vertue draweth after her continually; because it is immortall, and subject vnto no perrithing, as that Renowne is, which dependeth wholy on mens judge-

CHAP. XXIIII.

By what varietie of meanes , Frances Sforza, and Nicholas Pichiniue wonne the renowne, of being the most skilful men in the Art Military, that lived in their dayes.

T appeareth, according to Naturall Reasonsthat he who hath attained to any degree, in anie Art or Facultie whatseuri it bee, ought whollie to falls thereto, following accomodate himfelfe thereto, following his beginning, thereby to purchase his Fame and Reputation. Neuerthelesse, we do daily fee, that (by divers meanes) men reach to one & the fame end, wherof we have infinite examples: Among which, it likes me to nominate Fraunces Sforza, who afterward was Duke of Mil-

Chap.24.

Of Sforza and Pichinine.

when they laine, and Nicholas Pichinine the Italian, men verie singuler and expert in Armes: who were in the time of King Alphon (us. of Arragen and Naples, and of Lewes Maria, Duke of Millaine. Thefe two Cabtaines were very contrarie and entious against each other, because they severally pretended, to beare chiefe honour in Armes aboue his competitor. In which respect, they both declared such courage I o and dexterity of spirit; as for a long while it was vehemently doubted, whether of them merited most to be preferred. This equall contention fo long continued, till after expence of many yeares, and fundry well fought battailes on both fides; Pichinine was Conquered: by meanes whereof, Sforza having the right apparantly on his part, got the glorie, was made Duke of Millaine, and was the fole 20 Maister, or (at least) the more fortunate

These two Contenders, attained (by diners meanes) to great effecime and reputation. Nicholas Pichinine, was fo litle of bodie, as for that cause only he was called Pichinine. But albeit he was offo litle stature, he was contrarie thereto, in greatnesse of heart, and vndantable reso-and them he vitted but badly too : wet he comprehended in them manygreat matters. With his Soldiers, he was of a chear full and recreatine spirit; and bountiful to his friends; but tharpe and furious to his enemies. In warre, he was enermore defirous to come to the point, and alwayes

(as occasion gane way) hee would gine present battaile, wherein he wanted nei-

in exposing himselfe to perils : euermore hating eafe, and offuch a prompt dispo-polition, as many times he would take his enemies vnprouided. Hee much delighted in Watch-Towers, Beacons, and Ambuscadoes, affecting more to vie the feruice of Horsse, rather then Foote, in warre; coueting still to have his followers Valiant, sharpe of Nature, & dreadfull. This Captaine was of fo great fpirit, that he could no way be daunted, or declare any figne of feare, albeit his enemies were never fo many in number. He had a finguler grace and dexteritie in caufing his men to march faire, and guiding them fafely : and to conclude, hee won so many excellent Victories in dither wit or counfell, and was provident |

lution. He was a man of few Wordes, 30

The reason of Pichinine

long conten-tionconclu-ded at laft.

His marria!! courage and dipolition.

His maner of

His fortune & fucceffion uers parts of Italy, that he was renowned for a finguler good Captaine.

Now, as concerning his Competitor, Frances Sforza, his qualities and dispositions were quite contrary to those of Pichinine. He was bigge of body, well pro-portioned, and strongly limbd, of gentle countenance, a quicke ftirring eye, baldheaded, a good prefence, copious in difcourse, and well ordered, a linely spirite, and well aduised, desirous to reach high enterprises, and patient in aductities, He alwayes anoided the meanes of breaking Warre, labouring more to vanquish by befiedging, or temporizing, then prefent fight. He would never gine battaile, except he were enforced thereto, or that he faw himfelfe vpon a great aduenture. He would have his men march in good Order; and by the best meanes to be valiant. and yet gracious: making more account his men. of his Infanterie, then his Compleateft Horsemen, continually preferring them to the greatest stratagems, because hee placed best trust in them. He was firme and conftant in all his enterprizes, quick and wife in beguiling his enemie, and difcouering his Fallacies in all Branadoes made vppon him . In Nouell inuentions, he would fland vpon his guard; being a man of readye counfell, and aproft forit in all occasions. By which Rules and Observations (although they were fo different from those in the other) he was effected as a woorthy Soldier, attaining (by divers meanes and deuifes) to the Dukedom of Millain, and to be one of the cheefest men in the world. Of these two men, so descruedly famous, manie Moderne Historians liane largely written : especiallie Aneas Syluins, Pope, in his Colinography, and Anthonius Sabellicus, in his Eneades, wher fuch Readers, as are defirous to bee further informed, concerning these men, inay read more amply their liues and actions; for in this place (according to our method in all observations; which barres vs from ful report, and bindes vs to breuitie) we are perfwaded, that we have fooken well and fufficiently.

CAP.

Of Francis Sforfa quite contrarie in respects to

His descrip-

His warre

His minde &

Historians written of CHAP. XXV.

That the Lyon naturally feareth the Cocke: with many other notable matters concerning the Lyon.

Nothing in this World o aflurance.

Naturall loue

or hatred among al creafight, fmel, or noife of a Cock, or an light in a mans hand.

OD hath not made any creature in this Worlde so strong and powerfull, but there abideth in him some cause of seare or terror, and fomething is ordained to offend him. In like maner, there is nothing in this world firme and affured, for one thing is destroyed by another; and the same also afterward, ruined by fome other thing: fo that we know not what may bee warranted, or which thing can bee kept from

Hence it ensueth, that oftentimes we shunne such thinges as are likely to hurt ys, and fall (some other way) into perils, which we least suspect or imagine. Moreouer, among Beaftes and other thinges 30 created, there is a kind of naturall Loue, or Hatred, by a fecret and conceald propriety; by meanes whereof, fome feeke and purfue, and others shun and anoyde each other . What Beaft is more ftrong then the Lyon, the Prince of Beafts? Not any, and therefore beares he that name, because (according to som Judgements) the worde Lyon in Greeke, fignifyeth a (King): Or, according to others (Sight) 40 & that in regard of his perfection in feeing, he is so named. But beeit howsouer, this powerfull Beast which euerie one feareth, so soon as he espieth a Cock, he fearfully gets him gone: and that by a fecret propertie in Nature, euen as the Hare shuns the Hound: and not onelie doth the fight of the Cocke cause this auoydance, but the verie finell, if he feele it far off; or hearing him Crow, it makes him maruailoufly affraid. Nor doth hee fhun this creature only, but also the noise of a Charriot or Waggon running on the way: and by no meanes can hee bee compelled to fray, if he fee a man bearing any light in his hand. Which feemeth to bee an incredible matter, that a Beaft fo furious, should stand in awe or dreade of so small a thing: and yet notwithstanding, it hath been noted by experience: Besides, that which is Written by Plubelides, that which is Written by Plu-differen. Innie tarch, in his Booke of the difference be-explinitib 8. tweene Hate and Enuie: Pliny, Saint Ambrose, and Albertus Magnus, who fayeth and maintaineth, that if the Cock Animal. be of a White Colour, hee maketh the Lyon stande much more in feare of him. Nor can there any affured Reason bee yeelded in this case, but euen (as I formerly faide) that it commeth by a secret proppertie in Nature. And yet Lucre- Lucretius the tius, the Auncient Poet, fayth; That the old Poet. Cocke and his Feathers have a certaine propertie or qualitie, which the Lyon feeing, hee receiveth great terror thereby, and is not able by anie meanes to endure it.

Some others do attribute the cause of this feare, vnto the supreame and celesti- The opinion this teare, vnto the supreame and celesti-all Influences, and not vnto the Beaftes this case, con Sight, Smell, or the matter it selfe. For, cerning the (fay they) these two Creatures are subiect vnto the Sunne, the Vertue whereof toucheth the Cocke more then the Lyon; and thence it ensueth, that the Inferiour and lesse Vertuous in this kinde(albeit the bigger and greater in (trength) feareth and obeyeth his superiour. And they hay moreouer, that in regarde the sunnes rung Cocke is of the Sunnes Nature, hee reioyceth and fingeth in the morning at the comming and rifing of the Sunne. But be it howfocuer, we know that the Lyon is more strong, and of greater spirit then all other Beafts; also, extreame in fury & crueltie, against all other of the like Nature. Neuerthelesse, wee haue infinite plain and manifest examples, of his great Mildenesse and Clemencie, whereof it shall not bee amisse to alledge some, according as I finde them crediblie recor-

Appion the Greeke writeth (according as Aul. Gellius declareth, of a matter feen Elian in lib.d. by himself, & the same is likewise affirmd nimal. by Ælianus in his Book of Beafts) that in certaine feaftes, folemnly observed in the the great Theater (where divers kinds of to wild heafts Citie of Rome, it was vied as a custome in Saluage and cruell beaftes were kept, as in the Theater of Rome. Lyons, Leopards, and others) men condemned to death were brought and put in to the end that either they might bee denourd of them, or to deferue life by va-knowledge of the Lyon.

Androdus com

meth to take

Chap.25.

The history of Androdus his Lyon.

A wonderfu

vertue in a

Lyon to a ma

The Emperor fendeth for Andredut, and vederstandknowledge of the Lyon.

liant defence of themselves, a Spectacle (indeede) verie cruell and inhumaine. It happened vpon a day, that among other offenders thus brought thither, a man named Androdus, Seruant to a Romaine Senator, was to take his Fortune, and amongst the other Beasts in the Theater. there was a Lyon of infigne power and greatnesse, as also verie cruel, which had bin brought lately out of Affrica, and the eyes of all the Beholders were fixed on this Lyon. The Beaft walking Maiestically about the place, beganne to looke aduifedly vpon Androdus; and feeming to confider, or take fome acknowledgement of him; went steppe by step toward him verie gently, albeit, in opinion of all the By-standers, to rent and teare him in peeces. But their expectation was deceined, for the Lyon bowing downe his 20 head, came curteously to androdus, who (trembling)awaited nothing else but immediat death; and walking along very louingly by him, stroked his bodie on the legges and thighes of Androdus, kilsing and licking his hands and feete, Leaping famiarly & gently on him; euen as young Whelpes, and other waiting Dogs are wont to doe, when they have not seene their Maisters in a long time.

Androdus perceiving the perticular affability of the Lyon vnto himfelfe, without any fliew of the least kind to any of the other condemned persons : cheared his difinaged Spirits, and made much of the Lyon, finoathed his head & havre with his hand, and looking adjustedly on him, came to former knowledge of him, deliuering manifest figues of iny and gladnesse, conceyned by this notice takon. Wherear the people were not a litle amazed, & stricken with great astonishment, giving forth straunge and variable speeches, according as each fancie made coniccture. By meanes whereof, the Emperor caused androdus to be fent for thence, and beeing brought instantly before him; defired to vnderstand for reafon for this private and familiar acquaintance, and where hee had formerly feene that Lyon. Whereto he answered, that having beene in Affrica, at fuch time as his Lord was Lieutenant Generall, and great Gonernour there and of that Prouince in regard of some wrongs & outrages done to him by his faide Lord, hee was enforced to become a fugitive, and having no other place of shelter or safetie, went fecretly into a great Forrest. where he tooke vp his lodging in a Caue or Den. Not long had he staid there, but this Lyon entered in yoon him, and not only abstained from doing any harm Lyon, and the but lying downe before him, shewed him by him to the one of his pawes, which was wounded Lyon. and bleeding, even as if hee would have defired helpe and remedie of him for his griefe. Androdus dreading no danger by this milde behauiour, tooke vp the Lions legge, and looking vppon the bleeding wound, found a great tharpe Thorn Ric-king in the foot, which plucking forth fo gently as possibly he could, hee steinched the blood, so that the paine appeared to be indifferently appealed. This begins done, the Lyon laying his head in the lap of Androdue, flept verie foundly; & from thence-forwardes, the Lyon walking abroad daily, would bring the best preyes he could get (by his hunting) to Androdue, who dreft his food in the Mid-dayes Sun, because hee had no other fire, and was well contented with fuch provision.

this kind of life. Wherefore vpon a day, when the Lyon was gone abroad about his wonted game; Androdus departed thence, to take such fortune as might befall him. Not farre had he trausiled from death, as others in the like cafe were vilially fentenced, fent him with the other offenders to the publicke Theater there to be torne in pieces by the wilde Beafts.

and there the Lyon tooke knowledge of the Emperour had heard this admyrable

Lyon likewife, because he had extended fuch fauor to him. Thenceforward, and a long time after, the Lyon daily walked thorow the streetes of Rome, in the company of Androdus onely, without dooing harme to any body, which was the cause, that manie Romaine Cittizens affected

Androdus greatly, and bestowed divers liberall giftes on him, tearming him the

Hha

After hee had lived thus continually Androdin lived with the Lyon, for more then the fpace with the Lion more then 3. of three yeares, he grew to bee wearie of yeares.

the Forrest, but he was met by some that Androdus is knew him to be a fugitive feruatint ! and brought to his therefore brought him home to Rame to Mailler, and him, as formerly hath bin related, VV hen History, in his owne gracious Nature &

at the peoples importunity : Androdus his Lyon, are was deliueredand fet at liberty, fo was the berty.

The first mee-

his Maister, who judging him worthie of fent to death.

4. Booke.

The Lyon wounded, comes to man for remedie.

Lyons Physition, and the Lyon the host to Androdus. Thus the Lyons misfortune, to be wounded in the foote by a Thorne: instinct of Nature taught him, to make his recourse to man for helpe. And this appeareth to be verie true, because we have manie more examples to the fame effect, aledged by Authors worthy of credit.

Plin.lib 8. Of Mutor the Syracufane, that holp another wounded Lyon.

Plin.lib.9.

Elpis of Samo

who cured wounded.

another Liot

Pliny, in his Booke fore-named, speaketh of a Syracusane named Mutor, who being in Syria, mette with a Lyon, that presented himselfe gently before him, & couching downe on the grounde, made fignes (as it were of entreaties) to him; but the Syracu/ane beeing fearefull of his life, fled away from him, with all the haft he could vie. The Lyon still followed, and got againe before him, fawning on him, and licking him verie kindely, till at length the Syracu fan perceiued the Lyon to bee wounded in the foote: which the Lyon lifting vp vnto him, euen as if hee desired to be eased; Mutor tooke foorth a sharpe splinter of Woode, which (by treading thereon) was runne farre into the Flesh, and so the Lyon was released. This Historie, being painted in a goodly Table by the same Mutor in Syracufa, continued there long after, as a true Te- 30 stimonie thereof. The same Authour speaketh also of another man, named Elpis, borne in Samos, who being disimbarqued in Affrica; espyed somewhat neere vnto the Hauen, a Lyon roaring, making towardes him, moaning and complaining verie greeuously. The man beeing fearefull, for Safetie of his life got vppe into a Tree, at the foote whereof, lay the Lyon flat vpon his backe, deliuering manie cries and moanes, lifting vp and Thewing his paw all bloody, even as to moove the man to commisseration.

Elpis looking more aduitedly, with better courage descended from the Tree, and drew a great I horne out of the Lyons foote. In acknowledgement of which good turne done vnto him, so long as the Shippe remained in that Hauen: 50 the Lyon brought him and his men dayly, great store of Flesh, which hee hadde kild in hunting, in a neere neighbouring Forrest, wherewith they were long time relected.

These Histories, are the better to be credited, by that which (in like manner) happened vnto Saint Hierome, who healed a Lyon, that hadde received the like hurr; in recompence whereof, the Ly- wounded Lyon kept companie with Saint Hieromes on. Asse, that was Laden with Wood, euen till he brought him home vato his Here

Wee read moreouer, that Godfrey of Bullen, after hee had Conquered the Ho-Bullen, after nee nad Conquered the Line of Godfrey of ly Land, rode vppon a day on hunting in Bullen, and a Iudea, where hee found a Lyon fighting Lyon fuccout with a Serpent: which Serpent had fo red by him. writhed and knit his taile and body about the Lyon, that he was in verie great danger of death . But the Serpent beeing flaine by Godfrey, the Lyon in remuneration of this benefite, followed and accompanied him daily, without departing from his guard : and euer when he went on Hunting, the Lyon served in stead of his Grey-hound.

It chaunced afterwardes, that Godfrey fayling vpon the Sea; the Lyon was lefte behinde him, and his Maister retirned not, to take him with him in the Shippe: vet fuch was the Loue of the Lyon vnto his Maister, that he would needes swim after him in the Water, and was drowned before he could be fuccored. Concerning those Lyons of Babylon, that did no harme voto the Prophet Daniell, and divers other belides, that (in the times of Dioclesian and Numerian, Emperours of Rome) not so much as touched those Christians, which were nakedly throwne vnto them, for foode and fustenaunce: I fet not them downe as examples of the Naturall loue or qualitie in Lyons, beecause Godhad a woorking power in so high a businesse; and those blessed Fauours proceeded only from his appointment.

Amongest other notable thinges of Amongelt other notable thinges of Of noblena-That he will neuer do anie hurt to man, Lyon. except hee be thereto constrained thorough great necessitie and Hunger. If hee then chaunce to meete a man and a Woman together, hee addresseth himfelfe rather vnto the Man, then vnto the Woman; and neuer (or verie seldome) The Lyon in doth he anie hurt to Children . It ap for immitation of the Lyon (in immitation of the Lyon (in immitation of the Lyon) man) hath fome Audacitie in thinges regainer. that concerne honour, with a kinde of feare to derogate from it . For, if hee finde himselse to bee pursued, and Astrange stoded Lyon.

Aelianus in lib.

Of a Lion and his Lyonnesle

He Animal,

ledge of it by her fmell, and then will beate and punnish her very grieuously. Likewise, when the Lyon waxeth so old, as he can fight no longer, neyther chase any other Beastes : his young Lyons, that are more strong and able, doe belpe to prouide for him, and killing Plin.in lib. 8. Ariflot. in lib. their feuerall preyes, they bring it to E at g.de Ahim him where he is, to feede thereon. The Abertus Magmus in lib. 22. Authours to approue al these thinges, are Pliny, Aristotle, Albertus Magnus, Solmus in Poliand Iulius Solinus; who doe write many knowes that he is feene: he goes with a flow and tardy pace, to declare no want of courage in his flight. But if he know himselfe to bee in the thickest Woodes, and where no eye can catch hold of him : his flight is then to his vttermost power. It is further faide, that when hee flyeth in this manner, he neuer looketh behinde him, to declare thereby, how much hee contemneth them that follow.

The Lyon, by meere inflinct or motion of nature, is of such great and per-

Wonderfull knowledge in the Lyen by inflinct of na-

Chap.26.

feet knowledge, that if any man wound him with a Lance, or any other kind of W capon : let him bee in the company of neuer so many men, yet length of time is no hindrance to him, but hee will felect him out among them all, and be reuenged on him, if he can . To this 20 purpose, Elianus declareth the History of a young Infant, nourithed and brought up by luba, King of Mauritania, who growing further in years, and riding on hunting with the King; wounded a Lyon with his Launce. But the Lyon recouering his hurt, within fome long while after, the King paffed by the same Mountaine where the Lyon was wounded, accompanied with the same young Gentleman that did the deede, and a great many more in the fame affembly. The Lyon knowing him that formerly had hurt him, came with great fury and animofity, and entring into the thickest of themsyled his fight and fauour in fuch fort, as, if the young Gallant had not beene stronglie def nded, the Lyon had torne him ther in piccesa: The same Authour, and fundry others beside doe assure vs, of matter (in my mind) very marualous, to wit; that if a Lyonesse haue companied with another Lyon : her Male doth take know-other matters, which now I speake not off. Onely I thought it good to fet downe these examples, for to confound cruell and vnthankfull men; in shewing then, that among brute and fauage Beafts, clemency is not only found, but also acknowledgement of good turnes received.

CHAP. XXVI.

Who was the first Manthat tamed the Lyon's And of Lysimachus, a Captaine to great Alexander, what hapned between him and a Lyon.

He powerfull Beaft, wherof we have discourred in our precedent Chapter, although he is so cruell & furious; yet notwith fan-ding, he hath beene tamed and made gentle, by diligence and dexterity in Man. The first that cuer vndertook that labour, was a Carthagenian by birth, and thage first ta-the fierce Lyon; he might the more eafily perswade the Cittizens, and worke with them what himselse pleased. He togentlenesse: as lice would put their neckes into vokes, and make them draw his Chariot where focuer he rode. We gabalus, of whose prodigatities and lu-brienies, we shall finde fitter place to fate in his Stare, the Lyon Would lye downe close at his feere. MeBire Leques named Hanno; but the reward he recei- med the Lyon ued therefore, was bannishment from his Countrey. For they faid, that this act of raming the Lyon, was a prefaging of fuch a Spirit in him; that hee would make himselfe Lord of the countrey . But Plinie faith, that the reason Panin Lib. 16 why the Carthagenians banished Hanno, was because he having thus qualified maketh report alfo of Marke Anthonies Marke Ambony Cozin to Octaniur, who caufed Lyons caufed Lyon in fuch fort to be tamed, and brought milde.

finde that the like was done by Helio- Heliogabalus.

discourse. King tohn of castile, second of that name, had a Lyon so domestick Castle. and familiar; that at all times when he of Deffa, Arch bithop of Seuile, had the like. Lodonicus Calius writeth, that hee Lod. Calius in read in a good and approved Authour, 7.lib. de Am.

of an Ewe, which conceiued and eaned a Lyon, a matter very monstrous in Nature. We likewise read of men, that with their hands have flaine Lyons, as Sampson, David, Hercules, and others.

The History of Lyfimachus, and Califibene the Philoso-

I remember also, I have read that Lysimachus, one of the Captaines to Alexander the great flew a Lyon in this manner following. Alexander had then in his company Calisthenes the Philo- 10 sopher, who was a man free, learned, and wife; and (according to the true quality of fuch a man) would oftentimes giue him good enstructions, and reprehenfions alfo, when hee did not as became a King, Whereupon, Alexander growing into displeasure against him; caused him to bee put into a Cage among his Dogs. This was fuch a shame and ignominy, as so free and vertuous Califibenes caft a Spirit as Calisthenes had, was no way among Dogs. able to endure: but rather would voluntarily have embraced death, and wherein he was holpen by his Scholler Lysimachus, who grieued not a little, to see his Maister so dishonorably dealt withall. When Alexander was aduertifed thereof, in a great rage ; he caused him to be throwne before a Lyon, that the Beaft furiously might denour him.

But Lysimachus, beeing a Man of excellent courage, fecretly armed his right arme and hand, afterward, when hee was exposed to the Lyon, and saw him come running (greedily gaping) to deuoure him with a bold and vndaunted

Spirit: hee thrust his Arme into his throat, and held him by the root of the tongue fo strongely, that albeit the Ly(whereof he was afterward in daunger of death) yet would he not let goe his hold, vntill the Lyon seemed as quite choaked and strangled, by keeping his Arme fo long in his throat. Alexander having intelligence thereof, defifted from all further anger and rage against him, and commanuded him to be carefully recovered : holding him (thence-forward) for one of his very chiefest fauourites, yea, and in fuch account, as (after the death of Alexander) hee was one in the number of his Successors, & a most powerfull King. The Authours that doe anough the truth heercof, are

Justine, and Plutareh in the life of Demeon did him much harm with his pawes, 40

Lyfimachus exposed to the fury of a Lion

The admiraof Lysimachus

Lvlimaebus kil led the Lyon

Iustine in lib. c. Plutare, in vit.

CHAP.XXVII.

That the most and greatest part of people in the world, spake at the first but one language onely, which was given them by the will of God: And after the destruction of Babell, then it was changed.

Orphyrius, Iulian the Apostat Emperour, and opostat Emperour, and other enimies to sacred letters, do consesse with the learned, that from the beginning of the Worldes Creation, as there was but one Man and one Woman : euen fo there was likewife but one Language onely, which continued to all the people on Earth, vntill the Deluge; yea, till the destruction of Babell, for fernice of the people which made their abiding thereabout, and (by prefumption) had made a Tower, or rather a high mounted causey, to warrant and defend themselves from another flood, if so be there should any other happen. But me-thinks, that the people of those times were very groffely conceited, in feeking to fortefic themselues by such cunning : because it had beene much better to hinder, then to whet on the anger of God.

There was neuer any man found, or heard of how great an enemy focuer he was to the holy Scriptures, that could euer render any reason of the variety of Languages, which are spoken in so many Nations : but onely that which Moyles alleadged; to wit, that it was done by the will of God, to the end, that the Earth might be wholly inhabited, as it was before the flood, and the great race of Noah (finding themselues diffemblable in tongues) might therefore difperfe themselues abroad. For men deuided not the tongues, but the devision of tongues denided Men, neither was it 2- The denision ny intention of men, vied then fuffici- oftongues deuidedmen ently by necessary knowledge of Naflicted on mankinde. It is a case very cleare and euident, that Languages are not profitable, but in their diversity, ture, and by the inuention of Artes and Sciences; but a punishment of God indo giue language to the conquered.

Chap.27.

and if there were but one onely vied in the World, it would bee meere vanity to know many : for all the first tongues had diners originals, and depending (in any thing) one vpon another.

Neuerthelesse, after that Warres began to be moued through the world, the people that were brought into fubiection, received the Language of the Conquerours. And it is a true marke of Soueraignty, to constraine the subdued to change their Language; which the Romains much better executed, then any Prince or people whatfocuer:wherby they feeme (as yet) to commaund in the most part of Europe. Likewise, the last King of the Hetrurians, beeing vanquished, did all that the Romaines pleafed, but yet he would neuer receive the Latine toong. And by the like reafons, the Gaules, who fpake as the Heluetians (as Glareanus and many other Authours thinke) in the time of Cafar, as by coniecture may bee gathered in the Commentaries of the faide Cafar: did afterward learne the Latine Tongue, because they were conquered by the Ro-maines. After that againe, they spake the language of the Franconians, a people of Allemaigne, who were mingled among them, by their victories gotten ouer the Romaines . In following time, the Gothes, Vandals, Hunnes, and other people, that ranged thorow the world;

left them also their tongues. In briefe, of all thefe fenerall languages, the Gauls

(at this instant called the French)builded and framed one perticuler tongue, euen that which to this day they enjoy. So their variant changes, in leffe then fifteene hundred yeares, very neere three times each fenerall tongue: for at this day, and so hence-forward, it will bee impossible to understand the language, that hath beene spoken for the space of This hath happened in the very fame manner at Rome, and in Italy, fince the that no man can vinderstand those Hymnes, which the Priests called Salii.

or Saliens fung in their processions, which were composed in Latine, that Language being then there spoken and very soone after the foundation of Rome : As also the Sibyls Verses, and ma-time of Cicero and before, for he faith; 50 fonre hundred yeares in France.

that all the fore-faid tongues, have had 40 cerning the Gaules and Whence the language of France had

Variety of Onelanguage

om one mai

and one wo-

Groffeneffe

inmen of th

Saly, the Priests of

Of the Worlds first Language. ny other ancient bookes of those tunes, that contained very facred things . But being fearefull to offend the Gods, or to induce any nouelty in Religion, a matter which draweth after it daily too many calamities: the Senate would haue no other Hymnes to be made, nor that any one should mingle other matter among them, or comment or correct those Bookes of the Sibriles.

It is generally knowne, that the aun- By what peo-It is generally knowne, that the auti-cient Language which Rome vfed first ple the La-tine tongue of all, was pure, delicate, and most elo- became to be quent Latine : and now at this day, there is hardly any one word thereof truely recained. The Italian tongue now spoken, declareth in plaine apparance, to have taken originall and encreasing from Strangers, vpon the Empires declination; especially from such as did most harme to Italy it felfe; to wit, the Gaules, Prouincials, Gothes, Hunnes, Vandals, and other barbarous people, all voyde of humanity; who instead of Trophees, have left them nothing but words and names, even the most excellent that they had. It is not voknowne to vs alfo, that the Arabians had planted their Language throughout Asia and Affrica; and yet within tew yeares, Phillip King of Spaine, hath constrained the Thenew con-Moores of Granada, to change both their am have chan habite and Language. Peru, common- gedtheir lanly tearmed the golden Castile, a very guage, great Pronince, now speaketh no more her naturall Language: for the Spaniard having conquered it, hath there planted his Language, although it bee tearmed the new World In the Ifle of Mally, they were wont Of the Ifle of to speak the Punick tongue; to wit, that Maha. vied by the Carthageniums, when they would needes hold superiority ouer the Romaines; and now at this day, the Greek tongue is spoken there, but very corruptly, mingled also with Swill as. That they had no other Language but the Punick, is casie to be prooued, because it is not abone thirty yeares, fince there was found engranen in olde Murble, this which followeth, written in Greek Letters, and yet not with standing, the distance thence the space of a thousand hath done the like, in all his other conquered Countries, in those Proninces

Language feemeth for to bee Hebrew.

*Ital*y hath alfo changed her language.

and fine hundred leagues; enen as hee

Procopius in Hist. Vandal. The scituation of Phomicia.

The ancient ftrong Cittie

in Numidia.

The Con-

quests of Eng-vpon grane

Arabes and derstanders

of tongues.

The language

The Arabian

tongue a per-fect language

Scitio 11.de

The request

Trismegijtus

vlt.Lib.

of Egypt changed.

ELOI. EFFETHA CVMI, and many other auncient Epitaphes. Alfo, as the Foundation of Castle Angelo was laying, there was found vpon an olde Stone of Marble-Iasper, these words engrauen; IEHIEW IEPH-DAIA, and others, which (by the iniury of time) were quite defaced. And these latter wordes, were written (for the more part) in Hebrew Letters, and hardly was there found any one, were he Arabe or Iew (who doe furpasse all other Nations in the understanding of Languages) that could deliuer the interpretation thereof.

Ægypt, from the time of Mercurius Trismegistus (Author of that worthy booke tituled Pimander;) that was before Abraham and Moyles, had a perticular Language: a thing yet to this day to be seene, by Bookes written in the Ægyptian hand, and in many places of Palestine, in the tongue vied in those dayes, which (I say) was in the time of the first Kinges that were named Pharaohs, wherein nothing is to be comprehended, neither reade, albeit the Letters are very visible, and not de-

Neuerthelesse, at this day they doe | 30 not speake that Language, but the Arabian Tongue, without retaining any one word of her auncient tongue: which is faide to bee graue, briefe, accompanied with goodly tearmes, and proper to comprehend all Sciences, as all the Easterne partes (well neere) are, and apt to discourse of Diuine matters; much more then the Greeke, full of oftentation and vanity. Which being well perceived by that worthy Afculapius, the fore-named Trismegistus : he defired of GOD and the King, that his Bookes and Writings might not passe through the Grecians handes, neyther bee translated or commented by Heerewe are to note, that if (at this day) wee have any Bookes of the ancient Ægyptians; they came from the Greekes and Iewes, who traduced them into their Language, when they kept their Schooles, where they taught all Sciences : witnesse Socrates, Plato, Democritus, Xenophon, Philostratus, 1amblicus, Apollonius, and diners other great personages, who went purposely thither, to be enfireded in good Sciences, whereof great account was made in those times. And let vs not forget Mofes, the great Law-giver, who was learned in all the wifedome of the Ægyptians : as we may gather by the Egyptians words of Saint Stephen, in the seuenth Greaces. Acts Chapter of the Actes of the Apostles.

In Palestine, and in Ierusalem, they Palestine and were wont to speake the Syriake toong changed their now a dayes they fpeake the Arabian-Belonius, in his fecond booke of Singu-larities, hath noted, that at this day la. there are spoken twelue seueral toongs in Ierufalem; and yet notwithstanding, as I have formerly faide, the Arabian tongue is the most common. Greece hath loft her auncient Language, for in the Citties and Townes, the Primitiue tongue is now not spoken: but a new kinde of Language, which the Turkes (fince they began to bee Gouernours there) brought thither with them. And yet neuerthelesse, in some perticuler places, they speake Greeke verie viuallie. But by little and little, as the naturall borne Greekes, by reason of their Princes tyranny, became Vagabonds, and went to feeke out other Countries: euen fo they (for the more part) hoping there to meet with better The alteration entertainement, made themselues Ma- of Greece, and humetifts, that is to fay; they for fooke casion. Christian Religion, and (by the same meanes also) left their Mother tongue, enclining wholly to the Turkish and Arabian; and therfore, before an hundred years can be expired, they wil not speak any more Greeke.

In the Kingdome of Tremiffem, otherwife called Telesin, seated on the Coast of Barbarie, in the Mediterranean Sea, fins changed they were wont to speake the Phanician tongue : now-adaies they doe not retaine any one word thereof, but speake the Morisco Language, because they had beene formerly fubdued by the great King Manfor . The cause why this people spake the Phanician tongue (although they were diftant from the Countrey of Phanicia, verie neere foure hundred Leagues) I will briefely declare, according as Procopius fetteth it downe in the Historie of the Vandales, leaving a verie notable marke thereof, in these wordes. All this Countrey (faith he) which reacheth from

Moles was Great nations peake the IIlyran tongue.

Venerable

Bede, and Sir

Thomas Moore

Sidon, fo farre as Ægypt, mas beretofore cald Phanicia, and such as have written the History of the Phænicians, do declare; that Sometime one King onely raigned there. In thefe Countries dwelt the Gergefites, Iebulites, and others who when they beheld lofuals great Army comming against them : they pa [ed into Agipt, but foone af. ter that Countrey being not able to support the they went thence into Affrica, wher they i builded many Townes and Villages, and peopled the Countrey, even fo farre as the Psilars of Hercules, and their language was Phanician. In Numidia likewife they builded, and (among other Citties) that most strong and firmely fested Citty of Tingitana, where two Collomnes of white stone are to bee feene, neere the great Fountaine, whereon (in the Phantian tongue) are engranen thefe wordes. We are they, who were 2 before that great Brigande Josuah, the Son of Nun. Such (faith he) was the originall of these people, who are (at this day) called Mau: usians, or Mauritanians, Their Languages then became wholly changed, by the comming in of other people.

England was wont to have a perticular Language by her felfe, according as Cafar testifieth : but beeing afterward 30 conquered by the Saxons, a people of Germany, they long time kept the Saxon tongue. In following time also, growing frequent with the French, hoping to ouer rule them : they well neere quite changed the Saxon tongue, begetting one Language, confilting partly of French, Danifb, Saxon, and Pictifb. So that out of all these tongues, they forged one intirely new, and that little abone three hundred years fince. Which hath beene well observed by venerable Bede, a great Dinine, and Sir Thomas Moore, fometime Lord Chancellour, and a very learned Gentleman, and both these Men of the English Nation.

The Polanders, Vandales, Bulgarians, Serusans , Daimatians, Croatians , Bofnians, Rushians, Valachians, Bohemians, Lituanians, Moscouites, &c. Spake the Garmaine or Tentonicke tongue : but authis day they speak the Selanenian language, that is to fay, Illyrian, witnesse Ladiflans King of Lituania, who about the yeare 1399. hauing espoused a Virgine mamed Anne, the Heire of Poland that could speak no other Language but the Allemaigne, as then in those times it was Spoken in Poland : would never leave her company, vntill the had learned the Listuanian tongue, which thee cafily attained voto in eight months space. The Allemaignes also lay, that the language which by them is now vied, is not their auncient tongue; but is very divers, and hath borrowed great store of wordes, from people by whom they have hitherto beene foyled, or ranaged, or by beeing imployed in Warres, as among the Gaules in Italy, Spain, Greece, and the Easterne Countries. Neuer should I growe to any conclusion, if I were to fet downe those seuerall people, that haue changed their Language fince the Deluge: or proone, that there is not any Nation at this day, which speaketh the Language of our first Father Adam and Nosh. All have changed, and yet will change, fo long as the Worldendureth; for such is the Nature of viciffitude, in thinges of this world.

CHAP.XXVIII.

Of Graning or Carning, and of Painting: which of them is most ancient and excel-

N these times I have heard of very many different opinions in a concerning these two Arts of Statuary or Stones.

cutting, and Painting; to wit, which of them is most commendable; and best worthy of praise. . Very perinent reafons are alleadged both for the one and other, for in the Statue or Sculpture, there is discerned an artificiall initiation of Nature representing therein the members wholly round, well formed, andfully measured, even as if Nature lrap felfe had shaped them, and much better imitated then in a Table, where we but behold the superficies and colours, which beguile the eye. For the fuoftance is much neerer to truth, then the refemblances Befide, Sculpture or engraning, is more difficult, because if afault be therm committed, very hard-

The Allema gr

mail.com

Variety of o-Caruing and engan pengangalah di sebagai sebagai bah

The commendation of Car-

Similitudes

cannot per-uert or alter nature in liuing Creatures.

Statues eftee med in ancient times,an for good oc-

An ancient custome for offenders and

Bond-flaues.

ly can bee amended: in regard, that the Marble or other matter is not to bee pieced or patched, but another figure must of necessity be made. Which fallethnot out fo in painting, for it may be altered a thousand times, adding thereto, or diminishing, by daily amending. Statues were (in elder times, & yet are to this day) esteemed facred things, to beautifie Temples or publike places, for the commemoration of famous perfons, and fuch actions of theirs as were heroycall especially fuch as we see in the Porches of Temples, and divers within : which are placed to no other end, but for a remebrance of holy Men or women, that performed many pious deedes, and stood for plantation of the Faith And for the great respect then made of them it was permitted (by Emperiall Edictes) to Offenders, and Slaves badly vied by their Maisters; to haue their enfranchisement, and case from further perfecutions, by holding fast voon some of those Statues, till audience might bee graunted to their oppreflions. Such as do hold Painting to be more excellent, make their allegations; that The commen thereby is imitated much more truely, dation of pain the very Nature of the thing foreprefented then it can be by the Statue. And that it must needes be so, they produce (for example) that which is written by Plin.inlib. 12.

Hiltories con cerning Pain-> out any feare at all of the young man. They fay moreouer, that Parrhafins, a Painter likewise, and an emulatour of the forefaid Zenxis, painting a Partridge vpon a Collomne in Rhodes, drew it fo naturally according to life that (in the indgment of enery beholder) it feemed

Plinie, concerning one Xeuxis, a Painter of Heraelea, who presented a Table, wherein hee had painted bunches of Grapes fo naturally: that Sparrowes flying by it, strone to rest on them, and true Grapes indeede, fo that his worke-manship was reputed to bee both famous and finguler. At another time, the same Zeuxis: painted a young Man in a Table, carrying like bunches of Rai-fine Grapes in a Difh, which were fo lively made : as the Birds were thereby againe deceived, the Birds likewise defeending from the ayre, to peck authem to be alive indeed. Nay more, the perfection of painting this Foule was fuch, and so compleate, that bringing other Partridges before it (fuch as now adaies are kept in Cages:) they would call vnto it, flutter their Winges before it, and vie their kinde of finging, taking it for a lively Bird indeede. They yet goe further, faying, that Apelles painted a Horse according to life, and other Painters making proofe in their skill of the like; would needes vrge tryall of the most ablest workmanship . Wherevpondit was thought fit to bring liuing Horses before him, for better approbation of the experiment, and beeing brought before those figures painted by the other Painters; they stood still, without any fhew of account or motion. But when that which Apelles drewe was presented before them; they began to ftirre, tread, and whinnow, which they did not at the fight of any of the other whereby, the greatest honour and aduantage in Art, was adjudged to Apelles, and he reputed to bee the most excellent Painter.

Now to speake mine opinion heerein, I fay, that (for all thefe Fables, leffe the former feeming true, then Pliny writes them) Histories, Painting cannot be accounted to be the more excellent Art: For all Creatures that fly in the Ayre, or feede on the earth, or live in the Water, do nourish themsclues, and are more mooued by the sence of smelling, then by fight. To approoue the truth hereof, let any man paint a Rat, and draw it nener fo artificially according to life: then let it bee profented before a Cat, to try if the wil pecked at them, as taking them to bee 40 ftirre, or offerto take it . Let any man also fet a Table before Fowles, with painted Capons Hennes, Cockes, Pigeons, or fuch like; let there be likewife painted in the Table, Barly, Oates, or any other Corne fit for them to feede on; and try if they moone or come to touch it. Let any Painter portraite a Ginne or Snare, with either a Goofe, Lambe, or any other prey furprised in as if they had beene very Raizins, with- 50 the Snare, counterfeired by Art most naturally; and then make triall, if a Wolfe or Foxe will offer to lay holde on it, which indeede they would doe, if they had life. Some

In like manner, let there be painted in a Table a goodly Mare, formed with Apelles a famous Painter of the Ifle Con

all features neerest to life, then bring a Stallion before it, and try if he will offer to coner her. Let there be also in the fame Table a goodly fielde, with divers Horses feeding at pasture; and try if he will beare them company. Shew to any Horse painted Prouender, and try if he will whinhow to have it: which naturally he wilbdo, if he Be in his Stable, although there be none at all offered to his fight. By these Allegations I would plainly thew, that Creatures (of thefe kinds)do notão much mouethemschies by fight, as by fence of finelling; and that all which Pliny hath faide of thefe Paintings, are meere fables, for these Creatures have no knowledge of Pain-

Painters of ancient time: did not furpatfe the men of these daies

Another Hi-

flory of Par-flufius and Zeuxis comparisons.

It ferueth to no purpofe, to fay, that the Painters of these daies, are not so futficier, neither do make fuch exquifite workes, as those in former times did. I answer, that there are men as excellent euery way, & that wil not gine ground in any iot, to the very best before them. For there are yet to bee feene in thefe daics, both Paintings and Statues of ancient Grecians, Romaines , Ægyptians, and other Lenantines; which come nothing neere (by much) in perfection, to 30 things done by Painters and Statuaries of our time. I dare make them my ludges, who, being curious in the fight of fuch thinges, and trausiling thorow lower Germany; have visited the Chambers and cabinets of many famous houfes, as also in France and Italy, and what e'fe is to be scene in Churches.

There is another History alleadged, borrowed likewise out of the same Pii- 40 nies shop, that Parrhasius deceived Zeuxis by a Table, whereon nothing elfe was painted but a Curtaine, and it beeing presented to Zenzis, to yeeld his indge-ment of the workmanship, he offered to draw the Curtaine, to behold what was figured vider it. I answer, that this Hillory, how true focuer it be, & whether it fo hapned or no may make painting to bee much more commendable, then all the other Fables formerly delinered from Plmy. For as man is the leaft of all creatures, in exquifite perfection of sense, and that often deceineth himfelfe, in the fenfes of fight, touching, taft, and fmell; yea, cuen in judgement, especially when he is decained by a precipitation, or paffion of Spirit, and then apprehenden one thing for another: enen fo might it then fall lour with Zenxis, in regard of the Unuylipe bare to Hauing confitted thefe fables atlead. The Authors ged by Plany, which ferocorrely for the Painting prepraife of Painting Lwell rowlinglown cedeth Carfomereafons of whing white white wing. wil approue Painaing, beyond Caruing or Graning. In Stanies or Carned Fit gures, there are many thinks defectiue, which cannot faile in Palnging, and principally day light and thaddow; because fleth yeildeith a different light, from that which Marble or flone affordeth, and that the Painter imitateth, with clearnesse or obsenity, more or leffe, according as the thing requireth, which the Image-maker cannot performe. And yet notwithstanding, though painting doth not make the Figure round : yet it sheweth the museles and members in rounded shape, fo that they are discerned, as joyned to those parts which cannot be scone, & by such apt meanes; as it is eafily knowne, that the Painter under stands and perfectlie knowes them. And heerein is required For forming another artifice more great in forming portion of the the members that lengthen or fhorten, members. according to the proportion of fight, by reason of perspective; which by the power of lines and measure of colours, day-light and shaddowes, doe showin their toperficies on a plaine wall, neere or farre off, more or leffe, as himfelie pleafeth.

Nor is the true imitation of naturall Of the vie & colours, a matter of fuch final mement handling to lours in their as fome do imagine; in counterfeiting true Nature. fleth, fhape of Garments; and all other thinges requiring colours. And yet the Caruer cannot doe this; much leffe expresse and represent the gratious fight of the eye, black green, or otherwife, with the splendour of amourous beames, or in Colour full of reuenge. The Carner also knowes not how to difeouer the beames of the Sunne, Lightning, Thunders, and other fuch like thinges; as faire Lockes of Haire nor the goodly troopes of armed forces, nor a darkefome night; nor a teinpett on the Sea; nor a flath of Light- Admirable ning, nor flormie Windes, nor the befiedging of a Citty, nor the Suns rifing

Parrhalius a cunning painter of Ephelius

Forrefts, Fields, Gardens, Rivers, Citties, nor Houses, all which the Painter can perfectly thew Is is also welknown, that if a Painter apply his colours vpon a carned statue, what soener it be ; it wil appeare so much the more commendain the morning, or Aurora her felfe, (bringing bright day) in her colours like

Rofes, diffarkled with radiances of gold and purple... Briefely, he cannot repre-fent Heaven, Earth, Seas, Mountaines,

Painting no mechanicall Science.

Painting a more Noble

Science then

Caruing.

Noblemen v fed the Art of Fabius a Noble man of Rome a skilful

ble. In this respect, me thinks that painting is a more Noble Science, and of much greater artifice, then Carning or Graning, and I think that our ancients held it in great reputation, & as highly as other things: a beit, both these Arts do feeme to iffue out of one & the fame fountaine, because that in both the one and other ; Geometry is very requifite, | 20 for the understanding of perspective. This Science appeares to me, not to be mechanicall, because it is very conucnable, & may well be vied by any Gentleman. I remember I haue read, that our auncient predecessours, especially throughout all Greece, would have Noble mens children enstructed in schools in the art of painting, as a Science most honest, and very necessary. It was ad- 30 mitted in the first degree of the liberall Arts, and soone after defended by publike Edict, that it should not be taught to Slaues or Seruants.

Among the Romaines, Painting was held in great honor, and thence it deriueda most Noble sir-name, euen from the House of the Faby; for the first Fabius was fir-named the Painter, because he was (indeede) a very excellent Pain- 40 ter . And so much was he addicted to painting, that having painted the wals of Templum Salutis; he placed there his owne name; as thinking, that although he was deriued of a noble house, honored with many Titles, Confulfhips, triumphes, and other dignities; albeit he he was learned, well read in the lawes, & numbred amongst the best Orators : yet he was of the mind, that hereby he might (neuerthelesse) encrease his renowne, by fuch an especiall splendour and ornament, and left it to memory, that he was a Painter.

Painting not onely Noble, but pleafing Moreover, many other are recorded of noble houses, that have bin famous in this art, in which, befide the Nobility & profitable for warre.

& Dignity therof; many commodities are thence deriued. Especially in the time of wars, for deligning and portraiing Countries, scirnations of Rivers, Bridges, Caftles, Fortes, and fuch like thinges: which thus may be described to others, euen as if they were exactlie imprinted in memory, which otherwise were a difficult thing to do. I conclude then by this discourse, that the Art of sculpture or carning, is much inferiour to painting: yea, and it will be of much longer continuance, if it beekept in a dry place, and wel sheltred from winds and raine, and the longer it lasteth, so much the more pleafing it is to behold.

CHAP. XXIX.

Against such aged per sons as think nothing to be well done, but what was performed by themselues in their youth ; blamine extreamely the present times, and what is now done, in respect of the former; And what is the caufe thereof.

T Auing many times confidered, (and not without great admiration) whence fuch an error enfueth, which verily may be beleeued, to be proper and naturall to aged people; because it is commonly noted in them, that they doe wholly (as it were) commend times past, condemning the prefent, and blaming our maners, actions, & whatfocuer elfe they themfelues did not in their younger daies; Affirming alfo, that all good customes, behauior of life, all vertue, and all thinges grow reason and worse and worse : Truely, it seemeth to | iudgement me a matter farre off from reason; nay more, very maruailous, that mature and ripe age should wander so strangely. For long experience begetteth custome, & (in follemne allowance) prefumeth to iudge perfectly of men. And yet herein their judgments were fo much corrupted, as they never perceived, how the world began daily to impaire, and that the Fathers were better then their chil- Our fore fr dren; a very long time remaining, to a-riue at the vittermost degree of wicked-happy then their children nes, times ftill declining from better to. worse. And yet notwithstanding all this, we behold it daily, a vice proper

Aged people do oftentim

Afmilitude

the argument

Of Times past and present. Chap. 29.

> and peculiar to age, even as it hath bin in former daies : fo to continue ftill among vs lining. Which hath beene knowne and made manifest, by the writings of many very ancient Authours, and especially by the Comicks, who (much better then any other) expressed the true Image of humaine life. Therefore I conceine, that aged people hold this falle opinion, breause our yeares poasting away so swiftly, as they carry hence many other commodities; fo (among others) they rob vs of our blood, and a great part of our vitall Spirits. In reg and wherof, our complexion changeth it felfe, and the bodies Organes become feeble, that should exercise the vertues of the Soule.

The cause of our generall

the inconuc-

niences be-fore alleage

And this is the cause, that in these our instant daies, the delicate and sweet floures of contentment doe fall from our heartes, as Leaues doe from the Trees in Autumne, and, in flead of clear and free thoughts; obfcure, troubled, melancholly, and fad concerts get entrance, accompanied with a thoufand calamities. So that, not onely the Body, but the Spirit also becommeth fick, which retaineth not any lot of our passed Spirits, except a long remem- 30 brance, and Image of that acceptable time of youth; which wee perswading our felues to finde againe, it appeareth then to vs, that Heaven, Earth, and all things elfe are glad therof, and do smile at them (verily) in our fight; refoluing our thoughts, that in them(as in a faire and goodly Garden) the fweet Spring time of joyfulneffe ftill flourisheth. In which respect, perhaps it would proue profitable, when (already) in a cold and backward feafon, the Sunne of our life beginneth to decline towardes the West, in despoyling vs of our pleafures ; that we would also (there-with) loofe the remembrance of them, and finde (as Themistocles faid) A Science en-The wife fayfructing how to forget them. Because the fences of our body are so fallacious that oftentimes themselves do beguile | 50 the judgement of the spirit.

And therefore it feemeth to me, that aged reople are of their condition, who niwerable to fetting forth from any Port or Hauen, doe ftill fixe their eies vpon the Land! whereby they conceit, that the Shippe moueth not but that the land & houses are in motion, which nevertheleffe is quite contrary. For the Hauen, as alfo the time, and former or prefent pleafores, continue fill in their wontede. flate, and we (with the Ship of mortal lity) faile away; we posit on one after another, thorow this impetuous Sea, that denoureth all things. Nor are we euer permitted to take landing againe; but beeing continually toffed by contrary winds, our veffell runs and breaks it felfe againft one Rocke or other con old, a tubicat contrary to alkind of plefures sit cannot apprehend any tale of them. And, as all forts of Wines, although they be never lo good freme Another exbitter to fuch as are troubled with a Feuer, in regard that the rait is changed, onely by the meanes of corrupted humors: euen fo in aged people, by reafon of their inaufpolition (albeit there is no defect in defire) all pleafures feemewn. fauory, cold, and far differing from fuch as they remember once to have effaied; and yet those pleasures (in themselues) are the very fame which they wer wont toba And because they finde theselies No defection to be deprined of those pleasures; they in our telus complaine and blame the pretime, as if it were naught, neuer confidering, that this mutation proceedeth from themfelues, and not from the time. On the contrary, when they fit down & call to memory their paffed delights; they then likewife remember the time wherin they enjoyed them; and (in that respect) repare them to be good, because it appeared then, and so doth yer, that they brought a fweete rellish with them; which they (yet) remember to haue felt when they had them . For, in effect, our thoughts doe harefully condemne all things, that have bin companions with our displeasures; and loue al them that have fored with their likings. In which regard it happens fometime! that we fee an amourous Fellow, take great delight to behold a Window, although it be thut against him : yet hed Comparisons conceineth a liking thereof, because (in not vulithing former time)he had the fanour there to the purefert gaze on his Lady, or loues Miffris. In like manner, to fee a lewell, a Letter, a Garden, or any other thing whatfoeuer; that seemeth (as yet) to be a telli-mony; to former effected pleafures:

liż

The Spirit (then) of a man waxing The Spirit

the time but

Pleafures ap.

where-whereas on the contrary, a goodly, faire, and rich adorned Chamber, will appeare hatefull to him, that hath been imprisoned therein, or that there hath fuffered any difliking. I have knowne some, who (by no meanes) would drinke in a Cup that refembled some other Cup, wherein (being fick) they received a medicine. For,

as the window, or the Ring, or the Letter, representeth to the one party, a fweete remembrance, which to him is the more acceptable, by how much it appeareth still a pertaker of his former enioied pleasure: euen such is the other parties conceit, that the Chamber, or the Cup, are full fresh Ensignes of his imprisonment, or sicknesse. I think, that for the very same reason men (in years)

are moored to commend passed times.

and throw blamefull aspertions on the present. By means whereof, in speaking of Warres, Courts of Iustice, or those belonging to Princes, & fuch like, they affirme: that those in their time, and wherofthey do yet bear remembrance;

were much more excellent, and filled with more finguler men, then they are which at this instant they daily behold.

question, they presently begin to exalt infinitely, the people that lived in their former times, and declare, that (in those elder daies) it could not bee found, but very rarely, that a man committed a murder; that then were any combats or fights, ambushes or treacheries:

but an affured honesty and faithfulnes, an amiable and loyall infineffe among reigned fo many good manners, & fuch a persect honesty : that all Courtiers were then religious, and Saintes, that they would not take part with any man, who had offered a badword to another, al Men. That in Courts (in those times) 40

So soone as such cases doe come in 30

Strange-humors in fome Men and women.

The reason o aged peoples

The prayles giuen by aged people to former times.

of aged peo-ple on these instant times.

or had vsed any figne of dishonesty to a Woman of Honour. On the contrary, they fay, that now in these daies, they behold all things to bee quite opposite to the former, and 50 that not onely among Courtiers, men of warre, and young people, brotherly affection is loft, and al laudable manner of living: but also in Courts and Citties, now raigneth nothing but enuies, euill will, wicked manners, and a life most dissolute, abounding in all kindes of vices. That Women are lascinious, hauelost all shame, and men (for the more part) are become effeminate. Moreover, they blazon their garments to be dishonest, and ouer pompous. In that meritrebreefe, they reprehend a number of prehension things, among which (truely) there are some that wel deserue reprehension, because it cannot be denied; but that there are (among vs) many badand wicked men, by whose meanes, this present world must needs be fuller of errours, then that which these good people so highly commend.

It appeareth to me, that they doe ill discerne the cause of this difference, and made to these declare themselves to be made to the declare themselues to be meere fooles; complaints. in that they would now haue the world to be wholly good, without any cuill remaining in it, which is a matter vtterly impossible. For, cuill being contrary to goodnesse, and goodnesse to enill : it appeareth euen necessary (as it were) that by a certaine kinde of repugnancie and contrariety; yea, by a manner of counterpoise; the one should sustaine and firengthen the other. In fuch fort, No contrary, that the one failing, or encreasing; the other likewise should encrease, or run to ruine, because there is no contrarie, without another.

Who doth not know, that no Iuflice A reason for could be found in the world, if therwere annoyances, iniuries, & oppressions? No magnanimity, if there were not pufillanimity? No continence, if there were not incontinency? No health, if ficknesse had not his course? No truth, if therwere not lying & falshood? Nor any felicity or happinesse, if there were not fals and misfortunes For this cause The faying of Socrates faid well with Plato; He meruai-Socrates and led very much, that Æsope had not made a Fable, feigning therein, why God did not unite pleasure and greefe togethor, tying them to such extreamities, as the beginning of the one might be the ending of the other. For we doe enidentlie behold, that no pleafure would at any time be acceptable, if forrow had not gone before it.

What is he that could discerne, how of al things is precious quiet rest and repose is, if first approued by the haue not felt the pain of trauaile and their contrawearinesse? Who could tell, what the ries. benefit is of eating, drinking, and fleeping, if first he had not endured hunger, thirft, and watchings ? Let mee tell yee

No euill fo great, as that which groweth out of Vices doe alwaies attend the Vertucs.

Chap.29. The Grossenesse of former Times.

then, that passions and diseases given to men by nature, not principally to make them subject thereto, for it would feeme very inconnenient, that the who is the Mother of all, should (by her counfell and wifedome) fend vs many harms : But nature having made health. pleafure, and other good things : fends after them fickneffe, displeasure, and other annoyances . For all vertues being 10 first graunted to the world, by the free gift and fauour of Nature: afterward immediatly, all vices, by a contrary concathenation or combination follow as their companions or arrendants. So that the one encreasing, or decaying; the is compelled to grant (in this manner) that the other also shall encrease, or grow to defaulance.

were then fo vicious, as now they are in thefe daies: they may also alledge their ignorance, whether then fuch vertuous men were to be found, as many are well approoued to bee at this day. Nor is there any matter of maruaile heerein, because there is no cuill so great; as that which springeth from the seede of corrupted goodnes. And for this cause, | 20 Nature producing now great store of Spirits, of much better temper then before they were, as fuch who of themfelues haue turned to goodnesse: hath performed a better workmanship, then in those times (thee did) whereof they talke fo much, even as they that turne to euill, doe so much the worse. We may not then fay, that fuch as ceafe to doe cuill (because they know it not) do in this case deserve any praise : for although they have fildome committed any harme, yet (notwithstanding) they would have done much more if they

Wherefore, when old men do extol

the passed times, affirming, that no men

Former spirits inferior to the of these daies.

could. Now, that the Spirits of those precedent times in generall, were much inferiour to them lately or now lining : may fufficiently be knowne, by all matters obscrued of them: as well in learning, as in Painting, Statues, Buildings, and in all other things. And yet Men of yeares, doe reproue and blame many thinges in vs, which are not (of themselues) cyther good or cuill, onely because that they (in those daies) did them not . . They fay, it is not fit for a Nagge thorow the Cittle, but especially not on a Mule for to weare any skinnes of Furres in Winter or a long gainft youn-Gown in the Spring time; or any bonnet, vnleffe the Man have attained to the age of eighteene yeares. And other fuch like things, wherein (truely) they greatly discontent themselves, because that fuelt Customes (beside the commodity and benefit they affoord) have been brought in by vie, and are as pleafingnow to enery one, as then men delighted to goe in Caffockes or lackets, with open thooes; and close Breeches. And for a man to flew himfelfe a Gallane, he must carry a Hawke on his Fift all day to no purpofe; daunce, without ury in a Gal holding his Mistresse by the hand, and lant. vie many other fashions, which were then much esteemed; but now doe appeare to bee groffe and vnbefitting. Thefe are most of their foundest reafons, why the cultomes of these times should not bee observed, but remaine fill to the calumnies of aged folke, ex- Obiections v tolling themselnes, by faying : Twenty fed by the a yeares and more were past with mee, sed. and yet I flept with my Mother and Siiters; andknewnot (in long time after) whata Woman was But now, Boyes, almost as soone as they be borne, know more naughtinesse, then the taulest Men could reach voto in those dayes.

When they vtter thefe speeches, they doe not perceive, how firongly they confirme, that the very Children of our time, have much more spirit, then aged Men had in those daies. And that was well noted by Horace the Poet, in his felues did in their youth ; And will have young people to forme their lines by their.

Age. But I purpose to shew more perticularly in the following Chapter, the groffenesse of people in those fore-paffed times, and the fubtility of braue

Spirits in young men of thefe daies.

young man, to ride on his Foot-cloath ctiues of age

time, speaking of our auncients, to this Thesaying of effect : They commend what focuer them- Horace.

0.000001

gyana palina farana gg CHAP: XXX:

A comparison betweene the Buildings. Feastes, Garments of Men and Women. Armes, and manner of making warre in the dates of our fore fathers, and those that are veed in the e our times.

Ourpredecef-fors forme of building,very groffe & rude E will begin, without v-fing any other preamble, with, those Buildinges, which were made in the daies of our fore-fathers;

confliting of nothing but very chicke wals; bad VV indows, continually beaten with winds and ftormes : chambers | 20 fubicated one to another; the vaults or houses of Office, enermore in the most eminent places of the House, which ought to be much further off, both from the nofe & eies : imitating nature, who hath placed those partes in our bodyes, through which our vncleannesse is to be anoyded, farre enough off from the eyes and Nofe. Of this fashion, and in fuch manner of building, it is no long | 3 time fince, that the more part of Mafons and Worke men shaped Castles, being places of pleafure, and Countrey houses of pleasure, in no other kinde of constructure. But within an hundred yeares, or there-about, a great part of them are demolished; and (in stead of them) others erected; after out Moderne manner, much more commodious, and of leffe coft, in regard of the 40

Some-what let vs fay, concerning their Feafts and Banquets, and observe in what manner they were ordered. The meate ferued into the Table, was alwajes in great Chargers, filled with Peafe and Bacon; Gammons of Bacon; huge Neats toongs falted; great pieces of Beefe, boyled Poultry, with pottage about them; boyled Mutton, Veale, & 50 other groffe food, common (almost)in enery ordinary family; and they gorged in these Victuals, so long as they could cram any more into their bellies. Afterward, they brought in other meats, anfwerable to the former, but roafted and larded(oftentimes) with vnfauory lard, but it would ferue for Pigs and Hares, After this fecond feruice had flood as while on the Table, well-neere to no effect: then came in more dainty meats of Foules: as Mallards, wilde Duckes, bale groomes Ringdoues, young Pigeons, Partridges, to feede on, woodcocks, Quailes, Pheafants, woodhennes, Plouers, Turtles, and others of like kinde: which are carried away (like the second service) almost nevertoucht, for they (good men) had filled their stomackes with the first course meates, feeding hungerly on them, and drinking fower wines, fuch as Summer marreth, fo they left the best and daintiest meats indeede, for their Varlets and base Seruants to feede on. Was not this a verie lourdery and blockishnesse, to vse their meates in this groffe manner? The Maisters cate nothing but the very hea-uiest meates of all, and their Knaues did feede on the lightest, most exquisite, and best for digestion. Let it then be helde no matter of maruaile, if those men had groffe and heavy Spirits, because, according to the opinion of Plato: Our manners do follow the temperature The faying o and quality of the Chylus, or white inyce, of the digested meates which we ve to eate.

But in these daies, this manner of furnishing the Table at Feastes and meetings, is no more vied : for in well gouerned houses, they serue in both boyld androasted meates, grosse and delicate together, that each man may eat according to his appetite, or what he best liketh vpon the boord. For (vnder fubmiffion to better judgement) I thinke it no way fitting, that the feruant should feed on the finest, and his Maister on the courfest; the Knaue served like a Lord, and his commaunder like a Buffone.

Proceed we now to mens garments. First, the head, having bush naturall (as in auncient time, of very they tearme it) a huge deale of haire on heavy weight it; must have as big a Bonnet to couer it, which (in those daies) were cald spamilb Bonnets, having a turning vp behind, double fringed with red, and this turning vp contained halfe an Elle of woollen-cloath. I haue feene one of the in Paris, that weighed foure pound and fixe ounces. Another fashion they had, more honest and lighter, tearmed the Croffe-Bow-Cap vet with feauen or eight Elles of Riband about it: This ponderous wearing (in my minde) did

The third and comes last of al, and ferueth for none but

Their wearing Doublets and the fashi on of them. Womens Collers. Mens Hofe o Breeches close to the body. Hard meanes

Feafts vied

Bonnets vsed

Letters.

ther Pouch.

nothing els but dull the braine. Their Doublets (I meane for the better fort of men) were of leather or course Linnen Cloath behind and before, of Woofted, or Serge of Arras, which ferued halfe the Breast, and so on the armes likewise; yet some (from the Elbowe to the Wrist) yfed to weare Veluet or Sattin This kinde of Doubtlet, the Frenchmen tearmed Nichil-au-dos, Nothing Bebinde, and it was cut according vito the fashion of Weomens Gownes nowe adayes, that thewes their Breaftes naked . The Weomen also in those dayes, had their plaited Collors, wrought with blk. either Blacke or Red, and they were fastened behinde the necke and Shoulders with Silke-Lages: fo that they hidde and kept close that which was fairest, & wold have made them most gracefull. Mens 20 Hose or Breeches, answered in length to their thortskirted Doublets, being made close to their limbes, wherein they had no meanes for Pockets. But in flead thereof, they hadde a large and ample Cod-piece, which came vppe with two wings, and fo were fastned to eyther fide with two Pointes . In this wide rooms. they had Linnen bagges, tied with likel Points to the infide, betweene the Shirte and Cod-piece. This ferued as the receipt for Purfle, Hand-kerchers, Apples, Plummes, Peares, Orenges, and other fruits . But did it not feeme verie Inciuill, that fitting at the Table, hee should make a prefent of fuch, preferred (for fom) time in fo fweet a Cloffet, euen as now adaies, some (as mannerly) vse the like out of their Pockets? As for papers, Letters, and fuch like, which they ordinarilie received, they were to put them in their Wearing of Hat-bandes, or weare them at their Girdles, like Gloues: wher hung also a great Pouch, made fast with a Ring and Locke of iron, waighing three or foure pound A great Lea waight, and oftentimes no money at all in it. Surely, in my poore opinion, the fashion of Pockets made in the Doublet Sleene, or in the hofe, is much more honest and commendable.

Leaning their high and vnhandforn Shooes, let vs speake a little of weomens What Garhabits then yfed wherein I meane not to ments womé be tedious. The Attire on the Head, ried to wear. was of great broad Wollen Cloath, of Red or Violet colour, fet out with flickes of Woode, and made in the forme of a

Suger-loafe. Her Gowne was verie large and plaited; and the Sleeues thereof fo wide, that a Lambe might calific leape into them A Traine also was fastned to Gownes. this Gowne, which commonly contained fix paces in length. At affemblies and meetings of Weomen, as the rest, so did thee let fall her Traine, dragging it after her in Halles, Churches, perhaps ouer . Dunghils, and other vnfauoury filthines. Preparing to Dannee, or some other delight, itiwas taken vpiagaine, thogh it fermed to hopurpofe; and then made faft behind, either with a Tach hooke of Siltier, or a Button of Golde, or of Iuorie. This Garment was not made without great charge, and was verie painfull allo A painfull to her that did weare it. For I have heard pride, aged Weomen (of very honorable houics, that lived in those times, and vsed the fame habite) credibly report; that they haue knowne and fedne fome weomen, who were meerely Hifled under fuch long traind Cownes.

Moreoner, were it Winter or Sum- Furred Garmer, in regard of honour, they also were furred with Ermins, Martines, or Sables. I forbearero speaké of their heavie Vardingales, worne under those long & waighty Gownes; the Fore-part whereof, Great Var-wasicouered with Silke, or Cloth of gold dingales. or Silver, & all the reft was course Buckram or Canuas . At Night, when they haue gone to bed, their bellies and thighs haue beene greenously chafed and flaid, by reason of so heaties waight, and extreamity of heate.

As for the defensive Armes then vfed, which was Harnoffe; were they not The Armour (beyonde comparison) more massic and heavie, then those that now adayes wee Cuiralles. warre withall? Neuertheleffe, they were commonly pierced with Arrows Darts, and Quarries of Croffe-bowes, which in those times were their best weapons. But in these daies, they are so well made and yet not (by three parts) fo waighty, that defence. they will relift a Musker hotte! The like is to be vuderstood of their Swords, and other Weapons of Defence: for in one word of their vie, there was more stuffe, then now we have in three; & yet they will perfourme as much, nay more, then theirs then did.

It hapned manie times, that in their Sword-fight, the one man flepping afide for advantage, the other finiting at him;

Long trained

then vied wordes and almond.

The fecond feruice.

The Feafts &

The first fer-

Banquets of our elders.

the verie waight of the Swords fall, hath fmote it into the ground, fo that he could not eafily recouer it, but stoode vnto the mercy of his enemy. If we trauel yer thorow forme partes, in auncient Castles or Fortrefles, or Armories of long continued Citties; forne of these vnwealdie weapons are daily to be feene. They never made Warre but foure moneths in the years for fixe at the most:

after which time, both the one fide and other withdrewe themselves till VV inter was past and gone. This course is quite

Their time when they warred.

> Winter is the fitteft time for warte, and fome reasons therefore alledged.

contrarievato that which is to bee done in the time of Warre: For, in Winter is the fittest feason, and then doe our best warlicke spirits performe the best exploites of Warre. Then are furprizals aptest, in regard of long Nights, when Riuers and Ditches (being filled with Waters) are firongly frozen. Then dooth a good Captaine take occasion, to make his attempt vppon some place, either to furprize it by scaling, or otherwise. For, then the Spies, Sentinelles, and Watch, are more subject to sleepe, then at other times. And so much the rather, because (viually) that mens Bellies are better fed in this feason; then other-whiles they are, in regard of the plentic of Victualls, which makes the bodie fleepie and flothfull. Likewise, by the fauour of Long Nightes, a great deale of Ground is eafily ridden, and the Enemie fet vppon, when himfelfe least furmizeth it, without much effusion of Bloode, with lesse Companie of Men, and weakest Char-

In those Elder dayes, they thought it a great offence and dishonor, to surprize an Enemy enprouded: but he must have a day affigned him, when hee pleafed to accept the Battaile and this was the reafon, why wars continued fo long a time. But we see quite contrarie, that Warre now commeth fooner to an end, by com pelling the Enemy to come to fight, and prouiding polliticke Ambuscadoes for him: in imitation of Hunters & Woodmen, when they chase wilde and vnruely Beafts, that will neuer yeild, except they be enforced thereto. For if they escape, they wil continually returne to their first

The custome of battailes in A fault to en force the enimy to the fight, fuch was the opi-fore-fathers.

bad Nature. It was a Custome helde in those former Battailes, and verie often obserued, that when men were wearie with Fighting (beeing oppressed with the heauie load of troublesome Harnesse, Goates of Maile and Brigandines, where with their bodies were couered, besides their massie and waightie Swords)they (hould go repose themselves to take breath, yea, (many times) to eate and drink, and then returne to the fight again. As the French men did on the day of battell, before the Citty of Alexandria, about the yeare one thousand three hundred ninety one whiche day they then loft, with Count Iohn

John d'Armignac their chiefe. In those times, battails continued the space of a day; and if they were not then concluded, they went to it again the next morning, to know who then should bee Superior. This was more for honor many times, then any profit enfuing therby, and to have Songs afterwardes made of their floth and negligence. But in these dayes, within two or three houres(commonly) the battell is won or loft, as I my self have obserned in five fought battels, where I flood not as an ydle spectator: & the like haue I heard in other places, performed by the best and most approoued

Captaines of these times. What shall wee fay of their Duello, Combate, or fingle fight, betweene man and man? It was commonly performed combate bewith Swordes, tearmed two-hand swordes, without standing vppon anie war-rantable Guard; but both parts meeting resoluedly on foote; the one receyuing a stroake, while his Enemie stood waiting for another, without any couerture. For, euen like two Smiths beating vppon an Anuile, euch fuch was their behauiour, fmiting alternatively; vling then nothing but cut and flash, without any foine or

In our daics, this kinde of fight endureth but a moment of time, for nothing is vsed but Estoccadoes : fo that vvithin three or foure thrusts, the deadly combat is concluded. For Breuities fake, I omit many other remarkeable thinges: as that they would car no kind of flesh, except it had some strange fauor, like Veni- Eating of fon and wild beafts. Now albeit these viands were dangerous to health, yet I refer it to all mens judgments for it is most certaine, that vie of fuch foode infecteth the heart, and is the cause of diffenterie. Wherefore such as entend to have and keep an honest table, and to cloth or arm

Long cond-

Ancient fin-

HE first Princes and Law-makers, that had not as yet discouered the difficulties iects by inflice; permitted fraternities, Colledges, & Comunities, the end, that the partes and members of one body (in a Common-wealth) beeing at Vnity, the whole Common-wealth it felfe might be the more eafily gouerned. As wee may perceive Numa did, a King and Law-maker amongst the first, who established Fraternities and Colledges, of all Trades and Occupations, and to each Brother-hood, he appointed certain Patrons, Priests, and perticular Sacrifices, after the Sabines name was abolished; that denided it felfe fomewhat from the

Lycurgus gand

The Sodalitia

Lyeurgus alfo, not only gane the fame permission, but likewise strictly commanded the good entertainment of fuch Comunities, aswell generall as perticuler,& that all the Subjects should take their refection in those Colledges, from fifteene dayes, to fifteene dayes: and he cald fuch Affemblies in Greek, pilitia or of Aitia; a Parsimonia, that is to fay, of living Frugally, in regard of the amity they hadde fworne one to another, as also in all the 50 Citties of Greece.

There were likewife of the like Fraternities, which were called etaileias . As in Italy, the felflame Colledges were called Sodalitia, for Vnion, Frequentation, and Amity, which they helde together, cating and drinking (in one Affembly)

Chap. 31. Of Fraternities and Fellovy-ships.

> themselues respectively : must Learne much better directions, and imitate the worthy innentions of these daies, leaning those grose absurdities (for the most part vnprofitable) of our Elders, which themfelues approued and esteemed, but verie flenderly to any purpofe.

> > CHAP. XXXI.

Of the Antiquity of Fraternities, Brotherhoods, Fellow (hips, Societies, or Companies : And to what end they were as first instituted.

The reason of institutingthe firft traternino other Judges but themselves. It there grew any difference among these Companions in Society:they knew that amity was the fole foundation of all Societies. and to be much more requifite amongst men, then Iustice. For, Iustice who is neuer pittifull, but holdes on her direct course oftentimes maketh friendes ne-10 mies, and Amity giuing way to her Seuerity, establisheth true natural Instice. Confidering, that the fole aime of all lawes Divine and Humain, is to maintain loue amongst men, and the loue of men towardes GOD, which could never be compaffed, but by frequent and fociable Conuerfation, and ordinary vnity.

the most part of their time : and having

The verie fame we may fee in the law of God, the Fealt of Easter to be recom- Con-fratermended in the company of ten, to tenne | nall Feafles persons; beside the Feast of Tabernacles in the law of and ordinary bankets of Sacrifices, which | God. God commanded to be folemnized with all ioy and gladneffe, which were entertained in the Primitive Church of Chriftians, who oftentimes made fuch Feafts, in the Primiwhich they called ayarac, for the Kiffes time Church. of Picty and Charitable embracements. which one gaue vnto another besides the fraction, and ordinarie Communica-

This Order is yet better kept in Swetia, then in any place of the world: For, in all Citties and Townes, Fraternities hoods kept a and Occupations have their Common | mongfithe Houses, where they keepe their Featles and Banquets; and there is no Village fo little, but it hath a Common house only for this purpose, wher (continually) suits, Quarrels; and Contentions are louingly concluded; and the fentence is Written downe with White Chalke, vppon the Table where they have Banketted, in token of a white & pure ending of al strifes whatfouer. It were very necessary, that An honest defuch an honest Custome should be every fire determent where vsed for it woulde predent great expences and charges beltowed in friuolous and idle pleadings, whereby infinite persons are viterly vindone.

And euen in like manner as at Rome, according to the Institution of Numa, ar- At Rome, and tificers, Merchants, Priefts, Bythops, & al forts of men had their Fraternities, and of Artezanes. certaine Gods for their Patrons (as Mercury was assigned to the Merchantes, Apollo to Priells, and the like to others, af-

Amity is worth then had their bro-ther-hood.

Christians

learned of Pa

gans to whip thendelues.

Where the Ads 1,9.

ot the Guelphs and Gibelines, first Fraterni-

Cornel Tacitus.

Plin in Lib. 17

Tile Lupercal Fraternity of Shepheards.

The yearely of this Brother-hood.

The idle opinion of We

Invenall,

Marke Antho nya Lupercal Brother.

ter the example of Solon, who ordained by his Lawe, that all Communities and Brotherhoods should be permitted, with power to make fuch Statutes as they plefcd.) Euen fo in like maner, Phylosophers had Fraternities among them, especially the Pythagorianss who affembled together ordinarily, and lived (for the most part)in common.

Herodotus (who lived before Rome was builded) writeth, that there were certain Societies of men in Egypt, who woulde beate and whip themselues so long as the Sacrifice endured, when they immolated a Cowe to their God Apis. Komulus hauing entered into alliance with Tatius, K. of the Sabines, instituted a number of Priests, which were cald the Totian Fraternity. The faid Romulus made himfelfe one of a Brother-hood, which was called Amaux, that is to fay, belonging vnto the Fielde, whereof hee was the Twelfte

About the time of Romes first foundation, because manie VVolues lived then thereabout, which destroyed the Cattle, fo that great loffes were dayly receyued: the Romaines, who were onely but fillie warlicke Shepheards, instituted a fraternitie, and affociated many men togither, 30 electing God Pan to be the chief Patron, to the end, that vnanimately, and with one confent (when occasion required) they might oppose themselus against the VVolues, this was their first foundation. Not long after, neere vnto Mount Palatine, they founde a Litter of younge VVolues, which having destroyed: they afterward builded there a field Temple, dedicated to their God and Patron Pan, according as then their power and ability ferned them. This Fraternity kept ther Celebration anually, and the Brothers went naked, running thorow the Cittie, holding long strappes of Goates skinnes in their handes, wherewith they vied to lash their bodies. The women among them, fuch as were barren, would (in like manner) strike themselues on the palmes of their hands; and verily beleened, that these superstitious Ceremonies woulde cause them to become fruitfull . As may be noted in Invenall, thus mocking a wo-

Nec prodest agili palmas prabere luperco. VVhich is as much to fay, as, it ferues thee to no purpose, to present thy handes thus to the Lupercall Brother-hoode, to bee made fruitful. Marke Anthony the Emperor, he was one of this fraternity, in the yeare, 700. after it was instituted, & ran starke naked through the Citty, as the other did. Iulius Copitolinus faith, that many Brotherhoods were made at Rome, after the decease of Emperors, whom the cofar. Senate (in a manner) deifyed. As, in regard of Augustus, the Fraternities were called Augustales, and Flaurales, after the Family of the Flaurans . Aurelians and Anthonians, in respect of Aurelius and Anthonius, Emperors. Tertullian, Bythop of Carthage, in the Cap. 39. time of great perfecutions and of Paganifine, beholding certain Brother-hoods to be made among the Pagans, carrying meats into the Temples, performing of Sacrifices, eating together, and giving to the poore: hee admonithed the Chriftians to doe the like, but not to meddle with any reuerence to the Gentiles gods, only they should continue firme in the Christian Faith. And it is verie likelie, ples are wor that Popes, Byshoppes, and other holy thy imitation men haue perswaded the Christians to immitate those Assemblies and Fellowflips: for continuance of praier to God, and censuring and separating one from another, when it should truly be known, that some one among them, had doone an acte vnbeseeming the name of a christian. Also, to conferre amiably amongst themselves if any strifes or contentions Holy and Rehad happened in the Company; then to ligious care accord such differences by their Pietie mour Anceand Loue, rather then to plead those di- uoyding of Staffull matters before Judges; keeping bad and feanpurposely an Informer among them, on- unincees, ly to accuse such delinquentes. They would conclude amongst themselves, to redeeme prisoners for debts, and purfue the deliucraunce of prisoners for their Faith; leuying a Collection of fuch fums of money, as should easily compasse this businesse. Also to give aide and assistance to Christians, being in persecution, and forced from place to place: contributing for reliefe of the poor, comforting helpleffe VV iddowes and Orphanes, giving them food, cloathing, and maintenance.

To marry and lend helpe to poor maids, in some competent and reasonable dowries; prouiding for the Funerals of needy people, dying in necessity, or beeing martyred, not having any thing lefte to Volawful fraternit es prohibited & tocounted as ho prembers of the Common wealth.

France.

Of outward Apparance. burie them withall, but onely referred to their care and mercy. Some Brother-hoods learned of those faide Pagan Agyptians, to whippe themfelues; and do practife yet to this day yea euen to effusion of bloud to subdue their bodies (as they fay) enclined to voluptuoutneffe; and this they do twice or thrice weekely; Others more rarely, according to their Denotion. Thefe Fraternities 10 haue fliled themselues Niniutes, because they finde in the Sacred Scripture, that the Inhabitants of Niniuy, being warned by the Prophet Imas, that they thould be destroyed for their finnes: heereon they became verie penitent, put on fackcloath

The first Society or Fraternitie made among Christians (fo farre as my judge- 20 Of Polybius the Romaine Ambassador, and ment reacheth) was in Ierusalem, where the ever-bleffed Virgin Marte, the Mother of lefus, all the Apostles, and many other, as well weomen as men, Disciples of Ielus Chrift, met together, and were in number about fixe fcore, after he was exalted up into Heauen, where they recevued the Holy-Ghoft, and afterwards, remaind long time in their Brotherhood and affembly.

cause it is long since, that it hath bin too well noted in Italy, when the factions of and athes, and chastifed their bodies, to appeale the wrath of God.

I will not fay, that both Holy and vertuous affemblies have not beene abused. The factions under pretence of Piety and religion, be the Guelphes and Gibelines were under ful faile, labouring with one confent (vinder the pretence of fraternity) quite to exterminat one another. As much is found to be done in Germany, especialy in the Diocelfes of Treues, Colugne, Liege, Mayence The barms in and elsewhere during the trobles of their Germany and Countreves.

This miferie also made way into France; gathering vp Monopolies, in sted of congregating like louing Brethren; yea, bandying and elevating themselves against their King, and against the Catholicke Church, which succeeded to nothing els, but multiplicity of feditions, only to fupport the part they had taken. But fuch vnlawfull affemblies are reprodued by the Church, and no such Fraternities should be permitted in Communion of the Sacrament, prophaning holy things, & the peace of the Church. I or they ought not to intrude into fuch matters as appertaine only to the Prince, under colour of reforming, but they should be taken as feditious, factious, and feelerates, yea, to be quite cut off from the bodie of the militant Church.

Thus you fee, what I thought good to discourse, concerning the Antiquity and Vtility of Fraternities or Brother-hoods. And that they were not instituted by the first Christians, for Sporting, Dancing, and Drinking, as many ignorant and detracting persons have thought, and so laboured to perswade the simple people.

CHAP. XXXII.

his opinion of the lewish Commonwealth when hee was at Alexandria in

Olybius the great Historian, a most elegant orator, and learned Phylo-fopher, School-maister, or (as some will haue it) Companion vnto Sa the Affrican, being fent by a Senat on Embassic to Alexandria in Egipt hauing heard of the civill warres that then were in Iudea, made a mockery of the Iewes, and fuch as held opinion that the church and Doctrine of God, should bee consti- sedition in tuted by the lewish people. For then, all fould be the that Nation was full of troubles and inte- Sacrificer. fline broiles, the great facrificing Priest being violently dispossessed of his estate by another, and this man flain or murdered by another. Euen as lason did, who expulsed his Brother Menelaus : & then, his Fellow afterward caused his Brother Onias to bee murthered . In briefe, by Ambition of the Sacrificers, who raifed civill warres; they prophaned the bloud of their Fellow-Cittizens, the Dead bodies of their elders were scattered in the ftreets, yea, hurled into the Porch of the Temple. During which time, Intiochus King Antiochus of Syria, called thether by one of the fac- knew how to or syria, cancel there by one of the face Fish introductions, exercised cruell thecueries in euc-

ric

Cruch es vied towardes women, and their Children.

Three contra ry Citty. He placed his Garrison in the Temple, celebrated the Feast of Bacchus in the City in which City only, stoode the Temple of the true God. Circumcifion was interdicted, and because two Weomen had caused their Children to be circumcifed, they were led naked thorough the Citty, bearing their strangled Infants at their Breafts; and (at length) themselues were throwne ouer the wals. Another, who had feauen Children was flayed, difmembred, and fried in a burning Caldron, because shee would not eate Swines flesh, contrary to the Ordinance of the Law. Befide this, during these Calamities, there were rifen three different Sects, of ry Sects in te

the Effees, Saducees, and Pharifees; who more tormented the Church, and her true Doctrine, then all the maffacres comitted by the lewes. In the end, Polybins to behold this so much deformed estate, thought then, that the Romain Scnate (where there was a Scipio, a Lalius, a Scauola, a Cato, a Fannitu, and others, that gouerned in the World wifely) was the place where God delighted most to be : & that he fauoured the Romans most. For, they profeered more in all their conquests, then all other Princes or people of the world did: and hee judged the affaires and condition of the world, acording as hee faw people in their good bad estate.

Now, albeit it was verie strange to see the Church in such a dissipation and de-formity, yet notwithstanding, there were (euen then) fome good members that cleaued fast to her: Such were Simeon,

Zachary, and many others, both Maisters and Disciples in her Divine School; and after them, the Asmonees or Machabees .

I alledge these things for many Reasons:

First, to the end, that we should hold this

Confolation, that God hath enermore his Church truely permanent, especially in this mortall life : to the end, that alwayes some part of mankind should truly know God, call vpon him, and celebrate his name, and that part need not doubt, but that they are preferred, counter-gar-

If Polybius had feen fome hundreds of yeares afterward, when the Popes were expelled out of Rome, and perfecuted, he would have faid as much of the Catholicke Church. As we read of Pope Alexded, and heard of God.

The Church ofGod can neuer lofe his Gods church alwayes per-manent in this life. ander, third of that name, molested for many wayes by the most potent Emperor Frederick Barbaraffa, finding no place in all Christendome for fafety of his life: that (in the end) hee was constrained to retire himselfe to Venice, in the habite of a poor Prieft, hiding himself in the church of La Charita, where he was received as a poore Chaplaine, and relicued for the loue of God. But at length, being known for the man he was indeed, hee found affiftance, and was re-feated in his place. Pope Clement fift of that name, in regard the fift forces of the factions in Italy, durft not abide at to flie Rome, Rome, but was compelled to hold his See at Auignon, where (after him) it was coiltinued by his fuccessours, the space of threefcore yeares and more. Likewise, because there happened about three and twenty Schiffnes in the Church, fome whereof, lasted seaventeene yeares and more: fometimes three Popes were elected at one time, who made most cruell Warre one vpon another; One, defending Emperors; Others, fom other Princes, I cannot expresse the Cruelties, Infolencies, Diforders, and Wickedneffes, which (during these troubles)were committed in the Church. And yet neuerthelesse, in these hor times of Molestations, there were many good people, full of Piety, aswell women as men, among whom Gods true Church was stil preferued and manifested.

For proofe whereof, while thefe three Popes were thus in contention, to wit; holy perform Symmachies, Laurentius, and Petrus Alti- in the timed nus; there flourished great store of wor- the Schismes thy personages, that were of Holie and vertuous life, of whom I wil name some. Fulgentius Bythop of Hifbalis, a Monke; Theodores a Gracian Prieft , Ifidore, Byshop of Auuergne; Eusebius of Carthage; Dionisius the Abbot: Auitus Vuiencis; Senerims. Bishop of Trenes : Ægisippus the Divine; S. Patrick of Ireland; Pommerius and Honoratus : Cassiodorus the Monke; Fridelin of Bafile, and many others. If The Coman hundred yeares after Polybius lined, he could have feene the Romain Common- fipated. wealth wholly dissipated by the factions of Pempey, of Cafar; then of the Trium-ueri, all the World being filled with Ci-uill Wars; to attribute that which those famous Romaines (in his time) had conquered, by so great providence and discreet prefernation, hee would then have Pope Alexan. der the third bannhed out of Rome.

Three Popes

faid, that God did not respect Rome more then he did any other nation. He thould also then have well noted the Pagans, among whom, Vertue, true Doctrine, and Honesty, was daily perfecuted and despifed: for then, if a man did but faigne to haue the truth, he was fure his Throate should be cut. But Polybius is excuseable, for he had no knowledge of God, but was a Pagan.

He could not comprehend, that the paf-fage to the Kingdome of heaven, is tho-row infinite Tribulations. He beleeved, that there was no other Paradife, but only to liue happily in this world. Hee was an Areadian, borne in the Cittle of Megalopolis, a great Phylosopher and Histo-riographer, verie wel skilled in militarie

Discipline. He wrote fortie Bookes in the Greeke tongue, containing the gefts and pollicies of the Romains. Of all which Bookes, at this day, hardly is any more to be found, then five the reft were loft and burnt by his Maid-fernant, being ignorant what they were. But a yong man, that fometime attended on him , knowing the merit of his writings, hindred the Maids follie, and preferred those which wee haue, from hurling them into the Titus Linius hath beene much beholding to him, for it plainly appeareth, that he followed him (word by word) in ma-

Of outward Apparance.

Polybius knew not God, but was a Pagan.

Chap. 32.

His Countrey and place of birth.

. Palybius was true Historian, not fubfolly of fome

Titus Livius

beholding to ny of his paffages, without altering anie thing : and yet it was the space of an hundered years, or thereabout between him and the faide Tiens Linius. He was not fo Superstitions as some other Historiographers, who mingled falle miracles of their Gods among their Woorkes: as apparitions of Gods, Goddelles speaking with Captaines or heads of printes; that they rained downe Blood, Milke, Stones, and fuch like that Beafts did fpeake, Riuers conuert their Naturall colour into Blood, and other thinges meerely incredible. Nordid he write the Orations of Ambassadors, Captaines, and Kinges, wholly at large; without forgetting any iot, as many other Historians (both be- 50 fore and after him) have done; laboring to perswade their Readers, that those affaires whereof they discourse, passed according as they are let downe; which is not easily to be credited,

Now, as concerning the cause why he went into Egypt, it was not to learne

there what God was, or any of his workes : as did Plato, Democritus, Chrisippus, Anaxagoras and others; for he had read | Embassie inwhat those Phylosophers had Written, to Egypt. and many more befide. But the Romaine Senat wellknowing him, althogh a strahger, and that he had done very much fernice to Scipio, in giving him good adulfe and Counfel, for his conduct in the wars of Affrica, and of Carebage, deputed him their Amballador, to negotiate and accord fome matter of peace, between Ptolomy Energetes, King of Egipt; and Antiochies, King of syria, and of manie other great Provinces, who formerly had ranged ouer the Egyptian Territories, and Polybius accorded them verie worthilie. Hauing ended his Legation, he returned to Rome, where (it is faid)he died, deeply charged with yeares.

He taught and instructed that Noble Scipio, in many Vertues, and among other precepts which he left him ! that he mould never removie from the place, whereto occasion called him, vitill hee had won himfelfe a friend there. In brief, enerie man of good judgement, will not iudge rafnly, of good or cuill perfons, by outward apparance, beholding them to be fortunate, rich, or poore, nor feeing them afflicted; but rather, by their good actions, vprightnes of life, and pureneffe of Doctrine.

CHAP. XXXIII.

Of a firance conseit or opinion, in the Weomen of Molcouia, to wit; That if they be not beaten by their Husbands, they thinke that they are not loved of them.

Imagined(for a long time)that that which is reported of the Weomen of Mosconia, frouldbee a meère Fable, to wit that if they were not very often beaten by their husbands, they presently supposed that they did not Loue them; although it is vied as a common Proucibe : Hee that loueth K k

he death of

Few women I thinke) of this minde.

Weomen in our countries

be erronious.

Weomen are eafily moned

to helpe one another in teuenge.

most, correct eth most. But such as are subicct to Discipline, Correction, and Chastifement, as are Slaues, Seruaunts, and Children of a Family, beeing vnder the power of Maisters, Tutors, or Parents, they will hardly confesse themselues, to be beloued more then any other, because they are beaten more then other. Neuertheleffe, the Wcomen of Moseouia doo hold this opinion quite contrary vnto all other elfe-where, that if they be not beaten, they are despised, and no way esteemed.

I am well affured, that no man can perswade this for allowable, to the weomen of France, Italy, Spaine, England, no nor to the Germain weomen, or that they would accept, and let it passe for currant Doctrine: although, if it happen that they should bee beaten, even when they have verie justly deserved it; yet notwithstanding, they will strine to cry first, yea, and to beate their Husbands too, if they could; or otherwise injurie and abuse them . And Weomen-Neighbours to impeach the entraunce of fo bad a Custome, would helpe such women as complained, both in their maledictions and imprications, against such as (deseruedly) do strike their Wines, aledging Saint Paules saying, Thei, no man should hate his owne Flesh. The Wicomen of Moscoura, do neuer go out of their owne Houses, not so much as to the Churches, and do nothing else but spin. And to give affurance of what I have alreadie faid, I will declare three Historics, which very good Authors haue left Written, and which I my felfe haue heard credibly auouched by men of worth, that have bin in those 40

Laurentius Surius, a Religious Char-kinde of affection, because he did not at any time beate her. The Germaine hearing this, made answere; that hee loued her entirely; and perfwaded himfelfe.

that blowes could bee no true fignes of Loue. Afterward, he vsed to beate her fo extreamly, and fo often, that he found treux of Cologne in Germany, Writes in his Booke of memorable matters, aswell Laurent Sur in Ecclefiasticall as Secular: how it happe Lib.ae Kub. Mem tant, Ec ned (in his time) that a Germaine trauaicief.qua Seculed into those parts, and married with a Woman of that Countrey, and his wife made a great complaint to him, that hee did not loue her, neither bare her anie 50

(by good proofe) his Wife did loue him much better then the did before. But his beating was fuch, and so immeasurably, as (at length) the Hangman brake both his legs and necke.

I was verie familiar with a Germaine Another Hiof Lunebourg, whose father was Ambas- ther confirfador for Ferdinando, Emperour, first of mation of this that Name, not long fince deceased, de- custome. puted to Basilius , Duke and King of Moscours; and hee affured me, that this Opinion was a Custome, and still in vie with the Weomen of that Country, & heard his Father faithfully report it. For he being lodged in the house of an honorable Burgeffe in the City Moschna, about the bufineffe then referred to his truft, fawe his hoste oftentimes beate his wife vpon no occasion, and yet notwithstanding, thee left not to love him, and they spake ftill kindly each to other, without the verie leaft thew of discontent; and yet the faid woman was very often beaten, sometimes with his dagger, or aftaffe, or kickt with his feete. He said moreouer, that there a was Gold-Smith in the fame Ci-

tie, with who this Ambaffador often fre- Another Hiquented, because he knew him before in Gold mith & the Towne of Lunebourg, This Woman his wife. fent word by one of her young Children to her husband, that hee had not beaten his mother (fo much as once) althat week time: but if he would not beate her, the

would never love him, neither would fing prouide any more diet for him . The Goldfinith beging very builty imployed about his worke, regarded not his fonnes words, neither remembred this, cultome

our, to finite his dearest triend and wife, or fo much as to flew her any vnkinde countenance : yet afterward, ypponher importunity, and to discharge his dutie;

fo generally in vic, as those (Naturally borne in the Country) had great respect Authors that vnto it for their pwne quiet For hee was have written of the war of a man hungaine quough (far a Germaine) and allowed northis barbarous behauis hee gaue her halfe a dozen blowes with a Cudgell on the backe and fhoulders, & puld off her Head-attire, wherewith the was well contented, and called him prefently to an excellent prepared Dinner. Otherwise, if a whole week should passe, and he not beate her, there could be no quietnesse in the house, norshould he get one good looke of her. This is an ordinary custome among the V Veomen in the great Province of Mofconia.

In briefe, this manner and custome of men beating their Wines, could not arife but out of Sathans shoppe; for the Christian Church hath euermore condemned it. There are none in these parts, but Knaues, Fooles, Icalous Coxcombs, Drunkards, or men voide of vnderftanding, that will exercise such Barbarous behauiour on their Wines : yet let mee not be mistaken, for I do not excuse som Weomen, that deferue to bee beaten for their vices and badneffe, and wil give extraordinary occasion to be marply handled by their Husbands. But my meaning is, of vertuous, difereet, and well adulfed women, whose merits are not meanly to do deferue beating.

Chap.?4.

Whence this cultome grew

CHAP. XXXIIII.

be cherrithed, but highly respected by their Husbands.

That those things, which some Authors have left written, concerning the De-Struction and raine of great Iruy, performed by the Greekes, are true.

very much, at the wilful pertinacity of some men, who rathly have effeemed, that those things written by many good Authors, deferuing credite and faithfull opinion of the warre and ruine of Troy in Phrygia, thould be meere Fables, and ydle vanities This error happeneth, because they have not read some Bookes, Written by parties prefent at the Warre on either fide as well Greekes as Troyans : as Dictys of Creet, and Dares Phrygius, and others, who collected alfo their Writings out of found Authority, living not long after the time when those things happened, As Herodotus and others, that heard them reported by Captaines & Commanders who had charge in the faid Warres among whom, was Philiftie the Greeke, and some others befide, that felected them out of verie auncient Authors. As namely, Quintus Septimines the Romain ; Damafcenius Sicierus; Amtlius Mater the Poet ; Enclide the Megarian Phylosilpher, and Homer, who was about eight score yeares after.

Many Monarkes, Kinges, and other Princes took the paines, comming from farre Countries, to fee the City of Troy : Emperon as Alexander the Great, that found it rui- wene to ice ned by the Persians, who likewise destroied all that part of affa, wherein it was feated. But Fenthylus, Nephew to Agamemnon, builded it againe, after that the Greekes had facked it : raigning there, & his fuccessors (as is affirmed) vntill such time as the Perfians querthrew it. Alexander the Great, then having readmanie Heroicall actions, performed at the befiedging of this Cittie, and finding it laid defert, caused it to be re-edified, & gane great immunities and Priviledges to the inhabitants, whom hee exempted from 20 ordinary tributes; instituting there Free-Fayre, Martes, and Markets, for all fuch as would dwell there, or Negotiate with Trey changed them : in regard whereof, it was named and called & Alexandria. M. Anreliue, Dioclesian, & lexandria. C'andisse, Romaine Emperours, potent and mighty, tooke paines to travell thether from some, not without much coft and labour. And to leaue a memorie to posterity, of their beeing there, they caused a goodly Columbe to be erected, (which is yet (at this day) to be seene) of white Marble, very great, and placed in it being called Troy : but in regard of the great Antiquity thereof, it standers not directly vpright, but leaneth fome-what towards the Sea ; and thereon is engrauen these words following!

Imperator Cafat. Mer. Antonius pi- Interiprions us, Falix, Parthiel Maximus, Trib. Pl. vpon a Pilice Imp. P.XV. Conf. III, Prouinciam Affant, per viam, & flumina, pontibus fullingawir.

And on the other fide of the faid Piller, was likewife written :

Imperator Cafar Augustus, Diocletiano, P. Col. II. regnante Tribunicia vicit poteflate. M. F. Tiet Clandens, C. VIII.

In the time of the Warre which the Romans had against Withridates this Ci- Another dety was again destroyed to the verie foun- Troy. dation by a Roman Captain, named Fimbria, because Mithridates was possessed thereof, and had planted there his Garrifon, which did much harme to the Romaines. Yet it was new builded againe. Kk2

Alexander and other Kemania

The name of

Matter that the time of Marcus Aurelius the Emperour there was an excellent Vniuerfitie Gi'en a Studentiu Troy in the fame place, of all Sciences, and Galen the Physician was then a Student Likewise, Saint Luke testifieth, that

(but I know not by whom) because in Acts 20, 12.

Troy again de

The ruines of

are at this day ilion Caftle.

Troy which

Gothes.

Saint Paule paffed thorough it, and that he raifed up there, a young man, named Eutichus, that fell downe deade out at a Window, from the third Loft of the house: Also, that he preached there, and celebrated the holy Communion, where there remained a great number of Iewes. Three hundered yeares after, or thereabout, this Cittie was once again destroied by the Gothes.

I thinke it was yet againe re-builded afterward, and that the Inhabitants were Christians, because (at this day) manie 20 croffes may be feen Engrauen on ftones, enclosed in the walles of divers temples therein, that stand (as yet) most part of them, being not wholly destroyed.

At this present, no person dwelleth there, nor within a Leagues compasse round about it; I know not whence this differtion should proceed. The neere Neighboring Inhabitants do fay, that before the Turkes got their enterance into Greece, it was then to be feen in the fame condition. The fix ancient Gates, are yet there (almost) intire, with their Posternes. The Towers about the walles in many places are yet standing vpright; and the height of the VValles are (verie neere) firmely standing; against which, and circuit of

> The wals were builded of Free-stone, blacke like Iet; hard, but fpungy; asking a large time to goe about them : and the Ditches are not (as yet) filled vp. There are two Castelles, verie ancient, within the circuite of the Cittie, builded vpon the pendant of a Mountaine: one of the which, being much higher then the Cittie, as having command thereof, and was called Him Caftle, The other beeing 50 much lower, had command of the Sea; both of them beeing builded of bright Marble; and so excellent in their constru-

are erected strong Piles and Spurres of two Fadomes breadth, to sustaine them

cture, as it is impossible for anie man in the world, wholly to demolish them. Concerning matters within the City, there are yet to be discerned the marks and tracts of such goodly buildinges, as | The markes exceed my capacity to expresse. There are yet to be feene strong Conduits and Cesternes, without any water belonging to them. The streets are verie confused, by reason of the houses ouerthrow which (for the most part) was flat forward. Of Welles or Fountaines, there is no more but one now to be seene, and that is neer to the Sea fide. Naturall Baths are there yet to be noted, holding their nature dry and hot, builded by excellent Art, and Artificially conered with fine Bricke. But be it howfoeuer, it must be much greater matter, then as yet I have heard of, that shall or can cause mee to beleeve those things for Fables, that are written and reported of the greatnesse, wealth, and power of this Citty.

There are yet many Sepulchres to be seen, both within and without the Citie, of Captains and Princes, aswell Troians as Greeks, that were flaine during the warre, made (in Anticke maner) of Marble, all in one peece, after the fashion of a Chest, the couers whereof are whole & found. Halfe a League or a mile from Troy, is the Isle of Tenedos, where are the The Isle of most part of the Greekes Sepulchers. As Tenedos. that of Achilles, who was the terror of the Troyans, yet flaine by Paris . He was fo highly effeemed, that many of his blood | many more, were afterward carried thither, to lye by vifited by A him in his Tombe, so much did they admire his memory.

This was the Tombe that Alexander went to vifit, weeping oner it, and much complaining, because he was not so happie, as to haue a man that could fo well publish his praises, as Homer had doone those of Achilles; it remaineth yet entirely whole with divers Greeke Verses thereon engrauen. And about the yeare of Iefus Chrift, 1379, when Baiazeth the fon of Selim raigned ouer the Turkes , there was found in the faide Ifle of Tenedos, the Sepulcher of an Amazon Queen, named The Tombe Marpelia: who after many booties, being an Amazon tichly laden with spoiles, made hir return Queene. to this Island, verie fore hurt and wounded, and there ended her dayes. This Tombe is yet to be seene, betweene two hilles of indifferent height; and a litle before one of them, there is a Greeke Epitaph on the couer of the Marble Cheft, and there her name is comprized in faire Carracters. Αt

One onely Well as yet remaining.

Naturall Bathes yet tobe

Tombes and Sepulchers yet to be feen feription is to be doubted.

Belian in Lib :

Chap. 34. At any times with opening verie late ground, or passing not about a foote in depth, many other famous tombs might be easily discourred. As the Tombe of Aiax was, in that quarter where Achilles, encamped his men. About this Itle, of Tenedos, there are many other little le flands, of as good ground as that of Ten nedos, but vn-inhabited, except by fome poore Fisher-men that make their retirement thither fometimes . And it hath beene immagined, to be hanted with spirites, which speake to men in regard whereof, the men that refort thither and abide there any time, do fay, that the fpirit of Homer wanders in those Islandes, where he did (in former dayes) Phylosophize; and that he (hewed himfelf to certaine Shepherds, as they paffed that way to feed their Cattle. Thus you may heare 20 the opinion of fuch as doo now dwell about Troy, and neere the lile of Tenedos; touching visions and spirits that appeare in those Islands.

The Rivers of Simois and

The Spirito

walke yet in

Honey faid to

The Tombe

they are dried up in Summer, and in the deepest of Winter, a Duck cannot swim there. But our Poets have published fo many Fables of these Rivers, as they should seeme to have beene much greater, then now they are. Yet must we not (for all this) fay, that the History is not true, because Painters and Poets are Licenfed to embellish their woorkes with more then their inftant fubiect requireth; 40 and we must likewise understand, that vnder Poeticall Fables; there is viuallie a morrall sense contayed. As concerning the Scituation of this Citty, Theuer maketh a quite contrarie description thereof, and faith, That these two fore-named, are great Rivers : and

As for the Rivers of Simois and Xinthus, fo much renowned by many Poets which watered the fields of Troy, we can now fay no otherwise of them, but that they are finall Brookes or Gullets, scarfe able to nourish a Loach or Minnow: for 30 that it is feated in a good foile. I would be loth to contradict fuch a person, but that which I write, I have gathered from Bellonius a Physitian of Mans; in the fecond Booke of his Observations: and 1 my felfe haue heard him often report being at Paris, at Postell, that foure years he frequented that Country. Afterward, a man of Rohan, named Albert le bon, declared that he had bin in those parts, and remained there a whole W inter, agreeing in all things which Beloni to had written . I thinke verily, that Theuet was neuer there, but what hee bath recorded. was onely by heare-fay.

That which hath given occasion to fome, not to credite the destruction of Troy, is (as I have heard) the judgement of the defireof Paris, concerning the beautie of the three Goddeffes Dares Phrygius Writeth, that it was nothing but a Dreame which Paris had as he flept vnder a Tree, being concerning wearied with Hunting in the Forrest of the three Ida: and Poets making vie of this dream. haue aduifed young Princes, not to imitate the folly of Paris. For hee refused Riches, which Juno presented him; and wisedome and understanding in all thinges, offered him by Pallas, if to eyther of them he would have given the Golden Ball. But fuffering himfelfe to be fwayed by voluptuous defires, hee chofe rather to give it to Venus, the Goddeffe of loofe and mif-governed affections, that has might line (alwaies after) in fuch licentious liberty. And, as an especiall note of his skilfull progression, hee made a Rape of faire Helena, wife to Menelaus, King of Lacedemon, that entertained him in his Court as a kind friend. A matter, which caused the ruine of all his family, and of all the Treyan Kingdome befide.

Secondly, they alledge also as a fable, that Priam commanded his fon Paris to be flaine, because Heenba(his Queen)being great with childe, had a dreame that The thould be delivered of a Tire-brand. And having conferred with interpreters of dreames, the King was informed, that the infant then in hir womb, thold be the cause of his ruine, and of the whole kingdom. This dreame might very likely bee dreamed by Hecuha, in regard, that verie Princes have often Princes and Princesses (by ef- many adropecial grace) forewarned of God; both in niffments in Dreames, dreames and otherwife; concerning diuers things which are to happen, to the end, that they might preuent them. For, accidents good or cuil do not only touch them, but all the people likewife. In brief, Paris from his infancy was fo vicious, as his father could neuer afford him a good looke. And when he was in his youthfull dayes, without any adule of his Pa- Paris made a rents, he married a Nimph of the Fields, marriage. but yet thee was verie faire and vertuous,

Named Oenone; and afterwardes for ion the dream

A third reafon for the

Diana caule

of the plague

A meere pra-and where-gini y.

Thirdly, they affirme for a fable, that which Dictys Cretenfis, Homer and other Authours have Written, of the Plague dispersed in the Campe of the Gracians, when they affembled to plant their fiege before Trey, the Armie confifting then of no leffe, then twelve hundered thoufand able men. Euery man knoweth, that contagious Diseases doo seldome cease from pursuing great Armies, because men live there vnwholesomely, in regard of Corruptions by dead Bodies, and other annoyances amongest Men: Befides, Welles and Waters abused or corrupted; for men and beafts drinke all together, whereby the ayre becommeth infected.

fookeher, when he had enjoyed her vir-

The people then perceyning fo great a Mortality, without finding any Remedie for it, had re-course to their Goddes, and confulted with Oracles. The Priests 1 7 ng then verie fubtle and crafty, made aunswere; That this Pestilence ensued by the anger of Diana, and this was the reason thereof . Agamemnon, Brother to Menelaus , elected Chiefe Leader of the Armie, had flaine a goodly Hinde, which was Prinate and Sacred, and was 30 kept by the Sacrificing Priests (for pleafure) in some Fielde or Forrest, Dedicated to the faide Goddesse. They made them also beleeue, that they had oftentimes seene Diana, to take great delight in sporting and playing with that Hinde. Wherefore, if they would have the plague to cease, they must Sacrifice the Daughter of Agamemnon, King of Mycema, who was the onely cause of all the 40 euill.

Now, it is well knowne, that this ydle practife or Gullerie, was expressely prepared against sigamemnin, by some of the other Kinges, who were malicious and enuious (effeeming themselues aboue him) because he was chosen chiefe Soueraigne, and commaunded ouer fo great an Armie, wherein were no lesse then thirtie nine Kings. And this was 50 denifed onely to discontent him, and giue him occasion for to depart home againe: yea, and the Oracle being enftructed to this Coolenage, returned that

Beeing on the verie point of constraining him to deliuer his Daughter to bee

Sacrificed, Achilles and some other of Sactificed, Ashuer and tome other of his Friends, who had Credite fufficient with the other Kings, found the meanes to redirefte this extreamitie. For they being afsifted by fome of the Priefts and Sacrificers, that ire-confuted with the coracle. Oracle, having receyued a good fumme of Money, returned a report, that Diana would be contented with the facrifice of another Hinde, and of a Bull, which accordingly was performed.

Then the Gracian Armie entered into their prepared Shippes, which amounted to the number of eleanen hundered and fortie Saile, or there-aboutes : and dislodging thence, changed the Ayre. So, by Naturall Reason, that Contagious infection ceased : and thus should that part of the Historie bee vnder-ftoode. For the Palladium, which was an I-mage of Woodde, representing Pallas dium or image fainc from Heauen, with a mighty thundring for image faince from Heauen, with a mighty thundring for from the Troyans had builded in the Citties which being finished, and they not knowing to what God or Goddeffe they shold make their Vowes, or elect as their Patron, this happening in the Night time, the Gates of the saide Temple being fast thut. This was nothing elfe, but onely a meere inuention of men, and principally of the Sacrificers, and Conctons Idolatrous Priestes, who found the meanes (one Night) when there was great lightning, Thunder, and Raine, to bring the faide Image thither fecretly. And comming the next morning to open the teniple Gates, in the presence of manie people; they made them beleeve, that in this ple are forterrible time of night, the Image was def cended from Heauen. Whereuppon, the Troians admyring this deceitful won- of Holineffe. der, sent some of their Noblest Cittizens (with the Sacrificers) to Delphos, there to confult what was to be done with this statue descended from heaven. The Priests of Delphos, understanding the drift of the fubtle Treyans, conspired one with another, to aunswere by the Oracle (which was a Virgine closely concealed in the Vault, and well instructed in hir answer:) That the Image of Pallas had not beene fent from Heauen , but for the more affurance and preferuation of the Troyans estate; and that so long as shee remayned within the Temple, the Cittie of Conspirators

Chap. 34. Troy could not be furprized by Warre. The Troyan people tooke this Oracle for an Article of Faith, and so did the Grecians also: for it brought them into dispaire of euer taking the Citty, and gaue the other fide vindoubted affurance, that they frould never be furprized or vanquished; and the better to countenance their perswasion, the Troyans placed strong Guards (ordina- 10

of warre; yea, even the most resolved ger: and none remained, but tyred weake men, wearied with fustaining folong a fiedge, and voide of any hope of fuccour. Some Prin es, and other men of marke, fore-feeing that the Palladium could not bee preserved;

without speaking to Priam their King,

(who was then very old and feeble) or

Hecuba the Queene: conferred closelie weary and tyred as they, defiring nothing more, but to raise their siedge, & returne home to their owne Countrey)

yet made an outward bold shew, of stil continuing the fiedge. When they met to capitulate, among others were Anthenor, Aneas, and some elfe, who promifed, if they might have their lives and goods faued, they would admit the Enemy benefit of entrance. Promifes past on both sides by sollemne oath, in a place very fecret and free for the purpose; the people (in meane while) sup-poling, that they treated of a truce a mong themselves, of the reddition of Prisoners, and recovery of worthy mens bodies, flaine in the skirmithes.

But aboue all thinges elfe, the Greekes ftrictly held, that the Palladium should bee delinered to them : for they were perswaded, that they should neuer get entrance into Trey, folong as the Image

continued there, fo farre did the deuill

(then) preuaile with men. This fot-tish light beleefe, S. Augustine verie exceeding wel mocked, when he faid: The Troyans were keepers of the Palladium, but with the Greekes, (who were as much | 3

Two brought into wofull bufed by a falle Oracle.

not the Palladium of the Troyans. The Guards were wun with Mony, and the Vest ales that were there destined; contrary to their Oath and Vow, suffered their Palladium to bee lott, and another Image pur into the place, very neerche refombling it, covered with the fame ornaments and lewels, whereof none was then mindfull.

> tented, and fent great prefents to the Traytors, with reiteration of their Oathes. Whereupon, in the dead time of night, the Traytours opened the Gate called Scea, whereon was emboffed the head of a Horse, and by a flaming Torch, gaue fignall to the Greekes for entring the Citrie, which they did, and defroyed having yet the Traytours Children in their hands as hostages. Thus was the Citty taken, King Priam flaine, his wife and Children led away Captines, and fuch as remained of the Royall Isfue. were murdred, and almost all the people maffacred: Faith was kept with the of Tray faued, were exempted from spoile. To wit, Anchifes, Father to Aneas, Anthener, neere Kinfman to King Priam, Polydamas, Vealegon, Amphidamas, Dolon, and divers other ; to whom Ships were giuen, for conucighing thence their wines, children, & what focuer elfe they could'carry away . After the facke had

> > The number that dved in tiucs. As concerning the Horse of wood,

The Palladium being now in the berily well payed) about the Palladium. fiedgers power, they were highly con-Now, it fortuned, that by long delay of time, many rough battailes and skirmishes, and all places of entrance into the Citty fo strongly besiedged; that Troy could no way bee supplyed with victuals . But being thus fenerelie beleagerd, themore part of the best men and valiantest Troyans, dyed with hun- 20

betrayers, but yet with great difficulty : and their neuertheleffe, after the reduction, they continued the space of eight daies, the Citty was wholy burned, but they had great difficulty to destroy it : for the buildings were all of Marble, or of free

Stone, strongly courred and tarraffed. But the Greeks were very great in spleen against it, because the most part of them (in this long fiedge) had loft many of their Kinred and deere Friends, beside their owne hard sufferance in the warre. There dyed in this befiedging, eight hundred, eighty and fixe thousand Greekes, vntill the reddition of the Citty; and fixe hundred; featienty; fixe thousand, as well of the Citty, as such fuccours as was fent them, by Kinges, Queenes, and their Allies abroad, without making any account of both Men and Women, that were led thence cap-in like cafe.

A fift reason the fable of harfe of wood within whose belly men were hidden, and whereof they made an offering to Pallas, to compaffothe meanes of breaking the wals thereby, and fo to ouercome their enemies : thefe (truely) are Poeticall Fables, But yet we are to obferue, that the Citty was furprized at that gate, whereon there was the head of a Horse (very bigly) embossed, and of blacke Marble, as before wee haue

A fixt reason, the Fables of the Antagones, faid to come to the fuccour of Troy, conducted by their Queene Penthefileas this is a Fable too. But yet we must credit that this Woman was a Queen, and commaunded ouer many Countries; a Friendand neere Ally to King Priam, in whose aide she came bringing with her eight orten thousand men, and not Women, that were flaine in feuerall fights; and the her felfe (at laft) in a fingle combate with Achilles. For, there was neuer any Countrey, inhabited onely by Women, nor is at this present, which I purpose else-where to It is also held for a Fable, that the

A feauenth reafon, the tenne yearcs fiedge of Troy.

> Whence the Author tooke his interpretation of the Poeticall Fa-which is faid to be made by the Greekes, faid, and it remainerly yet to be feene. Next, for the Amazones, which are Greekes should abide at the siedge of 20 Troy, the space of ten yeares: this is not altogether incredible, because as much hath beene done in our time. The fiedge which Baiazeth brought before Constantinople, lasted eight yeares and some moneths, in the yeare 1373. and yet (for all that) was not taken. That which I have written, concerning the subtilties of the Priestes in those daies: I protest, I faw them in the hand 40 of Monsieur Pelerin, a Parisian, Schoolemaister to the children of the late Lord De l'Aubespine, in a Booke being a Manuscript, & in the Greeke tongue, which a man of the Church had ginen him, who was a follower of Monfieur de Fumell, Ambassadour in the East. This man had the Booke of a Caloere, or religious Greeke at Mount Athos; and therin is the Interpretation of the Fables, which I have alledged in this Chapter, and many more belied. The Authour thereof was one Temifon, a Smyrnian, who (I thinke) was a Sacrificer, and afterwardbecame a Christian.

There is a certaine Booke, intitled, Troy not taken, it is in the Greeke toong, and translated likewise into Latine, which is faide to be composed by one named Dion the Sophister, that lived Dion the Soin the time of Traiane the Emperour phifter deceiand neuer vsed any other Garment, writings. then the skinne of a Lyon. But he alleadgeth such poore reasons, to proue that Troy was neuer taken, nor befieged by the Greekes: that a Childe of tenne yeares olde would fet downe better. Therefore, fuch as doe yet hold that error, and are perswaded, that what hath beene written by many oculary Au-thours, and others beside of good credit, concerning the Troyan History, is no way veritable: let them see (to their shame) the ruines of that famous Cittie, which yet (to this day) doe make thew of themselues, as I have described them in this Chapter. The round neighbouring places, ports of the Sea, which doe (yet) retaine the very fame names, that then they had. The Toombes of fuch famous men (with their infcriptions) that died as well on the one fide, as the other; being all of Marble, with the couertures whole, but no bones in them : for neuer was any thing put into them, but the ashes of the dead, because (in those times) the bodies were all burned.

CHAP. XXXV.

How a Man may eafily know, what kinde of drinke will foonest make one drunke : As with Wine , Beere, Ale, Cider , Perry and other drinkes.

Ine is not the only drinke Wine onelie that causeth drunkennes, doth not pro-when it is immeasurablie taken, or when it is receiued by Men or Women, whose braines are weake and feeble. For, there are many other arteficiall Beuerages, made in those Regions, where no Wine hath encrease or growth; as in Normandy, Brittaigne, in the more part of Piccardie, the lower Wine. Germany, and other Northerly Countries. But they make vie of Cider, Perrie, Beere, Ale, Raffis, and other drinks, which procure drunkennes more then

Wine doth. In Turky, it is forbidden to fuch as are of the Mohometane Law, to drinke Wine vpon paine of life; and drinking wine there are likewife Drinkes arteficiallie

> The drinke of the Caribes &

Chap.35.

The Caribes and Anthropophages, pcople that feed on the flesh of Men, make a kind of drinke, which they call Canonin: it is made of certaine roots called Aypie, and groffe Miller, champed in Ic the mouths of Women, and then boyled in some quantitie of Water. Of this drinke they make vie after their repast, for they drink not at all in the time of their feeding, as wee doe in thefe partes : but rather imitate nature, as other Creatures do. This Canonin cauferh drunkennesse, more then Wine doth here, if too much be taken thereof.

In the Kingdome of Narfingua, Ta-

Akinde of drinke iffuing cut of a tree.

Metheglin madein Turky

drinkes hurt

more then

ranganor, Calceut and Peru, they drinke akind of liquor which commeth forth of a Tree, that is therefore, purposelie cut in the Spring time, like vnto the Palme, and it inciteth drunkennesse alfo. Many Countries in the Asian Indi-aes, do make divers drinkes of Rice and Tpiceries, which will procure drunkennesse likewise. In Turky they make a 30 certaine Hydromell or Metheg in which troubleth the braine much more then Wine. In breefe, there is not any Nation that will content it felfe with drinking Water onely : but have denifed one or other arteficiall benarage to please the Pallet, and delight their talt. I my felte having frequented those Countries, where no Wine at all is Hiade, but other arteficiall drinkes dai 40 fie vied, as harly before beene declared: I have apparantly perceived, that fuch as receive their drunkennelle by wine

haue quite contrary behaufour to others, that are ouercome with Beuerages; as of Beere, Cider, Perry, and the And although thore then that are actions and behaviour in drunkennesse

fand follies, and counterfeit diners anfind follies, and counterreit, quiers and ticke fopperies yet it is most certaine, that nopetan declare the like fortiffication of the counter of the counte

they neither reele or stagger on any fide ; but onely backeward ; and fall The differece downe flat on their backes: but flich as are drunke with Wine, reele forward, ther beueraand alwaies fall or lye vpon their face | ges. and nofe; whereas the other do bruife their shoulders, and breake their heads behind. As likewise may be discerned when they are ouercome with fleepe in drinking, for they that are drunke with Beere, Ale, Cider, and other drinkes arteficiali; doe fleepe on their backes, with their bosomes open. I have beene credibly affured, that duen fuch is their behaulour in Turky, the Indiaes, America, and other Regions, when the , are

Where men doe become drunke with Wine, they fleepe vpon their faces, the Chinne enclining into the bo-fome. The reason is, because his fumes and vapours proceeding from most parcel Wine; do gaine possession in the heads the braine. formost parr, and the anterior parts of the body alfo. But those fumes which mount aloft by other drinkes; doe in-cline to the head behind, and the polic-tion parts also; which is a realon what they are very oblinious enermore flee-

py, and no great praters or brablers, The French, that (during the States Warres in the Lowe Countries) trauailed thither as Souldiers would make their boafts, that they had familiaritie with many. Women there, when they found them to bee made drunk with Beere : for then they would fall downe backeward, at which time, their pudicity might cafflic be attempted, finding them in lich ynwomanlie readineffe. Let them (therefore) that have care of their Chaffity, take heede how they become drunke. And as for men, ouer and belide, that many doe then disclose their owne fecrees they enter also (oftentimes) into quarrels, destroying their health, and va-doing themselues. Our Lawes do hold them for infamous pet fons, that are addicted to drunkeineffe. after in the left of some left, on co helbas in them decided

Applied to most concern, that Posts

Bread er: dio He druh 40 CRES 18 45.

ers are apr at 80.64

the way and is shook. I CHAP:

Bread made

CHAP. XXXVI.

Against the Axiome, which maintaineth, that all Repletion is naught, by what fu-Stenance foener it be; But of Bread most

Could neuer vnderfland the reason, although I have enquired of many learned Philitions, who (neuertheleffe) haue published

the fame alfo : that Repletion of bread, 20 is more dangerous and pernicious, then all other nourishments beside. For not onely it feemeth to me voyd of all reafon but it hath beene fo accounted, by all them that I have conferred withall. Because all other foods, as the flesh of Oxen, Kine, Murton, Veale, Goat, Hare, Hart, Hinde, Boare, Swine, of Fowles, and alfo of all Fishes which we vie, and any Fruit whatfocuer , doe | 30 corrupt eafily of themselves, if they remaine any while in the stomacke and be not digested: the like doth Egges, and all things prepared with Milke, except Cheefe, which is faide to be (almost) indigestible. All such as vie these meates without Bread, haue neuer any good colour, but are much subject to vnfauoury breath, and fometimes (of their owne bodies) a finell fcant plea- 40 fing : neither are they fo wel nourified, nor fo ftrong; as they that care more Bread, then any other meat belide.

To prooue that it must needs be fo, we may behold, that the most of other Viandes, how acceptable focuer they feeme to the taft, well prepared and fea-foned with good Sauces: they doe yet (very often) bring a diflike and con-tempt of themseldes. Bread only neuer distateth, be it in health or in fickneffe; it it is the last appetite lost, and the first recoucred in sicknesse. In health, it is alwaies the first and last eaten, pleasing and most agreeable to nature, beyond all other kindes of repast. Againe, it is most certaine, that Bread

(by a wonderfull bleffing in Nature) is endued with all those fauours; which perticularly doe incite and allure each meates to bee fed on : pleasing fome in their sweetnesse, others in their sharpneffe or tartneffe; some in their faltneffe; others in their fowreneffe, and all in their due apprehension. Bread containeth in it, whatfocuer any Man can taft, or is acceptable in other ineats. For, albeit other foodes have never fo good rellish of themselues : yet can they not bee sutable, or profitable to feede on for health, except they be accompanied with Bread. To speake all in a word, Bread, by his goodneffe correcteth the vices of other meates, and helpeth their vertues ; whereon it is vied as a common Prouerbe: That all meats are good and beneficiall, when Bread is their companion.

Some Spagirickes, Alchymists, and Extractors of Quinteffences, have told and affured me, that having put Bread ding from the into their Limbecks or vessels of glasse. Quintessens as meaning to deriue an Effence from ces him : they have divers times found the Bread converted into Fleih. We doe daily note (as already I have faid) that the most part of them, which doe eate their meate without Bread, be it Flesh or otherwise, they have continuallie flincking breath . The Athletes or flour Wraftlers (as I finde recorded in the Wraftlers Bookes of Galen) fuch as were eftecmed the very best, and strongest in habitude among other men: had neuer any other nourishment but Bread, accompanied with a little Hogs Flesh.

When the Scots vicd to warre out An inuenite of their owne limits, as in England and of the South other places, if they thought to finde in warre the Country ruined where they frould paffe: they droue with them a great number of Beafts for flaughter, and liued (by the way) vpon those Beafter. And because they had lived sometime by Fleth alone, their flomackes a long while would be fickely, by not having had the vie of any Bread, For remedie of which domachall dileafe, each man perticularly carried a Sachell of Meale, weighing about some pound & a halfe ar the most, and a little Iron Plate, thin and flender. Then mingling a little of the Meale, in a woodden dish with water, and driving it into a Past: they laid

Bread consir all kinds of

Arabes and Mores becom

Bread not wel

Of Repletion.

it on the Plate ouer a small fire; and in I this manner (immediatly) they made Bread. This doth in some manner) refemble our Waferers making of Wafers. The Scots having eaten of this Bread ; found their stomackes well refreshed, and their bodily strength sufficiently restored; after which, they would begin againe to vie flesh onelie, according to their wonted custome.

Chap.37.

our Wafer-

An argumen

to approue the power of good Bread.

Bakers.

I alleadge this Hiftory; to demonstrate, that if fo little bad made Bread, neither leauened nor kneaded, could restore the languishing strength of men : what then is good Bread able to do being kneaded and baked to full perfection? This benefit of baking Bread upon a Plate of Iron, brought much commodity to that Nation: for they needed little fearch after Brakes or Mils, which commonly are beaten downe and deftroyed (before all thinges elfe) that in the degastes of warre, the enemy may hane no benefit by them.

The Lord of Villamond declareth, that being gone forth of his Ship, and likewise all those in his company, at the Port of Ioffa, and putting themfelues on the way, to trauaile by Land to Ierufalem: the Moores and Arabes entred vpon their veffell lying at Anker, and robbed them of nothing elfe but Bread. Other Theeues alfo, of the fame feet and kinde of men's meeting with the same company the day following: tooke also nothing from them but Bread, All Nations have not Bread, nor the vie thereof, and fuch as never had (as many Countries but lately disconered) when Christians give it them to Sauages doe lighly effects ead. cate, although it be but a Bisker, and of the very courfest: they make great account of it, they finde it so fauourie.

I am of the minde, that he which faith, fatietie and Repletion of Bread. is more dangerous then all other nourishments: his meaning is of such bread prepared, is most fast kneaded, and well baked, or without Leauen, because it is the more hard to digeft. As for my felfe, my meaning is of such Bread, as is made of good and pure graine, wel cleanfed, kneaded, raifed, baked, and fresh . I speake not heere of Fish-bread, which is made in Hirland, among the people which dwell on the Lake of Barcena, & that in the Isles of Imangla, Inebila, and and an infinite of Countries on the red Sea, and elfe-where. Nor also of that which is made of the barke of Trees, vsed in the Country of Vendenao, which is called Sagu, and is faide to be very fauoury sheing reduced into Meale, and afterwardinto Bread; As finite alfo of the same Tree is, in the Isles of Moluquoi/es. By the reasons fore-alleadged, I would perswade all persons not to forfake the vie of Bread, for fond or lickorish defire after other meats: if they couer to have good ftrength, a chearefull complexion, and health.

Concerning the innention of Bread, fince what length of time it hath continued, and who was the first Inuencor thereof; there is not any thing found for certaine. In the East Countries; the vie of Bread is very ancient; for We finde, that it was vied in the times of Abraham, and of lacob, when his Son's descended into Egypt, onely to buy Corne, to make Bread . But neerer vs. the vie thereof is not found to ancient; because the Romaines vsed no kinde of Bread, but onely Corne boiled (as likewife the Gaules and Germaines did) till they brought it a perfect rifting in funder, and then they did cate it among their other freates, euen as at this prefent as we do our bread. This continued thus till the Perfian W arres, which In Haly along was in the yeare (after the Cities foun- time after. dation) 580 And then came Bread-makers, or Bakers of Bread, out of Afia to Tome; who gave enfirition, how to multure or grinde Corne, then to knead it with Leauen; and lastly, to bake it in Loaucs.

CH AP.XXXVII.

Of the excellent and profitable properties of the Swallow; And the Nature of the Ecause the Swallow never nestleth in Cities, nor on their Walles; which are fubiect to be taken and retaken by war; because by her comming and presence, she assureth those places where she is not to be sub-meats in taft.

Great vie of Bread, cau-

feth funch.

Bread maketh

men frong and robust.

many excellent things.

House or Wall where she buildeth her nest, not to be threatned by any necre ruine : Because, that by her comming, the resolueth winter to be past, and the Spring time beginning; because (likewife) the hath in her many especial properties, by divers benefits and other things arifing to man, whereof we shal discourse hereafter : it seemed meer (in my judgement) that this Bird well deferued to have a perticular Chapter

The Swallow knoweth the feafons and temperature of Climates.

The great memory of the Swallow extreamity of heat, and of cold likewife. Pliny faith, that this Bird, feeling the extreame heat of Affricke approaching; the flyeth thence in the prime, to delight her felfe in a temperate ayre: And when the perceiveth Winter enfuing, which is about the midft of September ; the then returneth to the Countries extreamely hot, where winter is in the fame manner, as Summer is here with vs. This Bird hath fuch an absolute memory, that having re-pas-Led the Sea, and many other Regions, which are two thousand miles off, at 30 the leaft : yet shee well knoweth to returne to the place or lodging, where (in the precedent years) the made her Neft, and where thee had young ones. This I have seene, and made proofe of by one Swalow, haning tied a red Silk twine about her Claw; and the fayled not the yeare following, to returne and build her nest, where she had done the yeare before, bringing the Silke faft tyed ather foote. She neuer lodgeth

The Swallow cleanieth the ica to the rigour of Warre; as also the written of her, in her iuft defence 2gainst such as labour to depraue her.

The Swallow abideth ordinarily, in Regions temperately hot, shunning the two yeares together, in one and the

She is not affraid of a man, and (willingly) buildeth not her nest in Houses. It is faide, that God hath done this in his great providence, to the ende, that fuch Creatures, as have no other feeding but on Flyes, which doe fo much mollestation to men all Summer, and in the beginning of Autumne; might thus be denoured. It is the onely Bird which feedeth in the Ayre, and there catcheth a prey, to carry to her young ones . But some people, not knowing what they do; will breake downe their Nefts, thur their windowes and doores of their Chambers, to the ende, they The barbamay not enter in or out, to carry feed full grotheir young. Nay, they do them all the injuries they can, breaking their this poor but Egges; yea, sometimes they kill both He and She. But if a man knew the good and commoditie, which these pretty Birdes doe bring vnto vs; they would be more milde, and let them line in peace.

I know very wel, there are fome who will alleadge, that the Dung of thefe Birds is fo pernicious, as if it fall into a Mans eyes (as it did to Tobias) it will then, without all question, make him By not vnder blind. But they that have alleaged this flanding the History, were not skilful in the congs; fault was com albeit Mathio us, a man learned, hath a- mitted. uouched the same following their opinion. For the lewish Theologian Doctors, wel skild in the Syrian and Hebrew Languages, fay : that it was not Swal- The laurned lowes that dunged on the eyes of Tobi- their Books, as, but Sparrowes, which is confirmed that Tobias by Diojcorides, when he faith, Swallowes became blind north Swallowes, being eaten, doesleare the fight, like as the lowes, buth Beeficie or Gnat Inapper . The Athes of Sparrowes them, as well of the great as smal(their bodies being burned in an earthen pot; and Hony applyed to them) doe take away al impeachments that trouble the fight . It may then well be discerned here by that the dung of the Bird which tool caway the fight of Tobias, was not that of the Swallow, according to their indgement. And Galen is of the fame mind with Diofcarides : I refer it then to beiter censure.

She hath enftructed man, how hee The Swallon ought to builde, for with Straw and Morter the buildeth her Neft, and with man dobated fuch cumning; that hardly can any proudeth for M. make the like. When the defireth propagation, the Male medleth with his Female; but not in mounting, or rreading upon her, but by ioyning both their hinder parts together, for which to yeilde a reason, Alianus faith, that he never knew any rendred. They fly abroad in the fields, to feeke for Wooll, which they plucke from the backs of Sheepe with their clawes, and carry into their Nests, whereon they lay their Egges, to preserve them from breaking, as also the enclosed young ones from hurring.

The Male and Female, supplying the place of Pather and Mother, give tee-The manner ding to their little Birdes, beginning at ot teeding their young Birds. the first which is hatched and first broaking forth of the shell. Then they feeke another feeding, & give to the fecond, and fo to the reft tollowing cuen to the fift and last for they lay and fit no more but fine Egges at each brood. Thus we may fee how this Bird instructeth mant how to carry himfelfe in nourithing | 12 exalting and distribution of his goodes to his Children, aduancing alwaies the first borne or eldest. They duily cleanse Cleanling their nefts, their nefts of al ordure and dung tound therein, and are very skilfull in defant their Egges. ding themselves from verinine, which are enemies to their Egges, and will bite them . But nature hath endued them with fo much knowledge, as they can well preserve their Egges from 20 harmefull vermine : for they tocke but kang tan enad the Hearbe called Smallage, in Labine guertes. called Apium, and bring it into their Nefts, and by the flrong fent of bitterheffe thereof, the vermine dye. it is a and Their young Birdes doe refemble whelps, that continue for a time blind: are hatched but the Male flieth abroad, and findeth blind like our Whelpes. acertaine Hearbe, by meanes whereof their fight quickly commeth. Very 3c long and diligent inquifition hath been made after this Hearbe, and the Birdes very narrowly watcht for it; yet could it never beeknowne what Hearbein is. If a man open the eyes of the young Birds, they recouer their fight without any other help: but fome do affureiva, that (by meanes of that Hearbe) their n inidad (fight is the clearer. Which being known tomen, the Plant would ferue to make Que ean words their fight more perfect : and therefore (gueffing at the true Hearb) they call it Celandine, or Chelidonia, or Hirundinaria. illolo) For formany benefits, which menge seine by means of this Bird, befide those recited in the beginning of this Chap-ser; enftructing how to build, keep our Houses cleane, delighting vs by her finging, preferring fight by that kinde mine i me thinkes no man hould mol-left her but rather peaceably converse with her, as a guest or friend that comweil but to fde hun . She careth not amy thing of ours, but the frees visirom a multitude of flyer, at the flyeth in the Avre and the found bee entertained.

of Hearbe, and detroying hurtfull ver-

(as Holow faith) chearfully, like a good guest acher comming, and when the is willing to depart aut to with holdber.

The Aftes and Fleila of this Bird, as | The Aftes & we have formerly faid, dorh not onelie | Swallow. ferue to cleare the fight, and recouer it if it bee loft : but it is a remedy allo for many multiprestrevils; For if wee take the Swallowes first young ones, in the Moones encreasing, and cleave them; we that Rode Black there wones intheir bellies; white est two weeks bec in young taken to with the things of white co- swallowes, lours, and amountain which is but of one good against the falling colour onely. These stones, wrapt in seeknesse. the skin of a young Hart, or Heiler before it have toucht the ground) and tyedobbbotheneckers and Kinglia usiboblefor fireh lashbog probabing dicknesses and maketh them very chearfiel - date gineth afforance, that Swals lower glades, incorporated with Hony; doubelife the Squinality, and all other defects ion lamps fluines in the throat. ro alla Periodele sont Accorde alla ga : D'im faith the ist broate thier finits of Swallowes, whendof, one buildeth Three kindes her bielt vinde Hittles whe fecond in or Swallowes: old ruined buildings, in holes and Car uernes of Rockes and chies on the Sea fidd ; and the thing a buildeliniuthe bankes of Rivers. In the Ille of Samos, there are Swallowes namehild att white Behold what I have gathered our of guiddiand approoned Authoris, concoming the properties of dis Bird; in whospination weappy well order our Deconomy or Hou hold goderncafily toucht with lightning strategue said framhowethnicallificanteral Men juho haub compared droft friend ly Similares too Tearle faithfull and diffembling /Friender who and no Friendes , bundonlong as there are mednes remaining to derine any commodification wherepy Hor they halis imagined , thut those Birdes dod line on the Seedes! Graine, and Fruites of the fielde : and that to foone us they ard locking; they dye away into fome other Countrey of Bac to sion ande moft sertaine ; that thele kinde Birdes doe not line vpop any kind of Grand or Practice when on Flyes, which thy very indeat agility of they take in the Asirch hoing x bry molectious to men)

tables of Las $1000

Plin in lib, 14:

Impertinent compatifons

wile of reor 🖒 á liteach ea anoltog set s nec elektricie

Swallowes are no way hurrful to me.

The benefit of poore and homely buil-

Heauen noe-

nemy to hum-ble dwellings.

CHAP, XXXVIII.

A Paradoxe in defence of Hard-Lodging, appropuing it to be more healthfull and commendable then thofe in great Pallaces and houses of pleasure.

Lready we have discourfed of poore and meane descent, now come we to 20 speak of the humble cottage, the dwelling wher-in I have and will maintaine. The building of fuch honest boules of harbour, doe require little expences and charge, in leffe time are they crected, more cafily furnished, and with far greater commodity kept and frequented, then flately Pallaces, and houses of pleasure. The proportion of a handfomelistle house, 30 carrieth good correspondency, and no outward wanton appearance. It is leffe fubicat to the danger of Theenes, then is the large and spacious Pallace, compaffed about with rare deckings, great & bale Courts, Offices, Stables, Dogkennels, Hearnrios, Hauks-mewes, and other fuch superfluous delights.

The poore and simple house, is not eafily toucht with lightning and tem- 40 pelts from Heaven and a man may dwell there more quietly, then in the faireft profpected Lordinip garnified with fo many Gardens, Arbours, Turrets, Vaults, Mountainelike wals, and other curiofities swhich doe nothing elfe buetire and weary men. The poore house's sooner provided, and with lesse coff then the greater. It excuses the Mailter from making Fealts, to fuch as (commonly)returne but mockes when they are inuited. The smal house is free from the Harbingers marke, or the Marshals of Princes, Cardinalles, and Lords, that cannot be entertained but in pompous d welings. Let vs but confider, where fuch States have made but the least folourning; how many things have need of new mending? And their passage that way, resembled a storme and tempest of raine, washing all good order for a long while after. See if your Sernauts become the better enftructed thereby your Houshold in any more civill manners, or your house furniture in fuch good fort as it ought to be. I had almost forgot, that (many times) they put their Hoft to the perill of borrowing, inciting great Lords to affect his Living. So that, if they can cunningly compasse the meanes in recompense of their kinde entertainement: the Hoft is brought to the hazzard of confiscation, for the very least word inconfiderately fpoken, eyther a gainst the Prince or Religion.

This is the reason, why I cannot fufficiently meruaile, at the great follie and poore judgement of some Men, who couer huge Pallaces, and fumptuous Houses for their abiding and lodging; beeing much grieued and of-fended, if they should take but one nights rest in a meane, poore, and po-puler house. As if our Soule (full of all excellent nobleneffe, and endued with infinite priniledges, which God hath thereto affigned;) should imagine the body too straite and narrow a roome, for hir to abide in. Or as if (in how thort time God best knoweth, whether wee be willing or no) we (hould not render the bodie into a much leffe Lodging, to finde out one farre more excellent and magnificent for the Soule. Can a meane House, a hard Bed, or a narrow roome bee any hindrance : but that our Spirit (freely, and at her owne gafe) may make discourse thorow all Celestiall pleasures, much better delights then can bee wished for in this world? It need not (there) ftand bound to fo many inconveniences; as the dwellers in faire and Lordly places, are euermore subject vnto.

When Warre had his beginning, and entred into confultation, to burne and destroy the Countrey on all sides, as it prooued most to yeelde disaduansage: the Soldiours, and men appointed for spoyle, received ho charge to meddle with little Hamlets, or poore Shepheardes Houses ; but the most magnificent and beautifull habitations

Great person eane house

One man eafily purcha-feth anothers

The spirit is at liberty in the least Cottage

The Titles of

vertue are truelie fabooty of poor places, their aime is at dreatperfons hue lodged Of Hard-Lodging.

of great Lordes and Princes. Befide, if neede required to make a Fielde affembly, in what place focuer it were: the fayrest Castels & cossiest buildings were fure to bee first taken up and ve

Chap. 38.

Great houses

ruined, aske long time to rebuild.

Bur let vs admir, that a poore mans Corrage suffers spoyle among the rest: yet the Man hath this comfort left him (a priviledge beyond the large cal pacity of Castles) that his House will (well-nere) be as foone builded againe, as a Captaine can commaund and fet his fielde in order. But when a great Pallace becommeth ruined, many years are required to erect it againe; beside; it ferueth(a long while after) as a recept racle for Rascals and Field Run-awaies; or as a warren for Toads and Serpents, or as a Garden for Fresh water Souldi-

I cannot chuse, but take pitty and compassion on such mens affections, that place their whole felicity on fuch thinges, whereby they can receive no praise or honour. For it oftentimes commeth to passe, that the gloric of a goodly building, beareth not his name that caused it to bee made; but of the new Purchaser, or the cunning Archi-tect, who desernedly is styled Maister of the worker But fay that the party himfelfe, who was at the charge of the building, doe carry Name and Title thereof: what a fillic glorie is it (but faire greater vanitie) to dougt honour by beeing a Lord ouer Stones, which are thinges fenceleffe and voide of life ? To be Maister of a peece of Wood? Or, when all is faid, a Lord of Chalke and Duft? Were it not much more famous for him, to bee entitled a Lord of many faire Artes and Sciences? Or to win honour by fome heroycal worthy, and vertuous actions.

That it ought to be for ancient Princes and potent Lords, who more effecmed valour and vertue, then matters earthly & transitory; were nelier wont to fer their affections on fumprious buildings : but were altogether fludious and addicted for the extellencie of vertue and proweffe. Wha not the house of great Enander, little, mean, & poorely built a And yet notwith anding, the fame of the vertuous Maifter thereof made it effected of no leffe value, then other great & royall Pallaces. and deferred to chrertaine the fal your & highly renowifed Hereales . In his Cafar, never builded but alliele houle, be caufo he would not be hindred from fo many finguler'vertiles, as broughthim (aclength) to govern the great komaine Emplre Mighry sepre, that compered most kubbotne Affrek, had wener day perticuler Lodging but aboad in one poorevillage, then in another ; to Make off wearineffe, and with draw hithfelfe from the mollestation of great affaires.

Dingenes, the grant Philosopher, that was of flich an excellent Spirit, as euer any man was in his time : made his dwelling in a poor Fab, to defend himfelfe from the raine? and heate of the Sunne ?" Hillarion, that good and deuout man; lay very hardly nithe Ea-Acrne Deferts, if appoore little Cell. which he had (as Saint Hierome reporteth) more truely made as a Sepulcher, then any Honle to dwellh: Gatha lod ged in a Honie for tell and for ne on all fides, to open about the many black; that being (tine day) defired by a friend of his; but had him his Manile! The almfwered that hee bold hot finite it be canfe it ferned to woulder and the poor lodging. This he forke benefiting a great hale in the toofe oner his head. which had been lately broken, and perceiting a darke cloud not farre off that threathed a prefent frewer offine da lines Drufus Publicola, had (in like hadnner) a house so broken and minered: as whofocuer was without, might caffile differne and count the mousables with in, and behold what the good man the

in his house. thofe gaudy places, and Built with fuch in the world beauty, were more defending then the other from nicering With the affaults of death, and infinite milhaps and dileafesthatbefall vs in the World . Such as are readin Hiltories! Or contelife in the any pleasure, can lay with me; that when Tullies Hon ilius Wis finiteen with thunder, he was then mon merry in his Pallace royall. When Tarquining Phil cus was flaine, he was IR Was high magmoft dangers.

of Coldes

of dwelling doth not dif-parage the yerrue of the great persons

A little Cottage (with content) is poore mans

Kingdome.

nificent Lodging. How many other Lords may we speake of hoth Ancient and Moderne, that have beene flaine in their braue Castles, by divers accidents and misfortunes? The Duke of Prbine, who builded a Pallace most faire and rich: did it defend him from danger, or being the most wofull example of calamity to enery eye, that happened in his time? The goodly Pallace of Trent, faid to be without comparison, for the infinite Roomes contained in the round: was it any printledge to the Builder thereof, in exempting him from as many miseries and mishaps, as the wretchedit Varlet in the World could have no more? To what end ferued fo many and excellent sare Buildings, erected by Lucullus and Metellus? wherein were Caligula or Nero more happy then others, though they had houses of such fpacious circuit, as comprehended (wel negre) the whole Citty? The braue worke man that builded the Pallace at Para; could he warrant himfelfe from firetching on Mount Falcon, which hee likewife made for Malefactors? Wewil conclude then, that he is to Great Houses are the places most dangers.

in gay buil-

one moneths experience, and he will finde it too true ro his cost . For asluredly, these are the places, where commonly hapneth most secret mischiefes either by broaths or drinkes, feafoned otherwise then they should bee, or by the power of too keene a Weapon for other Stratagems of like nature. They are fafe thelters alfo, for wanton and libidinous pleafures; where a falle friend may (conest graft hornes on his companions head, and where fire is foone, kindled, but flowly quenched.

beholding to cunning Builders, highly be accounted a meere Foole, that dif-house, or take quiet rest in a good hard bed; coueting with heat and greedy defire to make his aboad in flately places, wherein (for the most part) lurketh all misfortune, fraud, diffimulation, flander treason, and misery. He that is loth to credit what I fay slethim make but dames to dwell in a poore or meane 30

Lot vs then flunne them fo diligent-The Authors ly, as (with our best meanes) we may, this Paradox. and let vs delight in simple habitations, fit and aptly furnished with all peace and tranquility. In so doing, we hall not fland obliged, or be any way praised and esteemed by their Worke-Maisters; and yet can purchase good Liuings out of their vanities, where afterward they fit and floute at their follies. Rather let vs content our selues to imitate the workes and Buildings of Dexim, Sonne to Calius; who first found out the invention, to crect his House after the manner of Swallowes. Then will wee remember, to frame our Houses, according as Mortall men ought to doe, not as if wee should continue in them perpetuallie: but as hoping (one day) after our short voyage in this world to inherit & haue part in another manner of dwelling, builded after a much better fashion and compasse then those that are framed, by the fraile and earthlie hands of men, egryk room of ask or CHAP. XXXIX.

Of some that have beene punished, for hauing done better then they were commaunded: And others, because they did well, without commaund.

on another mans will, ought to be careful of himfelf, not onely in well-doing but also indoing better then he is commaunded . For al will declare by fome Histories in this Chapter, that of these two forts, of doing well, and better then well sthere haue been fome seuerely punished. Asit happened to an ingenious Maister of Athens to whom Publius Graffus, a Matian (being of Public Proconcil in Afia for the Ramaines; and Graffus a Main being ready to befiedge a Citry) gaire an, Proconful charge, to feeke for two Shippe Mafts, in Afa. which he had feene in otebens, to make an Engine for battery of the wall, telling him, that he would have the greateft. The skilfull Maifter, liceing a Man of greatynder flanding, well knew, that a Mast offich greatnesse would not be apt for any luch effect vin regard where of, becanfe a meaner was much more convenient for the battery, and eafier

Chap.39.

Of WVell-doing.

for carriage; he lent luch 4 one to Chaf-for a What he percount his purpola to be thinkerted, has spuled theningenic ous man to be brough he fore him and dentaunded of him, why hap had not of beyed as he was commanded And bei ing willing to hear no realon or excuses gauc charge to Brip him naked, and o bamhipo wish Rode, as he was, and h long, till liedyede a lot it appeared to Graffus, dhatan flead of obeying thee fought connected him So, it was not without canfel that there atole acome mon Proverbe; A Man hall have worke enoughtaganerne himfeife well in this World. Jin Long time before this Mutian dealt fo hardly with this skilfull man, one

Papyrius, a Romaine Dictatour, did no

The History of Papyrius the Romaine Dictator.

Miferable cor rection before

The crue!

conflancy of Papyrins against Kutilia

A cruell act in Publius Crassus leffe : but rather proceeded further, or more rigoroufly, (in regard of qualitie among persons) towards a Noble Romaine, Colonell of the Romaine Caualery. This man gaue battaile to the Samnites, without his expresse commaund, and flew twenty thousand of the enemies. Neuertheleffe, though he had done well and valiantly: yet hee was condemned to death (beeing named Quintus Fabius Rutilianus) without any respect of his merit, or race. And, as the custome then was, before the stroke of death, the condemned person must be scucrely beaten, which while the miferable Rutilianus endured; the most Honourable Lords in the Armic, entreated Papyrius, to deferre his death till the next morning, which (with much ado) at length he granted. In meane while, night granting means 40 to the condemned man to faue himfelf, he fled to Rome, and implored the avde of the Senate, for fafetic of his life but it was in vaine, for Papyrius still stood resolute for his death. Whereupon, the condemned parties Father (who had formerly beene Dictatour, and three times Confull) was constrained to make his recourse to the people, and the Tribunes of the teople for his Son, all which could not divert the rigor of Papyrius. Finally, he was entreated of all the people, and by the Tribunes of the people, protesting, that he should not pardon Fabius the punishment hee had deserved but to deliver to the Ro-

(by way of supplication) to follicite 50 maingpeople, and they tilbunes ithe but often ir hagigeileenigen siche gewood and aligner white place is a property of the control of the contro fariboutinene bed actioned winter w Askas Ravijaniacid shorthsoffspa taine or Generall, that had guten hate taile to the Enemy without provelle dacenting hit dayinstrabulanting though he had won the days was fune tobshanged ... And to frenke much in prohibition made yoto him deferred he where flech as was encollented book hath energy or chame objeryoda an all Militarie discipline suca, from all antiquitie ; that the Squidier or Capraine, that fought (Brigane, battell cagainfl

In like maner, Cafar speaking of one The indgeof his Captaines, named Syllanus, laid: in this cale.

He did well and wilely, for to give bat-taile, albeit he was thre to have had the victorie . Because (faith hee) it is not in the Captaine, to goe beyonde the prohibitions giuen him. For it is most certaine, that nothing should be done in matter ofwarre, contrary to commands: nor a Captaine or Liuetenant ought not to giue battaffe, except he bee expresselie commainded. And this was the cause, that the Counte of Aignement was in The Count of danger, and had at length (by especiall consured, fanour) onely as punishment, a reprehenfion publikely given him, by Charls the fift; Emp. for gining battaile to the Marshall de Termes, although hee had the victory because the danger of al the Low Country lay at the flake, if he had loft the day. But this last point is to be understood How far, and of Captaines, that have no charge of to whom this command in title of offices, for the Offinitation exficer, as the Confull, Conflable, the rendeth, Captaine creded in Title of Office, to haue ful command ouer the Army, and make the war: may(by vertue of his office) without attending especiall com-mand, give war to a published enemie, pursue him, bid battaile, besiedge, and (if he can) take Fortes, and dispose the Army at his discretion; if hee have not perticular prohibition from his Soueraigne, by who his power is appointed. But having taken strong holdes, or the chiefe of the enemies the canot re-deliuer them withour especiall command. True it is, that in the populer Comon- Concerning weales, there points are not observed, mon-weales, neither

Obedience is he ducte in Military dif-ne Alipi enian -nad a be it icary

neither can they beckept with rigour : but often it happerfeth, that Captaines doe dispote the way greatest affaires, which they cannor the in a Moharchy, for the difference of achile and will of

Of Helyodorus the Myti'enia quet.

*Prince for the people, of one man, or Worcad in the Greeke Histories, that one Heliodorus a Mityleman, made a banquet, in midit whereof, delivering demonstration, that his guests flould not make space of any thing : he comanded two of his Slaues to goe buy two Septiers of Wine, of a Man that fold wine ncere to his house. The Slaves finding the Wineto be bad, went and bought elfe-where, fuch as was excellent good, and liked all the company; faying, they neuer dranke better. Whereon the Slaves faid, that it was not of the wine which their Lord feat them for, for it beeing naught , they were faine to buy in another place . Wherear Heliodorus grew offended; because they brought for according to his commaund, although the wine was better when the company was departed, he fo tormented the poore Slaves that they dyed. Thus you ice what ill fortune it is, to be in lubication to people ouer feuere, and without any temperance : punishing fuch as they have command over, rather for doing well, then ill.

The end of the fourth Booke.

Chap.i.

The Fift Booke.

CHAP. I

Of the Emperour of Æthyopia; called Prete-Ian or Prester-Iohn : Of his Origimall, and Customes of his people.

Ian. is neither Priest or facrificer, though he be(by fome) called PRETE-IAN, and (by his owne people) named Belaugian, that is to fay, loy of incompareable excellencie, or of most value; and by others of them, he is allo called Ian, which (in their Language) fignificth Mightie. He commandeth ouer seauenty and two Kingdomes, which are all of different languages, hauing their diversity of Customs, and the colour or complexion of their Faces, are much difagreeing. He is able to leuy in ter, with an infinite number of Horffes

Armour for

He Great Emperor of Athropia, vnto whom we corruptlie giue the Name of Pres-biterpreparation for warre, a Million of fighting men i five hundered Elephants with their Armour and Munition for encoun-and Camels . His Knights or Warlick Soldiers, enter armed to the battell, each His foldiers wearing a long Coat of Maile, stretching downe closely to their Thighes, a Sallet or Head-piece on the head, a crooked Fauchion by their fide, and a Lance with two Steele points of Pikes. Such as haue to Speich as no Sallets of Head-pieces, do wear thick quilted Caps on the inheads, plaited after the manner of Mameluke Soldiers. The me manter of manufactures. The yonger fort, carry Darts, Arrowes, and Slings, observing the fame Discipline, as be as obedient or well-gouerned, inranging their battale, as wee are. They we Drummes of Brasse, and Trumpets also, to encourage their Soldiers to the fight, which is performed with great hardiment, appointing allo, fundry honours, and re-fpective rewards, to fuch as declare the felues to be of highest merit. They doo daily pay the families of their Warriors, and marke the Children that are born of them, with a Croffe, which they imprint Their Cerefiddenly in the fleth with an hot Iron, fo mony to their that the figne remaineth, as if it were naturall vnto them. The King himfelfe (most commonly called Prete-lan) after he hath bestowed Tome houres about State-affaires, when of the King he perceiveth that he is indifferently cafed of them: he employeth almost all the remainder of his time, in the fludy of holy Readings and Histories; which being done, he vieth a little exercise of the body; and then entering into his Bath, hee taketh (afterward) his refection alone by hunfelfe (as most of our Kings yle to do) vpon a little Table of Gold, without any cloath or Napkin; and it is fet in fuch a place, as there are divers degrees or fteps his table-fer in ascending to it. He is serued by Pages, wice, his dyer who are of Noble birth; and they bring life. him his meate (ready cut and prepared) in little Baskets or Panniers. He drinketh

The exercise

Chap. 3. 3

are very rich.

Or Xoa, as fome call it.

dicipate 4

Two hartiefts

and great] 24

Their Wine

Their Hun-

Their order of Dignities obscrued a-

Their punish and other hings.

An Ancient custome still

The attendants uppon the Empero

The King fa-reth delicate-

Winein a Cup of Golde; but he hath another kinde of drinke, made of fower Apples, and mingled with Sugar, which he receiveth in a cup of Christal, While hee feedeth, three hundred luftie young men (chosen out of the seueral kingdoms vnder his Dominion, having the place of Archers, and of his Guard) doo fand about the Tent-royall. For by atr auncient custome it hath been kept, that the 10 on these ordained daies; which hath con-King liueth continually out of any City, wherein he neuer abideth but two dayes only; and those Tents are erected in such manner, that the back-part is ener placed to the East, and the doore opening is opposite to the West. The viual Armes or weapons of these

Guards, are Swords, Daggers, and Iauelins, their neckes and moulders beeing gorgetted with thicke skinnes of Beafts. | 20 Foure Kings, who (by commandement) do attend the Court, follow (each after other) the Table-feruice, accompanied with many Barons, and meaner Officers, euen from the Kitchen, vnto the Tent of Prese-Ian, all cloathed in Silke, Seudale, and Scarlet: and there they deliver it to the Pages, who come forth purposely to receive it. The King and alhis Court fare deliciously, with Fowle, Fish, and al | 30 kind of Venison. So soone as he hath dined (for hee neuer fups, but in Feathwall dayes) his Eunuchs goe to fetch divers Queenes (according vnto their feuerall quarters) being VV ines of the forenamed Kings, to waite on the Queene and wife to Prese-Jan, conducting her who his Tent, to give him pleasure and content-ment, and there they sing and Dance in his presence. He hath foure Wines, who are the Daughters of his neighbor-kings, yet he lodgeth but with one of thein, to whom he is folemnly maried with many Ceremonies: but if it channee that hee have no Children by her, then he cals to his bed one of the other.

in publicke his face is couered with a vail of Paffata, which hee lifteth vp, and pul-leth downe, that hardly can his face bee wholly differred : but if it bee, it is verie quickly concred againe . Hee vieth to thew himfelf vnto the people three times in the yeare, that is to fay, on the daies of Christmas, Easter, and the holy Crosse in September; and (for this purpose) is a goodly high Scaffold duly prepared. The

When he purpofeth to thew himfelfe

His manner of shewing himselfe in publicke.

The wines of the Emperor

cause of this Ceremony, received Originall from Dauid Prote-Ian, fir-named Alexander, whose death was three whole veares concealed by his chiefe Seruants. that gouerned the Kingdome in his time. Therefore to avoide all the like fucceeding incontreniences, the Father of Dauid Prett-lan, at the carnelt entreatie of his people, began first to thew himselfe tinually (ever fince) been observed, even to Panuscius Prete-Ian, now raigning in Æthyopia, only excepted when he goeth in warre, for then he marcheth daily difcouered. He is crowned with a precious Diadem'; the one part whereof is habite. Gold, and the other Silver, and carrieth (inflead of a Scepter) a Croffe of Silver in his hand: All his Seruants are marked with a Croffe, in the verie flesh on the right (houlder. He is cloathed with rich Garments of frizeled Cloath of Golde, wearing a shirt of Silke, with verie large and wide fleenes, as Dukes in elder times were wont to doe. And from the Girdle downward, he weareth a wide Kirtle of Silke and Cloath of Gold with a Linnen couerture, after a Bythops manner. On either fide of him, goe two Pages, each holding a Croffe of Siluer in the one hand, and a naked Sword in the other.

His Lords, who are as Kings, and carry that Title, do pay him tribute of Gold and other Mettals; of Horsles, and great Cattell of divers kinds: likewife of cloath his kings. of Golde, and of Wooll, according to the quality & best Nature of those countries under their Gouernment : Which rights and Tributes they have from their Subjects, although they be Vaffailes (indeed)to none but Prete-Ian himfelfe, and to whom they yeilde the greater part of Tributes in their substance. Some do pay him large quantities of Corne, and of Salt, for the maintaining of his Armies. Others do bring him Pepper, which is a rare Commodity in that Countrey; and some do pay him Slaues.

The Rustickes, and Country Boores, who line in the wild and field-frequented Forrests, do bring vnto the Court great flore of Lyons, Tygers, and other living fauage Beafts, which are afterward fhut ypinto apt appointed places, to yeelde pleasure and delight to him and his Princes. As for fuch as dwell further off from the Court, it is sufficient for them to

The Original of the Cere-mony of the-wing himfelf.

The Empe-

The Emperors Tribute paid him by Wild Beafts kept for the

bring the skinnes of frich Beaftes onely, wherewith the Aby sines do in a brantry) cloath themselves when they goe to lin Prete-Ian, is greatly honoured and lohed of his people who are verierich in Gold, not Coined, and other Mettalles: and his Landes being well peopled and inhabited he deritteth from them verie great Revenuewes I hey doath themfebies with Linneng Wollend and Silke addicting their minds much to Husbandby and Filling the groundness illithe Realme of * Seeud, wherethe King most abilleth, they have two crops or Haruests cach yeare, for they have ale fortwo Summers: They gather al things necessary forthe maintenance of life, and inigrear abundance; especially, the grain of Barley, and all kinds of Pulle, Pealer arld Beanes, &c. Millet and Panicke, or andian Oatsineale, groweth there so hieg asticone toppeed a man riding outhorse backe. This Vines do yeelde are infinitie of Grapes of Rading, whereofthey make great plentic of Wine; but belies, they downdinatily under Benerates of Beore, and other of Poarbs & Applies well compounded with Bhyley, Millett of Wall! worr, whereof the verie theanest of the people do daily drinke . I They vio to fets foorth their Bankers yearely, with greent Figges, and Apples that the very fauous by 4. They, thin eigreau flore of VV ood; called Home, and divers kindles there old They we to haint Lyons, Leopards, Rhivi nocerots, and Elephants. They havel great store of Gatter goodly Morfes and gollant Mules of which they fell (argreat price) to Barons of the Country of careful price) to Baronsot the Gounge of Pulsa, "I he find dignity among them, is that of the Price sincht control privater is and wiferness, whether he is a sufficient much freely assay from the good of Sunsarion that is highly effectived training the mini-less that of the goldenses with Mobile was, and then that of the goldenses with the mini-bilished to header sight, and the action of the beautiful of the goldenses with the date of with believe than the public accent of hydrighted the decoration, the public accent of the the date.

tery man, ida punilly green or the tracking in the control of the pany; and leidelrem thorow far remous Countries and Kingdolnes (gotting digit and to go linging from dobates dottes icifico. dep Hodres garrillerd garrill famous more then a day to they are both put to death, the Theefe and the Slave well bey deliner a Murtheror, into the handes of his Kindred whom he bath flaine, to the end, that they may take such wengeance. as to them feemeth good for the outrage committed on their blood. If anie deale with Children, in the abhominable finne of Sodowby the offender is indeed (by them) to be worthy of death and whofocuer deth rafhly renot from his Religion, is stoned to death before al thopeople. Alfo, hee that transgreffeth the Ceremonles and Commandements of Religioni, wickedly blafphening God, the glorious Wirgin Jonthe Saints, is burned aliue in a publishe place. Other dollers of leffer Natthe pard indged according to the will and Arbitrage of the Interpretersoftha Lawcselw) should vaning and The hylimilane a persiculantan-grage, and Carracters of Letters proper to themselves wherein the New Teltament was imprinted at Rome. The Holy Scripturcibath also beetherranslated into their additine tongue banid ? I implelfe beingshen a younglaad in some) began tolearne the Language off one Price le-ter, and by fine; and of the order of Saint Prancis 3 am an of a trickly and gravity belonged by Pope Hade the third; and all his Colum of This linyer dwelt behind the Tribunal of & Peterin the house and Chinal delicated hosthe Abyformer where they celebrated after their maner; and were maintained at the Popes charges if on office the comeThe Aby/sinesde hondamp ante nio

and if they channed to flay in one place

nevy about make ideof that which dome metli from others lightich is of gold marked with serabe for Letters, and they cal tholopieces of mony; pardals & Sinaphs, They pay their Soldiers in certain pieces of Gold and Silvery of divers waightes i and with them also they buy such things as are fold in the Markets. They celebrate their weddings, with means wery folershy ly, and if the manor woman be taken in Additionity they doo repudiate both the original the other. They are baptifed and yeurlouidhflanding that they adde forme miniteupon theifore head; with a hot I read and will nonwholy leave the diebrue time and circumcifion. No stor they coult he Propuce, and take at lime defis allo from womens feores, The children mothin years care heirs to thein

How they

or the figne

For repole from Religion, and for

The head or off to going

Of the aluf-

This is fport ten by Hierom Giglo an Hali-i he coque to

Coine vied

Their Gele-

Their Bap

his kingdom.

The head or fpring of the Riner Nilus.

26. 00.

The Pather of Prete-Tan. People in the tarthell part of Affrica beyond Ethys-

The coquefts of Prete-Jans Father.

The Parriark of the Abyf-fines, and hi

Fathers, thorow the Kingdome and by want of Males, one of the Kinred; being the most vertirelts; doth next sicceede. This Prete-Ian governeth many Countreyes, and boundleffe Seas.

They have greatly erred, that in their Maps and Tables whate placed his feate in Alias beeing ignorant that there is a double India; the one in Afia, and the other in Ethyopin on His Kingdome confineth(on the Leuancor Eaft-fide)the Red and Burbarian Sea? And on the South the Sels called diffmbe; and on this fide, the Region goeth like a Promontorie towards the South, to the Cape called De bona Speranza Almolt at the end of Prete-Line Land, in one of his Kingdomes called Goyaume, is the found of 2vilus, Riner that runnes bathing all Ethyopia and having made a long coulder, inauerfing many Islands (whereof Maist is the greatest it pulich fivelling along Egypt. Treonfideth offthe Mouth lide; Egipt & Lybia; and on that West, the lower Lybia, and the Mooren Butthe Father of Prese-Lani being a warlicke nian, and expert in Alchest amplified and enlarged his Entpiretaind among other difficult and perrillous Wars the variouithed the Trogs ledites who vime povioned Artowes, he tooke (byithe way) King Cafana, conquered in battell, driebfmore off his licad, as an infamous and cruell Traitor ... This manufaced also in that countrey, which lookorhiplainely Southward to the Sea, called Munambizique, and is facuto face with the great Ide of Saint Laurence. He ouercame likewise the King of Municangofe, with afterward became a Chriftian: and Thermeda Psinoe of the Blacke pear 40 ple. He vanquished also King Selan, Lord of shothdahometan Moors, whose paffage was along time ont of Archia Palix by the firm of the Red len, into the firme Land neighboring on Ethyopias blo

These aby sines (for to are they called of allibrate lans Subjects) haue a Patriark, whosh they name stbana, that is to fay, [Father;] hee hath the government of spiritual things, and soueraigne Autho- 50 proceeds the Priests, which are hisinicin number and diffinguished by their ohurclies and Monasteries Toiperfousbad ly complexioned in manners, communations; and corrupted in the right rules of Discipline her exercises a secret disfure, and excommunication; for that beis ing expelled and abandoned of all ment they wander and dye miferably fearueds. This Patriarke maketh refidence (with his Senate) in the Cittle of Borrara; fittaate in a Mountaine vericaustere and full of Woodes, enuironed with perpetuall umbrages, for his better recreation : and there the braunches of the broad leafed Trees are lo phyant, & swine themselves in manner of an Arch , that though the Countrey berilofflioriver in the midday Sun, little or no heate at allisthere felt: for their continuall dewing with healthfull and lively fpringes, compleateth the grace of their freshnes and verdure. This Patriark receiueth a great leny of tenths. The Patrias also the Riesennites of the King Press arkes maintenant, who is greatly given and affected to be alice to Religion, as appeareth by his liberall pies the poore. ticiand denotion. He distributeth these Treasures to the poore, and to Hofpitals, maintaining infinite Monafteries of Friers of diversions ders : of Saint Knehony, of Saint Frances. of Saint Augustine; of Sain'd Dominick of the Calaguranin; and of the Macharians many whereof he fendeth wently to wood falem, to wifet the Sepulchell doont Lord Ithis Christ When the Watharker yerby Order when furth Riches of his as is found to maining the Patriark returned beceases. then they proceed to new election of and other, that shall be judged to be the most vertuous. Hechineth chaftly, though it Marriage law boe lawfull for all Priest to take a Witchin full to Priest Marriage; and yet he may halte normore nocerous, and Elephants. Thepnound

The only ellipses of Preseden and his Ethyopians lave that the welo rebute thein- The glories felues to bentue verid anciontell Nation of Prete-lan & anning men benause they batte alwayes llured in their innated libertie Cand were Horrer conducted; cither by sempranicy northeredd bnor Byamfan of he ket maines thus day themselves dequithed King Cambiff of anthone others his pot rentiarries chiereto theo adde a inord king Cambyli true and britishme glouie indeede; which denqueredly is, that they were one of the fulf nations; in receiptof the christian Faishavel-near from the verie beginning thereof .. By meanes of the Extruct, vare the famous Quoene Candanes who was baptized by Saint Phillip. And that find their Conperfion, they Haudiconflanthid opt the A famous James Religion hoofe many hundreds of quity. vegroso Albeitsthat during this time, they

The Patriarches place of abiding with one them.

Amballadors fent to Prete-

Letters lent Lun to the haue beene generally (euen as yet they are at this day) mollested, assaulted, and enuironed with Moores, Sarazins, & the Idolatrous Worthippers of Mahomet. And yet, notwithstanding all those cruel Tempelts (which heeretofore destroyed the Romaine Empire, and the very greatest part of Christendom, Ethyopia could neuer hitherto be spoyled, either of their Dominion or Religion, albeit some Idolatrous mixture hath crept thereinto: which is the leffe to bee maruelled at, if we may credit their own faying, in alledging their constancie and Antiquity, because they deriue their Noble Originall and continuance, from the royall Kings, Rauid and Salomon; of whome, the bleffed Virgin Marie (Mother to our Sauiour descended, and he himselfe, accor-

The Religion

Ethyopia could

neuer be con-

Whence the Ethyopians

their antiqu quered.

Chap. 1.

ding to the fle(h... The people of this Nation, doo hold our Lord God in great reverence, & the Redeemer of the world; Next, the most Bleffed Virgin, and Saint Thomas the Apostle more then any other of the Saints. Rope Eugentee the fourth, in the yeare one thousand foure hundered and forty, Ignt an Amballadour voto the Prete-Map then living. And afterward in the yeare one thouland fine hundred thirtie three, 30 Pope Clement the featienth, and the Empt four Charles the fift, being mer together at Bolognan, an Ambaffador came to them, from valiant David King of Ethropia being hamed Don Frances Aluares, a Portuguai to whom audience was given in the publicke Confiftory, the 29. day of lanuary . There bee presented the Letten (enfluing) to his Holineffe, & (in naute of his King) he gave the obedi- 40 ence observed from Antiquity, and likewife in his name, profented a Croffe of Golde, waighing apound thaning first killed his foot, hand, and mouth. The Letter was written in the Helyopian Laniguage; afterward translated into the Porsugall tongue, then into Lating and a gaine into Italian, and it was read by the Secretary to his Holine fin the publick

me vour blei- .orangrq

A Letter fent from the most Mighty David, King of Ethyopia, to the most Holy Father , Pope Clement the featienth. $\forall 1, x \in$

Olt Happy and France, ordained of Godto

Father, ordained of Godto be the Confectage of men, and to fit in the feat of Saint Oft Happy and Holic

Peter sto whom the Keyes of the Kingdome of Heauen was gipen, and whatfocuer he bound or loofed on earth, the like should be done in Heaven, as lefus Christ hunselfe spakes and Saint Mathew hath written in his Gospell: The King to whose name Lyons doo, reuerence, and (by the grace of God) named in Baptism, Atanatings, that is to lay, Infired by the Vargin; but after I tooks the royal Scepter, was named Daniel Beloved of God, a Piller of the Faith, of the Line of Inda; the forme of David the forme of Salemon, fonne to the Piller of sign, fonne of the feed of Jacob, fonne to the hands of Mary, by carnall fuccession, and for of Nahu, Emperor of high Fibropia, of manie great Kingdomes, Inrifdictions, and Lands King of Xea, of Caffata, of Fatigar, of Angota, of Barn, of Bellenguangua, of Adear, of Vangua, of * Gaziama, whence if fueth Wilus, of Amara of Burgnamadi of Ambea of Tigremation, of Sabaia whote raigned the Queen of Saba of Bernagaes. and Lord fo farre as to Leigh All thefe Landes are under my power, and manie others, great and finall, which I newther number or expresse by their names all as induced thereto by sny prider buttonely to the end, that the four trigger food may be praifed, who hath hellowed Christian Religion on fo many great Kingdomes and hath enlarged to me fo great a grace ga continually I may do him fernice, hawing toade me a Capitall enemie to the Monros, and such as worthin Idolles. I Tenstockiffe misses of your Holinesse. as other Christian Princes vse to doo, to whom I am not the meanest both in power and Religion. I am in my Realmes, a strong Collumb of the Faith, and have no neede of any other, but put in God my whole hope and fuccour, he having alwaies fultained and gouerned me fince fuch time as the Angell of God fpake to Saint Phillip, when hee taught the true & fincere Faith vnto the Eunuch, belonging to the potent Queene Candace, Qu. of Ethyopia, when hee returned from Ierulalem to Gaza, where Saint Phillip baptized the faid Eunuch; by whom likewife the Queen was afterward baptized, with a great part of her house and people. The fuccessors of which famous Queene, did neuer fince faile in true Christianity, but haue continued enermore firme & confrant in the faith, fo that my predeceffors have not beene holpen by any but God, and have extended the Christian Faith, 20 as khaue laboured to do the like.

I keepe my felfe impaled within mine own limits, like a Eyon compaffed with: in a thicke Forrest, strong against the Moores, and other Nations enemies to Chrift, that will not heare the worde of God, nor my faithfull exhortations. I have purfued them with my fword in my hand, and (by hitle and lide) chafed them from their Nelles; by the helpe of God, 3.0 who never failed mee; which hath not happened in like manner to other Chriftian Kings; for when they wold extend their limits, they went not against Infidelles, as eafily they might have done, by meanes of assisting one another, besides their further aid of your Holinesse Benediction, wherein I also claime a part. For among my Charters, there is found the Letter of Pope Eugenius, which he fent heeretofore (with his benediction) to the King of the feed of Iscob; of which benediction, I have ioniffance, and highly delight in it.

Befide this, I holde the Temple of lerusalem in greathonor, and thither I fend goodly offeringes by my Pilgrams, and much more rich and couly thould they bee, if the wayes were affured from Infidelles, who beside their robbing the mesfengers of their prefents, do hinder them allo from free pastage. And if the voyage to Rome were free and open; I wold com in familiarity and company of the Roman Church; as other Christian Primode do, es other Chriftian Princip com I am not they out it, such in to whom I am not inferiour. For, euen as they do, I confesse one direct faith, and one Catholicke Church, I beleeue fincerely in the holy Trinity, one only God, and I beleeve the virginity of our bleffed Lady. I hold and keepe the Articles of the Faith, as they were written by the A-

At this present, the Lord God by the 10 hand of the most puissant King * Emanuel, hath opened the way, to the end that we may visit one another by Embassies, and (ioyntly in faith) serve one God. But it so pleased God, that his Ambassadors being in our Court, they told vs tydings of his death, and the fuccession of his fon (my Brother John) in the Crown. So that the death of the Father, brought me not more griefe and discontent, then the hap-py comming of his son to the Kingdom, canfed ioy and gladneffe.

Aed fuch is my hope, that ioyning our forces and Armies together, we may run thorough the Prouinces of the Moores, and vitterly deftroy them . By which meanes, Christians may (more commodioullie) go and returne from the Temple of Jerufalem. And as Learneftly defire, that I may be made pertaker of the done of God, in the Temples of the holy Apostles Paule and Peter, fo do I wish to haue the Benediction of the Vicar of Iefus Christ, which (withour any doubt) I repute you to be:

"I heare manie things alfo of your fanetitie to Pilgrimes, which go from our Regions vnto Terufalem, and thence to Rome, returning backe naraculouslie, which hash beene to mee unspeakeable pleafure i Buy indeed A Thould receive much greates contenument, if my Ambaffadors could vie a shorter way, and bring me (at all times) ridings from you, which I hope they will doo heer cafeer, fondetime before I die; God afsifting, who I praymaintaine you in health and holineffe. So be it. I laffe your Holie feete, and humblie pray lald grybur Holineffe to fend and me your blef-

*This was the

Chap. 1.

An other Letter fent from the fame Prete-Ian, to the fore-named Holy Father.

N the name of God the Father Almighty, Creator of Heauen and of earth, and of all thinges wifible and inuifible. In the Name of God the

the Name of God the Sonne, Icfus Chrift, who is one and the same with him, from the beginning of the world, Light of Lights, veric God of 20 very God . In the name of God the holy spirit, liuing God, proceeding from God the Father: [1] the King, to whose Name Lyons doo reuerence, fend you these Letters, and by the Grace of God, am called Athani-Tinghil, that is to fay, Incense of the Virgin, the sonne of King Dauid, the sonne of Salomon, son of the King of the hand of Mary, the fon of Nahum by carnall fuccession, sonne of 30 S. Peter and S. Paul by grace; Peace bee with you fust Lord, Holy Father, Mightie, pure and confecrate, that is the chief of all Byshops, not fearing any, nor anie one being that may speake malediction of you; who is vigilant ouer foules, the friend of Pilgrims, a Holy Maifter, Preacher of faith, and capitall enemie vnto all things that offend conscience, a louer of good manners, a holy man, lauded and 40 bleffed of all.

O happy holy Father, I render ye obedience with great reuerence, you beeing the peace of all, deferuing all goodnesse, procuring(by duty)that al should render ye obeyfance, as the holie Apostles commanded, next vnto God. It is truly faide of you, and the same Apostles commanded vs. to do reuerence to Byshops, Archbythops and Prelates. Alfo to loue 50 you in place of a Father, reuerencing ye in place of a King, and to haue Faith in you as in God. For this reason, I bowing my Knees humbly to the earth, doo acknowledge you with a pure and fincere heart for my Father, and that I am your i katawa na minara

O most Holic and mightic father, why haue you not fent forme one hither to vs. to the end, that you might bee informed of my life and helth, you being the thepheard and I your theepe, ? For the good Shephcard neuer forgetteth his flocke. I should not seem to be too far from your Regions, but that your Mellengers may have the meanes to come hither . confi-10 dering that the King of Portugal Emanyel, your Son hath verie commodionilie, and from much farther Regions of land, fent me his Ambassadors, And if God had deferred a little longer his calling to heaven, doubtles those matters that then were in discussion between vs wold have fucceeded to an happie end. But my de. fire is at this present (even so much as can be)to heare good, wholefome and profsperous things of your holinesse, by meflengers trulty and faithful, & fent expres ly: because I have never received anie word from your Holinesse, but heard only fome final matters by fuch as have gon on pilgrimage in my name, and vet never broght meany of your letters. But in our interogations, they have answerd (vocertainly enough), that having paide disir vowes and denotions at Jerufalen, they went afterward to Rome, to visit the points of the Holy Apostles, having first of all understood; that it was calle enough for them to abide in those Countries and to be accounted as Christians. And futelies it pleafed mee highly to heare their dilcourse, by meanes whereof (in a sweete conceined immagination) methought I beheld and contemplated the figure of your Holy face which feemed to me like that of an Angell; and Leonfesse to lone and honor it as Angellicall, But affored ly it would be more freet and acceptable to mee, denoutly to contemplate your benediction to rejoyee my hart. . 19 13d For feeing we are both of one faith & Religion and thinkes that (about all think ges elfe) I should require you to do this. Most humbly praying you also, that is you put the Gold Ring whom your Hint-ger, and the Chaine of Gold about your necke: etten fo, you wold place my amitie in the depth of your cheart, that the memorie thereof man never besidoft. For by kinde Wordes and Gracit words and Letters . Wherefore, I praie you at this present, that it would please you to fend me your Nuntia, with your

M m ...

ous Letters, annity encreaseth fironglie; especially when it is embraced by holy peace, from whence (doubtleffe) all humaine ioy proceedeth. And like as the man that is extream thirsty, desireth earnestly fresh water, as is to be found in the facred Writings; even fo my heart longeth, to have Newes by Messengers and Letters from farre off Countries, wherein I take incredible pleasure. And not only if I might hear fome matter of your Holinesse: but also, if such Newes bee certaine, which have been reported to me, concerning Christian Princes, which ioy would be answereable to that, which Conquerors get by rich spoiles and purchafes. Which now at this time may the more eafily be done, because the King of Portugal/hath opened the paffage, which long time hath beene vied, fending mee his Ambassadours, accompanied with many valiant Knights, in the time of his Father Emanuel, & while he lined. Since when, I have received neither Embassie nor Letters from any Christian King, much lesse from any Pope. Albeit in our Rolles, or Treasury of Charters, which belonged sometime to our great Grandfather, is preserved the memorie of Let- 30 ters from a Pope of Rome, named Eugenim, fent into these parts, when the seed of Iatob raigned, the King of Kinges thoroughout all Ethyopia, & the fuperscription of the saide Letters was in this manner: Eugenius Pope of Rome, to our Wellbeloued Sonne, the King of the feede of Iacob King of Kings throughout all Ethyopia, worthy to be reverenced. And by the fummary of the faide Letters, hee declared, 40 that his Sonne John Paleologus, who was as forgotten two yeares before, K. of the Romaines was called from Conftantinople, to celebrat the facred Counfel, and with hlm went tofeph the Patriarke of Constanrinople, accompanied with a great number of Arch-bythops, Bythops, and Prelates of all forts; and among them also affifted the Procuraters of the Patriarkes of Antioth, of Alexandria, and of lexufalem, all affembled with him in loue of the holyifaith and religion. By meanes whereof the vnity of the Church was confirmed, with grace of the Lord, and al difficulties of the passed tames (which appeared to be erroneous, and contrary to Christian religion) taken away t which things, being by good order established and confirmd, the same Pope had given to all the world occasion of rejoicing, as to each one per-

Now at this time, wee fend you this Book of pope Eugenius, that hath alwaies bin kept by vs without corruption. We would also in like maner have sent ye, the tract of the order and power of the ponto tificall benediction, had not the Volume bin ouer-great, for truly it is as big as the Booke of S. Paul to the Gentiles. And the Legates which brought these things hither on the Popes behalfe, were Theodorus , Petrus Dydimus , and George , fernants of Jesus Christ. But you (most holie Father, shall do well to command that the Bookes of your Rols may be turned ouer and perused, where I think you shall find fome memory of this which I have written vnto ye, that if any thing be referued on our behalfe, it may be diligently regiftred among our Bookes, that perpetuall memory thereof may remaine to our pofterity & fucceffors. And truly, I account him most happy, whose memory is in letters preserved in the holy City of Rome, the feat of S. Peter and S. Paule, who are Lords in Heauen,& Iudges of the whole world. And because my beleefe is such, I fend yee these presents, to the end, that I may win grace with your holinesse, and with your most facred Colledge, hoping that from thence will come holy benediction, with encrease of all goodnesse.

Moreouer, I do intreat your Holinesse to fend me fome Images of the Saints, & principally of the virgin Mary to the end that the name of hir and of your holines, may be often in my mouth and memory, and that I may continualy take delight in your presents. I also require ye to send me fome Artezans and workmen, that know how to make those Images, and swordes and armor of all kinds, to fight withal; as also such as can engraue in Gold and Siluer Maifter-Carpenters, Architects, and Masons, to make houses of stone. And men that are skilfull in Catting of Lead, Copper and Braffe, to couer the tops of those houses. Beside these men, we shall highly esteeme such worke in Glasse, or fuch as are Falconers, & fuch ascan make Instruments of Musicke; as also such as can play on Flutes & trompets. Al which workenien, I defire that may bee of your house; or if you bee not so sufficiently provided, your Holinesse may easily win fuch from other Christian Kinges your children, who are all obedient vnto your command : affuring yee, that no fooner shall those workemen heere arrive, but they hall be held in great honour, according to the fenerall merit of enerie man, and shall receive of my liberality, ample courtefie, reward, and wages: with this condition, that if any one hecreafter, be defirous to returne into his owne Country, hee shall depart from my Court so well recompensed, as shall give him cause to rest contented, carrying hence with him, fuch thinges as himfelfe (hall pleafe, for I wil not keep any man against his mind, when I have received fom be-

Now am I to speake of other things, and would gladly demand of you Holie

Father, why you doe not admonish the Christian Kings your Children, to agree among themselves, as it becommeth brethren, confidering they are of your flock and you their Shepheard? And wel doth your Holinesse know that which is commanded in the Gospell, where it is saide 3 Euery Kingdome divided in it selfe shall bee defolate. For if the kings of Christendom were vnited and leagued together, eafilie might they destroy the Mahometans, &

all other Infidelles, and all their actions wold fucceed to their with rumating the Sepulchre of that falle Prophet, which is in the Citty of Mecha. Wherefore I pray ye, to labour a firme league of amitie among them, exhorting them to lend ine fauour and fuccor. For on all the Confines of my Kingdomes, I am enuironed

They interchangeably aide one another making alliance Kings with Kinges; and Lords with Lords, in great Loyaltie and constancie, and all against vs : There is a King Moore my Neighbor, whom al the other Moare-Kings (his Neighbours) do furnish with Atmes, horses, and all other the Kings of India, Perfia, Arabia, and F-gipt, by whom I daily receive much grieuance; beholding the enimies of Christianity joyned together in brotherly charity enjoying peace & christian Kings my Brethren, not according togither in any maner, nor are moned at their outrages.

Inftruments for warre. These men, are 50 with Moores, Mahometans, and wicked people, who (neuerthelesse) do hold such fidelity together, as wee see not the like:

nefit of his Art.

or any way giving mee fuccour, as is the duty of al christians. And so much the rather because the most filthy fons of Mehomes fo aid one another. Nor that (in this respect) I would have you think that I defire any forces for fuch an enterprife. for I have fufficient of mine owne, and more then I need But I intreat only your Prayers and Orifons to God, and couet to find grace with your holineffe, & with all other Kings my Brethren. This is the reason why I seeke amitie with you and them, to the end, of beeing

Of Prester-John.

furnithed abundantly, with fuch things as are before required, to the feare and aftonishment of the Moores, and that my neighbours (enemies vnto the Christians name) may know, that Christian Kinges (my Brethren)can giue me fauor and affiftance, which truly appertaineth to our common honor, fince we agree in vnitie of Faith and true religion. We are refolued to continue firme in this counfell & deliberation, which feemeth to Vs.most affured, perfect, and profitable. God ful-fill your defires to the praise of Iefus Christ, and of God our Father, whose name be praised of al, in al ages. And you holie Father; embrace mee with all the Saints of lefus Christ, which are at Rome: and in the fame imbracement, I pray yee to receive al the inhabitants of my king. domes, and they that remaine in Ethyo-Pia. Thankes be rendred to our Lord Iefus Christ, by your spirit. Your Holineffe Phall receine thefe Letters. by the helpe of my Brother King John; fon to the most potent King Emanuella by the handes of Frances Alwares our Ambassador.

CHAP. II.

Of the onergreat Superflition of the Queon of Mangy, who loft her mighty Estate; by putting too much considence in the predictions of Aftrologers.

Hat Superstition is a veric great Vice; bringing ma-nie discommodities and datungers, vinto fuch as are thereto inclined, may Ordinarily bee feene; As for example;

Min 2

10 : 11 :

5. Booke.

Of Iada the

Note the vain opinion of this world, in meeting fonce accidents on the way.

The Romain

were greatly addicted vnto

Superstitions.

Cicero in Lib.

The Tartarre.

of Afia very fuperitatious

* Casters of mens fortune

by the day &

de Dininut.

If a man (returning from some journey, or fetting forth vpon it, his bufineffe being ferious and importent, if hee chance to meet an old Woman on the way, or perceiveth a Hare to crosse the passage before him, he presently takes it for an euill encounter, and to prefage some perill towards him.

Some Huntimen also are of opinion, that if they meete a Priest or a Frier vpon the way, as they ride on Hunting, they shall furely (that day) not take any thing. Some others, if they but heare a Pie to chatter, they shall shortly understand of euill tidinges. There are some also, so strangely incensed, that they verilie beleeue, if they meete a Serpent or Snake: that day ino inconvenience can betide them with divers other vanities belide, which fauour much more of Paganisme, then of any Christianity. Such superstitions were deepely grounded among the Romaine people, yea, much more then in any other, witnesse their Auspices, that is; their Confultations which they wold make, hefore they began any war or expedition, by the observation of Birds beholding their flight, liftening their fongs, and whether they fed wel or ill, in regard whereof, they loft many commodities in | 20 their warres. And it is not to be doubted, but that euerie superstitious Captain, wil hardly do any thing of defert; which Cisero well noted in his Bookes of Diuination, and maketh a mockery thereat. This follie is dispersed thorough the world, but yet in some Countries more then other. As among the Afian Tartars who are so much addicted to indicial Aftrologie, and therein fo superstitious, as 40 they will neither build a House, Village, Cittie, Temple, or any other building whatfoeuer, but at laying the first stone, they will fet downe in Writing, the day, the houre, the moneth, and the feafon. The like they do at the Nativitie of their Children, then they confult with Aftrologers and *Generhliagues, who then doo fore-tell what pleafeth themselues. And these people are now (at this day) more 50 superstitious in these affaires, then euer they were . And this is the matter which I am now to speake of, in the wing that a woman (being too much ouer-fivaled by these superstitions, lost one of the verie fairest Estates in the worlde, and how it hapned, I shall briefely relate.

The Tartarian Annales do declare, that there was a King of Maugy, named Or Iada the King of Mau-gie, and his hunting. Iada, who beeing on Hunting, espyed a great Lake of Fresh-Water, thorough the middest whereof, passed so strong a River, as was able to beare a Boat, which came from the East Indiaes, a rich countrev. Heereon he confidered, that for Commerce and good of his Kingdome, the Territorie round about it was fruitfull, and the Lakes Water nourifhed great store of Fish, a faire Hauen also, being not farre off thence, standing for the benefit of all Windes, being on the Ocean Sea, which is (almost) continually calme, and in that quarter it would be verie conuenient to build a Citie. Hauing had Communication in this case with his Counsell, and they allowing the goodnesse of his conceit, hee gaue order to them, for further proceeding in the purpose: this happed in the yeare of the worlde, according to their Supputation, fine thousand, fixe hundred . This Ci-tie was founded upon piles, and (according to their Custome) they consulted with their Genethliaques, to know if this Cittie should flourish and continue for any length of time. Whereto they anfwered, that it should never fall into anie others power, but only of them as should be of the Lignage of Inda, first founder thereof, vntill such time, as a man (who (hould have an hundered eies, all clearly feeing) came to befrege it. The Cittie was named Quinfay, a worde corrup- ty of Quinfay ted of Kynsin, or Checin, in the I auian tongue, which fignifieth a Happy Cittie, and whereof, the whole Province where it is feated, tooke the Name of Quinzi There are two Castles, which command on the Sea, and are adjoyning vnto the Lake before named : and there doo the their paffage ouer the Lake. It is feated about forty fine degrees on this side the Tropicke, in the fixt climate, and the tenth Paralell. This goodly Cittie containeth (as fuch as haue Voyaged thither fay) fine good Leagues or thereabout in circuit: which is verie likely to be true, by reason it is erected in the way The greatiles ter; and the freetes are verie large, the diounnelled Pallace great, and forced Garden-plots; the City. the whole bodie being planted at eale, &

fo well disposed, as a man may goe thou

Waters of the River of Babala, yeelde furrender of themselves, as they make

The scituati-

Of the Queene of Maugy. Chap. 2.

> rough all the Cittle on Land, and in the Channels also, which are large, case, & great, because the Barkes may the fooner paffe them. Horfes also may cafily passe through the streets, to bring such things as are necessarie for them of the Citty: And there is no enclosed City in the whole Vnineric, either on this fide, or beyond the Equator, of fuch wonderfull greatnesse. In regard of the goodlie Scituation, it required no long time of peopling & frequentation of Merchant-

The Traffick and refort to Quinfay.

Dererminan

...) 28° Faciar the rich King of Mangy.

Opinion of Arength, breeds neglect of marti-all Discipline cause of too much securi-

The Royaltie of the Kings Court, & his furance, that (many times) Tradef-men left their Mops wide open in the Night, yer none durit be to bolde, as enter into itrangers, comming from many Countries : as from the rich Bafterne Indiaes, by the River of Babala; and by Sea, the Ethyopians, Armenians, Persians, Arabians, Egyptians, Seythians, and others. Heereupon the King failed not to graunt good store of immunities, to draw inhabitants thinher: which forting to his expectation; hee builded a verie beautifull Pallace, that flandeth yet intirely whole. Now, it came to paffe fine hundered yearesafter, that there raigned a King, very rich, named Facfur; by whom, the Kingdomes were feated in the great Prouince of Maney, which is faid to be one of the verie greatest in the world; and by whom, the Lands and Seigneuries were fo well fortified, as they were thought to | 30 be inuincible. By means whereof, none durst affaile or meddle with them; and this was the cause, that both the King and his people left off, and fuffered the exercife of Armes to grow quite out of vie. For euerie Cittie was circled and engirt with great and deepe ditches (brim-full of VV ater) as also with huge walles, verie ftrongly flanked with goodlie Towers & vnder-props. And in those times, he had 40 (at the least) the number of one thousand and fine hundred, but now they can reckon no more then eleanen hundred; and vet hee had no Horfes for warre, or anle other feruice; and this affurance occafi-oned, that the King made no vie of time, but continually tooke his delight & pleafure. He had ordinarily in his Court a thousand Gentlemen, beside his traine of Seruants and Officers', which was great | 50 and honourable. Neuerthelesse, hee held Inflice in highest esteeme, affecting peace and tranquility, and he was verie mercifulled No mandurft offend, or do wrong to his Neighbor, but he was fure of feuere punnithment In breefe, his Kingdome was of fuch freedome and afThis would do well in all parts of the

Strangers and Transilers paffing thorough the Countrey, might goe both night and day in fafe fecuritie, without feare of any man. In like manner, the King was veric kind and charitable to the poore, and neuer suffered such as were in extreame pouerty, to complaine of their want and indigence. Moreover, euerie yeare(by diligent fearch)he affembled together a great number of children, expoled as Orphans, and forfaken of their Parents (whereof sometimes there were Great charitwentie thousand) and them he caused to tie to poore Children. be kept & brought vp at his own charge beside many other Charities which wold require much time to reherfe, and which is not vied by christian Princes elswhere. And although he was a Pagan and Idolater, yet hee fuffered Tewes and Christians (whereof fome were Westerians) to line in all his Kingdoms, and thefe things were in the yeare of Grace, 1268. Cublay, King of the Turtary, was then accounted one of the greatest Princes in and his nuni the world; for he had (as fome haue left | ber of Kingdonies. in writings) thirty or fortic great Kingdomes. Such as make any doubt heerof, let them read M. Paulus, who was (at that time) in those parts, a verie true Author, and they shall find much more then I can heere speake of. His Capraines gane him to understand, that they could not find any more lands to conquer: for the Sea, and verie huge deferts had fet a period ar their Conquests, only this Kingdome of Many excepted, Which confined on foin lands of the great Cham Cublay. Now, albeit Faefur was a frend and had gitten no occasion of making warre vpon him, on-great ambiti-ly because he was almost as powerfull as on in Cublay.

405

him. So minding to vie his men of war, he found them at variance among them felues, and that a great bulineffe was first to be ended, touching his two nephowes, whereof I have formerly fooken, Heere-upon, Neftordin a neere Kinfman to Cub-

Lay, was chosen for this expedition, albeit hee was not then in the Court; but the Commissions beeing directed to his abiding the king had newes fent him, that

Min 2

The ouer-

27.....

the faid Cublay, yet Cublay Was now aduifed to contend for superioritie; and to make his great neighbor tributary vito

The Christi-

aus opposed themielues ageinst the red tion of

The extraction of Bajam Chinfan, a vahe died two dayes before of a ftraunge ficknesse. Wherefore, the charge of this businesse, was transferred to Baiam Chinfan, the Sonne of a publicke poore Woman, not auouched by anie Father, and he was borne with many spottes on his bodie, verie neere refembling the eies of a man; whereby hee had the firname given him of Batam Chinfan, which fign fieth in their Language, the fight of 10 an hundred eyes.

The education of Baiam.

The famous

Conquells of

Baians Chinfan

This poore Boy was brought vp by his Mother, fo well as her pouerty would permit, not having any man that would anouch her to be his wife. As he grew in stature, he addicted his minde to follow one of the Emperors Armies, beeing at first but as a Lackey or Drudge, that carried a Soldiers furniture after him. Afterward, having attained to more yeares and strength, he was entertained as a Soldier, becomming first a Corporall: next Engine, Lieutenant, Captaine, or Chiefe, then a Colonell: at length, being knowne a man of ynderstanding valiant, and fortunate, he had the charge of an Army, which hee guided to fuccessefully, that he annexed to the Crowne of Cublay, Emperour of Tartaria, and his Maifler, ten great Provinces or King-domes, to wit; Miena, Caraiena, Beugala, Canquigu, Amu, Tholomana, Gnigut, Caranfu, Ciangli, and Tadiufu : and he neuer, attempted any matter, but he brought it to full effect, except the conquest of Piamfu, whereof I am to speake elswhere. Baiam entered with a great Armie in-

Bàiam entred to the Province of Maney, and fuminointo Maugy, ned the King to render himselfe tributaand funimoned the King ry, or elfe he would warre voon him, for and diners and in the name of his Prince Cublage but Citties. the King made answere, that he had no fuch intention. Wherefore at his first arrivall, he beliedged the Cittie of Coninganguy, and fummoned the Cittizens thereof to yeelde themselues: as also, to take an Oath of fidelity and obedience to the Emperor Cabley, which they like> fiege, and departed thence, without offering them anic other harme or molleftation. Afterward, hee did as much to the next Citty, which also made the like wife refused to do. By meanes whereof, haufing heard their answere, he raised his Passing on, he fummoned four or fine other Citties, all which refused yeilding:

but comming to the fixt, he affailed it in great furie, and tooke it by affault which being done, he returned backe vpon the other Citties, which he took and mined; fo that in very (hort time, he fubdued & by Baiam, tooke twelue Cities. For, he had in his Army verie braue and valiaunt men, all pickt or choise Soldiers, bold and couragious. And the Great Cham, fent him another Armie, as a fresh supply of as great power as the first, which gaue great terror to them of Mangy, causing them to wax desperate, and their hearts to faile them. And King Facfur himfelfe, having King Facfur had fuch deare experience of the corage leauch Quin and valour of the Tartars, and perceiving fay, and goeth how they proceeded on still in their vn-danted fury, became so much amazed, that he betooke himselfe to sea, with so many people as hee could muster togither withdrawing into an impregnable Ifland, having with him above a thousand thips; and leaving the guard of the Citic of the Citic of Quin(ay, to the disposition of his wife, of Quin(ay. there to have her best support & defence. In this extreamity the Queen contained focuer, that was judged necessary for ayd and defence of the Cittie. For free had fiftie thousand men of warre; both Inhabitants and strangers, and twelve or fifteene thousand Divers, men that coulde abide long time ynder water, and pierce the bottomes of the enemies thips to fink them in the River. The Cittie was well furnished with Victuals; and all needfull Munition, to endure a long fiege, impeaching (enerie way) the entrance into the The Queene

yery manly courage : and caried her felfe fo prouidently, as nothing wanted what-

Hauen, by the Sea. Neuertheleffe, the andher peo-Queene and the chiefe Commaunders ple too fuperwere possessed with ouer-great superstition, till they heard, that he who maintained the fiege, was named Baians Chin-(an, that is (as we have formerly faid) the fight of an hundred eies. This made both her and them to tremble with feare, remembring both the Father and fon: and also because it was registred in the books which were kept in the publick treasurie. that neuer should the Citty be surprized, but by a man that had an hundered eyes Thefe Kingand therefore they refolued to yeelde it. othaue been though it feemed a matter wholly imposanquered in ahundred fible, yea quite against nature, that a man thould have an hundred eyes. As they were vppon the point of furrendering the Cittle by composition; the Chri-Rians, who had lived in all quiernesse in those Countries; by the meanes of their Bishop Gaspar, declared in the full Senate, where the Queen also was pre-

Quinfay to the Enemy. fent : that no regard was to be made of fuch Prognoftickes, as proceeded from lying Mathematicians, and Generaliaques, to whom if the Mans Name appeared for to have the fight of an hundred eyes; yet notwithstanding, the man himselfe had onely but two, as other men haue, and thefe were but theillusions of Sathan, the Father of lying heereupon, some in the Senatehouse alledged many Histories, which happened in their time; to thew how vaine these friuolous predictions were. Neuerthelesse, the Cowardise of diuers, that neuer understood the nature 20 of warre, or what honour attended on bold hardiment, they being of the greatest in authority, and relying on these foolish superstitions concluded to fur-render the Citty . Wherefore, having made (by confent of the Queene) an honest capitulation: they suffered the Enemy to enter; that kept faith exactly with them. Whereat Baiam was not a little amazed, for hee imagined his ftrength neuer able to furprize it . Cub-lay being aductifed thereof, caused ge-merall proceffions to be made, and follemne facrifices performed to the Sun;

mocking at the superstition of the Quin ayans, and admiring the vnmatchable fortune attending on Baiam . As for the Queene, she retyred her feife to the Court of the great Cham, who re-ceiued and vied her very honourably:

and concerning the King of Mangy her Husband, he continued his aboade in

At that instant also, the nine Kingdoms contained in that Province, yeilded themselues : except the Citty of Stanfu, which out held the Tartars Ar-the Island, where he ended his daies.

Quinfay yeel-ded up to Baiawand his

The capitall my three whole yeares. And it had neuer beene taken, but that M. Paulus, and his Father and Vickle (by permiffi- 50 on of the Tartarian Emperour) made Engines of Wood, which hurled great Stones into the Citry, and did such harme to the fo long befiedged; as they were constrained to yeilde themselues! Thus you may perceine, that fuperftition is the cause of much euill; for doubtleffe, if the Queene and the beffeged had ftil kept Quinfay, and the other Cities : an hundred years labour could not have conquered the Kingdomes of

And heere I would entrear the genrle Readers, not to conceine amile of me, for not following the writing of M. Paulas, in his description of Quinto far, for hee faith That there is withe midft thereof a lake, which containeth ten miles in circuit, and that the Cittle is 34 miles in compatte, and hath fixe hundred thousand Houses in it ."I rather thought fit, to follow what I What the finde written in a Dialogue, made by Garcias Orta a Portugall Phifitian, who dayes. faith That it is not about thirty fine yeares fince he wrote, that it contained not about foure or fine feagues n compaffe, beeing feated wholly in a Lake, and hath not about threefcote thoufand Houses init. I know not whether it be diminished, since the faid Venetian came thence. It valued in reuennewes, fifteene Millions, and fixe hundredthousand Crownes, to the King yearely, in regard of his right (by way of leucy) vpon merchandiles, and yet not counting the Toule faide on Salt, and this was but the ninth part of the great Province of Mangy. Arthis day, as I heard by a letuite of Chalous in Champaigne, named Gobert , who told me, that he remained there about two yeares : and he faith, that the valuation is much more now at this instant. Angustus C.efar made better vie of his superstition, then the men of Quin-Jay, or their Queene did; for, a little before the laft battaile, which hee had a gainst his Compenitor Anthonie : as he went from his Land Army, to that on the Sea, hee met a Sutler or Victualer to the Campe, driving an Affe laden beforehim, of whom he demainded, how hee was called : the Sutler made answer, that his owne name was Entichus, and his Affes Niconta : which two Greeke Names fignified nothing elfe. but Fortunate victorie. Heereupon, the faid Cafar, prefaged by this encounter, that he should be victorious ouer Anthony, who contended for the Empire of the VV orld, and that the Gods had defigned it vnto him. On this afflirance, he forth-with gaue battell by Sea to

The great Renennuesof

A good kinds of Superflition

1.62-4

5. Booke.

Of the Knights Templers.

Pope Honorius

iustituted the

the iccond

Templers.

Anthony, wherein he prevailed, and fo (by consequent) got the Empire. Pompey, quite contrary, through a

Pompey neuc thing in goo fort, or fucgreat distrust, that he could neuer faue himselfe, nor finde any ayde or assured retreat, after he lost the battaile at Pharfalia against Julius Cafar ; grounded his folly on this occasion. In his flight, passing by the Isle of Cyprus, to the end hee might breath a while; with-drew into Ægypt. And being entertained (by the Gouernour) into the Citty of Paphos, where his lodging was prepared in a Pallace, builded in a very pleafant plot ypon the Sea, he defired to know who builded it, and how it was named. Answere was returned, that the place was called Cacobafilea, which is as much to fay, as Bad Harbour. In regard of which name, it appearing to him to be 20 an euill presage : hee would not enter into it, but paffed on farther, and tooke Shipping very fuddenly. Being verilie perswaded, that this accident to him at this Pallace, did presage; that he should Toone enough meete with a bad lodging to last all his life time . Being landed in Ægypt, to deriue some succour from the King, whose Father he hadrefeated in his Kingdome: he caused him to be trayteroully flaine, as thinking to doe a great fauour to victorious Iulius

But Sylla did better, who perceiof the Fabi, were flaine in the Warre, by fecret Ambushes of the Veientines, who had long time warred against the, hardby * Cremera; and many worthy

Captaines beside, had received great mischances on the same day. But Sylla, who was no way superstitious, encouraged his Army, faying . Let vs fbew our Telues fo valiant this day, that although it h th beene infortunate heeretofore ; yet it may produe happy to vs. So, suddenly gi-uing battaile, they won the day. Some other would not have done it , but ra-

Cefar. uing his Army ready for to give bat-Sylla, by not being supertaile to the power of Mithridates, King flitious, won of Pontus; yet all being out of hart, as the battaile. holding that the day would be loft, because both the Priests and Soothsayers had observed, that the like day had been 40 alwaies vnfortunate to the Romaines. For it was registred in their Calender, that (as on the very same day) three hundred and fixe Noble Gentlemen, al

A River in Tulcia where the noble Faby were flain

The Noble laying of Sylla ther would have given credit to the difsemblings of Wizzards and Sacrificers. But to punish such men, for weakning the courage of Souldiours prepared to fight : fome of them have beene put into the front of the battaile, where they haue beene flaine, and very few others. In breefe, superstition neuer caused any goodnesse but hath procured many great loffes.

CHAP.III.

Of the Order and Knight-hood of the Templers; and how long it continued.

N the yeare of our Lord, one thousand, ninety six, some Christian Princes (of diuers Nations) made a Congregation, by the county of honest and holy life. It was then determined, to goe for the Conquest of the Holy Land, which was in the power of prophane Infidels, who had kept it foure hundred and ninety years. Among the chiefe in this action, was Godfrey of Buillon, Duke of Lorraine, the The Conquet most apparant of them all, and he that of lerufalend carried the greatest merit. It pleased buillon. God, that after many battailes, which lasted for the space of three yeares : the Citty of Ierusalem, and many other Citties in Syria and Indea were conquered, beside divers other neighbouring Prouinces. Afterward, all the Christian Princes having regard to the high deferts of Godfrey; elected him King of Ierufalem : and Arnulphus; Arch-bishop of Pifa, was likewise cre-

Godfrey of Buillon remaining King of lerusalem, there also continued in his company, many great and worthy Christians, who daily made warre vpon the Infidels; as well round about Ierufalem, as in other neighbouring Countries. Which being vnderstoodby diuers faithful Christians in the westerne parts, and on what tearmes the affaires ated Patriarch, by Pope Calixius the fe-nice, and regaine the vsurped Landes; and others on voyages, to visite the Holy Sepulcher. Now, about a yeare The death of Godfrey of Buillon & the instaulment of Balwine.

Hugues de Pagams, and Gau-frede de Saint

Chap. 3.

after his Coronation, Godfrey of Buillon dyed, and his Brother, named Baldwine (a man equall enery way to the others merits) was crowned King in his stead. During whose raigne, among many other that reforted daily thither: were nine Gentlemen, intimate friends and great companions, of whom we finde the names but of two; who (it may be) were the chiefest to wit : Higues de Paganis, and Gaufrede de Saint Adelman. These men beeing come to Jerulalem, and having well contemplated the Countrey, and all the neighbouring places : they found, that at the Port of lapha, and other places of their paffage, there were many bufie spies upon the waies, that daily both robbed and kild Pilgrimes and Paffengers. In regard whereof, after good and mature deliberation, they concluded, with the helpe of many more; for it is to be prefumed. that they leagued themselves with other people of the faute mind) to make 30 avow, for doing some service acceptable to God, and to imploy their whole life time, in making the waies fecure & paffable, or else to loofe their lines in the enterprise; while the other Christians were buffed in other places, fighting with the Infidels. Perseuering in this religious purpose; they tooke (as an affigned place for their retreate) à Church, called, The Holy Temple, by 40 permission of the Abbot there abiding:

stood beyond the Seas: great numbers of people went continually thither, fome (in meere zeale) to affift Gods fer-

The King and Patriarch, allow their pro-

How they first attained to and others. Forwing to

uing their vow, and so they continued for the space of nine yeares. During which time, for the great feruice they did to Christendome , their credite and renowne highly encreased, beside the meanes of fo worthy an example. By reason of their encrease in number, Pope Honorius the second, at the request of Stephen, Patriarch of Ierufalem; deuised a rule and manner of life for them : appointing, that they should be cloathed in white. Afterward, Pope Engenius the third, added a Badge, or Armoury of a red Croffe; to be worne on their breasts : which they promised by a follemne vow to observe for ever, according as other religious Knightes did. And therefore they were honored, to have it brought them by the hand of Saint Bernard, a reverend and S. Bernard was holy Doctour, whom they elected as the first Maichiefe and first Maister of their Order, Knights Temaccording as other religious Knightes multiplication of their Order, and honour of their deedes in Armes; as not onely they kept the wayes of the holie voyage, lafe from Theeues and Murdeters : but alfo (both by Sea and Land) they made great incursions and strong warres voon the Infidels . So that their fame and worth spreading it felle throughout Christendome, the Kinges and Princes (in many partes) ordained and allowed them great Rents and Reuenues, which they imploied in those warres, like true Knights, attending on the feruice of Ichis Chrift. And by fucceffe of time, growing on in ftrength and ability of weartn: man and Provinces, they had abiding in the Order flayed and Provinces, they had abiding in the Order flayed in the Holy and ability of wealth: in all Countries The Great cheefest Citries and strongest places; in the but most especially in the Holy Land, Land.

greater number of them , keeping an yeares after the conquest made by God-

In fhort time after, fuch was the

had the like observation.

edino.

where ordinarily the great Maifter of the Order made his aboad, will the Army cotinually there, as also in other places, where most necessity required; It happened afterward, that for the fins of men, difcord monied among the Christians, and the great negligence in Princes not onely the Citty of Ierufalem, but other flaces also formerlie conquered (as we have before declared) were regained by the Infidels i ninetie and in that respect, they were cald Templers, a name which alwaies after remained to them. When the King and the Patriarch had intelligence thereof, and perceived their paines to bee holy and commend ble they administred all thinges neceffary voto them , fo that they lived (after this manner) in the Temple both 50 very religiously and chaftly, and (which is more) their number multiplyed, and encreased day by day. Norwithstans ding, albeit there were now a great number of them, yethad they hey ther habite, or any rules defigned them! but lined together in common, obfer more humaine and pious toward it, then

Macrob lib.z. Samual cap 4

Herods owne fonne flain mong the InKing Hered (when he understoode, that among the Innocents which he had caufed to be killed, after the birth of our Satheir Dammes : whereas the Children of men, should bee in daunger to be forfaken both of Father and Mother, and fo oerith.

Another ab-Arifotle.

.

Lascinions pictures and Images of Gods,abfurd ly allowed by

> IfGods do : misse, men the Pather himfelfe. Well then, to conclude this point, I fay of Aristotle, as Augustus Cafar faid of utour, one of his owne Sons was flaine) His better, quothhe, to be Herods Pigge, then his sonne. And this he faid in regard that Pigges were not killed in Ludes, because the Iewes did not eate anie Swines Fleih. And even fo I fay, it were better tobee a Beaft in Aristot es Commonwealth, then aman, for Beaftes shoulde bee affuredly cared and provided for by

And heere I cannot forbeare to fay fornewhat, of another Constitution of his, which I knowe not, whither it were more absurd or ridiculous. We made mention a little before, of a notable Law of his, forbidding in his Commonwelth, the vse of lasciulous Pictures & Images; least young men, and especialy children. might be corrupted in manners by fight of them. Neuerthelesse, he excepteth in the fame Law, the Images and Pictures of certaine Gods : In whom (faith he) Cu-Stome allowveth Lacinion fre Se. Meaning no doubt, the painted and graued Stories of the Adulteries of Jupiter, Mars, and Venus, and other Gods and Goddeffes, fet foorth euery where amongest the Paynims, as well in publicke places, as in their private Houses and Temples. Wherein may bee obserued, the ridiculous absurdity of this great Phylosopher, not only in matter appertaining to Religion, but also in matter of Commonwealth; yea, and concerning his owne law formerly mentiond. For, what could it auaile, to take away all other wanton pictures and representations that might corrupt the minds of youth, when he expressely alloweth the vse of Lascinious Gods pictures, which must needes corrupt them much more, and as it were, instill into them, vicious affections & wils together, with their Religion, and by example of their Goddes? For, by their immitation, they could not but hope to attaine, as well to perfection of Vertue, as to eternall beatitude and felicite, beleeting as they did, that they were true

For, how could any man bee perfwaded, that Adulterie deferued punnish. ment, or was not a great, yea, a Dimne Vertue, feeing Mars taken tardy With Venus, or Impiter Stealing away Europa, in the hape of a Bull or violating Lada In the forme of a Swanne; or entering into the house of Danae (by the Louer) in a Golden it owre? Would not anie man that were Religiously delibred vinto thele Gods, bee animated by right of them to do the like? Yea, and Children Learning their Religion, and not only hearing, but alfo feeing eliery where, by Pictures and Images, that fuch actes were confillited by their Gods, could they imagine, that the same were enill, and not to be imitated ? 7 10 7

This is verie well declared by Lucian, of his owne experience, who, in his nippo. Dialogues, maketh Menippue fay thus: When I was yet but a Boy , and heard out of Homer and Hefiode, of the Adultaries, Fornications, Rapes, and Seditions of the Gods, Truely I thought, that those thinges were very excellent, and began even then, to be greatly affected towards them. For I could not imagine that the Goddes themfelues wou'd euer have committed Adultery, if they had not esteemed the same to bee lawfull and good. The like also fignifyeth Charea in Terence, who beholding a Table, wherein was painted how Jupiter deceiued Danae, when he came in ar the top of the house, saith; that hee was greatlie encouraged to defloure a yong Maid, by the example of so great a God. At quem Deum? (laith he) Qui templa cali summa Conitu concutit . Ego homunicio boc non facerem? Ego vero illud ita feci & lubens. But what God was this? Even hee, which my heart. These are the effects, that the fight of Aristotles ab fuch Lascinious Pictures of the Goddes, furdity made must needes worke in their minds which plaine & man beholderhem; and are withall; Religioully affected towards them. And therefore, Arestotle permitting these, and forbidding all other, to prenent thereby the wonderfull corruption of youth, may verie fitly bee compared vnto one, that

Chakes the highest Temples of the Heavens with Thunder. And therefore, might not I, that am but a poore wretch, doe the like? Yes truely, I did it, and that with all distant?

8. Booke

Mens minde

Gentiles, by

A verie true andapt Com

Chap.5.

fhould make a Law to prohibite the burning of houses, except it were with some artificiall wilde fire , that could not bee extinguished. For such may be said to be the fire of Concupilcence, kindled in the minds of men or Children, by Religious acts or representations, which maketh fuch impressions, as neuer after can be rafed out againe, fo long as affection to the fame Religion remaineth. Which maketh me therefore to conclude, that Aristotle failed and erred no leffe, or rather more abfurdly, then the other Lawmakers, whose errors hee censured and controlled. Heereby two things are inferred, and do appeare enidently. The one the weakneffe of mans wit, when it is not suppor-

The weaknes ted and directed by the grace of GOD. of mans wit, and the im-Lawes infere vpon the pre

tic de Reip. in

And the infufficiencie of humain lawes, 20 through the weaknesse of the Law-Makers, who intending (manie times) to make good and wholesome Lawes, for benefit of the Commonwealth, doo ordaine things very inconvenient and preiudiciall thereto: which Cicero observeth in some of the Wiselt men of his time. Ican tell you (faith hee) of Marcus Cotta . whole Law concerning private indgements, was abrogated by his own Brother, the fame 30 yeare that it was made . And the Lawet of Licinia and Mutia, made by two most wife Consulles were in the judgements of al men not onely unprofitable, but alfo, pernitious to the Commonwealth . As allo the Lawes called Liuix, were abrogated by the Senate in an instant. And in like manner, I holde the Lawes Seix and Apulix to be nothing worth. Thus farre Cicero.

The like whereof might be exemplified in euery Commonwealth, but this thal fuffice at this time, concerning Lawmakers. Now let vs confider Law in it felfe, what it is ; to what end it is ordained; and what it can perform in a Commonwealth, for the perfection & establishment thereof.

CHAP.V.

adont, dat neveler

What Law is : To what pind it was ordained. And what it can performe in a Common-in grimmorr a droduction, and the VV hat Lavvis.

Lato, peaking generally Plain Mino de of all Law, as well writ-ten as vnwliten; defi-neth it to be; A relifona-ble vale; leading and di-recting menso sheyr dae end for a publicke good, ordaining Penalties for them that transgreffe, and Rewards for them that obey. And Citero more brief- cicin lib. t. de ly thus : Law is (faith hee) the highest or chiefe reason grafted in nature . commaunding those things which are to be doone and forbidding the contrary. And againe, Law is the force of Nature . the under standing and realon of a Wileman : the rule of right and wrong. And speaking more perticulerly of written Lawe, hee faith : It is the The definition reason & understanding of a Wiseman who ordaineth in writing what he thinketh good by way either of commandement, or of Rrohibitions. Laftly, the Civilians, moft briefly and properly defineth it thus " Lex est fanctio fancta jubens bonefta prohibens cotraria. Law is a holy decree, that is to fay A Decree which ought not to be broken, commanding good and holy things, and forbidding the contrary. This Law, Plato calleth, The foule, that giueth forme and life to the Commonwelth, and the Anchor that stateth and assureth it. And Cicero fayth : That neither any house, nor Cittie, nor Nation, nor yet humaine kinde can Stand wvithout Law. Nevertheleffe, how excellent or defective foeuer it is for a Commonwealth, yet it is to be understood, that all Lawes whatfoeuer (which are meerely humaine) are defectine, Defective and insufficient, for the perfect Gouernement of a State. For whereas humaine Lawes confifteth eyther in Written Statutes or Decrees, or in the Commandements and Ordinances of a king Law & wife Magistrate (which Magistrate, Ci- die Eawe's cero therefore calleth, A Speaking Lawe, dambe Mage as he also calleth the Lawe, A dumb Ma-

Rrr 3

Accur [in inftit Scaus.comf. 3.

All Lawes written or vii

Ould, Lib, 3, de

Arte amande

giftrate) yet it is enident, that neyther of both apart, nor yet both concurring, can fuffice.

The imperie-Aton of writ-

Arif in Ethic. libes scap. vo. Int.lib. vo ad e dictum ff. de legib.& Senatus conflit.3 et Iul. Lib.89 digef.

> The imperfe ction of vnwritten lawe

Better to bee gouerned by good Lawes, then by the man, & why. Arifin Polit. lib.3 cap, 12.

Where good Laws govern God doth go-

As a Magiftrate should gouerne the people, fo fhold the law gouerne the Magistrate. Jul.lib. 15. digef. ff de legi. & Se-

For the first, whereas written Lawes are vniuerfall, and concerne the action of men, which are infinite and perticuler, it is not possible, that any Law-Maker thould extend his Lawes fo farre, that they may fufficiently prouide for all cafes that may occurre; but that hee must leaue place for the determination and indgement of men, according to equity. As not oncly Aristotle, but also the comlians themselves, doe teach, and experience is daily feene thereof. In the neceffity of interpretation and mittigation of Lawes in Dispensations, and in Appealations from Law to Conscience; whereby the imperfection of al written Lawes, fufficiently appeareth. And as for the ordinances of wife Magistrates, it is manifest (by that which I have fayde before, concerning the errours of wife Gouernors and Law-makers) that the weakneffe and blindnesse of mans wit, and the corruption of his Nature, is fuch; that hee can neither fee fo clearely in all cafes, nor yet be so voide of affection and passion, that he can be able to determine, decree, and judge according to equity. In which refpect. Aristoile disputeth , Whether it were besser, That a Commonwealth should be governed by good Lawes, or by the wil of the heft man? And he preferreth the Gonermment of Lawes, before the other, faying of he Lam is (as it were) a pure and cleare under standing : whereas the understanding of the best man, is toyned with fenfual appetite, whereby it may bee corrupted. And therefore, where the Law gouerneth, there God gouerneth: but where man gouerneth, be he neuer fo wife and vertuous, there a cruell Beaft (to witte; Concupifcence and Passion) entreth into the government with him, and manie times obscureth his understanding. For which cause, the Magistrate ought in all cases, wherein the meaning of the Law is cleare: to judge and determine according to the prescript thereof, as the Ciuill Law it felfe ordaineth. And Cicero faith: As the Magistrate gouerneth the people, fo flow'd the Law governe the Magistrate. Whereupon I inferre, that feeing no Law-maker can fo fufficientlie prouide for the government, and direct ruling of a Common-wealth, by the Letter of the Law; but he must leane infinite | Cicer de legibre cases, yea, and the interpretation of the Lawe themselves, to the determination and judgement of men, who are also (on their part) defective, to wit; subject vnto passion and error: It followeth then, that No sufficience neither the Law without the Magistrate, meanes to nor the Magistrate without the Law, nor fed Common vet both concurring, can suffice for the welth, by huperfect government of a commonwelth, maine Lawes but should bee to supply the defectes of each other. And therefore I conclude, that there is no fufficient and affured meanes, to establish any State by humain This will be more euident, if wee confider, what are the especiall ends whereto Two princi-

Lawes were ordained, and what they can perform. Two things are principaly inte- main Laws ded by them. The one, the administration of Inflice, by the decision of causes, controuerfies, and fuites, betwixt partie and partie. The other, is the reformation of manners, and repression of vice, for that it is permitious to a Commonwealth. Of the first I have already spoken sufficient- A reference ly, as well in the weakeneffe of the Lawmaker and Magistrat, as imperfection of the Law, in the determination of causes. And therefore, I will a little further enlarge my felfe, concerning the latter; which is, suppression of Vice, and reformation of manners : and I will declare that humaine Lawes cannot sufficientlie performe, either the one or other.

If Lawes were able to reforme mens ff. de legib. maners, or to represse vice, they must do send. cinful. it, sither by Precept, or by Prohibition, or 1, Elmol. by Permission, or by Rewarding, or by Punishing, for in these five things, confist al the force of human lawes, as the Lawiers do testify of themselves. For the two first, human lawes to wit; Precept & Prohibition, they are al- confifteth in together vnable and insufficient, to bring Precept, Prothe corrupt nature of man to any perfec- mission, Retion or vertue. For what other help haue ward and Pawe thereby, but only the knoledge of our numers. duty ? which knowledge alone, as Ariftotle faith, Helpeth litle or nothing to vertue, ine praye and commendation whereof, con-fifteth in action and operation. Because it bb. 2.2094. 50 the praise and commendation whereof, connothing availeth, though wee know neuer so much, if we do not put our knowledge in practife. And as little it profiteth a fickeman, to know what meat is good for him: when hee hath fuch a loathing vnto it, that hee cannot eate it. Euen fo, the corrupt nature of man hath litle help or remedy by the knowledge of his duty: when vertue is so loathsome vnto Sence. Epift.95 him, that he cannot brooke it. For, as Precepts a-lone little a-Seneca faith. Nihil proderit dare pracepta; uaile to the niss prius amoueris obstantia praceptis. It obtaining of is to little purpose to gine precepts, except thou first remoone the obstacles of them. And therefore the Poet faide truely

Chap.5.

The precept and prohibi - mc.Epift.95.

Prohibition

(of it felfe)

rather hurteth then o-

-Si possem, santor essem: Sed trahit innitum, nous vis, aliuda, cupido, Mens alius fuadet, video meliora, proboá, Deteriora fequor.

That is to fay; I would bee better, if I could; but a new and strange force draweth me against my will. Senfua ity per swades me one thing, and reason anosber . I see and approoue the better, but I follow the worle.

Alfo, the Apostle speaking in the perfon of our corrupt nature, testifieth the fame, faying. Scio quia non habitat in me, Ge. I know that there dwelleth no goodnes in me, that is to fay, in my flesh : For I have a good will or defire, but I cannot performe it. For I doe not the good which I defire to doe; but I do the entll which I would not do. Thus farre the Apostle. Whereupon it followeth, that precept and prohibition of the Law (whereby wee have the onely knowledge of good and euill) little anayleth vs for the attayning of vertue; except the infirmitie and corruption of Nature, be cured by fome other meanes. For Animus (faith Seneca) ve ad praceptapossit ire, soluendus est. The Soule must be loofed from the bonds that tye and entangleit, or otherwise, it cannot follow the good precepts that are given. But what if the prohibition of cuill doe hurt alfo, if it be not otherwise holpen? The Apostle proqueth this clearely. Peccatum (faith he) non cognoui, erc. I knew not sinne, but by the Law, for Iknow not concupiscence, but because the law said: Thou shals not lust. And sinne, by occasion of the Commaundement, bath wrought all concupi (cence in me. And how true this is; common experience may teach vs, feeing nothing is more proper and peculiar to the mallice of mans Nature; then desire to doe that which is forbidden, and commonly for no other reason, but because it is forbidden. Which the Poet fignifieth elegantly, faying;

Cui peccare licet , peccat minus ; ip/a poteftas Semina pequitia languidiora facit, &c. Nitimur inuetitu femper, cupima fa nega-Sie interdictis imminet ager aquis. , (ta!

He which hath leave to sinne, sinnes lesse: Mant corrupt for the libertie to finne, weakenesh the nature thir like to the ficke Man, who this stes most after forbidden Water.

And another Poet faith to the fame purpose. Gens humanarait per vetitum nefas. Mankind runneth bead long to finne, Horatius 1. when it is forbidden him: For enen as a | carminu Od.3. torrent or Land flood funning avio-

lent and precipitous courle, and meeting with any stop by the way becomes the more furious, and with re-thoubled An excellent force makes it felfe puffage, bearing downeall before it Enen fo, mans corrupt Nature, being carryed head long with unbrideled defires and finding it selfe repressed or hindred, by any Law or Commaundement; breaketh down the bankes or bounds of dutie with redoubled fury, in fuch fort, that it committeth double offence, to wit sie doth not onely the defired euill, but breaketh the Law alfo. As the Apostle infinuateth, faying: Lex tram operatur, &c. The Law worketh or caufesh wrath for where there is no Law, there is no breach of Law. Whereupon Saint Augustine faith. The letter of the Law killeth, for it makes a man In description rather know euill, then eschew it; and by s. August. that meanes, rather encreaseth then diminisheth sinne : because mans concupiscence or unlawfull defire, is accompanied also with breach of the Law. Whereby it appeareth, that the Law in commaunding or forbidding, helpeth not fufficiently the reformation of mans corrupt nature.

But can Permiffion, or contienience flieweth the with enill (which is another point of the Law, the Law) worke any greater effect? Who feeth not, that it dooth nothing elfe, but bewray the imbecilitie and imperfection of the Law? Because it is forced to permit that , which it gladlie common would, and fhould remedy, but cannot. And therefore I will proceede, to treat of Reward and Punishment, wherein, as Solon was wont to fay, principally confifteth the government of a Commonwealth. And Isidorus faith ; Legis pramio Etimol.

Ilidor, Lib. 9.

very roots and feeds of finne. We alwaies frine to doe that which is forbidden vs, bidden.

comparison.

Rom. 4. 15.

Permission

Of reward & punifluient.

Example by the yearely lopping of trees & vines aut pana, v tamoderatur humana. Mans life is wholy governed by reward or punnish-ment of the Law. Now then, for as much as these two have all their operation, about the effects of Vertue or Vice, that is to fay; about good or bad actions (which are onely, rewarded and punished by Law) and not about the rootes and causes thereof, to wit; the good or bad habits or affections of the mind, from whence doe spring all good and euill actions: It is manifelt, that though they may bee Motiues to good syet they cannot bee effectualland sufficient meanes to work it. For, fo long as the cause remaineth; fo long will the effects follow thereof, at one time or other. We fee that trees are yearely lopped, and Vines cropped: yet while the rootes remaine found, 20 they bud afresh, and bring foorth new Boughes, Leaves, and Fruits. Euen fo, although quill and finfull Acts be punifhed in wicked men, yet if the caufes from whence they proceede (to wit, inordinate affections and passions) be not taken awaysthey produce the very same effects fooner or later, openly or fecretly. For, what commonly followeth on the punishment of a vicious Act, when the habit of the Vice remaineth: but that the offender finneth more warilie another time? And how often do men offend the lawes, without punishment, yea, without any feare or danger there. of ? That Man (faith Cicero) who feares nothing but a Judge and a Witneffe : what Cecero de legib.

How many nalties of po liticall Lawcs may be escawill he not do in the dark? Or when he finds a weak and rich man alone, of whom he may (afely have the (boile? Furthermore, how many waies may the penaltie of the Law bee anoyded? Some escape it by their power, in which respect, Anacharsis compared Lawes to the Spiders Web: which takes onelie the little Flyes, while the great ones breake thorough it. Some againe auoyde it by corruption, either of the Iudge, Witnesse, or Iurie. And some by fauour or friendship. Others by negligence of Officers, which doe not exccute the Lawes: And fome by the Princes pardon. But what shall we say of fuch, who offend the Law, not onelie without punishment ; but also with reward? To the ende, that this may the better appeare, and that wee may fee

(withall) what force Law may have for suppressing the mallice of mans nature: let vs confider the power of a contrarie Law, which encountreth enery Common-wealth, and impugneth Politicall Law, to wit, the Law of the Flesh, whereof the Apostle faith. Video Rom. 7. 23. aliam legem, &c. I fee another Law in my body repugnant to the Law of my minde. And for as much, as this Law hath alfo her Precepts, Prohibitions , Rewards , and An exedeo-Panishmenes: Let vs put it in a Ballance hitell Law, with the Civill and Political Law, with the Law weighing the one with the other, that of the Fleft, weighing the one with the other, that to frew the come, in a man denoyd of Gods grace, the later. & consequently in Common-wealths, that relye onely vpon humaine pollicie and power.

It is therefore to be confidered, that the Carnall Law, flowing from the very bottome of mans corrupt Nature; is fo much stronger, and more forcible. then the other, to moue and draw him: by how much it is more internall and familiar with him, and the end or scope thereof more agreeable, and confonant to his corrupt humour, will, and affection. For Politicall Law tendeth onely to Bonum werum, and Bonum commune, Atrue good, and the common good, confi-fling in follide & perfect vertue: wher-Lawes doe as the Carnall Law tendeth to Bonum tend. apparens, and Bonum privatum; An apparent and private good confisting onely in a Mans owne profit, pleasure, and delectation, whereto every one is (of his owne corrupt nature) enclined. The like also may be faid, of the Statutes and Decrees both of the one and of both the other, that is to fay; their Precepts and Prohibitions: confifting in Commatinalli. dements Negatine and Affirmatine. Wherein the Carnal Law hath also the like aduantage, in respect of the greater facilitie of the precepts thereof, and difficulty of the things it forbiddeth. For, whereas the Civill and Politicall Lawe commaundethys, to loue our Neighbours as our selves, and to preferre the publique good before our private; to be temperate and continent; not to Steale; not to deceine; not to commit Fornication or Adultery: The Law of the Flesh, beeing opposite in all, commaundeth the contrary sas to lone our selues better then our Neighbours; to wardnesse to Sence in Epift.

Seneca vbi fie.

thened by

preferre our prinate good before the publique to feale; to decente for our commoditity and to commit Fornigae The Garnall tion and Adultery for our pleafures And to conclude all, in one precept, it faithft Ede , bibe , lude , post mortem nulla vo: luptas. Eate, drinke, and be merry for after death there is no pleafure.

Chaps.

Wild.2,6,7.8

The Statutes

The Statutes of the Carnall Law. the Holy Ghost layeth downe notably; in the Booke of Wisedome, speaking of wicked men, in these wordes. Dixes rant impy , &c. The wicked faid. Let weeniby the goods that we have, and wie the Creature in this time of our youth without delay. Let ws fill our falues with Wine and Cyntments, and let us not loofe the floure of the carnall of the time, one. Let us leave every where the fignes of our mirth, for this is our part, and this is our lot. Let us oppresse the poore sust Man, and let vs not fare the Widdow. nor have respect to the hoary Haires of any. And let our frength be the Law of in-iu-Stice. Thefe are the Statutes of the Flesh, which how much more confonant and agreeable they are tomans corrupt Nature, and how much more casie to be performed, then the statutes and decrees of Politicall Law, which commaunds and forbids the constante; 30 I neede not to declare.

But who knoweth not, that to learn Mans prompt Vice, a man hath no neede of any great wir, or of a Councellour, or of compulfion? who is fo fimple, that he hath not wit enough to be wicked? Whereas, to be vertuous, we neede not onely wit and capacity, Maisters & Teachers: but alfo Lawes, stripes, Prisons, Gines and Gibbets. And yet, as Seneca faith; 40 We may thinke we profit well, if we be none of the worst. So that, he which is eyther left to his own corrupt Nature, or hath no other then humaine help; is drowned in vice and finne, before hee come within a kenning of vertues port. We are (faith Seneca) taken up by the way wee labour to come to Vertue being already entangled and intercepted by vice . And no maruaile, seeing menivoyde of Grace, (for fuch I speake of) have neither sufficient Armes to defend themselues, nor refuge where to faue themselues. For reason, which is their onely Weapon, not being strengthened by Grace sis fo weak and brickle, that it breaketh at the first blow. And Morall Vertue (wherein confilterhall their hope and refuge is fo hard to be attained : that a man receiusth many deadly wounds of his E. nemy before herein arrive where it is-Belides, his danger is the greater, because his Warfe is so domosticall and intelline; that hee is not fecure from harme himfelfe. For, he is to fight, not onely with the World and the Dettill : but also with his owne passions and affections, in fo much, that his greateft feare may be gleaft he himfelfe betray himfelfe, and render himfelfe Prilonet tohis Enemy, too i woo adoto was

Furthermore, wee fee that our proclinity to Vice, and anertion flor Vertue, is fuch, that as it fufficeth to fleth a Dogge onelie once vpon a Sheepe, to make him a Sheepe-wurrier as long as he lines : Euen fo, one onely raft of vice is enough, to make a man vicious euer after. Whereas contrariwife, many acts are requird; to the attaining the ha bite of any one vertue, and fo timely is mans friendship with sensualitie, the Mother of Vice, and fo late his knowledge and vie of reason, which leadeth to vertue: that he hath gone halfe the way to Vice, before hee know where Verme dwels:

By meanes whereof, he commonlie groweth to bee victous very earlie; to halfe the way wir, in his Childe-hood, and vertuous very late, if euer he prooue vertuous mey know verues dwelat all. For the way to vertile is long, ling, and full of difficulties; but the way to al kinde of vice, is easie, and, as Salomon faith ; Complanata lapidibus , Made plaine with flones, ceuen, and wel paued, thort, and gone in a trice. Heftodies faith, Hand procul illa habitant, breuis est via que fit eundem. Vice dwelleth not farre from vis, the way is short, and all in a destent Whervpon the Poet faith ; Facilis defeenfus Auerni , The descent to Hell is very easte. Finally, of these two waies our Saujour faith. Lataporta & Patiofa via est . Co. The way is broad and patious that leadeth to perdition, and many enter in thereat: but the Gate is frait, and the way is narrow, which leadeth to life, and few men finde it. Thus we fee, what great addiantage the The addan-Law of the flesh hath, of the Political | tage that the Law in respect of the facilitie frat men hath of the finde, to fulfill the precepts thereof, politicall law. which (in fome) are nothing elic but to be vicious.

ad draft we £2915550055 Oracers, Phies modadio I cachers.

Vice is very eafily learned but vertue very hardly.

difficilities and I r rough auf la stat. 35.545

Men learne to vice, before nr. Da ... a touts cannon gegirrous sea Ectle 27, 10

Virgil in Lib.6

Mat. 7,13,14.

The Carnall Law hath her Aduocates, Orators, Phi losophers and

SE OF BLA

very hardly

The doctrine of Epicurus & his followers.

Metrodorus a

Disciple of 2dem in his live merily in 2.7

the Sect of

Phil. 3, 19.

Youth cor-

754

But wanteth it any thing, wherewith Politicall, Lawe is furnished ? Hath nor therhem in as high a degree, and a ble to build equall competence? Hash not this Carnall Law (thinke you) her Aduncates Orators, Philosophers, & Teachers to publish and proclaime its to pleadit, to teach it? What fay yeto all the Sect of Epicuraut Whose Doctrine confided principally in the Brecepts of this Law, and impugning (as much as he durft) the Civill and Politicall Law In which respect, al Epienrians were banished out of many good Common-wealthes of Greece : as Plutarch testifieth, and that worthily. For Epicerus having made a demaund, in certaine questions which hee wrote, whether a wife man would nor doe against the Political Law, if he might be fure to escape vnpunished? aunswered freely thereto himselfe, Testruly. And writing to Idomeneus, one of his Schol-Jers, he admonished him seriously ; not to fubicet himfelfe to the Lawes and opinions of Men, when focuer he might hope to auoid the penalty of the lawes. And Metrodorus, a Disciple and familiar friend of his, writing to his Brother: forbad him to go to the warres, or endanger himfelfe for the good of all Greece; aduiting him, rather to drinke good Wine at home, and entreate himfelfe well, that his body might receive all pleasure and contentment. Concluding, that the chiefe and foueraigne good, confifteth in the belly, and in the pleatures therof. This is the Philosophy that belongeth to the Law of the flesh, and experience heweth, what number 40 of professors there are thereof in enery Common-wealth. Quorum Deus venter est, as the Apostle faith ; Whofe bellies are their Gods. Whose endeuors tend to nothing but to their private pleasure & commodity. Who imploy their wits, ftudies, and pens, to nothing fo much, as to publish and promulgate the Carnall Law, in amourous and lascinious Books, wanton Poems, and scurrillous bandy Ballads, which abound cuery where, to the corruption of youth, and confequently, to the prejudice of the Commonweale, & to the great shame of Magistrates, that see and suffer it.

Morgouer to the end we may fee, that this Carnall Law will yelld in nothing rupted by laf-citious books and ballads.

Acres.

to the Politically hath it novalfo Common-wealths wherein it gouernerh, and a prindence and pollicy appropriate vntoit? Yea polliticke Princes and Magifleates that practife it, and politick writers that teach and maintaine it . Looke upon all tyrannicall States, where all is ruled according to the precepts of this Lawi doe Magistrates and Gouernours practife any other pollicy, but Prudents am carnis; as the Apostle calleth it; The Prudence and wifedome of the fleft? And Machianell, whose workes are so highly efteemed of many men at this day doth hereach any other gouernment, then that which proceedeth from the principles of this law, to wit; from felfe loue, and perticuler interest? Yet this were not fo much to be wondred; at if it had nor alfo a Religion conforme to it felfe, with Doctors and Dinines, to Preach and defend it. For as Politicall Law.hauing the help and affiftance of true Religion, is more perfect, and worketh far greater effects in the Common-wealth, cours and for the establishment and confernation thereof: So also hath the Carnall Law, being masked with the Vizard of some Religion, eyther true or falle, is of farre greater force, to ouerthrow or destroy any Common-wealth. And therefore it feeketh alwaies, to haue eyther the apparance and shew of true Religion, (in which respect , Machianell teacheth his Tyrant to be an Hippocrite) or elle it ferueth it felfe, with fome new fangled and false Religion : which the Apofile fign fieth, when amongst Operacar- Gal 5.20 nis, The workes of the flefb, he numbreth Sects of Herefies. But perhaps you will fay, that the'other Law (in rewarding and punishing) furmounteth this, and repressethit in fuch fort, that it can have no force in any wel gouerned Commonwealth. Let vs.then examine this a little, and we shall finde: that the Politicall Law hath no oddes of this in that point, for it hath rewards and punishments also, as well as the other . The rewards which this The reward Law proposeth, are diuers; for it pro-misch (for somethinges) the pleasure of the Fich proposeth. & delight which is taken in the action, with the which the party thinketh himfelfe fo well fatisfied: that he is contented (many times) to bestow his Mony, yea, to venter his life to obtaine it. Somein it gouer-

Rom. 8.6.

Machiauell de

The rewards certaine, for the most part

Chap.5.

The two laws

The reward

for vertue very yncertain.

The Carnall

Goodmen dy many times.

Law.

Sometimes againe, it proposeth some commoditie or benefit, which may accompanie or follow the fact. And lastly, it findeth meanes (otherwhiles) to rob vertue of her reward, and apply it to it felfe: in fo much, that there is no remuneration promifed by the Politicall Law, whereof the Carnall may not fometimes give hope, to fuch as follow it. As I will make euident, by comparifon of the one with the other : whereby it shall appeare, that the Carnall Law hath enery where the adnantage.

Therefore (I fay) that the rewardes proposed for Vertue by the Politicall

Law, are vncertaine, in respect of the other, for neither is ther any at all affigned for very many good actes, neyther are all those rewards promised, performed. Whereas on the contrary, the 20 rewards of Vice, are commonly more certaine, for eyther they goe before the act (as it falleth out in bribes, and many other cases of volawfull gaine, where the reward is paid before hand) or else they accompany the fact (as in al cases of intemperance and incontinency, wherein onely pleafure is fought, or in cofenages and deceipts, which bring present gaine) or else they follow vpon | 30 the deede, as when some volawfull act is done, vpon promife of future pay. So that, for Vice the reward is alwaics eyther affured, or (at leaft) hoped for and expected; which is no smal Motiue to induce men thereto. But for vertue, neither is there any reward to bee had many times, nor yet hope of any by politicall Law, as we see by experience in very many Men, who live laudably in the Common-wealth all their lines:

and yet are so farre from having any remuneration, or from expecting any;

that they thinke themselves happy, in that they can escape the penalties of the

But let vs proceede a little further. Is The ministers there any reward for vertue, fo affured nest exalted by Politicall Law, that Vice cannot; yea, doth not abtaine it daily? Hath it 50 not honour (many times) for reward, as well as Vertue? Who fooner rifeth to the highest offices, and credit in some Courts: then the Ministers of the Princes pleasures, or Instruments of his wickedneffe? As Seianus, under the Emperor Tiberius. Two Slaues, called Narciffus and Pallas, vnder Claudius. Tigellinus; vndcr Nero. Pexennius, Cleander, Regii-us, Iulianus, and other Slaues, vnder Comodus. All which men, gouerned both the Emperours, and the Empire : to Lampid Hers whom I might adde divers other, if I de with Impethought it convenient. For, whether it weelooke to former times, or to the present: we shall finde every where, as many advanced by cuill meanes, as by good. For no man is fo wicked; but if he have Mony, he may hope for any pre ferment whatfocuer.

Curia pauperibus claufa est, das census hono- Ouid. Eleg. 7. Census amiettias, pauper vbiá, iacet. (res,

The Court (faith the Poet) is flut up to poore men: but wealth glueth honours; wealth gineth friendship, and the poore Man lyeth enery where in the dust.

And if we confider also, how Princes Philip de comidoe commonly bestow their rewardes : nes in cron. du wee shall fee that merit is least respect ted. Which Phillip de Comines (heweth by a pleafant example, of Lewes the cleanenth, King of Fraunce, and Charles Duke of Bourgundy: Who, after the battaile (which was fought betwixt them at Montlebery in France) being determined to reward and punish such, as had deferued well or ill in their Armies. and finding, that divers ranne away on both fides, while the battel was doubtfull (fome on the one fide an hundred Miles East-ward, and others on the other fide as many West-ward) the K. of France tooke from one of his Subjects, all his Offices and dignities for running away, and gaue it to another that ranne ten miles further then he. The Duke Rewards giof Bourgundie deprived also one of his, any defert, of all his goods and authority, for the like cause, & within a while after, gaue him more then euer hee had before. VV hereby (Saith Comines) it appeareth; that Princes bestow their rewardes and fauours, not like Angels, but like Men, as they

Seeing then that Vice bath not onely perticular rewards, either of gaine or commoditie, or of pleasure at least, (which contenteth fome more then Gold) but also hope of the rewards due to vertue it felfe, eyther by the Princes error or infirmitie, or by his fauour, or

753

LEWY. Wicked men

Gods in elder

Wicked men fomtimes get topes in stead of dignities.

Vermous me difgraced and punished.

Read Plutarel in the lines of all thefe men by purchase, or by accident and chance, (whereby many wicked men are also aduanced.) What aduantage can the Political Law have of the other, by proposing reward, though it be neuer fo great? Doe we not fee Crownes and Sourraignties (wherin most men place the greatest felicity of this life)procured by murders, mischiefes, and most wicked meanes? And doth Machiavell propose any lesse reward to his Prince (for extreame wickednesse) then assurance in Soueraignety? So that the most wicked man that is, having hope to get or conserue a Crowne, (or rather, Soueraigne State) by some murder or mischiefe: what greater, or fo great a reward, could be expect for all the vertue in the world, by obeying Political laws? Didnot very many (in old time) get di- 20 uine honours, though they were most wicked men: as Jupiter, Venus, Bacchus, Hercules, Tiberius Cafar, and divers Emperours as bad as he? And fo it would still fall out, if Christian Religion had not expelled Idolatry out of the world-Whereby we see, Politicall Lawes. without the helpe of Gods Grace and Religion (for I confider them here) cannot assigne so great a reward for vertue: but that the wickedst man in the world may hope also to haue it, though he follow and obey the lufts of the flesh. But a man may fay, that many wicked men, which promise themselues great gaine or advancement, by some wicked act : get nothing in the end, but rackes and ropes in recompence thereof. This I grant, but then let vs also confider on the other fide, how many no- 4 table Men, cyther loofe their liues in actions, for which they should beerewarded, or, in flead of the reward which they deserue, get nothing but ignominy, banishment, hatred of their Princes or people, death, and vtter ruine? As Marcus Coriolanus, Furius Camillus, Scipio, Cicero, Themistocles, Aristides, Phocion, Dion the Sicilian, and infinite others. Some of which men, were depriued of their Dignities, others banished their Countries, and others shamefully put to death by publike authoritie; after they had done great feruices to their Common-weales and States, wherein they lined. And did not Lewes the eleauenth, King of France, discouer a great ces, in rewarding services past, when he said; Il perd Jouwent d'auoir trop bien Serui ; It ouerthroweth Men many times to Philip de Comibaue done too good feruice ? Signifying, that Princes are more willing to haue others beholding to them; then to bee themselves beholding to any. And fome, as well Princes as others, are of fuch Nature, that when they fee their obligation fo great to any man, as they thinke that they cannot commodiously rewardhim, according to his fatisfaction and merit: they hold him then but for an eye-fore, and feek to rid him one way or other. Therefore, how vncertaine and cafuall is the reward of vertue by Politicall Lawes, feeing the diffri-toution thereof is in the hands of fuch: as for some perticular respect, or interest of their owne, may not onely forbeare to reward, but also (some-times) undog and destroy those, that have best deferred of them and the Commonwealth > Thus much of Reward. Now, to speake of Punishment, wherein confilteth the greatest force of any Politicall Law, for the repression of mans mallice : let vs fee, what are the mans mallice: let vs fee, what are the penalties or punishments, where-with the Law of the sent he far the penalties he Law of the sent which the Law of the sent which the carnel that the ca (of it felfe) inflict any punishment vpon the true louers of vertue, who tread downe and triumph ouer all power of the flesh, and Lawes thereof: yet it fetteth vp certaine Scarre-Crowes, to The Scarrefrightfuch fimple Soules as it deceiueth, proposing vnto them farre greater difficulties, labour, and paine, then Law. there is (indeed) in the practife and ex-ercise of vertue. Which difficultie, they hold for no other then continual affliction, and (as it were) a penalty or punishment, inflicted upon such as labour to be vertuous. By meanes whereof, they contemne the penalties of Politicall Lawes, effeeming them, not only more easie to bee anoyded, but also more tollcrable to bee borne, then the other. Ifay, more easie to be anoyded, for that, neither there is a penalty imthose that be ordained, alwaies exacted Law. vpon offenders . For, as I have noted before, they are many times escaped, cy-

fecret, concerning the humors of Prinposed for eucry offence, neither are Theescapes the politicall law feeme he carnall

Pfalme 52, 1.

and irksome hen vertue.

for a worldly

ther by power, or by fauour, or by corruption of Officers, or by their negligence, or by their Princes pardo, wheras the paines that worldly men conceine to accompany vertue, sceme to them inenitable, except vertue it selfe be auoyded: whereto no man can arrive, burby the ftrait, narrow, and painefull way, which I have before described. And againe, the penalties of Politi-

Penalties of more tollera. ble to wicked men, then the penalties of Chap.s.

nal mulces, confilt either in payment of Mony, or in Infamy, or in corporall or Capitall punishment. If in Monvethey feare it not much ; for they are content to buy their fatisfying there-with, and many we fee doe voluntarily begger themselnes, to obtaine their pleasures. If the penalties confift in Infamy; what 2 care they for it, who hold finne for no shame, but as an honour? And (as the Pfalmist faith) Gloriantur in malitia; They glory in wickedneffe. Et latantur (faith Salomon) cum male fecerint, & exultant rebus possimis, quorum via peruer a, querum greffus infames funt . Who reioyce when they have done amiffe, and exalt in the worst thinges. Whose waies are peruerfe, whofe steppes are infamous. If the punishment be Corporall, or Capitall, they esteeme the practise of vertue more painefull. For, what affliction. Prison, restraint of liberty, torment or death, can feeme fo grieuous to a Man given ouer to lust and pleasure, as to af-flict himselfe by restraint of his owne will? To conguer and fubdue his owne vnbrideled affections? To chaftife his body, that it may be made obedient to the Spirit? To mortifie, and crucifie himselfer To dye to his Lust and Concupisence? Yea, and to bee (as it were) his owne Butcher and Hang-man? To execute ail this vpon himselfe, not for once or twice, or for a day or two, or for now and then : but daily, continually, and without intermission : for otherwife, true vertue can neither be attained nor conferued. Can any thing (1 59 fay) seeme more irkesome, or any punnishment more corporall or capitall to fenfual & fleshy men, destitute of grace?

Qui non percipiunt ea qua funt spiritus dei; Who have no feeling or apprehension of matters belonging to the spirit of God? Corporall torments they think (with Epicurus) the greater they are, the foocall Lawes, doe feeme to them more of mifery., But the labours and paines. which they imagine to be in continuall exercise of vertue: they take for acontinual and never dying toument, & for an cuerlasting death. So that very mad my are for difgusted with the onely code ceiptis apprehention thereof: tharthely tollerable then the other, because al pewill not take fo much as a raft of sentrey to anoidany panalny of Law subattino ucreas we fee daily in many Malefacture uerfion of wie that aromeorrigible. And again; divers ked men from that have already made fomie entrance; into the course and way of vertue, and thereby to wearied within a while, that they veterly despaire, ever to arrive an any perfection therein , fuch men (1 mean) as have no light or help of Gods grace . Infomuch, that one Sexius a Gentleman Romaine, of whom Plusarch Plutar in Lib. writesh, having given himfelfe to the de Tranquil. fludy of Philosophy, and the practife of morall vertue, was within a while fo difcouraged that his friendes had much a do to keepe him from drowning himfelfe. Amelius Probus teftifieth, that the Son of the famous Dion of Scilie, being restrained by his Father from the licentious life which hee had led (for fome long time) in his Fathers banishment's did desperatly cast himselfe from the top of the house, and brake his necke...

But pur the case, that Subjects might Nomeanes in politicallian, be made vertuous, by the feare of punnishment; what remedy is there for the vicious prince Prince, when he is of a bad and maligne Nature ? Truelie none, for he feareth no penaltie of the Law, being himselfe about the Law: and as for good councell, if any man dare giue it, hee dare contemne it. What good did the good councell and precepts, of the Divine Plato, and of famous Dion, to the two Tyrants of sicily, the Father & the Son called Dienssius? In requitall of their Dionistus Fagood enffructions, was not Plate folde ther and Son for a Slaue, and Dion bannished out of of Sicily. Sicilie ? VV hat benefit reaped the wicked and cruell Nero, by all the good difcipline he received from the wife Seneta? Did he exercise any lesse crucky on him, then vpon all others? And what good effect wroght the good education, example, and enstructions, which the Empe-

757

ner they dispatch a Man out of paine, & Freurus his the leffe they be, the more tollerable corporall tor they are, and death they hold for an end iments.

The great a ous in Bione,

Nero & Sence

Marcus Aureliss and his

The Princes life is a great example to the Common wealth.

Plin.in lib. 4.

No fufficient neans in Politicall Law, to make the Prince and wealth truely

Al the premiouer in due order for a

Emperour Marcus Aurelius (called the Philosopher) gaue to his Sonne Commodus? Succeeding him in the Empire, was not he far more detestable and hatefull for vice, then his Father was renouned & beloued for vertue ? If then there be no sufficient meanes, by lawes, education, counfell, or exhortation, to reforme the victous and corrupt Nature of a wicked Prince : who feeth not, that 10 (by confequence) there is no affured meanes, to make the Common-wealth vertuous? For though it beeneuer fo well ordered and disposed in the body: yet it may receive such corruption from the head, that it may perish thereby. For, as Plinie faith ; Euen as in Mens bodies, fo in Common-weales, the difeafe is most grieuous and dangerous which proceedeth from the head. And we commonlie 20 fee, that the maners of the people, are conforme to the manners of the Prince. Now then to conclude. What sufficient meanes there is in Political Law, to suppresse the Law of the Flesh, and to make the Prince and people truely vertuous ? Is it precepts or Prohibitions ? Nothing leffe. For, if they confift but in wordes; they are eafily contemned. And (as I have faid before) Prohibition 30 doth encrease the disease, that is to fay; the offence and fin, rather then remedie it. And as for permission of euill, it doth but bewray the weaknesse of the Politicall Law, and shew the force of carnall Law: which the other is faine to permit, because it cannot redresse it. What then? Is it punnishment or reward? Neither of both. For, as I have fignified, either the offences are fo fecret, that 40 they are not subject to punishment : or the Law is deluded, and the penaltie many waies anoyded. Or if not, yet in respect of the paines, that wicked men imagine to be in the exercise of vertue, they are litle feared. And as for reward, what reward (ordained by Law) can fo fatisfie a fensuall man, as pleasure? Which he holderh for his Soueraigne and chiefe good, and for the onely felicity of his life? In fo much, that I have heard fome men, most wickedly protest and sweare, that if it were not for the pleafures of the flesh; their lines would be loathsome and hatefull vnto them. Therefore Lieurgus (with great reason)

despaired, to make either the King, or the Subjects in his Common-wealth, The infuffici vertuous by the force of Lawes. For ency of Political Lawfor which cause, he ordained (as Aristotle the reformafaith) that the Kinges of Lacedemonia should not be perpetuall, but gouerne for a time: least some euill King, if his gouernment were for rearme of life, might destroy the Common-wealth:

CHAP. VI.

Of Sleepe and Rest; And what manner of feating, or lying in our Beds, ought to be observed in our sleeping, as well for civility as for health.

Y good reason did Galen fay ; That Sleepe is the repofe Galen his de of the whole body, and principally of the animal faculties pally of the animall faculties, and without sleepe, a Man could not (ubfist : therefore there are certaine rules to be observed in fleeping, as neceffary as in eating and drinking . For it is not enough, that a man fleepe feauen or eight houres in a night; rife early in the morning; thun fleepe after dinner, vpon an indigested stomack, &c. But he is to ynderstand withall, what comportement or behaulour is convenient for him in fleepe. Beafts and other animals, do hecein lend vs fome enstruction, for Beatsdogius they do not fall downe backward, when for fleep. they prepare to rest; but couch downe ypon one of their fides, and (almost ordinarily) on the right fide, and according to Nature, neuer faile therein. Neuertheleffe, albeit that men are endued. with reason, yet very hardly shall three men bee found, lying in on Bed, or in one company, that do take their rest after one and the same manner. For one his sleeping. will haue his head raifed high, another low. One lyeth to fleepe on the right fide, and others on the left very ordinarily. Some on their bellies, or on their backs. In regard whereof, many people (thorow want of due observation) doe fall into grieuous diseases, which proue fled in their fleeping, which falleth out too ordinary. The man that defireth to preserue his (oftentimes) incurable, or are found fli-ged by Lytur.

tion of vice acknowledgus, Arift in Polit, Lib. 2. Cap. 7.

finition of Sleepe.

mans fleepir

health, should sleepe on his right side, during the time of his first sleepe to the end, that the meates may descend into the bottome of the stomack: because it is fleshy, and lesse full of membranes then the vpper part; and fo, by confequent, more hot and proper for concoction. Afterward, for his fecond fleepe, hauing continued fome foure houres, or therabout, on the right fide: he may to turne on the left, to the end, that the liuer may the better extend it felfe, and rest vpon the stomacke. In doing thus, digestion is made perfect; because the Liner is hotter then the belly, and embracing al, serueth as if it were a warmth offire. But if a man be constrained to keep his bed long, at one time & other, he must obserue turnings, one while on the one fide, and then on the other.

To fleep vpon the belly availeth nothing, except in such as are of baddige-ftion for fuch manner of lying heateth

the stomacke so well, that it facilitateth and accelerates concoction :but then it bringeth a great discommodity; to wit,

that it filleth the eyes full of defluxions, and (confequently) troubleth the fight, hindereth the excrements also, in their ies, and other capitall diseases, beside the pussing up or swelling of the Lights, and the Midriffe or Diaphragma. Wherfore, of al healthful fituations for fleep, there is none better (as hath beene faid) then to rest on the sides : for beside all other benefits enfuing thereby, the body being turned one while on the right

fide, and then againe on the left, feeleth

Offleeping on the belly, what inconcaused there-

Chap. 6.

auoydance out of the belly. To fleepe vpon the backe and reines, doth manie times engender stones & fand in them, and being no way helpfull to digestion, caufeth the Rhume to rife, which coueteth most vp to the throat, and hastneth a man to the Falling-ficknes, Apoplex> pleasure, contentment, and sweetest The body then ought not to bee fo much extended or stretched out, being turned on either fide : but that the thighs and legs must be somewhat bended or retired, for fuch is the figure of a healthfull mans fleeping. The head fhould not be laid too high, nor to low: for being raised too high, it prepareth a man to the Cough, and infirmitie of the Lunges, and caufeth that he cannot fleep foundlie. And being laid too low, it procureth broken and painefull fleepes, and engendereth offenfine dreames.

To sleepe with wide open eyes, indurates (all along) the Tunickles or couering skinnes of them, and so by confequent, begetteth a short or nere hand fighe, because that the visuall Spirit cannot penetrate crosse-wise. It may alfo happen, that fome thing falling strangely into them, may greatly harme and perish the fight. And in any tharpe or extraordinarie difeafe, to fleep with the eyes open, it is an affured figne of death: except the party haue been long invred thereto sor have had fome great fluxe of the belly; or taken some violent purgation; or else hath endured 20 long warchings.

To fleepe with the mouth open, is Offleeing very contrarie and incommodious to with the the health of a man, because hee draweth aboundantly to him (by the vocall Artery) all the ayre that it meeteth withall: which commonly (in the night time) is very impure and troubled. By meanes whereof, the Conduits where-by a man respireth, being ouer-moystened: either it maketh the voyce hoarfe, or dull and feeble. Whereas, if a man fleepe with his mouth closed; then the exteriour ayre (by little and little, and not in any excelline quantitie) entereth mouth close at both the possesses and the contract of at both the passages of the Noshhrils. and so goeth on to the Lights, where it moderateth the heate of the heart. Which is the cause, that they which fleepe with their Lippes fast shut ; doe feele themselues the lesse disturbed. For they that fleepe open throated, by reafon of thebreath, which entereth and issueth forth aboundantly: the tongue and roofe of the mouth becommeth very much dried, which makes them, both in the night time, and in the morning, to finde themselves much altered.

In like manner, when the breath is fome way kept and retained, concoction is made the more strongly & foundly : euen as meat is the better boyled in a coucred pot. There may happen many other inconveniences beside, for in fleeping open throated a Feather may fall, and passe into the body, which will cause a continual Cough, by reafon that neuer, or very hardly, it can

Officeping with open

The lips fast

Sleeping ope

A good Com

A deadly Phtificke.

ly Phtificke . A Serpent Stellio , Spider, or some such venomous Creature, may also get his passage, without all meanes of recouery, as I have knowne

After what manner to hold the arms

Of talking is the night time, how hurtfull it is.

very healthfull. But one thing (kinde Reader) rake as a warning, that it is a very euill custome, to talke in the night time, and a notorious inciuility. For fuch as are vied to prattle at their wakings, doe very hardly fall to fasten on fleepe againe. And so consequently, such wakings doe cause Crudities in them : because their sleeps have not bin

Of fnoring of inorting in our fleepe.

A pretty Receipt against Inoring in

* Myrrbis, an Hearblike to Hemlocke. Some call it Kex or Kexes.

be anoyded, and fo grow to a deadtoo often.

As concerning the Armes, if they be held croffe-wife, like the figne of the Crosse, or else halfe courbed, and the hands resting vpon the little belly; it is fufficient, to boyle the meates received 20 into the stomacke. Another reason is, that it impeacheth and interrupteth the rest of others, who (perhaps) take little delight in talking at fuch vnfit houres : but when once they have made custome of it, they keepe it as an especiall habite.

Some, in their sleepe, are subject to fnore or fnort, especially fat and round bellied people. It is a thing very odi- 30 ous and offenfine, to lie by fuch a body, or in the Chamber where fuch a one resteth. A man were almost as good, to lodge in a Stye among the Swine, as neere or with fuch persons, especiallie, fuch as delight in living civilly and honeftly. Therefore I will fet downe a prettie receipt, which a Portugall Apothecarie (but yet a lew by his Religion) taught me against this vndecency, and 40 the receipt is thus. He that is subject to this infirmity, halfe an houre before he goeth to reft, let him eate a little Conserue of an Hearbe called Perfil d' Asne, Asse Perselie, or Wilde Cheruill. It is an Hearbe very fufficiently knowne, and the Conserue must be made of the root thereof. I have made good experience of it many times . Or else let him gargarize a pretty deale of good Vineger, made somewhat warme, a quarter of an houre before he lyeth downe. This last remedy was practifed by a Courtier (in the time of King Charles the ninth) with very happy fuccesse: for, if he had snored neuer so little (2s he was much subject thereto) hee had lost the gracious fauours of a Gentlewoman, who admitted him to her owne Lodging, her Husband being ab-

Therefore I would gladlie perfwade The Authors Fathers and Mothers; yea, Schoole- friendly ad. maisters and others, who have the uertifement. charge of youth and young Children, to constraine and accustome them in their tender yeares, to honest, decent, and wholesome lodging in their Beds: For, beside the comlinesse and civility, it is no meane propagation of their health. And let me tell ye more, thorough such vndecent behauiour in bed; I haueknowne many vnhappy quarrels and debates, sometimes betwixt the Husband and Wife.

CHAP. VII.

Concerning the constancy, of some Lacedemonian, Romaine, and French women At the decease of their Children hurts, and nur Sing of them.

Hat Commonwealth may Of good and tearm it felfe happy, wher the Weomen are not on-ly chaft: but likewife endued with manly Spirits, full of constancy and magnanimity, for of fuch Women (commonly) are Heroycall Children bred and borne. Which Argument gineth me leave, to speake of some Weomen among the Lacedemonians; then the Romaines, and laftly the French :but first we will begin with the most generous Lacedemoni-Lacedemon, Sparta, and Laconia, were The feuerall allbut one, to wit, a people and Country (cituated in Pelopome/w, a Region of Greece, where Lycurgus had not onely beene King, but also was their Law-Maker. Heleft them many good lawes and Morall precepts, which while both the Men and Weomen knew how to keepe: they continued Lords of themfelues, living in all enfranchisement wandered and fwerued; from those good manners which the faid Lycurgus had taught them: they became forthwith Seruants and Slaues vnto others. During such time, as they were obser-uers of his Morall precepts; it happe-ned, that the Athenians made Warre, inhope to fubdue them: but as they were farre inferior to them in their forces, fo were they as ftoutly and valiantly refifted. Among the women of Sparta, there was one, that had but one only Sonne, who was grieuously wounded in the frequent among them. Whereas this worthy Mother, did breath her Spirit into his Heart, to teach him, how hee should suffer harmes manfully, and not

Another Lacedemonian VVoman likewife, having tidings brought her, that one of her Sonnes was flaine in the battaile, faid : Why, he was one of my Sons too:

reioyling in the generolitie of her Son, and neuer mourning for his death.

Contrariwile, another woman, hearing that her Sonne fled away cowardly;

quoth fhe, He never was any Son of mine.

Intimating thereby, that fuch Sons de-ferued no acknowledgement, who deand libertie. But so soone as they foote, and greatly complained, of the vrkefome paines which thereby he endured : but his Mother faide vnto him. Good & con-My Sonne, if thou didst fet vertue before ragious counthine eyes; not onely would this anguish bee 20 forgotten: but (in revenge thereof) thou would st flow thy felfe valsant. But the Mothers of our Countries, doe cuftomarily augment the grienances of their Children, by teares and cockerings, too

Chap.6.

What benefit

enfued by keeping the Lawes of Lycurgus.

Of a mother

and her onely

Foolith Mothers of the fe

Two honor ble minded

Another Mother worthy of immortall generated from the vertue of their Ancestours. I cannot forget another Laconian Woman, who had five Sonnes, and all of them loft their lines, fighting valiantly for the freedome of their Countrey. She, going into the Subburbs of the Citty, to know the iffue of the battaile, meeting with a Vant-currer, demanded how all matters went? And he told hir the fatall hap of her fine Sonnes. Wicked Slave (quoth (he) this is no answere to my demaund. I pray thee to tell mee, in what e-State stands the affaires of the Commonwealth? Hec told her, that the victorie went with the Lacedemonians . Why now (quoth the) thou art an honest man, and beare my Childrens death paciently. Was not this a Woman full of honour, and endued with an incomparable Spirit; to prefer the welfare of the Commonwealth, before so many lines of her dearefteemed Sons?

Cleere alleadgeth another, who was circro in lib. de a noble Romaine Lady, no leffe to be e- Urat. 3. steemed then the Laconian women. She beholding her Some, named Spurius Caluidise, that could go no other wife, but euen as Beaftes doe, on all foure, through the greatest wounds he had receiued in the warres, fighting for his Countries liberty, and perceiuing him to bee ashamed, because one had icorned him for going in that manner; the faid vnto him. Thou fouldst be the more A moft valiiocond, and proud of thy valour, that made Mother. thee go in this crooked manner ; then grieue at that poore fpirit, that dare not fbew his face where thou hast beene.

demon nor Rome, contained all the generous Wcomen: for in our Natine Country of France, there have bin very many, and yet are at this present, of whom I will(for breuities fake) alledge to complaine, like a cowardly woman. 30 buttwo. The first shallbee Madame Margaret de Sauoje, Wife to the deceafed Anne de Montmorency, Constable of France, who had five Children, all worthily educated, and euermore most louingly affected vnto the Crowne of France, as beeing very remarkeable for their fidelitie, as also well prouided of honourable estates. When newes was brought her, that one of her Sons was dead, named Mombrun, whom the most dearely affected about all the rest. and was flaine in the battaile at Dreux, The Battaile fought against the French Protestants, at Dreux, in in the yeare 1562. and also that her Husband (being wounded) was there furprized: She faid. Bleffed be God, as well for the bad as the good, and gaue him > his King, Oc. Madame de Saint Blancar, Wife to the late magnanimious Marefehall de Biron, Madame de was visited by a Lady of great Birth, bldcar, wite to who brought with her very goodlie Biron. workes of Silke, which thee and her Daughters had wrought in Samplers. SII3 was staine : but that her Husband remained wounded, and a Prifoner, for the fertice of Butlet me tell ye, that neither Lace- Generous we

The braue rehartie thankes, not onely because her Sorine folucion of Madame de

She brought with her also one of her Children; that daunged delicately, and played sweetly on the Gitterne, whom the thewed to the faid Lady Marthall, that the and her Children, thould learn to spend their time in the like delightfull exercises. Madame Marshall made her answer; That shee could not denife any better works exercifes, wherein to enstruct ber Sons and Daughters ; then in the fear of 10 God, and good maners; whereby their harts would become magnanimious, to do feruice for their King according as their Father had formerly done. And indeed, all the Male children issuing of her, were very braue minded and valiant men. As for her Daughters ouer and befide their happinesse, to marrie with wife and worthy Knights: fo were they well eductated in houshold discipline, by their excel- 2 lent breeding, and famous houses of generous nourishing. As Madame the Countesse de Chasteauneuf, whose Husband is (at this present) Lieutenant to the King, in higher and lower Lymofine. Madame de Force, & others that I know.

Let then great Ladies of blood, and others of meaner birth, bee advertised by this discourse, that if it happen, that their Husbands and Children dye, or become maimed in their Kings feruice, and for the good of the Commonwealth: they would not bee so weake hearted, as to lament, grieue, or beate their heads against walles, because such behaujour is not scene, but in Women of ignoble and flender worth. But fixing rather before their eyes, the generous Spirits of these Laconian, Romaine, and French Ladies, formerly exemplified; to account themselves happy, when focuer the like difasters shall happen to them. Confidering withall, that they whom they esteeme to be dead, do live, and they shall fee them again at the day of refurrection, accompanied with much glory and honor.

To lob, all his goods and wealth were redoubled, onely his Children excepted, for he begat but fuch a number, and 50 in the like number he had them againe. Yet heerein the promise of God was as well accomplished, as in his other goods: for he knew that they were not dead, but should be raised againe, and re-knowne of their Father and Mother.

It may be prefumed, that fuch women as are fo full of forrow and vexation:do not beleeue any refurrection. Otherwife they would embrace aduite and enstruction, to teach their Sons & daughters al fuch exercifes, as might redound to the benefit of the Common-wealth. As their Sons to hatte learning, to manage Armes and Horses, with all vertues becomming man-hood. Their Daughter to feare God, and learne womens huswinery : not idle Samplery, or Silken follies, which (elfe-where) is the exercife of Eunuches & Slaves. I would with them to hold as firme a purpofe, as did Madame Katherine du Salaignat, Wife to the late Messiere Geffrey de Saillet, a braue and hardy Knight in his life laignat. time . She fending her Sonnes (in their very young yeares) to Paris for enftruction, was adulfed by fome familiar Friend, to keepe them (as yet) at home, because they were but young and tender. She made answer. That her Children resembled Vessels wholly new, wherein if good liquor were put at the first, they would Sauour thereof folong as Nature lasted. In like manner, if Children embrace good doctrine in their young age, they will rellish alwaies after thereof, even to old age. Which they cannot doe, being kept under the Mothers Wing, as wee tearme it, where neither are like Maisters, or commodious meanes, as is in fuch places, wher all vertues are taught, to fuch as will feeke for them. For this good Lady added, That she desired rather to be without Children, then that they shold be not vertuous. And indeed, fuch did her Sons proue to be, and good Scruitours to their King, notwithstanding all the partialities in France.

and nice Mo

Example of

therine de Sa.

CHAP. VIII.

Against Obtrectation, or Detraction. And why it is more unseemly for men to speak euill of Women, then Women of Men.

Ll Diuines and Philosophers, as well Auncient as one of the photography of the philosof Moderne, have held, and branches of Enuy. doe maintaine, that detraction is one of the braunches of Enuy, which delighteth and nourisheth it felfe by calumny and lying : whereby people of honest conversation, do continually receine most greenous wounds; by giving ouer light beleefe, to fuch as have a felicity in lying. And therefore, Diogenes the Cinickbeing demaunded, what bite of any Beaft was most hurtfull and dangerous, answered: Amongst furious and wilde Bealts, none like the Detractor, and among tame or gentle, only the Souther and Flatterer. Vpon the same words, Themi-Stocles the Thebane, Said ; There is no greater paine or miferie in the worlde, then to know and behold the honor of an honest and good man, to be in the mercy of a venomous tongue, there to be outraged by detracting speeches.

Full wel we know, that vertuous fame and good renowne, is more precious then any treasure whatsoeuer. No lesse shame and wrong is done to a man, in taking away his honest name and good efteeme, then as if hee were robbed and despoiled of all his substance. But aboue

Good fame is the greatest riches in the answere,con cerning De-

Flatterers.

Chap.8.

Anexcellent

all other, Detraction and calumny yeeldeth most pernitious effects, when Princes do willingly lend care to deprauers; by whom, even themselves doe become at length corrupted. For the enuious detractor, dealeth like a bad Painter, who when he hath made a mishapen Cocke, commandeth his Boy, to drive all Naturall Cockes farre enough off from his foule handy-worke. So hee, from fuch as he would command or gouerne, hee striues to keep off al honest minded men, for hee cannot worke his intent openlie, because hee stands in feare of their Vertue whom he hateth in his heart. Hee 40 maketh a thew of honouring, admiring, and affectuous embracing: but vnderhand, and behinde his backe, hee cafteth forth and foweth all seditions slaunders. But if his claudestine, and secret-wounding reports of the absent, do not quickly beget the yffue of his intent : hee hath yet alwayes readye in his memory, that which in elder times was observed by This Medius of whom we are to fpeak was as the Maister , or chiefe of all the troope of flatterers, that honered about Of Medius, Flatterers athe mightie A exander, cuermore bandybout King A ing against well disposed people in his Court. Hee gaue instruction, that no one should bee so bolde, as to backebite openly, or vie the power of calumnie too apparantly, But rather in fuch fort (quoth he) that albeit the partie bitten doe recouer his harme syet that the gripes or firatches may remaine incureable. Even fo, by fuch scarres and gripes of lies and falle accusations, or to call them better (according to Plutarch) by such Cankers and Gaugreues many great persons have suffered themselves to be corrupted and retained still in their memory, detestable yntruth, delinered of vertuous men, to their innocent ouerthrowe, and their owne great diffiguor.

All the enmities and quarrelles, as wel among great as meaner perfons, whence the ground of haue enfued fo manie flaughters, as day- quarrels and ly are behelde with great greefe neuer murders. had any other ground or Originall, but onely detracting the honour or repute of absent people Now, albeit this Vice in generall, is most infamous, and about all other, vnfightly and il-feeming in perfons of honor eyet, of both the fexes, I Detraction is hold it to be more incivil and difgraceful more vabeto a man, then to a woman. Howbeit, I men then wo know, that there are manie people; that men, and the are of contrarie opinion vnto my prefent reasons why. purpose of speech. My first reason is, The first reathat among all the Nations of the world, for, there is a natural Law, observing it selfe; whereby a diffolute life is not held as any Vice, defect, or infamic in men : but in women it is an opprobrie, & fo extreame a shame, that she of whom an euil report hath once passed (be it true or false in the imposition) she standeth for ever blamed or branded. Therefore, a wel aduifed man, wil neuer touch the honor of women.

There is likewise another reason, to wit; That Weomen beeing imperfect The fecond creatures, and of little or no dignitic at reason. al, in respect of men, it were verie requifite, that (feeing of themselves they are not capeable, to performe any vertuous action) fome bridle or restriction were imposed on them, by shame and feare of infamy, that any good qualitie (though it were perforce) might bee planted in Continencie them. And it feemeth, that continency thoght most concentent in was thought more necessarie for them, women then any other, for the better certifude of their Children. Now, because this hath beene enforced, even by all ingenuous fubtilties, Arts, and possible meanes or wayes, to make Ladies become conti-

River of a vermons & mans ly courage.

The greatest to any Chri-

A generous

Exhortation

of the Autho to Ladies of greatest birth and others.

The bountifull mercy of

In the case of Death, how Parents ought to com-

God to lob.

referued.

tinent; yea, it hath appealed, and (as it were) confented thereto by themselues, that in all other things they are of no validity, but continually they doe the contrary to all that they ought to do. Wher-fore, feeing it is lawfull for them, to commit all other errours without blame, let them neuer bee taxed with those imper-Women alov fections that they have done, they being ed to commit all errours, all permitted to them, which (in this refrect) mult not be judged inconvenient, or careleffely regarded by them ; proui-

ded, that their Chastitie be presented.

And yet for all this, I doe not inferre that it is lawfull for weomen to depraue or milpeake by any means: for as I have dies, and also. faide, it is one of the very greatest imperther women. fections, and draweth vnto it more contempt and difgrace, then any other Vice An aft of pie ty to defend womens ho-

A History alledged by Vaientinus Ba vuchius of Tolning the false a Dutchelle nor.

whatfocuer. But I would aduife honourable and worthy women, if at anie time it happen, that a Woman haue spoken reproachfully of them, or fuch as do appertaine vnto them, to tollerate & make no account thereof, for the reasons forementioned. But on the contrarie, it is a worke of picty, to offend their quarrel, if any do presume to defend their honor. And formuch the rather, because it was neuerknowne, that eneric any Knight, who undertooke the Combat, to support the honor of a woman, was at anie time vanquished. Weehaue some proofe thereof, by a Hiltory, which Valentinus Barruchius, a Natine of Tolledo in Spaine, hath fette downe a in great Latine Tome, most exactly written, and in verice elegant phrase, the briefe whereof, is thus: A Daughter to the King of England, being maried to a Duke of Sauoy, & Prince of Piedmont; by not yeilding to the immodest requests of the Count of Pancalser (whome the Duke her husband, had left Regent and Lieutenant of al his Lands in his absence while he was bufied in the wars of France, because hee was there Constable) falsely imposed on her the crime of Adulterie, which he faide she had committed with against all such, as woulde gainesay the truth of his deposition, he presented himfelfe in the Lifts.

his Nephew. And being to combate 10

In the end, as a matter proceeding from Dinine inspiration, a Knight of the Noble house of Mendoza, who although he was farre inferiour in bodily frength, not only in regard of a former long fickneffe, but also by so long a way of trauel, which had so tired himselfe and his horfes: yethe accepted the canfe and Combate, to maintaine the honor of that verthous Princeffe. He foiled him in fight, and made him confesse his damnable imposture. After which, partly by some grieuous wounds received, but more by meere spight and hatefull malice, he died within few daies. And yet the faid Count was one of the most valiant and strongest Knights (of his time) in al Lombardy.

In Fraunce, about the space of threefcore yeares fince, the combat was granted by King Frances, first of that name, to two French Knights, the one named La Chastagneraye, and the other larnac. It was a great quarrell to bee discided, because the Lord de la Chastaignerave , had offended the lionor of a Ladie, that appertained in blood to the Lord de Iarnac. These two Knightes, fighting in the sin-gle Duello, and according to the Kinges und in proofe judgement, the whole Court, and all the 30 spectators, it appeared that La Chastaigneraye, would have the vpper frande, as having made good proofe of his person, in divers battailes, and fingle combates: yet notwithflanding, Jarnas flew La Chastagnerave, and, as manie people were perswaded in Conscience; by the inft judgement of God, for having defamed fo worthy a Ladie. If it might be permitred, I could alledge infinite other Histories, tending to this purpole: but feare of offending, is my onely hinderance. And therefore, I will conclude with the Pro-uerbe, more then true: That neuer were Women depraued, but by a Knaue or a Co-

CHAP.

The Noble Spain, defenof the wrong-ed Princeffe.

> A Combate tried between

A Towne in the west part of Peloponne-is, neere the

where the O-

An auntient

The measure of Hercules body. Chap.9.

CHAP, IX.

How Pythagoras founde out (verie ingenioully) the iust measure and proportion of the bodie of great Hercules.

T is verie memorable,& therefore not to bee let paffe in filence, the ingenious inuentio found out in a fubtle and curious maner, concerning 10 the true shape and measure of Hercules his body. When it was knowne, that 20 the place where the Olympian Games were folemnized (from fine years to fine yeares) in Achaya, neere * Elis, & before the Temple of Iupiter Olympus, had been measured by Herenles, who hadde there made a Stadium, containing fix hundred and five and twentie foote, by the meafure of his owne foote. Vnderstanding also, that the other Stadiums, which his fucceffors afterward ordained throughout all Greece, did hold the like length of fixe hundred and fine and twentie foote, it appeared yet neuerthelesse, that they were much shorter, then that of Hereules. For, Pythagoras knew eafily by this proportion, how much the foote of Hercules contained in greatnesse, from the ordinarie feete of other men. And hauing thus vnderstoode, the size or meafure of his foote, hee comprehended thereby: that the whole bodie of Hercules, must needs be (according to that proportion) much greater then the bodies of all other men, in regard that his Stadium surpassed al the rest.

CHAP. X.

How the Iewes did continually, and from time to time, give Law and Religion to fuch as were their Conquerours and Commanders.

scattered vnto the soure Corners of the world, should administer Law and Religion to their vanquishers. For, as concerning their subjectio, they are a people that have beene troden vnder foote by Law and Faith, hath beene found some femblable constancie: but that the subdued, transported, vilified, made slaues, led in triumph thorowe Empires; that fuch men, I fay, should not only subdue

the hearts of their Triumphers to God,

Eneca fel into great admy-Tration, fo did diuters Sometia his Rooke of Su-thers, how it shold come to passe, that the vanqui she di Lewes, dispersed and the Egyptians, Allyrians, Persians, Gracians, Romaines, Turkes, &c. and how many Maisters socuer they hadde, yet they wermore sub neuer changed or altered their Law. Amongst other people, in matter of their times.

but (in a manner of speaking) traine their Gods also themselves, in triumph after them, is verie admirable. That the Conquerour could not give Law to the conquered, but that the vanquished hath done it to the victor the fubicct vnto the in common Prince; the Captine to the Maister; and observation the condemned vnto the Judge; Who quifted to be would beleeve this, I pray ye, except he victor.

But if Seneca could hear me paaceably. I woulde deliuer him from this aftonishment and admiration, fo strangely conceited, as thus. Those Gods which the Iewes had caused to be left to the people (commonly called inviolable and imortall) confifted of dumbe and infentible Statues, difguifed like men, Beaftes, and Fishes; and some of them, resembled hiddeous Monsters. So that infamous Dæmons, possessed themselves of these Statues and Symulacres, and in them requifaw it? And having feene it, how can he fay otherwise, but that GOD onelie did without anic

The Tranf. migration of the lews, was for the honor and glorie of Danie! disco-

uereth the I

King of Persia

Anancient

taining 36.

quarrers.

red worse matters of men, then did the most detestable Tyrants that euer were. As, that a man thould geld himfelf, lame himfelfe, kill himfelfe, yea, and that men fnould Sacrifice Women, Virgins, and Children to them. But when the people heard speech of one only true God, the Creator of heauen and earth; and that he would be ferued in heart and spirit: these wordes, although they came forth of a poor flaues mouth, made Captines of the men them felues that heard them, and fubdued their Gods . What then shall we say of the Iewes transmigrations, and flitting from place to place: but that they were as fo many Colonies and Preachers, to proclaime the true GOD, and euen as so many armics, to extirpate Idolles?

That it could be no otherwise, Daniell and his affociats, being as the rest) transported into Allyria, he shewed vnto the King, that the Idoll Bell (which hee caufed to be worthipped, and had daily deliuered him fuch quantities of bread made of the finest Flower, a great number of Sheepe and fatted Cattle, and fix * Amphores of Wine) was no true God, thogh measure,conhe himselfe worshipped him, and went enery day to adore him, as beliening that 30 he denoured all that meate and wine. He made it apparant to him, that it was but a meere manifest deceite, performed by his Priests & Sacrificers, who with their Wines and Children, came in the night time, and cate vp al the Viands fet before the Idoll, for which they were descrued-

After he had thus shewne to the Ass.

nied to be a God. Daniel having obtayned leaue to kill the Draggon, without the help either of fword or staffe, with pitch, fat, and haire (which he boyled altogether) made rounde balles thereof, and threw them into the Draggons throate.

which made him burft in funder. And then faid Daniel, Behold what ye have wor-(hipped. But for these thinges, the people threw Daniell into a denne of hungry Lions, of which Beafts hee was not denouly punished. The King fhewed Daniel rian King, the vanitie of the Idoll Bel, the 40 the great dra-King tooke him, and shewd him a mighty great Dragon, which the Babylonians, and himfelfe, as well as the reft, worthipped befide the faide Idoll Bell. The King faide to Daniel, Thou wilt not fay that this is of Braffe, like the other this cannot be de-

Dmiel killed the great dra-

Daniel caff into the den of red, although he had nothing given him to eate, in the space of seauen dayes before. At the end of which time, the King finding Daniel yet living amongest the Lyons caused him to be taken forth, Daviel deline. and forfaking all Idolatrie, worshipped red, and the the true GOD, the God of the Iewes. K. conuerted. Were not these worthy slaues, that con-uerted this great King, and thus trium-Who gaue intelligence to Cyrus, K. of Perfin, concerning the true God, the God of the Ifraelites and Iewes, and to Cym, King of cause him send home the captived Iewish Persia, belee people, giving them meanes to repayre uedin God the Temple, ruined by the Affyrians, com manding them also, to pray to God for his prosperity; but euen the same Slaues of the Iewes? May we not likewife fay as much, of Alexander the Great? He was broght to worship the true God, throw- Quintu cantiing and prostrating himself before Iddus of Great determine the High-priest, who came before him lexander. with all the people of Ierusalem, having their heads and feete bare, to implore his mercie, and not to bee put to death by him, because they gave him no aide with men and victualles, when hee befiedged Tire. Notwithstanding, these conquered and halfe-dead lewes, by their humble maner of behauiour, but Gods grace more especially woorking, caused that great and inuincible Monarch, to fall on fpiredby God his Knees before their chiefe Prieft; and to his humilinot onely fo, but to embrace, them with y. amitie, and graunt them manie gratious priviledges. And to their Neighbors the Samaritans, who observed not the same Religion, he gaue inhibition and countermand, of enjoying the fame immunities. And himfelfe would confesse, that cians Law was of no worth. Did they not impose the selftame Law probinic got the possession on the Egyptians, who likewise led them of Egyptians into Captinity? Wee may read in the poyled India Greeke Histories, that after the death of Alexander, many of his Kindred, & fome of his aduanced fauourites, possessed themselues (as best they could) on divers portions of his Monarchy. And among the rest, reolomy seazed on Egypt, and on many other adjacent Provinces. And purpofing to do as muchon Iudea, he was impeached by the Iewish people, who would acknowledge no other superiour, but their High-priest and Sacrificer, the Iewish Law was good, but the Gravileft flaueries. All which notwithftanding, poore foules, they ceafed not to cry and call to the Egyptians, that their Religion was falle, and that they had manie 10 monstrous Gods: As Onions, a Cow, a

The captine lewes did flew the error of the E

Chap.10.

The Iews led

Captines in-

o Egypt.

The Bible translated out of Hebrue, in-

The vanguishedgaue law to the Victor.

The Syrians

Whereupon, Ptolomy entred into Pale-Stine, made there great denastation and spoile, beating down divers strong forts, and led away many thousands of them, as captines into Egypt, where they were ill entreated, and employed in the basest & Crocodile, and others.

In the end, their declarations were fo manifest, and their cries so violent on their idolatries, that the verie wisest men of the Countrey, with their King Philadelphus (one of the successors to the former King, who led the poore Iews awaie as Captines) lent eare vnto them, and found all true, which the miferable and 20 distressed I ewes had preached to them. In regard whereof, the King wold needs make more ample enquiry, concerning their Law and Religion. He caused al the Books of the Old Testament to be tranflated out of Hebrewe into the Greeke tongue, by feauenty Interpreters of the Iewes (most learned in the said tongues) feperately, fo that they could not confer one with another, to know whether they | 30 agreed in their traduction of the Booke of the Old Testament, or no. When he had found a meruailous concordance in the feuerall translations, and had read, and read againe the faide Booke; hee acknowledged, that his Captines the Iewes had saide nothing but the truth; and that there was but one God, the GOD of the Ifraelites, and the Iewes. Wherefore, he afterward embraced the feare of God 40 in his heart, reformed his life, and fet at liberty all the Captine Iewes, the rough-out his Land. Thus you may fee, how the vanquished gaue Law and Religion to the victor.

When that the Egyptians had fuffered the Iewes to live in peace, the Syrians within a while after, conceived harred against the Iewes, and perceiving Civill diffentions to be among them, they also warred on them. Antiochus their King (by the meanes of Traitors) was brought into Ierufalem, where hee placed Idols in the Temple, ranaged all Indea, and ledde away a great number of Captines, according as Zonarus declareth. Yet the poore captined lewes thewed vnto the Syrians, that they had done verie euill, in polluting the Temple of the true GOD, for The Syrians which they should be seuerely punished. instructed by As afterwardes it came to paffe, for the the lewes. faide King Antioches was conquered by the Romaines, and paide tribute to them. Theil could the Syrians and their King, remember the predictions of their poore captines, whom they did gladly fet at libertie, and entreated, that they woulde pray to God for them, being afterwards in the Romains fafegard.

It were a matter impossible for me, to The captivity fet downe all the Kingdomes ; where the of the lewes I ewes haue beene kept Captines; & perfecured; and verneuertheleffe, still acknowledged, that they worthipped the only true God, and brought due's kings and people to differne their Lawe. And fome verie speculative Divines, have bin perfinaded, that thefe Captinities of the lewes had not beene permitted by God, but onely to the end, that they shoulde beare tellimonie in all the quarters of the earth: that the Histories of the Olde-Testament were true, and that the God of the lewes, was the only true God. Therfore, it was no fuch matter of wonder, as Seneta made it, that cuermore the Iewes gaue Law to the Conquerours, and fuch The Lawe of as kept them in captinitie. For the law of the Gentiles. the Gentiles, was nothing elfe but vanitie and lies: but that of the lewes, was grounded on the knowledge of the true God.

The cause of the Transmi grations of

CHAP, XI.

Of Sorrow or Mourning for the dead. How it hath beene observed and yet is to this day, in manie Prouinces and Countries of the world.

O mourne and forrowe for Parents, Kindred, & Friends deceased, is not any matter of Nouelty, but most anci- ty of mour uen score and ten yeares after the floode, and threefcore yeares after the death of Weah, and in the year of the world, two thousand fixtie, according to the calcu-

ent. For it is found, that fea- ning for the lous vnhealthfull for Straungers; and therefore (very often) it causeth their death. The Vice-Rev of the place knoweth well enough how to appropriate to himfelfe (hy way of Escherage) what goods foeuer doe belong to ftrangers, being no Natiues of the Councry. And therfore when any one there dyeth, the wife of the dead man doth weare mourning the space of foure yeares, and neuer marrieth againe during that time.

But all that long and irkfom limitation, the hath certaine fequestred houres daily, to kneel in her Chamber, accompanied with some of her necrest kinred & friends; to make moanes, lamentations and funerall complaints, for the loffe of her deceased Husband . As concerning the Men of this Country, and to of Tur-ky; I cannot give ye any affurance, of their mourning for the death of their

Wines: because their King despenseth with them, for the marrying of manie wines. But the women of this Pronince of Cormos, are much to be commended for their chaftity, beyond many ofthem remaining among vs, who rarely will tarry a yeares space of mourning.

CHAP. XII.

of divers Paganes, that tooke the matter or contemne their Religion.

very offensive y, and a great dishonour to them felues ; that any one should mesprife,

14124 Mourning vfed amongeft the christians

Mourning of the Larine Christians.

The mourn ing of the Terence and

The Mour-Lapparians.

Postel.in lib. 2 De Repub. F.

The mour ning of the lation of Carion, and of other Chroniclers, that Abraham mourned and forrowed for his wife Sara, the space of thirtie dayes. I thinke, that the lewes afterward continued(and yet do to this day) the cuftome of mourning, for no more then 30 dayes. But Christians, belonging to the Church of God, vsed mourning a whole yeare, to wit; cloathed in blacke for the most part : but Women, were cloathed partly in white, and partly in blacke; efpecially in some Countreyes, which was done according to the divertity of Nations. But the ancient Romaines, before they were Christians, mourned 9. moneths onely. Heere we are to know, that if a Christian man or woman, in those parts, wearing mourning, came to agree againe in a fecond marriage, during the yeare appointed for mourning, the Matrimony was stayed; but thence-forward, hee nor thee were bound to weare any more mourning.

The people of the Greeke Church, mourned a whole yeare, like to them of the Latine and Romaine, and neuer made any motion of a fecond marriage, during the limited yeares space: but did much more, for euerie day of that yeare, at a certaine appointed houre, all the people of the house, yiel lamentations, and yery greeuous cries, for the party deceafed. But at the renewing of the year, they left off their mourning habits, and Funerall forrowings . In the times of Terence and Plantus, Commicall Poets, the like was practifed. They that inhabit the great Isle of Iapparia, and (wel-neere) thorow al the Prouinces, which are called Malabria, after that the dead mans bodie is publickelie throwne into a fire, and one of his living wives therewith, the nearest in Kindred to the deceafed party weareth a garment of Violet colour, and neuer putteth it off for a whole yeares space, eating also but one meale a day during that yeare.

They that are of the Mahomeran Religion dwelling in the leffer Afia, Europe, and Affrica, do mourne no longer for any man or woman deceased, but onelie eight dayes; & that it is the limited time for mourning. Their Garments are of coorfe wollen cloath, gray of colour(called among them, Chenine or Felte) and whereof couerings are made for horses . But fuch as will not weare them of this fashion, do carry a white Lippen Cloath, hanging down from the Turbant fo low as the Girdle, and fo go on with Teares and cries to the graue.

If the deceased Turk be a man of qualitie, and had Dogges and Horses, before he bee brought foorth of his dwelling to buriall, they rub their nofes with some fharpe graine or hearbe, to vrge teares out of their eyes, that they may appeare to mourne for their deceafed Maister, & they are made to follow the bodye to the Graue, which commonly is without the Cittie, and fo they continue on the mourning for eight dayes. Al which notwithstanding once every day(during this short time of forrow, at a certaine limited hour in the day time, all the Kindred and friends do meet at the graue, to pray to God for the dead mans foule. The eight dayes being ouer-passed, all mour-ning is laide aside, and then they make a Feaft: which beeing likewife ended, the furniuer may then feeke after a feconde match.

Some do Write, that the Parents or Kindred of the dead, during the space of a whole yeare, do giue order to certaine men, called Saintons, to read enery daie in the Alcher an ouer the Graue, for the faluation of the deceafed parties foule. In like maner, that some women very much denoted to the Mahometan Religion, do leave divers Legacies, to fuch as vie the wars during the space of a year aftertheir husbands death to bring them home the heades of Christians, to offer vpon their graues. And commonly, they allow a* Sultain of Gold, to bee given for everie head; but he must produce good witnes and testimony, and it must bee foundly verified that it is a Christians head Most viualy they do but bring the skin or form of the face, but fildome the whole head. And this is the mourning of the Turkes. It was my chance to find another mourning, of much longer continuance, then those formerly recited; which is vsed in a great Province, named Cormos, fubiect to the Perfran, and professing the Mahometan Religion. This Province lyeth in so hot a country, that the inhabitants are wholy black Neuertheleffe, the Lande is rich, abounding in Horses, gold, Silver, and Precious stones, of inestimable value for many rare and beautifull embellishings. Notwithstanding the aire is meruai

The women of Cormos doc mourne for their husbad Beafts made

The Turkes

apt to mourn for the dead.

vie praier for the dead, and Feafting.

* A Turkish Coin of gold

Aepyibės, Son to Hippotes,

Aufanias reporteth, that neere the Citty of * Mantines in Arcadia, there was a Temple confecrated to Neptune, the enteraunce whereof was interdicted to men : and yet notwithstanding, it had no other guard or defence, but certaine little woollen cords, placed before the Gate, which caused such dreadfull fears, as the 50 place thereby was accounted very renerent. It chanced, that Æpythes, Son to Hippotes, King of Arcadia, a man flenderly affected to Religion, without any reuerence or respect, did cut the saide cords, and as he would have entred into the Temple: the Waters of the Sea guthed foorth aboundantly voon him and wholy blinded him fo that having loft his eyes in this manner, he prefent ly died. The auncient fame and report was, that the Waters were noted and observed to rest in that Temple : And it was reputed to bee the greater Miracle, because the Sea was three miles, or thereabout, distant from that place.

In the Citty of Cabiria in Beetia, with-in a mile of Thebes, there stood a Temple dedicated to Geres, and entrance Beetiadedicathereinto was granted to none; but only the Cabirians. It so fell out, that Mardonius, one of the Captaines to Xernel entring thereinto with his Souldiours; to rob and bereaue it of the Treasures: both he & all the rest of his Army were (in an instant) surprized with such a sudden fury, that calting themselves down headlong into very deep ditches, and from the tops of Rocks and Mountains, they all dyed most miscrably. The like Another accihappened to the Souldiers of great A lexander, who having taken Thebes by Temple. power, they would likewife enter into the faid temple; but being finitten with lightning from heaven, they endedtheir lines cruelly, which proqued a mighie terror to the Nation of that age . Phiegyas, King of the Orchomenians, or (according to Virgil) of the * Lapithes , ha- dwelling in a uing done infinite dammages in Greece, part of Theffafurprizing many Townes and Citties: became (in the end) fo ouer-weening & foolish bold, that he facked the Temple of Apollo in Delphos, and flew Philamon, Philamon a who brought a power of people to ref- cunning Harcue the Temple. But it came to paffe, per, Sonne to that within no long while after, all the Countrey of the Phlegyans was vtterlie ruinated, by a violent earthquake, and flaming Arrowes that from Heauen, which killed most of the people, & they few that remained, died of the plague. Vpon which facriledge, and contempt of the Gods, Virgil faith, that their king Phlegyas is gricuoufly punished in Helk Phieg yas miferimus omnes Admonet, & magn-sellatur voce per umbras, Difeite iufitiam monti, et non temnere Divos.

Which Verses were thus translated by Masures:

Placyds in that place, Forewarneth all, of his great mifery, And as fad witnesse of such wreighed cale In those dim shades he cryss out would you Learshe'to do Instice And by hy contempt Of the high Gods, dolynudic sata prevent and Tet Stee " . . .

Virg in Lib. 6

aius Caffius, third Maister of the Horie.

Betweene the two Riuers, Sybaris

* The place where Apollo made answer.

S 42 14

The Historie of a flaue bea ten by his Lord and

That which could not be gained in reerence of the Gods, was for a Fathers fake won.

Amyris makes open fale of all his goods, fearing what was to follow.

King Cambyles his vnhallowed intent a

The Sybarites, people of a * citty in great Greece, (so called, by reason of a River which paffeth there along, named Sybaris) being defirous to understand the future felicity of themselues and their Citty: fent to confult with the Oracle of Delphos, to be resolued in the matter. Wherto Apollo in his * Pytheum, gaue them this answer Your Land Shall run to perdition, your felicity (bal have end ; when you begin to make more account of men, then of the Goddes. The Ambassadors having heard this answere, made report thereof to the Sybarites: who tooke good courage to them, perswading themselves assuredlie, that such disaster should never happen to them, and therefore their felicity would be eternall. But within some pretty while after, it happened, that a Maister beating his Slave neere to the Temple : the Slave | 20 fled from him, & knowing that the temple affoorded refoge, ran thereinto, and mounting vp to the Altar, embraced the Image. His Lord purfued him, & having forcibly recouered him from the Statue, without any reuerence of the place, began againe to giue him many Bastona does. The feruant fled fro him oncemore, ran to faue himselfe at the Tombe of his Lords deceafed Father: but then, in meer paternall duty, hee left punnishing any more, and pardoned the fault which hee had committed. All this being noted by Amiris, one of them that had bin Ambaffador to Delphosine cald to remembrance the former words of the Oracle, and declared to some other of his Friends, that the time for accomplishment of Apolloes answere; was even now come. But they giuing no credit to his words; imagined 40 that hee was become foolish. Which when he perceived, he took hold of their supposition, and soone after) counterfeited as if he were growne formwhat diffracted in his sences. So that, making publike sale of all his goods, and getting a large fumme of Mony together : he departed fuddenly thence, & went to dwell in Morea, expecting continually the fate of his Country. It fortuned, that within | 50 no long time after, the Cittie of the Sybarites (by what accident I know not) was raced, rent, and torne, and ytterly made a heap of stones. Cambyfes, the Son of Cyrus, fent fiftie thousand mento destroy the Temple of Inpiter Hammon : but by a fudden furious with heaps of fand, before they could get Temple of Inthither, and fo perished most wretchedly, without executing their pernitious deffeigne. All they which were with Quintus Cepio, at the robbery of the Gold out Aul. Gelin [i of the Temples of Tholoufe in France, to 3. cap. 9. the quantity of one hundred & ten thoufand markes of Gold, and 500. Millions of markes in Siluer: dyed enery Man of them (with all their kinred and Families) within that yeares compasse, and not aboue one of them, did carry fo much as one piece therof home to his own house. Strabe in lib4 Strabo hath left it written, that this Treafure of Tholonfe, was a part of the Delphi-an riches . For Brennie, Captaine of the Gauls, being assisted by the * Tectofages, had ranfacked Delphos : according as we find it recorded by Justine the Historian. As then thefe Tellofages made their retreat to Tholoufe, which was their auncient Country: the plague began to affaile them, and neuer ceased, vntill such time, (as answere came from the Diuines) that they had drowned al the Gold and Silver (gotten by facriledge) in the bottome of it was (long time after) won and gotten, Apollo, of a costly robe of Gold worne a-

CHAP, XI.

Of the Seiane Horse. And of the admirable Statue of a Horfe, erected in Altina, a Citty in the Country of Olympia.

Aius Bassius, in his Comentaries, and Inlins Modestimus, in his second Communitation (Communitation) with that which Aulus Gellius reporteth Lul, Modeli.in in his Attick nights) do relate a memora-ble History, concerning the Seiane horse, Aul. Gellius. in & in this maner. In the Prounce of Argos, Not. Attic.

tempest, they were al quite ouerwhelmed the Thoulguzan Lake. Out of which place by Q. Cepio & his followers, who carried it thence to their owne deare detriment. The Romaine The Romains having furprized Carthage, certaine of them despoyled the Statue of bout him: but the hands of him that comitted this facriledge, wer found cut off, and fastned to the same garment. And Brennus, captain of the forenamed Gauls, entred forcibly into the Temple of Apollo at Delphos: and having committed it to publike spoile, was so furiously possessed, that he flue himfelfe with his own hands.

Chap.13.

Great affecti.

on to a Hoyfic that had fo fa"

tall a defteny

Curus Seignus

first bought

People of the west part of Narbon, to-wards the Pjrene Mountaines. Iuft.in Lib.31, at their fur-

Cornelius Dolabella the Con-Maifter of the Horfe.

the race of those Horses, belonging vnto Diomedes the Thracian, which horse Hercules brought with him into Greece, after he had flain the faid Diomedes. This horfe was of a Bay colour, and of vnufual greatneffe; his Maine yellowith and long; his Nosthrils very wide and open; his eyes great; his legges well formed; his breaft goodly, and his taile long: in briefe, hee was perfectly faire, well limbd, frout, and full of courage for the wars. In the time of his beeing but a Colte, great rumour ran abroad of him, in Afia, Indea, Thebes, Pentapolis, and all ouer Greece, procuring very many (from all these parts, and many more beside) to transile to see him; others to buy him; and diners to draw his figure or proportion. But this goodly Beast had such an vnfortunate destinie, that whofoeuer was his Maister; must needes perish, with his Familier, House, and Goods whatfocuer. For proofe wherof, such as bought him, and mounted on his backe (which were fine worthy Knights) dyed all both miserably and infamoully. The first that bought and backthim, beeing then little about two yeares old : was Cneus Seianus, a omaine Confull, and of great birth, as also verie 30 verie wife in gouerning the Commonwealth, who being to returne out of Perfia to Rome, followed the faction of Octauius Augustus; in regard whereof, fixe moneths after hee had bought the faide Horse, Marke Anthonie caused his head to be finitten off in Greece, and commanded that his body should remaine without any buriall. Now, because that Cneus Scianus was the first Buier and Maister 40 of this Horse, and also had (by his death) first experimented his fatall fortune : hee was therefore called the Seiane Horffe.

there was a horse bred, reported to be of

Afterward, a Romaine, named Cornelius Dalabella, Confull also: bought this horse at an hundred thousand Sestertiaes, which amounted to the value of two thousand Duckets. But if hee had knowne, that hee bought misfortune at fo deare a rate: he neuer would have ac- 50 cepted him in gift: For within leffe then a yeares space after hee had him, the vnfortunate Dolabella was massacred in Syria, in a mutiny of people that rofe against him, and being thus slaine, his body (in meere despight) was dragd along the streets. Dolabella being thus dead, Casus Cafsius, who had great commaund in Rome, performed many warlike exploits in Alfa, and had befiedged and overcom Dolabella in that fedition; took the horse for his owne imployment; but bee had not kept him any long while, till his troups being vanquished, and his Armie quite broken, himfelfe dyed very mifera-

Thus writeth Aulus Gellius, howbeit,

I have elfe-where read, that at a Dinner, both Hee, his Wife and Children, were poyfoned, and all them dyed within an houre after. Vpon the death of Cafsius, as much as hee would have given him if he had bought him. Marke Anthonse was vanquithed by Augustus Cafar, in a bat-hee grew to waxe olde: but his fuccesse proued as deare and fatall, as any of the former owners, and much more notorious. For within the years time of buying

Horse were drowned, and neuer after any tydings heard of them . This Historie which continuallie was spoken of him, that came to any miferable and vnfortunate end. As the like was otherwise vite-red, He met with the Gold of Tholonfe, for the reasons remembred in the precedent very goodly, and forged by the hands of Dionifius the Argine, in honor of Phormius the Arcagian, as was plainely given to Chapter.

this vnhappy and difastrous Horse hapned into the power of great Marke An thony, who found him fo faire, and well the fourth fitting his owne minde, that hee gave in recompence to the bringer of the horfe, taile on the Sea necre to Actium, and fauing himfelfe by flight into Alexandria, (where likewise he was engirt, with sharp besiedging;) hee stabdhis owne Sword into his belly, and to perished by a violent and contemptible death. When Cleopatra, built Marke Anthony was thus dead, a Knight the Citty of of Asia, named Nigidius, bought the Horse, at a reasonable price, because now this Horfe, as he rode with him ouer the Belonging to River * Marathon: the Horfe stumbling a Towne is in the Water, could by meanes recouer mi'es distant himselfe, but there, both Maister and from aibens.

made way to the ancient and well known Prouerb, to wit; He had she Seiane Horfe, 1. Cent. Lib.10

A very admirable matter is likewife The Statue of remembred, of the Statue of the Horse Horse, of I hormius, crected in Altma, a Citty of Olympia in Elis . There stood a horse of Braffe, without any taile; yet appearing

A strange per fwasion of the 772 good Authors for a truth.

Elians.

be understood; by certaine Carracters or Letters engravien on his fide. And the Elians were verily perfivaded, and held it for infallible, that Stallions and Mares should both beget and bring foorth the goodlier Beaftes, if the act were performed before this Statue. And whether it confifted in some matter of enchantmet, or any other vnknowne mystery, I know not; but if a man rode on any Stallion by this Statue: his rider could not be able to fit him, but he would breake al his Furniture, Bridle, Raines, Girts, &c. of what strength foeter, and neuer cease till hee were at liberty, offering then to couer the Statue, as if it had bin a lining Mare. And this was not don in the Spring time only, whe these beasts are said to be most thereto inclinable; but euen at other times likewise, contrary to the naturall 20 custome of Horses. And he could not be had thence, but by violent strokes, and great compulsion.

CHAP. XIIII.

Of Lais, the famous Courtezane of Greece; And the Epitaph engrauen wpon hir Tomb. 30

Ais was borne in a Towne of Sicily, named Hiccara, and be-

Lais in her tender youth taken & fold among flancs

L Sicily, named runsur, and Ning a young Girle, when Nicias, Duke and Captaine of the Athenians, furprized both Catania & Hiceara: she was also taken by some of the Souldiers, and brought to Corinthe, where the was fold among diners other Slaves, in the open Market. Being afterward enfranchifed and fet at liberty : ouer-much licence, want of respect and correction (being absent from her Parents and Friendes, whose care should haue extended, for her good education in honest and ciuill manners) was the onely cause of making abooty of her honor, to him that wold give the most for it . So that, through wanton carri- 50 age in men, as forward as shee to all loofenesse: she won the fame and reputation, of the most queint and witty Courtezane (of her time) in all Greece. Wherupon, the Corinthians did efteem her as a great glory to them, and held themselues to be not a little honoured by her, infomucht, har they stiled her to be a native of their Country, and left it recorded in their Bookes and writings. Some fay, that fhee remained a great while in the Camp of King Pyrrhus, and went along with him into Italy: from whence returning againe to Corinthe, there he made her retirement altogether. This amourous woman, was endued with such exquisite beauty, that the chiefest Painters (according as Athenaus reporteth) came expresly to Corinth to fee her, to draw her Picture, & beare thence the true figure of her face, breafts. & whole body. She was of fuch entifing nature, that men of the greatest wealth, would give a knocke at her doore; yea, many Kings, Princes, and great Lords cam not only from Europe, but from Affricalikewise, to serue, court and require her fauour. In briefe, thee was generally affected, highly eftecmed, and enflamed all Greece, to woc & win her. For either in speaking, singing, dauncing, or what elfe, the could performe it with fo absolute a grace : that the meerly rapished the harts of all men to behold her, and hardly could they refraine to be out of her company, fuch a commanding power had her beautie ouer them. Notwithstanding, she would neuer yeild her felfe to one Man; albeit Aristippus, Demosthenes, and Diogenes, were extraordinarily enamoured of hir. True it is that Ariftippus made his vant, that he had Lais alone in his owne priuate possession swhereas others did defire that they could have the like fauor. Demosthenes came once from Athens to Corinthe, in a difguifed habir, to fee Lais, and enjoy her if he could. But before the would open the doore to him, thee bad him first fend her 10000. Drachmaes (which valued 1000. Crownes, but elfe wher I have read 8000.) for one nights lodging with her: he was fo amazed at heat of his affections, hee went away, faving out aloud: I will never buy repentance at so deare a price. Aulus Gellius recordeth it in this manner. oun ar 8 μου, μυριομ διραχμών μέτα μέλειαμ. That is to worthy Phi-losopher of Cilicia in Au gustus time, From far and neere they the demaund, that prevailing ouer the fay: I will not buy repentance with a thou-(and Drachmaes. This hee spake (as I thinke) according to the faying of Dio-genes, to wit : That every Creature is fad after the Veneriall Act.

Thaue read that the Drack mae was a piece of MoOne day, in the presence of Luis there was one that verie highly commended the Phylosophers of Athens to be exceled lent Wifemen, lerned & honeft. Where to Lais answered thus : I knowe not what great Learning is in your Phylosopheres much lesse what they studie, or what Bookes shey read : considering that I who am a woman, and never was in Athens, do beholde them to come higher : & being Phylofophers I can make them to bee Louers andyse notwithstanding shey cannot make unie of my other faugurites, Phylofophers. Walve li Aristippui the Phylosopher, borne in *Syrenaich; of whom, I hade formerlio made mention, did yearely continue for the space of two moneths, in the time of ledalio Penta. wiitana of the iue Citties seronice, Arfitpollonia, and Athen.in li. 1:

n Affrica, cal

lisques & Dio, ener concer

Aul, Gel.in lib.

Leit was skilful in making vicof hir vain time, yet stoo-ped to al priindifferently, without exception, and at howamanca priodificular, Asuphicular painted henfords, vindingly of alours, thy thoffer Verifes williels a defourer wrote int her, the fibliance whenere are contins of atten inti. 131 fect. Lais is a very flothful drunken Woman, fup. 10. doing weeking but nave and when hill the tily long. I thinke she hath experimented the hehautour and cuftome of Lagles, volto when they are young do ferse on Sheepe cas Hares on the highest Mountaines lifting them aloft by the gripes of their Talents, hal when olde age stealeth on them; then they le sue that big der prey, and five at none but young and finallest Birds, Eucn fo, Lais beeing your and gallant, had great funs of Money giren for enjoying her favours ; but when many yeares cante on her and ble mished the beauty of her former cariage the wold go then whither any man plea fed. the *Carolus or the Sous, ferued infted English penof a Crowne of former offers, and old or ny, but valewvong was not to be rejected. Authors do not agree concerning the place where Lass died; fome fay, it was hir Sepulcher stood a carned Lionnesse in Braffe, holding a male Goat between her former feete. Some others, do holde it affiredly, that hir death happened in ly without the knowledge of anie of her louers,into the field of Alexander, where other women being both ielious and en-nions of her fame, forcibly drew her into the Temple of Venus, and there fromed hir to death with flones . Athenus faith.

with feats and stooles : for which cause it was after called the Temple of Venus the Murdreffe: otherwife tearmed associate acagestiruciof Impious Venus. Her Tombe was found in Theffaly, necre to the River thus in Latine.

ing ten pence

at Cormet, the being aged 71 yeares, and that the Corinthians made her a magnifi- Variance a-cent Tomb without the Citie where the about the dwelled. Y for they did not allowe anic death of Lais. M hores or Harlots to abide within the City, neither vsed they to bury their dead within their wals) and that on the top of

A 46 60 2

Theffay, whether the had followed one, named Hippostrates, whom atheneus cal-Atheneus whi lerh Paulanise, and Plutarch Hippolochus the Theffalian . She doating in affection 'A high Hill towards him, for fooke the Mount of *Acro-Corinthis (continually bedewed with fresh springs & waters)& escaped secret-

1 sales de

Lais beaten to death with

Peneus, whereon was made an Vrne of A Riger tun flore, and thereon was engrauen certain ning between Greeke Verfes, which were translated in Ro-

The Answere of Lais concerning the Phylosophers

the Nepsuanales (Feafts Dedicated voto Meptune) with Lais in Egypt. And bees ing reprodued by a familiar frend of hisa because he spent so much money vppon that woman who would neuertheleffu entertaine Diogenes without and falarie; returned this affwere. I give bountifullie to Lais, because I would have my fill of content with her and yet not to hinder anie other from enjoying her . Diogenes on a time faid vnto him : Aristippus , thou thinkest that thou hast thy pleasure alone with Lais, and yet fhe is a common Whore : Either lead thy life like a Cynick, as I do, or elfe leave hir I would aduise thee, Aristippus presentlie replied. Diogenes, Dooft thou deeme it inconvenient, to live in an house where one hath dwelt before thee? Or to wenter in the Same (hip where many others have formerly successefully (asled? Compare my case then on the contraries that feare not to affect the Woman, where many fauourites have beene accepted before me. If Lais knew in hir youthful time, how to make fale of her kind entertainment to her Louers, and at fo deare a rate, as beuty was fildom bought at the like cost: we must needs conceit, that when more mature and riper yeares came vpon her, the could much better skill of making hir Market, being so well plied with bountifull Pay-maifters. Morcouer, when her gallant flouring daies were passed ouer, that her faire complexion began to faile, and furrowed wrinckles appeared in her face: The flew not then fo loftic a pitch, but was content to welcome both young and olde, rich and poore, faire and deformed, lufty bloods, and cooler spirits; and to be briefe, all goers, and commers tezane in all reputed as an honour to the Lais the onely famous Cour-

Juba, in his

to death in Egypt.

Roboris inuitti animi sit Grazia quamuit, Victa samen forma paruit illa fua: Laidis ipfe parens amor est aluit á, corinthus Ac nunc ipfa tenet inclita The falia.

By the Author thus turned into French.

Bien que la Grece foit d'innincible courage, Vaincue toutesfois a cede au visage De sa chere Lais, belle comme la ione Brane et Pimpante en tout, fille du Dieu Amour : Aux meilleurs de set ans Corinthe la nourrie, Et ores fes os font gardez en Theffalie.

And thus by the Translater into English.

Though Greece was of vnconquerable might, Yet ne'rtheleffe it yeelded, and gaue way To the faire lookes of Law, bright as the day: Feate in all forme, the Loue-Gods deare delight. Corinth gave breeding to her better daies, But Thessay keepes both her Bones and praise.

CHAP. XV.

of Androchia and Alcida, who were Sisters. Also of Macharia, Daughter to Hercules: Which Ladies, for the safety of their Countries, flew themselves.

ghters to Antipenus the Thebane Cittizen ; the one, beeing named Androchia . 40 and the other Alcida.

A Tyraunt whome Hercules draue

The rare retwo famous Virgins,

Yell & Ophocles maketh mention, in one of his Tragedies, that his Tragedies, that at Thebes, in the temple of Diana Euclia, were buried two Virgines; dau-

It happened that * Erginus, King of the Orchomenians, having besiedged the Cittie of Thebes, with full determination to ruinate it, in reuenge of the death of his Father Climon : the Thebanes confulted with the Oracle, concerning theyr fortune in this extreamity. Afterward. when the two fore-named young virgins had understood from the Oracle, that if 50 two fuch Virgines were to bee found (of Noble Family) and would bee so couragious as to kill themselues: they shoulde thereby be the cause of their Citties freedome, and ouerthrowe of the Enemie. Thefe two young Ladies, defiring to be that happie paire of Virgins, and preferring their Countryes deliuerance before their owne liues: killed themselues prefently, and the enemy returned ashamed and foiled; whereby both honor and victorie remained to the Thebanes , to the eternall praise & memories of those two

Hercules escaping the power of * Eu-Stantly the flew her felfe, and the Athenidayes of ignoraunce, when almost the whole world beleeved those deluding Oracles: wherein, for any one truth, infinite Lies, Riddles, and Ambages, were

CHAP. XVI.

deliuered vnto the poore ouer credulous

From whenee came at first our Orange and Cadar Trees. And how the Cadar is verie good and soueraigne, against the poyson of Serpents.

people.

Ranges, Citrons, and Cadars, were neuer in ancient times known to be good to conset, Creat: but onely they were gi-uen as Offeringes vnto the the Gods.

Gods, and effectmed most especiallie for their beauty and fight; & being thut vp in worthy Virgins.

ristheus, went into Thrace, where hee remained til the time of his deth. He being dead, Eurisheus demanded his Children of Seix Lord and commander of Thrace; who fearing their lines loffe, fent them to Thefeus at Athens, to whose especiall care and truff hee re-commended them . When Euristheus had intelligence therof, he proclaimed war against the Athemians: who as well for their owne fafetie, as the Children of Hercules, determined constant resistance against Ceix. But confulting with the Oracle, which side shold be the Conquerour in this doubtfull triall, the Oracle gaue answere, that they should have the dayes victory, prouided, that one of Hercules his Children, must first die. This was no sooner heard by Macharia, Daughter to Hercules: but inans were the Conquerors. Thus you may fee, how the Deuill could get himfelf facrifices, and make humain creatures prodigall of their lives to him, in those darke ghter to Her. cutes flew her Athenians d to Cloathes and Garments, as also to preserve them from Mothes & worms. Then, in regard that they first came out of Persia and Media: men vsed to call them Persian Apples, and Median Apples : Howbeit, Iuba, in his Histories, tearmes them Apples of Gold, or Apples of the Helperides. In no long while after, men began to cate of the Cædar, 10 and thereupon appeared, that a meruailous vertue was found therein, against the venome and poylon of Scrpents & Aspicks. To approve the truth therof, we finde it credibly recorded, that two men, being condemned to death in Ægypt, their fentence was; that they should be exposed to Serpents, to bee denoured by them, which kind of death had beene vied among them from olde 20 Antiquitie. The day being come wheron they should dye, one of them was (accidentally) visited by a friend of his in the Prison, who was champing and chewing a piece of Cedar in his mouth, and bestowed some little part thereof on the condemned Prifoner, which hee accepted very thankfully, and byting thereon, gaue some also to his deathes

chelts or coffers, to yeild a pleafing fauor

Denouring Serpents re-fuled to touch oor condem ned men, on-ly because hey had ea-companion, in meere simplicity, and without knowledge of any fecret vertue They being brought to the place of death, and thrust out to the greedy Serpents; they would by no meanes come neere them, or touch them, but auoyded to farre as possibly they could from them. The Officers of Iustice beeing there prefent, began to examine, what might be the reason of this sildome 40 feene wonder: whereupon they found, that the Cedar (eaten by both the Prifoners) was the onely cause. But in regard they intended a more ample proof thereof, on the next day following, they caused one of the condemned Men to eate of the Cedar again, but gaue to the other his accustomed food, and bringing them both to the place of execution; all the people beheld, that the Serpent ran fiercely on him that was fafling from Cedar, tearing and renting him in infinite morfels ; but left the other againe without any touch, who died also the day following by the same

Scrpents, according as his fellow had done before him.

CHAP. XVII.

How hurtfull a thing it is to endure fasting or hunger : And what the reason is, that aged people are more capable thereof, the youthfull bodies, yet without any preiudice. Alfo, whence it proceedeth, and upon what occasion, that fasting is hurtfull to chollericke per fons, and profitable to the Phleematicke.

Histions doe hold opinion, that two Two inconue principall inconue- niences cauniences doe enfue fed by hunger by Hunger and Fafting : the one is, the naturall heate weakened. The body that is most offended by these two harms, endureth hunger with exceeding great difficulty: but whereas these annoyances do cause no oppression, it is suffered with the grea- of naturall ter eafe. The Infant then that encrea- heat in Infeth, hath his naturall heat in fufficient diedl moyftrength, and radicall moyfure verie fure. fubtile: which resolueth it selfe much more by equall proportion, in not enduring hunger then, then it can doe in any other degree of age.

the humiditie of the stomack is thereby

Moreover the sensitive vertue is then forcibly mooued, whereby it suffereth hunger with much passion and damage, which causeth both heat & the naturall Spirit to diminish mightily, & keeping nourishment then from him: is the maine, hinderance to his growth and rance of an encreasing. By which occasion we may Infants grow. perceive, that an Infant or young child ing. is more injured by hunger, then all perfons elfe in any other age. The young man, that hath attained to his intire and perfect encreasing, although his naturall heate beeas strong flacofenas that of the Infant : yet notwithftan- creafing. ding, he hath his naturall humiditie more groffe, and therefore it cannot fo foone diffolue, as that in the Childe. In which respect, hunger doth no way for much offend a Man of middle age; as a younger Child or Infant . For it is vniuerfally observed, that in Adolescency Youth-hood, or when a man is neerest to his original : with fo much the more paine and difficultie hee endureth hunger, because his naturall moysture is more subtile and resolucable. The old, or aged man, hath his natu-Of the Aged rall heat much abased or dejected, and his declining his humidity greatly thickned or closed together, which cannot fo eafily refolue it felfe. The fensitiue vertue also is highly decayed in him, and fenteth nothing so perfectly, as when hee was an In ant, a Youth, or in his strength and best of yeares . And therefore, hee endureth not fo much paine and dammage then, as in the precedent conditions. But he who is the decrepite, or very old man, although he have his na- 20 turall moisture much more groffe, his heare very feeble, and his fenfible vertue farre more imperfect, then is in all the other Ages, as being Neighbour and neere to his extinction : yet for all that, how little soeuer he suffereth the accident or discommoditie of hunger; it endangereth the quite quenching of his naturall heat, whereon immediatlic he dyeth. And therefore it is very need- 30 full, that food should be as often given to the decrepite man, as to the young heateremaining in him; as we fee by a flender flame, when too much Oyle is Hunger is caused in vs, and all other

Creatures elfe, by reason that naturall heate continually confumeth, and dry-eth the humiditie of our members, which being confumed, confumeth likewife the moysture of the veines, and their confumption causeth attraction from the Liner, and the Liner from the stomacke. These humours thus confu-med, the Soueraigne Creator hath ordained in vs, that the Spleene or Milt should conuay the Melancholly humor to the stomack, which being eager and corrofiue, confumeth likewife the fubstantiall humiditie in the stomacke it felfe, and so inciteth a desire of foode, from whence enfueth the occasion of put into the Lamp.

old must be as often fed as a child but Infant, but yet diversly. For the Infant in another kind. must have enough at every time given him, and but litle to the decrepite man: because, if he should receive over much, it would suffocate the small quantity of

The decripite

Of Decripite

How hunger man, and in al

The Melancholly humor

Hunger. Which is very hurtfull to Chollericke bodies, because whensoe- The Cholle. uer they fuffer hunger, their choller defrendeth into the stomacke, and wil not let them cate; but are poffeffed with fumes and vapours while choller fo mounteth, which afterward (when they doe eate) corrupteth and putrifieth the meates received. But in Phlegmatique | The Phlegcomplexions, there is humidity enough in the stomacke, and in al the members. And therefore it is profitable for them to endure hunger, for by their sufferance thereof, their bad and ill-affected humours are confumed away by chol-

CHAP, XVIII.

That there is not any thing in the World, which is more hurtfull to man, or procureth him more loffe and danger, then the Tonque: with many notable Examples sothat effect.

Nacharfis the Philosopher, being one daie connecting with his Schollers, concerning the tongue, spake thus vnto them . Not without oreat Art and Mystery (ô my Schollers) did Nature bestow on vs two Feete, two Legges, two Armes, two Hands, two Eyes, two Eares, and no more but one tongue. As fignifying thereby, that cyther to goe, fee, or heare are offices which we can doe as often as we pleafe : but to fpeake well, wifelie, and modestly, is more then we can easily attaine unto. He faid moreouer. For no other occasion hath Nature left our face vncouered, our eyes, eares, hands, feete, and al the rest of our body, except the tonque: but the toong which she impaled with lawes, and walled about with teeth, and afterward defenced it with lippes ; but onely to let us under stand, that (in this prefent life) there is nothing that deferueth a stronger guard, then the unbrideledtongue. We have no part belonging to our body, which Nature hath fo furely Rampiard up, as the tongue. Before it is placed a Bulwarke of teeth, to the end, that it should be o-

Banket with

Prou. 18.21.

Chap. 18.

The reeth ordained to pu-nish the tong.

Ànacharlis at a

Fraf in Enchir.

Pittacus his comparison of the tongue

The answere

The speech

charfis the Philosopher to his Scholning the Plutar. in Lib.

Law among them, that fuch Men as had bad and wicked tongues : should be bannished and confined for halfe a yeare, into some distant seperate place. without power of speaking to any one whatfoeuer. And many times it happened, that some of them chose rather three yeares flauery in the Gallies, then to be so bard of speaking for halfe a veare.

ritie, and prevailance in fpeaking; was much feared throughout all Greece, and therefore talked at his owne pleafure. In regard whereof, all the chiefe of the bedient to reason, which restraines it; (as with a strong bridle) within : but if it will not be kept backe, her intemperance may be justly punnished, with a bloody gripe betweene the teeth. The fame Philosopher banqueting one day with Solon, was esteemed to be wife, because being a-sleepe afterward, hee was noted by one or two to hold his right hand on his mouth, and the Ic lefevpon his naturall partes of fecrecie, as thereby declaring, that the tongue had neede of a much stronger Bridle, then the other partes of Nature. For the tongue containeth in it both good and enill; And Salomon faith: Both life and death is in the power of the Tonque. If we vee the tongue well (faith Erasmus) it is as a Horne of plentie or aboundance: but if it want a Gouernour , there is no- 20 thing more offensive. The Philosopher Pittacus faide. The Tongue resembleth to the world; the forme of a Lances point, but is much more dangerous : for the Launce woundeth the Flesh onelie, but the Tonque Striketh quite thorough the Affranlus, another Philosopher, was one day demaunded, wherefore he spent the most part of his time, in walking among the Mountaines, hazzarding his life everie houre, where fo many wilde Beaftes might suddenlie deuour him? Hee presentlie replyed. Beastes have no other weapons but their teeth, where-with to teare me: but Men ceafe not daily to commit outrage with their members, and to defame with their mallicious Tongues.

Plutarch; in his Booke of Banishment, declareth, that the Lydians had a Demostheres, a Man of great autho-

Athenians mer together on a day , and at a meet appointed place, concluding The manner to bestow a large recompence, and II- how the area beralt Wages also on him befide. And peticed Demol. calling him in among them, to let him benes. vnderstand their bounty and beneuolencesone (in name of othe roft) fpake thus voro him . Demosthenes ; we dor not bestow this great carfe cether because thou hast spoken or thus thou should st speake but onely to the end that thou fhouldit hold thipeacean almitenant free de banna Marke Anthony caused the Father of Eloquence to be flaine, vpon no other Mark Aniben occasion : but because hee had spoken caused the too advantagiously on his behalfe. death of cice Which was manifestly declared by Fuluia, Wife to Marke Anthonie, when thee procured Ciceroes Tongue to bee puld out, for his false speaking, and pierced it thorough (in many places) with Needles. Salust, the Romaine Oratour, was verie odious vnto Stran-gers, and fenerely purfued by his owne or. Companions: because he neuer tooke Penne in his hand to Write, but it was against some especiall persons; neither would be open his mouth, but it was to depraue some others. The Lydians had an inviolable Law, to punnish The Lydians Detractors with death, but Homicides law against and Men-killers, they condemned them Detractours. to labour in their Gallies. So that among those barbarous people, for one Man to depraue or defame another : it was reputed a far greater offence, then if he had flaine him.

ner in his Tent , fuch as hee pleafed to mindin King accept in companie at his owne Ta- Darius toble, beganne to moone fome Millirary meny. Argument, concerning the warlike affaires of Alexander the Great. In which discourse, a Captaine, named Mygdonius, (one very highly favoured of Darius) delinered some reproachfull fpeeches of Alexander, whereupon Darius fuddenlie faide. Hold the Tongue Mygdonius, and know, that I This Mygdoni brought thee not with mee to this Warre, in tearned by to defume Alexander with thy Tonque; but onelie to conquer him in Armes, if thou canft. By which example, we may perceine, how detestable and odious the Vice of Detraction is: because it is apparants that enen Enemies themsary and are the real than a constitution of the luces

As King Darius far one day at Din- An honorable on-1. Saler

tales & newes

Ouer-much talkeis a grea blemish to Honor.

felues cannot endure, to heare difgracefull wordes of one another . Pytheus, Duke of Athens, was a very honorable Prince, full of courage and resolution: but yet fo ouer-abounding in talke, that it greatly diminished the glorie of all his other atchieuements. A Philosopher beeing bidden to a follemne Banquet, spake not one word while the feafting continued, which made cuery one maruaile at his fo long filence, and demanded, for what reason he was so sparing of speech? Whereto he returned this answere. It is much better to know the time when a Man should speake, then barely how to freak : For nature hath taught vs the one, but wisedome is the enstructer in the other. No Man (at any time) repented him-

selfe for beeing filent, but many haue

Read Plutare Tracte of too much talking. Of him that found the empty Bot-tle in the Temple of Iuno Chalcocco done it for too much talking, because oneword hath fometimes beene the price of a mans life. Let him be a Witnesse, who interpreted the signification of the emptie Bottle, found in the Temple of Iuno Chalcoccos in Lacedemonia, after it was stolne thence : by ouer-lauish pratling, when no man demaun. ded any question of him, hee lost his life, with his owne confent. He could 30 then have wisht his wordes in his belly againe, but it was too late, and time past: for a word cannot be recourred againe, when it is out of the mouth, no more then a Bird, when the is let go at libertie: whereupon it was faide: That Words have wingges . Sildome hath an vttered word returned any fuch fervice, as profit hathenfued by divers never fpoken : For wee may alwaies deliuer 40 that wel, which is yet within vs, but neuer call that backe to mending, which is gone from vs.

Frimenides, a Painter, parting from Rhodes, travailing into Asia, where hee continued many yeares together : but at length returned to Khodes againe, yet no one in the Cittie could heare one word of him, concerning what he had done and feene in Afia. Whereat the Rhodians making no little maruaile, they entreated him, to acquaint them with fome discourse of his long travailes; whereupon, he gaue this answere. I was ten yeares on the Seas, to make me apt for parting from place to place : Other tenne yeares I tarryed in Asia, to better my skill in

Of Dpimenides the Painter of Rhodes, that trauailed into answere to the men of painting : And sixe yeares afterward I studied in Greece, onely to learne how to hold my peace. Your comming to menow, is, that I should vie wordes to ye , and tell ye newes. Come to me no more (kinde Countrey-men) to any such intent: For you mey see Pictures in my House, if you please to buy them, but I have no newes to feede your eares withall. In my poor opinion, he answered them like a verie wife man, for, by reporting matters of farre Countries, which are rare and divers : people (of weake capacity) give no credit to them; others, make a mockery, and most are doubtful of them.

Pythagoras being feriously questioned, what was the reason that hee kept so ftrict filence in his Academie (because in the space of two yeares, all Schollers that came to be enstructed there, might not speake one word, being thereto enioyned by his feuere commaund) returned this answere. In the Schooles of other Philosophers , they teach their Schollers to peake; but mine learne onely how to bee filent. And vindoubtedly, concerning the life of man, there is no higher or fairer Philosophy, that this World can affoord; then how to restraine the tongue, when it is most needfull.

CHAP. XIX.

What Feasts and Banquets were weed in anciens times; And how Augustus prohibited in Rome, that any Man should inuite another to eate in his house.

Mong the Spartanes, there . Common were certaine Banquets Suppers Bread and Swines Flesh fodden in Water, without any thing elfe for their first feruice. For their last course, which those Auncients called, the second Table: they were ferued with Olines, Cheefe, and Figges. And to close vp the feast, they had certaine baked cakes, made of fine Flower and Oyle, cut vpon Bay-leaues: without any Perfumes at their Tables, curious backt meates, couragement for youth full

Of Auncient Feasts and Banquets. Chap.19.

Atheneus in Lib. 4. Cap. 5. Feafts in Creek free for all and prepara-tion of the Feafts, or choife fauces of fundry taftes, thinges in those dayes neuer heard or thought on, their Fealts & Banquets being much more modest then ours now are. In those elder dayes, thorough al the citties in Creete, on certaine dayes of the yeare; they were wont to make Banquets, common for who foeur pleafed to come to them . For maintenance whereof; euery Cittizen gaue the tenth part of all his fruites, which were gathered duely at the Citties entrance, by some of the society thereto deputed. The care and charge of the whole Banquet: was referred to a worthy Lady, who had (vnder her) three or foure weomen of more inferiour degree, beside two seruants, that fed the Fire with wood. In the house appointed for the Feast, first of all were prepared two Tables for the Cittizens, 20 and two other, onely for strangers. The affiftants were all ferued with equal allowance: but younger people had leffe flesh meates affoorded them, then the elder. At each Table there was appointed a Veffell full of Wine, well qualified with water, whereof they dranke in common, and after they had indifferently eaten, they had other wine brought them, of better qualitie then the first : whereof 3 the grauer fort dranke fo much as they pleafed, but the younger: in more moderate manner.

The Noble Lady, who helde the fupreame authority of the Feast, accompanied with some other Ladyes; brought the most delicious meates to them, that in times of warre or peace, had done any famous and remarkeable deede, as being those that best deserved honour. When this Dinner, or Supper (as it fell out to be) was ended, they would fit still, con-fulting first together on publique affaires and afterward on matters appertaining to the warres, with repetition of their names and fernices, that had best deferued of the Common-wealth; profited their Country; beene benificiall to the Temples, and houshold Gods of enery

Familie; and were dread leffe of death in all good actions. These wanted not their due praise and commendation, to the end, that youg men hearing the memory of fuch vertuous persons, might adict them-felnes to the like endeauours, and (finally) be pertakers of their glory.

This beeing done, they arose from the he chicle Lady and dif-pofer of the

Their Table talke, after Dinner or Tables, and departed thence about their occasions.

The Lacedemonians, at their marriage | Marriage Fealts, would permit no more but nine Fealts among perfors to dine together, which they did the Lacedemo as in rederence to the nine Muses. And this was conditioned also, that if any man talked at the Table, no wine should bee ginen him to drinke fo that if a man defired to drinke, hee mult be fure to holde his peace. This law would ferue to good purpose in these dayes, because both in our marriage Feasts and other Banquets, nothing is more viually heard then noise, rumour and babling, and they are best e fleemed, that can maintaine the longest pratling. The * Nancratites in the hal-lowed Feafts, which they celebrated in City in honour of their Father Dionyfins, or Bac- Egypt. chus, in the Pritaneum, were all clothed in white Albes, then called Pritanean Gownes, and when they had heard the voice of the publique Cryer: they would al fal down on their knees to the ground, and having faide certaine private prayers, feate themselves at the Table, every one receiving two measures of wine; the ance of the Priefts of Apollo Pitheus, and of Bacchus Prieftes. only excepted who were allowed a double portion, as well of wine, as of all oble portion, as well of wine. 3 as of all other thinges befide. Afterward the viet was, that euery one should hauc a fayre large slice of very puric bread giuen him, Fras, and no theteon a piece of courter Bread, with a morfell of Swines Flesh on it, be allowed. fide a Cake of Barly Bread fryed, or elfe fo much Meale fryed, or a messe of Pottage made of Hearbes, according to the feafon of the yeare, two Egges, a cantle of Cheefe, dryed Figs, and a Cake crow-ned with a Garland. If any one (in thefe facrifices) prouided any other meats then those aboue rehearsed, he was to be ammerced with a pecuniarie fine.

The vie of making Feafles and Ban- Arift in Lib. 9 quets (as Aristotle writeth) was invented cap, 16, by Italus, a very auncient King of Italy, The first in who kept company with groffe and boorith people, feeding among them, obliging them (by that meanes) to yeeld him the more obeylance, and he drawing the also thereby to a more humaine, ciuill and pleasing kinde of life . Suctonius Sucton Trang. Tranquellus declareth, that the Emperor ta. Anguit. Octanius Augustus prohibited in Rome, that any of his subjects should inuite one another, to dine or suppe with him: but

Nancratis,

The allow-

The answere Oratour.

Of Pericles the honourable Athenian.

Argument.

yet they might fo much honor one another, as to fend part of his Viands to the others Table, but not to pertake in earing thereof. But being demaunded, what was his reason for making this Law, he answered. The occasion that moned me to forbid Playes and Feastings, was for nothing elfe: but because in those plaies, Men cannot abstaine from blaftheming the Gods, and (at Peastes) one Neighbour defameth or backbiteth another. Cicero Writeth, that Cate the Cenfor, being at the point of death, delinered thefe wordes. Among other thinges done by me, not as became a good Romaine Cittizen, but rather like a presumptuous and barbarous Man; was this: I being once entreated by a friend of mine, that I would come and dine with him: fuffered my felfe to be ouer-ruled, and went unto him, which I ought not to have done. For to fleake uprightly, no genero s and vertuous man, should goe to cate in the House of any Friend, or other : because, hee thereby loofeth his owne liberty, and hazzardeth his reputation and grauity in extraordinary perill. A certaine man demaunded of Aschines the Oratour, what hee of Elebines the Should doe, to be esteemed a good and honest man? To whom he thus answered. If thou wouldst bee a perfect honest 30 Grecian, thou must go to the Temples willingly, and to warre upon necessity: but to Feast's or Banquets, neither on thine owne free will, or any importunitie; An answer

> Pericles, a man of great account among the Athenians, did fo highly detest the custome of Feasts and Bankets, and the prouision appointed for them: as hee did neuer dine or fup with any 40 Friend of his, but onely Eurytolemus, on the day of his Nuptials. And yet he was a man of great honor, very liberall, and maintained many people with his goods. Nor doe I (for all this) wholelie condemne Feafts and Banquets: prouided, that mediocrity bee obserued in them. For I hold it very vicious and vnfeemely, to shun honest conversation, and civill refort to feede together: as is 50 obserued in Societies and Companies, as well Religious, as others, in their Refectories or dining Haules, as we vie to tearme them. For, not onely Nature, but amity also necessarily requireth; that we should support this Custome of Banquets, which the Latines well deferuing eternall memory.

(our betters) vied to tearme Connicium, of Cournendo, as a familiar kinde of life, when men, louingly feede together at one Table. Neuertheleffe, I much miflike, and judge it worthy of great reprehension ; to super-exceede both in pompe and superfluitie in our Feastes, with fuch diversity of meates, as (many times) producs to a mans vindoing. For nothing makes vs fo much like vnto brute beafts; as gluttonous gurmandife, and fludy wholy applyed for the

CHAP. XX.

of many Men, that by their Prodigalitie and lauish kinde of life, made expense of all their faculties in very short time.

He most Prodigall Man of Auncient times, was Epichari-des the Athenian, sir-2 Man of Auncient named the Little Man; who in fixe the Athenian,

Cleops, King of

daies, confumed all his wealthy Patrimony. Pafchifyrus king of Creete, after he had spent all that hee had, and could make beside: at length fold his Kingdome, and lived afterward prinately, in the Citty of * Amathunta, * A Citty of where he dyed miserably. Athiops, the Coprus dedicaand inheritance, both what hee had in present possession, and was to enioy by his Birth-right: onely to maintaine his excessive drinking . Cleops, King of Agypt, hauing laide out vnfpeakable exgypt, hauing laide out vnspeakable ex-pences, for the building of a mightie huge Pyramides, was brought to such virginity. extreame necessity; that for his owne meere maintenance, he was enforced to expose his Daughters virginity to publike fale, to make Money of her lascinious and dishonest pleasures. Marcus Tigellus was fo prodigall in expences, that all his Flatterers, Picke thankes, Players, Pypers, and loofe Companions, who derined exceeding benefit daily from him : bemoand his death, & wept bitterly for him. Of him, Horace maketh mention, faying.

Horace in Satir a. Lib.a.et in Satyr.3 ,Lib.2.

Societies of Flatterers infinite, That follow furnisht Tables day and night : Sellers of Vnguents, fweets . And Mountebancks, Lafciuious Women, vfing wanton Pranks. All these Horse-leaches rusully complaine Tigellus death; whose life was all their gaine.

The prodigality and voluptuous life of Perieles ; of Callias, the Sonne of Hip-

Elianus in Lib. . Cap. 7.

Lib.4.Cap 12.

Ariflopbanes in Com.Predic.

Volat Anthrop.

Who after his Fathers

death was brought vp by Phocion.

So called of harneffe

Calar Calig.

ponicus; and of Nicias, brought them to extreame ponerty, and when Money failed them : they all three, (each after other)received Hemlock for their drink at their last banquet, and so ended their daies. Of Callias, Atheneus maketh mention, and Aristophanes, in his Comedie of Preachers, and Lylias writeth, that his Father Hipponicus was the very richest man in all Greece. Demades the Oratour, had gathered such a masse of Riches, as himfelfe confessed, that hee felt not the want of any thing : neuertheleffe, in the end (thorow his intemperance and diffolution) he fo wasted and consumed al his wealth, that he was banished from the Citty, because he had beene seauen times accused, for not payment of such fines, wherein the men of Athens had condemned him. And Antipater the Pooer of Sidon mocking him, faid : He had nothing but his toong and belly left him, for he had wasted and offered up all to his owne Senfuality, &c. * Ctesippus, Son to Chabrias, was fo Prodigal, that after he had lauishly confumed all his goods:he fold the very stones of his Fathers Tomb, in the building whereof, the Athenians disburffed a thoufand Drachmaes, Cornelius Lentulus, fir-named Sura, a man of Noble race, but of very bad gouernmon-wealth, when he was Quastor. G. Cafar * Caligula furpaffed all Prodigals, in inuentions of profuse expence and dissolutions. He invented a new bootes, called calige, which kind of Bath, and divers fortes (neuer he was wont before (eene) of Viands and Banquetings: for hee would bathe himfelfe in curious fweet waters, and cause Pearles of inestimable value to be dissolved with Vinegers and fet before them that hee feafted, having his Breads and Meates all guilded ouer. Moreover, he coinmaunded light Gallies or Foifts to bee made (which were called Liburnian Foifts) of Cedar wood, having all their

ment, fpent ouer-vainely, and foolifhly

(beside his owne possessions) a great fum of Mony belonging to the Compoopes couered ouer with precious ftones. He had large and goodly ftones or Hot-houses, with rare perfumed ferned no chambers in them, where he would fir his expense and banquet in the night season ; but in and prodigathe day time, hee had variety of costlie lity. Arbors, Bowers, and Vines, abounding in the plenty of their fruits, wherein he would fit with his Conforts of Mufitions, fweetly finging among them. And when he pleased to take the open ayre, it was on the Sca-shoare of Campania. which was reputed (though beeing in Italy) to be the most pleasant and fertile ground in the whole World. As for his buildings and Houses of pleasure, abroad in the spacious fields, in groues, Woods, and other delightfull places : they exceeded all compaffe of reason, for hee coueted nothing more, then to effect fuch things as appeared to be impossible. Inbriefe, in lesse space then a yeare, he confumed immense riches. with the twenty seauen thousand times * H. S. being an hundred thousand smal Sestertiaes, which Tiberius had left him, a Coine aamounting to threefcore and featien maines, wher-Millions; and fifty thousand Crownes, allowing fortie fixe Sols to the crowne. But when Money began to fayle him, was marked and he waxed needy; he then gaue his with H.S.

mind to leuying of toules, and excessive fied 2.4th et tributes yea, hee exercifed rapines by dim. oc. diners meanes, beside calumnies and confiscations of his subjects goods.

The Emperour Nero, his Nephew, was not a jot inferiour to him in Prodi- 6. Cap. 50. gality, for hee observed no order or The prodigameafure in spending and giving : ac- lity of the Em counting them to be wretches and auaritions villaines, that kept any written Register of their expences. But contrariwife, he esteemed them to be honorable and magnanimious, that could foonest runne thorough their whole estate in fpending. He gaue to Tyridates (as a daily allowance) eight hundred thoufand Nummaes, valuing twenty thoufand Crownes of our Coyne, a matter almost incredible. He made a present of two goodly Pallaces ; the one to Menecrates, a Player on the Harpe; and the other to Spectallies, the Mirmyllon Fencer or Sword-Player . He would neuer ride abroad, or on any journey, Excettine without a thousand Chariots at the prodigatate, leaft. His Mules were thoude with not to any purpofe. Siluer.

Chap.21.

any other.

The nature of the coueretches of quality then

ore hafe

Famous for fine wool of crimfon coul lof ep.in Lib. d bel ludait. Cup. 13.

The Empemeales daily

A Prodigall defined by Vipian the Lawyer,

Lawes in ancient times ordayned against prodigall perfons,

Such a law would now digals of thefe

Siluer, and all his Mulets Saddles and furnitures, were of Cloth of * Canusium, a Towne in Apulia. Moreover, he neuer would weare any Garment twice.

Infephus, in his History of the lewes warres, maketh mention of the prodigalitie of the Emperor Vitellius; who helde the Empire no longer then eight months and fine dayes . If his life had beene of any longer continuance (faith Iolephu) I beleene, that the whole Empire could not have fuffifed his excesse and produgality. This Vitellius was fo diffolute and prodigall, that he would have foure feueral meales each day allowed him; which he thus deuided, into Breake-fast, Dinner, Supper, and Collation. At fuch time as hee came to Rome, his Brother made him a Supper, whereat hee was ferued with two thousand daintie and rare Fishes, and 20 feauen thousand as delicate Fowles and Birdes . Which pompe he exceeded in another Feast, of more excessive and fumptuous cost; which he made at the dedication of the ground plot, that (for the admirable greatnesse thereof) hee called the Shield of Minerua.

A Prodigall (faith Vipian, in the first law ff. de cura. fario) is he that hath no time or end of his fpending : but feattereth 3 and consumeth his goods beyond sence or reason, and is tearmed in Greeke actores, because that hee looseth himselfe, and wasteth his patrimony. Our grave and worthy fore-fathers, did establish Lawes against spend-thriftes and prodigalles. Solon, the famous Grecian, ordayned, that they should be made infamous. The Areopagites and criminal ludges of Athens, appealed prodigal persons in judgment, and being proued and continced for fuch offendours, were punished accordingly.

The Auncients, called the ten men, prohibited by their lawes, that prodigals should have the government of their owne goods, but all fuch authoritie was taken from them : and a Guardian or Ouer-feer was appointed the by the Judge, as is to be seene in the law Julianus . ff . de cura furio. Therefore they could not fell or alienate (by any valuable meanes) their Lands or goods, neither make any transport of them : moreouer, they were disabled by the Law, of making any wils or Testaments, as appeareth plainly in the Law . Is eui bonis. F. de verb. obliga. Whereupon, they were compared by the Iurisconsultes, to madde men; Seililet quod furiosum exitum pariat prodiga-

And as for the paine and punishment due to wait-full spend-thrifts, the Grecians had a law, whereby it was especially ordained, that who focuer confirmed his patrimony lauishly; he might not be per-mitted Buriall in the Graue of his Father, but abroade, among fuch as were strangers and vnknowne. The Law of the twelue Tables, interdicted all prodigall persons, from any administration of their owne goods; and in the end, all the Lenders (by commaund of the ludges) might let them have no more monies, on pawnes or otherwise : but Suruayers or Comptroullers were fet ouer them, according to the example and order for mad men or Lunaticks, and all mannaging of their owne affayres, was also prohibited them in this forme or manner. Quando bonatua paterna anitaque nequitia disperdis, liberosque tuos ad egestatem perducis 30b eam rem tibi ea re commercioque | Cap.5. interdico. In this very manner, 2. Pompeius, Pretor, perceiuing that Q. Fabius, (Sonne ro 2. Fabius the Great, firnamed Allobrogicus, because he conquered the * Allobroges, and Bituilus, Captaine and Duke, or King (as some write) of the * Aluernes) was extraordinarily diffolute and prodigall in his expences: deprined him of his Fathers Lands and goods. For every one pittied, and much lamented, to fee fo much Gold and Siluer wasted in lewdnesse and luxurie; which rather should have supported the fplendour and Nobilitie, of fo glorious a race and Family, as were the Fabij.

Dion writeth, that the Emperor Tiberius did fet a Tutour, ouer a certaine Senatour, who was void of all good gouernement to order him, as if he had beene his pupill. Iouianus Pontanus, in his Booke of Bounty or Liberallity, maketh a question to wit : which of the two, either the prodigall person, or the auaritious, is worst and most pernitious? ralit. Whereunto, himfelfe maketh answere thus . This doubt (faith he) is very eafi y discided . For first of all , the Prodigall person is benificiall and profitable to many, on whom he bestoweth his goodes bountsfully : whereas the couetous Mifer is not commedious to him-felfe , but maketh

Lexandrin. in

The law of

Valerius Max imus in Lib.

16. Booke of his Histories, calleth him Epimanes, that is to fay, mad, or vareasona-

Ntigonus, King of Syria , fir-named Epiphanes, that is to fay, Famous or illustrious, having heard recitall delinered of the magnificent Triumphe, made by the Confull Paulus Æmylius, for the victory which he won against the Macedonians, when Perfeus their King was taken Prifoner: he conceined fuch enny and difdaine thereat, that in meere vanity and arrogancy, hee refolued to make another Triumphe, that should farre excell and goe beyond the Confuls. Vpon

Of Antigonus Epiphanes.

vee of his goodes, as if he had them not, at least-wife very paringly. He will not eate halfe Comuch, as is needfull for the meere maintenance of his owne life : which makes him looke with a wanne, pale, and meager complection. In the fecond place, the Prodigall gineth liberally, and guiftes paffe from him with a free generous, and good heart: especially, when he exceedeth not the bounds of reason, and his gifts are given to some honest and commendable purpole. But the couetous mans gifts are quite contrary, with a griple and pinching heart, and a villaines disposition. Moreover, as the greedy wretch encreafeth his flore day by day; even fo doth the Prodigall change his naturall inclination and manner of life, as well by course of time, as age drawing on him: which at length letteth him know that he must needs become poore, and fall into want . Whereby many times it comes to paffe, that his manners grow to better reformation then before, and yeares diminishing his lausshnesse: by little and little he recovereth health and (trength againe. Whereas (on the contrary) Auarice is an enerlasting and incurable difease. By which reasons it appeareth, that couctous and auaritious Mifers.

are of a more vile, base, and abject con-

CHAP. XXI.

The Magnificent Triumphe of Antigonus

Epiphanes, made in despight of the Con-full Paulus Æmylius his Triumphe, for his victory obtained against the Macedition; then those that be prodigall.

knowne throughout his Kingdome. that on such a day, as he purposely appointed the would be in person at Daphneia, a Citty of Afia, where wonderfull sports and delights were to be performed. Which caused, that not onely the people of Greece, but infinite numbers also (from other Regions) repayred thither; and the order of the royall intended spectacle began in this man-First of all; as the formost leaders to The order & the famous troups following, marched proceeding in fine thousand young men, supposed to royal triumph

this occasion, hee made it publiquelie bee the very Gallantest Spirits in all Greece, they being armed according to the Romaine manner. After them followed as many of Mysia, armed as the Custome of their owne Countrey required : beeing purfued by three thoufand Thracians, and fine thousand Galatians, and they were feconded with many other, who, because they carried certaine Bucklers or Targets of Silver, were fir-named * Argyrapides. Next vn-hold thefe to thefe, marched twenty fine rankes of warrours to Gladiatores, Sworders, or Fencers, and be of the life fubfequently a thoufand knights, whose Horses were all barbed and caparaso. ned with Gold and Silver, and each of rhem a Garland of Gold on his head. After them followed another thousand Knights, who were tearmed Fellowes! or Companions, and with them another company, that were called Friends Fellows, comto the King : who likewife had a thou- panions, and fand Noblemen following them, and a the King. thousand other braue Knights, called 40 the Kings Band. In the next place, marched fifteene hundred Knights armed al guilt with Armor, ouer which Armor, each man did weare a military Roab or Mantle, embroydered all with Gold & Silver, and enriched with many cofflie Figures of Beaftes. Then followed an hundred Chariots, each one drawne by

One wonder full fumptuous Charior, The spare drawn by ten Elephants, followed next, Chariot that being purfued by fixe and thirty other was to ferme Elephants; befide eight hundred gallant the King whe he pleafed, Youths, wearing Garlands or Crowns of Golde on their heads, embellished with many precious stones, and then followed a thousand fat Oxen, and 800.

V v v 2

fixe Horses, and forty other Chariots.

each drawne by foure Horses.

Memory con-

thy deeds, to example o-beautifie the

* A place for all kindes of or bodie.

teeth of Indian Elephants, carryed by Men, purposely thereto appointed. After these, were borne aloft, an infinite number of Statues and Images, not onely of Gods, but of Damons likewife, and of many men, that had beene most excellent in any profession whatfocuer, which Images were attired in rich Garments of Gold and Silver, befide other coftly deckings of vnualua-ble Stones and Iewels. And at each Sta tues feete, hung a little Tablet of Gold, wherein was engrauen the Name, Titles, and honourable actions, that had beene performed by the party whom the figure expressed, and for whose sake it was thus dignified. Other Images were carried alfo; as of Day, Night, Heauen, Morning and Noone, beside an infinite number of Vessels of Gold 20 and Siluer, reputed to be of inestimable worth, al which were carried by Slaues and Bond-men. Then followed fixe hundred Pages, attending on the King, all cloathed in The Kings Pages & chief Ladies to Golds next to whom, came two hundred Ladies, each bearing a golden Bottle in her hand, casting perfumes and fweet waters enery way about her : On them attended fifty Litters of Silver, 30 and as many more of Gold, wherein fate fourescore other Ladies, attyred in most sumpenous manner, exceeding al poffibility of expression. This Triumph continued thirty daies, during which time, Antigonus caused divers kindes of Playes and sports to be exercised, and al this while, it was lawfull for any, that were so minded or pleased, to enter into the publique * Gymnasium, and there to annoint himselfe with fifteene sortes of viguents, as of Saffron, Spicknard, Cinamon, Telin, Amazacin, Lillies, &c. Beside, in fundry places, were prepared aboue a thousand and fine hundred Tables, covered most royally, with all freely feede, without any exception.

CHAP. XXII.

That Gold and Silver were not in any frequent vfe, among our reverent Aunce-Stours: And at what time they began to be imployed more largely. Alfo, what de--uifes were found out by Timotheus the Athenian, and Condalus, Captaine to Maufolus, for the gaining of Mony.

HE vse of those Mettals, called Golde and Silver, which werfound in Thrace, neere to the River * Pangaus; was very rare and strange among our fore-fathers. For River receithe Lacedemonians, beeing defirous to guilde the Image or Statue of Apollo* Amycleus : made diligent fearch thorow all Greece, and yet could not finde any Gold: And therefore they were constrained, to fend and buy some of Croefus, King of Lydia. Hiero, the Tyrant of Syracula, having likewife vowed to dedicate a Table of Gold, to Apollo Delphiem, caused search to be made throughout Greece and Italie, without finding any : nor euer had done, but of * Architeles the Corinthian, who (by little and little) in a long space had got it together. The people of * Phocis, having afterward facked the Temple of De phos, and Alexander carrying thence the prey or booty into Asia: the vie of Gold began so fast to encrease, that divers Vesselles were made thereof, even from fuch as they washed their handes in , to them that they vied in the Kitchin. The The first flam first stamp that euer was beaten vppon | ping. Gold Coine, was at Rome, in the Temple of Scipio the Affricane.

The Athenians making long warres against the people of * Olynthus; Mony A City of beganne to faile very greatly in the Armie which the Souldiours perceiuing, try of Athens. and with what difficultie it was to bee expected from Athens : they entered into a mutinie or tumult, for appealing whereof, Timotheus, there Captaine, bethought himfelfe of a new and fudden deuised meanes. Hauing first covenanted and agreed with fuch MerLib.7.Cap.9.

drift in Polit

Condatus his prefent fupply of mony, by a politique Orațio made

* He is called

Of Truth and Lying.

The deuise of Timotheus to pay his Soul-diours,

Chap.24.

chants, as were (in this case) to fit and furnish him , vppon this faithfull promife, of exchange and repaiment when time better serued: he caused Mony of Copper to be made, wherewith he paied his Souldiours. And within no long while after, when Mony of Siluer was fent from Athens; he not onely fatisfied the Marchants & Victualers liberally: but also received in all the Copper | 10 Coyne againe, and gaue due restitution for it in Siluer. Aristotle writeth in his Pollitiques, that Condalus, Captaine to Maufolus,

King of Caria, being in Lycia(a Province of the Lesser Afia, scituate betweene

Pamphylia and Caria) with an Armie, andwant of Mony growing greatlica-his mind, and to his no little greefe, he a Commission, which hee had (that inflant) received from his King, and which hee likewife knew, could not chusebut be greatly offensive to them.

For King Maufolus (qouth hee) com-maundeth, that all the Lycians must be presently shauen, and all their goodlie long Lockes be powled from their Heades , to be fent vnto him into Ca-strange kinde of Apparrell made of them, in honour of the King of Perpretending much compassion towardes them in this case; further added. That if they would follow his councell, he would finde out a meanes, whereby, not onely their faire Haire should bee fo be answered, without cutting them off in any fuch manner. Whereunto the Lycians auniwered, that they would gladly follow his direction in all things;

prouided, that their Lockes of Haire might be kept from defacing . Condalus then aduifed them, to prepare Money faued; but the Kinges intent fhould al- 50

sia: because hee will have a new and 40

Condalus continuing on his speech, mong them : hee invented a meanes. though some-what ridiculous, yet well 20 auhiwering to his owne expectation. He knew very perfectly, that the people of Lycia tooke delight (about all thinges elfe) to weare their lockes of Haire very long: Whereupon, he called diners of the chiefest persons of that to the Lycians Province to him, and faide vnto them, after this manner. That much against among them (appointing a round and indifferent fumme, which they might gather by the poule, eyther more or leffe, according as their Lockes were in tafhion) and then to fend that Money into Greece, where plenty of fuch haire he would eafily help them to, and afterward fend it to King Maufolms, and caufe it to bee received, as if it were their owne. The Lycians, with all possible Folly account haft that might be vsed, leuyed such a teth nothing deare, so it Maffe of Mony together; as (without felfebe fatisany great dicultie) would have bought them goodly Perriwigs; yea, if they had been all of Gold. Which fumme of Money they delinered to Condalus, who, feigning as if he fent it into Greece; discharged all his Souldiours wants there with, and yet no way displeased the people.

CHAP. XXIII.

What a commendable thing it is, evermore to speake the truth; And what a detestawas constrained to acquaint them with 30 ble vice lying is, with many examples concerning each Argument.

Pimenides the Philopher was asked by the Rhodians, what thing that Vertue was, which Men cald Truth? where to he aunswered.

Truth is that thing , whereof (more then al other) the Gods doe make profession and answere conthe vertue thereof heateth the Heauens; cerning truth illuminateth the Earth : maintaineth Iu-Stice : gowerneth the Common-wealth, and cannot endure any wicked thing neer it, but maketh all doubtfull matters to bee cleare and apparant.

The Corinthians also demanded of Chilo the Philosopher, what this Truth was ? And he replyed . It is an affured chilo his an-Gage, which never diminisheth it felfe: A swere of truth Buckler or Shielde, that never can bee pier- to the Corinced thorough : A time, wwhich never is troubled in it felfe : An Armie , neuer daunted or dismaied : A Floure, that never possible diversity of precious dainties and delicates, where every man might (by fome) Ar-

Epimenides his

A Promontory of Threet, whereof the

uted name,

A Citty of

Laconia, when lux were

try of Greece,

Pretended pitty is often-times the greler, in matter of no meane

An excelleni observation of the power

Difference

betweene the

Diversity of qualitic of answer to the

erning truth

Philosopher.

reth Fortune : And a Hauen , wherein no Man Shall ever Suffer perill . The Lacedemonians likewife entreated Anaxarchus the Philosopher, to resolue them what Truth was, and he made answere . It is a perpetuall health and welfare; A life with out ending ; A Sirope that healeth all infirmities ; A Sunne alwaies (hining ; A Moon that neuer suffereth Eclipse; An Hearbe ener growing ; A Gate neuer fout against any; And a iourney, wherein no Man can waxe weary. Æschines also said of Truth. It is a vertue, without which, all strength is feeble and infirme : Iustice bloody : Humility a Traytreffe; Patience counterfeit; Chastity vaine ; Liberty a Prisoner; and Piety Superfluous. And another Philosopher, beeing demaunded by the be; gane them this answere. Truth is the Center, wherein all thinges doe rest;

The Emperor flus triumphing ouer Mark Anthonie and Cleopatra.

Spartianus his report of Pam philus the fafadeth or withereth: A Sea, that never fea-Romaines, what he thought Truth to The Sea-mans Card, whereby all the Marri-uers doe gouerne themselues ; That Wisedome, which is the quide and directer to all Men; Aheight, on the top whereof is all fulnesse of repose; And a light, whereby the whole world is illumined.

The Emperour Angustus, in the Triumphe which he made of Marke Anthony and Cleopatra; brought with him to Rome a Priest of Ægypt, aged three-score yeares, who in all the daies of his life, had never told any lye. In regard whereof, the Senate prefently ordained, that he should be made free, and created Great Priest : Alfo, that a Statue should be erected for him, and placed among those of the most renowmed me of all the Ancients. Spartianus relateth an example much dissemblable from this last, and saith. In the time of the Emperor Claudius, there died a Man in Rome, named Pamphylus, who (as it was most enidently instified) never told any matter of truth in all his life time; but evermore had his chiefe delight in lying, which caused the Emperour to giue commaund, that no Graue should be graunted to his body: but his goods were confiscated his House ruined, and his Wife and Children banished out of Rome, to the end, that no memorie might remain in the Commonwealth, of fuch a venomous Beaft. At the time when these two notable effects hapned, the Romaines were Mortall enemies to the Ægyptians, whereby may worthilie be observed how wonderful the power of truth is : in regard that the Romaines would advance a Statue, in the honour of their enemy, onely because he was a Man of truth, and deprive their Cittieborn son of a Sepulcher, because he was fuch a notorious Lyer. It is no way to be doubted, but that a true man may freely walke, and practife in all places, without feare of being accused by any perfon.He may alfo (in fafetie & dreadleffe) reprehend any Lyer, and speake Lyer. boldly in face of all the world, going alwaies with an erected and dauntlesse countenance. But the Lyer is fled of all Men, like to a noyfome pestilence, and fo long as hee lineth; yea, after death likewise, he is infamous to all Posterity. His reward and wages, is, that if hee chance to speake truth, no man wil beleeue him : For, by being fo knowne a Lyer, truth (in his mouth) standeth alwaies suspected.

CHAP. XXIIII.

What a benefit the Invention of Letters was unto man : Who fir st found out and deui-Sed them. Of the Hebrue Charracters & what fignification they have of them-(elues, differing from all other Letters else in any Nation.

F those men may justly & commendation, that were the first deuisers of liberall and mechanical Arts, and they likewife, & commendation, that merit, account of the

that found out divers Doctrines and enstructions nor onely appertaining to the rule and direction of the Soule, but likewise for bodily vse and behaulour: how much more great and especiall honor then is due to him, that was the first Inventer and deuiser of Letters ? Those incomparable Instruments, which have bin the certaine guards and conferuers, of all other inventions whatfoeuer : for without them, not any denife could haue been preferued, wherero we may adde moreouer, that Letters haue made Men halfe immortall.

The power and prerogaters, and wha hath enfued (by their meanes) from times of An-

No memory

had remained but by Letters, for elfe.

all precedent

accidents had bin vtterly

Diuerfity of opinions a-uention of

Pliny. in Lib.7.

Cadenus Cap-taine of the Phanitions, brought Ler-

ing then but fixteene in ters into

Chap. 24.

gatine, that matters of a thousand yeares past, are (by them) so familiarly presented vnto vs; as if there had beene no distance or deuision of time. By them are apprehended all kindes of Disciplines. They make knowne to men of this instant age, whatfoeuer our graue fore-goers learned and made vse off, or any famous actions by them perfourmed : And those thinges which these dayes affoord (as deserving future knowledge) by them, are left as Legacies to vtmost posteritie. They thew and represent vnto the eye, matters once done, euen as if they were in continuall action, and as full of life in the infant, as in the precedent : which neuer could have beene done, if Letters hadde neuer beene deuised . For neither Plato, Aristotle, nor a great number of other 20 wife Philosophers, had carried such reputation with vs, as now they doe but onely by their facred meanes. For conclusion then, we may very well fay that the onely best and greatest thing (among all humaine inuentions) was that of Lerters. Whofoeuer is doubtfull, or maketh any question in this case; let him but reade and confider what is left written to vs, whereby he shall well perceine: that | 20 all those famous memories and antiquities, had beene vtterly loft, and no record remained of them, but onely by Letters.

Such hath bin their power and prero-

Seeing then, that they are the cause of so great a happinesse, reason (in meere Inflice) requireth, that we hould know, to whom wee are beholding for them And yet I finde it to bee a matter of no meane difficultie, because opinions are fo various and doubtfull in this cafe. The Gentiles doe much difagree heerein with our Christians, and Christians also have not well concorded together . Pliny fetteth downe many opinions, and then addeth his owne; which (in my judgement) commeth much neerer to truth then the other. First of all he faith, that Letters were found out by the Affirians in Affiria : but others doe affirme that Mercury founde them first in Egypt . Some (be-side) are of the minde, that the Pelagians brought them into Italy; or elfe that they were carried into Greece by the Phanitiaus, with Cadmus, who was their Captaine, who had no more of them then. but fixteene in number : but in the warre of Troy, Palamedes added foure more vnto them. After Plimes report of all these, and some opinions beside, he conclude the according to his owne judgement : That Letters were eternall, which is as much to fay, that they had beene from the beginning of the world.

Now, concerning the bringing of Letters into Greece by the Phanittans, ans, bringing Herodotus and divers others doe affirme it. The Egiptians also doe make their vaunt, that the invention of Artes and Letters came first from them . Diodorus Sten us is of the minde, that Mercury founde them out in Egipt . Howbeit, the fame Diodorus faith in his 4. Booke, that some are of opinion, that the Etheopians had Letters first of all, and that the Egiptians received their first vse of Letters from them Vpon this Argument. there are divers other ; as well lewes as Christians, who doe plainly auouch, that Moyles aid be the first finder out of Letters in the world : for he was much more an- inuenter of cient, then any letters or writings among the Gentiles, because the same Cadmus (of whom we have formerly fpoken, and that he should bring Letters into Greece) lined in the time of Othoniell , Duke and Othoniell, Captaine of Ifraell, and raigned forty featien years, after that the written lawes Ifraelli were given to Moyfes, as is enidently prootted, and lo not a home and a la

They that are of this opinion (anione whom were Eupolemus and Artabanus, Ethnique Historians) thog maintaine, that the Egiptians learned Letters of Moyfes, and that they galle them first to the people of Phantia, from whence (afterward) Cadmus transported themanto Greece. The fore named Artabanus instifieth, that the man, named Mercurius or Mereary (whom al do affirme to have taught Letters in Egipti) was cherfes; but called Mercurius by the Egiptians . Philo the lew a man of great authority, maketh Letters to be more anneient; for he faith, that they were found out by Abraham in But the truth is, that they were invented by Adam, or (at least) by his Sonnes, or Sonnes Sonnes, in the first age of the world, and before the Floud. Then were they conferued to Noah and his Successors, even to the comming of Abraham , and fo afterward to Moyles : And this is the judgement and opinion of S. Augustine. More ouer, this is yet further verified, by the authoritie of 10-18. de Cinii. Dei.

Duke and Captaine of

The Egipti-Letters of Moyfes called the Egiptians

first inventers

Such

The Authors

Originall and racters and

Hierom, in Pre

Letters.

Prefernation

Adam and his

3.950

The flock of

Heber loft not their first lan-

Eufebius in lib.

z. de Preparat.

Phila the Idw

and diuers o thers decei-ued in their guage.

of Letrers fro

Sonnes to tofep, in Lib. 1. fephus, in Laying; That the Nephewes of de Antiquit. Adam, the Sonnes of Seth, made two Collombes, the one of Stone, and the other of Earth, whereon they wrote and insculpted all the Artes. He also affirmeth', that himselfe had seene one of those Pillers in Syria

We finde also, that Saint Inde the Apostle, alleadged in one of his Epifiles, the Booke of Enoch, which was before the Flood. So then, it is not to be doubted, but that Adam and his Sonnes (who were all fo wife, and had intelligence in fo many thinges) were the onely first Inventer of Letters. And that Noah alfo, who was both lettered and learned, preferred them with him in the Arke. Howbeit, that afterward, in the confusion of Tongues, which happened at the building of the Tower 20 of Babell: it might come to passe, that the greater part of the W orld lost the knowledge of those Letters, which remained onely in the Family of Heber, of whom (afterward) the Hebrues defcended, who, as we have alreadie faid, loft not their first Language. Saint Aueustine auoucheth as much, in his book before alleadged the like doth Eulehius alfo, in his first Booke of the Euangelicall preparation, and the greater part of the learnedst men of our times.

Wherefore Phile, and fuch befide him, as supposed, that Meyfes was the Inuenter of Letters swere greatly deceiusd in their owne imaginations: becanfelt is a matter most notorious, that the Bookes and Histories written by Moyfes were not the first before all other, por before the Philosophy and Wisedome of the Greekes, as Saint Augustine prooueth fufficiently in the faide Booke; and Infephus alfo, against Appion the famous Grammarian of Agypt and likewife Eufebius and lustine Martire. He and they should have concluded then, that Letters were before the time of Moyles ; because we finde it written that Moyfes learned in Ægypt, all the Arts and Sciences of the Ægyptians, which he could not have doone, except there had beene Letters before. And yet we know moreouer, that there were Hierogliphicall Figures, whereby (as we formerly prooued in the first Booke) they had understanding of one anothers mind.

We will therefore fet downe our resolue, that Letters were from the dayes of Adam, and afterward, that Abraham had knowledge of them in Syria: and thence it enfued, that Plinie varried in so many opinions before related. It thall be needleffe therefore, to make any further curious fearch, as touching the Originall and causes of Charracters and Letters : because they may be made according to any mans mind or will; euen as now-adaics wee fee, that Ciphers, Figures, or what elfe, are formed; after the fancy of the Wrtter or Deuiser, and sometimes signes or shapes in stead of Letters.

So faith Saint Hierome, in his Prologue before the Booke of the Lawes, fat.Lib. de Leg. and that when Efdras, the great Scribe and Doctour of the Law, re-writ and restored them againe : hee found new Charracters or formes of Letters, whereof the lewes did make, vie to the time of Saint Hierome, euen as yet they doe to these dayes of ours. And those Hebrue Letters or Charracters , have a Secret propriety | not incident to the Hebrew Let Letters of any other Nation: for the ters have a voyce, found, or name of each one of them, yeildeth a fignification of some thing elfe belide.

The first Letter, which is tearmed Alegh, doth fignify Discipline. The fecond, named Beth, fignifyeth a House. Gymell, which is another Letter, relaterh replenishing, or aboundance. And Daleth, Tables or Bookes . All the reft of the Letters, doe interpret fome one thing or other which I forbeare to fpeake of, to amove prolixitie. Such as are more curious Inquitours into these occasions : let them read Eufeblus, in his first Booke, De Preparatione Enangelica.

Vicinities of the Control of A o de la comilia de bacelos :

Chap.25. Of writing, before Paper was known. 789

How our Auncients wrote, and wherean. before the invention of Paper, and with what Instrument. How Paper and Parchment were first found out, and by whom.

whereon our first Fathers

E haue spoken briefelv in fay fomewhat, of the matter whereon our fore-fathers vied to write. Now, albeit wee cannot exactly fet downe, what it was that our first Fathers (in the first Age, and before the Flood) did write vpon, as being a cafe very doubtfull; to wit, whether then they had the vie of Letters, although we have made proofe thereof by the authority of Iofephus, affifted by fome other reasons befide:yet it euidently appears(according to the generall judgement of Writers) [3 that fuch as wrote in those elder times, had not, neither knew what Paper was; but onely did write on Leaues of the Palme or Date Tree, from whence followed the common word (yet vsed) the Leaues or Leafes of Bookes. Afterward they wrote vpon other Leaues of Trees, but principally fuch as came eafielt from each Tree: as the Birche, the Platane, the Ash, and the Elme, From these Trees they tooke the inner-most Rinde, which groweth betweene the Wood and the thicke blacke Barke, and these foft skinnes being subtillie smoothed and plained : of them they formed the Leaues of their Bookes, ioyning them arteficially one within another, that they might the more firmely hold together. And because (in those reuerend daies) the Latines tearmed those inner-most Rindes of Trees, by the Name of Libri: it thence enfued, that they gaue the Title of Liber to one of their Bookes, though afterward they refused all further vie of those meanes.

Within some while after, they found out another helpe for Writing, which was vpon Places of Lead, ingeniouslie made thin and plyant : whereof, fome Plates of lead Men (that were more curious and fpe- made apt to culariue) made likewise Collombes or Pillers, as well as Bookes, whereon they registred all publique actions; Those Ancient Fathers, found our yet another manner of Writing, which was on Linnen Cloath, finoothed and pollished with a certain kind of colour. Linnen cloth But heere we are to observe, that they a colour. vied not then to write with Pennes; write on. but with a little Cane or Reede, which yet is called by vs (as then) in Latine Calamu, and wherewith fome doe ftill vie Reeds.

Afrerward, another kinde of Paper was denifed to write vpon, which they made of divers little Shrubs of Trees, cald by them Papers : by reason of anothur addition thereto, to wit; of a certaine kind of Rushes, growing ordinarily in the Moores and Marithes of Ny. lus, and the name of this Rush in Latine, is called * Papyrus. Pliny faith, that there is yet growing in Syria, neere to the Ri-ure Euphrates, certaine Papers or Ru-fishes, that haue fundry little Leaues, groundes! Rindes, or Skinnes, growing naturally betweene the Pith and Barke: which they made beeing cunningly drawne our with the leaus to write point of a needle, and intermedled with of the first paa kinde of Glue, made of Meale (verie per was made finely fearced or boulted) and tempe-and now it is red with boyling Water and Vineger; the paper. Paper is made thereof, apt and very Prima the 12, 2 good to write vpon. But that skinne [49, 11.12. which is neerest to the Pith, maketh the best and smoothest Paper: whereby we may gather, that according to the forts and differences : fo are the Papers dinerfly named. And in regard that this Reede, Rufh, or little Shrub, was named Papyrus; the Name of Paper hath fo continued, and was likewife impoled on those kinds of Paper, which were (fince then) made of Shreds, rags, and smallest peeces of Linnen Cloath, past all kind of service, and fir for no o. ther vie.

Mareus Varro faith, that the first Inuention of making Leaues of Paper, ei- Mar. Varro, in ther of Shrubs, Rushes, or otherwise: Lib.7. was found out in the time of Alexander the Great, and at such time also, as the Cittie of Alexandria was first founded. Notwithstanding, Pliny prooueth it Iofephus cont.

Moyfes learnd the Arts of the Egiptians to write.

CHAP, XXV.

the precedent Chapter, concerning the invention of Letters : it now remaineth, that we should ward peele or rinde of a

Parch-mene written on, before our kindes of Pa-

*That oner-

Plin in Lib. 12. Cap. 9. Iofephus.in Lib. 12.de Antiquit much more auncient, by those Bookes which Cnews Terentius found, by digging in one of his Inheritances, which Books had formerly belonged to Numa Pompilliss, King of Rome, and had beene hidden in a Temple, where himselfe was buried, and the leaves of those Bookes were made of the faid Rushes or shrubbes. It is held for a certainty, that Numa lived long time before Alexander. And yet Titus Liusus reporteth otherwise of this Tomber affirming that two fuch Tombs were found by L. Patilius . Lattantius and Pluturch doe heerein agree with Titus Linius : and yet notwithstanding the intention of Pliny is most approued.

Now concerning the word Carta, or Charta, fome doe holde, that this name came of a Citty, scituated neere to Tyre, which was called Charta, or Cartha; whence Dide (altring the name) called it *A famous afterward * Carthage. I read alfo, that those reuerend men of former times, did write on waxed Tablet-leaues, made thin finooth and flippery: they likewise formed their letters, with sharpe pointed Bodkins or Punchions, which they tearmed Table-Pinnes, but others called the Stiles, whereon, he that (by expertnesse) wrote most perfect, was faid to haue a 30 good flile in writing, derining the worde from the instrument, and not by the integritie in Art or method.

Moreover, it is to be noated, that before fuch Paper (as we vie to write on) was invented : an auncient custome was observed, (without seeing any other help or meanes) to write onely vpon Parch-ment, which they made of Sheeps Skins, whereof Herodoiss maketh relation. The invention thereof is attributed (by Mareus Varro) to the people that inhabited the Country of Pergamus, or Pergama, who had (at that time) * Eumenes to be their King; where-vpon (in Latine) it bare the name of Pergamenum, which we do com monly call Parchment. And whereas in Latine alfo, it was called Membrana: yet it appeareth to take name of the Inuenter. Notwithstanding, in my judgment, fuch skinnes were written on long before the time affigned by Varro; mentioned (after him) in like manner by Plim : because Tosephus writeth, that the Books of the Hebrewes (which were long before the dayes of Eumenes) and many other Bookes beside, were written on fuch Skinnes .

In like manner, when he declareth, Ptolomic Phile that Eleazer, Prince of the Prieftes, fent delphus, and the Bookes of the facred Scriptures to the 72. Inter-Ptolemeus Philadelphus, with the feauenty two Interpreters, that they might bee translated out of the Hebrew tongue into Greeke, he faith; King Ptolomy was amazed, and wondred very much, at the invenious conjunction of those Skinnes of Parchment . Whereby may be obserued that the lines written on Parchment. were much more eafily perfourmed, and of longer continuance, then on any other Parthment of Skinnes or Leaues whatfoeuer, althogh they were of greater antiquity. In re-gard whereof, vie of Parchment neuer failed, neither euer will, especially for serious seruices : albeit, the Paper which is now in vie among vs, perhaps is easier and cheaper to be had, and may better fit the passage of infinite Letters, which ordinarily are entercourfed youn all oc-

Having thus farre proceeded in difcourse, concerning the first invention of Letters, Paper, Parchment and writing: Concerning me thinkes, I should very much forget the incomparable Art of my selfe, if the famous Art of Printing Printing. should passe vnspoken of, whereby so many Bookes are Imprinted, with no meane expedition, and which I doe ingeniously confesse, to be the best inuention in the world. By one Authour, the deuiser therof is said to be an Allemaigne or Germaine, of the Citty of Mentz, naor Germaine, of the Citty of Mentz, na-med Iohn Faustus, (although Po'idore Vir-gill doe call him Peter) yet others tearmed out, and y him John Cuthemberg, confessing him alfo to be a Germaine, and a Knight, and that the first impression of any Booke, was in the yeare of our Lord, 1453.

cafions, and necessitie of haft-

About which time also, or soone after (as Volateranus affirmeth) this worthy Science was brought into Italy by two Brethren, named Conrades, printing first in Rome, and in the house of the Maximes: where, the first Booke that ever was prin- The first ted, was S. Augustine de Cinitate Dei, & Bookes prin next, the divine Institutions of Lattantius Firmianus . Exemplaries of them were 1465. not long fince (and I thinke yet are) in the Library of the most reuerend Bishop of Sarne, the Lord Lucaouico Gomes, a Spaniard, a man of finguler learning, being Auditour of Rona, Regent of the Penetentiarie, and Referendarie of both the Chap.25. Of writing, before Paper was known.

Printing be-gan in Venice in the yeare 1 4 8 3.

Signatures. After that, Nicholas Gerfon, being a Frenchman, honoured Venice therewith, in the time of Duke Augustine Barbarigo . And, as an invention of fuch merit could not be concealed; fo succeeded it to many Countries, and by divers worthy men, who befide their Art of Printing; were learned and indicious Correcters of errours and falfifications, eafily ouer-flipped by vnskilful worke-men. Among these men of noat, are especially commended, Aldus Manutius at Venice, who made a fresh restoring of the Latine tongue : Francis Priscianez, at Kome : Baldus Colinetus, Frobenius and Oporinus, at Bafile : Sebastian Gryphinis at Lyons : Robert Stephanus at Paris and Ant. werpe; and William Caxton at London in England, besides many more, whose names I omit, for breuity.

Printing was the onely meanes to moke learned

Especial men

excellent in

Printing, in

ly committed in the writing of Bookes, which (by Printing) haue beene

n objection against the er-general ing, where much hur

By these famous helpes, and furtherers of Learning, a number of Bookes hidden, obscured and veterly lost (asit were) received fresh life and light again; to the no meane enftruction and benefit of many men, whole learning hath made it felfe manifelt (onely by the meanes of Printing) througout all Christendome, yea, and elfe-where : whereas, before fo facred an affiltant was inuented; much greater paine and labour was imployed; of true forme and fathion, wheref curtowhereof the fruit could neuer be fo generall, or any fuch perfection appeare in Learning. And, if we doe graunt, that this deuise was not the chiefe and principall cause: yet affuredly (I am of the mind) it was the very greatest and most absolute; because, with much lesse paine and labour, Bookes (full of imperfections) haue beene found to be corrected. and purged from those macculations. blots, and blemishes, which ordinarilie doe attend on writing. Againe, if writ-ten corrected Copies had past from som one or two : yet they were fo rare to come by, and not to be perufed by many earnest and desirous mindes; that it hindered much forward endeuour, which this vniuerfality hath liberally friended. But, to speake truely, since immeasurable Licence tooke hold of Imprinting Bookes, especially of Fables and fruitleffe labours; it hath beene judged by fome (yet none of meanest wisedome)

that Printing might well have beene spared from so general knowledge, or neuer beene ysed at all; rather then such idle toyes should passe the Presse, to the preuarication and impoyfoning of divers good minds, especially the younger fort, who rather affect fuch vaine denifes, then fludies much more commendable, and fitting for them.

But leaving further speech of Printing; Hand-writing must not bee condemned, having (in these dayes) attay- fection there ned to more intire perfection, then ever of in thele was knowne in former times. Whereof Quintillian hath gluen good rules, well deferuing observation ; likewise the learned Erajmus, in his Booke of good and true pronounciation . And heerein Erafmus must be my directour , because he faith : Blinde men haue beene instructed ver pro. the good writing. For they had Tables made of Porphirie, Bone, or of some Mettall, wherein were insculpted the let. ters of A.B.C.D.E. &c. Then the blinde partie tooke fome that peninted write very Inftrument in his hand (made apr and a priferely, and ble to vie impression, yet with eafe and facilitie) and his hand being guided by its. the enftructers : vie, and practife framed a shape of each Letter in the blinde mans marie acquaintaince (by heed and attention) gaue an Image, and of enery Letter, really in his memory, which afterward he could (with ease) forme vpon the Table, or any thing elfe of respect, whereto his minde flood most affected . Wherin might appeare some defect or impediment, but yet it would be well made, and indifferently leageable. After which often experimented proof, he may write vpon Paper, in true order and Method: perfection, or any elfe, that (blind folded) hal make vie thereof, concerning any matter than best fitteth his fantasie

CHAP

The first Li-

mong the He-

The Chalde-

the Hebrues

The Prophet

Efdras re-writ

the Bookes.

according to the dumber

Alphabet.

of the Hebrue

Inde.Cap. 1.14.

ans burned all

CHAP, XXVI.

Of the first Libraries in the world : As also, what Pictures and Portraitures of memorable men, were obsequiously preserued in them.

I is not to be doubted but that the first Bookes and Libraries that ener were in the world, must needes bee among 20 the Hebrue people.

For, as it is certaine, that Letters were by them first knowne, and vie made of them: so is it likewise to be presumed, that they were not neglect or carelesse in keeping them, or whatfocuer they committed to writing. This is instified by the authority of lofephus, before alleadged, as also, by that which we reade in the holy Scriptures . Ifidorus relateth, that 30 after the Chadaans had burned the Library of the Hebrewes, with all the Bookes of the Lawes: the Hebrewes being gon of the Laws, the Prophet Efdra (being thereto lightened by the bleffed Spirit) repaired that loffe, by writing those Bookes oner againe, reducing them into the number of two and twenty Bookes, according to the number of the Alphabet letters. Whereby may be gathered , that after Moyles had written : the Hebrewes had a Library, wherein they preserved the Books of the Law, as well those which we have of the old Testament, as the rest, whereof wee haue already made mention. Among which, was the Booke of Enoch, alleadged by Saint Inde the Apostle in his Epifile, spoken of also before : And the Book of the warres of the Lord, whereof memory is made in the twenty one Chapter of Numbers: And the Booke of the just fernants of the Lord, alleadged in the first Booke of the Kings and the Booke of Samuell, recorded in the last Chapter of the first Booke of Paralipomenon: And the Booke of Nathan the Prophet, with many other beside, which appeared to haue bin burned and doft. Therefore we may plainly perceiue, that the lewes had Libraries had Libraries, and that those which appertained to the Gentiles, were both after the other, and of later time .

All the Grecians doe declare, that hee who first made any publique Library, Pifistraturos was named Pisifratue, a Tyrant ouer the Athenians: but afterward, it was greatly lique Libraincreased by those people. In follow- rie. ing time , when Xerxes came to Athens, he carried thence all those Bookes, and transported them into Persia: but a long while after, the King Selucus (called Ne-canor) bought them, and caused them to be carried backe to Athem againe. This affirmation proceedeth from Aulus Gelantimation proceeded from James 1611.

Instance of the King Protein Philadelphus made, was afterward very largely increased. Notwithstanding, that Library of Alexandria in Egipt, which the King Protein Philadelphus made, was (in very truth) the most excellent of all other in the world beside: because therein was the old Testament, and all the facred wri- The Library tings of the feauentie two Interpreters, of Alexandr and a great multitude of all other bookes whatfocuer. Yet Pliny auoucheth, that King Eumenes made another Library in the Citty of Pergama, in enuy of that which Ptolomie had founded . Aulus which Ptolomie had founded . Auus Anius Gellius and Amianus Marcellinus doe fay, in Lib. 6. that in the Library of Alexandria in E- Amian. Marie gipt, there were seauen hundred thousand in Lib 7. Copp. Bookes. Seneca doth (in a manner) agree concerning the number, which although it seeme to be excessive, yet notwithstanding, who foeuer hath read of the expences and great cost, which the Kings of Egipt have wasted, in the making of Obeliskes, Pyramides, Temples, Houses, Shippes, and other thinges of inestimable charge (some part of which matters are spoken of by Budeus, in his Annota- Budeus in At tions on the Pandettes, and Lazarus de not de Pand Barf, in his Art of Nauigation) this Libra-in Art Nauigation) this Libra-ry will not appeare impossible to their

Bookes were brought to this Library from al the Nations of the whole world, and also in all Languages; and they that had the charge thereof, were all of them very learned men. One part was appointed for Bookes of Poetry, others also for Histories, and elsewhere for all the Sciences and faculties: but all this indgement.

Plutare, in vit

Strabo in lib.7

dicteth other

Domitian the aulus Orofius

learning thus brought together, was bur ned by the Soldiers of Iulius Cafar, when he pursued Pompey thither, and fought against the people of Psolomie, who was brought vnto Cleopatra. As for that other Librarie, which was made by Eumenes in Pergama: Plutarch faith

The Lybrarie which we read of in Greece, Strabo faith , that Aristotle was the first that made a Collection of in the life of Marke Anthonie, that it confifted of two hundered thousand Bookes.

Chap.26.

Cafart Souldi

ours burned

this goodly Library.

Bookes together, and framed a Library of Bookes in the Citty of Athens . But therein he contradicteth the other Hiftorians, who doe all maintaine, that it was Pisstratus, who lived long time before Aristotle. Therefore it is to be vnderstood, that Straboes meaning 20 aymed at some one particular Man, who was neither King or Prince, as Pifistratus was : howbeit, it may be pregnantly coniectured, that Aristotle was therein much succoured and affisted by Alexander. Later Libraries and Letters, where-

The first pubin Rome mad by Afsinius Pollio.

Al the Libraries in Rome burned and spoyled.

in the Cittie of Rome, and the first that erected a publique Lybrarie there, was Afinius Pollio, of whom Pliny faith: 30 That of the Spirits of Men he made a publique matter. The first man that brought thither any great quantitie of Bookes, was Paulus Emilius, when he had van-quished Perseus: And next to him, L. Lucullus, from the bootie of Pontus. Iulius Cafar also augmented and enriched the Lybraries, which he commit-ted to the charge and keeping of Marcus Varro : but all the Lybraries in Rome. were afterward burnt and brought to nothing, by the frequent Warres, and often spoyles made of the Cittie. And yet this great loffe was repaired againe, by the Emperour Domitian, for he caufed fearch to bee made thorough all Countries, for Bookes of any Nature whatfocuer; yea, he fent into Ægypt, to have the Lybrarie that remained there, to bee transported to Rome. Whereby it verie plainely appeareth, that all King Ptolomies Bookes were not destroyed (as formerly hath beene faid) because a great part of them were afterward recovered . And Paulus Orofius doth heere perswade me, when he faith; Foure hundred thoufand of the Bookes were burned : And by the confirmation of other Historians; we finde, that there were feaven hundred thoufand in all, and three hundred thousand doe then appeare to be faued howbeit, fome would faine enforce, that they were all burned.

Of the first Libraries.

But returning to the Lybragie of Rome Library burned again faith, that in the time of the Emperor in the time of Commodus, it was once more burned: the Empero neuertheleffe, Gordianus the Emperour regained a great number of Bookes; to the estimate of seauentie and two thousand Volumes. And that (which is much more notable) hee enjoyed them by the last Will and Testament of Seranus Samonieus, to whom they This man first appertained according as Julius Capitelinus recordeth. There were many other great and goodlie Lybraries made senator among those of elder times, as well prinate and meane persons, as Princes and great Lords. But the first Librarie among the Christians, was that (as Isl-dorus tellificity) of Pamphilius the Mar-brary among the Christian account to Pathing the Christian tire, whose life is registred by Ensebius, and that he had thirty thousand volums in his Library.

We read of a common Custome Pictures of observed among those grave Men, famous learned men pre-chiefely in their Lybraries: where they ferued in Lipreserved the Pictures, Portraites, and brailes.
Statues, of such men as had been most excellent in Learning. Plusy also faith. that Marcus Varro (euen in his life time) fo merited by his learning that cap. 7. his Statue was kept in the Library of Asinius Pollio. Cicero wrote to Fabianus the Gaule, that he should buy him fome Statues and Portraites, wherewith to grace and beautifie his Lybrarie. The younger Pliny, writing to Inlius Senerus, faith ; that Herennius Sewerus (a very excellent learned man) mlib.4. placed in his Librarie (among other Pi-Ctures) those of Cornelius and Titus Arius fufficient testimony have woof all those things.

Now, concerning these recited Ly-braries, and those of many other learned men, and of Princes alfo, in imitation of their example : they were all destroyed and ranaged by the Gothes, Alaines, and Vandales, vntill such time as

Xxx

Plin in lib. 9.

1.Chron.19.29

2.Kings. 1.18

Who were Libraries and Learning.

Our Bookes not equalling the tenth part of our Anci-

(by the goodnesse of God) both in our daies, and those of our fore-fathers, many learned and studious men lived, whose paines and endeuours created infinite others, from whom have proceeded heapes of huge Volumes; albeit I thinke them not the tenth part, compared with those which their graue Auncientaleft in Writing. Beside, such as haue beene sound, were so vncorrected, corrupted and badlie written: that had it not beene for the indulgent trauale, of divers great and worthy personages, they could hardly haue beene reduced to any order and perfe-

CHAP, XXVII.

The Interpretation of the Imperiall Titles, heeretofore given by the Romaine Emperours, as they have beene found regi-Stred in the Bookes De Iurisprudentia, abbreuiated and re-collected by commandement of the Emperour Iustinian, to wit: Of the Gothes, Allemaignes, Germaines, Alanes, Vandals, Affricanes, Gætes, Girpides, &c. and of many other Nations, appertaining to the Same kinde of Argument.

Vaine Titles affected by the Romaine Emperours.

periall Titles of ho-nour and renowne, did not onely ob-ferue and giue vn-to themselues, the to themselves, the Names or Appellations of those Prouinces wonne by them, and reduced vnder the yoake of their Empire : but likewise of such Nations and people, as left their own Countries (in abounding multitudes) and entred on the so Landes and possession of others, thence to chafe and expell the naturall Inhabitants, to plant there their owne abiding, by giving them fundry battailes, and fome way furmounting, though not wholly exterminating them. Vpon which reason, Iustinian would entitle himselfe, of the Goths, Allemaignes, Vandales, and of others. Of which Nations, I purpose to speake in some measure, what people they were, and whence they came : because (at length) they ruined the great Romain Empire. kened and ru Whereto I am the rather induced, to main Empire enstruct such as are little skilled in Histories (not onely Cosmographicall, but likewise Geographicall) how those people did not onely weaken and ruinate the faide Empire : but also did cast out the true and naturall Dwellers, of the verie greatest part of our Hemispheare.

Moreouer, they compelled the Emperours to graunt them places, wherein to live (afterward) in peace and quietnesse: for these Nations were the cause, whereby many Countries changed both their manners, Language, and Religion, which matters are necessarie to be spoken off, as nerely appertaining to our argument.

We will begin then first with the Gothes, because they were the first, that Of the Goth, forfooke their owne Natiue Country: their original, Country which was called Gothia, or Gothland, and nature, as fignifying a good Land, it beeing a Northerne Prouince of Germanie. This Land abounded in Graine, Fruites, Cattle, Woodes, Rivers, Mettalles: but especiallie in Copper, and Skinnes feruing to make Furres. At all times, and as yet (to this instant daie) is to bee discerned, the Kingdome of Swessia, or Sweuia , hath beene comprized vnder the Dominion of the Gothes . As the More plenty Countrey was fertile in Fruites of the Earth; euen fo were the Weomen thereof likewise in Children : for, as feed and no they were strong, and of great stature, rish. so had they viually two Children at a birth, which was the cause then, and so it yet continueth, that they had more people, then could well line together, the Countrey not beeing sufficient to yeilde fustenance for fo many. In like manner, they were very great feeders, eating much more then they that line in the Easterne or Meridionall

These people of the Gothes, perceiuing, and aduitedly pondering on the Aleuyof fore-ipecified reasons: leuyed the more part of the youngest and strongest men ablemenaof their Countrey, to the number of mong the Gother.

ting Armies abroad in trauaile.

three hundred thousand; and marryed fuch as were nor, to ridde themselies of the charge of Daughters, as well as of Sonnes, for the Countrey ordinari, ly abounded in the Feminine, more then in the Masculine Sexe. So, bei ing well prouided of all necessaries for Warre, and leaving a chiefe Commander at home, of the Royall linage ithey wandered abroad thorow the Fieldes, 10 to winne by power, or compasse by Loue, some new habitation wherein to liue.

ly and Spain.

the Gothes

The Gothes

wander to feeke a new dwelling.

Chap.28.

Many Authours, and, among the reft, Trebellius faith, that the first rumour of this their straying, was vnder the raigne of the Emperour Flaujas Claudius, about the yeare of our Lord lesus Christ, two hundred seuenty two. And that they paffed thorow Germany, 20 Hungaria, Thrace, Greece, Gaule, and fo farre as Italie . They loft many battailes, and wonne likewife as many, against the Romaines and other people, maintaining themselves so well : that they raigned in Italie (euen in despight of the stalians and Emperours) the space of seamentie and one yeares; as Procopius auoucheth. At length they went into Spaine, whence (afterward) 30 they would not remoone: for the Catholique Kinges of Spaine that then raigned by succession, and raigne yet to this present, descended from the race and line of their Kinges, who were (in-

Now, it is to be imagined, that in The reason of regard of fuch a mighty muster of men, the Countrey of Gothia, or Goth-land, and continuor the Neighboring Borders, remained 40 not without Inhabitants, or the rule of Kinges: For there were even then left behind, fo many as the Land was able to nourish, who had their Kinges in authority ouer them, and strength sufficient to with-fland any inuation of the Country. As for the conquering Armies abroad, they continued in honour for a verie long time; albeit, they loft great flore of men in battailes, encounters, furprizals, and paffages of Riuers: for these disaduantages were fill supplyed, by the daily birth of Children among them, because they had their Wines in all places among them . And perhaps fome Straungers deed) very generous people.

mingled among them, who wearing their habites, and learning their Land guage shelpt still to encrease the fire of this people.

Such as hane boene namel Offro- Of the offmi gothes; were a people of the fame County gothing white treyof Gethia on Gatteland, from a place Coursey. which is called Offrogothis, the principall Citries whereof, are stheme and Lincope a This people made their warre apare by themselves, beeing separated from the Gothes, yet ranuging abroad in thewide World, according as they

.The Westrogorbes (in like manner) Of the Westro came out of a Countrey called Wellragothia, among whom, the chiefelt Citties, yet to this prefent daie, are tearmed Searis and Veruen. Wifigots, or Bifigures, came forth of a Countrey named Vishi, the very principall whereof, is yet stilled Vishi and was the more willing to make this description because I baue heard of divers (who are but flenderly experienced in Colmography) that they do term these Offre-gother, to be Gothes Orientall, or of the East, and the Westrogothes, Occidentall Gothes, or dwelling in the West land to contrariwise of the other. Albeit, they are all descended, and came out of the Kingdome of Gothis, or Gottehind, according as Munster hath very well ob Munfter. ferued.

The Vandals, in the erronious judgement of Procopius, a learned Greeke cerning the Authour, are faide for to be of the verie same Nation, and that all the seuerall people of the Gothes, Vandalles, Alaines, Hunnes, and divers others, (whom I am hecreafter to describe vnto you) were deriued out of one and the selfe-fame Land, and are all comprehended under the name of Sauremates, or Sarmates, and have no other difference, but onelie by the names of their Captaines or Kinges. But I muft maintaine against him, that the Land of the Vandales is diftant from Goshland, Gothes and aboue the space of two hundered leagues, and therefore they cannot bee ple. one people with the Gothes. True it is, that this Nation is Septentrionall, or in the Nonh, as the others are, and in a Maritime Countrey alfo , named yet to this day Vandalia, as I have already ifizots, or Bitro beiler The error of Colmogre.

Xxx 2

The trauailes

into diuers Countries.

They posses fed Spaine &

Affrica, which

wer deiested

The Vandals

expulled out of Affrica by Belifarms.

The Hunnes of

Scythia, and their trauails

* Hunos a part of Scythia, in-habited by the Hunnes.

in the end

by them.

ready faid, yet very far off the one from the other

This people did (almost) as much hurt to the Romaine Empire, as the Gothes did, for, loyning divers other people with them (as the Alaines, Suabes and Franconians:) they trauerfed the Rheine, Gauderichus beeing then their King, and paffing among the Gaules, walted and spoyled them very greatlie. Then went they into Spaine, and (in defpight of the Gothes) tooke possession of that part of the Countrey, which ioyneth to the Kingdome of Granada, and is (to this day) called Vandalia, or (by corrupting the W ord) Vandalusia, albeit the Spaniards mince it moronice. ly, and nick-name it to be Andalusia. To be briefe, they were (after much wast and spoyle) expulsed foorth of spaine wholy in the years foure hundred thirtie one, under another of their Kinges, named Genfericus, and passed thence into Affrica, where they raigned featienty fixe yeares. From thence they were compelled to auoyde, in the seauenth yeare of the Emperour Iustinian, in Anno. Domino. 5 2 8. by the valour of one of his Captaines, named Belifari-their Countrey, for the selfe-same cause as the Goths did, about the yeare one hundred fixtie eight, onely to feek fome other Land, where they might liue after the Scythians Religion: first getting possession of Pannonia, where they alwaies fo strongly kept and guardedit, that (according to their owne name) it became to be called Hungaria. 40 This people came from that part of Scythia, which was tearmed " Hunos, no long distance from the River Tanais: but it is in a miserable estate at this day, and under subjection of the Moleouite. Having vsurped Pannonia, they kept it manfully against the Romaines, and two hundred yeares after, Attila Attila King of their King, accompanied with some people of the Allemaignes or Germaines; 50 as Bohemians, Gepydes or Gyrpides, Sch'e-which they very much endammaged.

The Hunnes also departed out of

Then went he into France; where hee loft a battaile, in which perifhed a great number of his men. This battaile was given him by the Romaines, Gaules, and in France. certaine Gother allyed together, and he loft (as fome Authours doe affirme) aboue two hundred thousandmen. At length he journyed into Italie, which he (wel-neere) vtterlie ruined, and retiring afterward home into his owne Countrey of Hungarian he dyed within fome few following moneths, and on the day of his Nuptials, which was in the yeare of Iefus Christ, foure hundred forty three. The Lombardes were a Northerne people, iffuing out of Denmarke, as Eusebius maintaineth, and no other reason had they to leave their Natiue Countrey ; but onely a defire to winne fome other. There happened in the time of one Seno, or Sweno (yet fome tearme him Snio) a very great dearth or fearfitie of victuals in the Land, and because the people endured it verie impacientlie:it was concluded by the King and his Councell (to eafe the Country of so many men as were ready to famish) that all such persons as were vnable, eyther for Warre, or labour of the Ground; should be flaine, whether they were old or young. But this feuere Edict being reuoked, they then re-folued to make a leuy of all fortes of dily recalled, people, that (by the helpe of Atmes) might trauaile to finde out some other fed. dwelling, so to discharge the Countries heany burthen.

This being put in Execution, they travailed fo farre, and carryed themfelues fo couragiouslie in trauersing dipers Landes: that they came at last into Italie, and there conquered the Countrey, which was called Istria, Ifriain Italy making themselves absolute Maisters thereof. Now, because these people to the manual t were long and taule of ftature : the Italians and Istrians tearmed them long Barbarians, which by corruption of the Word, and succession of times, made them to be called Longbardes, or Lombardes . Some are of opinion, that under the raigne of Valentinian the Emperour, they beganne to make themselues first knowne; which was about the yeare of our Saniour Jesus

tila fustained

Chap.27.

Petrus Diaco -

ans, people of Danemarke.

Likewife, according to Petrus Diaconus, the Emperours made peace with them, in the yeare, feuen hundred and thirtie, and euer fince they have held that Countrey, which at this day is named Lombardy. Let it heere be further noted, that Christ 385. and that they became Commaunders in Istria, in the yeare 570.

Of Imperiall Titles.

where (in any Historic) mention is 10 made of people tearmed Dates, or Danians, the Nation of Danemarke, is thereby vnderstood. Out of which Countrey, many great Armies haue trauailed at fundry times, and haue mightily troubled diners Kingdomes: among which, they continued along time in England, but were thence expelled, about the yeare eight hundred fixtie, as is generally granted. The Normanes were people of Norduegia, or otherwife called Normania, a Northerne Countrey, being much addicted to crueltie and inhumanitie, because they vsed many great Piracies on the Seas. An hundred and fifty thou-fand Men (of this Nation) bestowed themselnes in Vessels on the Sea, and tooke poffession of that part of Gaule,

Stria, now Normandse, and this was done in the yeare of Iesus Christ, fixe hundred; and others fay, eight hundred eightie foure, and in the time of Charles

Le Gres. But be it howfocuer, they have (fince then) kept it against all encounters of the Emperours, Kings of France and England, preferring it still by the name of Normandy, and themselves reckoned to be people of vndaunted courage. There are divers others, that doe fauour of this their first Originall and doe yet proule vppon the Seas, committing many Thefts and Robbe-

Sueffes, or Sweues, but more vulgarlie

Zuitzers, and are (at this day) auxiliarie vnto the Freneh: came out of Sueria,

Sweuia, or Sweueland, a Northerly Region like to the other. They likewife, by reason of the dearth of foode among them: departed foorth of their owne

Countrey, about the years of Grace, eight hundred, and went fo farre as the Rheine, which they would have paffed;

The Nation which we call Suiffes, or France, which was then named 2Veu- 30

flued from Nordnegia, or legiria now named Nor-mondy & hat continued

Sueffer of Enitzers came out of Swenia.

but were hindred by the Franconians. Thence went they to the Land of the Helnetians, who despiting the Sueffes, (because they were poorely and wret- The Sueffer chedly apparrelled, rude in their fee- defpited by the Helucians ding, and not looking like Souldiours) suffered them to wander about their Countrey. At length, perceiving the kinde fufferance of the Heluctians : they fought to abide in a certaine Canton of their Land. Which when the He uetians noted, they demaunded of them s to what end they thus wandered about the World? They aunswered, That they were poore people, and fought but to weare out their lines in trauaile. by deluing or labouring in the Earth. And seeing that there was wast ground Their pouerin those partes, valaboured, or any vie ty among the made of (it being Hilles and Vallyes, their request enuironed with divers Lakes) they defi- to them. red the Heluetians, to permit them to labour in those rough Fieldes, as yet not cultiue : and they should receive the gaine and benefit thereof, onely allowing them but nourithment for their paines. This was all that they fee-med to prețend, inflifying their re-did grant the quests with many follemne Oaths and Sueffer re. protestations. Their defire was gran- quests. ted, and not long after, the Countrey wherein they lined, was not onely called Suessia, in regard, of the Suessians there dwelling : but likewise the Auncient Inhabitants had the fame Name given them, and (in truth) the Country

Iustinian, and other Emperours, Of the Alle-(both before and after him) entitled maignes and themselues Lordes of the Allemaignes, whence they were derived. by having received fome victories against the Allemaignes. But this may not be faide (as some hane done heeretofore) that those victories were obtained against the Germaines: for eucn at this prefent daie, when that wee speake or Write of Allemaigne ; therein is comprehended all the Nations, which are contained throughout Ger-is very mountainie, and vnapt for rimanie, and that doe fpeake the language of the Teutones. But as concerning Allemaigne it felfe, and Allemaignes; The true All. the Romaines neuer understood, or of Suaba. meant any other people, then those fites, Werlies, Thuringians, Gothes, Oftrogothes, and others, making (in all) about the number of fixe hundred thoufand Men: passed thorough Allemaigne, of Suaba . And, to speake vprightly, they euer haue beene (and are) the true and Auncient Allemaignes; as Cornelius

Tacitus plainely confirmeth. Drusus

Nero was the first, that styled himselfe

Germanicus: for having rather angered the Germaines, then foyled them, as di-uers other Emperours afterward did.

Moreouer, by Germanie is to be vnder-stoodnine and forty great Provinces, as well of the lower part, as of the higher part of the faid Germanie, comprizing the Countries of the Switzers and Hel-Ouer and befide the fore-named Ti-them well, and placed them in a part of Scythia. Capito inus bestowes them in Dacia : Marcellinus, Pliny, & Dionisius the Poet, doe graunt them a being in Sar-Tofephus, in his last Book, affirmeth their aboad to be betweene the river Tanais, and the Palus Maotides : and faith more-ouer, that (in his time) thefe Alaines or onleffe, their descent was from Scythia, according to the affirmation of Ptole-

If we shall speake of the Gepydes, Ggrpides, or Iupedes, and what people they were: there are opinions enow concerning them. Some fay, that they were (at the first) of Seythia, and came thence

(as the Lombards did) into Italy . But hafearch; I find, that they were a people of Germanie, being then called Gepudy, or Sepuly, and (according to Ptolomeus Matauestus) now at this day, Siebem-burgs , who followed the Gothes, the Vanda!s and the Normanes also, they being erring and vagabond people. Till matia of Europe.

Drufus Nero

Germany con taineth 49. great Proun

Of the Alains,

and what peo ple they were tles, they vied the word Analieus, which by translation, implyeth Alaines. Many haue supposed, that these were a people of Germanie, but therein they were and are deceived: for Ptolomy knew Alanes, accompanied with the Hircanians; both robbed and spoyled all the Region of the Medes. As for my felfe, by that which I have gathered, from fuch as have written on the actions of the Gothes: I am perswaded, that those Alaines were their Companions, and companions with the Goths that oftentimes (in their Warres) for their owne advantage, they fundred in their wars. themselues from them, as one while

Of the Gepi-

Gepudij or Sevusij

at length they ventred on the Seas, and went to inhabite the Isles of the Orchades, whereof Thille is the latest inhabited, as Volateranus auoucheth, and now is subject to the Kings of Scotland.

The Getes have beene, and are yet a Of the Getes warlike people, instantly much mollested by the Turkes; but they found the Romaines work enough to doe, confifling of Transiluanians, Wallachians, Moldauians, and other Countries about the River Ister, which falleth into the Pon-ticke Sea. I may not be forgetful of the Bourguignay not be torgettin of the bourgary guignons, and nons, because I my selfe descended of whence they that Nation. Orofius holdeth, that they are iffued. are deriued out of Germany; And Volatteranus faith, that louinianus the Emperour vanquished such a people, which lined by the Riner of Rheine. But there is nothing more certaine (according as I have gathered by the Germaine Histories) then that they iffued from some remaines of the Gothes, Vandales, and Hunnes, who beeing altogether chased by the Romaines; threw themselues vpon that part of Gaule, which they fliled after their owne name, and there (perforce) enthroned themselues. For afterward, they could fo well refift the Romaines, that they were constrained to yeild them tolleration, and let them line in the faide Gountrey amongst the first Inhabitants. There they builded | Of their own Fortes, Villages, and Townes, which they tearmed Bourgs or Bouroughes of Gothes and Hunnes. And then coneting (corruptly) to speake it in one Word : from Bourg Goth Hunnes, they

they did with the Vandales. But quefti- 40 to fay, as a warring people. Ætius, Lieutenant to the Emperour deliusfoyled Theodofius, gauethema bartaile in the her Bourguige yeare of Christ, 435. and won the day : but it cost him so deare, that he would neuer after meddle any more with them. About the yeare 430 they receiued and embraced the Christian Faith. These people grew on in great ciulity, and became as much addicted to Learuing made a more curious and diligent | 50 ning, as to Armes: For they have a goodly university, fouded by one of the Dukes of Bourgongne, wherein many A faire vni-Lectures are read of all the Sciences, to Schollers of all Nations, at Dola, the capitall City of that part of Bourgongne, which is under commaund of the house came to be called Bourguignons, as much

Of the Bour-

Affricanes and Parthians. Stephanus,

Euphrates th boundes betweene the Titles full of

The mifery of most of the of Austria, and there they hold a Parliamentalfo. As for the other part of Bourgongne, in obedience to the crown of France : Digeon is the Metropolirane Citty thereof where likewise is held another Parliament. And these two Bourgongnes are maintained in very good peace, albeit they are in obedience to diuers Princes.

The fore-named Emperours did also ftile themselves by names of Franques, as having fought with and repulsed the

Of Imperiall Titles.

Of the Franks

Digeon the Me ttopolitane Citty.

Chap.27.

Franconians, who were rifen vp in arms, and departed out of their Countrey of Germany. But so slender were their impeachings, that they inuaded the Gauls, which then were Provinces of the Romaines, notwithstanding, all the best meanes they could make. They were entitled Affricanes likewife, for having obtained some Conquests in Affrica: And Parthians also, for having wonne fome victories ouer the Parthians. Stephanus ranketh them among the people of Seythia: but I neuer knew, or read, that the Romaines made the Parthians tributary, being their best Friendes, for they had more victories over the Komās, then ever the Romans had against them. They did not leave their Countries, 20 and fought after a new habitation, eyther for pouertie or necessitie: but rather to conquer Kingdomes and Prouinces ; as Media, Hircania, Armenia, Caramania, and many other. The River Euphrates was the limits between them and the Romaines : but those Romaine Emperours, ypon the declining of their Empire, were Princes full of follie and vain-glory, attributing Titles to themfelues, without any matter of right or

They gave themselves also the Title of Happy and Prosperous, albeit they were (oftentimes) the most infortunate men al of other, as wel in their home affaires, as the Negotiations of the Empire. For (day by day) they loft their Prouinces, which precedent Auncient Captaines (endowed with many ver- 50 tues) and worthy Romaine Confuls had won, by no meane expence of paines, and effusion of their blood.

Moreover, the most part of the Emperors, beheld their Wines, Children, and Friends, murdred and maffacred; yea, and themselves subject to no better fortune in the end : as lustinian, who was cast out of his Empire by Florianus. They would likewise be called inclytes, that is to fay : Princes of glorious renowne, victorious, triumphing, and enermore Augustus, as much to fay, as enlargers of the Romaine Empire! but, as I formerly faid, thefe were but fuch Titles as Flatterers gaue them, for the greater number of those Emperours; after that these stiles of honour were imposed on them; could boast of no fuch happinelle, but rather came farre fhort of any fuch felicities.

Thus have ye briefely feenethe ori- Those Natiginall of all those people, which those on are all Emperours made vannt to haue foyled herome Christians. and vanquithed thowbeit, though they were tearmed barbarous by them, yet (by little and little) they rent and tore their Empire in pieces. At this day they are all become civilized, and (well-neere all) Christians : onely the Parthians excepted, who are Mahametists, pertaking in the Turkes Religion.

But having spoken of so many Nations, who are al faid to be derived from of the Pict. the Scythians : wee may not omit to fay & their com fome what of the Picts, who (by the ming into the ifle of Orkeney opinion of most Writers) do beare the name of a people of Germanie, that had their Originall out of Seythia, descending of the * Agathyrsi in Sarmatia, that * Arich peovsed to paint and couler their faces, and ple bordering on the scythic thereupon were named Piets. Before they entred into Brittaine, they inhabited the lse of Orkney for a long time to-gether, ferrying ouer into Cathnesse dai-of painting ly multiplying to in power and number: their faces. that (getting vp further into the Land) they poffeffed Roffe, Murreyland, Merne and Anguste, whence passing into Fife and Louthian, they drove thence the Britaine Inhabitants, who were onelie poore people, that lived by nourishing & breeding Cattle. This their enterance into Albion (for fo was it then called) was in the yeare of the Worlds Crea-

Cruchneus Camelonus is faid to be the cruibneus cafirst King of the Piets, and that he buil- King of the ded a famous Citty on the banke of the Pica. River cald Caron, appointing it to be the chiefe Citty of all the Pictifh Kingdom. He builded also the Towne of Agneda. afterward called Edenbrough, of Ethus, King of the Picts, and the Caftle, named

Kenneth King

of Scots quite

The Castle of Maydens, because the Pistifb Kinges kept their Daughter there, under frict custody, and in all good exercifes, till their meete yeares for mar-

Concerning the warres, strifes, and bloody contentions betweene the Albion Scots and Pictes, thorow all their Kings raigne, till their vtter ouerthrow, and quite diffolation of Pictland, by 10 Kenneth the victorious King of Scots : I referre it to fitter time and place, onely letting ve know, that this fubuerfion & and veter ruine of the Piets, happened in the yeare of our redemption, 839. in the fixt years of King Kenneths glorious raigne, and 1168. yeares after their first Plantation in Albion.

CHAP, XXVIII.

What benefit Musique bringeth to a Common-wealth; And how it hath beene naturally given to al Wations in the world, and (by the judgement of Some Historians) hath cured divers infirmities and difeases of the mind.

The folly of ome ouercurious Law makers.

comprehenfion of Musick.

Ery certain it is, that some Law-makers, pecuifb, troublefome, and ouer-hard in many matters Lycurgus was one:did expel

Musick out of their Commonwealths, affirming, that it made people effeminate, negligent, and idle. But I am of a 40 quite contrary minde, and dare maintaine, that fuch as will truely confider Musique, and what it is in it felfe : shall finde, that it can make men bold, hardy, modest, and chast, especially being wel and vertuously vsed. Vnder this kind of Mufique, I comprehend not onely that which is fung by Art and mellodiously, as by the voyces of Men, Weomen, or Children: but also I presuppose (within the same compasse) all Instruments; as Flutes, Lutes, Viols, Drums, Trumpets, Organes, Virginals, Harpes, and others. And there is not any thing, that maketh men more civilly minded, or preserveth them in better concord and amitic, then Musique.

Polybius declareth, that the great Com- Polib in Lib. 4 mon-wealth of the *Cynethenfes in Areadia, falling from the delight they formerly had in Musique : grew soone after into feditious humors, & ciuil wars among themselves, wherein there wanted not any kind of crueltie. And when all their Neighbors round about them, were meerely confounded with admiration, as wondring how these people should become so harsh, barbarous, and rude, confidering that all the other people of Arabia, had by them been reduced to curtefie and humane tractability : Polybius was the first that took notice thereof, and auouched, that it onely proceeded, by leauing the vse of Mu-fique, which (from all Antiquity) had euermore beene prized and honoured in Arcadia, more then in any other place of the World. For it was especially ordained, by the customes and decrees of the Countrey, that enery one should make vie thereof for the space of thirty yeares ; yea, vpon very great paines and penalties. And this was the reason (faith Polybius) that the first Law-makers among those people, or dained and appointed continuall vie thereof : onely to cause civility & humanity, in regard that (of their owne naturall disposition) they were wilde, fierce, and barbarous, as all people inhabiting the Mountaines, and sold Countries are.

Perhaps the like judgement might passe on the Gaules of former times, Jul. 1mp. in Ewhom Iulian the Emperour tearmed piff.ad Antie. the barbarous people of his daies: which Nation (neuerthelesse) became afterward to courteous and tractable, as any other people whatfocuer in Eu-rope, whereat all Straungers wondred not a little. And yet it is generally The Gaules knowne, that no people did more practife Mufique, or fung more fweetely, yaddicted to Mufick. then they : nay, and that which goeth farre beyond this, they could dannee any daunce in France, were it Ionian or Lydian, that is to fay ; confishing of fine or featen notes or ftrains. Which were expresly forbidden to Youth, by Plato and Aristotle, because they had a great Plato in Lib.de power and prevailance, in forming and Leg et Republ. humbling the hearts of men. They would also exercise their Children to the " Dorion Musique, which was the first or chiefest note, to maintaine them kind of Muin an harmonious fweetneffe, accom- fickreprefer-

* A certaine panied ting grauity.

Chap.28. Dances vied Songes of the first note or found, not v-A Common wealth quite

Lawes and Cuftomes fo

Gaules fofte ned by Mu-

The ftern na ture of the

Mufick a mé ber of the, Mathematiks

Musicke maketh all labor panied with granitie, which was the Dorion proper effect. all so

Such prohibition might better hane beene vied in the leffer Afia, where they had no other dances, but of fine or feuen straines, especially in the Countreyes of themia and Lydia. But people inhabiting the Northern parts; cold, Mountainous, and Rocky, who are ordinarily more fauage, or leffe courteous then the Inhabitants of the South, or dwelling on Plaines, neuer can be better qualified or foftened, then by vling the lonian & Lydian hermony, which was also forbidden in the Primitive Church : and nothing was there permitted to bee fung, but of the first note which is now most of all frequented in Churches ... And like as men do difarme fau age Beafts of furie & violence, to make them of a more tracta- 20 ble Nature : enen fo, the Lydian and Ionian Musicke or hermony, disarmeth the verie rudest and most barbarous Nations, of all their former, fauage, and cruell Natures; causing them to become milde, pliant, and affable. According as it fell out with the Gaules , who (it may be)could not have beene tamed & made obedient vnto the civill Lawes and Ordinances of a Monarchy, if their former 30 sterne Nature(which the Emperor Iulian faid, was fo high, and vnfufferable of feruitude) had not bin mollified and sweetned by Musicke.

Musick, is one of the members of the Mathematickes, as beeing a Science attracted from numbers : because that by them, the proportion Hermonicall is found out . Plasees will was, that Children should learne to fing, for recreation of their owne spirites, and to prayle God by Hymnes. And in truth, there is nothing that more taketh away offenfinenesse, or easeth matter of great and laborious trauaile (as woorking in the ground, Masonry, Catpentry, and exercifing other Arts, painefull to the bo-die) then finging doth.

In like manner, all Artezans, following any Trade or profession, doe vie to 50 fing: as Hay-makers, Haruefters, Gardiners, Deluers, Children and Weomen weeding grounds, doc weare awaic the irkefomnesse of their labour by singing, either in heate or colde, Winds or Rain, it maketh paine the more supportable to them.

Soldiers, euen when they goe (manie times) to be flaine in a battell, will yet fing by the way the beating of Drums, and founding of Fifes and Trompets, gimeth courage to the Soldier for his cariage in Warre, making him hardie, bold, Muficke vino and valiant. Nor is it to bee doubted in manfor his benefits benef that Nature gate Mulicke and melodie to man but onely for his good and benefirs as young Children do apparantly ina-nifelt into vs: for when their wirfles would have them to fleepe, and keepe them in their Cradles ; euen when they are molt impatient and froward nothing fooner affwageth and prenayleth-with them, then mellodie and finging . Info manie Barbarour Nations, as have bin disconcred in former Antiquitie, and in our dayes, in that part of the earth which Countries of is called the New-found World, Flutes the Newhave beene found among them. Drums. Hoboyes, and other Inftruments, and both prinately and publickely, as also in their Temples, finging of Pfalmes hath beene observed, to be dure the delivered.

Birds, when they are in any chearfull dif-position, will sing to solace and delight themselues: as the Nightingale, the Tarine, the Thru(h, Linnet, Blackbird and others; among which Birds, many haue beene taught to fing by men, as daylie in most places is discerned. As concerning foure-footed Beafts, diners of them doe take much pleafure in Musicke, as namely Camels : for iffuch as guide and Gouerne them, doe not ordinarily fing or plefiled with whiltle to them, they will not trauel with hinging. any foirit or chearfulnesse. All such as 40 have beene in the East Countreyes, and noted the Carauannes, which are troops of Camelles laden with Merchandizes, haue affirmed as much. Horses that are dreffed by their Keepers, and daily fung vnto as they do it, are made verie manageable, gentle, and apt for the Saddle.

About all other Beafts, the Hart or Stag The Hart or how wilde soener he bee, if hee heare a Stag, a great man play on a Violl, or on a Lute, he wil Musicke. (by flealths) draw neerer and neerer yea. and fuffer himselfe to bee touched, as I my felfe haue feene by experience. Musicke hath mighty power and Au-thority ouer the spirits and affections of men; and amongst many examples, the first may be of Timothens, who by pleafing founds and chaunges of his Instru-

Many creatures as diverskindes of Birdes that > المرافعة والمرا encare had

TAGES 801 Thun 804

Missine

PAGE(S) MISSING

1

Dances vied

panied with gravitie, which was the Dorion proper effect. Such prohibition might better hane beene vsed in the lesser Asia, where they had no other dances, but of fine or feuen straines, especially in the Countreyes of Ionia and Lydia. But people inhabiting the Northern parts; cold, Mountainous, and Rocky, who are ordinarily more fauage, or leffe courteous then the Inhabitants of the South, or dwelling on Songes of the found, not v-fed in the priPlaines, neuer can be better qualified or foftened, then by vling the tonian & Lydian hermony, which was also forbidden in the Primitine Church : and nothing was there permitted to bee fung, but of the first note, which is now most of all frequented in Churches . And like as men do difarme fau age Beafts of furie & violence, to make them of a more tracta- 20 ble Nature : euen fo, the Lydian and Ionian Musicke or hermony, disarmeth the verie rudest and most barbarous Nations, of all their former, fauage, and cruell Natures, caufing them to become milde, pliant, and affable. According as it fell out with the Gaules, who (it may be)could not have beene tamed & made

The stern naobedient vnto the civill Lawes and Orditure of the Gaules, fofte sterne Nature(which the Emperor Julian ned by Mufaid, was so high, and vnfusferable of seruitude) had not bin mollified and fweet-

Mufick a mé . ber of the, ned by Musicke. Musick, is one of the members of the Mathematickes, as beeing a Science attracted from numbers : because that by them, the proportion Hermonicall is found out. Platoes will was, that Children should learne to fing, for recreation of their owne spirites, and to prayse God by Hymnes, And in truth, there is nothing that more taketh away offenfinenesse, or easeth matter of great and laborious trauaile (as woorking in the ground, Masonry, Carpentry, and exercifing other Arts, painefull to the bo-die) then finging doth. In like manner, all Artezans, following any Trade or profession, doe vie to 50 fing: as Hay-makers, Haruefters, Gardiners, Deluers, Children and Weomen weeding grounds, doe weare awaie the irkefomnesse of their labour by finging, either in heate or colde, Winds or Rain. it maketh paine the more supportable to them.

Musicke ma. keth all labor feeme light and cafe.

Soldiers, euen when they goe (manie times) to be flaine in a battell, will yet fing by the way : the beating of Drums . and founding of Fifes and Trompets, gineth courage to the Soldier for his cari-Nature gaue age in Warre, making him hardie, bold, Muncke vnu and valiant. Nor is it to bee doubted, man for his that Nature gave Musicke and melodie to man, but onely for his good and benefit s as yong Children do apparantly manifest vnto vs: for, when their Nursses would have them to fleepe, and keepe them in their Cradles : euen when they are most impatient and froward nothing fooner affwageths and prenayleth with them, then mellodie and finging . Info discouered in former Antiquitie; and in our dayes, in that part of the earth which is called the New found World, Flutes the Newehaue beene found among them, Drums, Hoboyes, and other Instruments, and both prinately and publickely, as also in their Temples, finging of Pfalmes hath beene observed.

manie Barbarour Nations, as have bin

Many creatures, as diverskindes of Birds, when they are in any chearfull dif- in Musicke. position, will sing to solace and delight themselves: as the Nightingale, the Tanances of a Monarchy, if their former 30 rine, the Thrush, Linnet, Blackbird, and others; among which Birds, many haue beene taught to fing by men, as daylie in most places is discerned. As concerning foure-footed Beafts, diners of them doe take much pleasure in Musicke, as namely Camels for iffuch as guide and Gouerne them, doe not ordinarily fing or plefifed with whiftle to them, they will not trauel with finging. any spirit or chearfulnesse. All such as o haue beene in the East Countreyes, and noted the Carauannes, which are troops > haue affirmed as much. Horfes that are dreffed by their Keepers, and daily fung vnto as they do it, are made verie manageable, gentle, and apt for the Saddle. About all other Beafts, the Hart or Stag The Hart or how wilde focuer he bee, if hee heare a sing, a great man play on a Violl, or on a Lute, he wil Musicke. (by flealths) draw neerer and neerer yea. and suffer himselfe to bee touched, as I my selfe haue seene by experience. Musicke hath mighty power and Au-thority ouer the spirits and affections of

of Camelles laden with Merchandizes, men : and amongst many examples, the first may be of Timotheus, who by pleafing founds and channges of his Instru-

Mulicke in Countries of

The reason why Alexan-der went from a Banquet.

Agamemnon & his Wife Clytemnestra.

K.Dauid delighted highlie in his Pfalteri-Moyfes apoin ted Mulickin the Temple

Mulick obler ued amongest

Of the first Touenrers of Musicke and

Gen. 41,21.

ment, constrained Alexander (as ouerioyed with pleasure) for to depart from a banket. Next, we may speake of Agamemnen, who was loath to part from his Countrey, and go to the fiedge of Troy, because he was doubtfull of the modesty of his wife Clysemnestra; and therefore, he left a Musition on the Harp with her; the found whereof, should incite her to bathfulneffe and continence, fo that Ægistus could not abuse her, without killing the Musition. But in speaking of this Harpers it maketh me to remember the Royall Pfalmist Danid, who of himselfe, was a man verie strong and seuere, yet much guided and detained by his Pfalterion. Nor are we to thinke, that the hermonie of this Instrument, was common or vulgar, whereof the facred Scripture maketh mention fo many times, and 20 which was judged only (among al other) meete to celebrate the praises of God. It is composed of seauentie two stringes, in formetrlangulare, and the confonaunce thereof, is incompareable.

It was ordained by Morfes, that God should be praised in his Temple, with voices and Instruments; and Christians (afterward) made continuance thereof by finging Pfalmes, both with voices and Organs, which greatly incited Denotion in the verie dullest minds. It was an efpeciall note of civilitie among the Greatans, euen as it is to this day after any feast or Banquet, to play vppon fome Musical Instrument, or to sing anie Ode melodioufly. Which observation, reached into Italy, Germany, Spaine, and France, where much more account is made of a cunning Musition that can ting wel, play on Muficall Instruments, Dance, vie loftie trickes, yet keepe both tune and time, that the cadence of his feete may fit with the Instrument, then of any ydle, neglect or ignorant fellow.

Manie haue attributed the invention of Musicke, and playing on the Lyre or Harpe, to Orpheus; others, to Amphion; the Grecians to Dionysius or Bacchus; but others, to the people of Areadia, because the men of that Countrey, were naturally addicted thereto. The Hebrewes, as Moyfes and lofephus, doe fay; that luball the Sonne of Lamech (who lived in the yeare of the worlde, 1040, manie Ages before Amphion, and al other Musitions, was the Father of all that play vppon the Harpe and Organs; and that he did first finde out the concords of Musicke; nay more, that hee carefully addicted himfelfe, and played both on the Pfalterion; and on the Harpe. As concerning my felfe, I will not deny, that all the fore-named men were good Musitions, but that any one man of them should bee the sole the onelie in inuenter, I can verie hardly therein bee heeke. perswaded.

Rather I am of the minde, that euerie finguler man, according varo the Ages wherein they lived, made addition of their skill and knowledge; and so broght it to the perfection wherein we now find it to bee. And in these verie dayes of ours, there have lived men fo excellent | Muficke and skilfull, as have added divers Rules, which neuer were knowne before, and brought the name of Musick to admired perfection, some inuenters whereof are knowne, but other vncertaine.

Before the Conclusion of this Chapter, I am desirous to set downe two seuerall experiences, concerning the efficacy and might of Musick: which my self faw practifed vpon two Gentlewomen; one of them being de la March, neer to Garet, of Muncke. young, vertuous, and paffable for beautie. This Gentlewoman fell into fuch a furie (by reason of a reporte made vnto her, ofher husbandes inclination, to change and nouell affection) that at euery fudden moment of time, shee woulde throw her felfe headlong into the fire, or out at a Window, or into a Fish-ponde neere to her house; out of which, she had beene rescued two seuerall times; and therefore committed to more dilligent keeping.

Physitions could returne no good by their paines and endeuours, but a religious Capucine passing that way, and crauing his Passade or Almes, at the doore of this Gentlewomans house; and hearing the strangeaccident befaln her gaue them aduife, that some skilfull man, well experienced in playing vppon the Lute, should vse his cunning by her, and not to

The adulte of part from her in some prettie length of a caputine fitfull to her. Further hee added, that in the night time, fome pleating Ditties might well confort with the Muficke, which accordingly was performed; and within leffe then three months space, the violent passion forlooke her; and the re-

of another Gentlewomi of Honor, That no one

Chap.29.

The Historic

Griefes and ercat infirmi

ues cured by

A ftrange ac-brought vnto perfection in our dayes.

Two experi

A Gentlewo ted with iealoufly cured and how.

> The Authour anoucheth the trueth of this Huttorie.

The Authors

maineth at this time found both in mind and bodic.

I likewise knew another Gentle-woman of honor at Aohen, whose name may best be knowne by du Parreau, that al her life time, did neuer vie the helpe of anie Phylicke, how great or grienous foener her infirmities were. But in all hir difea-fes, griefes, hurts, Childe-weakenesses, and lamenesse, thee neuer defired anie better Physition, then one that could artificially play on the Taber and Pipe, and him thee would entitle her true Physiti-

This Gentlewoman being well entred into Age, it happened, that an extreame paine feazed on her knee, immagined to proceede from some tafte of the Cowte'. Whereupon, the would have her Taborer inflantly, to play her a pleafaunt and 20 liuely Carranto. The Taborer being verie willing to please his Mistris made fuch haft to touch his Taber, and founde his Pipe in the best manner : that striuing to exceede himselfe in Art and dexteritie, both in readinesse of his winde, and agility of hand, he fell down in a fwoond vpon the Floore. Hee being difabled from playing any longer, and all there present wondering not a little, to see him 30 lye in fuch stratinge estate, without anie recovery of strength or knowledge, for the space almost, of three quarters of an houre : the Gentlewoman her felfe, euen then complained, that her paine and af-

The Taborer having recovered strength and judgement againe, and indifferentlie refreshed with a sprightly Cup of Wine, fell afresh to his former skilfull Musicall playing, and the Gentlewoman felte her paine immediately to leaue her . I my felfe was in the Chamber when thefe accidents happened; and do auouch vppon my credit, that the Gentlewoman thus lined an hundred and fix yeares.

fliction was neuer so extraordinarilie on her, as in the time of the Musicks so sud-daine ceffation.

Inbriefe, in all well pollicied and ordered Commonweales, men should enstruct their Sons and Daughters in Nuficke, because it mollifieth angrie hearts, affwageth fadnesse, preserueth people in kinde concord and amitie, healeth many melancholy difeafes, and is no mean exciter of the minde to denotion . Plato was of the minde, that the Heauens (in their motion and ftirring) doth make for Musicke and great and melodious an hermonie, that if man could be able to understand it, he tion. would neuer be wearied with abiding in this world.

CHAP. XXIX.

Of Gold, the properties & excellency thereof : Where it is found: How it is extra-Eted purified; and what paine is beftewed in getting it.

E thinkes, I shoulde offer great wrong to Nature, if having written on so made in fundry things, I should and free from the company to company not fay fornewhat conger-ning Gold, it beeing the most excellent faction.

The colour, of all other mettals, yea (in a maner) furpassing all things created in this neather world. For it is faide to be immortall, exempted from all rust and corruption; infomuch, that lying hidden in the earth, in the Water, or in the most putrifyed heape of filth, for fo manie yeares as any one pleafeth, yet it wil neuer receyue or tast of any imperfection; or let it be continually kept in the fire, yet it never diminisheth, neither receiveth any change or alteration.

His colour carrieth resemblance with the beames of the Sunne, which reicy-ceth or cheareth melancholy people It periodions of hath no cuil fauour or tast neither soileth their hands that meddle with it, as all other Mettals else do ; which likewise float aloft aboue Quick-filuer, but Gold only goes to the bottome. If it be received into the bodie, it never offendeth the flomacke, be it either in powder, or folidly in Morfelles : but contrarywife, gitteth chearefulneffe to the heart, and comforteth the vital spirits, whereto other Mettals are often offenfine.

Therefore, let no man enter into anie meruaile, if the World doth make fuch estimation thereof, and prize it aboue all other thinges. For, as concerning the matter whereof it confifteth, a Learned Authour fayeth : That it is composed

The matter wherof Gold is composed being two E lementario fubstances.

Metally bo-

All actions &

endeuour s

thing more, then to the gerting of Gold.

tend vnto no-

dies.

of two Elementarie substances, instlie and equally proportioned. These substaunces then so mingled, being equall and vnited in proprietie, can endure nothing else, but this amiable and concordiall Commixtion, which perfecteth it felfe in the fermentation and knitting togither, making fuch an interligation, and absolute vnion of the one with the other; that it appeareth meerly impossible to dissolue or seperate them. So that, beeit that this enfueth by the influence of the Cele. stiall bodies, or by the diuturnity and power of time, or by the admirable operation of Nature; or elfe, that all these are therein assisting: yet notwithstanding, these Elementarie substances do conuert themselues into a Mettally bodie, which is tearmed Golde . The temperature whereof, with the Colligation and Vnion, makethit so firme and solide, that not only it begetteth a common and vulgar permanencie: but receiueth likewise an incorruptible temperature, as it were, hauing (I know not how) fome what in him, that enricheth and honoureth him, with al the forenamed excellent proper-

Merchants faile by Sea, trauell on the Land, with infinite cares, dangers, and 30 paines, only to get this Gold. The maine intent of Soldiers, that expose themselus enerie moment into the pawes of death, or danger of her perpetuall thraldome, is only to winne Golde. For be it, that they furprize a Citty by affault, or winne the day by triall of battaile : they wil feeke after no other Luggage or Mooueables, but Gold onely and if prifoners labor to redeeme their lives, the ranfome must be 40 Gold only. Schollers, and men experienced in all Arts, their studie & practife is to no other end, but to gaine Golde. If a payment be made to anyi great person, it must be in faire Gold. If guists to Princes, none fitter then Golde. It but betweene Friend and Friend, the courtesie doth best expresse it selse in Gold.

Kinges, Emperours, and Princes, by the meanes of Golde, have made themfelues redoubted and dreadfull, and con- Kingdomes & quered manie potent Provinces. Let Phillip King of Macedon remains as a te- Gold. stimonie; who causing a re-search to bee made in the Mines of Gold which were in his Countreyes (that formerly had bin throughly digged, and quite giuen ouer) found yet fo much remaining, as yeilded him the whole Conquest of Greece and Alexander his Sonne afterward, of all the East. And many times, by the meanes of this excelling Mettall, the same King Phillip, caused impregnable places to bee furrendred to him, which he neuer could haue furprized by power. To approue the truth heerof, Plutark reporteth of the same Phillip, that he hauing befiedged a place, by Nature fo inexpugnable, that his owne followers adnifed him to withdraw from thence : he demaunded of him that had best experience of the faide place, if there were no meanes, to let an Affe (laden with Gold) but goe about it. Whereto aunswere was made, yes doubtleffe. Then Phillip affured himselfe of taking the place, for he that was the Commaunder in it, comming to parlie, and touching the Gold, Submitted himselfe to King Phillip, & the place also.

The Indiaes, which be so farre off, are fought for with danger of death, and vnspeakable trauails of so manie thousands of men, which the Kings of Spaine haue why the Incontinually fent thither : onely for the diaes are fo Mines of Golde, and rich fands fo fre- much trausyquently found in the Rivers. Which atter. neuer would be fo fiercely followed, if I were able to recount, how manie men and women grow negligent of their own honor and good fame, onely by the bale affection of Gold. But let vs nowe fee, where this Golde is found; and in what manner it is come by which I will relate in a Chapter by it selfe, least this should be offensive to the Reader by length.

CHAP.

No fuch flore of Gold now as in former supposed to have Mines of Golde, but

The Neve World emptied of her

Of Golde.

CHAP. XXX.

How Mines of Gold are known where they are: And in what manner the Golde is taken forth & washed.

Chap.30.

Twould require too long a labour to relate all those Regions where Golde is found; for I am perfivaded, that if men did beflow their paines in feeking. Mines wold be found (almost in cuerie Country : yet more in some one, then in other; and of greater ease to be obtained. In manie parts of Germany, Gold is found, as in Bohemia, Transyluania, Lauris, Sibebourg, and many other Countreyes. In England in some few places. In Macedonia in a place called Syderocapsa. In divers parts of Africa, as in Ethyopia, and beyond the reft, in the New worlde, which we improperly tearme India, where Gold is had with much leffe labour, then amongst vs.

Yet howfoeuer it be, nothing can be obtained without labour; and wee must Men find not not thinke, that when men are in the In-Ingotsof gold ready made diaes, they finde Ingots readic made to their hands, and gather vp Golde, as we do ftones vppon the High-wayes. Surely it cannot be fo, for we finde by the Spa. 40 nish Histories, that the more part of the Naturall Indians, do meerely dye with labouring in the Mines of Golde, as being ouer-enforced and constrained vnto hard toyles, and verie badly vsed by the Spaniards.

Now adayes, no fuch plentic of Gold is brought thence, as formerly hath bin, for that which was fent hither, and in fo great quantities, had long time before beene gathered by the Indians . And fo much the rather , because the greater part of their Idolles, were made of malsy Gold; the verie foles of their Shooes, Veffels, and wearing Garments. Their Temples and Royall Pallaces, were all couered quite ouer with Golde, as ours are with Lead, and manie other mooueables, which were too long and tedious to relate. The Next, the great and admirable ranfomes of manie of their Kinges, I paffe ouer in filence, as being at large difcourfed in diners other Bookes. But nowe at this prefent, a new kind of fearch must 10 bee made for Golde, with much difficult labour, and great expence of time, effeccially, to recouer anie fuch quantitie. Therefore, let vs examine the places where it is to be had, and what proceeds ing is vied therein.

Mettally matters have their propper feating in Mountaines, in the fame man Motters of ner, as Trees have their roots, Trunkes Mettals, are Braunches, and Leaues. And those in Mountains and discorned billes, whose toppestend towardes the by colour and South, and their feete ftretch towardes finell of the the North, dooth give a demonstrationto haue Mettall in them, beccause Mettalles doe engender themselves of a veriethicke and groffe humour, which may bee knowne by the colour and fauour, for, it yeeldeth a Blacke coloured, earth, in regard of the Golde and Silner, and fuch is the fauour alfo.

If yee breake two stones, of one and the same hill, if any Mettall be beneath Gold is creain the bowelles thereof; yee shall apparantly perceiue, that the Stones will sanour exceedingly of Sulphure. Where- whaquanner by is to bee vaderstoode, that the first creation or composure of Golde, is in the verie top and highest part of Mountaines, or other loftie places, because the Sunne there purifieth that, which is ouermuch earthy . But when Raynes and Torrents, doe(by little and little) diftill uppon the hilles, they beare the Golde along downe with them vnto the lower partes of those hilles : whence likewife enfucth, that the earth rifting by the Raine, Golde therein encloserh it

Hauing declared sufficiently (as I think). the true Originall of Golde, and of his Mines, I come now to relate, how it is Howe manie come by, as wel in Germany, as in Celicat, discribites of Fern, and other Provinces, be they in the East, West, North, or South, in which how they are places there are divers diversities of med. Graines of Golde in the Riners, or there are, &

Yyy deluc

Of Pendant

Of lying or feded Mines.

Of oblique or winding Mi-

Of riversthat of Golde, and how they wer

Cerémonies

obserued by

Idolaters in out of the getting Gold

descerned.

haue pure &

Mines.

delue and digge in the Rockes & Mountaines, according vnto the places where fuch Mines are discourred. For knowledge whereof, it is to bee vnderstoode, that there be Mines, which are tearmed pendant or hanging Mines; others called lying or fetled; others, oblique, or winding diners waies: and others beside, that are freaming or gliding gently along in the earth or water.

The pendant Mines, be those which are found in the fommitie or superficies of hilles or Mountaines, and haue(from thence) earth underneath them. Those that bee called lying or fer'ed, are fuch as are beneath in the bottome, or playne firme ground, being carried downe thether by Torrents and outragious Raines. And the other which are fayde to be oblique or Circkling, haue their courses thwarting or trauerling, eyther in those which hang, or in the Lying Mines. And all of these, doo disperse and spred themfelues (by the meanes of little Pearling Gullets of Warer) into the neerest neyghbouring Rivers: from whence enfueth, that there are Rivers, generallie thoroughout the World, wherein is Sande and Grauell, appearing as if it were Azure and Golden in Colour, and therein 30 are pure and fine graines of good Gold. But returning to the pendant or hanging Mine, it behooueth heere to know, after what maner the Indians (and divers other Nations, where such matter is in vse and practife) do gouerne and carrie themselues, in getting or deriuing this Mettall out of the earths entrailes.

Before we enter vppon the worke, it is necessarie to knowe, that in the Ea- 40 sterne Countreyes, where the people are Idolaters, fuch men as intend to goe and digge for Gold, and neuer were before at any Mines opening: doe abstaine from their Wines, & all other pleasures of the body, vsing verie solemne Fastes and abstinences, adoring the Sun with earnest prayers. And this they doe, not onely because they hold a firme opinion, that Gold must needes be a sacred thing: 30 but also to arme and settle themselues against Diabolicall Visions and illusions, which they are often subject to in solitarie places, where they raife vp and finde fo precious a Mettall, as they that haue beene in Peru, and the other Neighbouring Countreyes, confessed to have seen, during the time of their there present a-

Gold there is found in the earth, and in Rockie places, bee they the plaines or hilly grounds, where there is no verdure, but all naked and bare. In such partes as are without VV ater, as the experimented ter. and skilful in the Veyns of Mines (knowing for a certainty what can be in fuch an earth) do first wash the place very cleane where they purpose to digge; which being done, they deline about eight or ten foote in depth, and as much in length and largeneffe; then, in a certaine veffell made of purpose, they still doe wash the earth, as it is digged vp. If thus by wa-thing, they finde any Golde, they continue on the labour : but if they find none, Of digging they will not yet give ouer, vntill by digging deeper, they finde out the Rocke, which they breake and pierce thorough done after. with their Instruments, vaulting it daylie as they goe on, with Engines and strong defences of Woodde, that the earth or stones may not fall downe vppon them. Concerning such Mines as are fought for in plaine grounds, they beginne digging (fo neere as possibly they may) vnto plainground fome Brooke, River, Current, or Lake: because thereby (in washing the earth) they may the fooner perceive the Gold; or when any commeth to them, for otherwise, the labour would be too infup- ftoreof flaues portable. And this is the reason, that and how they the richest men in the Indiaes, have store of Slaues, whom they onely employ in digging and deluing, beside other laborers, that bring or draw vppe the earth in Baskets, and others that carrie it to the Water in Panniers or Doffers. In the Water, bee it Riuer, Lake, Brooke, or ! Ofwashing Spring there are divers other flaves, that Sives or Ser fland up about the Knees, washing the faide earth (as it is brought vnto them) in Sines or Scarces, making vie of no more water then is needfull and so dexteriously seperating the Golde from the Earth, that as the earth (by little, and little) glydeth away, fo the Golde remaineth behinde in the Sine or Searce, then afterward, making (as it were) a fecond kinde offeperation, it is put into a Veffell by it felfe, and more earth broght to washing in like maner, and vsed accordingly. Heer

is to be remembred, that they which wash

the Mettall in these Sines or Searces, are most commonly VV omen, who have

The first ma ter then wa-thing the erth

The power-full beames treateth gold

the superfici-

Of Mines in two men, flanding ready to fil their fines; two others, which bring the Earth or Oare to them; two more for lading, and two for fetching, drawing it vp from the Diggers. So much shall suffice for the first manner of bringing Golde from the There are other meanes, and in another manner sas also the place where the Golde is founde, is altogether different.

Confidering, that there are rivers, wher-in both fande and Graines of Golde are found; which for the more case in recouering, if the River bee finall and little,

the Indians labour to emptie and draw it drie. Then taking the fande and Earth in the bottome, they wash it in such fore

Other means and waies for the finding out of Gold.

Chap.30.

Of Golde found within maks or Ri

as hath been declared. But if the River or Spring bee fuch, as it cannot bee made drie: they chaunge and turne the course some other waie, quite from his Naturall Bedde or Cur-Fishing for Gold, is bet-rent. Which beeing done, they go to fecke for Gold in the very middeft of the Channell, amongeft the Pebbles and Flintes: and more profire returneth by this kinde of Fishing, then by washing the digged Earth, as I have truely found by observation. But howfoeuer the Mettall of Golde is thus found out in Rivers, or in the Plaine Fieldes: yet it is helde for moft certaine and infallible, that it was first bredde in the Sommetie and toppes of Hilles or Mountaines; and the vehement showres and falles of Raine (when this Earth was baked and converted into Golde, by the radiant and fplendant beames of the Sunne) by fofte and flow flydings, carried it downe into neere adioyning Rivers and Brookes, which lye apt and readie to receyue whatfoener is fent downe by Torrents from the Mountaines; as also, into the vnder-ceuen grounds.

Therefore, there is no further question to be viged, but that Golde hath his Originall in the superficies of the Earth, and breedeth in the most secret partes thereof. So that Mines are oftentimes 50 made like vnto Cauernes and Grottes: whereof, and likewise of Mines in the Mountaines, wee doe now purpose to speake.

The Indians, doe vie another kinde of meanes for the finding of Golde, which is much more daungerous; and is also oblerned in those Countreyes, fulfelic called the VVeft indicate vea it is likewife vied in the Northerhe Regions, rowards the higher Sue/sia, Gurhia, and paires of the Varines; all joyning to the kingdome of Narway

This interior of emptying Mines, is How Goldis observed in those that are pendant, to gotten out of wit Mines of the Mountaines. In which pendat Mines labour, diners Engines are cimployed; which proper and vaulted Tables vied, to hinder the Mines of the daunger hourely to bee feared, begange, Mountaines, great perilles dooth ordinarily happen : For, fome haue beene doted, in VVorking to vndermine the Rocke, to be on Great danger the fuddaine murdered, with the fall of in the pendar great Stones, breaking out of the hole or Monaraine lowe riftes. Others, that climbe and Mines. grapple along the sharpe steepie Rockes. with Doffers and Baskets faftened vnto their backes, feeking for the Oare of the Mines, to carrie it vnto the VV ager, by beeing altogether vnable to holde theyr owne waight any longer, fall downe and are defroyed.

But, that this businesse might be put in execution, with much leffe daunger, A commodifome haue inuented a verie great wheele, ous wines guided and directed (in fonce places) by Workmen in Horffes but for lacke of fuch help, men the Golden do therein employ their strength and industrie. By the meanes of this wheele, they let downe and mount vppe againe, the Delucrs and Diggers in the Mine; and those also that carrie the Oare to wathing. This VVheele ferueth likewife. to conuey away the VVater which the Diggers happen to light on, verie deepe in the Earth. Another great daunger which I do observe in this search, is the Thenoysome noyfome exhalations yffuing out of the fauors & ex-Mines, whereby many people have been Mines. flifled, not being able to endure fo groffe an Ayre. Many times also, rauines and invadations of water happeneth, fuddenly breaking foorth, by fome ouerture of the fourfe or Spring, and ouertaketh or rather furmounteth them fooner, then they can have respite for giving warning to them alofte, for drawing of them uppe. And therefore, those as The qualitie'

bee employed in this laborious paines & of fuch as vntrauaile, commonly are fuch as haue de- dergo: the ferued the Halter : or elfe, theyr ovene greateft dan-Slaues, whose Lines are of lesse esteeme

Yyy 2

vnto them. then are some of theyr best

Beafts.

fions and De-

Diuellish Vi.

Opinion con-

Wee are further to knowe, that the Golde which is found in the Indiaes, is not so much charged with Mettalles, as that which is hadde in Europe, Asia, or Affrica: because it is farre more pure, and yeeldeth not fo much labour to the Purifier . For that Golde of the Indiaes, is fined or purified only by fire : but that elswhere(ouer and beside the fire)is beaten and re-beaten with the strokes of hamours; and then in the end, refined with strong Water. Also, rarely or sildome

Gold in graines beeing founde in Ri

Fable of the Goldé-ficece do they find any pure Gold in the Mine: but it is intermedled with Siluer, or fome other Mettals. As for the Golde in Graines, which is found in Rivers and perling Brookes, they vsed (in some parts) to gather it with the helpe of Sheepes skinnes, that hadde the Wool on them : but because it ap- 20 peared to bee ouer-laborious, the vie of Quicke-filuer was denifed; whereby it is eafily knowne among the fand. From which maner of trying or finding Gold, the Fable of the Golden Fleece was inuented, which lalon and his Argonantes, fayled for to Pontus. And having attained so farre as the River Phasis, where the Countrey people found out and gathered their Golde, with such Wooll skinnes: they derined thence, many good Golden Arguments, and could tel store of Tales, at their returning home. But bee it how focuer Ialon and his followers Fleeced, and got all the Golde from the Colchians, which they had gathered for manie yeares together, with their sheepskinnes: And then gaue it out in a mockery, that they had conquered and woonne

Gold.

the Fleece of

CHAP, XXXI.

Whence the diversitie of Golde proceedeth: His Medicinable Vertues. Of visions and illusions that are mette withall in Mines. And of the deceite that is committed in the composition, which is called Aurum potabile.

Ome do hold, that in the whole vniuerfall Worldes, there is but one kinde of Gold only; and that (generally) wherefocuer it is found, or whence foeuer it commeth: if it be well refined and purified without anie commistion, it is continuallie good Gold . Alfo, that that which is drawne out of the verie coldest Regions in the world, is as good as that of the verie hottest parts. And that of the East is no more excellent, then the other of the West. But when Finers, Gold-fmiths, and Monnovers, do attribute divertitie of Names thereto, esteeming one kinde to bee of the duters much greater price and value then ano- kinds of gold ther (as we may note for example; one is and of their tearmed Ducate Golde, another Crown Gold, another Maille Golde, or Or de Maille, another Pistolet Gold, valewing xxi. Carrats, another eighteene, and fo of others; some more, some lesse:) Questionlesse, these Names and dignitics, did receive their birth and Original in divers Countries, where Gold had beene adulterated and fophisticated, by the vnfaythfulneffe of Workemen, and multiplyed with other minglings of Metals, of much leffer value, and farre inferiour in puritie to the other . Which multiplication, hath beene invented, according vnto on began in Modernemotheir will and humour, that laboured to augment our moderne Moneyes. As for

Ducates, Crownes, * Fhilirpus, * AnGoine worth Gis. Sterling
gelots, and * Portugaloifes, they were di'Our English Coinc worth uerfly forged of pure and impure Gold, and the inuention hath not beene Mogue, word: iii. li.x.s.Sterling

For wee finde, that from the time of the Romaines Greatnesse, the Commonwealth mon-wealth being not able to fupply the expences of their warres: did fometimes diminish the prices of their moneyes, for an ouer-plus gaine and aduantage. Likewife, they fophisticated their purest Siluer, enter-mingling it with an cyght part of Copper, onely because they wold encrease it. Some (neuerthelesse) contrarie to the opinion of Antiquitie, and of many, ve-rie skilfull in matter of Mettals, doe fay

the contrary, to wit; That the Fasterne

Golde is much better then the Nor-therne; and better in one Country then in another. Byt as for my felfe, I holde the first Opinion, as beeing perswaded, that Nature neuer tooke delight, in making one Elementarie fabitance of gold, more fine or perfect then another. For,

hee is fo much the neater and purer in 20

It is no shame then to vs. if we hold farre about all other Riches, and valew it in our judgement, to bee more precious then all other Mettalies whatfoeuer. For, Nature confulting with her tie, truely correspondent to the Symmetrie and inft proportion of the Elementes, yeeldeth it readilic purifyed from the verie Originall, according as the selfesame Elements were truely simple.

And by Conjunction of those Elements, beeing in Vertue equall together, was engendered fuch a Delicate and perfect mixtion of indiffoluble Vnion, compo-fing the Connexion fo intirely and faithfully: that it formed an incorruptible

Paste or substaunce, which is permanent vnto all Eternitie both in goodnesse and

And this is the cause, why it cannot bee Conquered by the injuries of Antionely, aboue all other Mettalles whatfelie, to compose it of an equall quanti- 39

Opinion contrary to Antiquity & men of skil in Mc

Chap.31.

There is only but one kind of Gold, ion to aproue his qualitie, as the Elements are simple, whereof hee is framed or compo-Golde in fuch excellent estimation,

The purity of

Gold cannor

Multiplicati-

neure an ex-crefeence of fowle Commixtion.

quity, and that it will not containe in it felfe, nevther endure anie excrescence and superfluity of fowle commixture. For, although it remaineth as buried in the W ater, or in the Fire, for fome long space of time: yet notwithstanding, it is neuer blemiffied, neyther receyueth anic other qualitie or defect, as I have for merly fayde. This is the priniledge, which is alone perticuler vnto Golde excellencie.

focuer.

Now, albeit the Gracians have spoken nothing of his properties and Medicinable vertues: yet the Arabians were The Medicinot therein forgetfull, because they appointed it in prepared Medicaments, to 91 Gold. enacuate fullen and Melancholie Hu-

Item, to make an actuall Cautere, especiallie in his Soueraigne qualitie, it must onelie be done with Golde: for the with Golde. Wound which it maketh and Vicerates, is much more the fooner healed, Goldmakerh Golde held within the mouth, maketh fweet breath. the breath good and sweete. The Filedust of Golde, pounded or beaten smallest on a Marble stone is verie good Gold restoin fuch Medicines, as are given for the rethlodnaire re-growing of Haire againe, after it hath been formerly loft: or for Ring wormes and Tetters, when it is fo finall beaten as it may bee fearfe differned under the Thumbe Naile: then putting it into the eyes, it is very fourraigne for clearing of with the eye

Gold preferthe fight. It is drunke also, for a prefernatine against the accidents and dann-

(made red hotte in the Fire) hath beene fome few times quenched : or, wanting Goldquenched in Water an Ingot, a Ducate, Portugue, or forme helpeth the fuch other thick and great piece of gold: Qiartain A that Water, mingled with wine, helpeth the Quartaine Feauer, purgeth the Me-lancholy humor, diminificith the puft vp Spleene or Milte, and is also a singulare remedy against the Dropsie.

tings of the heart.

Nor are those reports to be reputed as Fables, concerning enill Spirites or Damons, which have bin feene and hearde Spirits haunin Mines: for this is the most irkeform and are verse dandangerous thing, that hurteth and offen gerous to the deth the poore Mettally Pioners. And Poor Pioners. manie times, they behold the rowling of great stones from the maine Rocke, their Engines fuddenly broken all to peeces; their Ladders ouerthrowne, and the Cords (whereby they holde) broken in funder; so that the parties fall beyond all recoucty. Others have bin rapt and transported fuddenly away, and never after eyther feen or heard of. These hurtful spirits are thought alfo to do them infinit finall feruices, as to them that draw white Mine, and cleave the great stones of the Rock, (which is thought fometimes impossible

Water, wherein an Ingot of Golde uiceable for a while, and hurtiui átter:

to be done, without fuch strange help) & counterfetting a thouland voices, with as manie Apith and fantasticke trickes, for the pastime and pleasure of such poore people in their labour . But verie foon after, except they be aduifed and careful of themselues, a peece of the Rocke fals on their heades, and then this joy is conuerted into teares and fad complaintes. theidolatrous And this happeneth more in the Indiaes, and amongst those Idolaterous people, then where any Christians are, or fre-

Belonius his

More among Indians, then

any wher els.

(a, where the Mines are, that appertaine to the Turke: himfelfe went to peepe in, at one of the spiracles or breathing holes of a Mine, which had formerlie beene, (but not for a long while) of great reuennew to his Maister, who was a Iew; but as then hee was conftrained to forfake it, because it was haunted with a Mettallie Spirit. And because he had very often theware himfelfe, in the forme and likeneffe of a Goate, with faire and goodlie Hornes of Golde, they called that hole or Spiracle, Hyaris Cabron, which was at the top of a Village, named Pianits, in the fame Mountaine, and neer to the Brook, 30 tearmed Rotas. But this was fuch a dif-

there were divers other mettally Spirits, in their labours. Munster, who had viof the Cittie of God.

Aug.in lib.9.de

An angry dif-

contented

Deceite com . mitted by Quackfaluers

Belonius reporteth, that when he was in Greece, at the Mountaine of Syderocapcontented Deuil, as none might be fuffered to labour there, neither in company, nor alone. He affirmeth alfo, that in other Mines, that would doe no harme to anie of the Workemen, but helpe them many waies fited fundry Mines in Germanie, records 40 the verie same. To yeelde a reason for these marters, I cannot: but referre it to fuch as are better feene in fuch thinges, then I am my felfe : yet Saint Augustine speaketh verie amply thereof, in his book

But before I end this Chapter, I wold aduertife the well minded Reader, to beware of certaine gadding Emperickes or Mountebankes, making profession of Phylicke, who gine vnto lickely people a kinde of powder, or a certaine liquor to drinke, which enforceth the bodie for to purge so violently both vpward & downward, that verie many haue died thereby. Concerning mine owne judgment heerin, I take it to be Antimonie, though they

please to tearine it, Aurum Potabile. For, | durii Potabile. if it were Gold, it could not do any harm: for what soener proceedeth of Gold, cannot but be good, and free from hurt. But under the shaddow of his Sacred vertue, fuch Conferuers have taken occasion to commit thereby verie great abuses. As there are some also, that Nursing young Children after their owne manner, doo let them champe double Ducats in their Yong Chilmouths: and then their flauer or fpettle drendrivell is to bee preserved: affirming it to be veric helpeful to divers diseases.

But because these are enident and apparant tromperies; I am of the minde, that it wil not paffe any long time vnpunished.

Thus you fee, what I have Collected out of manie good Authors, both Anci-20 ent and Moderne; as also the judgement of approoued good Metallers, concerning the true History of this so excellent & much affected Mettal: which althogh it looke sometimes verie pale, it only proceedeth thorough the enuie and defire, that euerie man (Naturally) beareth vn-

CHAP. XXXII.

The Interpretation of those three severall Titles, Democratia, Aristocratia, Monarchia, which are three diners kindes of Governement in a Commonwea'th, to under Stand which of them, is the best and most expedient.

Did purposely insert this Chapter, to declare the The Authors great errour of manie in resson forthis thele our dayes, who beholding feditious troubles to offend the autho-ritie of Soueraign Princes (without any cause or subject) in too manie countries and parts of Christendome; would have Common-weales formed, according to their perticuler affections, fome being Democratiques , others, Aristocratiques, and are all vtter Enemies vnto absolute Monarchy. Nowe, beecause these three wordes are not easily understood, except it be by fuch men as have knowledge in the Greeke tongue; the courteous Reader shall finde my honest furtherance therein; albeit Monsieur du Verdier, Lord of Vauprinaz, hath written and related somewhat thereof, yet very succincily. But I will alleadge the reasons both of the one and other, to the end it may be knowne, which of thefe kindes 10 of Common wealth is the best, and likell to be of longest continuance.

The definition of Demo-TALIA.

These three words not ca fily vnder-

flood by cue

ry man.

Of Ariflocratia

When this kind of go-

uerr ment is allowed.

which we may interpret in our language, to be the power of the most vertuous. and in Latine, Optimarum Principatus : in regard, that they are reputed to be very good and vertuous, as commonly wee hold our best Gentlemen to be. This forme of government taketh place, when as few Noblemen are approoued vertuous, either in learning or good manners; to fway the Soueraignetie of the whole body, and minister Lawes to the rest of the people, as well in generall, as in perticular . Monarchia, is that 30 awefull authority, when one alone hath

The Source raigne authoity of Royal-

Many thinges o indeed.

Their renfons that defend the iway of Popularity.

Democratia, or populary estate and preheminence, is a Common-weale, where the free and poorest (beeing the greatest number) do ouer-rule and commaund all the reft . Aristocratia, is that the fole power ouer all the people, both Nobles and others, commaunding abfolutely.

Common-weale, is called Royaltie. And me-thinkes, now that I have given yee the fignification of these three Titles : it would not much varry from our purpole, to fet downe which of them is 40 the most profitable to the people, tollerable, and of longest continuance. For many reasons and Arguments may bee produced on either fide, fome whereof will feeme to be receiveable; which neuerthelesse are not, and therefore I hold it fittest, to let them bee tried by open euidence.

This forme of government in any

First then, such as approue the estate of Democratia, or popularitie, will al- 50 leage vnto vs : that there have been Demorratics, of the very worthieft men in Armes, and that by the Lawes of the very greatest Intisconfults, Oratours, and Artezans, there should not be any other Common-weales, where the faction of a few Lords among them, or the lealouse of one fole Monarchi should hinderstie subjects in any great attempts. And, which is more, it appeareth, that the true note of a Com- Generall bemon-wealth, should consist in a popu- people. lar estate onely: for then, all the people enioy the publike good, cach man pertaking in common good fortunes, spoyles, wages, and conquests. Wheras a few Lords in Aristocratia, and one alone in Monarchy; convert the publike benefit to perticular interest. In briefe, if there be nothing more to bee defired, then that Magistrates should be obedient to the Lawes, and subjects to Magistrates: it appearethalfo, that these may be best observed in a popular estate, wherethere is nothing else but Law, who is the Lady and Mistresse of Lnw the Lady and Mistris all. These are the principall points that of all. can be alleaged, to vphold popular authority, which carrieth a goodly lufter in apparance : but indeed, all thefe reafons are nothing elfe in effect, but meer Spiders webs, foft, gentle and cunningly wouen, yet of no validity or strength of Lawes, one repugnant to another, which Magistrates suffered to line in fulpence, during the time as they exercifed their Offices; neuer caring or respecting, whether they were beneficial or hurtfull, but onely that some memory might remaine of them, after the expiration of their authority. This was had no Houses in Rome, should avoide and get them gone. Virginius, his companion in rule, caused the confrary also to be published, to make the people capable of fuch a Law as he would promulgate, and to flesh the Inhabitants

(in the harr of the Citty) against the Strangers. By reason of these two contrarie Lawes, some were found, that

To refute that which hath been faid, A refutation of a popular estate, or Common-wealth, we will begin with the first Al-alleaged. legation: that therein hath been found more Law-makers, Orators, good captaines, and Handy-crafts men, then in any other. It is very certaine, that the why there cause of so many Law-makers in this were so many estate, proceeded from the contrarietie Law-makers.

an ordinary custome in Kome, as may be Example of noted, when the Confull Cassius proclaimed by the found of a Trumpet; Pagamathis that all the Latines and Hernians, which affociate.

The cause of fish ftore of Captaines.

beneficial tor

Souldsours,

then Citizens

bufily therein, were termed great Law Cittizens blood and lines.

Of Oratours, and eloquent Speakers.

Ignorant peo ple affect praifes.

Confusion is tude of pco.

Titus Links in Lib.7. 6 8.

studyed how to glose and accord these differences, and they that medled most makers. If (in this condition) fuch great Captains have bin found; it grew by no other occasion, but that in such popular estares, civill Warres were orderlie very frequent. Hecreof let Rome be a Winnesse, where oftentimes the people were beheld in a heape on the one fide, and the Nobility on another fide, fometimes in three devisions. Or, if they had peace among themselues; then they were at Warre with their Neighbours . And indeed, through this continuall exercise of Armes, there were many good Captaines and Souldiours made but with the dear expence of the

For Oratours, because any people that commonly are without Letters or learning, or any store of judgement, doe affect such as praise them the that can best please by those meanes, tickling the eare with finery wordes: (hall be fure to be efteemed among fuch people, and eloquence is very dangerous, except it be well vied. For the attaining of which degree, Oratours contend in the Art of Rhetoricke, who shall speake sinoothest. And it is no matter of meruaile if excellent Orators bee found in popular estates : for there was a Demosthenes in Athens, and a Cicero in kome. Morcouer, to aske counfell of the people, as anciently it was don in popular Comonweales : were nothing elfe, but to request Wisedome from furious mad men, and it hath long past 40 as a well knowne Prouerbe; Wile Men propound, and Fooles give resolution. Moreoner, we know very well, that in an affembly of people, nothing can be kept fecret, which is a most pernitious thing. The difficulties enfuir g, by conuentickling a multitude of people in one place, the diforder among croudes and throngs, the variety of voyces, and inconstancy of men of many minds; all these I passe ouer.

The people, of their owne Nature (faith Titus Liuius) are infolent and exceffine in all liberty and licence, when matters goe well with them; and as deiected or downe-pressed are they, vpon the least losse: for vicious and impudentmen, are advanced among them, but the honest and vertuous are thrust out by the eares. As for in-Iustice, the people fay, let no care be had thereof: prouided, that profit may bee deri- good men no ued from judgements, and fold to the way regarded fairest offerer : that good meanes may bee had, to ruinate, Rich, Noble, and honest men, hurrying them without any cause, but meere capitall hatred to fuch good mindes; contrary to the many-headed humour and Nature. For this cause, the popular estate or Common-weale, is the fourfe and refuge of all turbulent spirits mutiners, seditions, and exiles: who gine councell comfort and exites: who gate counter connote and refiftance to the fillier fort, to make nite mifchies hauocke and spoile of the greater. But yet there is a more capitall plague, Titus Linius attending vpon those popular Common- 116.7. 48.

weales. to wit : impunity of wicked perfons, provided, that they bee Cittizens, that is to fay, petty Kinges. For in a popular estate of the Romaines, it was prohibited to all the Magistrates, on paine of death = to condenue a Cittizen to naturall or civill death, or to deprive him of decordinarihis libertie or Bourgeship, or to whip ly accompany him with Rods; were his offence neuer popular on haue ordinarily no other obiect, but | 30 fofoule. Yetwe read', that Verres was accused, attainted, and convinced, to haue robbed, stolne, and committed an hundred thoufand concuffions, or publike extortions, and falle indgements: neuertheleffe, by parting out of Rome, & leaving a good moity of those thefts Offenders behind him; he was quitted. And yet Innocents Rutillius, Metellius, Coriolanus, the two banuhid. Scipioes, and Cierro, they could have no better fauour then banishment. Ephesus alfo could banish the vertuous" Hermodoins: Athens expulsed inft Aristides: the twelve Themistocles died in exile; Militades in Tables to be Pulcin; Socrates was put to death; and * Photion, the most intire and vertuous *He was man of his age, after he had bin chofen Scholler to fine and forty times chiefe Captain and Commaunder, neuer receiving any of wonderfull blame or taxation, yet not with standing constancy & without admittance of any answere, he was condemned to death, with forty other famous men, onely because they were his friends. States & degrees were Degrees and therefold alfo, even as they did at Rome: Offices for Marius durft boldly bring Sumpters bought with Money. laden with Money, to buy the voyces of the people; and Pompey did the like.

Bad men ad.

nocrates, and

The reason why the common wealth ters hath conunued fo

The concussions beside were an incredible matter, made in the face of judgement, and before the eyes of all behol-Much conformable to this, was that of Statocles, and Democlides, Athenians, who when they took possession of their Offices, Come on (quoth they) let vs now goe to the Harnest of Gold. If then fuch eftares, degrees, and Inflice it felfe were 10

Extortion & in luftice committed in Example of the Megaren-es to their fo vnworthily fold, in two fuch great Common-weales, enriched with the spoyle of other people: what then may men judge of the popular preheminence, where the poore are alwaies needy, wretched and indigent? Wee haue an example of the Megarences, who having expulsed their Prince Theagines, established such an irregular populare gouernment, that it was lawfull 20 for the poore to line in rich mens Houfes, as Plato hath very well recorded.

Common-weales of the Romaines, Athenians, or others, hadde fome time of flourishing: it was onely occafioned, by hauing (in those tempestuous daies) a Senate, full of men of honour, as also of worthy and vertuous Captaines, that kept the people from difordering themselves, and served (indeed) as a bridle to them; As in Rome there a Mennius Agrippa, a Camillus, a Papyrius Curfor, a Fabius Maximus, a Scipio, a Cato, a Scaurus, and a Pompey. In Athens, there was a Senate of the Ariopagitas,

And a Pericle (faith Thucidides) who was the true Monarch thereof, though in apparance it was meerely populare, In briefe.

the popular estate can have no long fubfifting; if there be not some especiall Wife-men, that have an eye to the

Now we are to know, that if the Thucidides in

Lords of

Leagues and ties, in their

The reason

why any popular estate

time of conti

harh forme nuance.

gouernment. But some will object vnto me, and fav: doe we not fee the Lordes of Leagues and Confederacies, that they haue built vp a goodly popular eftate, and continued in the government therof, more then three hundred and fiftie yeares? Are they not also (by these 50 meanes) warranted not onely from tyranny, but likewise have given chase to Tyrants, infulting on their Neighbors? To a double demannd, we must needes returne a double answere. First, the Country it felfe, and naturall disposition of the people, is very conucnable for a popular effate. In the fecond place, they that are most quarrellous & mutinous, doe goe to the feruice of other strange Princes: the rest of the mil der people, apt and easie to be ordered, they have no great care how the State flands.

and popular Common-weales, do enter into confederation offenfine and defenfine, and are vnited strictly together : Not much valike to fuch as walke in darke nights, or goe over flipperie places, where is danger of downe-fals, A very apt they holdone another fast by the hand, companion. and in this manner they maintaine themselues, against the power of Monarchies, as the Athenians and Thebanes did in those elder daies. Yet one thing more may not bee forgotten, the foundation of their popular effate: was builded and cimented with the blood of Nobility, and of those that were the very richest.

Our auncient Predecessours, for the better affurance of their estates; did ftring to equalize all their Cittizens in Fondity is al Goods, Honours, Power, and recom- waies moft pences, and if there were some one, respected in more inft, more vertions, and more Commonwife then the rest : if he were not bani- wealth. flied, he was vied as badly, for al things possible was taken from him, euen as it was a common practife in the Common weale of Athens. It is an act of great in-luftice, to take away the goods of a rich man (which he hath obtained by his care and industry) and make them equall to another, of no meritor worthy qualitie. It is also contrary to the Law of God, who hath exprefly commaunded, that the proprietic of mens goods, thould be kept to themselves. It God: law for behooveth not then to fay, that nature the propriety of mes goods. made al things in common: for the law of the Mother, can no way be contrary to the commaundement of the Fa-

And as for the power of commaunding, wherin popular men would equal one another : there is much leffe apparance then in goods: for wifedome and leleting. Maprovidence is not given by an equal giftrates and distribution, and therefore (on meere Officers in a necessity) election must bee made in a stare. popular estate, of the most sufficient Magistrates, for the better commaund ther.

Moreouer, all the Lords of Leagues,

and haue leffe judgement then brute beafts: yet others againe, who have the divine Carracter fo clearely, that they appear rather to bee Angels, then Men? All finde one among a thousand.

which notwithstanding, they that seeke after equality; would have authoritie giuen to furious, ignorant, and infenfi- 10 ble Men, as well as to the wife, and best understanding. For the voyce of such affemblies is not poyzed by weight, and euermore the number of Fooles, wicked and ignorants, is a thousand times greater then people of respect : therefore Salomon faid truely, Hardly ye shall

For conclusion, seeing it is not in the and delivery of Iustice. But who is he then, that perceitteth not at first fight, that among men there are some, who pular eftate.

Where lawes

Equalitie ef Authority in power of good Cittizens and wife pol- 20 litiques, to change the populer estate into Monarchie; the principall foundation of popular fway, confifteth in the ftrict observation of Edicts and Ordinances. For in as much as the popular estate is established, contrarie to the course and order of Nature, which be-Stoweth commaund and preheminence on the verie wisest: this appeareth incompatible to the vulgar people, who | 30 will not receive any commaund in a collectine name, neither fet good lawes and ordinances before their eyes, as bright Torches for their better directiand ordinan on therefore fuch an estate must needs be quickly ouerthrowne. And this feuerelykept, be quickly ouerthrowne. And this the state can is the reason, why those Lordes of hardly indure Leagues doe fo strictly keepe Edicts > fome to the Reader : the matter of Ari-Stocratia and Monarchia, shall be handled (by themfelues) in the following Chapter.

> and Ordinances: otherwife, their estate regard that this Chapter feemeth ample enough, and (I hope) not weary-had long fince beene funke. Now, in 40

CHAP. XXXIII.

That Monarchia ought most especially to be preferred before Democratia or Aristo-GYASIA.

Y naturall reason, that Seigneuric or Dominion of the Arish is cald Ariflocraticall, where there be many Cittizens, and the leffer part of them doe hold the estate : or more properlie, where the best and woorthiest people are onely received and aduanced. And yet it may be saide, that soucraignetie ought to be giuen to the richest perfons only, as to them that have therein the greatest interest : considering also, that they beare much heavier charge then the poorer fort, who having nothing to loofe, meere neede maketh them to forgoe authority. It appeareth then, that Aristocratia should be preferredbefore the popular estate, but not before Monarchia. And yet doubtlesse, they that doe well confider what Ariftocratia is; will finde it full of maine in- Thereafons commodities. That it must needes be of them that fo, make fome observation. In a great Common-wealth, ye shall have many Lords that wil command, and the more Lords there be, the greater store of factions: among whom, deliberations being difficult to refolue on, they rather vanish away like smoake, then are serioufly confidered. For this cause is it, that Aristocraticall authorities haue bin The fewer much longer durable and affored, wher Lords, the there have bin the fewer Lords : As the firmer go. Lacedemonians with thirty Lordes, and Ariflocratia.

others not halfe the while. It may be objected vnto me, that they which gouerne the Arisiocratical efface; thereto. must be prouident, valiant, wife, and rich. I answere, that it is very hard to finde fuch men there, but at length they will be touched with ambition; and if there happen any to be conscientious, or religiously affected; as commonlie they are the fewest in number, so shall the Phar (alians with one and twentie, did long time maintaine their rule, but

A litle country of Greece. by the gulfe riffeus.
* An life before Ionia, ouer against A Citry of Caria. A Cittie in kept in quiet.

they be fure to have the leffe respect & partakers. In which regard, wicked and ambitious men gaining eminency; their conclusions passe for autenticall, and they may the easier tyrannize ouer the people.

The inconueniences hap-pening in the Sate Ariflo-

Chap.33.

The Seigneury of Venice.

> An allegation concerning councell.

But to be briefe, it is daily feene, that the more heads there are in governing, the more diffoures there will be an leffe refolution. For this caufe, and to thun the inconveniences before alreadged; the Seigneury of Ven ice, on other the managing of their State at a second a dozen persons, but more ofteruen: especially, for the detail. matters in fecrecy, wherein lieu, the foule and fafety of any Estate.

Let vs put the case, that the private Councel in Aristocratia should be so fecret, that nothing could touch the ayre 20 or wind: yet it will bee a very difficult thing, for so few Lordes, to maintaine their estate against all the people, that haue no part at all in their honourable qualitic, confidering, that even the Lordes themselves doe continually despise popularitie, and the poorer fort alfo cary as cotemptible hatred against great men. So that, thorough the meanest sedition of Lordes among them, cuerthrow of (which is incuitable, if they bee people of martiall flomacke and disposition) the most ambitious and troublesome, will fall into the peoples mercy, and then comes the downefall and ruine of Aristocratia. And this was the onely occasion that ouerthrew many Seigneuries and Common-weales; as of Gennes, Sienna, Florence, Cologne, Zuricke, Strafbourg, Lindaw : And the ancient " Phocenses, * Samians, * Cnydians, * Mytilenians, and many other. If an Aristocraticall Common-weale haue warre against a Stranger, and doe come to the loffe of a battel : the estate stands in danger, and as little assurance haue the Stangers also, fearing to bee foyled by the other. To which dangers the popular estate is not so much subicct each man having a part & interest in the Stare. Aristocraticall gouernment then, is not onely in danger of Straungers as enemies: but also of the people, who must be contented, or restrained by power. To content them, without giving them part in the estate is verie difficult : and impossible also to accept them in honorable charges and offices, without changing the citate of Aristocratia, into popular rule. To restraine them by might, is no matter of certainty, or easie when to be performed : beciuseit were an open entrance into feare and diffrust of them, that rather are to be won by benefits and courtefic. For otherwife, the least warre of Stranreis against the Seignerry, or of Lords ameng them; wilmake the people vnde take Armes, onely to throw off the

For this reason, the Venetians (10 manthow fome finall Offices on part of the on of the Vepeople, contracting loue and alliance with them, & vie borrowings of them; to bi, de them the better for the States maintenance, yet wholely difarming them. And to the end, that they may be the more milde and plyable : they grant them freedome, and allkindes of pleaforce, yeilding fometimes the right of Bourgeships, to the richest Cittizens. Alfo, if they have War against a Stranger ; they have appointment therein, at what rate focuer it be . But about all Partialities thinges elic, they labour to quench par- and harreds tialities and hatreds among their Gen- qualified atlemen, which procureth: that the rich demen, beeing drunke with pleafures, and the poorer fort having meanes to Traffick, and exercise theselues in all Mechanic Aris, with commodity of the Maritime partes, and naturall strength; they can haue no great occasion, but much lesse

These are the onely meanes, which (next vnto God) hath principally maintained their estate: and not the Nature of Artstocratia, as many haue imagined. And yet notwithstanding, within these foure hundred yeares, or there-about, pening within they have hardly out-stood many civill four hundred Warres and feditions, of the Bocchoui- yeares. ans, Falerians, Tepolians, Baiemontanes, and cruell factions of the Iustinians, Seenolaes, Selians, Bassianes; the murders of eighteene Dukes, and a great number of Senators, as may be read in their own Histories.

the power of rebellifting among them-felues.

If the worthy men that gouerned this Common-wealth, were generous and martiall minded: they feized the State, as Cefar did at Lome, and as Sylla before

For this reason, the Venetians (: o main-

Troubles hap

Daunger of Martial Com maunders in sall effate.

pall foundati on ot Arijiocritia.

The long con tinuance of fome Ariftoeraticall Common-weales.

Care of new election is an especiali mat-

The discomfuing by Mohim. Or as Hanniball at Carthage, who mooued Warre against the Lomaines, whereby he became the cause of rumating the estate of his Countrey: in regard of the Barchian faction, which was quity contrary to him, and hindred, that men and fuccour should bee fent vnto him in Italy. We may perceiue then, that the principall foundation of Aristocratia, confifteth in the mutuall amity of Lords: for if they agree and confent together, they will maintaine and gouerne much better then the people. But if there be any faction among them, there is no estate more difficult to be kept, for the reasons before specified; and namely it the Lords be Martiall, for men of war doe brooke nothing fo badly, as peace. It is no maruaile then, if the Aristocra- 20

tia of the Venetians, Regulians, and Lucanes have continued fome ages : confidering, that they doe not addict themfelues to armes, neither hold any thing in more recommendation, the Traffick, and vse of Mony. And, to speake all in one word, there is not any forme of Ariflocratia more fightly or affured, then that which maketh choise of Lordes of reputation and vertue, or (at least) that 30 are not infamous: especially when due care is had, of substituting another honest man, in the place of him that dieth, and by true election, as continuallie is done in Venice. Thus you fee the commodities and discommodities of the Aristoeraticallestate: Let vs now speake fomwhat concerning Monarchy, which all the best and chiefest men haue commended before al other commonweals. 40

It may be objected vnto me, by fuch as approone Aristocratia or Democratia, that in Monarchia, when the death of the Monarch happeneth: new defleignes doe thereon enfue, new Lawes, new Officers, new Friends, new Enemies, new Habits, and new forme of life. For Princes delight to pleafe themselues, by changing and remoning (well-nere) all things, to make speech of their own | 50 nouelties : which oftentimes caufeth great discommodities, not onely to the Subjects in perticular, but likewife to the whole bodie of the Commonwealth, holding the forme of Monar-

If things do not fall out in this manner, but that the Prince is the wisest that can be wished; yet the alliances & loues made with the Predecessor, do vfually end in him. And fuch fauours and ceede in and respects beeing finished, Princes doe thereon betake themselues to Armes; and then the strongest assayleth the weakeft, or (at the leaft) will give him Law. Which cannot fo fall out in E-10 Itates Popular and Aristocratical, where perpetuall alliances are made, confidering that the people dye not. This occasioneth, that those other Princes, and particulers, do continually affect rather The affection to contract with a Seigneury, then with one Prince, for the affurance of Treaties and Obligations, whereto the Successionrs of Princes stand not obli-

Moreouer, Monarchies that make their Kings by election, do oftentimes their fources fall into civill Warres, by divisions among such as aspire to the Crowne, which draw after them the ruine of the whole Estate many times: confidering that even in the right of succession, there is no meane perill, if there be diuers in the same degree, who sometimes do murder one another, or make diuision among the Subjects, whereof too many examples are extant to our eyes; yea, it often falleth out, that the lawfull Successour is expulsed, by him that hath no right at all . But admit we If the King the case, that there is not any contenti- what danger on in Monarchia, yet if the Monarch be are depena Child: there will be denifion for his | ding thereon gouernment, betweene his Mother and the Princes, or elfe among the Princes themselues. And if the Child haue a Tutour or Guardian, by ordinance of the Predecessour, or elicby Custome: there is then some daunger, least this Guardian should make himfelfe Sole Commaunder, which is the most to be feared, if he marry with the Mother of his Pupill. And although (to anoyde this daunger) the government be given to the neerest, and the Dangerinthe Childes Nurffing to his Mother : yet Mother or the Prince. notwithstanding, there have some Mothers beene found to be Murderers, and haue not onely made fale of the effare, but also of their Childrens lines. And The danger fometimes the Tutour continueth in in Tutors and the government, and leaveth nothing vnto the King but the bare Title: as their feuerall

· Offices in taxratia &

Guardians.

the Duke of Northumberland did to the R. of Ingland, Elles . And as apriles did. to yong Phillip King of Mucadon, who could not enjoy his own out ato, till hee had flaine his Tutor. I know likewife, fome one will tell mee, that many times it commeth to paffe, when a yong prince attaineth to the Grown, he wil not alow the government of Maisfers, that are placed neere him for instruction, but bee ruled by his owne fanfy, being addicted to Playes, Mafques, and fuch like In brief many times his Court thews like a meer Burdellae, fallinginto a thousand Vices, and the people following their Prince in imitation. If the Prince be a Soldier, he may expose his person and kingdome to many hazards. Admit that none of thefe aforefaid things doe happen, yet it hath well mannered, when they arise to the Monarchie, Soueraignty hath had this hard fortune, that the very wifest have proved fooles, the most valiant turnd coward, and the very best to be most bad.

will establish tyrany; If cruell, he makes a butchery of the Commonwealth; If couetous, he will have both the haire & will firek both the blood and Marrow to glut some dozen of Horse leaches that attend about him. And if he be ignorant and fottith, then is tiranny fo much the more to be feared, when as he hath nev-ther Maister nor Companion that dare make head against him . These are the

But yet there is much more perrill in dangers that attend on Monarchies.

the hide of his fubiects; If Prodigall, he

If the Prince be fubrle and wicked he bin observed, that Princes being wife & 20

pata Monar

thics are oftentimes fub

Chap.33.

the Estate Aristocraticall, and a great 4 deale more too, in the popular condition: for these daungers which wee have proposed, cease th for the most part, wher the Monarchy is devolved by fuccessing right. But seditions, partialities, and ciuill wars are ordinary, and continualy (as it were) arising in greatnesse, for the vaher-handing of Offices in the commonweale Seigneurall and Populary, then in the estate of Monarchy, which will endure no fedition for Offices, or for anie Estate, except after the Princes death, and but feldome then too. But the principall point of a Commonwelth, which is the right of Soueraignty, cannot bee, neithersubsist (to speake properlie) but only in Monarchy: for none can be So-neraignein a Commonweale, but one only. If there be two, three gar more, the one isno Soucraigne, because one can neithengine, or yet receive lawe of his companion And although we may ima- Imaginations! gine abody of many Loris or of apon; are alwayes ple, to hold Soucraignty :: yet it is most irrigular and certaine, dist there is usbany true fubicot, or any improve, if there beautions head with Soueraigne power, to vnite one with another, which one simple Magistrare neuer can do, without Soucraigne Preheminence and authority.

The difficulties are daily noted, which Contrary opi Commonweal and Companied popular niens in popular Com-Commonweales and Seigneuries, when mon weales, both thu sine and other do holdcontrary very hard to parts; and by divers Magistrates: Some calling for peace, others war; One will haue this law another a quite contragy, One will have this man to be chiefe, and. ther aimes at his friend and pertaker, and the like in divers other matters.

Moreover, in a Seigneurall and Popular, effate, the greater part are continually made to belieue thinges, howbeit, the wife and vormous are alwaies the leffer number: by which means (divers times) the more found and better fort of people, are constrained to stoope under the greater, to pleafe the appetite of fom feditious fellow, or effronted Orationmaker . But the Sougraigne Monarch, hee can alwayes loyne with the more healthfull spirited and meaner part, making choife of wife men, and fuch as vn- Monarchia alderstand the State affaires: wheras quite wayes allow-contrary, necessity compelleth the populary of the best connects. lar and Ariffocratical estates to entertain councell. and embrace both fooles and Wifemen together.

When the Common-wealth of the Comparison Romaines was in perrill, they made a by divers co-Soueraigne Magistrate; according to mon-weales. which dignitie, hee had no Appellation, but commanded foueraignely, and they tearmed him Dictator. The Venetians created a Providadore : the Lacedemonians an Harmoste, & each of them did fo. confidering Monarchia to bee the most affured estate. Me thinkes, that these reasons, and manie other, which might bee drawne in perticulerly, are fufficient to thew, that amongefithe three kindes of lawfull Common-wealths, the right of Monarchie is most excel ent; and among them of Ryot and Diforder, the popu-

ffrained to popular citate is the most vicious. Lawfull borne Monarchie, as a ftrong, and potent bodie, may eafilie maintaine it felfe: but popularequalitie, and Dominion of a few people (as being very weak and feeble) are subject voto many difeales, and must of necessity bee governed by dyet and prescriptions. Neuer were Ariforratiaes and Democratiaes feene to continue fo long as Monarchiaes, which 10 Comparison we finde (by writing) to haue endured a thousand or twelve hundered yeares, as of both kinds those of the Persians , Affyrians, Medes, and others: but the Populary or Aristocraticall, three or foure hundered yeares onely.

Monarchia is tigured and represented iu the Stars. and in other Creatures.

Therefore, it shall be needeleffe to infift any longer, in approuing Monarchia to be the most affured estate : considering, that a Family (which is the true I- 20 mage of a Common-wealth) can indure to have but one head only, as wee have approoued. And all the Lawes of Nature are our guides to Monarchy; be it, that wee respect the little Worlde Man, who hath but one bodye, and but one Head, as chiefe of all the other Members : on whom, dependeth the wil, motion, and understanding. Or bee it, that we looke vppon the great world, which 30 hath but one Soueraigne God. If we eleuate our eyes to Heauen, wee thall fee there but one Sunne. If we descend to fociable Creatures, we may plainely perceine, that they cannot fuffer many kinges, or many Lordes, how good foeuer

Read the Hiflory of the Turkes, and there this ex-they be. This is the very fame example, which Solyman, King of the Turkes, vied in Anno Dom. 5,2. having heard the lowd 40 acclamations and thouts of ioy, which large related. the whole Armie made for the Sultane Mustapha his Son, at his returning from Perfin. Commanding him to bee strangled in his Chamber of presence. When he was dead, he threw his bodie foorth before the whole army, and cried out alowd, There is no more but one God in heauen, and one Sultan on Earth. Two dayes after, he did put to death Sultan Gobeus, because hee wept for his Brother, and Sultane Mehemet the third, because hee fled away for feare, and would leave no more but one only to flun the inconne-niences enfuing by many Lordes and Commanders. Euen fo we have beheld all the people vpon Earth, from the furthest date of Antiquity, and when they were guided by one light onely : to like derived from nor allow of any other, forme of Com- Antiquity. monwealth, but absolute Monarchy.

CHAP. XXXVII.

Of the Vertnes & Secret properties of the Net-megge: That it was unknowne to our ancient predecesfors, with diners observations, worthy due regar-

HERE are manie 2 things, which beeing ordinarily worn or carried about a man, do impaire & grow vnto leffe eftimation: as fom precious stones, which though they are of aged by vie, and lose this a hard and folide matter: yet notwith-fanding they waxe old, and loofe much of their valew.

Cinnamon, Cloues, and Pepper, borne about vs, do drie of themselues and loofe their fweet fauour. Contrarywife, the Nut megge (on whose behalfe I have written this Chapter, termed by the Latines, Nux mixifties) being wome or carried about a man, doth encrease it felfe, and becommeth much the better. I Author mide found this rare effect of Nature, in the his first obleslower Germanie, where the Inhabitants of those Countreyes, doth vsuallie hang Nutmegs about their Childrens necks; and beeing fo worne fine or fixe yeares together: they were then much more Oyly and moyft, then they were the first yeare. After I had confidered on divers reasons inducing to this purpose, I could finde but one especially which I will declare: submitting my selfe neuerthelesse, to any other, that can alleadge a better, and more profitable.

Nutmegges (doubtleffe) beeing long time kepte in Spiceries, bee it in places dry or moift, and well pack to program and fasour. do yet dry of themselues, become fustie, full of holes, and of bad taft, euen like to worme-eaten and rotten wood. Neuertheleffe, a young man bearing a nutmeg

Chap.37.

The reason

how a Nut-

megge is bet-tered by wearing, about a Child & yong

The ordinary disposition of the Belgians. There are to

> The reason why Nuttenegges are worne about he necke.

The Sweates flome mens bodies are very fweete and about him, & exposed to the open aire: dooth encrease and make it much the better thereby.

Now, to comprehend whence this proceedeth, we must vnderstande, that this is not proper to all Nutmegs, worne by all men indifferently : but it is to bee confidered; of fuch as is about an infant or elder Childe, a youth, or anie other young man, not having attained to the age of fortie yeares, as commonlie the Belgians are, and those of the nether Germany, beeing of verie good habitude, euen as vulgarly they are. This is easilic knowne, by the goodlie proportion of their bodies, the chearefull countenance and complexion of their faces, and firm fleshinesse of their limbes, by their Ordinarie appetite to feeding, strong digeftion, and beeing linely disposed in all 20 their joynts and members; alwayes trauailing couragiously, rarelic troubled with sicknesse or diseases, shunning and anoyding the riotous excesse, and lauith defire of gourmandizing, whereof they are verie carefull, mingling wholesome Spices continually amongst their meats;

and scarsely anie one of them, but wearing some about them, especiallie Nut-

The yonger fort do weare them about their Neckes, because they hold opinion: that they make stay of the Rheume which falleth downe on the stomacke, and is a griefe enfuing by ouermuch eating and drinking; fuffocating thereby, the Naturall heate. And because such Nutmegs as are worne about the necke. for the space of foure, fine, or fix yeares, (fome more, fome leffe) do neither waft 40 or consume, but appeare to bee more weighty and Oily: it feemeth to proceed by this commendable temperance, from whence ir exhaleth a vapour somewhat delicate and humecting, wherewith the Nut-megges (which they weare) are plenteously stored, which causeth that their Oyly nature, cannot by no meanes becom dry, but rather is much the more encreased. Nor is this to bee accounted any way straunge, because wee finde in Learned mens writings, that from the bodies of diners personnes, have yffued very sweet and odorifferous fweats. Among whom we read of Alexander the Great, whose Garments receyued a wonderful fweetnesse (as one recordeth) from his verie bodie, and so continued in them most pleasingly, without any other Arte or cunning. I my felfe fawe an Indian at Nantes, who though he was stark naked, dian at Nantes. and his bodie sceming of a wilde Olive colour: yet, when mens handes were ftreaked thereon, they brought thence a fweete fauour, very answereable vnto

As for Maides and young Women, fuch matter is not acknowledged of Mads and them : and therefore I thinke, that the young Wcohinderance proceedeth from this, that men. Naturall heate is more imbecille, and of leffe power in them, then it is men; and their exhalation is nothing fo temperat; and in regard also, that they are fuller of Excrements, as hath beene declared in the precedent Chapter. But if wee shall Aged men or speake of aged people, they do resemble trees ouer spent with yeares, full of Puperature, trifactious humors : which maketh them white-headed, wrinkled, and full of defects, having no more strength to grow or encrease, whereby to produce matter of anie worth. Otherwise, they are so drie, that no exhalation at all commeth from their bodies; for age is nothing els A definition but a meere exficcation of the Radicall of Age. humour, and an extinction of the Naturallheate. Whereby may appeare. that they can no way better a Nutmeg by their exhalation. The Reader may content himselfe (if he please) with this reason, which many learned men haue approoued, ar well as my felfe. It shall now not be much amis to difcourse a little further of the Nut-megge, concerning the manner of his growth, in what Countreyes; and likewife of the faculties thereof. That Nutrnegges were vnknowne to our reuerend Attricients, is verie ea. Nur-megges fie to be comprehended : because, ney- and Maces ther Theophrastus, Diofcorides, nor Ga- knowne vnto len, did euer make any mention of them. our Aunci-And it ferueth to no purpose, to alledge, ents. that they have spoken of Macer: for, I fay, that the * Macer of the Greekes, but a reddish was not the Maces of the Arabes, which Aronaticall is a hide or skinne that dooth court Rinds of a the Nutmegge. And it is verie likelie, certaine inthat if they had hadde anie knowledge dian roote. of the Maces, question leffe they woulde haue lefte fomething Written thereof. Neyther could wee attaine vnto anie Aaaa know-about him, & exposed to the open aire; dooth encrease and make it much the better thereby. Now, to comprehend whence this proceedeth, we must understande, that this is not proper to all Nutmegs, worne by all men indifferently : but it is to bee confidered; of fuch as is about an infant or elder Childe, a youth, or anic other young man, not having attained to the age of fortie yeares, as commonlie the Belgians are and those of the nether Germany, beeing of verie good habitude, euen as vulgarly they are. This is eafilie their bodies, the chearefull countenance and complexion of their faces, and firm fleshinesse of their limbes, by their Ordinarie appetite to feeding, strong digeftion, and beeing lively disposed in all 20

The reason tered by wea-Child & yong

knowne. by the goodlie proportion of desire of gourmandizing, whereof they are verie carefull, mingling wholesome

Spices continually amongst their meats;

and scarsely anie one of them, but wearing some about them, especiallie Nut-

their iovnts and members; alwayes tra-The ordinary disposition of the Belgians. uailing couragiously, rarelic troubled with fickneffe or difeafes, fhunning and anoyding the riotous excesse, and lauith

The yonger fort do weare them about their Neckes, because they hold opini-The reason on: that they make stay of the Rheume why Nutte-negges are which falleth downe on the stomacke, and is a griefe enfuing by ouermuch eating and drinking; fuffocating thereby, the Naturall heate. And because such Nutmegs as are worne about the necke, for the space of foure, fine, or fix yeares, thome more, fome leffe) do neither walt or confume, but appeare to be more weighty and Oily: it feemeth to proceed by this commendable temperance, from whence ir exhaleth a vapour fomewhat delicate and humecting, wherewith the Nut-megges (which they weare) are plentcoully stored, which causeth that their Oyly nature, cannot by no meanes becom dry, but rather is much the more encreased.

Nor is this to bee accounted any way straunge, because wee finde in Learned mens writings, that from the bodies of diners personnes, have yffued very sweet and odorifferous (weats. Among whom we read of Alexander the Great, whose Garments receyued a wonderful fweernesse (as one recordeth) from his verie bodie, and so continued in them most pleafingly, without any other Arte or cunning. I my felfe fawe an Indian at Nantes, who though he was ftark naked, dian at Nantes. and his bodie seeming of a wilde Oliue colour: yet, when mens handes were fweete fauour, very answereable vnto As for Maides and young Women, As for Maides and young vvomen, Concerning fuch matter is not acknowledged of Maids and them : and therefore I thinke, that the young Wcohinderance proceedeth from this, that men. Naturall heate is more imbecille, and of leffe power in them, then it is men; and fects, having no more strength to grow that they can no way better a Nutmeg by their exhalation. The Reader may ties thereof.

ftreaked thereon, they brought thence a their exhalation is nothing fo temperat; and in regard also, that they are fuller of Excrements, as hath beene declared in the precedent Chapter. But if wee shall Aged men or speake of aged people, they do resemble weomen have trees ouer spent with yeares, full of Pu-loft their temtrifactious humors: which maketh them white-headed, wrinkled, and full of deor encrease, whereby to produce matter of anie worth. Otherwise, they are so drie, that no exhalation at all commeth)

from their bodies; for age is nothing els A definition but a mecre exficcation of the Radicall of Age. humour, and an extinction of the Naturallheate. Whereby may appeare content himselfe (if he please) with this reason, which many learned men haue approoued, ar well as my felfe. It shall now not be much amis, to difcourse a little further of the Nut-megge, concerning the manner of his growth, in what Countreyes's and likewise of the facul-That Nutmegges were vnknowne to our reuerend Auncients, is verie ea- Nuemegges fie to be comprehended : because, riey- and Maces ther Theophrastus, Diofcorides, nor Ga-knowne vnto len, did euer make any mention of them. our Aunci. And it ferueth to no purpose, to alledge, that they have spoken of Macer: for, 1 fay, that the * Macer of the Greekes, but a reddift was not the Maces of the Arabes, which Acomaticall is a hide or skinne that dooth couer Rinds of a the Nutmegge. And it is verie likelie, certaine in that if they had hadde anie knowledge dien roote. of the Maces, questionlesse they woulde haue lefte fomething Written thereof . Neyther could wee attaine vnto anie Aaaa knowledge in this case, till after that the Arabes had gotten vnto some authority, who taught manie medicines, vtterly vnknowne to the Grecians, because they were much neerer vnto the Indiaes then

A description of the Nut-, megge and Mace Tree.

The outward Nut-megge.

The first ap-alteration of afterward.

The Tree which beareth these Nutmegges, and the Maces is as great as a Peare tree, having the like Leaues, but shorter and rounder. It carryeth his Nutlike fruite, couered with a very hard rinde: which (when the ripening feafon is come) cleaueth or openeth of it felfe; and sheweth the filme or skinne, hat encloseth the Nut-megge, like a scale or shells; and that is it which wee call the Maces or Mace. I meane not the exteriour or outward rinde, albeit (in diners parts) they vie to Confect it with Suger, and is much commended in the Countrey where it groweth, that the finell & taste thereof, is verie wholesome against the paine of the Collicke, and the difcase of the Reines.

The fruite being ripe, and the fayde rinde exteriour opening (like to the thel or scale that encloseth the Chestnuts of pearing of the Maces. & Lymofine:) the Mace appeareth as red as Scarlet, wonderfull goodly to beholde, especially, when the Trees are wel char- 30 ged and laden, and beare more then is their viuall custome. The Nutmeg drying, the Mace still keepeth close and fast about it, till loofing his red colour, hee begetteth another, which is like a Golden Complexion: And these Maces are folde at three times dearer rate, then the Nutmegges.

In what places the Nutmegge Trees doe viually most grow.

This Tree that beareth these Nuttes, groweth in one of the Islands of the Mo-Ineques, which is called Bandano. It is found also in divers other places, as in Banda, Bandornica, Herma, Tharod, Machedad, Lyzamath, Cares, and in Zeylan, which are the most fruitfull Landes, and better then anie other. The people of the Countrey do vie to gather them, fome more in one place, then in another, according as they can get them: for, in the most parts of all the Islands, all thinges are in common, without any prinate claime. This is affirmed by Garcias d' Horta, who transiled himfelf into those massie, oyly, & abounding in moisture: fo that by pricking them with a pinne or Needle, they fend forth a fweete fauour. Nutmegges (according to the Arabians opinion) are hot and drie, in the second Naturall prodegree compleat : they are aftringent, & Nut megge. (by champing in the mouth) doe make the breath fweet : they take awaie spottes and blemishes out of the face, sharpen the fight, and strengthen the Liver and ftomacke: they diminish the Spleene or Milt, prouoke Vrine, stay the course and Flux of the Belly, expelling all Windinesse, and helpe greatly against the Disease of the Mother, proceeding of Frigiditie. In briefe, they have the very fame Vertues and properties, as the Cloaues haue. Numegs do yeilde a licquor or A foueraigne inice, being freshly pounded, heated in a Oyntment pan, and prefently preffed : which tuyce made of Nut being let stand til it be cold, becommeth like virgin wax, and fenteth very fweetly. This vinguent is very foueraigne for cold Gowts, and to make a man gracious in the fauor of Ladies. Thus much haue I gathered concerning the Nut-meg.

They that be fresh, and not drie, withered or worme-eaten, are the best nutof Nut-megs, megs; likewife, they that were waightie,

CHAP. XXXVIII.

A Paradox purpo [elywritten in the defence of Warre, approving and maintaining it to be much more famous, honorable, & meritorious of commendation then

Ecause many tutneism menhaue (heeretofore)

B werie plentifully discoursed on the praises of peace among which, wee haue Ecause many sufficient

Erasmus Roterodamus, Romulus Amaseus, Claudius Ptolomeus, and Adriano Bentiuoli; all of them (with others of no leffe e- defence of legancy) having spoken soundlie, and to the purpose, as being Orators of no lesse learning, then fluent and eloquent in the tongues: the two first in Latine, and the other in the Tuscan language, all having discreetely employed their paines : yet notwithstanding, al their defences bestowed on the behalfe of Peace, I cannot forbeare to maintaine the contrarie, from Athens, flew a terrible *Along Moutaine paffing from Lencadia through the

AFieldren

miles diftant

Chap. 38.

Opposition made against

The apparant

harmes and iniuries enfoing by Peace.

defences.

Baoti a by Cytheren neere to Thebes A Towne in Ifle called A. dulles in Pen.

habits of Cit-

Worthy encouragement for Souldiers: and as great and will approue with refolued corage, that they have done mightie injurie vinto themselves, in making such description of commendations, by multiplicitie of ydle arguments, which now I will not trouble my felfe withall, either to improoue or confute. But so many onely will I produce and aduertife yee of, as shall happen to my memorie, in fauour of honourable combustion 8: war, and appeare to the manifest discredite of Peace.

For the first of my reasons, I say that in the time of Peace . Millitarie Discipline is loft, and commeth to nothing: which (neuertheleffe) hath beene at all times in reckoning, and allowed as a matter most necessarie, for Conquest, enlarging and conferuing of Empires, Provinces, and the verie greatest and 20 civillest lurisdictions thoroughout the Witnesses heereof, are * Marathon Salamins, * Thermopy a, * Plataa, * Leuca, and many other places, not meanely renowned by the Heroycall Actions of Armes. By the meanes of warte, Horatius Coc'es was made immortall; and the three Decii helde for three Demie Goddes. Hence arofe the great & in- 20 finite praifes (fo fiveetly fung and Celebrated by Poets, and our ancient Historians of both the serpices and honourable Marcellus. To whome, I would gladlie fee who can be justly compared, under Correction of whatfocuer hath beene faid by fore-named Authours, in honour of their Gowne-men, the onelie especial loners and fauourers of peace,

We see also by experience, that (welneere) all auncient Statues or Figures, both were and are formed in military habits. And it was not lawfull (by the customes of all elder and noble Nations) for a Cittizen to weare any other Garment, then a party coloured coate: vntill bee had flaine, or (at least) vanquisht two of his Countreyes enemies. In this cafe, the Carthagenians had a most notable observation; for, looke how manie 50 times a Soldier had beene feene in the face of the enemy fo many Plumes, helmets, or Horsles, should bee bestowed vppon each feuerall man: but contrarywife, as often as they were abfent from the field, so manie Law bes and Capons wer fent them, as remembrances of their crauenly cowardife. Li! ewife by publick agreement, it was not lawful for any ma to marry, except hee had first ferued in fundry foughten battailes, or performed Law for mar fome one or other honourable exploite, in the defence of his Country.

Let vs confider the great honor which Warre maintaineth enen to this veric Honour perinftant, to fach as either haue or do bear pecuated by Armes for fafety and defence of our ho- Armes. ly Christian faith. In memorie whereof Noble and famous Orders of Knighthood were aunciently established. As Knights of lerufalem, of hodes, of Mal- Orders of ta, of Saint lames, of Holie Lazarus, of Knight-hood to enternize Ielus Christ in Portugall, of the Round the memory

Table, and of the Garter in England, of Aimes. with divers other Dignities for Religious warfare, onely for the performance of meruailous and excellent Actions. Whereas contrary-wife, rhe mindes that were thus fired to haughty atchieuments, in the floathfull times of peace, would too eafily (euen of themselues) be connerted to proud and infolent at-

To prooue this true, that they which in the times of Warre, doo accomplish Examination deeds of Vertue, and in the dull daies of of the leueral peace) fall into quite contrary behauiours, we may perceive by great Marins, the Conqueror of the Cymbrians. When warre did fet an edge voon his true temper, he had not his equall for valour and proweffe: but, in the trifling times of peace, he was the most wicked and dangerous man in all the Countrey. In like manner, wee shall finde it for most certaine, that Peace quencheth whatfoeuer is good in anie man; and quickneth or Peacethe giueth life vnto all fuch thinges, as are all goodnesse in him most hurtfull and dammage- in men.

able. Let mee moue a question (in meere Courtefie) vnto fuch as are the greatest blamers and deprauers of warre. What Concerning can they call Hatreds, Quarrelles, and tarreds and Seditions, but the onclie true and perfect Inftruments, whereby Nature oftentimes helpeth to perfourme manie verie lawdable actions? Ye may immagine, that it was not without very great reason, that VVarre (by the Latines) was called Fella, Fayre, Pleafaunt, and Commodious: for fuch indeede is the 'The name gitrue Nature thereof, albeit our new vpflart gaine-fayers dooth affirme, that

Aaaaz

Famous Armies destroy ed by the meanes of

Princes made their people,

rough and by peace.

it is meant in a contrarie sence. But if it were lawfull, to compare the losses in peace, with them that enfue onely by warre: the report would be pittifull, and the remembrance verie Tragicall.

How many goodly Armies haue bin broken, defeated and destroyed, by the meanes (I will not say of peace) of truce onely? Which, though it bee Warres neerest Kinsman, yet it is sworne enemy vnto all Vertue and Valor. The strength and powers of Truce, ministers the meanes (euen as Peace doth) to lessen and impaire Citties, Townes, and whole Prouinces, by straunge Lawes and Ordinances : beside, it engendereth infinit fecret hatreds, and vpholdeth Princes in roughnesse and seueritie against theyr Subjects. In time of peace, the dispofitions of men, which (but for it) would 20 be highly exalted with enflamed defire to expresse their brauerie and roialty, do become sleepie, drowsie, pensiue, slothfull, lascinious, and esseminate.

But to prooue that Warre hath bin fauoured and esteemed by our Lorde

God himfelfe, tell mee (I pray yee) was he not called by the Children of Ifraell,

The Great God of Battailes, The Lorde of Testament, how manie mightie ouerthrowes and flaughters were executed in his Name, vppon them that were the Aduerfaries of his people? Howe manie were flaine by Moyfes, Iofuah, Gede-on, Sampson, and divers other? Howe manie flew Abraham, David, Judas Machaheus, and they that wer in those times?

What shall weefay of Saint Michaell the Arch-Angell; who (euen in Hea-uen it felfe) made such a sharpe Conflict against the Draggon? And, to continue on this discourse, even to the New Law, if GOD had beene displeafed with Warre, would hee haue com maunded his Apostles to sel their cloaks, and buy each of them a Sword ? If Saint Iohn Baptist, had hated Soldiers, or Mi-they demaunded of him, what way they should take, whereby to attaine to the Saluation of their soules) That they should consent them felues with their Wages, and not rob or pille from the poore people. Hee woulde then rather have commaunded them, to leave that estate, and betake litarie Discipline, would he haue apointed them this Law and Ordinance(when 50

Hostes and Armies? Looke in the Olde 30

Warre, fauou red and allowed by god himicife, and what names were giuen

Examples alleaged out of facred Scrip-ture in the old Teftament.

Examples out of the new Testament.

them vnto some Hermitage; or else, to deale in some affavres of Merchandize, or in some such like employments. No, content your felues (quoth hee) in your Garrifons, with your ordinarie pay, and to the authors offer no shame, violence, or extortion, to any one. For your calling (which is the Art Militarie) will not let or hinder ye from your faluation: because manie of your profession, haue thereby wonne their fafeft fecurity.

This in briefe, and in my conceipt, is that which bleffed Saint Johns words intended, if I bee no bad Paraphraftor Interpreter. If hee had beene willing to discommend W arre, yet he wold haue forborne it : perceyuing what pride and infolence was crept into rich mens mindes, during the pampring daies of peace and no way fo foone to be cured or corrected, as by the worthy discipline obserued in warre.

How many haue beene observed, of great Gentlemen, Merchants, Coun- only bride treymen, and other of all conditions, to many not who were woont to bee most proud and arrogant : fuddenly to become kind and fes tractable, onely by meanes of the bridle of Warre? This is it, which delivereth vs from a number of missaps by theenes ydle Vagabonds, Gamesters, Pipers, Players, young Rogues, Cozeners, Ruf-fians, and High-way watchers. It ferues to whet and waken the spirites of Men, making their bodies to become more strong, light, nimble, pacient; yea, and emboldened against all hard and sinister Confider the sweetnesse and delight The cimbiwhich the Cymbrians founde in VVarre, anshada grea vfing it as the Confernation of theyr felicity in Warre. Countrey: and when they went to fight, they woulde fing as chearefullie, as if they had beene going vnto a wedding. Immagine what pleasure was taken therein by furious Hanniball, Valiaunt Marcellus, Vertuous Scipio, Couragious Camillus, and that Victorious Alexan-

I say moreouer, who so ever is ignorant in taking good order for publique affayres, there is no place or Schoole, wherein hee may more eafily attaine thereto; then by noting the preparation enjoys proand conducting of an Armie . Besides, uidence. whofoeuer knoweth not the deceiptes, fleights, and trickes of ingenious pru-

to the Souldi.

ring life.

Warre is the The conclusion

All kindes of Creatures haue their contraries appointed, to dence, or how to stand vpon his guarde, to know what he should auoyd, and what he ought principally to followe: let him but line in war a month or two for pleafure; and in that time he shallern more then all the Bookes of Peace shall euer be able to teach him.

Leffons to be learned in a Field of Bat taile, for any mans benefit

Chap.39.

Furthermore, hee that couets to vnderstand the true Nature of inviolable obedience, frict diligence, incompareable vigillance, vnípeakeable proniptitude of heart, and inestimable strength of the bodie : let him but vouchsafe so much leyfure, as (for a while) to follow a field well manned and prepared, there to obserue carefully, what hee may behold for his owne benefit. If hee finde not himselfe well fatisfied ; yea, & more then contented in verie few dayes, I will yeeld, and loofe my credite in this caufe. Which therefore shall ferue me to conclude withall, maintaining ftill that war before de prefetred before peace, as deerly befored, and with choifeft praifes com-mended. Befide, our Prayers should continually bee made to God, to create fuch chearfull hearts in our Princes, that wee may not any long time, remaine in want, of fuch a precious and vnvaluable Iewell.

CHAP, XXXIX.

Of the Indian Peare: And of those Beares in our owne Natiue Countreyes, howe different they are in their feuerall Na-

Ature hath verie many times expressed hir care and providence (as a dutifull handmaid atending on God) whethere are any store of hurrfull creatures in some country, that may impeach the inhabiting of men, or Liues of other beafts and animals, to engender fome other of contrary kinds, to defroy the ouer-abounding of such harmeful! things. As we may observe in Serpents, which do denoure vp Toads & Lizards: Serpents also themselnes, are exten by Storks, and many times they themselves do feede one vpon another. Cats also do devoure Rats, and fo in divers more befide. I speake this the rather, because we finde recorded in the generall hittorie of the Indiaes, that in Quilon, a certaine gionin the Countrey of the New-world, there are New-found fuch extraordinarie swarmes of Antes, that they confume the feeds and rootes of all Trees and plants . So that, if there were no Beares (which Nature in especiall favour hath there appointed, and in great plentie) ther could not be any poffibilitie of dwelling there, because they would make the Countrey to bee quite

The Beare of this Region, liveth only The Indian (without anie other foode or Pastorage) Beare seedeth by eating those Antes, whose beddes and Nests hee easily findeth, and so with his tongue (which is verie broade and large) hee is so quicke and readie in licking of them vp, that hee is onely nourifhed by them. There are also great store of those Bears, but they are not fierce, wild and harmefull, as those in other partes: for they will not fet yppon men; neyther mount yppe ypon Trees, to deuoure the young fprouts and fruites, but are verie eafly made tame and tractable by the fu-

There is no need of plucking out their eyes, or boaring their lippes, to thruste Rings of Iron thorough them, onely to tame them. For even of themselves, they are (well-neere) Domesticall: and, if it were not for these Beares, neither men, and great store of other creatures, could not live there: but they encrease in those parts fo aboundantly, that they fuffice to destroy the plentie of Antes; in which respect, the Countrey may well account it felfe to be most happy.

I have not well beene informed, whether it bee the Nature of the Beares in Ariffulle and, ther tibee the Nature of the Beares in anglate said, whis Countrey, that (according as hath beene reported) the free-Beare yeldeth or whelpeth a Male of Fleth, without anie forme or apparance of life: and that the Damme, onely by the Vertue of lie-king, giueth it true thape. Of this opinion, were manie Learned and grave men, as Aristotle, Plutarke , Plinte , Elianus , and Du Bartas: but it is a manifest ertour, as experience hath plainly declared vnto vs, because in manie enclosed places of Germanie, and of Fraunce alfo, Beares of both fexes

The errour of

knowledge in this case, till after that the Arabes had gotten vnto some authority, who taught manie medicines, vtterly vnknowne to the Grecians, because they were much neerer vnto the Indiaes then

The Tree which beareth these Nut-

A description of the Nut-, megge and Mace Tree.

The outward Rinde of the Nut-megge.

megges, and the Maces is as great as a Peare tree, having the like Leaues, but (horter and rounder. It carryeth his Nutlike fruite, coucred with a very hard rinde: which (when the ripening feafon is come) cleaueth or openeth of it felfe; and sheweth the filme or skinne, hat encloseth the Nut-megge, like a scale or shelle; and that is it which wee call the Maces or Mace. I meane not the exteriour or outward rinde, albeit (in diners parts) they vie to Confect it with Suger, and is much commended in the Countrey where it groweth, that the finell & taste thereof, is verie wholesome against the paine of the Collicke, and the difease of the Reines.

The fruite being ripe, and the fayde rinde exteriour opening (like to the fhel or scale that encloseth the Chestnuts of The first ap-pearing of the Maces, & I amoline:) the Mace appeareth as red as Scarlet, wonderfull goodly to beholde, alteration of especially, when the Trees are wel char- 30 their coullour ged and laden, and beare more then is their viuall custome. The Nutmeg drying, the Mace still keepeth close and fast about it, till loofing his red colour, hee begetteth another, which is like a Golden Complexion : And these Maces are folde at three times dearer rate, then the afterward.

In what places the Nutmegge Trees most grow.

This Tree that beareth these Nuttes, groweth in one of the Islands of the Mo-Incaues, which is called Bandano. It is found also in divers other places, as in Banda, Bandornica, Herma, Tharod, Machedad, Lyzamath, Cares, and in Zeylan, which are the most fruitfull Landes, and better then anie other. The people of the Countrey do vie to gather them, fome more in one place, then in another, according as they can get them; for, in the most parts of all the Islands, all thinges 50 are in common, without any private claime. This is affirmed by Garcias d' liorta, who tranailed himself into those massie, oyly, & abounding in moisture: fo that by pricking them with a pinne or Needle, they fend forth a fwcete fauour. Nutmegges (according to the Arabians opinion) are hot and drie, in the second Naturall pro opinion) are not and drie, in the lecond perties of the degree compleat: they are aftringent, & Nut megge. (by champing in the mouth) doe make the breath fweet : they take awaie spottes and blemishes out of the face, sharpen the fight, and strengthen the Liver and ftomacke: they diminish the Spleene or Milt, prouoke Vrine, stay the course and Flux of the Belly, expelling all Windinesse, and helpe greatly against the Disease of the Mother, proceeding of Frigiditie. In briefe, they have the very fame Vertues and properties, as the Cloaues haue. Nutmegs do yeilde a licquor or nuice, being freshly pounded, heated in a pan, and presently pressed : which inyce being let stand til it be cold, becommeth like virgin wax, and fenteth very fweetly. This vinguent is very foueraigne for cold Gowts, and to make a man gracious in the fauor of Ladies. Thus much haue I gathered concerning the Nut-meg.

They that be fresh, and not drie, withered or worme eaten, are the best nutof Nut-megs. megs; likewife, they that were waightie,

CHAP. XXXVIII.

A Paradox purposely written in the defence of Warre, approving and maintaining it to be much more famous, honorable, er meritorious of commendation then

Ecause many sufficient men haue (heeretofore) B verie plentifully discour-fed on the praises of peace among which, wee haue

Erasmus Roterodamus, Romulus Amaseus, Claudius Ptolomeus, and Adriano Bentuo-ten in the li : all of them (with others of no leffe elegancy)hauing spoken soundlie, and to the purpose, as being Orators of no lesse learning, then fluent and eloquent in the tongues: the two first in Latine, and the other in the Tuscan language, all having difcreetely employed their paines : yet notwithstanding, al their defences besto-wed on the behalfe of Peace, I cannot forbeare to maintaine the contrarie,

Chap. 38. Opposition made agains the former

defences.

and will approue with refolued corage, that they have done mightie injurie vnto themselues, in making such description of commendations, by multiplicitie of ydle arguments, which now I will not trouble my selfe withall, either to improoue or confute. But so many onely will I produce and aduertife yee of, as shall happen to my memorie, in fauour of honourable combustion & war, and appeare to the manifest discredite of Peace.

For the first of my reasons, I say that in the time of Peace, Millitarie Discipline is loft, and commeth to nothing a which (neuertheleffe) hath beene at all times in reckoning, and allowed as a matter most necessarie, for Conquest, enlarging and conferuing of Empires,

Witnesses heereof, are * Marathon brated by Poets, and our ancient Historians of both the surpues and honourable Marcellus. To whome, I would gladlie see who can be justly compared, under Correction of whatfocuer hath beene faid by fore-named Authours, in honour of their Gowne-men, the onelie especial loners and tanourers of peace.

neere) all auncient Statues or Figures, both were and are formed in military habits. And it was not lawfull (by the cu-stomes of all elder and noble Nations) for a Cittizen to weare any other Garment, then a party coloured coate: vntill hee had flaine, or (at least) vanquisht two of his Countreves enemies. In this cafe, the Carthagenians had a most notatimes a Soldier had beene feene in the face of the enemy fo many Plames, helmets, or Horsles, should bee bestowed vppon each feuerall man; but contrary-wife, as often as they were abfent from the field, so manie Law bes and Capons wer fent them, as remembrances of their ble observation; for, looke how manie 5

The apparant harmes and miuries enfuing by Peace.

> civillest lurisdictions thoroughout the A Fieldren niles diftant from Athens, Salamina, * Thermopy a, * Plataa, * Leuflew a terrible ca, and many other places, not meanely *Along Moúrenowned by the Heroycall Actions of taine paffing Armes. By the meanes of warte, Hofrom Leuradia ratius Coc'es was made immortall; and through the midft of Greece the three Decij helde for three Demie A Towne of Baoti a by Cy-

A Towne in he borders of Istia, and an Ifle called Achillea in Pon.

Auncient cuflonies for the habits of Cit-Weithy encouragement for Souldiers: and as great difgrace to Cowards, crauenly cowardife. Li! ewife by publick agreement, it was not lawful for any mã to marry, except hee had first served in fundry foughten battailes, or performed Law for mar fome one or other honourable exploite, in the defence of his Country.

Of Warre & Peace.

Let vs consider the great honor which Warre maintaineth enen to this veric Honour perinstant, to such as either haue or do bear Armes for lasety and desence of our holy Christian faith. In memorie whereof, Noble and famous Orders of Knighthood were aunciently established. As Knights of Ierufalem, of hodes, of Mal- Orders of ta, of Saint lames, of Holie Lazarus, of knight-hood to enternize Iefus Chrest in Portugall, of the Round the memory Table, and of the Garter in England, of Armes. with divers other Dignities for Religi ous warfare, onely for the performance Provinces, and the verie greatest and 20 of meruailous and excellent Actions. Whereas contrary-wife, rhe mindes that were thus fired to haughty atchieuments, in the floathfull times of peace, would too eafily (euen of themselues) be connerted to proud and infolent at-

To prooue this true, that they which in the times of Warre, doo accomplish Examination deeds of Vertue, and in the dull daies of of the feueral peace) fall into quite contrary behaui-and peace. Goddes. Hence arose the great & in-finite praises (so sweetly sung and Celeours, we may perceine by great Marins, the Conqueror of the Cymbrians. When warre did fet an edge voon his true temper, he had not his equall for valour and proweffe: but, in the trifling times of peace, he was the most wicked and dangerous man in all the Countrey. In like manner, wee shall finde it for most certaine, that Peace quencheth whatfoeuer is good in anie man; and quickneth or Peacethe We fee also by experience, that (wel- 40 giueth life vnto all fuch thinges, as are all goodnesse in him most hurtfull and dammage- inmen.

Let mee moue a question (in meere Courtesie) vnto such as are the greatest blamers and deprauers of warre. What Concerning can they call Hatreds, Quarrelles, and Seditions, but the onclie true and perfect Instruments, whereby Nature oftentimes helpeth to perfourme manie verie lawdable actions? Ye may immagine, that it was not without very great reason, that VVarre (by the Latines) was called Hella, Fayre, Pleafaunt, and Commodious: for fuch indeede is the 'The name gitrue Nature thereof, albeit our new vpflart gaine-fayers dooth affirme, that, it is meant in a contrarie sence. But if it were lawfull, to compare the loffes in peace, with them that enfue onely by warre: the report would be pittifull, and

Aaaaz

Famous Armies deftroy meanes of Princes made tough and thearne to their people, by peace.

Warre, fauou red and allowed by god himlelte, and what names were giuen

Examples alleaged out of facred Scripture in the old Testament.

of the new Testament.

the remembrance verie Tragicall.

How many goodly Armies haue bin broken, defeated and destroyed, by the meanes (I will not fay of peace) of truce onely? Which, though it bee Warres neerest Kinsman, yet it is sworne enemy vnto all Vertue and Valor. The strength and powers of Truce, ministers the meanes (euen as Peace doth) to leffen and impaire Citties, Townes, and whole Prouinces, by straunge Lawes and Ordinances : beside, it engendereth infinit fecret hatreds, and vpholdeth Princes in roughnesse and severitie against theyr Subjects. In time of peace, the dispofitions of men, which (but for it) would be highly exalted with enflamed defire to expresse their brauerie and roialty, do become fleepie, drowfie, penfine, flothfull, lascinious, and esseminate.

But to prooue that Warre hath bin fauoured and esteemed by our Lorde God himselfe, tell mee (I pray yee) was he not called by the Children of Ifraell, The Great God of Battasles, The Lorde of Hostes and Armies? Looke in the Olde 30 Testament, how manie mightie ouerthrowes and flaughters were executed in his Name, vppon them that were the Aduerfaries of his people? Howe manie were flaine by Moyles, Iofuah, Gedeon, Sampson, and divers other? Howe manie flew Abraham, Dauid, Indas Machaheus, and they that wer in those times? What thall weefay of Saint Michaell the Arch-Angell; who (euen in Hea- 40 uen it selfe) made tucha sharpe Conflict against the Draggon? And, to continue on this discourse, even to the New Law, if GOD had beene displeafed with Warre, would hee haue com maunded his Apostles to sel their cloaks, and buy each of them a Sword ? If Saint John Baptist, had hated Soldiers, or Militarie Discipline, would he haue apointed them this Law and Ordinance (when 50 they demanded of him, what way they should take, whereby to attaine to the faluation of their foules) That they fhould content them felues with their Wages, and not rob or pille from the poore people . Hee woulde then rather haue commaunded them, to leave that estate, and betake them vnto some Hermitage; or else, to deale in some affayres of Merchandize, or in some such like employments. No, content your felues (quoth hee) in your Garrisons, with your ordinarie pay, and offer no shame, violence, or extortion, to any one. For your calling (which is the Art Militarie) will not let or hinder ve from your faluation: because manie of your profession, have thereby wonne their fafest security.

I his in briefe, and in my conceipt, is that which bleffed Saint lohns words inrended, if I bee no bad Paraphrastor Interpreter. If hee had beene willing to discommend W arre, yet he wold haue forborne it : perceyuing what pride and infolence was crept into rich mens mindes, during the pampring daies of peace and no way fo foone to be cured or corrected as by the worthy discipline obserued in warre.

How many have beene observed, of great Gentlemen, Merchants, Coun- only bridle treymen, and other of all conditions, to many not who were woont to bee most proud and arrogant : fuddenly to become kind and fetractable, onely by meanes of the bridle of Warre? This is it, which delivereth vs from a number of mithaps by theenes vdle Vagabonds, Gamesters, Pipers, Players, young Rogues, Cozeners, Ruffians, and High-way watchers. It ferues to whet and waken the spirites of Men, making their bodies to become more strong, light, nimble, pacient; yea, and emboldened against all hard and sinister Confider the sweetnesse and delight The cimbriwhich the Cymbrians founde in VVarre, anshada great vfing it as the Confernation of theyr felicity in Warre. Countrey: and when they went to fight, they woulde fing as chearefullie, as if they had beene going vnto a wedding. Immagine what pleafure was taken therein by furious Hanniball, Valiaunt Marcellus, Vertuous Scipio, Couragious Camillus, and that Victorious Alexan der.

I say moreouer, who so cuer is ignorant in taking good order for publique affayres, there is no place or Schoole, Schoole for wherein hee may more easily attaine publique afthereto; then by noting the preparation and conducting of an Armie . Befides, whofoeuer knoweth not the deceiptes, fleights, and trickes of ingenious pru-

The implica-Baptilis words to the Souldi. to the author interpretatió.

> Leffons to be learned in a ield of Bat taile, for any mans benefit during life,

> > The conclusió be able to teach him.

Warre is the cies and abu

All kindes of Creatures haue thear contraries appointed, to specale their urtiulneffe.

Ature hath verie many times expressed his care and providence (as a dutifull handmaid atending on Godywhäthere ding on God)whe there are any store of hurtfull

creatures in some country, that may impeach the inhabiting of men, or Liues 50 of other beafts and animals, to engender fome other of contrary kinds, to deftroy the ouer-abounding of fuch harmefull things. As we may observe in Serpents, which do denoure vp Toads & Lizards: Serpents also themselves, are exten by Storks, and many times they themfelues

dence, or how to stand vpon his guarde, to know what he should anoyd, and what he ought principally to followe: let him but live in war a month or two for pleafore; and in that time he shallern more then all the Bookes of Peace shall euer Furthermore, hee that couets to vn-derstand the true Nature of inuiolable obedience, strict diligence, incompareable vigiliance, vnípeakeable promptitude of heart, and inestimable strength of the bodie : let him but vouchsafe so much leyfure, as (for a while) to follow a field well manned and prepared, there barren. to obserue carefully, what hee may behold for his owne benefit. If hee finde not himfelfe well fatisfied; yea, & more then contented in verie few dayes. I will yeeld, and loofe my credite in this caufe. Which therefore shall ferue me to conclude withall, maintaining still that war is to be preferred before peace, as deerly beloued, and with choifest praises commended. Beside, our Prayers should continually bee made to God, to create fuch chearfull hearts in our Princes, that

CHAP, XXXIX.

wee may not any long time, remaine in want, of fuch a precious and vnvaluable

Of the Indian Beare: And of those Beares in our owne Natiue Countreyes, howe different they are in their feuerall Na-Iewcil.

do feede one voon another: Cats alfo do denoure Rats, and fo in divers more befide. I speake this the rather, because we finde recorded in the generall historie of the Indiaes, that in Quilds, a certaine Countrey of the New-world, there are fuch extraordinarie swarmes of Antes, that they confirme the feeds and rootes of all Trees and plants . So that, if there were no Beares (which Nature in effeciall fanour hath there appointed, and in great plentie) ther could not be any polfibilitie of dwelling there, because they would make the Countrey to bee quite

The Beare of this Region, lineth only The Indian (without anie other foode or Pastorage) on Anter only by eating those Antes, whose beddes and Nests hee easily findeth, and so with his tongue (which is verie broade and large hee is to quicke and readie in licking of them vp, that hee is onely nourished by them. There are also great store of those Bears, but they are not fierce, wild and harmefull, as those in other partes: for they will not fet uppon men, neither mount vppe vpon Trees, to denoure the Bearingen young fprouts and fruites, but are veried de and trafts eafily made tame and tractable by the Iv- ble. dians.

There is no need of plucking out their eyes, or boaring their lippes, to thruste Rings of Iron thorough them, onely to tame them. For even of themselves, they are (well-neere) Domesticall: and, if it were not for these Beares, neither men, and great store of other creatures, could not live there; but they encrease in those parts fo aboundantly, that they fuffice to destroy the plentie of Antes; in which respect, the Countrey may well account it felfe to be most happy.

I have not well beene informed, whether it bee the Nature of the Beares in this Countrey; that (according as hath beene reported) the thee-Beare yeildeth learned middle. or whelpeth a Male of Flesh, vvithout anie forme or apparance of life: and that the Damme, onely by the Vertue of licking, giueth it true thape. Of this opinion, were manie Learned and grane men, as Aristotle, Plu-Farke , Plinte , Flianus , and Du Bartes: but it is a manifest errour, as experience hath plainly declared ynto vs, because in manie enclosed places of Germanie, and of France alfo, Beares of both fexes Aaaaa

gion in the New-tound

A strait obfernation by Nature.

fare kept, which have engendered young ones, verie well formed in all their members. For, it is an order, observed by nature verie strictly in our terrestrial! Animalles, that in theyr passage out of the Matrixe, they are fully compleated in all their parts, without any need of further forming, encreasing verie well in those three dimensions, length, largenesse, & depth.

Coucerning teeth in yong they are not bred after their birth.

young whelps in the Dams

It ferueth to no purpose, to alledge, that Childrens teeth are engendered or formed after their birth. For I answere, that they bring then with them from the Mothers wombe : as I have seene in the diffection of many young infants, newly borne and dead, whose gummes beeing opened in the pittes and hollowes of the lawes, the Teeth have beene plainely

But indeede, no outward appearance is made of them, vntill certaine moneths determined by Nature; in which time, they grow greater and stronger, & pierce their passage through the gummes For mine owne part, in the Mountaines of Saint Claude, in La franche counte de Bourgongne, I haue seene a shee-Beare flaine: whose Belly being presently opened, three young Whelpes were there found, fully formed and hairy, and (as I thinke) verie soone to have beene whelped, and that which is affirmed by eyetestimony, I hope hath no neede of further probation. Sealiger, a great Phy-fition and Phylosopher, also affirmeth; . That he being once at the taking and killing of a Shee-Beare on the Alpes, the young Whelpes in her belly were found to be wholly formed, as I haue formerly 40 justified by mine owne fight.

Flinie faith, that the thirtith day after ried no longer time, as Kine doo theyr

Calues, Mares their Foales; and other great Beafts their young ones; and thefe

Shee-Beares hath commonlie three or her conception, the shee-Beare deline-How long reth her young ones . but Elianus fayeth, within three moneths after, which is the more likely and credible, because all with her yong and manner of her whelps. great creatures do beare their burthens longer, then fuch as are finall and little. When they are broght into the world, they are about the bignesse of Weezels: 50 and there is good apparance, that they can be no bigger, because they are car-

So foone as thee hath conceived, the commeth no more into the males fight . How the She. VVhen defire of coupling with the male leth with the is kindled in her, thee is fo greatly afha- Male. med thereof: that the hideth her felfe in the remotest obscure places, and the male neuer feeketh after her. At length, being preffed by Nature, and defire of generation, thee commeth to finde the male, and tumbling and playing before him, lyeth directly vpon her backe; and fo hee coupleth with her, euen as men and women vie to doe. And this is the reason, why it should not bee accounted fo straunge, that Beares have had actuall dealing with VVomen, wandering thorow the Forrests and Mountaynes, and conceyued by them, as I shall declare more at large in the next following 20 Chapter.

They helpe themselues with their Pawes and Feete, euen as men do with their handes and feete; for, they can goe vpright along while together, and hurle or throwe stones with theyr formost Pawes, finite with a Staffe, and whatfoeuer elfe themfelues will doo, as well as we.

They are almost continuallie troubled with paine and Ache in the head, and in such violent manner, that oftentimes (as madded therwith) they throw themselues downe from very high rocks their heads going forwardes, couering their eyes with their pawes, beecause their fight is verie feeble, and by couering their eyes, they feeme to find fome cafe.

They espie out such places, where Bees doe make their Honie and VVax, onely to make them angrie, and to the end, they may be pricked and pierced helps in the helps and bow they by the Bees stinges, both in their heade, and about their eyes: wherby their fight is amended, and their head greefe much affwaged. They feede indifferently on all kindes of Foode, be it Flefth, Fruites, of Beares. Hearbes, sprouts of Trees, and Honey They will affaile and kill (if they can) all wild and fauage Beafts; as Harts, Hinds, Boares; yea, and VVilde Bulles manie

The Shee-Beare feeling her felfe to be bagde, or conceyned with yong (which Female is most commonly is in the winter rime) | bagde with with-draweth her selfe into her Caue, which shee prepareth in a strong de-

Chap.39.

How long

Beare faltet

comming forth of her and of her

dealt carnal with weom

Actions per fourmed by

Beares trou

Fables repor ted by Deme-trius a Mofcoure Ambaffa dour to Rome

Ramp, Starch

worte, or Cuckoe-pint.

Beares haus

When the Nature harh

giuen breafts

or dugges to She Beares.

When a She-

Beare & her young ones are purfued.

fenced place, far from common refort, and well couered with earth, boughes, and braunches; entring thereinto alwaies backward, because it should not be knowne, or found by Huntsmen. There the remaineth forty dales together, without any food or fustentation; doing nothing elfe, but licke her right paw, whereby the liueth all that while . Afterward, the commeth forth againe, 10 and then eateth all the Antes she can come by eyet not for any nourishment (like to to the Indian Beare) but onely to prouoke her to vomit, to the ende that the may feed the better. Which when the hath done, the then feeketh after food, and because she hath continued the space of forty daves, and eaten nothing : her intestines are fast clunged together; fo that, no meate can haue entrance, but is instantly cast vp againe, and therefore the eates the Hearb called Aron, which giveth dilatation and open (preading to her bowels againe.

As for her Whelpes or young ones, they do not teate or fucke, like to other Creatures, because Munster reporteth (but I know not from whom) that one Demetrius a Moscouite, who was fent thence as an Ambaffadour to Rome, declared for a certainty to fome perticuler Men of credit : that in his Countrey of Moseonia, there were great store of Beares, big in stature of body, and very fierce, that after their birth (for the fpace of foureteene daies) lived without eating any thing, continuing in fo profound a fleepe, that nothing could waken them, no, though they were prickt and pierced very deepely . After that time is passed ouer, they do then awake, and fal to licking of their formost paws, and live (onely by this licking) till the Spring time, when they begin to come abroad with their Dammes, and nibble on tender Hearbs, as they fee them do Now, to speake vprightly, I can hardly be induced to beleeve this, because Nature hath giuen Breafts, or Duggesto She-Beares, as I my felfe haue feene, and then they should have their Milke in vainc.

Moreover, that if they be purfued by Hunters, having their young ones in their company, and they vnable to escape, in regard of their weaknesse: the Damme carryeth some on her back, and one in her mouth, and fo climbeth vp vpon a high Tree, to preserve her felfe and them in this manner. This maketh me to remember, that which is recited by E'ianus, of a She-B. are and 3. cap. 30. two Lyons.

He fairh, that he heard it reported by one Eudemus, that a She-Beare of * Pangaus, a Mountaine in Thrace, chanced ' to finde a Denne; wherein were young Lyon-whelpes, and neither the Sire or Damme there present, to defend them from this She Beare, therefore the kil- A ftrange Hiled them, & afterward departed thence. Beare and a Within a thort while after, the Lyon Lyonneffe. and his Lyonnesse returned to their den, bringing preyes to nourish their young Whelpes withall: but finding them dead, and gathering (by their (ente) how they were murthered; they instantly pursued the Shee-Beares foo-ting by the smell, and discerning her a uer the killers farce off, drew neerer and neerer still, of their young deuting their best meanes, how to entrapher. Which the She-Beare also that did the perceiuing, and knowing her strength deed. these displeased Lyons : forthwith shee began to climbe a Tree, and got vp to the very top thereof. These entaged Beafts feeing they could compaffe no a- The Lioneffe mends from the murdreffe; tormented lyeth downe themselves exceedingly, and the Lyon- her enemic. nefle lying downe at the foote of the Tree, kept it as besiedged, to be reuenged on her Enimy. But the Sire or male Lyon, he ran vp and downe from Hill to Dale, making the Mountaines to tremble with his loud out-cryes, and all the other Beafts to be very fearefull. At length, hee lighted on a man a Woodfeller, who was hewing downe a Tree in the Forrest, and perceiving the Lyon to make towards him; with extreamity of difmay the Axe fell out of his hands, and faigne he would have fled for his fome vrgent occasion. At length, he took him by the cloaths with his reeth, as if hee would bee his guide and conduct to some place, often tentimes proftrating himfelfe at his feete, euen as if he implored his help in do : licking his hands and garments, of- good.

ownerafety. The Lyon approaching neere voto him, made fignes of humble Admirable and gentle fawning on him, and in fuch Lyons, to doe pleafing manner, as we fee Dogges to themselues The Lyon gi-ueth directions to the mã

As expressing nature he had fustained, by

The She-Bear difinembred in many pic-

The Beare the flesh of no beafis, but fuch as he him

Munfler, ex Demetri.

A pretty Hiftory, and no way vnlikely, of a mans life patting his paw vpon the Axe, that the Wood-feller should take it vp againe: which the fearefull man being not able to comprehend (though the beast still vrged it by divers perswasine signs) the Lyon took it vp with his teeth, and carried it himfelfe. So, winding his taile about one of the mans legs, he conducted him, first to the place where the young whelps lay murdred, which was not far from the Tree whereon the she-Beare was mounted. Thither also he brought him, and the Lyonnesse seeing them comming, the arole (with chearful disposition) to meete them, equalling, or rather exceeding the Male Lyons affability to the Man. In briefe, both the beafts made fuch apparant fignes to the Carpenter, that hee not onely faw the She-Beare aloft on the Tree; but ga- 20 thered also by their moanes, that thee had killed their young Whelpes, and therefore they would have him to cut downe the Tree; because, by no means elfe, they could be auenged on her. The man did quickly cut downe the Tree, & as it fell, fo did the She-Beare : which was so sooner on the ground, but instantly they rent her in infinite peeces, returning many gratefull fignes to the poore Carpenter, and conducting him fafely to his former working place againe.

But returne we now againe, to the naturall disposition of the Beare. He will neuer eate the Fleih of any Beaft, which he findeth dead, or readily killed for him. It is faide also, that if a man counterfeit himfelfe to be dead, and retaineth his breath while he smelleth to him; hee will not doehim any harme. He driueth all Rats out of his Denne, and will not abide therein, if there bee but one left in it. He will never cate any Hony out of the Hine, where he findes the Bees to be dead.

MunHer declareth (by direction from the fore-named Demetrius) that a Beare faued the life of Man, in the very remotest and vastest Forrest of all Moscomia, in the yeare, one thousand fine hundred and thirty, and after this manner. A man inhabiting in a neighbouring Village, went into the Forrest to gather Waxe and Hony: because in those Countries, the Bees vieto make their Hony in hollow Trees in the Forrests, whereof there are no meane number, and hee thereby maketh his best benefit, that is most diligent in fearch, and getteth the greatest quan-

The poore Countrey-man, standing with his Legges extended abroad in a hollow Tree, for his better gathering of his Hony-Combs : the flender hold (which supported his feete) chanced to breake, and downe he fell further into the hollow of the Tree, till hee was vp to the Chin in Waxe and Hony; deftitute of all strength for helping himfelfe, or hope of any fuccour, because no Passengers frequented that way (at least-wife, very sildome) that might heare his wofull complaints, fo that he continued there for the space of two

Now, it fortuned or rather, the especiall Grace of God fo directing, that a Beare came by the Tree, and finelling the Honny, climbed up the Tree, and descended downe to the place where the poore man was. The Beare beeing fearefull when he beheld the man, turned to get vp againe out of the Tree: but the poore man caught hold on one of his hinmost feet, and held so stronglie with both his hands, that the Beare A very great brought vp himfelfe and the man out and memorable delinerate of the Tree, and both fell downe together on the out-fide of the Tree, fomewhat aftonied with the fall, but no way hurt, the Beare returning into the Woodes, and the man to his home. Thus the Beare faued the poore Countrey-mans life, without declaring any figne of hurting or offending him.

Bachiles Anchifus faith, that in the Northerly Countries, there are white Bachiles Anchi Beares, that line both in Waters, and fo, or Anthife on the Land : befide, that either with white beares. hurling stones, or branches of Trees, or with their clawes, they will break open the Ices in Riners, and in the Sea, only to catch Fishes to seed on. Moreover, that they are not fo malicious or harmfull, as other Beares are, neither are luftfull, or feeking after weomen: As one, whereof I am now to speake, and wherby a Lady conceined, after the maner of women, witneffed for truth, by Ioannes loannes Mag. Saxonius, in his large History, and toannes Magnus, Arch-bishop of V palsain Olass Epife. Swetia; & lastly, by Arch-bishop Olaus, Vipal.

The poore

is weaken, heauen is the ftrongest.

Beare, and carried away to his Denne. ding all her ytte: moit re filtance.

the Beare to his Successour, who in his Writings auoucheth the very fame, according as I have felected it from them in this enfuing Chapter.

CHAP. XL.

Of a Lady of Swetia, that was conceived with child by a Beare, and afterward what ensued thereon.

Chap. 40.

Swenia bordereth on Ba-ueria Halfatia

there and the

the River

N a part of the King-dome of Swetia or Swe-wia, there flood fome-time a goodly Cattle, builded neere vnto a Mountaine, by aweal-N apart of the Kingthy Lord, and one of great authoritie. This Lord had a very faire Daughter, who walkedabroad in an evening, accompanyed with some other Gentleweomen, to take the open ayre in the Fields. As they walked together, pleafantly talking and discoursing; a Bare (by chance) had strayed abroad from the thickets on the Mountaine, of verie huge stature, fierce and terrible, making directly towards this faire troup, who (in great feare) when they elpyed the Beare, fled, some one way, and the rest another, for their best delinerance. The The lady fur-Beare laying hold on the chiefest Ladie of all the rest, lifting her forcibly vpon his backe: ran (so fast as he could) into the thickest of the Forrest, not meeting 40 any refistance by the way, because the fore-faide Ladies came foorthalone of themseluee, not having any man in their company.

Now, albeit the Beare had thus wandered abroad, in fearch of some prey, for appealing his hunger: yet(referring the maine point hecrein, to Gods mercifull andomnipotent preservation)the Beare, mooued by some instinct of na- 50 ture (farre differing from that in Beafts of the fame kind) would not kill her for his foode, but carried her to his Caue, which was in a very darke and deep vallv. There his wonted, rough and fterne the Lady whe nature, became converted into lovelike embracings and careffes, which were to extreamely purfued and continued : that the Lady apprehended his luftfull intention, which, though it was monstrous and vnnaturall, yet it quallified fome part of her former feare. And, as she durst not (in this extreamitie) refift the fury and power of the Beare, dreading each houre the loffe of her life : fo (questionlesse) much against her will or liking, thee was enforced to con-Tent, and endure fuch companying with him, as you may better imagine, then I expresse.

his den, hunt and kill all kinds of Beatts, nourithment and bring them home as food for himfelfe and the Lady: who (in this vrging Denne. nec. ffi v) vas glad to eat raw flesh, wilde Fruits, and some other foodes familiar to men; as Cheefe, Bread, and fuch like victuals, which he would get from the that kept Cattle in the fieldes, or fuch as traugiled to Faires and Markets, Her daily drinke, was Water of a cleare running Brooke at the Caucs entrance, shaddowed with a louely thicket of young Trees: and thus shee lived, in hope that (one day) God would deliner her, Many times (while the Boare was abroad at his prey and purchase) shee purposed to make an escape thence: yet minations to durst not attempt it, least hee should a- efector from the Beare. gaine recouer her, and then kill her ; befide, the feared the rauenous fury of other fauage Beaftes, whereof no meane ftore frequented the Mountaine.

As thus the fpent fome moneths in The happy this haplesse manner, it fortuned, that manner of the wotull certaine Huntsmen (pursuing their de-lightfull sporting ouer the Mountaine) the Beare. with their Grey hounds and Beagles, the Beare. followed this Beare fo mainly; that he being falne into their fnares, they there flew him. And although this was vnknown to the Lady, yet when the heard the voyces of men, and they appearing tobe neere the Caue fhe came foorth vnto them, to their no little dread and admiration. Yet looking more aduifedly on her, they perfectly knew her, The Lady, and had heard of her loffe, with generall supposition of her death : whereup- Father and on they conducted her home to her Fa- Mother. ther and Mother, who scarcely knew her her complexion had been fo greatly altered. In this time, Nature (who fomerimes worketh wonderfull things,

The Beare would daily iffue forth of What kind of

Chap.1.

The Lady was deliuere of a goodly Sonne, and he was named Beare.

Reare flew al

them that killed the Beare

his begetter.

The Authors

out of his own affirmation knowledge.

posed to of the Beasts seed in her bodie; that the being growne great, and generally expected to be delinered of a monfter:it prooued to bee a goodly Male Childe, not any way pertaking in the Sires bestiall forme or appearance, sauing that his body was much more hairy all ouer, then is scene in other Children. He was carefully nurfed, and the I o name of Beare imposed on him : but when he grew to mans estate, hee became fo firong and powerfull, that cuery one stood in great feare of him. The Huntsinen that killed the Beare, his begetter, would often boalt in his company, after what manner they had delinered his Mother but hee was the Deathsman of them all, faying; Albeit, he had received (uch a favour by them, get 20 notwithstanding, he stood bound in nature, to resenge the death of his Father. This Man begat Trugillus Sprachaleg, and contrary to common order) had dif-

The discent who was a very valiant Souldiour and of Beare, ac-cording to the Captaine; and he begat VIfen, a man of high deseruing: of whom, the Chroni-Chronicles. cles of the Countries of Dannemarch, Sweuia, and Gothia, doe make most large mention, for he was the Father of Suegus, who was King of Dacia; whereup- 30 on, all Histories doe affirme, that al the Kings of Dacia, and of Swenia, proceeded from this race, and all the fore reci-The Kings of ted Authours (who are of the same Dacks and Swe uia descended of a Beare. Countries) doe maintaine as much. Concerning my felfe, I have feene many tame and domesticke Beares, amourous of Women, and She-Beares to be the like of Men, although their eyes

haue beene pluckt out, and very few are ignorant of the truth in this cafe: therefore this hiftory fufficiently approved, that these beastes doe couple after the manner of men.

Now, let vs admit the Bear of Sumuly meta-cruell and vile in all his actions; yet not cinable pro-perties below-Now, let vs admit the Beare to bee diuers medicinable properties, on fome ging to cerpeculiar parts of his body. His head is of the Beare. held venomous, to fuch as eate thereof, and to procure raging madnesse: in which regard, the Inhabitants of these Northerly Countries, doe vie to burne those heads, and the Ashes of them are exceeding good, for them that have the Foule-euill, or Falling-ficknesse, by often washing the diseased parties head, sickness. with Lye, made of the faide Ashes or Cinders. If they be mingled also among Hony, it will cause Haire to grow againe, where it hath long time wanted: euen as the Fat or Greafe of the Beare doth the like, when men haue loft their For refloring Haire, helping likewise the paines of lost haire, & the Sciatica, and other Gouts. Alfo his Sciatica and Flesh is wholesome to bee eaten, and Goutes, hath no euill taft. The Scythians, Getes, and other Notherne Countries, do fa- The Southing ften Beares heads on the Gates of their Getes and Citties and Townes, perswading them-Northerne Nations. felues; that they doe preserve them, from being hurt by their enemies. Thus you fee, what I collected out of good, ancient, and approoued Authors, concerning the Nature of the Indian Beare, and those of other Countries, better knowne to vs.

For the foole

The End of the Eight Booke.

The Ninth Booke.

CHAP. I.

Of the Great Turks Court, more commonly cald (in the fe daies) the Court of the Gret Signior: His Pompe, State, Officers, and Attendants; As also their daily Wages and Allowances, according to their degrees, and places of Service, &c.

E haue alreadie fpoken fufficiently (though briefely)concerning the Originall of the Turkish Empire, and in what manner they attained to fuch height and greatneffe: Our purpose therefore, in this present Chapter, is, to discourse onely of the Government, and Order obserued in the Court, viually tearmed by themselues, the Porta or Court of the Grand Signore; whereto I am the more willingly induced, because the Pompe, Might, and Maiesty thereof, may bee publikely discerned.

The Cittie of Constantinople, wherein the Great Signior Turke (with his Court Royal) maketh his most residing; was in former times called Bizantium, and new Rome, containing now in circuit, about eighteene Miles. It hath scanen small Hils, not of any great height, and it is rounded with old ruined wals, being full of Houses, though none of the best, yet composed of Clay, wood, and some few of stones. There are many Groues or Thickets of Trees in the Citty, vn-inhabited, confifting of Cipreffe Trees, and divers others there growing in like maner . In Constantinople is the Serraglio of the Signior Turke, Signor Tinco. which is a finguler thing, & very great, as we shall relate hereafter. There is the Serragiio of Weomen, for the Great Signior; The Serraglio of Ianiffarles; In Conftanti-The Patriarkes Pallace : The Pallace of nople. Constantine the Emperor, which is partly ruinated; The Church of Saint So- The goodly Church of S. phia, which was builded by the Empe- Sophia. Your Justinian, of admirable fine flone, and curious Marble, as yet (though very ancient and excellent) is to be itene, part whereof, the Great Signior imployeth as a Stable for his Horses. There is alfo the Molchea of the Sultane Mehemet. which hath an Amarato (that is as an Hospitall or Almes-house) joyned vnto it, wherein is entertained and lodged for people of men of all Nations and Religions, that and three will enter into it, and there they are al- dayes enterlowed three dayes acceptance and food, trainement as Hony, Rice, Bread, Water, anda Chamber to rest in. There is belonging to this Hospitall, goodly Bathes, and rare Fountaines or Springs of Water, very delightfull to behold. There are alfo the Molchenes of Sultane, Briazeth, Divers Atg. of Sultane Selim, and of divers other chears in the

and coftly builded: whereby it appeareth, that when they pleafed, they knew how to make houses, and Pallaces most

The great abiding in Confrantino ple, with fome briefe diferipIl Serraglio del.

Lords, which are very beautifull and City.

A courfing or running place for Hor

The curious Needle in the

The three pent of Braffe

The great Co-

Antiquities in paffage tho-row the citty.

Gardens and goodly Hou-Private Mof-

The hils of Afia, now cal-led Natolia.

Caffelles Scutars. Chalcedonia in the Hellefpont.

The fite or Seare of Conantinople exceeding demagnificent and fumptuous.

There is likewise the * Hippodromo, which is a place, where anciently they vied to breake and run their Hories, in the forme of a Theater or circle in the midft of which Hippodromo, there ftandeth a sharp Spire or Pinnacle, being an ingenious Piller, made in the fathion of a Needle, very faire, well wrought, and without any Lime or Morter: yet made of fine Stone, and framed in fuch manner, that it rifeth aboue fifty fadome in height, observing still the true shape of a Needle, and resting upon foure round Bals of Marble. There is also a Piller of Braffe, in forme of a Serpent with three heads : and a Hercules of Braffe, brought thither from Hungaria; and in the midft of all thefe, flandeth'a frame or denife, made like a Coloffus, of divers kindes of beautifull Marble, whereon is curioufly engrauen, the Histories of all the forenamed thinges; and others, that were wont to be in the Theater or Hippodromo. Thorow the Citty, there are diners tracts or pathes of Antiquity, Arches, Colloms of Porphiry, Springes tetcht from Danubie, & other neere neighbouring Riuers: many Gardens with goodly Houses in them; many Moschenes belonging to private Lordes, and great ftore of Bathes, annexed to the Mofeheaes of publike Magistrates, and other prinate persons.

On the other fide of the Sea, and at the head of the Serraglio, are the hils of Afia, containing the iourney of two miles, little more or leffe: which Afia, ander one name only is now cald Natolia, and there (on the shoaring banckes) are divers little Cafiles, termed Scutars. Next, there is that which they call Chalcedonia, feated in a corner of the Hellefont : where divers notes of Antiquitie are to be obserued, and (in many places) the foundation of auncient Churches many be scene, as well of Christians, as of the Gentiles, being now goodly places, and abounding in Fruits. The fite or scituation of Constantinople is fuch, as not only it exceedeth all description. equal to the due merit thereof : but alfo can as hardly be conceived in thought, in regard of the beauty and delicate composure therof, so that (vindoubtedly)it may rather be reputed divine then otherwise, and whatsoeuer hee be that shall behold it, will judge it worthy to be preferred, before all other sited. Citties in the world.

In the Citty, befide Turkes, there are Jewes, being * Marrani, fled, or repulfed * A Nicke. out of Spaine; and these are they that have taught, and do yet teach, all kinds dell Renegion of the spaining do Spaining of Trades to the Turkes, and the most part of all the Shoppes and Boothes for Trades, are kept and exercised by those Marrani. There is a place named Bifestano, where is bought and fold all kinde of chieffin. Cloathes, and Turkish Commodities, Confianting Silkes, wollen and Linnen Cloath, Siluer and Gold wrought into all formes, Bowes, Slaues, Horles, and all kinds of thinges elfe to be had in Constantinople, which continually are brought to this Market, and which is enery day kept open in full fale, except Friday onely. Constantinople is in Thrace, and the ter- In whatma minations thereof are in this manner.

On the East, is the Proponiu, and mouth dedor limit of the great Sea, from the streights of tedonall Hellefpont, to Bofphorus Thracius. On the West, is part of Bu'garia, and part of Macedonia. On the North, Basina; And on the South, Egaam Mare, with part of Macedonia, which turneth towardes the River Neffana, anciently called *2Vefus Fluvius. This most Noble Citty is inhabited with Turks, who (by the wrirings of divers approoued Authours, for confirmation, and many of the Turkes themselves also) had their Original from Scythia, which now is part of Tartaria, a Northerly Region, and deuided into two parts by the River * Tanais one part whereof is in Europe, & the other in Afia. That part of Europe is confined (on the one fide) with Pontus, and on the other fide, with the Riphean Mountaines, being backed also with Afia it felfe, and with the River Thafpis. By Ptolomie, thefe two Scythiaes are named the one, Intra * Iamnum montem, In the leffer and the other, Extra lamnum, as is more of the lifes called Balant at large elfe where to be feene.

This people, being parted from Seyshia, as formerly hath been faid, and beginning(in their own confines) to make | The Turker commodities and irruptions, proceeding on still further: in thort time they ouer-ruled a great part of Asia; but in regard they knew not how to maintain themselues under one Head or Commaunder, they could not make any

A River of and large pro The conditions accepted and broleen-

Very liberall

Wher floo a Citty of descended Michaele Grece

> The Malcozo lis of Malco Greco.

The Euracasti.

Succession haterfued after Otthomä.

Orchanes. Amurath. 1.

Baiazeth, 1. Calopine.

Of the Great Turkes Court.

one, who was named Otthoman (a man of more condition then common base-Otthoman, a neffe, being of high fpright and valiant and fprightly minded) he confulted with his owne thoughts, that if he could compaffe the firme or feiled foundation. Which being well perceined and confidered by couered his fe

Chap. 1.

arme and furtherance of fome ingenious man that had authority: bee might eafily haue the people and whol Country vnder obedience, and encrease the fame as occasion stil ferued. Hereupon, he discovered his private intention to three men, whom he thought more apt and convenient for this bufineffe, then any of the rest: promising them, that if he could compasse the hope he aymed at 5 both they and their of-fpring thould be continued and maintained in fuch high state and dignity, answerable to fo | 20 great abenefit as he received by them. Moreouer, that not any one of their pofterity, fhould be vnder-handed, or left to the mercy of Law, except they offended very grieuously. The conditions were accepted by these men, and they conforced together against the chiefest Soueraignety: in which progression, what by art, craft, threatnings, & much expence of blood, all was obtained to 30 their full defire. These three men, one of them was named Michaele Greco, made a Turke: of whom are descended the Marcalogi, & one of them (is at this inflant) Saniack of Bossina. The second was called Males Green, a Renegado: of whom also came the Malcoroli, and there is but one

When the Race and Family of Otthoman failed, thefe other pretended right to the principalisie, and therefore they were very highly respected. This Otthoman came to the Gouernment, in the yeare one thousand, three hundred, or onely left of them, who is Saniack in Grecia. The third was Aurami, a Natiue

Turke, the descendants of whom were tearmed Euracaft, and it is not knowne, whether any of them bee left, or no.

there about, and lived in the regiment, fixe yeares. Next him was Mihomet, who raigned foureteene yeares. Then twenty eight yeares. After whom fucceeded Orghanes, who lived twenty two yeares in the dominion. Next, Amurath raigning twenty three yeares. After him Batazeth; Then Cyrificlebes, or (as others will haue it) Calapine, who lived Mahomet. 1.

Amurath the fecond, who ruled one and thirty years. Then Mahomet the second; who raigned two and thirty yeares and was called the first Emperour of the Turkes in Constantinople. Next, Baiazeth Baiazeth. 2. the fecond, who raigned one and thirty yeares. Then Selim, eight yeares, To whom fucceeded Sultan Soliman, who raigned forty seauen yeares : And after 10 him, Selim the second, raigning eyght Selin. ... yeares. Then Amurath the third, who raigned one and twenty years. Next to him, Mahomet the third, ruling nine yeares : And laftly Achmeth, or Achmet, who came to the Empire, being but feuenteene yeares old; and raigneth yet at this prefent. THE Great Signior hath a Serraglio in a part of Constantinopie, at the two Seas deuision, which containeth (in circuit) about three miles : and therein is his chiefe Seat and Court, which is called or Court, the Porta. This Serraglio, because it whering the was begun to be builded by the Sultane great Sections Mahomes: when hee dyed, liee would haue it levelled with his Moschea, and that a thousand Aspers should be dailie paied towards the charges, which Afpers documount to twenty Duca es, and this payment is as yet obserued. In the faid Serraglio are very many goodly Chambers, but one (aboue all the reft) appointed for the Great Signior, and wherein he fleepeth, where doe attend mor in his fixe Youthes (supposed by some to be Weomen) who onely doe awaite on his person. Of these fixe, two are appointed daily for feruice in the Chamber, and of the Signior, and by them at night time, the Office of Guard is performed, one standing at his head, and the other at his feete (continually vigil-

Thefe two doe helpe in the morning, to put on the Signiors Garments, the vppermoft whereof being called taffanno 3 hath two Pockets : into one where- fleeping in the night of, the Pages do put a thousand Affers, and into the other, twenty Ducates of Gold enery morning, which Mony, if (in the day time) it bee not given away by the Signior; it remaineth to them that maketh him vnreadic at night, Bbbb lant) with two lighted Torches in their

Achmeth or Achmet, the Turke or great Signier now raigning.

Of the Porta

Six youths that wait on the great Sig-Chamber, & order of their

and watching

What Money he daily carrieth about him, being put into his pockets by his Pages.

The Cofnadar Bajhae, the Signiors chiefe Treasurer.

The fix yong Pages, and what belong feuerall Offices, and their wadges.

Cafnadar-Ba-

Chilergi-Bafhan

Sara:dar-Bafhae, Eunuch

Tweluc Eunuchs.

Fine hundred young Weomen, who are Concubines to the great Signior, and kept in an especiall Serrazlio.

for he neuer putteth on those garments againe, neither weareth any twice, as is credibly affirmed. When he rideth abroad on pleafure, either to hunt, or any other sportfull exercise, beside the forenamed Mony which he carryeth about him ; the Cafnadar-Bafhae, who is his chiefe Treasurer, rideth next behind him, who carrieth great fums of Mony, which the Signior commaundeth to be given away. The Offices of the fore-named fixe young Pages, are altred according to the Signiors will and pleafure. One of them is called the Chiuchter, that is he which carrieth the Pantofles of the Signior; The fecond, Scilichtar, who beareth his Bow and Arrowes; The third, Chiocadar, who carrieth his cloak or Mantle; The fourth, Saraptar, who carieth his Vial of water : The fift Schemelioli, who beareth his stoole or seat; And the last is Oda-Bashae, who is chiefe of the Chamber. These Pages haue firm and fetled allowance of Wages; some fifteen, and others twenty, but the Oda-Bashae thirty Aspers daily. The Capagass Eunuch, that is he which is chiefe of the Ports or Court, hath three(core Afpers daily.

The Cafnadar-Bafbae Eunuch, chiefe of all the other Treasurers, hath threefcore and ten Aspers daily.

The Chilergi-Balbae Eunuch, chiefe of all the other Difpenfers or Stewards, hath forty Aspers daily.

The Saraidar-Bashae, Eunuch of the Serrag'io, when the Signior is in Prograce, hath fifty Aspers daily.

Twelve Eunuches, subject, or at commaund of these fore-named, haue fome ten, and some fifteen Aspers each man daily.

In the next place, we are to speake of fine hundred young Women, from the age of eight, to the yeares of twentie. who are kept in a Serraglio, and are the choise delights of the Grand Signior. They have ten and twelve Aspers daily each one of them, and are enstructed in divers Arts, according to their ableft 50 apprehension: but most especially in Reading, Writing, and Doctrine of their Law or Religion, and in riding. Their Maisters or Tutours, are ancient Talifmani, called Cozza, that is to fay, Doctours of the Law.

These young Women, at the time of Bairono, which is (among vs) the Feast 7ail/mani Cor.

of Easter, are all allowed Garments by of the Lawet of Easter, are all allowed Garments by the Great Signior, which are of Silke Schoole Mai. and of Cloath, without any forme of fters to the Livery. Their Head Arrives are all of Gold, and they have Semitaries and Bowes, like Amazones : but they never go foorth of the faid Serraglio, till they attaine to fuch yeares, as the Signior thinketh them apt for some Office, and then they are made eyther Spacoglani, or Scilichtari, or of some greater degree, according to their carryage, or grace when the Sa that they have won with the Signior. Euery tenne of these Women are kept by an Eunuch, called Capoglano, that is to fay, chiefe of the younger Women, Eunuchs and and enery one of them hath a night-Slaue, and toucheth not him that lyeth neerest him. They lodge in goodlie bines in their Roomes, like great and spacious Hauls, verie full of lights, and their Eunuches doe fleepe in the middeft of those Roomes. There is a Garden belonging Bollangi, Garto the Serraglio, containing in compatie deners belon more then a mile, whereto appertai- ging to the Weomens neth fiue and thirtie Gardiners, called Bostangi, who are decayed and aged Ianissaries : and these Bostangi haue (from three to fine Aspers) each man dailie, and euery one hath a Livery of Turkish Cloath, and a Shirt yearelie allowed him. When they depart out of the Serraglio, they remaine Ianiffaries, or Solacchi, or Capigi, or otherwise, according to their qualitie.

The Bost angi-Bashae, who is chiefe of the Gardiners, hath fifty Afpers daylie Bollangi-Ball allowed him, and many other royall fa- chiefe Garde uours beside.

The Protogere, who is as Lieutenant Protogere, to the Gardiners, hath twentie Afpers to the Garde daily, and enery ten hath a chiefe, called ners. Boluch-Bashae. Out of this Garden, which is very great, well laboured, and full of excellent Fruits of all fortes, there is yearely gathered fuch plentie: that the benefit made onely thereby, fufficeth for the Signiors expences in dyer, beside a good ouer-plus remaining for other vies. Neere to the Gar- Foyths for the den, doetwo Foystes or small Barkes Signiors recontinually attend, which are rowed by the Gardiners, when the Signior plea-feth to follace himfelfe on the Water, and the Bolnch-Balhae governeth the Helme.

There

Chap.1.

Affi. Bafbae,

Canalgi Bafhac Maifter of the afragir-Ba-bae, the chief Butler.

Mutpachemin the chiefe

Sreward.

an flaric-

Wood-carri

Sacca, water

Cookes.

Offices be-

Night Slaue the Concu-

Serraglio, and

The Signiors

daily expen reomen,&c.

> His Stable of Horfes in the Capigi-Bafhaes Captaines of the Gates, who comand ouer the ca-

There is one called Asi-Bashae, who is chiefe of the Cooks, with fifty Cooks vnder him, that have each man fiftie Aspers by the day, under Cookes four, who have fixe Afpers; and fixe others, eight Aspers each man.

Canalgi-Bashae, is chiefe of the Confectionarie, having forty Aspers daylie allowed him: and he hath thirty other Companions, who have fome five, o- 10 thers fixe Aspers each man.

The Calnagir-Balbae, who is Maister of the Butlers, or chiefe Butler to the Great Signior, hath forty Aspers daily. Morning and Eucning hee bringeth in his hand, the Cuppe which the Signior drinketh in, and hath an hundered Casnegeri vnder him, who have from thirtie, to fixtie Afpers each man day-

The Mutpachemin, who is the chiefe Steward, hath fortie Afpers daily, and keepeth a Clearke under him, that hath twenty Aspers daily.

An hundred decayed Janiffaries, which with Carts doe carry Wood to the Serraglio, they have from three, to five Aspers a man daily, and are cloathed al-

Ten Sacca, which carry Water on 30 Horses in Bouges, haue each man from three, to fine Aspers daily.

The expences which is graunted by the Grand Signiors allowance, to his women and their Eunuches, with other persons, to the number of a thousand, or thereabout, amounteth to five thoufand Aspers euery day.

There is a Stable in the Serraglio, with two hundred Horses for the Signiors 40 person, and two hundred men to mannage and keepe them, who have from fiue, to eight Afpers each man daily.

Three Capigi-Bashaes, who are Captaines of the Portes or Gates, that have an hundred Afpers by the day, and are cloathed yearely. Vnder them they commaund two hundred and fifty Capigi, that have each man from fine to feanen Aspers dailie. Each Capigi Bashae, standeth obliged (with a third nuber of the Capigi) to keepe a Guard at the Gate of the Grand Signior, beeing changed still day by day. And when Ambassadours, or others doc come to killethe Grand Signiors hand: all of them are presented with Garments, or else Mo-ny, according to the degree of him that is brought to that honor.

A Capigichechesi, who is as Protogero of the Capigi, and hath forty Afpers Protogeroto

Foure Bafbaes, called Vifirs, that is, Baffaes Vifies, chiefe Councellers to the Signior . He chiefe Counthat is greatest in authority, hath foure States-men and twenty thousand Ducates by the to the great yeare, and the other of them, have fix | S. gnior. teene and eighteene thousand yearely each man. They hold (beside) so much Land of him, as yeildeth three times more benefit, then is their allowance and provision of Money: whereto are added the rich garments given them by the Signior; the great prefents of Suiters, and others; beside the royalties held by their Offices, which are infinite. These Bashaes line and goe cloathed very pompoully, having Slaves, both Men and Women, to whom they give Wages, Horses, Garments, Head-attires of Gold, Girdles of Siluer, according to such Office and degree, as they hold about them : and by thefe(with his owne prouision) is each Bashae serucd,euen as the Signior is ferued by his attendants. They have five and twenty, or Secretaries thirty Secretaries granted them by the allowed by Signior, who are men of good effect, the Signior, to attend on his and haue flue and twenty or thirty Afforce Bafhaer pers ech man daily, befide Slaues, some Vifice. more, fom leffe, according to ech mans things after their owne liking.

Next, there is the Mophty, who is the Interpreter and chiefe of the Law or chiefe Priest Religion: And he is not troubled with or Biffiep. any other matters, but in cases belonging to Religion, and concerning their Faith. His Office and Dignity is, as prefenting the person of the chiefe Priest quality and estate. These Bastraes doe go in and out to the Signior, about matters and occasions of State, & are they

(in briefe) that gouerne and manage all or Bishop. Two Cadi Leschieri Talifmani, who Cadi Leschieri are Doctors of the Law for the Armie, Talifinani, Doone of Greece, the other of Nato'ta, and dours of Law they hold very worthy Offices. They fit at the Court gate, and do proceed or go before the Balbaes Vifirs, albeit the other are more effeemed. They are Executors of the Lawes, and with confent of the Bafbaes. They place and displace the Cadi, who are as Potestates and chiefe Bbbb2 MagiCadi, Maiors or Poteffates through the Land.

Mochtur-Ba-Shaes, as Maifters of the Horffe.

Difterdari, Mai fters of the Rents & Reuenues.

The great Signiors Vicar and Lieuctenant in Con-Rantinople.

cafaa, the Treasure belonging to the Rofunamegi, Maifters, or Comptrollers

Defnadar, weighers of Money.

Saraffieri,bankers or Mo. ney-Changers.

Magistrates thorow the Countries. They hold in Lands (each man) about feauen thousand ducates yearely, and do keep two hundred or three hundred Slaues scuerally: being also allowed by the Signior, ten Secretaries, and two Macheur-Bashaes, who performe the Office of Cauallery, and line on the royalties, whereof they have good store.

are towardes Danubie; and next, from Afia, Soria, and Ægypt, with Landes of ten thousand Ducates yearely, albeit,

(with their royalties) hee vaifeth three times as much. The other hath charge of the other two third partes of Grecia, but when the great Signior goeth forth into the Field: he remaineth as his Vicar and Lieutenant in Constantinople, and hath fixe thousand ducates in lands, whereof he maketh three times the value, and their feuerally Offices are of great dignitie. They keepe under them fifty Clearkes, with many coadiutores, that is, of the Signiors Treasure: and these Clearks are allowed wages by the Signior, from fifteene, to fifty Afpers each man daily. Also these Difterdari, each one of them hath 1000. Slaues, & the other five hundred: Likewise, the Clearkes, they have from two, to twen-

Two Rolunamegi, Maisters of the make disburfement thereof again when need requireth, who have xxv. affiftants betweene them. These two men are allowed forty Aspers apiece; and the five and twenty have from eight, to ten Af-Defnadar, wherof there are two, whose office is to weigh the Afpers and Duckates, with five and twenty Aspers al-

Sixe Saraffieri, as Bankers or Lombards, who know the true estimate of Gold and Siluer, and have from ten to

Then there is a Nessangi-Bashae, who figneth the Commaunds, and publique fifteene Aspers, each man daily.

lowance daily for the one, and thirtie 50 pers each man daily.

for the other.

Clearkes, that receive the Monies, and 40

ty Slaues, each man allowed him.

There are two Difterdari, or rather, (as we vie to tearme them) Gouernors of the rents and renenues. One of them hath the collection, & keeping of those accounts, which come from one third part of Greece : to wit those parts which each man.

who have care of the Cafna accounts, 30 better fort, fourescore Aspers a man

> There is a Chiaus-Bashae, who is chiefe of the Sergeants for the Army, and as Sergeant holdeth fuch credit with every man : Maior. that when he is fent by command from the Signior, to any Bashae, Saniack, or Cadi, with order, to cause the head of any one to be finitten off: he is obeyed, commandement inwriting, and euen no otherwise then acidet no otherwise, then as if the Signior himself were there in person, and commaunded it to be done. This man hath an hundred Aspers by the day, and keepeth an hundred Slaues vnder him, for whom he is allowed from fine & twenty, to forty Aspers for each man daily.

> The Mechter-Balhae, is Maister of them, that de display or spread abroad the Tents of Paullions, and the Tapefirst that couers the Floores in the ofter Tens Court, with fuch like bufineffes there- and Tapility. to belonging. He hath forty Aspers dailie; one Protogers, and fine and twenty Aspers allowance: threescore Mechters, waged from fine, to eyght Writings, with the Signe or Marke of the Signior. His Office is, as Great or high Chanchiefe Chancellour, and he is a man of cellor, much reputation. He fitteth in the Porta, next to the Beglerbey, and hath eight thousand ducates of annuall Lands, befide very honorable places, with abone three hundred Slaues.

There is a Calnadar-Balbae abroad, or at large, as common Treasurer, with pac, Treasu. ten Casnadri vnder him: himselfe hath ter at large, fifty Afpers daily, and the ten other fifteene each man. The Deftermin, who is as Surueyer The Deftermin, who is as Surueyer of the Lands, and keepeth a Register of uayer of the them all. He hath forty Aspers dailie, Lands. and under him are ten Clearkes, rewarded from ten, to fifteene Aspers dailie

Then there are fourescore Mutafe- Mutaferath, rache, who are as Demy-Lances or light Demic Liun Horsemen to the Signior, carying their Horsemen Launces alwaies, whenfoeuer he rideth abroad, and acknowledging no other Head or Commaunder, but the Grand Signior himselfe onely. Afterward, when either by art or defert, any one of them can attaine so farre into his fauor; he is made Aga, that is a Captain. The meanest of them have ten, and the Zagarzi-Bafhae for the Beaélcs.

fae, Maister of the hunting Hounds.

Chap. 1.

Aga, Captain of the Iani¶a-Checaya, Vice-

gerent of the

The number allowances & Commanders

The Laniffaries

dietting toge-

How they go

by hundreds.

Chiana-Bafbat

Aspers each man, and their yearelie Liucries from the Signior.

The Aga, that is, Captaine of the Iamissaries, who hath a thousand Aspers and more daily, and fixe thousand Duckats in Lands yearely. This Aga, when Court is kept, which is commonly twice or thrice enery weeke, standeth obliged, to feede the Ianisfaries, with Bread, Rice, Mutton, Hony, and Water. He hath a Checasa vnder him, or rather a Protogero of the Ianiffaries, who is as his Vice-gerent, and hath two hundred Aspers daily in ready Mony, and thirty thousand in Lands yearely. He also hath a Clearke of the Innissaries, called Janiffariasis, waged with an hundred Aspers daily.

The Sechmem-Bashae, is Maister of the Hounds for Hunting: he hath an hun- 20 dred Aspers daily, and to the number of almost two thousand Intillaries under

The Zagarzi-Balbae, is Maister of the Beagle-Hounds, beeing allowed fiftie Afpers daily, and hath about seauen hundred Janiffaries vnder him.

There are to the number of twelve thousand Janissaries, that have from three, to eight Afpers wages, each man | 30 daily allowed them. Every tenhaue their Oda-Bashae, and enery hundred haue their Boluch-Balbae : but these chief Men of the tens and hundreds, do ride on Horfebacke, the Oda-Balbacs beeing allowed forty Afpers each man dailie, and the Boluch-Bafhaes fixtie, the rest of the Ianisfaries doe goe on foote, beeing cloathed once ayeare by the Signior, in coorse Azure cloath.

Their dwelling is in two partes of Constantinople, freely given them by the Signior, wherein dwell they that have no Wiues: but fuch as be married, do inhabite divers places of the Citty. For their living together in friendly manner, euery Man layeth downe his perticulcr proportion; And they have a Steward, and a Cooke, who make preparation of their dyet: but fuch as come fhort in flipend to the reft, are bound by obligation to attend on the other, and take their leavings. Every hundred of them, when they go to the Field, do carry their Tent or Paullion with them, being all Foot-men: and part of them Shot, other Halbardiers, and fome that vie the Semitary onely, euery three Men having a Horfe, for carriage of their necessaries. When they grow into yeares, or (in some other respects) their service seemeth not pleating to the Signior : they are cashiered out of the Janiffaries Booke, and are tearmed Affarers, that is to fay ; Guards Affareri, keefor Castles & then they have Comma- pers of Caders appointed them for that purpose, who are called Castillians, with equal allowance to the wages which formerly they had, so that no one of them falleth into diffreffe.

Some of them there be who freede fo successefullie in the Warres : that Vausides are they come to be made Vauoides, and Rulers or exalted to great Dignitie. They be Lords, aduangin the exercise of Armes when they |ced by their be but young Lads, and are enstructed merits in serby the most expert : beeing chosen of healthfull disposition, strongly limbde, yet quick and agile, but (aboue all)couragious, and much rather to bee cruell, then any way pittiful. In these men confifteth the strength and full firmenesse of all the Turkish Armies: who because they are continually exercised thereto, and (altogether) become one fole body as it were, are (indeede) to bee feared and doubted.

Of Janissaries there are elected an hundred and fiftie Solacchi, who are as Solacchi Foot-men to the Signior, with allow Signior. ance from fiftcene, to twentie Aspers each man daily : and they go evermore about his person, at all times when hee rideth abroad.

Two Solach-Bashes, are chiefe of the Maisters of Solachis, and ride on horsebacke; being the Solachi. allowed thirty Afpers daily each man, and the Solacthi are vnder obedience to the Aga of the Ianiffaries.

The Aga of the Spaceoglani, a very ho- Aga of the nourable Office, bath in Lands and day Wages, ten Duckets continually, and great store of Slaues, with a Checaia vnder him, or elfe a Protogero; who hath (betweene Lands and Wages) an hundred Aspers daily, beside a Janzei, that is, a Clearke, having thirty Afpers, and Intigi, anatfufficient regalities.

There be of the Spacenglani, who are young luftie men on horicbacke (for fo meaneth the Word Spaceoglano) three spaceoglani, young Galthousand, beeing waged from twentie, lants on Horsto fortie afpers each man daily, & euery backe, and Bbbb3 twenty

Education of the Spaceogla. ni from their Child-hood.

Aga of the Si-

The differece

betweene the

Silubtari and the Spaceogla.

Olofagi Ba.

fhawes, Com

maunders ouer the Soul-

Agaes of the

poore young men.

Caripoglani,

twenty hath a Boluch-Bafbae. Thefe do ferue on Horse-backe, with fiue or fixe Slaues, and as many Horses for each man; giving their attendance al-waies (and lodging likewife) on the right hand of the Signior. They are men of fufficiency, ouer whom the Signior appointeth no head or Controller, but onely himselfe. They are first brought vp or educated, in the Serraglio of yong Boyes, and as they grow in yeares and goodnesse, choyse is made of them, and fo they do attaine to this degree, which ferueth as a Ladder for them, whereby to mount to much greater grace, fauor, and preferment.

The Aga of the Silichtari, who hath thirty Afpers by the day, and ynder him a Protogero, a Cleark, and a Checaia, that are allowed thirty Aspers each man daily, and more.

Of these silichtari, there are three thoufand, who ride on horfebacke likewife, and lodge on the left hand of the Signior, having from twenty, to five and twenty Aspers each man daily: with four or fine Slanes, and as many Horfes, beside Lands for their better maintenance. These men are educated in the fame manner, as the Spacehi or Spaceo- 30 glani, and there is no other difference betweene them : but that the Spacchi attend on the right hand, and thefe on the left, of the Signior.

Two Olofagi-Bashaes, who are chiefe of the Souldiours, with two thousand Olofagi, that serue on the right and left hand of the Signior. The two chiefe Commaunders, haue an hundred and twenty Aspers each man daily, and the 40 other, from eight, to fixteen each man. Moreouer, the two haue vnder them, a Checaia, a Clearke and a Protogere, with Slaves and Horses, the one more, the other leffe.

Two Agaes, Maiesters or Rulers of the Caripoglani (who are poore young men) with fourfcore Afpers of allowance for each man . Their Protogeri haue thirtie Afpers, their Clearks fine and twentie: | 50 And they have vnder them, about two thousand Caripoglani (who are waged from seauen to sourceene Aspers each man) and they have Slaves and Horses beside.

Two Bracor-Bafbaes, who are Maisters or chiefe Quiries of the Stable, one aboue the other in Office. The better hath five hundred Aspers by the day, & the other two hundred; befide Protogeri and Checaiaes, and others that are waged from thirty, to forty Aspers dailie each man.

Then there are to the number of fixteene thousand some tearmed Saracchi, who make Bridles and Saddles; others Ceifi, Servants or Groomes of the Stable ; others Carmandari, that attend on the Mules; others Denegi, that waite on the Camels; and Cauriligi, that feed the Heards of Horses in divers places, who are waged from two, to twentie Afpers each man daily.

Next there is betweene thirty and forty Peichi, Foote-Poalts, or Lackyes, Poalis or Lac who were brought vp(from their youn- | kies. geryeares) in knowledge of the miles, & difpatch much ground in short while, and with wonderfull swiftnesse. When the Grand Signior, is to ride abroad, they are continually ready, because they are imployed still in many busines-

Of elected and choife Horses, there are about foure thousand, for the per- Foure thoufon of the Signior : which are ridden by fand choice Horfes for the the vouthes of the Serraglio, and by the signior. Eunuches, as a daily practife and exer-

There is a Zachergi-Bashae, Maister of the yong Hauks, and another Zachergi- Zachergi-Ba-Bashae, Commaunder of all the Faul- Faulconers. coners. The first hath an hundred and fiftie Aspers daily, and the other but fourescore ; with their Checaines, Protogeri, and others, that are waged each Man daily, from ten, to fine and twenty Aspers. Vnderthese, are about two hundred Zaniglieri, one hundred wherof haue onely tenne Afpers each man the chiefe daily: but the rest hold Landes, or else exemption from taxations, and follow the fields as pleafeth the Signior.

The Gebegi-Balbae, is Maifter of the Gebegi-Balbat, Armour, having threefcore Afpers Maifter of the daily, a Protogro, and Clearke, with Armour. twenty Afped each Man dailie. Vnder him are a thousand and fine hundred Gebegi, waged from featen to foureteene Afpers dailie each man, and they all goe on foot with the Signior to the

The Tepei-Bashae, is M. of the Muskettiers, having threefcore Afpers dailie; Muskettiers.

Seracchi, as Mulctters. Denegi, Cammellers. Caurigili, Herds for the Signiors Standard-Bearer. Arpaemin,Puruever of grain and Corne.

Saracmin Pro

vider in gc-nerall.

Imereiem-Aga,

Chap. 1.

Arabagi-Baffiac

Maifter of the

Mechter Ba-

hae, Maister of the Drums & Trumpets.

Cariages.

Zaniglieri, at-

Dragoman, the Interpreter of Languages, er Maitter of the Ceremo-

E,tratemin.

Steward of

the Signiors

a Protogero, and a Clearke, with twenty Afpers, each man daily. And under him are two thousand Topci, waged from fix, to ter Afpers, each man dayly going on

Of the Great Turkes Court.

The Arabagi-Bashae, is Maister of the Carts, Waggons, and Carriages, haning fortie Aspers daily, a Protogero and Clearke, at twentie Aspers allowaunce, each man daily : & vnder him, are 3000. Arabagi, waged from three, to fix Aspers each man daily.

A Mechter Bashae, is Maister of the Trompets and Drummes, hauing thirtie Aspers daily allowance, a Protogrro and Cleark, at twelve Aspers a man daily. Vnder him, are a thousand and two hundred Mechters, partly on foote, and partly on horfebacke, from three to fine Afpers, each man daily.

Imerelem-Aga, who carrieth the grand Signiors Standard, having two hundred Afpers daily, and he is (befide) Captaine ouer all the Mechters.

The Arpaemin , hee is Purueyer for Corne, having a Protogero, and a Chan-cellor: himselfe hath sixtie Aspers, the Protogero thirty, and the Chancellour twenty daily. This Arpaemin hath xx. persons under him, who are allowed dayly amongst them, eight hundred Af-

The Saraemin, is Purueyer or prouider in common : for hee looketh to the streets of Constantinople, and al the waies whereby the Signior paffeth foorth to Warre. He hath charge also of publick Buildings; of Springs, Wels, and Water-conduct. He is allowed fifty Aspers daily, and hath foure hundred men vn- 40 der him: among whom, is giuen a thoufand Afpers : hauing a Protogere, and a Clearke alfo, with 38. Afpers, allowed each man daily.

The Baratemin, who is appointed to deliner the Signiors commands in writing, and to receive his house moneyes: having fortie Afpers daily, and attended with two Clearkes, and two Ouer-feers, with twenty Aspers daily each man.

The Dragoman, who is Interpreter of all Languages, which Office is as highly reputed, as is the Vertue and Wifedom of him that exerciseth it. He hath fine hundered Ducates in firme Provision euerie yeare, besides, his enjoyning as much in Landes, and about four times as much in extraordinarie fauours, being alwayes verie especiallie respected of

The Womens Serraglio, differing from the other.

OVer and befide all the forena- The great med matters, there is another Signer his fe 10 Serraglio of the Signiors Women, con-taining in circuite more then a mile and for his Chila halfe: being richly furnished with di dren. ners goodly Chambers, and other retirements, wherein the Signiors Children are kept, seperately one from another, with their Mothers, and a great number of Eunuchs allowed for their keeping & feruice. There is also the Sultana, that The Sultana is to fay, the chiefe Mother, or the Sig- or the signiors wife. 20 niors Wife, by whom he is faid to haue his first Child.

In this place also, are three hundered young Damose's, brought thither Virgins, and deliuered to the government of many Matrons: which Virgines, are enstructed in al kinds of curious imbroidery and workes: and every one is allowed from ten to twentie Afpers daylie, as wages, and enery yeare, at the two Bairanges, they have costly Garments of filk given them Among these, hee maketh choise (to his owne liking) of such as hee will admit to his prinate companie: and when he hath lien with any of them, hee giueth her a rich head attire of Golde, His reward to & ten thousand Aspers, placing hir then arter her com in another lodging, seperate from the o- pany. ther Virgins, encreasing still hir ordinarie wages. To this Serraglio belongeth an Aga of the Eunuches, who hath an hundred fcore Afpers for him & his : three Capigi- lio, and their Balbaes, and a hundred Alpers amongest wadges daily. their Capigi. Ianiffaries at the Gates : among whom are daily given fix hundered Afpers. The Saccaes, that bringeth in Water, who have in al forty afpers daily. These Damosels are thus serued and enstructed, till they be fine and twentie How long the yeares of age, the Matrons beeing their Damofels con Mistresses, and the servants are the verie signors yes. yongest of them . When they are fine and what be and twenty yeares olde, if the Signiour commeth of pleafe to make no more vie of them, they ward. are then married to the Spaccogiani, and fom other of the Slaves about the court, according to the qualitie and degree on for the Signi-

Bracor Bashaes chiefe Groo mes of the Stable.

Field.

Galatea or

Galatia in Gol

logracia, in A fia the leffe, ioyning to Phrigia and Lydia.

Mailters for enstructing the youths in the Serraglio.

A Citty of

Thrace, built vpon the Ri-uer Hebrus.

The Serrag-

lio of Adria-

In Thrace,

rifing out of Rhodope by A-drianople, into which Ri-uer the head of Orpheus was

Gardens belonging to young lanif-faries.

Afpers daily.

Workemen

in the Arfena'

and their was ges in their euerall de-

Care for fortherance of grees and either part, and insted of the ones Josse, another is admitted.

The Serrag'so of Children.

"Here is another Serrag'io neere to" Pera, confifting of about foure hundred Children, who are waged each one from fixe, to ten Aspers daily, and are cloathed with Silke twice enerie yeare. These Children haue an Aga and Eunuches, even as the great Serraglio hath, with Capagi, young Ianissaries, and an hundred Maisters of divers Artes and professions: amongst whom, are giuen eight hundred Afpers daily. They are not fo Nobly borne, neyther of so feemelie presence or ingennity; as these that bee with the Signior : and yet neuertheleffe, many of them do attaine to greatnesse: | 20 and choife is made among them of many, that are admitted to the great Serraglio. Especialy, in Adrianople, called by fome Andrianople, there is a Serraglio of three hundred Children with Wages, Aga, Eunuchs, Capigi, Ianisfaries, & two hundred Maisters, that have amongest them, two thousand and eight hundred

These children are of a third or more inferiour quality; and therefore, are the more respectively enstructed and restrained, even as all the rest(in civill manner) are of them, according vnto their fpirit and behauiour, choise is also made for their further aduauncement. There is likewise in the same Countrey, another Seraglio, newly made with a goodly great Garden belonging to it, and feated on the River * Mariza: wherin ther is about 40 three hundred yong saniffaries, who difpend each man yearely, a thousand and two hundered A/pers . They have an Aga, allowed fortie Aspers, a Protogero, and a Clearke, each thitty Afters daylie. In divers other places of Adrianople, there are Gardens, continually belonging (euen as in Deposito) to a thousande and fluc hundered young taniffaries, felected out of these youths, as they grow 50 to yeares and qualitie : hauing Agaes, and Clearkes on whom are bestowed fix thousand Aspers enerie yeare, or very lit-

There is then an Aga of the Azamoglani, called young vntutord or vnciuill Jani faries, that abide in Constantinople, and have threefcore Alpers dayly: there being under his commaund, about five thousand of these wilde-headed lanisaries, who are cloathed twice enery year, and have Maisters for their instruction; wrights. among whom, is fpent tenne thousande Afpers yearely. These do attend about the Ship-wrights, bringing them wood to supply their building, and duers other affayres befide. Some practife Cookerie, and so become servants to the Ianiffaries, whereby (at length) they attain to bee Ianisaries themselues . Euerie fourth yeare, the Signiour sendeth into Grecia and Natolia, to take and furprize Children from the Christians, and then ten or twelue thousand of these men are fent out at a time, that doth bring verie many christian children back with them: who are then conucyed vppe further into Natolia, towards Burfia, now called * Mysia, or into * Caramania, where they are brought up in digging the Ground, because they may bee invred to labour, and also to learn the Turkish Language. These Children are thus kept, three or foure yeares; and then fent out to allure and India, other in like manner: being then given to the government and Discipline of the Aga Azamoglani. No wages or allowance is granted to these by the Signieur, Aga Azamogli fo long as they abide in Natolia, because they are both fedde and cloathed at their cost, in whose service, they delue the grounds, or doo any other labours for them.

I thought good to make mention (in this place) of all the Serreglioes, because All the Serreg they are as appendixes on that belong- or branches ing to the Signior, and reckoned in the of the Signim whole expences, returned into the books great Sering. of charge, belonging to the great Serraglie of the Signior. Into which accounts are also called the Moneyes laid out for cloathing (twice yearely) the Bafbaes, the Cadilescheri, the Difterdari, the Beglerbeyes, and the Neffangi-Bafhaes : which expences, allowed to them that be in extraordinarie, do amount to, and exceed the summe of a Million of aspers yeare-

> Of the Arfenale, or Store-house of Munition.

3. There is also an Arfenale on The Arfenale that part of Pera, not of anic

Attendants

ployed by the Signior for the flealth of in Asia by Hel ring on Trau Narjinga, in Afia minor, be-tweene Perfu Beg'erbey of the Sea is chiefe Consmander in the

His authorit and yearely bigge or large circuite, which hath on the Sea-more, to the number of ninetic two Arches, and containeth folittle ground within: as not onely the Galies, but also their other appurtenances, and Timber for worke, can hardly bee there placed. In this Arsenale, do about two hundered men labour ordinarily enerie day; who, with their Maisters and O-uerseers, have daily two thousand Aspers among them. There are a thousande A/api; who have foure thousand Aspers among them.

Preti, or Workemaisters, to the number of fiftie, who when they are idle and labour not, have fixe Afpers dayly, but when they work, twelue A/pers each

The Emino hath fortie Aspers, the Clearke fiue and twenty, with ten clarks more vnder him, that have an hundered Aspers daily. All these, when neede requireth, do performe their seuerall Offices. But if they intend badly vnto theyr Trades, or labour not effectually in the building of Gallies, whereby no fuch benefit enfueth on their paines, or like expedition as is vied among vs: if the fault be found by any Christian, he is well recompenced, and the other verie feuerely punished.

Of the Beglerbey.

4. A S Commander over the Ar-fenale, and all the rest, there is one that is called the Beglerbey of the Sea, as much to fay, as Lord of Lords, an Office newly created: for, in times past, he was alwaies woom to bee called Captaine of the Sea. He that was Sansack of Callipolis, and is now the first that had the degree of Cairedinbei, was called Barbarolla, and afterward created the 4. Balbae. To him is given the government of all the Nauie, and he hath in prouifion euerie yeare (both in Lands and Ducates) fourteene thousand, collected on Rhodes, Negropont, and Mytelene, albeit he gathereth a double aduantage. There is not any other especiall man, appertayning to matters of the State, and charge of the Sea, that deserueth Annotation, and therefore comming to land affaires, I will proceed in this manner.

There is one called the Beglerbey of Gracia, wherein is comprehended all the Countreyes which the Great Signiour enioyeth in Europe. This Beglerbey, is the greatest of all the rest, having in Lands fixteene thousand ducates yearly, but his benefite amounteth to twice as much more.

Hee fitteth in the Ports, behinde the chiefe Bafbae, and is of great reputation the Court, & with enery one. He hath befide his flanes his attendants (which are about a thousand) a Defterdaro, Landed at three thousand Ducates yearely: An hundred Clearks, that keep the Bookes and accounts of the Landes, Sub-Bafhaes assigned to the Sub-Bashaes, Cads, Spacehi, Cadi Spuchi. and others; among whom, is yearely giuen ten thousand Ducats. Thirtie seauen Saniaeks, who are al vnder his obedience: and have each man from five to twelve | Saniacks. thousand Ducats yearly

These men, are distributed into the Prouinces, where they remaine to long as pleafeth the Signior; and are thence translated or chaunged (as hee thinketh good) into fome other Provinces. Their Office, is to gouerne the Spacehi, to fee the Snacehi, and their imkept in due obedience. Foure hundred Ployment. Sub-Balbaes, who have in landes among them, foure hundred thou fand Ducates. Thirtie thousand Spacehi, who are Souldiers on Horsebacke, dinided for best order of service: partly of the Beglerbeis of Grecia, and partly of all the Sanicks of The Regier-Grecia. They have (one by another) in beys and San-Lands, two hundred Ducats, and each lacks of Greena, one of them, for every hundered of Ducates, is bounde to keepe a man armed on Horsebacke, with his Launce: and beside the saide armed man, they have, fome two, fome foure, and others fiue Seruants and Horses. These Spacehi, are all flaues to the Signior, and the fonnes of flaues, and of Spaceki. Next, there are twentie thousand Timariotti, who have from tenne to fortie fuch as live Ducates in Lands, each man yearly:but to an hundred Ducates each man, they are not called Spacehi The Change, they are not called Spacehi The Change are not called Spacehi The Chan and two or three fernants for each man. feruing distributively to all the Saniaks of Greeta. That which they call Timati, is nation of the assignation or appointment of lands, Lands, Lithe Rents, Fees, or Reuennews of which or flates, lateassignations are deriued, partly from the ly conquered Fee farme, letting, or deniling: but the by the S gni-

the Beglerbey

His dignity in

The Office of

Timariotti, are

Timari, affig-

are young Ia be (as yet)

Ackengi, arc aduenterous feruitours on Horffe-backe

What number

ferue the Sig-

I The Begler-

bey of Natolia,

and the places

vnder his co-

His place in the Court.

2 The Begler.

bey of Caraina.

nia and his command.

maund.

nior thorow

Grecia.

greater part, is from the tenths of all the renennewes granted from the Turkes as well as Christians, and from the leauies which are fine and twenty Afpers (Per poule, as we vie to fay) of the Christians onely, and from the impositions on cattell, Trees, and other things, which taxes are ouer and aboue those, that are paied ordinarily to the Signiour . Sixteene thousand Archingi, those are aduenturers on horsebacke, set downe thorough the Countrey of Grecia, and bounde to follow the warres without any pay; and therefore are empted from all taxations: the Citties and Townes are tied to find their prouision of victuals onely, from place to place where they ferue.

There are in Gracia, that is, throughout the whole Country therofin towns, Villages, and other places, as well of Turkes and Christians, enjoyned to feruice, about the number of threescore & eight thousand.

Next, there are fix Beglerbeyes in Afia, and one by himfelfe in Egypt. The first, is called the Beglerbey of Nato'ia which (in elder times) was Asia minor : he hath fourteene thousand Ducates in Landes annually, but hee maketh much greater benefit thereof. This man hath under him, and in his government, Pontus, Bythinia, all Afia, Lydia, Caria, and Lycia; all which Provinces (vnder one Name only) is at this day cald Natolia. His place in the Borts, is next to the Beglerbey of Grecia, and he hath (befide his own proper Slaues) aboue a thousand more vnder him: and twelue Saniaks landed from foure to fix thousand Ducats each man; Spacehi, ten thousand; from five to ten 40 Aspers, each man dayly, besides much more in Landes, and those serue vnder him, according vnto euerie ones de-

The Beglerbev of Caramania, which aunciently was Celicia and Pamphilia, with tenne thousand Ducats in Landes. Hee hath under him feauen Saniackes, from foure to fixe thousande Ducates, each man in Lands. And fine thousande spacehi, from fine to tenne Afpers, each man daily befide their lands.

The Beglerbey of Amasia and Toccato which was Cappadocia and Galatia, with eight thousand Ducates in Landes. Of Saniacks he hath eight from fix, to eight thousand Ducates each man in Landes: Spacchi, foure thousand, from fyue to ten Aspers daily each man, and lands.

The Beglerbey of Aladula, which is a place betweene Soria, Caramania, and 4 The Begor bety of Aladah, and bis of Aladah, and his constraints on the Alfa of the 1 Constraints on the Aladah of the Aladah of the 1 Constraints on the Aladah of the 1 Constraints on the 1 Constra is the one halfe of the leffer Armenia. He mand. hath ten thousand ducates in landes, and Saniacks feuen (fometimes four, & fometimes fix) from foure to fix thousand ducates in lands: Spacehi fix thousand, from 5.to ten Aspers daily each man & lands. In this Pronince of Aladula, it is fayde, that when the Signior was there, befide being in 44 the stipendarie men; thirtie thousand o- dula. ther personnes were obliged to ride on with him, at the charges of two villages

The Beglerbey of Mesopotamia, under 5 The Begin. whom is the rest of Armenia Minor, and bey of Melinia, and his part of the greater, the other appertayning to the Sophie, and the Cordi, which confyneth with Bagadeth, or Baldacco. anciently called Babylon . His Landes amount to aboue thirtie thousande Ducates: and beside his owne slaues, hee hath more then two thousand. Vnder him are twelve Saniackes. landed from foure to fixe thousand Ducates yearelie each man: Spaechs, ten thousande, from 30 | ten to fyfteene Afpers each man daylie, and verie well landed, because they line on the Sophies Confynes, with whome they have continually bickerings.

The Beglerbey of Damaseo, Soria, and 6 The Ergin. Indea, Landed foure and twentie thou- beyon Dame! fand Ducates. Hee hath about two co, Soil, and thousand flaues, and twelve Saniackes command, vnder him, Landed from fyue vnto feauen thousand Ducates : Spacehi, twentic thousande, with Aspers from tenne, to fyfteene each man daylie, and good Lands.

The Beglerbey of Cairo, whose iurisdiction extendeth fo farre as Amech, beyof Caire, & that is in Arabia, and the Arabiaes are his large expossessed by the Signiour, in the fame tendure. manner as hee is poffeffed of Albania, where hee challengeth no fuch obedience, as all other States and Countries doo yeelde vnto him of his owne: yet, Arabia Fæ'ix is nowe in farre more subjection to him, then the other. He hath thirtie thousand Ducates in Lands, and Slaves about four thousand. Sixteene Saniackes. Landed from fixe vnto eight thousand Ducates each one of them; and fixteene thousande Spacchi, from

The Signion

A Region in Afia, enuironed with the Hill Caucafus. People of Scythia in Afia. Mountaine people of both the Armeni-

Chap. 1.

Lords vnder

In the cdge of Macedonia by the Euxine dffiria.

> The whole Country of

The Saniatks

are warlike men and of great account

lats of the legiorbey for Grecia, accor-ling to their

mes and

The Saniac-

fifteene, to twentie Aspers daylie each

Betweene Amech, and the Countrey of the Sophie, there are some Arabian Lords, that owe no obedience to anie bodie. The rest of the Sophies land, confineth on Mesapotamia, wherein is Maldacco, passing Mesapotamia, the Sophye also confineth the plaine of Nasinam, then toucheth Efdum and Erfum, which are principall places in Armenia Maior, and confine with the *Hybers and *Georgiani. In these Armeniaes, both the great and leffer, are many of the * cordi, people lining in the Mountaines, yet warlick and Martiall: those of the greater Armemia being in obedience, partly to the Signior, and partly to the Sophie, but those of the leffer, not to any one. *Trabifonde confineth with the Georgiani and Men- 20 grelli, and part of the Hyberi, which people were anciently called Colebians. * Azemia, which in elder times was Affyria, belongeth to the Sophie, and hee is the absolute Lord thereof.

In this Natolia, I mean in the whole Country which the Signio possesseth in Asia, Citties, Townes, and Villages belonging both to Turkes and Christians, are feauenty two thousand, besides them 30 in Egypt, whereof there are great store.

Of the Saniacks.

THe Saniacks affuredlie (as I haue alreadie faide) haue gouernment in the Provinces, committed vnto them by the Beglerbeys, and are men of much reputation and great esteeme, especially in warlicke occasions, whom I will also set downe, by the names of those places, which are giuen and assigned under their regiments.

First, the Biglerbey of Grecia, apointeth his Saniacats to these places : first toward Solonichi, & then follow the other of Caffa, and of Silistria, Nicopolis Vidin, Samandria, Seruia and Belgrada, Sournich Bolling, and Erlech, which is Seruia, and called a Dukedome ; Scutari, Valona, Iauina, Carlali, Lepanto, Morea, Negropont, Trica'a, Callipolis, Chricheliffa, that is, forty Churches, Vifa, Cirme, Chrostandill. Volcitrin, Prisdren, Ocria, Alazaassar, Elbassan, Voinug, Cinghene, and Taiazza. These are thirty, which were wont to be fine and thirty; but the fine are vnited to the propinquent places, as Philippelis, Sophia, Dyrrachium or Durace, Albania, and Scopia.

Natolia, that is Afia Minor, hath Fontus, thinia, Lydia, Caria, and Lycia. The San- ing to the iakats of this Beglerbey, are in Chiotha- Beglerbey of chia, and the rest in Chiogaeli, as Bols, Ca-Stamoni, Anguri, Cangri, Therebieli, Mateffeli, Aidineli, Hallaice, Buga and Magmesia, which apper ained to the Sultane Mustapha, the Signiors first borne son, and which place is half hemd in with the Amasia and Tocatto, that is Paphlagonia, Galatia, and Cappadocia. The Saniakat of the Begierbey the Beglerbey, is in Amafia, and the relt of Amafia. in Chiorma, Gianich, Charaiffer, Safum, and Trabifonde.

Caramania, that is Cilicia by the midst of Cyprus and Pamphilia. The Saniakat of the Beglerbey is in Giogna, and the other stretch into Naranda, Axar, Eschisfar Verfageli and Siuraffar.

Aladula, that is Armenia Minor. The Saniakat of the Beglerby is in Maras, & those of the other, in Sarmuffacli, Albistancrassi, Adana & Tersis.

Dierbech, which is Mefopotamia, and part of Armenia Major, for the rest be- the Ecglerbey longeth to the Sophy, and to the Cordi. The Saniakat of the Beglerbey, is in Dierbech: and the rest haue their abiding in Charaenit , Arqui , Tolgich , Caffanchief , Meridin, Charput, Mufful, Efrum, Payburt, Eyeblis and Maxinancuafsi.

Soria and Indea. The Saniakat is in Damafee, and the other in Melathia, Diuitghi, Antep, Antiochia, Aleppo, Tripoli, Chama or Aman, Camps, Scepheto, Ierusalem, and Gazara.

Egypt, with part of Defert Arabia, to Alziden l'Almach, with all Arabia fælix, where are many Arabian Lords, which are partly at the denotion of the Grand Signior, and partly to no bodie. The Saniakat of the Beglerbey is in Cayro, & fome other places.

All the fore-recited Saniacks, Beglerbeyes, Bashaes, and other Officers, haue Lands and Wages (as hath beene faide) A briefe Sumfirmely in ordinarie pay: and get much mary of all the torena-more extraordinarily, liuing chiefely by med Officers the benefit of their flanes, whome they and Offices. must of necessity cloath, and allow some Wages to keepe them from stealing. What the Rents and Revennews of this Signior is may bee confidered by the kats belong-

Saniackars of

Saniachats of the Begjerbei of Caramania.

Saniackts of the Beglerbey

Saniackrs of Saniackars of

the Bezierbey of Soria and Egipt and the Saniackars of her Beglerbey.

3 The Begler

bey of Amalia and Toccato.

Yearely Renenues comming into the the Grand

An inestimate

in generall.

mightie expences he is at daily, the whiche reuennewes is collected of the Carazo or impositions, proceeding fro those Subjectes that are not Turkes, yeelding yearely a Million and a halfe of ducates. The Customes or towle for cattell, yeeldeth eight hundered thousand Ducates; and the Mettall Mines affoord fixe hundred thousand Ducates.

There are infinite other Customes and payments, imposed on Salte, Commands, dead folkes goods, guifts, the reuennewes of Egypt, beside other Moneyes, Rents, and Tributes, which are fo much, as not only do supplie the expences ouer and about the Landes and readie Moneyes, and bringing daily into the great Caspar or Treasurie, aboue twelve thousand Ducates, besides other great aduantages, and ouerplus fummes of Moneyes. And it is supposed, that the least reckoning of the ordinary reuenues, may be about fyfteene thousande Millions of Gold: Five whereof onelic enter into the Cafnar, but the other ten remaine for the Ministers of the warres employments.

CHAP. II.

Of the lawfull meanes, whereby to compasse the esteeme and reputation, of beeing truely and excellentlie Couragious &

A demaund made to Auworthy an-iwere.

George Caffriot

T was demaunded of Augustus, in what hee could best observe the valour of a man of war.
Thus (quothhe) volum his effort and endeuon, hash rellift (in common) with that of his Fellowes, but that some perticuler matter appeareth in his attempt, which is no way due to the Armies general victory, wherein himselfe fighteth under the Captaynes charge, yet as if himselfe were no chiefe in respect. Such a man among the Albanians, was George Castriot, who hadde to deale with two of the verie greatest, and most dreaded Princes of the East against whose Injustice he opposed himselfe only, and manie times wonne verie goodly victory ouer them : yea, and compelling them fometimes to require peace, yet without anie other aide, then his owne perfect valour, accompanied with Difcretion and Equity. Which yet (neuertheleffe) at length hee loft, both to his owne ruine and all Albania, by the entermifes and medlings of the Pope, and of The Pope& the Bythop of Durace, who conftrayned Bithop of Da him (initiriously) to breake his faith promifed vnto Mahomet the fecond, being matters. at that time in Warre against the Vene-

He could freely amouch, that (as naked and all alone) hee vndertooke warre against the Great Signior, and that hee did it onely by the bright beautie of his courage: which could no way gather ap- of confesion prehension of furmounting, fighting in to inft a cause as the Christians generall quarrell against the Turk. And he might also as freely confesse, that the losse of his estates and of his sonnes (which hee had not till after his death) was onlie conceited in the wombe of a Popes and Byshoppes rashnesse, who more enslamed with spleene, then strengthned with men of armes, over bare the modestie of this poore Lord, who died in a weake estate, yet not wholly troden downe; but in leauing nothing to his heires, whereby to make a fresh reply vpon Mahomet. Hee ruined Christianity in Greece, thorough the infolencie of these two men of the in Greece, by Church, who were more apte to command a fedition, then anie way to apeale it, and had more Cowardife in giving bad counsell to their friends then corage to helpe them out of the loffes bredde by them, even as in a fourfe of infallible and undrainable misfortunes. Whereinto alfo they threwe Hungary headlong, ha-

uing counselled a young King vnadui-hath (almost) as great a share as the Em-perour. And he, though endued with perfect valiancie, hath had much payne and care to repaire those wide gaps and breaches, which these rash & presumptuous men made, without any necessitie or ouvert profitable confideration vnto

Christendome, but well-neere to the vt-fedly to violate peace with the Great Turke: who (throrough this error onely) Further is at this day victorious, and remayneth possessor of the Hungars whole estate; & them, in Hungars and eller afterward fell vpon Austria, where hee

> A noble Citty be tweene Perfia where was the fumptu-ous Pallace

Darius conquered by

ter subuersion of the Easterne people in | those parts.

Leonides, King of Lacedeman flaine at Th.r. unpyle fighting against

Chap.2.

Leonides also is one of them, to whom infily may be attributed the glorie and perfection of intire man-hood, confidering, that without any curious inquifition for himfelfe, eyther of good or euill, and careleffe of any intention for prayle or misprisson: he vndertooke to oppose himself (at the Thermopy le) against great king Xerxes, the aftonisher of the world, who had filled all Greece with horrour and affrightments, both of Soldiers and horses, having no lesse provision (beside this equipage) of power & fighting men on the Sea, which they did nothing elfe, but meerely finite and beate with their Oares, euen as if hee would have compelled the infenfible Elements, to the vnderstanding and fauouring of his enterprizes. All which notwithstanding, the worthy Leonides, accompanied onelie with foure thousand men, fought against him with fuch fprightly refolution and Ver-tue : that he left vs more matter and fubiect of amazement, then capacity of immitation. I must send ye amongest the Greekes, there to admire the whole Hi-flory, which is the most remarkable in al | 30

Brasidas must not be forgotten, who Lemides vn-dertaketh the fight with trauerfed the Campe of the enemie, at A valiant the fiedge of * Methone, and by a necel Captaine of Lacedemon.

The Citty
Modes by the fary endeauor, accomplished and woon immortall Fame and Renowne, which ferneth yet (to this day) for a common Sea fide in Peloponnefus. Prouerbe, by the wonderfull perfection of his courage, whose picture is plentiful among the Greekes, only with this Antiquity.

Motto. Be as va'iant as Brasidas.

Hylparmenes, Captaine to Darius, is woorthy to holde ranke amongst them, that not onely had a beame, but an entire Starre of true valiancy. For, his Master, and the fortune of all Asia, bowing under the yoake of Great Alexander, he 5 would not yeeld himfelfe vnto the Conquerour, though his Castle was no longer holdable, the Cittie of Sufa beeing brought in Subjection to the Macedonians, to whom he made this answere. 1 do not resist against Great Alexander with any hope to ouercome him: but only to Conquer mine owne mufortune, which may will suffer me to dye yet not at the discretion of any other, then of my felle, wwho would farce the fortune of your Maister, if hope were answerable to my dutie. Tet, all that I can hope is now not lawfu', because the royal Darius is dead. Hyrtius Mela, purchased most signale glorie, in perfection of courage, when feeing the Cittie wherein he dwelt, cal- "The Citty led * Praneste, wholly destroyed from Latinum in the toppe to the bottome, and by his Litar. Guest Sylla, who (in the right of Hospitality) graunted him both grace and life: hee valiantly made refusall with this exclamation against the Tyrant . Is to possible. O thou most barbarous and cruel of all men shat thou wouldst be so bloody to thine Hoste, as to let him line, after fo many cru- The couragielties which thy rage hath exercised on an Hyrius Mela innocent people ? Thou art not pittifull to to Sylla. me but onely to afflict me more & wouldst bestow life on me once, to make me thereby dye a Million of times. Hast thou flaine my Companions, Fellow Cittizeus, Kindered and Friends, and wouldst thou new compel mee to line? Speaking these words, hee Hyrias Mela Stabbed with a Poniard, Mutius Listrio, flew Mutius the principall Instrument and Organ of Listing, the causer of his Syllaes cruekties; yea, the only Authour Citties ouerand motive of Pranestes ruine. To throw. whose Ashes, this good and Famous Cittizen, sacrificed his owne life, by the death of the dearest Friend vnto the Tyrant, who instantly commaunded, that hee should be massacred & thrown into the common Sinke, or Lay-stall of the Citty. Quintus Curtins, that Honourable Romaine Knight, did a deede of abfo- The memoralute and respective manhoode . For, ble act of when he had Learned from the Oracle that the wide gaping Gulfe in the midth deligerance of Rome, which infected the Cittie with of his Counpestilence and most noysom aires, could ey. no way be closed againe, but by the Voluntarie leaping of a man into that infernall and darke downefall, he gladly threw himselfe thereinto, for to end the Romaines miserie, and saving the lives of infinite people of all degrees. The Inscription on his Brasen Statue was thus.

Cccc

This

This was the acceptable Sacrifice to the Goddes, and the Sautour of his Country. This was the Heire to the vertues of the chiefest Romaines, and the scandal of al cowardly men. This was he that could not die; but by being profitable to the lines of his Fellow-Cittizens.

Cneius Cepio, made his manly corage to appeare, in a matter worthy to be obferued. For, when hee beheld a huge Domitius refmighte Elephant, flouping and make cued from a dangerous Elephant. offer to feize on Domitius his Captaine: he prevented him quickly, by throwing himfelfe underneath his bellie, which he stabd with so many stroakes of his Poniard, that the Elephant being faynt with A Noble napaine, violence of his wounds, and losse hearted Soul-of blood, fell downe dead, and with his fal, crushed him also to death, who made no spare of his owne life, to speede his Generals with fafety.

Fuluius Nassus, was carefull to winne himfelfe faire reputation in Arms, when the Romaines his Companions and warfellowes) being vanquished by Hannibal 30 at the Lake of Thrasymena, and flying away like Cowards, hee stept betweene their purfuite and attaint, allowing them time for running, by making a wall, as it were, of himfelte and his horse in a narrow passage, where the slight of the one side, and following of the other, was meerely logd vp. The death of his horse was frightfull and terrible to the Horses many prefer-red before aof his enemies, and a fafegarde also for 40 himfelfe, that he could not fuddenlie bee furprized by many Numidians. So that, thorough his long refiftance, even vnto death, he faued the remainder of the Romaines lives, that fled from foorth their owne field of battell.

> The valour of Mintius Scanola cannot be conflicted by eternity of ages. For he (all alone) amazed a victorious Prince. ready to poffesschimself of Rome, which | 50 must needes have yeilded in verie sewe dayes, or be compelled to render or ruin it felfe, by falling into the Tarquins handes, and the people of Hertruria, veric desperate enemies.

This braue and Couragious Scanola, (without any communication of his desfeigne) threw himselse into his Enemies Army, not as a friend, but as an open enemy. He fought for King Por enms in all places of the field, he found his Secretary to ma in all places of the field, he tound his Secretaryon Royall Paulillon, and flew the intendant on his affayres, as guessing by the riches of his habite, and the honour generalise done vnto him, that it had been the King himfelfe. Heereuppon, hee was apprehended, and brought before the King Paulima, who fuddenly converting rage into admiration, and admyrating rage into admiration. tion into pardon, fent backe Noble seanolato Rome. And which is much more, he raised his siedge, as beeing searefull, that fome other courage, more fortunat then that of Mutius) should make a focond attempt, and so prooue to bee his death indeede. But what gratitude did Seauola returne for this high fauor? that tion of Mulia you shall perceive by his owne wordes, Scanola to K. which are thefe : Sir, for the kindneffe I have receyued from your Maiesty, I purpose neuer to rest unthankfull. Let me then tell ye, that there are yet in Rome, foure hundered gallant young men, who have projected how to kil you, or elfe to loofe themfelues in the aduenture.

Androcides the Samian made the most aduantageable effay in Courage and perfection of valour, that anie of vs can defire to accomplifi. For, being prifoner vnto Eupolemus the great Pyrate, who (vnaduifedly) had tolde him, that the verienext Night, hee purposed to surprise the Cittie of samos (as doubtlesse the enterprise would have beene infallible, because all the ablest fighting Samians were restrained in Peloponnesus) hee preuented him halfe a day before, by giuing him fo strong a blowe with a Candlesticle under the eare, that so dyed the loffe of his Countrey, and he together that had intended it. A matter questionlesse exceeding beleefe, that a man to faue a Cittie, and the Inhabitantes, would run into fuch a certainty of death, whereto hee meerely proftituted his life, because hee would not behold the place of his birth and Nativitie, in the mercie of fuch an infamous and outragious Pi-

It is in fuch actions (you my braue ma- To fuch as fters, & dainty sweet perfumed Courtiers, that true courage makes it felfe to be beft feen: and not in committing effront terries and impudencies in our publicke freets.

Chap. 2.

A noated hu mour in ouer

A denife how to be benifi-ciall both to

Prince and

Country by care, forward

neffe.& manly behautour

many idle

Gallants.

The worthy antweres of Seleuchus to his Parafites and Flatte-

The viuali

brauadoe of

Scipio Affrica-

streets, in bawdy-houses, yea, and in the frequent company of our best friendes. We are like to Lyons, that make no acknowledgement of their foftering nurfes. Gouernors or Guardians, if the colour and fashion of their garments be neuer fo little changed. If all their humors that keepe vs company, do not impe and correspond with ours; immediately one is an Asse, another a Nouice; this fellow hath no complement, that neuer came where courage was; either hee is too fad, or too merrie, or elfe he hath no tafte of our Court syre: these are our most familiar discourfings; yea, and (many times) all that we can fay. Make a little better fearch into your felues henceforward, for fom fuch faire occasions to appeare in, and that our outward shewe may not be by ftarts and passions, but on | 20 well formed and compleat deffeigns.Regard aduisedly, wherein we may be profitable to our Prince and Countrie; and thereon immediately refolue, to effect fome fuch one thing or other, as may be worthy each of the other. Let it appeare (then)that we are Captaines indeed, left we be not reckoned worfe then filly Soldiers : and let it be seene, that we are neceffary helpes then, when men woulde indge vs vtterly unprofitable. Let it bee noted, that we have courage then, euen when it faileth in our fellowes : and yet without accusing them of any cowardise but onely by attempting and executing more then they. Let vs then (in good earnest) performe the Rodomontado of Scipio Affricanus, who was wont to fay: I feeke not to be known to man by man but I wou'd only make my felfe known to al the world.

Seleutus hearing and perceiving, that every man boatted and flattred him, that he was worthy to inherit the fortune and vertue of Alexander, returned this aunfivere Tou should bid me fatisfie the creduliey, which you have conceived of my valor, and then you would quickly emptie mee of courage in afpyring, when you but make me to remember Alexander, who perfourmed more then a man can thinke, or anie way is able to do. He also said, Asia is yet the same field of battaile where his Captains disputed about his heritage : but no man was to bee found, that could answere his descruinges : Let vs striue to imitate the valiancy, and necessarie courage of Bertrand du Guefclin, who conquerd the fortune, enuy, hazards of war, and furie of the victorious. Let vs read the histories of such as theer. tofore) opposed themselves, against the good fucceffe and vertue of the English men. Let vs not make esteeme only, but forme in example and fingular study, the valor of those ancient knights, that made this State of ours inuincible, and drew it out of decayed ruines, yea; out of a bottomleffe gulfe, wherin it appeared to be funk, and (welneere) wholy fwallowed. In dooing fo, it is not to bee feared, that although we were no more then perticuler men, or Gentlemen, or Captaines, or Soldiers, yet we should attaine to worke woonders, and to arrive before the eyes of Commonweals, of Empires, Monarchies, and of their Princes, by whom (at length we should be admired, sought for, acknowledged, and recompenced, acording to our owne wishes, and contrarie to the mediocrity of a wel gouernd hope Aboue all, our courage declares it felfe, not checkable by a weake man, or one that is not so valiant as our felues, prouided, that it be stil vnder our own charge. and can commaund in some such case where it may well come off with dutie discharged. Otherwise, it will happen to

Who lets his furious congue walke liberally, In checking fome of fordered quality:
And hath no reason but his owne bare braine, Must looke himselic to finde the like againe.

vs, as Sophocles faid;

I have feene fome to misprize their own companions to mainly, that they offred much injurie to Armes, and to the whol companie, whereof themselues were but poore dependants, feeming more in outward shew, then inward substance. For, a Vertuous Souldier, or he that is a man indeed, should alwayes bee conforted with judgement, to supply the defects of fuch as are leffe then himfelfe, and fay; that although they bee not qualified in fome one kinde, yet in some other, they owe nothing to him. One may bee a worthy Seruitor on Horseback, another on foote, euerie way equall to him, and fo likewife in the other degrees of Man-

The cie is the most excellent part of the countenance, yea of the whol body: and yet notwithstanding, if a man were composed of cies only, he would rather be a monster, then any piece of perfection &

Guefel n a taour of France.

Practife and example are of good men, and to renames to end lesse posteri-

Courage canued by weak-

Sophoc in Trag.

Of a vertuous Souldi-our and man indeed, how

A very excel-

la, a perpetu-all mirrour to all posterity.

Mutius Scaue

Fuluius Naffus

an honourable Romaine

A Lake in

The lines of ny care for his owne.

What kind of men are most to be contem

When Igno

rance is not to be reckoned as a vice

Of taking of-

tence or difpleafure.

ther a man be inferiour to vs in anie one vertue: but rather confider, that manie other Vertues are needfull for vs, which we bestow no paines to purchase. Let ys expresse contempt of vile and detestable men, that ferue as fours to whoring, Sodomy, Flatterie, and foftnesse, which (among vices) are not onely enemies to true and perfect valour, but to the generall fociety of men, and Authours of fcandall to all Nations . Ignorance is not to be counted as a Vice, when it is accompanied with simplicitie and naturall care for the auoyding of euill. But misprission of Vertue, and disdayne to compasse it, is not onely an odious brutality amongest true men : but (which is much more) a crime punishable by fyre and fword, and all other inflictions Cu- 20 ftomarily due, to the perfeuerance of foule and guilty offenders or euil doers.

excellencie. Let vs neuet note then, whe-

There is no necessity, that a valiaunt man should be apt to spleene or offence, through the riots of a Court Minion, of a Buffone, or of some young Sir, that hath not as yet learned how to be filent, or when to speake to purpose. A Gentleman of couragious perfection indeed, should bee of the humour of inuincible 30 Hercules, of whom Homer deliucreth testimony in the first Booke of Odiffaes.

Homer in Lib. 1 de Odyss.

The words of

He made no more account of frowards words, Then of the Flie, that filly harme affords. He differed (in all) from common kinde: And Fortunes frownes with him were as the wind

Hee ought likewife, in all his other actions, to correspond with these precepts.

The constant wife, is ever like himselfe, And neare strinkes courage at the losse of pelfe The picture The death of Children cannot make him dye, But, when help fails, Hope doth the place supply. of a constant wife man.

> He should not conceite, that he is to deale with fome finall enemy, but rather to crie out with couragious Brasidas, of whom wee haue alreadie spoken. O God, there is not anie thing of so weake power; but, if it durst defend it selfe: it could finde 50 meanes whereby co preserve it ovene life . Hee vsed these Words, in regarde of a Mouse that bit him by the Finger, as he thrust his hande into a Fraile of drye

Demetrius beeing at Thebes, aduisedly noted a man that was Lame of all his

Members; and of whom, a Court Musk-Minion, made a subject of scornesull Laughter, faying: This is not he, that hath (til this day) tardied our victorie, for Nature hath made him a Cripple. It is true (answered Demetrius) but how doost thou know whether revenge and disclaime have any other weapons then hands onely , confidering that mine have done no feruice at al for the surprixing of this Cittle?

That the mea neft or fillieft to be despised

CHAP. III.

Of those meanes which Princes ought to obferue for beeing well attended vvith Gentlemen and valiaunt Captaines of true perfection.

Rinces that feeke the Conservation of their subjects, and to leane peaceable estates and Lawes for the dominions vnto theyr Children, ought Reli-Children, ought Religiously to ordaine (next to the establish- Infancy, ment of Iustice) that lawes should be allowd to perticuler families, wherby children may bee educated euen from theyr infancy, as destenied to the inclination of fuch Artes, as (by manifest experience) their nature is subjected vnto, by the secret power of the more or leffe great blessings of God, and as it pleaseth him to extend or thut vppe his graces in one more then to another. Yet notwithstanding, as accommodating the divers inclinations of men, to perfect that great my bounds or measure. hermony which maintaineth the world, and combineth humain focietie with fo ftrict a bond, that (as it often commeth to paffe)the very greatest have neede of the meanest mens help, & al sciences, yea,euen the filliest, do tend to one selfcsame end by diners precepts & contrary manners yet all for the feruice of nature. For otherwise it would fal out that common weales would convert into deferts: and men being apt but to one exercise only, de, how exhow excellent foeuer) should have no commerce togither, but only in words & vse of the Elements, which being wholly contrary(as it feemeth) in that common concord, for fortifying and maintaining this great building; and the leffer also, which boafts his owne mirror and liuely figure: doth teach vs, that wee ought to haue a generall vertue of profiting : and yet neuertheles, that it is necessary therein to make vie of diffrent effects and proprieties. This was well knowne to Hefiodus, when he faid :

The bleffings

Hefiodus his translated ou

Chap.3.

The very darkest sullen night, Helpes Nature with as deere delight, As the brightest Sun-shine day, That the Gods most honor may. They both most necessary be. Healthfullalike meach degree. Let me then tell ye, that neuer (through-is, in that Christians are compeld to renounce their Religion, to imbrace that of Mahomet, which (at this day) is the ve-rie greatest, and most respected in all the East. Take off this defect, and then there is not any thing(I fay)in the worlde, nei-like For you may behold in Constantinople, a Caranani or numberleffe troope of yong Boies, that are carefully tended by Maifters of all estates in al fuch things as they are most apt vnto, without any constraint of Nature, and for the space of a yeare, they are permitted all kinds of exercifes 3 to the end, that becomming ind-ges of themselues, each one may afterward purfue his owne inftinct, and best inclination. Some are found to be fit for warre, and they are as quickly recommended to Maisters meete for such enstruction: yet with so great an observation, that time shall rather bee wanting, then care of their employment. Such as are noted to please themselues, in the composing of thips or gallies, with paper failes, and pack thred tacklings, or anie other stuffe, more assiduate to their yong fancies, then other they are forthwith be flowed in the Sea Arfenale, & inftructed in al affaires fit for the fea. These docible and debonaire spirits are differently employd : fome to Phisick, others to priesthood,& fombefide to judiciary fernices.

Finally fuch as are of fo grofe teper, that ther did all former ages euer afford the 30 out all the ancient Monarchies) was the The instituti like invented, for the inflitutio of youth; as the Discipline vsed by the Great Sigby the great nior, towards the Amasoglants, and children of the tribes. The only enill (which is great, in regard of God, yet litle acording to his estate &maner of governing)

How young Boyes are

The purfuite of severall in or making of Ships and Gallies.

Phifick, Reli-

no faire apprehension thineth in them, are imployed in Gardening, a midle fort in Architecture, Painting, & Horology. Painting, and Clocke mature, are instructed in Carpentry, Taylo- king. ry, and twifting of Cables, making of fails and many other mean offices: which are by their aptnesse (in them) very gracious in the great Signiors respect, & begeteth them both lands & perpetual pensions.

It is necessary in a Christian Occonomy, to make the like practife, as we plainly behold in the fabrick of man, If we look or of Beatte. vpon our bodies, or those of beafts, wee may perceiue many members to haue their distinct operations; without the intrusion of any others office, or that the enuy of inferiors discontent themselves at the dignity of their superiors, or any of them(either through discord or partiality) do refuse to lend one another their af- in Christian fistance. It behooueth I say, that in well Commonordered Commonweales, but especialy weales. among Christians, the same course shold bee kept and maintained one with another : and although our charges and estates are different, yet that wee should euermore continue vnited in our spirits; and with a fulf defire, to supply the de-fects of our affociates, and allo to assist them. For it is very requifit, that we shold be all like to trauailers, wandering by diuers wayes, yet all to atriue at one hauen in the end.

But aboue all, a King ought to constrain his Nobility, to cause young Gentlemen to be enstructed in good Letters, for Ca- The especiall pacity of administring the great and so-neraign Magistracies of his kingdom: for King. therby must needs ensue, that dignity wil be more venerable, iustice in better respect, and indgements more legittimate. We may fee (to our shame) that at this day, the greater part of Magistrates in all our Parliaments of France, received their The diffrace original from plaine Pleberans and Yeo- of France at men, who neuer could have honour fo this present liuely imprinted in their brows and fouls; day. as they that naturally are heires, to I know not what admirable and holy vertue, which (with no meane aduantage) appeareth rather in young spirits of No-bilitie, then in them of the thirde ranke, who alwayes haue but feeble Concepwho alwayes have but feeble Conceptions, and neuer elevate or rayle their thoughts average is because will active Eaglets. thoughts, except it bee to cuill, as either to fedition, or infamous and dishonest

Cccc3

Gardening.

Our Christian rule or dif-position, com-

Owles are no way to bee

The worth of Sunne bright Nobility. againe. VV hereto wee may ad alfo, that their courages are cowardly, standing amazed and confounded at the smallest accidents; neyther are they fo apt to outstand tumults and civill inconveniences, as Sun-bright Nobility, which even of it felfe is engirt with some celestiall flame, that causeth the vulgar people to apprehende more in their opposition against them, then in thousands of poore spirits that are of their owne quality, whose fathers at the best, were but Farmers, keepers of Granges and Dairies, which they helde at a certaine price, and annuall lors in the Courtes of Kings.

Base gripple Slauery, is alwayes enemy to Gentil-lity.

of these daies.

made capable of warre, anaturall incli

What spirits fit for Warre, by pertaking in the degrees

Nobilitie then doth shame to it felfe, by

Of prefidents and Counceland Councelant of the Senate: confidence authority of the Senate: confidence at the confidence Prefidents and Counfellors in Courtes Soueraigne, seeme to be voluntarie Tu- 20 tors to the Prince, and as Noble Guards to his inviolable Greatnesse. By this meanes they would free them from the gripes of a huge heape of wretched Officers, and they should never be subjected to the mercenary judgment of their fubiects, who mistake themselues verie suddenly, and dispose both of the lines and goods of Gentlemen drawn into action: euen like to their Shop keeping fathers, in their esteeme of paltry wares. In this manner, the King should have a more found, fure, and strong election of men meete for warre, which now adayes hee cannot haue: because Gentlemen doo (indifferently) imploy all their fonnes to fuch trades, as is impossible in conueniin the Gentry ency for them, confidering the dissimilitudeof their natures, repugnancy of their humors, and contrariety of their spirits, which is more; or which is leffe apt vnto one office then to another. I doubt not, but at length thorough the great scarsity to be found of martiall minded men: all forts of Gentlemen will not know howe to appeare in the diversitie of warre hazards, whither they be civill or straunge. Yet I may verie well fay, that there are many carried thereto, contrarie to the first conception of their Genius, who (neuertheleffe) being apt to divers thinges: can accommodate their spirits therto, albeit it is much leffe natural to them then fomthing els. This is the reason why Ari-Stotle faide, that lukewarme water was cold, in regard of that which is boiling, and yet esteemd hot, in consideration of that which is yoie. This is asmuch to fay, as that the moderat spirits of gentlemen, pertaking in the thirde or fourth degree of heat, may ferue for warre. If fo, much better then should they be apt and profyrable for the affayres of State and pollicy. Such alfo, as encline to the fourth or fift degree, do pertake of an influence more strong and pregnant for war, then anie other exercise else . This is to bee discerned in the Nature or case of our infancie, which telleth vs by our yongest carriage, what will be the inclination of our most solide age, and inciteth, nay, meerely exalteth vs (with a certaine violence) to acknowledge that which shall (one day) be either necessary or profitable at the least. According to the faying of Heliodus.

> All Infant Pleafures, Playes, and Ioyes, All youthfull Apith trickes and toyes, Our Cradle power, which breaks no bands Our first essayes in riper houres, Our weaknesse, strength, or what else ours, As in a painted Table stands: For following yeares therein to fee, What good or bad fuccesse will bee.

> > cate their

Princes and great Lordes ought to enstruct their Pages in such exercises, as do best answere vnto the condition of true Gentlemen, and should make no vse of their fernice, in fernile, base, or abiect Pages. occasions: as in these daies they do, without any care of government, or prescribing them fome honest forme of conduction. I protest, as I see the carriage of these ill taught times, I had much rather place my fon or Kinfman, with a Spittle Mailler, or Hospitall Keeper, then with a Prince: considering how badly Pages are entertained, and so slenderlie enstructed in anie vertuous actions, as wee cannot distinguish them from common Lackeyes, but by the outward appellation, beeing elfe employed for all vies; euen all one, with the verie foulest condition Varlet of the house. One while they are Gourmands, by fome Groome of the Chamber; another while beaten by a Scullion of the Kitchen: and beaten they bee at euerie moment, but not to any good purpose; and more for Ceremonie, then with any vertuous intent of their Correction. They are baselie reputed, and badly nourished, whereby they constraine them, yea, and of themfelues are meerely constrained to forget

Hefiodus, concerning our veares of infancy, expre fing thereby, what our fire-ger age will be.

fhould edu-

Pages very hardly diftin ommon La

aboue all o-

and decline, from their owne first faire and naturall disposition, to sharke and get by vnlawfull meanes, fuch things as are most needfull for them. Some teach them how to be diffolute at their Table, for a Trencher can be no fooner offered: but it is presently swept ouer with the Nailes and Fingers; yea, with the whole hand, and tongue too fometimes. Afterward, perhaps Nature beeing scarse halfe contented : poore Youthes, they trot after their Galloping Maisters, who rid a great deale of ground in a very short while, whe their Pages follow not fo fast with their feet, as with frequent and difordred passions. By which meanes, Youth neither do or can learne any thing among them, but forgetfulnesse of vertue and good manners, by the example of indifcretion & folly in their Maisters.

Thefe are tearmed out

The Page is

Chap.3.

care and re-fpe& that haue of their

The maine chiefest in-

Of Gentle -

Moreouer, we may fee our streetes crowded with a heap of young Gentlemen, who have much adoe to maintain themselues : and yet they must have attending Pages, to trudge with Tokens or Loue-scripts, to Madame or Mistris Many better. And then come they poafting after, even through the chiefest parts of the Citty, not shaming to let 30 the world fee their graceleffe infolence. Now, the very great hurt of all, confifteth in this, that the whole multitude of Pages (as well those about Princes, as them that follow great Lords and leffer Gentlemen, beeing themselues ill bred, and worse disciplinde:) are compelled to bastardise their naturalisplendour, by putting on a new habite, of difordred, fhameleffe, and monftrous 40 behauiour; that (afterward) they looke rather like wilde and barbarous Albanians, then any true borne Gentlemen of blood. By which meanes, Commonweales are afflicted, Kinges lewdly ferued, Magistrates scarcely obeyed, the Lawes dispised, and confusion embra-

Befide, a Gentleman brought vp out of the Princes eye, beginneth to grow disdainefull of him, when hee once apprehendeth (and malliciously enough) that he is not in any obligation to him: he waxeth proud, and fuch a man foone forgetteth al proportion and measure. The very highest degree of such a mans feruice, is to domineere and rule, to mount into the Seat of his Maitter, Lord, or Prince: for, what focuer hee feethbeneath, or on either fide, is nothing to him, and the World (all this while)honoureth none more, then such acknowledge, that Generofitie is more cerning Gefamiliar with good, then vicious men, nerofity. and, that valour is more domestick and naturall to a man that is temperate. peaceable, and milde, then the proud and ambitious, who is of the condition of a weake stomacke, which coulteth more meat, then it can resolue and digeft. Princes ought to be respective, An especiall of fuch arich and fanctified enftructi- dury imposed on Princes. on, and not admit fuch overture to the desseignes of Gentlemen; ouer greedie and couctous, in afpiring daily to fome nouell degree, yet no one of them fee-ing the way, by the eye of his owne power, or Inflice of his merit. Thus all runs wrong, for God bleffeth no Mans What endea actions, but his that doth well, & with-fed of God. draweth his eye from wicked inclinations : who wil have no other King then the State, or any Law, but fuch as may bring him in some benefit . Vertue is Vertue the the Primum mobile of courage, that fee- onely first meth (by his owne power) to attract all Courage. things to it felfe, that is required in the perfection of valour: which is onely borne to be enstructed, and enstructed to ferue, and (by feruice) to yeild it felfe not onely beneficiall, but necessarie

Princes in these daies, are faultie of The ouertoo little care, that Nobility should be much negled more forward in the exercise of vertue : of Princes in these dayes and themselves also doe lend most imployment, to fuch as are more commeded to them, then fit for vic. Vertue giueth no more hire to the intercessions of a Courtier, made honorable and rich altogether; then to one of her owne breeding and bringing vp. Hence shold arise all the Officers of a Crowne, and hence are aborted all the Creatures of a King, that leaneth wholly to paffion,& nothing to vertue. He ought then to hold the lift in his owne hand, to fore-fee each man in his profession and degree, and hence he will derive : that his hand, for the Financiers or Cherker-men, that bee election of without fraud, his Councellours free his followers from partialitie, and his Gouernours

Howbeit, the Paganes did euermore The Pagans

voyde of faction. All their ayme and scope, will be to instifie by their effects, the good choyfe and lawfull election, which the Prince hath made of fuch persons. And although they should come fomewhat short of merit, yet would they stretch their endeuour; to descrue the voyces of the honestest Men, and the grace of their fecond

When a Man of Honor is aduanced, the people doe looke on it with a plea-fing eye, and discerne (therein) the wis-dome of their Prince : who instantly is exalted to admiration; from admiration, to intire love of his Subjects; and from thence to the bleffing of GOD, who plantibly entertaineth the fuffra-ges of the Common-weals suppliants, for the health and preferuation of their

Prince. Contrariwise, all is in disorder, when bad men hold the best places of credit: then the people mutiny; the Princes judgement is scandalized; common affection cooleth; the cursie of God embraceth, and bringeth the latest cauter that cleaueth to this euill. Aboue all, I wish that he, of whose seruice a Prince shall make vse, should have the which: all Wisedome will easily bee converted into craft; valour into violence : Iustice into Crueltie ; Pollicy into Monopolies; and without which (I fay) all those things which heaven hath best bestowed on vs for the best, will only be Instruments of the worst. Without this, our very affections, are as fo many violent torments, and cruell Hels reason is nothing else, but meere trumpery and deceipt. O what inflictions could I wish to some Machianelists, who maintaine, that such as bee bound to Conscience, reason, and Lawes, are no

meete Seruants to attend on Princes:

but that flattery is to be preferd, both a-

No Mancan ferne two Maisters. Commaunding vs also else-where; To feare

God, and honor the King : it is then a matter very enident, that the most part of all other Servants, doe yeilde nothing else but eye-service onely. And this is the reason, that Kinges are cuill served

If it be so, that those blessed Quires bone Lawes and Nature.

Honor aduas ced, is the peoples best

What enfueth by the ad bad and vn-

God is to be preferre 1 be-fore all things elie whatfo-

The opinion of fome wicked Matchia

Inftructions giuen out of Gods Booke uice of Kings farre off, and betrayed infecret. They alfo do feruice to God; they euermore walke after one manner. They ferue 10 and Wages: being affured of recom-

The Prince that defireth to accomplish all these things, both for the quiet of his owne Conscience, and happy administration of his Estate : must be sure to haue no Flatterers about him, vnprofitable persons, Loue-Brokers, voluptuous and Epicurian Courtiers, that make the publike Pursse, serue for the expences of their perticular Luxurie, gurmandize and pomp, while (in the mean feare of God before his eyes, without 30 time) the vertuous, and fuch as have deferued much better of the State:remaine far enough off, flenderly known, without Grace, and without Honour, (I meane no other, then that of their owne proper merit) who neuerthelesse are (oftentimes) inestimable, and more worthy of administration; then of the blind and briske (let mee not fay faintboth to the Soule and Body, and our 40 hearted) fauours, which the Princes of vnworthy of eyther Sexe, their depraued Natures are fo highly subjected to infamous Vices, which funder them fró those common proprieties, that do let vs know a Man, to be truely a Man, and a Woman, truely a Woman. I am of Gods Booke, do beare witneffe, that 50 perswaded, that it was of them, which that Great Man fpake, on the Grecian

You Swinish men, that have no other eare, But onely for such food, as you prepare To gorge your foule polluted trunkes withall: Meere Swine you are, and such your actions all.

Theater, faying:

that being Servants to their King, will to content their Conscience, and not they eye of their Maister. They propose God before their eyes, as both the Beholder of their actions, and searcher of their harts. They waite for his grace pence and reward on his part, when they doe their dutie, although it bee to unthankfull Maifters . This is the Seed from whence Kinges should gather all Kings thebel hope, of being maintained, strengthe- encrease. ned, and wel ferued. From hence ought they alwaies to chuse their Councellors of State, and al the, to whom they will communicate their power and authori-

ued with goo men indetd thefe times vie towardes fome young Thefe are Gallants, that finell more of Cinet, Carpet Squi then the Cannons Powder, and much ers, not more of the Woman, then Man: yet Knights fixfor

> A Mirrour fo many, that dare not be Like them you run, such is your leaden pace; Nor Soule, nor reason shineth in your face. Stabled you are within the Courts of Kings, Not he for Councell, Armour, or fuch things As to your Natures are contrary quite. Ea'fly you can faire Ornaments difgrace, Therefore you fit not fuch a royall place: Kings loofe themiciues, that doe in you delight.

But why do I feeke to enstruct Gen-as possible that they may) not to behold any lawfull action : because their Soulcs should bring no judgement against themselves for the excesses which they have committed? It is enough for them, to make some essay of that which is written in Saint John, to wit. That if all Testimonies of Scripture, and lawfull imitations doe faile vs yet not withstanding

our Conscience, and Nature it selfe doth Sufficiently shew, what is our dutie. Looking thorowall Windowes of Equity,

Iustice, and Reason; Pagane Authours

tooke knowledge, yea, and did fet down in Writing: that there were Furies, who inflicted reuenge on the iniuries, as also on the sinnes of Men, which is nothing elfe, but the torments of vile phet Efay speaketh; it is the Worme

(I fay) that neuer dyeth, but byteth and teareth without intermission. These are the Tapers and Torches, which terrifie and burne our harts: This is that which is called, the remembrance of our wicked and abhominable lives . Epicurus himfelfe, being an enemy to the Deitie, could yet confesse, that the very great paine of fuch as finned, was, that they had finned: for the pnnishment of wickednesse, is wickednesse it selfe. The Man that is attainted with this great scruple in his Soule, is of no worth, neither can be valiant, or come any thing neere to that happy quality. For he that is a perfect knight indeed, ought not onely to win the Conquest of his Enemies : but must also triumphe ouer must be cleane, and exempt from all vnlawfull defires, or abfurde and bafe villainies. That which was prefented to the Emperour Theodofius, is well worthy to be followed by him, in whom

I would decypher perfect valiancie, as the Paffions of his owne Soule, which 50

This is the worme whereof the Proand wicked Consciences.

Greatmen will not willingly looke vpon ferious and weighty confiderati-

Chap. 3.

The Window of Equity. Iu-flice, and Rea ledged by the

> The confessi on of Epicurus concerning

The Anator my of a true

thus.

Though in rich India, or a further Land, Thou are adorde, and dott o're men commaund, Although the Medes and Arabes floupe to thee : Yet, if not just, valiant thou canst norbe. Thou are no Man, if terror (way thy Soule, Nor can be valiant, if weake thoughts controlle Such follies leave thee to thy felfe alone, In torment, fadnesse, and despaining mono But when thou dost o're-maister fond desires: Then thy faire Soule to her true pitch afpires And makes thee meet for Kingdomes, or all Nations; Hauing once conquerd thine owne private passions. tlemen, feeing they striue (as much 10 ,, Vertue doth neuer fight, but for successe.

If then base thoughts the Soule of Man possesse. And be not trod downe, at their first arise: In fuffering them, the greatest peril lies. Then boldly check thy inward dull conceasts, Shun those deepe blames that on negle& awaites, Let not the Lawes reprodue thy care and heed ? So shalt thou be a Man, in name and deed.

> This other of Clandian, is very little different.

If thaction, which is tearmed valiance, , Be not in vertue: then tis impudence.

Knights of greatest courtesie, Captainesmost remarkable, and Kinges of highest fame, did euermore accompany their Armes, and strengthen them by a gentle and liberall knowledge in Vertue: whereby they could best decipher fuch about them, as were most or least apt for Warre feruices, making diftinction of their valour, according to the circumftances and ordinary manner of Souldiours; were it in apparrelling themseluss for fight, or in firming the breaches happening in their Field, or in exercising and applying themselues to fome other feruice, convenable to the time, place, and commaundement giuen them. By this meanes, Men of merit addressed themselves vnto the Prince, who made profession to be carefull and respective, of every perticular wife and hardy mans courage, and vpon good note thereof : to render double recompence, that is to fay, by benefits, and by fust commendations. For hee must neuer hope to see vertuous Men flourith, or their actions in true apparance: if they be not recompenced, and someway satisfied. The Prince that defireth to finde valiancy in his men of Warre, ought to imitate the discipline of Alexander Senerus, the Komaine Emperor: who would have his Souldiours to be well armed, wel enfirected, and continually to have fome Mony in their Purses, but (by no meanes) of that humour, as Iphicrates

The prefent, giuen to the Emperor The odofius.

to make ground to builde all ac-

The cye of be fixed vpon

The Warrediscipline of Alexander Se ucrus, Empe-

Iphicrates of contrary mind to Alex lowers to be, to wit ; auaritious, amourous, and full of voluptuousnesse. For he was wont to fay, that as they were perfecuted by those three violent paffions : cuen fo would they proftitute thefelues, and forfake all perill, to fatisfie their own deffeignes, and the free com-

Iulius Calar his Souldier

The faying of

The Great Turkes ordering of his Souldiours now adayes.

Tartarians Con pay with the

The only encouragement of Souldiours ed and respec

the Captaine wished his Warre-folpaffing of their base desires.

Truc it is, that Cafar wished his Souldiours to have faire and rich Armes, because they might have the more occasion to beknowne, for auoyding the fhame of flight; & not to fight so much for the worth of their Armes, as for their lines. But he was deceined, confidering as Thuesdides faith . The valiant Man is alwaies himselfe, and his, vertue appeareth much more, when he is disaduantaged and afflicted : then when he strengthneth himselfe with some apparance, if it be not necessary.

The Great Turke, who continueth euen at this day) the Military Arte of the Romaines, and caufeth it to be much more observed, then the Spaniards doe, (who are in very deede, but Apes of the Turkes conduct) hath so admirable an observation: that a troupe of an hundred thousand men, do resemble rather a peaceable Congregation of people, affembled together to heare a Sermon; then an Army to fight against the World. The Great Turke (1 fay) is euermore accompanied with an incredible multitude of valorous men, which he winneth out of Tartaria, and areat his Wages and endleffe pay ; like as the Switzers are in France. He helpeth himfelfe also with the Souldiours of Mysia; of Europe : of the Albanians, sometimes called Epirotes; of the Theffalians, now called Fullaires; and of the Arabes, that tearme themselves Alarbes. All these glorious Nations (for their Armes) are so cherished by the Othomans, that there is no day ouer-passeth them : but they doereceiue fome honourable and notable reward and respect, from the Generals of the Turkish Armies, who imploy them at euery moment, in verie great and perilous enterprifes, wherein (neuerthelesse) all these Men do carrie themselues, with such prudence and iudgement, as is not to be a little wondred at.

New and fresh Armes is prouided them, vpon the quickest and suddainest returne, and albeit their successe hath not answered to the premeditated deffeigne: yet, in the very least performance of well doing, they are not left though fuevnacknowledged, but vled, as if the at- ceffe oftentempt had beene happily ended. Hence enfued those great Stratagems at Modon, Chaly, Siget, Schaffarin in the Georgie, and at Traueils. In all which places, they furmounted the valour and fortune of the Romaines, the hardinesse of the Parthians, and the cunning and industry of the Christians , whose troups resembled Caravans of Goates, that make motion with their mouths on all thinges indifferently, how profitable or hurtfull foeuer they be.

The Persians, who seeme to be more civillized then the Turkes, and yet (notwithstanding) are lesse provident and with the capable of great matters, doe that vp the education of their Children of good Birth, in certain of their Children places of the Field-Countrey, which dren. they call Spitaf Kier Belti, that is to fay; The entrance into the Signeury of vertue , where they have Maisters to enstruct them, according to their inclinations: but at the charges of their Parents, vntill fuch time as it may be known, whether the Youths wil afterward be bene. ficiall to the Sophy, or no. For thenceforward, they are taken and maintained at his expences, to the number of two thousand, and are then called, Spiers Kiram Sophi, that is to fay ; Children of the sophy, Signior Sophy.

These people, whom we tearme barbarous, and their Kings, called Tyrants by vs; I feare shall find (at the latter day) more grace in the grace of the Soueraigne ludge: then the Princes and people of Europe, who make no account, or verie little (at the most) of the Youth that is under their Empire, or the order and discipline Occonominall of the State, which is much lesse observed with them, I will not I fay then among Christendom the common people of Afia; but euen hathlesse care among the Toupinanbous & Magistrats, who doe enstruct their Children in the Historie of their Ancestours, the Father telling to his Sonne; what fights they have had against their Neighbors; what victories were obtained; and the routes which they endured. All thefe thinges are delivered with fatherly exhortations.

Good will

The writing and confession hortations, to continue them in well doing, for publike benefit, and to flew themselves icalous imitaters of their fore-goers, who (they tell them) are in Heauen, full of Glory and Triumphe: because they continually maintained the cause of their Countrey, and defended their poore Cottages, from the inualions of their ordinarie Ene-

The care of the Parthians for their yong Nobility in

Chap.3.

Enstructions

of Pagane Fa-

Sánnics.

Comparison of the Parthi-

The cone con ambition of the Othernans heir Domi-

yeilding it to the transport of the Ma-on of the Pa-

In former times, the Parihians had fuch diligent care, for husbanding the Spirits of their young Nobility, that the more part of their Lawes discourfed on nothing elfe. By which meanes they were invincible, and evermore equall to the Romaine Empire, yet there was more Soueraignety, and leffe Barbarifme, in the commaundes of the Arfacides, their Kinges : then in the Empire of the Cafars, who were (almost all of them) fo abhominable, as all the Vices of the World, did beget their most monstrous qualities, from the imperfections of those Tyrants of Euhomeranes, who keepe it (at this day) more stronglie, then we doe the rest. And, if we observe no better discipline, then that which now wee doe: it is to bee feared, that before many yeares passe ouer our heades, the Rheine will fcarcely ferue for Frontiers to the Othomans Monarchie, who extend the Threds of their ambitious conetoufnesse, not onely voon Germanie, which can hardlie defend it felfe ; but on the rest of Christendomes happinesse; yea, ouer all that is further off from the East, then the East is from their selicitie, and the West from ours. Because it is impossible, yea, almost vninst, that the hand of God should bee succourable to fuch, as observe no Equity; but contemne his Lawes, despile Soueraigne Magistracy, making themselues in all, and by al, verely vnworthy of his dinine bleffings, which must be fought for with humble and lowly harts . The Paganes themselves do confesse.

The Goddes, by prayers are fatisfied, When fome out Soules are applied, To fatisfie their Deities: Ouer and belide all, the onely meanes to haue men valiant, is, to make no account of Cowards, and fuch as are but fices and dignities of War ! though (in fuch as are these daies) the quite contrary is practifed: for Regiments are given to fimple Clearks, that furrender them againe the very fame day; Treasurers places are bestowed on impudent persons, and the Princes lodging is kepe by fuch, as fearfely are any found well willers. All degrees are valued by Mony, buying & felling are openly allowed, fo that there is no recompense or refpect made of All degrees true valor; onely hee that hath where- and Offices withall, may bee a Gouernour in fome for mony by Finallie, they loft Europe at length, place, which he may likewife fel again, to the most giver. In all the Empire of the Turk, which is more (by halfe) then p the Romans had: there are but 216. Forts or Holds, which also are seated on the Frontiers, as well of the Sea, as of the firme Land. At every three yeares end. the Gouernors are changed, or receive The Torker new power to bee longer continued. Foreieres, and Gouer-nours of the then the Soldiers of the old bands, who being ouer-spent in war, or laden with wounds, or crazed by age : are to be receiued into the Grand Signiors fortreffes, where an honorable penfion is bestowed on them, which they tearme Timar. Hereby enfueth, that all men are made All men are vie of in this bright Monarchy, for fuch in the 7 wiles as are aged people, gouty, or lame, do dominions, keep the walles, while the younger doc may be seene fortifie the Prince and his Lieutenants in any nifein the Fielde, hoping (one day) to haue rable condition, for the entertainment in those Fortes. By this discouraging means. Souldiers are neuer in miferable of others. quality in the great Turks jurisdictions, which maketh them the more hardy & valiant:knowing, that (in their retreat from feruice) they fhall neuer want, by any difcommodity(whatfoeuer) happening to them. For beside those Fortresses on the Fine Mosquaes Confines of Asia, and Europe, there are in Natolia, for fine Molquaes in Notalia, forme whereof old, that none were builded by the Mahometane Empe- may be feene rors, and others by their Balhaes, and the in pouerty. least reuenties belonging to any one of them, is forty thousand Ducats of any nuall Rents. There is a publike Schoole, where the poore are enftructed, and befide, there is a verie goodly House, well fitted with most exquisite Bathes.

prating companions, nor to admit them The onely (in any manner what foener) to any Of Imeanes to where, all that are billeted by the Aga, Colonell of the Infantery; are nourifined, maintained, and well tended, being fickly, weake, or aged, and althings are so well ordered, as no one can bee wearie, or dillike of their entertainement, or judge it other then it ought to

The bestowfor the wars.

All honourable charges of men for the Warres, are imparted to such, as haue best reputation among the Souldiours. If at any time fome offence be committed, vnworthy of the former opinion conceiued of mans valour, he is difmiffed from his authority : yet without any infamous note, or desperate hope of being againe reintegrated, by course of time, which moderateth all thinges, and changeth the councels and humours of Princes, who appeare (by an indifferent chastisement) to haue fatisfiedboth the Law and their owne lenity, in one selfe-same subiect. Thence came it, that Bashae-Abra, having difordred himfelfe in the Georgie, was repealed and difgraced, and Si-nan-Balbae placed in his stead, who fucceeding in the room, of a Man ill handled for his faults: flocd bound (by all felfe to well, that the Great Signior could receive no mislike in his carriage, for hee regained what his Predecessour had loft, beating and chafing the Persians with fo large an voury of ve geance;

that his Military services performed in the vpper Asia, were little indebted to the of Alexander the Great although he was of no fuch temper. Long time and victory, in the Cittie of Constantinople: he was flaine by a Foole, that begd an Almes of him, and which Sinan made himselfe ready also to gine him.

Wherein may bee obserued, that this great and fortunate Mirrour dyed, in doing the Office of a Christian, and not of a Turke, that is to fay; in giving an Almes, and rendring Juffice to the Por-mitted to his charge againe; and then he redeemed the injuries formerly re-ceined, by fuch worthy actions of feruice, as furnined the oblinion of his first ments, if these people (which we call

I referre now to your owne indgeafter, returning home with triumphe 40 these considerations) to behave him- 130

Abra-Bafhae, repealed fro aduanced

Sinan-Bafhae coming with triumph and victory to Conflantinople was flaine by Sinan-Bafiac being dead, Abra-Bafhae was readuar defects.

barbarous) may not justly (and in good earnest) make vs blush, considering that Barbarous the greater part of them, which hold infly make great charges among vs in thefe daies: vs Christians doe declare themf lues veterly vnwor- to blush at our behauithy of them, and because there is no our. punishment for them, men are as little regarded, as a Varlet of the Chamber. Hence ensueth it, that the Prince is miferable, and confusion is so great among his Followers, that were it not for the huge throng and multitude of Noblemen, which ardently accost and company him, to couer this imperfection: ruines of the within fhort while we should be buried State. in the State ruines, which in the end must needes fall out, if no better order be prescribed for Souldiours, and some endenour vsed, for maintaining daily a sufficient number, that may ferue as a bound or banke, against the tempestu ous billowes of Strangers, who doubtleffe will triumph ouer vs continuallie, untill we have prouided for this important necessity, wherof (notwithstanding) no account at all is made.

Though it bee most true, that the Romaine Empire began to loofe it | pire began to felfe, from the day when Millitary pollicy was violated, for afterward, they that durst not so much as dreame of Italie: made no doubt at all to affault it. yea, and to force it, to the shame and confusion of them, that contemned the order religiously observed by their Predecessours. The infamous corruption in State Councellours of Princes, was Councellors the only cause thereof : yet some others of Estate to are perswaded, that the vniuerfall generous ruine, enfued perticularly to them; when they fold their Country to their enemies, as Aneas and Antenor did, of whom (I think) they are descended. For all was fet to fale for Money, both the offices of Magistrats, and seats of Iudges.

And even fo is it in these daies, ho- and fold, e nours of Warre cannot be had, without fuch manner of commerce, fo that the Romains (at length) publike commoditity wil be ta. After his death, the other was ad- 50 brought into a monstrous Caos, the first Sepulcher of the Elements. Armes will be made subject to Mony, euen as they were among the Romaines, whose pratorian troupes fold the Empire for good ready Mony, as bringing it to the common Out-cry, fairest offerer, and thrust better or all tauour and respect.

Danger of

Rad men

Romain Em-

Warre ho-

The vertues other Prin es, ought to ours in thele

Chap. 3. Of Wisedome, Prudence, & Policy.

The faying

latest Purchaser. So that, it may be faid of France, as a Prince of Affrica was wont to do of Rome : Oh goodly City to be fold, if any man had Mony enough to buy it. And very certaine it is, that if the King of Spain had never fo little intelligence in this Kingdome, as hee hath had too much : he fhould not neede to defire it. He can forme Creatures enow heere. to be buyers for him, and (it may bee) 10 that have long fince bought the Pillers of the State, with Monies meete for fo glorious an exploit. We are all carried thither, the Market beginneth to open, the Traffiques hope is not a little, neyther is there any danger in the defleign, for impunity raigneth generally. The wicked doe thrult good men out of all fauour, accounting them unprofitable Members, and defertfull of no Name, among fuch a number of strange Cabalists, who thinke France to be no better then a Mart or Staple : where gaine is preferred before Honor; Mony before Merit; an Enemy before a Friend; a Servant before the Son of the Family;

and a Seruant before a Domefticke

Behold what may be faid, on the behalfe of perfect valour, and the folid or 30

The Authors Conclusion the Nobilitie of France.

necessary meanes, for the gaining of worthy men: to make Kinges triumph, perpetuate their estates, and leave eternity to their Monarchies. My hearty with and defire is, that some benefit may ensue by my poore trauaile (as infallibly will) to our French Nobility, if this may be communicated (how little focuer) to the eyes of their fouls, which having heretofore been elevated to the 40 honest search of vertue, and especiallie that which shold be most familiar with them: will render them absolute in the perfection of this discourse, whereof I couet more to be the God-Father, then the true Father indeed. Because all the wonders of honor, grace, and valiancy therein alleaged, have beene felected from the Oracles and Miracles of the onely renowned Princes in the World. of whom I have figured the very fairest conditions. To the end that ours of this Age, may commendably enuy fuch gloty, and go as far beyond theirs, as they did all other whatfocuer.

CHAP, IIII.

Of Wifedome, Prudence, and Pollicy, and what difference is betweene them. Alfo, a consideration of the difficulties & dangers, incident to matters of State.

Ecaufe our prefent inten-ded difcourte, may fland B cleare from obloquy and detection is we wil first de-clare what Wifedome is,

and wherein it confifteth. For Pollicie being but (as it were) a branch thereof; it shall therefore be convenient, first to consider the nature of the root or Tree, that thereby we may know the property of the braunch. And to this end, it is to be considered, first whence wisedom is, and afterwards, what it is whereby it will appeare, that true wifedome, and (confequently)true Pollicy, can no way itand with wickednesse.

For the first, it is euident, by the doctrine as wel of the best Philosophers as of our holy Scriptures; that witedom is the especiall guift of God, which Plate taught, not onely concerning absolute wiledom (confishing in the speculation and knowledge of dinine things) but alfo of civill or politicall Wifedome and Prudence: which he faith. Is neither giuen to man by nature, nor taught by Philolophy, nor got by industry or experience. And therefore in his Book of Politicall Lawes the craueth it of Almighty God as his especiall guift, acknowledging: That no humain wit can (without his perticuler infbiration and affist ance) or daine fufficient lawes for the government of a Com-where approued. This also our Scriptures doe aboundantly teach, deriving al wifedom from Almighty God, as from the Fountaine thereof, faying. Omnis fapientia à Domino Decest, All Wifedome commerb of the Lord. Et à Deo profectaest (apientia, &c. VVI (edome came from GOD, and it shall abound in the mouth of the faithful man and the gouernor or Lord of all will give it shee. And againe, Fons fapientia verbum Dei in excelsis. The Fountaine of wifedome

Dddd

mon-wealth, as partly hath beene elfeespeciall gift

Plato in Lib. de Legib. et in Minoc. Wifedome not given by taught by Philosophy, nor got by in Ecclef. t. 1. 6 Authour and guer of wifedome, accoraing to the Scriptures. Ecclef. 15.3.

Ecclef.19,20

True wifedome confifleth in the featre of God, and the execution of his

is the word of God on high. That is to fay, the Son of God, who is therefore called Sapientia Patris, The Wifedome of God the Father. For this cause S. James aduifeth vs. Si quis vestrum (faith he) indiget fapientia, postulet à Deo, & dabitur et . If any of you lacke wifedom, let him aske it of God, and it hallbe given him. And Salomon craued it of Almighty God, and obtained it. And Icfus the Son of Sirach land of I himselfe. Cum adhuc iunior sum, Ge. When I was yet your or ener I went abroad, I defired wifedome openly in my prayer. And I profited by her, therefore will I afcribe the glory unto him that gineth me wifedome.

Seeing then true wisedom is (according to the opinion both of Philotophers and Divines) and especiall gitt of Almighey God : it must needes to low, that it have no communication with 2 fin and wickednesse, or with any thing offenfine to God. And therefore Plato (with all his followers) doe teach, that for as much as true wifedom is nothing elfe, but (as it were) The light of the chiefe and true good (that is to fay, of Almighty God) reflected upon the foules of Men: no Soule defiled with finne, is any whit more capable of this light of rue Wifedome, then the ayre (beeing ouer-cast 20 with Clouds) is capable of the Sunne. And this Doctrine of Plate agreeth notably with our holy Scriptures, which teach, that In maleuolam animam, &c. Wifedome wil not enter into a wicked foule, nor dwell in the body that is (ubiect to fin. And therefore it is faid, That God giveth wifedome to luch as feare him.

This will be more cuident, by the confideration of what Wifedome is, and wherein it principally confifteth. Therefore first to speak of the Doctrin of our holy Scriptures, and after, of the opinion of Philosophers: 10b having asked. Where is Wiledome found, and where is the place of understanding ? Answereth himfelfe, faying; Ecce timor Domini. it fa est sapientia, de recedere à malo intelligentia. Behold, the feare of God is wifedom it fe fe, und to for (ake emil is under standing. Thus 5 faith lob, which the Preacher confirmeth, faying. Omnis fapientia timor Det, et in omni sapientia dispositio legis. The fear of God is all Wifedome, and the performing of the Law is perfect wiledome . That is to fay (as we read in the Greeke Text) Fa-Hio et operatio legis. The doing & working of the Law, fignifying : That all wifedom confisteth in the feare of God; and in the execution of his Law, which is as much to faie, as in the keeping of his Commaundements, whereof three reafons may well be given.

The first, because hee which feareth God. & fulfilleth his commandements. hath the ground and principall part of wifedome, for in all his actions he principally respecteth two things: the one, the glory of God (for which, Man and all other creatures were chiefely ordained) and the other, the eternall good of his owne foule, which most importeth him. For, as our Sauior faith: What shall is profit a Man, though he should winne the whole world, if he loofe his own foule. Therfore the Preacher faith well, Sapiens est anima (ua (apiens : He which is wife is wife for his Soule. The second reason is, for that he which feareth God, and keepeth his commandements, doth therin work wifely, not onely for his eternall good, but also for his temporall and worldlie good: Seeing thereby hee conferneth himselfe, in the protection and fauor of him, who is the Authour and Giner as well of the one as other, and hath an efpecial care of fuch as fear and ferue him. For, as the Pfalmist faith, Oculi Domini Super metuentes eum ; The eyes of the Lord are upon them that feare him. Et aures eins in precessorum, And his eares are open to their prayers. Such also is his lone towards them, and the regard he hath of them, that, as our Sautour faith; Hee numbreth the very haires of their heads. Et custodit (faith the Pfalmift) omnia offaeorum : He keepeth all their bones, to the end, that there hall not any one of them perifb.

Therefore, as no manis, or can bee counted wife or happy, who (by contempt of Almighty God, and breach of his Commaundements) exposeth him. No man is felfe to his indignation, whereby both fing himfelfe he and his may veterly perish fo he like- to Gods in wife, that by the feare of God, and obfernation of his law, obtained his continuall fauour and protection, is not only truly wife, but also truly happy. Which zrisiotle himfelfe acknowledged, who teaching, that true wifedome and felici- Arill. in lib. Ety, doe chiefely confift, in the contem- the to Cap.T. plation of God and heavenly things: affirmeth the wifest man to be the happiest of al other, because he is most grateChap.3. Of Wisedome, Prudence, & Pollicy.

The law of God, is the rule of all pro

The differed betwixt wife dome and Prudence.

The principal dome, to re-fpect in all things the glory of God,

nall good,

Mat. 16, 16.

Wifd. 37,18,

He which tru

God, is wife rall good, and

Pfalme 33,17.

The object of

The difinition t wifedome Cirero in Lib.z. de Offic. August.in lib. 14.de Trinit. Cip. 1. The Office of rudence. Bajıl in princip. Prouer.

Arifl. Moral, Nicom, Lib. 7. Cap. 5.5 Ethic Lib. 6. Tho. Aquin. 22 Cicero de nat. Dear, Lib. 3. August.Lib.63. The definition of Pru-

Math. 10,30. Pfalm: 34, 19

Ide Ibid,cap.8.

The end of euery action truely pru-dent, must needs bee

Arift, in Lib. 6.

Eshic. Cap. 4.

The meanes of cuery pru-dent action.

Arift. in Ethic.

full to God, best beloued of him, and protected by him continually.

The third reason, why the sear of God, & the keeping of his commandements, is true wisedome, is : because the Law of God is the true rule, whereby al prudent actions are to bee measured, for it comprehendeth in it selfe, and teacheth all true vertue and goodnesse, without the which, there can be no true Prudence, as shall appeare by the circumstances due and requisite thereto, according to the Doctrine of Philosophers. Wherein is to bee noted, that though Wisedome and Prudence (in common (peech) are commonly confounded: yet there is betwixt them this difference, that Wisedome hath for her object, not only humaine, but also Divine things. And therefore is defined, both by Pnilosophers and Dinines, to be Scientia diuinarum humanarumqua rerum, et corumquaillarum rerum funt caufa. The knowledge of things druine and humaine, and of their other causes. W hereas the office of Prudence, is duely to confider, and wel to direct humaine affaires, and is called by Thomas Aquinas, Sapientia in humanis rebus Wisedome in humaine things : consifling, as Cicero and S. Augustine teach, in the knowledge of Things good, bad, or indifferent, and is defined, Rerum expetendarum, fugiendarumque scientia, The knowledge of things to be defired or fled. OI as S.Basile faith, Eorum qua agenda et non agenda funt cognitio; The knowledge of those things which are to be done, or not to be done : whereto three circumstances are principally required.

The first is, that the end of enery action bee truely good, which Aristotle teacheth, to be the first & principal circumstance requisite to Prudence. And he affirmeth, that who focuer applieth his wit to worke for an euill end:although he have never fo good incceffe therein, yet he cannot bee called truclie wife or prudent, but crafty and fubtile.

The fecond circumstance is, not onlie that the end of every action bee good; 50 but alfo, that the meanes to attaine to that end be correspondent therto, that is to fay, that they be all good and inft, yea.wel and justly done. To which pur. pose, Aristotle prescriberh circumstances, of due time, place, and manner, to be confidered in enery Prudent action.

Teaching withall, that whofocuer tay-Vertue and leth in any one of the circumstances is Prudence fo not vertuous, nor (by confequent) prudent, because Vertue & Prudence are so they cannot ioyned, that the one cannot possibly be without the other. Macrobius affigning counted circumfrection for one, which (he faith) confitteth in confideration of the circumstances of every action, that the fame be most lawful good, and just.

loeuer followeth the rule of Prudence truly;

he shal never swerve from vertue nor fal into vice. The third circumstance to bee confidered in every prudent action, is, that whereas there are certaine degrees good, the scope & end of al his actions. 2. 1.q. 27.47.1.

Now then, feeing thefe three circumstances are requisite to true Prudence, to wit; to chuse a good end; to practise good & vertuous means; and to efteem enery good thing in the degree that it vertue, vfing al iust & vertuous means, and effeeming every thing according to the true worth thereof. For, he preferreth the Soule before the body ; eter-nall things before temporall; the goods of the body, before the goods of Fortune; and the goods of the mind before them both. Finally, he referreth and di-recteth all his actions, and the whole course of his life, to the service and glory of God, whom both divines and Phi-

Dddd2

losophers

Macrob in fom-(out of Plate) fix parts of Prudence ; ac- 100 Scip. Lib. 1.

Whereupon Saint Bafile faith. Quifquis Bafil in prinprudentiam recte feit atus fuerit &c. Who- cip. Proucrb.

of goodnes in things, some being good, others better, and one the best of all; (wherto all other things are to be referred, which is called by the Philosophers Summu bonu, The chiefe good; And alfo, ciecro de fini-Finis bonorum, The end of al good things) it but. Lib. 1.2.3. is (Ifay) especially required in Prudence: 4.65. Et to make a true estimate of the worth of Prudece preenery thing, & not only to reich things ferreth the absolutely euil, or of euils, to chuse the greater good before the least (as the Lacedemonians faid, he had lesse, and the done, that married a very little wife) but chiefe good before all oalso of good thinges to chuse the best: preferring those things which are abso- Plutarch, de alutely good, before all other goods More Frater. whatfoeuer, and making the chiefe 6.Thom. Aquin.

delerueth: it is euident, that he who fea- How he that reth God, and keepeth his Commande-teric Hood, ments, performes all these three things, pressive the not only in every perticular action, but three chiefe also throughour thewhole course of his Prudence. life, tending in al things to goodnes and

The light of Gods grace neceffary for the perfection of Prudence.

Ecclef. 1 1,16.

Prouer.4,18 The wifest worldly men are as it were blind-fold.

losophers do teach ; To bee the beginning and end of all Creatures, as partly hath bin before declared. But here (perhaps) some will fay, that there are necessarily required to Prudence, certain other parts, which I haue not yet mentioned: As fagacity of wit, a good memory, and a found judgment.

cerning other a good memory, and a found indgment, parts of Pru-dence.

Arifi Ethic.lib.

der, indge, conneell, ordaine, and execute, and that these partes (as Aristotle teacheth) proceede partly of a naturall hability, and partly of long experience. In which respect, he most approoueth the judgement and councel of old men. Whereupon it followeth, that it sufficeth not to Prudence, to feare God, and keepe his Commaundements: except a Man haue (withall) the other partes aboue mentioned, which many good & holy men want, either in respect of som naturall defect of Wit, Memory, and Indgement, or for lacke of experience. For the better fatisfaction hereof, one thing is to be confidered to wit, the naturall imbecility of mans wit, which is fuch in the wifest worldly man that liueth : that he knoweth not what is conuenint for himfelf, and much leffe for others, whereby he feeketh (many times) 30 that which turneth to his owner oine. Therefore, the most necessary part, for confummation & perfection of humain Prudence, is some supernaturall and diuine light, to illuminate the vnderstanding of men, to moue and encline their wils to make choice of that, which may be most convenient for the and others.

Without which light, the wifest worldly men(I mean fuch as have most excel- 40 lent talents and parts of nature, and are wicked withall) are but like to blinde men, and go (as it were) groping in the dark. Wherefore the Preacher faith, Error and darkness are appointed for Sinners:

that is to fay, ignorance and blindnesse are connaturall to wicked men. And againe. The way of the wicked is as the darknelle, and they know not where they that fal. Whereas on the contrary fide, The way 50 of the righteous (that is to fay, of those that feare God, and keep his commaunments) fhineth as the light, that shineth more and more unto the perfit day. And for this cause, the Pfalmist faith of the Law of God; That it is eleare and bright, and Shinesh light to the eies. That is to fay, the light of grace, whereby the naturall good abilities of Gods Servants are enture accent creafed and perfited: doth also prosper creased and their actions, fo farre forth, as God Al- perfected by mighty thinketh it necessary for their good his glory, and the execution of his will. Whereto I adde, that also the defects of nature may be, and many times The defeat are, supplyed by the light of Grace, in of Nature fuch fort, that Gods Scruants do many often are for times, attaine to performe all the parts | plied by the of Prudence, though they have no natural ability for the fame, fuch being the effectes of Grace, that it perfecteth humaine nature: which although it aspire and tend to perfection, yet it cannot possibly attaine thereto, without some fupernaturall help. And for the better proofe of the matter in hand, I will lay down fome examples of Gods fernants. who, notwithstanding either their naturall defects & imperfections, or their want of experience : haue (by the conduct of Gods grace) most wisely behaued themselves, in most important matters. Who seemed more vnfit to vndertake the judgement of great causes, then Daniel, whiles he was a child of 12. years old (as Theodores testifieth) or, as other ancient Fathers affirm not much older, and therefore no lesse vnripe in experience then in yeares? And yet neuertheleffe, being affifted by the spirit of God, he confounded the adulterous Iudges in the cause of Susanna, which he most prudently determined. Besides, the Sulpicina Sem Scripture witnesseth, that God gaue fuch profound knowledge and wildom, Augult in Sa not only to him, but also to Ananias, Mifael, and Azarias, while they were all wife and learned Chaldeans. And was there ever any glorious en- ludith hereyterprife, more wifely continued, more caily and wife couragiously attempted, or more he- ly perfourroycally performed, the the overthrow ous enterpril of Holofernes : flaine by a holy Woman, Indith Cap,7; no leffe timerous of nature, then weake 8,9,80. of judgement, and void of experience. through the infirmity of her Sexe?

Againe, what fufficiency was there in Exod. 3, 10, Morfes, for the performance of fo great Moeracknown a charge as Almighty God laid on him; ledged his infirst, in his ambassage to Fharan, and af- sufficiency terward in the government and con-duct of his people, thorow fo manie kind of daungers and difficulties? This of twelue yeares olde Ezech.

Examples

Children: that they far furpaffed all the faell and Age was acknowledged by Moyfes himselfe, who confesseth his owne in-fusficiencie and weaknes, faying to Almighty God; Quis fum ego, coc Who am 1 6 Lord ? That is to fay, what is there in mee arthin I hould goe ento Pharach, and that I should conduct the Children of Ifraell out of Egipt? And againe afterwardesy being vereilie discouraged, with the consideration of his want of eloquence and were rance &c of his other infirmities; he defired to be Glaffa interlin. excused, saying. Obsecro Domine, mitte How God fup plyed the deque miffurus es, I befeech thee, o Lord , fend elfe whom it pleafe thee. Wherupon God tects of Mufes.

did not only promife him his owne con-timuall affiftance : but also appointed

Auron to help him, and to speak for him to the people in al occasions promising withall, to be the mouths of them both.

Besides, lethro, Father in Law to Moyles, did also afterwardes (by Gods great prouidence) reach him a notable point of pollicy, for government of the people. Wherin may be noted by the way, how sweetely Almighty God guideth his Seruants concurring with them, and mooning them fometimes immediathe by fecret inspiration, and sometimes by the help and meanes of others. Whereby, Moyles being (as it feemeth) altogether viskilfull, and vnexpert in matters of State: did (neuertheleffe) many years most prodently and happily govern the people of God, as well in warlike, as in

In like manner, if we confider either the yeares of the education of Danid.

when (being very young) he was called from the Sheep-coat to the Court, and weigh withall, his wife, victorious, and glorious gouernment for forty yeares together : we must needs confesse, that the same proceeded of Gods affittance, and not of his own fufficiency, whereof

Almighty God admonithed him by Na-

I tooke thee from the Pastures, when thou alisted thee in all things where focuer thou didit go. I kild all shine enemies before thy face, and have magnified thy Name among my people of Ifrael. And I was with thee and 50 (hortly after annointed King. If we 40 other ciuill affaires.

Chap. 4. Of Wisedome, Prudence, & Policy.

God concur reth with his times immediately, and fometimes by meanes of o

> Sam. 16,17 12. 2. Sam. 2, 4. ed and guided in all his Gouernment by Almighty than the Propher, Taying. Egotuite, &c. 2.Sam,7,8,9. followedit thy flockes and made thee King of the great ones of the earth. Thus spake the Prophet Nathan in the person of Al-David gratetully acknowmighty God: and this David himselfe, lenged Gods (who best knew himselfe, & the fauors which God had done him) gratefully acknowledged : calling almighty God His Protector his flay his refuge his backler or Orieid his Greneth his bope, his glary, and humbly beforehing hum in all his occafions; cailluminate him, co protect and defend birm to direct his course & so mide his fleps . Lomit divers other examples for breuities lake, feeing by thefe it fufficiently appeareth, how true that is which the Padrift faith, Lex Domini fapientiam praftas parun'is, The Law of GOD ginesh wifedame to Children . That is to lay, to simple and ignorant men, & the reason is, forthat the Law of God containeth the precepts of all true Wifedome and Brud nce: teaching ws, what is our duty to God, to our Neighbour, to our Superiors, Inferiors, & equals : how to commaund, how to obey sto what end to direct our intents and our actions: how to line, how to die and lattly how to arrive (after the florms and tempefts of this life) at the secure port of cremail felicity, whereto true wisedome directeth and addresseth her whole course. And this is not only to be understood of the written Law of God, that is to fay, the holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testament (in the which as Saint Chryfostome faith. Non est sittabe vel apienculus, &c. There is not a fillable nor fo much 4s a tritle, wherein there is not hidden fome great treasure) but much more it is to be understood of the Law of God vowertten, infused into the harts of Gods Seruants. Whereof Almighty God faid by the Prophet : Dabo legemeam, Go. I will gine them my law in their bowels, and I will write it in their harts; Which vnwritten

Law, is (as S. Augustine faith) nothing elle but Ip/a presentsa Spiritus Sancti, &c The very presence of the Ho'y Ghost, &c.by whom Charity is spread and printed in our harts, which charity is the confummation of the Law, and end of the Commaundement.

Thus faith S. Augustine of the infused law of God, which do h not only teach men true wifedome(as doth the written | ueth true Law) but doth also give it them: making them the temples of God, and habitacles of the Holy Ghost. By whose Grace, the good Talents of many Seruants of God are encreased and perfected, their defects supplied, their infirmities cured, the eies of their vnderstanding illuminated, and their judgements Dddd2

Pfalme, 17, ct Pfalme, 17, 16, 15, 24,

Pfalme to 8 How the law of God giueth wifedome chiefoft in Pfal.

> The infused Ierem. 13,12.

August, in Lib.

defoir et Littera. Cap. 28.

The infuled I aw both rea cheth and gi-874 Of Wisedome, Prudence, & Pollicy. 9. Booke.

The parts of directed. By meanes whereof, they are replenished with heavenly VV isedome, and enabled to performe all the parts of true Prudence, to wit; to deliberate maturely; to indge foundly; to counfel fecurely; to ordaine and commaund exactly, and execute effectually. And fo they work in al things; no leffe prudently then happily, being mooued and led by the onely Author of wifedome and 10 happinesse: in whose hand are the harts of all men, and vpon whose will dependeth the successe of all actions whatsoeucr. Therefore I will inferre heereupon certaine conclusions. The first, that, as the Preacher faith, the fear of Godisnot onely Initium & radix , The beginning and roote; but also Plenitudo Sapientia; dome. For those that sincerely tear God, haue (consequently) the light and helpe of his grace, whereby they may, and many times do arrive to the perfection of Wifedome and Prudence: whereas otherwise, there is no possibilitie of attaining thereto, all humaine wifedome being (of it felfe) lame and imperfect, vncertaine, and subject to infinite er-have never fo good partes of wit and iudgement naturally, and may by the force and meanes thereof, doe many things prudently and wifely : yet, foraf-much as they alwaies play the Fooles notably, in that which importeth them most, to wit; in thinges pertaining to their eternall good or enill, and do also erre very blindly and abfurdly (many haue any perfection of wisedome, nor

Whereas on the other fide, the Ser-uants of God, who have alwayes good naturall parts, and the light and help of grace withall, do not onely worke most prudently alwaies, in matters that concerne their eternall good or euill: but alfo deale in all things whatfocuer, with farre more light, certaintie and fecuritie, then wicked Men, of like good parts and Talents naturall. And although the Servants of God have (fometimes) fome naturall defects of wit and judgement ; yet forasmuch , as such also doe alwayes discharge the partes of true

Prudence, in matters which import the can be counted truely wife.

The consummation and perfection of Wife- 20

The first con clusion.

Ecclef. 1.15. so. The feare of God is the beginning & perfection of and why,

> All humaine is of it felfe lame and vnperfect.

The wifest worldly man that which most imports

How the fernants of God are wife.

Why the fimplest servant of God is wiwifest wicked most, and may have also, and many times haue (with the help of grace) fuch a supplement of their naturall imperfe-Ctions, that all of them may, and many of them doe; performe the Office of prudent and Wifemen in all affaires, which wicked men neither do nor post bly can doe : I will therefore conclude; that the perfection of humaine Wife- The perfectidome, confisterh in Gods grace, and on of human that the very simplest Servant of God, wiledome may more truely be accounted Wife, Gods grace then the wifest. I meane the subtilest and craftiest wicked Man whatsoe-

This the Royall Prophet acknowledged in himfelfe, comparing the Wifedome and Prudence which God had giuon him, by the observation of his commandements; with the Wifedome and Prudence of his Enemies, and of the wifest Worldlings, faying. Super inimi- Pfalme. 119 cos meos, &c. Thou hast made me (ô Lord) wifer then mine enemies, through thy Commandement or Law, and I have understood more, then all they which taught me. I am wifer then the aged, because I have sought to keepe thy Commandements.

The fecond Conclusion is, that (as rors. So that, wicked men, though they 3Q the Booke of Ecclesiasticus fignifieth.) Non est sapientia nequitia discipiina, & non est cogitatus peccatorum prudentia. The knowledge of wickedne (le is not wifedome, meither is there prudencie whereas the coun-(ell of Sinners is. For, seeing true Wifedome confifteth in the feare of God, & dome or Pru in the observation of his Commande- dence. ments: nothing that is offensive to God, or contrary to his Law, can fland with true Wisedome. And againe, seetimes) in temporall affaires; they neuer 40 in Prudence and Morall Vertue are so conjoyned, that they cannot be separated; yea, and that not onely the end of euery prudent action, but also the meanes must necessarily bee good and vertuous: it mult needes follow, that whatfocuer is vicious, impious, or wicked, is excluded from true Prudence. In which respect, Prudence is called in the Scriptures, Scientia Sanctorum. And therefore Salomon faith. Principium fapi-Prouer.9, 10 Prudence cal entia timor Domini, & scientia sanctorum Prudentia. The fear of God is the beginning of Wisedome, and the knowledge of hoise ledge of holy things is Prindence. Hereupon also follow two other Conclusions, concerning The third policy. The one that no true pollicy can

The fecond

Nothing that ftand with

> All humane pollicie is vr perfect and without the

The imprudence of those that prefume matters of out any re-to meddle in State, withgard of Gods

Ghap. 4. Of VV isedome, Prudence, & Policy.

No true Polhey admit-teth any imnictic.

Pollicy a par of Prudence. Prudence de ided into three parts. Personal Prudence. Occonomic

Prudence. Politicall

cyhumaine (without the light and help of Gods grace) is vncertaine and defectuous. And for the better understanding heereof, it is to bee confidered, that as Prudence is a part of wifedome: fo Pollicy is a part of Prudence, and that Prudence also is divided into three partes. The first, Personall; the second, Occonomicall; and the third, Politicall. Perfonall Prudencesconfiftethin the focculation and practife of fuch things, as belong onely to perticular men. Occonomicall prudence, respecteth all thinges belonging to houtholde affayres . And Polliticall prudence is that, which confidereth matters appertaining vnto commonwealth, and this kind of Prudence is admit any impiety, wickednesse, or of-senge, of God. The other, that all poli-properly called Policy. Therfore, as Prudence (being a branch of Wisedome)cannot disagree from the Pollicie can-

Nature thereof , no more then the braunch from the Nature of the tree; fo alfo, Pollicy being a part of Prudence, must needs bee conforme and agreeable together; in which respect, euerie Politicall Art must needs bee prudent, and euerie prudent act (concerning Commonwealth) must needes bee Politicall. 3 Whereuppon it followeth, that feeing true Prudence excludeth all wickednesse and impiety, true Pollicy also dooth exclude the fame. And againe, feeing true Wisedome and Prudence are the especiall guiftes of God (as I have shewed) and that without the light and helpe of Gods grace, al humaine wisedome is full of impersecti-on, obscurity, uncertainty, and error, it followeth also by the like consequence, that the like judgement is to be given of all humaine policy, to wit: that it is (of it selfe) imperfect, vncertaine, obscure,

and erroneous; and to be perfected, affured, rectified, and guided by the light of grace, which is the point that I have especialy laboured to proue throughout

The fourth

not dilagree

rom Ptu-

this whole discourse. Therefore, to conclude this Chapter, I cannot but lament and wonder at the imprudence of two forts of men. The one is of those, who make no doubt to deale in matters of Policy & State, without any care or regard of Gods help and assistance; yea, and with offence of god. Whereby they expose not only the matters (which they mannage) to dangerous errors, yea, and to all enill successe: but allo, the Princes whom they Councell, and the Common-wealthes where they gouerne, to Gods indignation, and confequently to viter ruine, as hath beene formerly proued.

Theother fort of impudent men (in my fancy) are those, who are so far transported, eyther with conceit of their own wit and fufficiency, or with a defire to deale in great matters, that they aspire to nothing more, then to meddle in matence. tets of State, yea, and boldly embarke themselves in the very greatest that doe occurre, before they have any experience or practife thereof in the world, or have so much as reflected vpon the Naturall imbecility of manswit; and the weakneffe of humaine pollicy, or of the insuperable difficulties and dangers incident to matters of State, which are fuch, as do many times, ouerthrow & difgrace the most wife and expertest Negotia-

And therefore it happeneth verie often to those, who so greedily and vnaduisedly sceke such employments, as it doth to man, that (in faire weather) putteth himselfe to Sea, in a little Boate or Frigot for his recreation; and vpon the fudden there arifeth a ftorme which carrieth him into the miane Sea, and so toffeth him too and fro: that he not onelie loofeth all the pleasure which he expected, but also escapeth verie hardlye with life. And therefore, with many a fighe and heavy grone, he looketh back to the Land from whence he came; but neuertheles is forced to go whither the winds and tempest carry him, and perhaps perisheth in the ende, by violence of the storme. Euenso I say, it fareth manie times, with those that embarke themselues ynaduisedly in matters of State: for, within a while, they find themselues fo perplexed, that they defire to returne to their former repose and quietnes. But yet they are forced to goe, whither the course, streame and current of theyr affaires doth carry them ; yea, and fometimes perish amidst the manifolde dangers, which commonly doe accompany State-matters, the practife whereof may well be compared to the practife of Phi ficke, For, althogh fome Phylitions ex-ercife their Science, with more indge-

State, without experi-

What happeneth to thole unfedly feeke great imploy times in paine

The danger of dealing in

The practife of matters of State like the practile of Philick.

9. Booke.

Chap.5. Directions for yong Statists.

Young Statifts marre many matter before they make one.

of their plots and defignments: but (for the most part) at the first do marre many matters, before they make one. Info- 10 much, that I account him no leffe happy then wife, who can be the wifer not only by other mens errors, but also by his owne. And, as I hold him for the Wifest man, which erreth the least: so I take He is the wihim for the happiest & best at ease, who fest that erreth the leaft, meddleth the least, or not at all in matbut he the hai pieft, that medleth leaft ters of State, seeing there was neuer any that dealt in many, but he erred in some. in matters of And sometimes we see, that the least er- 20 State. rour worketh both his ouerthrowe who committed it : and also, the ruine of whole Kingdomes and Commonweals. Wherefore, I conclude with the Spanish

ment and better successe then others:yet none is so skilfull and fortunate, that he can alwayes warrant the cure of his pacient, and young beginners many times kill three, before they faue one. Euen fo, young Statists, how expert soener they be, can neuer warrant the good successe

I speake not this, to dehort or diswade all men from the dealing with matters of State, which is a thing fo necessary for the feruice of God and Princes, and for the good of a Commonwealth, that it is both honourable, yea, and highly deferuing, when it is done with circumstance convenient and requisit thereto. But my meaning is to fignifye with what great consideration and circumspection all men ought to vindertake fuch Negotiations especially young men, who have not had any experience or practife thereof, and therefore cannot have the matute and ripe judgement, which is necesfary thereto. For which cause, the Athenians did ordaine, that no man (vnder Plutarch in his fifty yeares of age) should bee called to giue aduise in the affaires of their Commonwealth. And although a man may be (as verie manie are no doubt) fooner ripe and able, to mannage anic matter whatfocuer: yet reason and experience teach, that the yonger a man is, and the leffe practife he hath, the more he is like to crre. W herefore I craue thy patience

(gentle Reader) while I fet downe heere

a few general Rules for yong beginners,

Prouerbe, A queles Rey, que nunça vio

Rey, Hee is a K ng that never fame King .

That is to fay, hee is a happy man, who neuer had to deale with the affayres of Princes or State matters.

as well for their enstruction : as also, for the discouery of the difficulties, which occurre in the government of a Commonwealth.

an spirited to be

CHAP. V.

Certaine general Rules or Aduises; no leffe pious then Politicall, for the inflruction of Juch as defire to manage matters of State and have no experience thereof , to the end, that they may deal therein with leffe danger and difficulty.

Irst, hee that meaneth to apply himselfe to matters A pure and of State, must fee that his s good meaning on mother intention be clear & pure, that is to fay: that hee bee Statish not mooued thereto by vainglory, ambition, conetoufnesse, or any vicious or vnlawfull defire, because they are overweake foundations to vpholde waightie affayres, being accompanied not onelic with the offence of God; but also, with passion; whereby mans judgement is blinded, and many times drawn to error. And therefore, the chiefe and principall intention of a Statist ought to bee, the fernion of a Statist ought to bee, the fernion of a Statist ought to bee, and the publicke good of his Country, whereto tobe enery man ought principally to direct & leuell all his actions, which otherwise, cannot be truly vertuous and wife, nor yet haue the assistaunce and blessing of Almighty God, which for the good fuccesse of all mens affaires, is most exquifite. For, as the Royall Prophet fayeth: Pfalm. 127,1. Nifi Dominus adificanerit domum in vain vaine which build the fame. This foundation being laide, any Ne- The comm gotiation, be it neuer fo waighty and important, may be built thereon, for foure reasons. First, for that a mans reason and takingmat indgement being free from passion and felfe loue, he shall the more clearlie and all Reasons. foundly both deliberate and worke in all occasions. Secondly, for that it is most likely, that Almighty God (feeing his num laborauerunt qui edificant eam. Except the Lord do build the house, they labor

The benefit of fore-fight and prouidence in Sta-

P'starch in his

Treatile of enttruction

for Statifts.

Horat in Lib. 1.

Epift. ad Me-

A cleare confeience is a

Brazen wall.

Senca in lib.4

The difficulties and dan-onfidered in

Phil Com, Cron.

gers to be natters of

de Benefic

Cap. 21.

cent.

good and holy intention) will concur & co-operate with him in all his Negotia-

Thirdly, though it would not please Almighty God (for his fecret judgements) to bleffe and prosper his actions: yet vindoubtedly, his good intentions shall not faile of their due recompence and reward.

Lastly, for that in case hee fall into the great difficulties and dangers, which are incident vnto dealing in matters of State, yet he shall have the comfort and consolation of a good and cleare Conscience, which as the Poet could fay, is Murus aheneus, A Brazen Wall, and the most affured Anchor in all the stormes and tempests of this life. Qua etiam obruta delectat, faith Seneca, which even when it is oppressed or overwhelmed, dooth then 2 delight. Thus much concerning the, first rule.

Secondly, it shall be convenient for a young Statist, well to weigh and forefee the difficulties and daungers, which he may (by all likelyhood) incur by dealing in matters of State, either thorough the nature and condition of the matters which he is to handle, or thorough the treachery and perfidiousnesse of those, with whom he is to deale; or thorough the malice and emulations (either publicke or private) which in Courts never want; or thorough the lealoufy of Princes, who (as Comineus well noteth) Doe easily suspect and distrust their best Sernants in matters concerning their State . Or lastly, thorow the vncertaintie of the fuccesse of businesse, which is in no mans hand to warrant, as hath bin sufficiently proued. By all which meanes, we fee(many times) most important matters miscarry, to the great grief, disgrace, yea and vtter ouerthrow of the Negotiators, especially if they have not foreseen the fame. Whereas, by confideration and forefight, they might perhaps haue prevented inconvenience; or at the left, have bin better armed, to beare theyr misfortune with patience.

Therefore, P. utarch worthily compareth improvident and vnaduifed Negotiators, to one that thoulde fall (before he were aware) into a Coal-pit or Mine; where, though perhaps hee escape with life: yet commonly hee receyueth fome hurt, or (at the left) is wonderfully aftonished and amazed, not onely with the fall, but also with the obscurity and horfor of the place, which, to those that go in of purpose, and with resolution to indure it, is nothing to offenfine or noy-

Thirdly, he ought alwayes to obserue three things. The first is the imbecility and weaknesse of mans wit: the second the vicertainty of the successe of al mens actions. The thirde, the prouidence of God, in the disposition of all humaine affaires. These three things I say euerie Statist should have continuallie before his eyes, to the end, that feeing his own infirmity, and vncertainty of the foccesse of all his defignments, hee may confider his danger, as well of error in his determinations, as of euill hap in his actions; and confequently, have recourse to the The counsell remedies ordained for the fame, by the of Tobias to providence and mercy of God. According to the adule which old Tobias gaue to his fon, for the direction of his whole course of life, to whom (amongst manie other notable precepts) hee gaue this Aske Counsel alwayes of the wife, and defife not any counsel that is profitable. Bleffe thy Lord God alwayes, & defire of him that thy wayes may bee made frait, and that all thy purpofes & councels may profper. Thus faid Tobias, or rather the Holy-Ghoft by Two things his mouth, aduiting notably two things, fed of all seanecessary to be practifed of all men, for tills. the remedy of their naturall, imbecilitie, to wit: to aske councell of wife men and to craue the assistance of God. Because we are neither so absolute of our selues, but that we neede (in all thinges) Gods helpe and assistance; neither yet so gouerned and guided by Almightie God, that we ought to contemne the helpe of man, such being the course of his diuine prouidence in humaine affaires, that hee doth his will not only in men, but also by them, and with their co-operations. In which respect, Saint Paul did not stick to call himselfe, and the other Apostles, Adjutores Dei, The helpers of God, in the 50 conversion of the Gentiles. Thetfore, as it were great folly, pride, folly in man, and prefumption in man, fo to trust in ly in humane himselfe, or in humaine Wisedome or wisedome & power, as to neglect the providence and A tempting o assistance of God: fo wer it on the other God, to confide, extreame negligence, yea, and a tempe hutempting of God, so to relie vpon him, maine helpe man should deale in matters of State.

I . Cor. 4, 9.

Treatife, whe ther an old

Dangerous

for very yong

men, to deale

in matters of State.

as to contemne all humaine helpe and councell. Which we may learne by the example of Mosses, who though he was enstructed, inspired, and conducted by almighty God himfelfe : yet refused not the good councell of lethre, for the maner of his Gouernment, which almighty God also allowed in him.

1 .Reg 20. 2.Reg.19,et 16 1. Reg. 21. 23

On the other fide also, King David. although hee tooke the councell of his Friends, Councellers, and Seruants, as of Ionathan, Achitophe', Ioab, and others; and vsed also his owne prudence, as well in the deliberations, as in the execution of his affaires: yet hee neuer omitted to confult with almighty God by his Prophets and Priests, when he might conueniently do it, yea, and as I have fignified elsewhere, continually craued the assistance, illumination, and direction of 30 almighty God in all his actions whatfocuer.

Ceneurrence of humaine diligence: with divine helpe necessa.

Paralip, 14, 12,

Plutach in vit. Paul Armil

Prefumption isno way permitted by maine.

fight. And therefore, God fauoured and helped Paulus Emilius, who craued force & victory with his weapons in his hands:

Gods affiftance bleffing mans endea

And this concurrence of Diuine help with humaine diligence, is notablie expreffed in the Scriptures, where it is fignified, that Gedeon gaue order vnto his Soldiers, to crie in their conflict with ludg.7,18,20. the Madianites, Domino & Gedeoni, For the Lord, and for Gedeon . And Gladius Domini & Gedeonis The fword of God & 30 of Gedeon. And againe, in the relation of the great victorie, which Ala K. of Inda had against the Ethyopians, the Scripture faith : Cadente Domino contriti funt ,et exercitus illius praliante, They were veterly overthrowne, the Lord God (miting them, and the Army of Asa fighting, which is as much to fay, as man doing his endeuor, and God giving the successe. This also the very Paynims knew, and observed so 40 well, that Hutarch noteth it seriouslie, in the battaile betwixt Perfeus King of Macedon , and Paulus Æmilius the Ro-For, whereas Perfeus when hee should have fought, withdrew himselfe from the fielde, under colour of Sacrificing to Hercules, he faith : That God doth not fauour fuch vale fellowes, as prefume on his helpe, and wil do nothing themfelues. 50 For God (faith hee) hath (o ordained, that he which wil hit the marke, must shoote & hee which will winne the Goale, must run . and hee which wil have the victorie, must

A Dios rogando (as the Spanish Proucrbe faith) y con la maça dando, Praying to God, and laving on load with his Club.

But to fay fomewhat heere perticulerlie of an especiall meanes to winne the and necessing helpe and assistance of GOD, nothing of prayer, for behooueth a Statist more, then daylye to re-commend his actions vnto his Di- ters of State. uine Maiesty, by feruent and deuoute Prayer, the force and benefit whereof, is vnspeakeable, no lesse in all kind of temporall matters, then in spirituall. For the which, wee have not onely our Sauiours Doctrine and warrant: but also, infin te examples of holie and wife men, both in Diuine and humaine Histories. While Ioluah fought with Amalek, Moyfes prayed uppon the Mountaine, and obtained of God the Victory . The two Annaes beeing barren, were by Prayer made Mothers; the one of the Prophet Samuel, and the other, of the Virgine

Salomon, by Prayer obtained Wifedome. King Hezekias recourred health, Augin Lib. 1. and had victorye against the Assyrians. de civit. Dei. The three Children also (by praier) were deliuered from fire. And to speake of Gast. Europe bel. later times, Theodofius the Emperor, fir- inlib. 4.100 as named the Great (as Saint Augustine witneffeth) prenailed against the Tyrant Eugenius, more by Praier, then by force. And the like also is testifieth by Graue Writers, as of Narfes the Eunuch, Lieutenant to Justinus the Emperour, whose great victories were attributed vinto his zenlous prayers, and manly endeuours exercifed in armes.

In like manner, the famous victories which Heraclius the Emperor gaue vnto Cofrees, King of Persia (of whom hee re- Paul, Diacon. couered lerufalem and all the East parts) L.b. 18. are ascribed by the best historiographers that write thereof, to the earnest Deuoand commaunded also to be performed, Guilled Malfor his good succession in the for his good fucceffe in that warre. We read in our English Histories, that King Ethe red., elder Brother to the famous Regardens. Alfred or Alured, founder of the Vni- Annal. par. 1. uerfity of Oxford, beeing encamped a- An 871. gainst the Danes, and aduertised by his Baron, An. co-Captaines (when he was going to heare Diuine Seruice, and to perfourme his duty to God, as dayly hee was accustomed to doo) that his Brother Aifred, with the relidue of his Captaines, had

The benefit

Chap. 5.

Guliel Malmef.

Chryfoft de nat.

Det, Hom. 5.

The tellimo-

ny of Saint Cluifollome

concerning the force of ubi fispra.

Math. 6, & 7. Marke, 11. Examples of the great force of de Ioan, Damafin Grat. de nat. h

The necessity of humaine Eccles. 32,20.

dnno.621.622

Plutarch in his Treatife in tituled, wheioyned battail with the enemy, and were in great daunger to be onerthrowne: he had no fooner ended his' Divine Orifons, but he came himfelfe in person, and finding his Soldiers ready for flight, recalled them backe to the battel thrusting himfelfe into the middeft thereof. Cum virtute (faith the Hiftorie) 29 Del miratulo: By whose valour, and the myraculous helpe of God, the Danes were put to flight, and their King flaine, with diuers of their Nobility, and manie thoufands of the Soldiers.

To this purpose also may ferue, those examples of the famous victories of Edward the third, King of England, against the French, at Crefile in Piccardie, and of the Christians against the Turkes, at Lepanto in our dayes; as alfo, of manie other admirable victories which I refer the Reader vnto. And will end concerning Prayer, with this fentence of Saint Chryfostome. Vis orationis (faith he) Vim mignis extinguit, &c. The power of praier hath extinguished the force of fire, shut op the mouthes of Lyons, given victories in warre, appealed stormes and tempelts, expelled Deuths, opened the gates of Heatteth, broken the bands of death, cured difeafes, reconciled enemies, delinered Citties from Farth-quakes, and defended them as well from the punishments of God , as from the Treasons and attempts of men. Finallie, it. hath ouercome al forts of euils. Thus faith Saint Chrylostome, of the wonderfull efficacy of prayer, and thus much concerning Prayer and Divine helpe.

Now, to speake a word or two more, concerning humaine councell, the Holyghoft giueth a notable adnice. faying: Fili. line confilio mihil facias, & post facti non penitebis. My Son, do nothing without adnice and councell, fo Shall it not repent thee ofter the deed. And againe , Qui agunt omnia cum confilio, reguntur fapientia. They which do all things with Councel, are gonerned with wifedome . And this point I hold to be absolutely necessarie. not onely for young men, or others of finall experience: but also for the eldest and most expert. For Nemo emailies ho ris lapit, No man is wife at all houres. And as the Prouerbe faith, Two eves fee more that in his Confulflip, hee did nothing ther an olde, without the adnife of the Phylosopher, man flould deale with Publitis Wigidius. And for this cause, matters of Princes have divers Councellors, to the end, that matters being pondered by diuers at effeunitances may be duly examined and confidered. For as Salomon Proper 15,12 faith; D'befint plures conft tary, confirma- Many Coun tur cogitationes. Plots and definments are celor specet. confirmed and established, where there are ces. many Councellors. For fome find out one inconvenience, and fome another; fome one remedy, and fome another, whereof I shall have occasion to fay more heere-

Therefore the famous Scipio Affricanee, did ener confult all his affaires with Cain Lelius. And Cicero confesseth.

Therfore, I conclude for the prefent, that a young Starift following the rule and councell of Tobias, that is to fay, fix. ing his heart and hopes upon Almightic God, adding the continual vie of denout and fernent Prayer, thumaine councel and diligence; and joyning thereby, The Wifedome of the Serpent, with the simplicity of the Done, Picty with Pollicy guiftes of Grace, with ability of Nature; and finally, the Wisedome of God, with the Prudence of Man, fliall deliberate and Worke in all occasions, no lesse happilye then wifely. And this shall suffice for the thirdrile.

Fourthly, it importes greatly, that after mature confultation of any matter of State, and ferious re-commendation before flow. thereof, to Almighty God, no time of ed or lot. action be fore flowed with needleffe delayes; after the matter determined. For time may fo alter the state of any affaire. be it neuer fo well and wifelie refolned: that the opportunity of execution may be etterly loft, and the businesse it selfe withall. And therefore, the common Prouerbe aduifeth , To frike while the Iron is hot. For the Poet could fay, Nocuit differre paratis, Delay is alwayes hurtfull, to those who are ready to execute. But especially in matters, wherein there is any competence of enemies, who ever watch diligently to take all opportunities: and do often helpe themselves very greatly, by the negligence and delayes of their aduerfaries.

And although this aduife is necessary in all matters of State, yet is most behoouefull and requifit in warlick affairs, whetein we fee many times, that friede Ware. and diligence is more important, then great force. For freed being commonly fion concer-Mat. 10,16.

Lucen, in lib. t. The dancer of needleffe

Cron du Roy Louis; Cap. 26

The practife

when he imploted a great

Aml ab idour

In what cases delay is neceffary.

The first case.

The 2. cafe.

The 3. cafe.

Plutarch in Periele. Time the be Councellour that is, A mans own abilitie well to be weighed accompanied with fudden terrour and feare : doth open the way to finall force, and enable the fame to woorke great effects. And therefore Agathocles, one of the Tyrants of Sicily, having but a few Soldiers, and exhorting them vnto the speedie and sudden invasion of Carthage, faid : In repentino meta non modicum vieteria momentum. Sudden feare will be of no smal moment and importance, for obtaining of the victory . Which was proued to be true by the euent, and is dailie feene by the experience of furprizes, camifadoes, and all other fudden enterprifes of warre.

Cor. 12, 11.

To conclude this aduit; one generall rule is to be held, that to temporize or delay time is neuer good, but in three cases. The first, when matters are not maturely confulted, and well digefted: wherein (neuerthelesse) al due diligence is to be yeed, least time and opportunitie of action, bee loft and fpent in confulta-

The fecond case is when there is som iust and important impediment of the execution. The third, is in cases of extreamitie, which furpaffe a mans power and wisedome to helpe; for then the only remedy is to temporize and win time, which produceth many accidents, that could neuer be foreseen or immagined, and discouereth soueraigne remedies, for the most desperate diseases. And therefore Pericles was wont to fay, Time is the wefest Councellor that is. Thus much for the fourth aduise.

Fiftly, let euery young Statist consider, and measure his owne ability, to the end, that he do not vndertake anie mat- 40 ter aboue his reach or capacity: for no man (how excellent focuer he bee) is fo perfect, that he excelleth in all thinges. And therefore the Poets faigned, that the Goddes themselues had not al giftes alike; but that fome excelled in one, and fome in another. And the Apostle saith, that God distributeth his gists vnto men, diverfly. Druidens fingulis prout vult. Diuiding them to every one as pleafeth him , to the end we may have need one of another. And this also, common experience teacheth; for some excell in depth of judgement; others, in tharpeneffe of wit : others, in eloquence; others in memory; others, in Science and learning; and of them, fome in one kind, and fome

Now then, it is convenient for every one, as well to weigh his owne Talents, and how they fort with the businesse in which he is to be employed. As if he be if fure the man to perswade, whether hee haue the guist ters he voder of vtterance and eloquence. If he bec to his owne abi paffe Couenants and Conuentions of livy. Leagues or Marriages; whether he be a Lawyer. And if he be to treat on matters of warre, whether hee be a Soldier, and so in like cases. For otherwise, hee shall proone, Afinus ad Liram, An Affe at an Harpe, as the Proucrbe faieth, and not only difgrace himself, and them that fent him: but also, loose his labour and businesse.

They that erre in this point, are those (commonly) which either haue fuch an are comm inordinate defire to be medling in great ly that voder matters, that they care not what they vndertake, so they be doing; or else haue an they can per-extraordinary concelt of their owne wit and fufficiency. And therefore, it shall be good for enery one, to moderate in himselse, as for the first, the desire of dealing fo for a remedy to the later, it shall be secure for any man in my fancy, not to relie wholly vppon his owne opi-nion, concerning his fufficiency, but partly vpon the judgement of others, re- ludge of his ceyuing rather imployment from his owne fundicions, or other superiours, then officency. ring or intruding himselfe thereto, til he have made some good triall of himselfe. For by that meanes, if the busines speed well, hee shall have the thankes and honor of it: and if it succeede otherwise, hee shall auoyde a verie great part of the

But if he find, that his fugeriors know him not fo well as he doth himselfe, and yet would employ him in matters, wher- Statistio acin hee hath neither experience nor abilitie, it shal be lesse shame for him to con- fed, then to fesse his defect, and either to refuse the accepta Commission, or to craue an affociate, he cannot furnished with the parts that he wanteth periousme. then to accept the charge, and fo faile in the performance.

Mojes being commanded by almightie God, to go in Embassage to Pharaoh King of Egypt, for the deliueric of the Children of I/rae/, humbly excused him felfe, as vnfit for fuch a waighty charge, by reason of the impediment of his speech: for the remedy whereof, God

Who they

The affiftice of wife & fincere friends, ry in great

Directions for yong Statists.

gaue him an assistant, to wit; his brother daren, who being verie eloquent, might fpeake for them both. Whereby, not onely Subjects, which are to be emploied, may learne to confider and acknowledge their owne defectes: but Princes also may learne so to employ their Subiects, that one may have the partes another wanteth, and fupply each one the defects of another.

A yong Sta-tift ought to begin his practife with mail matters

Infruction

both to: Prin ces and Sub-

Chap. 5.

A yong Sta-Philition.

A yong Sta-tift compared to the Juic imployments

The practife. of the Larciemaians in great imploy-ing An.b. ffadeur. Ariflot in 1. b. Polit. 2: Cap.

credits.

Sixtly, it shall not be amisse (in mine opinion) for a young beginner to enter into his first practise, with matters of finall importance, and to proceede vnto greater by degrees, as his experience and ability shall growe and encrease. Like vnto the wife Phyfition, who when hee beginneth to practife, taketh eafie cures in hand, and medleth not with inueterat and dangerous difeafes, vntill hee hath 20 got both experience and credit. And fo woulde I with a young beginner in matters of State, to flye businesse of great weight and disticulty; and rather to pro-cure at first, some honorable Commission or Embassage of congratulation, or condoling, including some ouerture of an important treaty, rather then to deale in the treatie it selfe, which requireth great practife, Experience, and Wife- 20 dome.

And, if hee be imployed in any fuch treaty, I wold with him to be contented, rather to be a fecond or an afsistant, then chiefe in Commission, and so to growe (for a while) like the Vine or Iny, by the support of another tree. Or, if his dignity be such, as cannot admit a seconde place; then, to procure(fo much as may be) to haue such assistants, as are not only men of founde judgement and Wifedome, but also his fincere friends. Such being commonly theemulation and ambition in Courts, that he may otherwise make account, that his owne affociates and Companions, will curiouflie obferue every little errour of his, and take aduantage thereof for their owne better

To which purpose is to be considered that the Lacedemonians yfed to choose fuch to fend on their Embaffages, as wer eyther publicke, or at least offecret enemics: to the end that one of them might ferue as a fpie ouer the others actions. And the like may still be vsed, and is (no doubt) many times. And Phillip de Co-

mines noteth of Lewes the eleventh King of France, that he was woont fometimes when hee fent a great Ambassadour, to giue fecret Commission (apart) to some meaner man in his company, vling the other for a shew, and for matters of complement; or perhaps to the end, that he 11. of France, thould beare the greatest part of the embaffage charges, as commonly greatment do, rather then for the dispatch of important affaires. And the like of both these examples may well be practised by Princes, when they fend great Ambaffa-dors, and especially when he that is chief in commission, is raw & vnexpert. And therefore, it shalbe convenient for such him, wife and affured Friendes: leaft otherwife, his owne assistants, may let him commit some groffe and absurd errors;

and fo handle the matter, that all the Negotiation, shall turne to their owne

Honour, by the discouerie of his im-

And this hee may feare, not onely in his affociates and fellowes in Commifspirit and talent then the rest, may seeke to make advantage of his maifters weaknesse. As chanced to an Ambassador (whom I knew) whose Secretary noting in him some negligence in the dispatch of aduifes; when occasion required, pre-uented commonly his Maisters Letters

becility.

The danger a one, to confider the fame, to the end, in Commission that hee may the better looke and regard on, when they his owne carriage, and procure (as I baue alreadie faid before, to haue about

fion, but also in his followers and Ser- to be feared uants: among whom, fome one of more inweighty with his owne. Befides, being emploied by his Maifter, to procure adules and intelligences, he concealed the most important matters from him, and VVrote them himfelfe to fome principall Couricellours, whose good grace hee gayned fo farre thereby, that they procured his aduancement at his home return: wherethe Ambaffadour himfelfe, was helde altogether vnwoorthy of further honor and preferment and fined ener after in difgrace.

Scauenthly, I would aduife a young | Many matbeginner, not to charge himfelfe with many matters at once, as forme do, that that caunot endure to fee any man em yong Statift, ployed bur themfelues Whereon it tolloweth, that fomeone or two businesses fucceeding il (as comonly among many foine do) Eecc

ters not to be man of a weak Stomack.

then reputation or thankes for all the rest, though they succeede neuer so well. Therefore, it is wisedome for anie man (especially for such as be Nouices in affayres of State) to take but fewe matters in hand, and to dispatch them well. Like to a man that hath but a weake stomack, who is to take heede, that he neuer ouerwith diversitie of meates, because one thing will let and hinder the digestion of

An aduertifement to the Fauourites o Princes.

The danger that the Fanourites of incurre by ha tred of the people.

Polidar. Virgil

Secreev in matters of State, most necessary.

murthered.

do) they receive more difgrace thereby, lay it with quantitie : nor yet to pefter it 10 another.

And this I wish to bee considered efpecially, by fuch as are the fauourites of Princes, who (manie times) defiring to haue al in their owne hands, do not itick to charge themselues with much more, then they can attend to dispatch in due manner and scason, to the exceeding 2 great detriment, as well of perticuler men, as of the State ingenerall. Whereby allo, they expose not onely themfelues, but their Princes likewife, to fuch hatred of the Nobilitie and people, that thereon doth follow (manie times) commotions, and rebellions, infomuch, that their Princes are either forced to abandon them to their enemies, or elfe to perish with them . As to omit forraigne examples, we have seene by experience in England, in the times of King Edward the fecond, and King Richard the fecond against whom, the Nobilitie and Commons did take Armes, for the hatred they bare to their fauourites, Pierce Gauefton, the two Spencers, Kobert de la Vere, Earle of Oxford, and others theyr Adherents: vpon whose persons they discharged their fury, enercifing all kind of cruelty on them, except vpon the Earle of Oxford, who faued his life by flight into Holland, and ended his dayes in banithment. And heereto also may partly bee ascribed, the vnfortunate endes of both those Kinges, who were afterwards deposed, and cruelly and Treacherously

Eightly, nothing is more necessary in handling matters of State, then Secre. 50 cy, I meane matters intended and confulted, before they come to execution: for, they are like to a Mine, which has uing any vent, is wholly frustrate, and of no effect. Therefore, Peter King of Arragon, being demanded of Pope Martine the fourth, what hee meant to do with the great Fleete, wherewith hee afterward recouerd Sielly from the French, made this aunswere vnto him: That if he thought his Shirt did know ic, hee woulde burne it.

But, because I am to speake of this A generali point of Secrecie heercafter, I wil heere rale to bee onely give a generall rule to bee helde heldconcerand practifed by young Statistes: which is, not to communicate anie important matter of State, to any man whatfoeuer; except he is to be imployed, or his councell to bee vsed therein. For, who soeuer fayleth in this point, is not fit to handle any matter of importance, nor thall Princes eeuer haue credit with Princes, who e-thing more in their Seruants, their feruans then Secrecy. Infomuch, that a Prince then Secrecy. in these dayes (whom for some respects I forbeare to name) caused a faithfull seruant of his (whom he also loued dearly) to be killed, for feare he should reueale a be pertakers fecret, which (by chaunce) hee came to of Princes know : whereby we may perceive, howe dangerous a thing it is, to bee pertakers of Princes fecrets. And therefore, Fhilippides the Comedian, beingwilled by king Lylimachus to aske fome fauour of him, Treatife of tolking to befeeched him to doo him what fauour much. else he pleased, so that he imparted none of his fecrets vnto him. And thus much for this point. Ninthly, a young Statist is to haue e- Valawfullim foeciall care, to anoyde all linde of vnlawfull employments, as to be an Instru- auoyded. ment fany wickednesse for his Princes feruice: for, beside the offence to God, (who will affuredly punish the same sooner or later) he may well thinke, that his Prince also will never after trust him, howfocuer hee bee fatisfied with the feruice for the present. For, Princes manie times are contented, to take the benefit of a feruice done by euill meanes, and yer (euer after) holde fuspected, and hate the envious and mallicious nature and disposition of him that did it : for, they make vie of fuch men, no otherwife then as of poyfon, onely to ferue theyr turne, though they deseft the malignitie of it . And therefore, Augustus C.efar was woont to fay, I lone the Treason, but I hate the Traytor. And all wife Princes hold it for a rule, that where there is no bridle of Conscience, and seare of God, expected.

there is no fidelity towardes man to bee

Chap. 6.

Of a young Councellor.

884

He that is talle to God will not be rue to man

Polidorus Vireil, in Heary.5.

When Princes are wife and learne to Princes forme times difauow Plutarch in his

Platarch in his

We read, that Constantius Cafar, father voto the Emperour Constantine the Great, having commanded, that al fuch christians as would not adore his Gods, thould depart from his feruice : did (neuertheleffe banith all those that denved their Faith, and retained the others in his feruice and favour. Whereof hee gave this reason: That those who had so little Conscienca as to bee false unto their GOD, could not be true to him. And Henrie the fift, King of England, prefently after his Fathers death, banished from the court all fuch as had beene Councellours, Inffruments, or Companions of his rvots before, perswading himselfe, that they were not to bee trufted about his perfon. And so it commonly falleth out, when Princes are wife, and enter into due confideration of themselues, and of 20 their confeiences.

But fuch other Princes, as give themfelues ouer vnto deteftable Vices and finnes, and maketh no Confcience of anie thing, do not onely disauowe theyr owne Commissions, after that some Wicked acte is committed by their order: but also vse to picke quarrelles, or to take verie small occasions, whereby to make away the Instruments of their | 30 owne Wickedneffe, eyther to rid themfelues of the suspition, reproach or infamy thereof, or for the lealousie which they have of the maligne Natures of their Instruments; or for feare they may discouer their practises if they line; or sometimes for some other respects, God fo disposing (by his most just Judgements) to make them onely ferue for the Executors of his luftice vppon those, who preferred their owne feruice before

Iuftin in lib. 12.

Gods inflice

vponeuill in-

So did A'exander the Great at his fathers Obsequies, command publicke Iuflice ro be done uppon those, whom hee himselfe had secretly employed for to kil him. So did Tiberus the Emperour. disauow his Commission giuen vnto a Soldiour, to kill Agripps, telling him, that hee flould aunswere the matter before the Senate: As hee did also put to death Scianus his great fanourite, and Instrument of much mischiefe. And in the like forte, dealt Cafar Borgia with a fauourite of his. And so also have some in these our dayes, by divers and sundrie deuifes, beene made awaie in many feuerall Courtes and Countreyes, when they had ferned the appetites of fome great personages, whome (for just respects) I will heere forbeare to Name. Which may ferue for an advertisement and warning vnto all men, to take heed how they fuffer themsclues to be imploied by any man, in matters which are vn- heed by ano lawfull and offenfue vnto GOD, Es therman fælix quem faciunt aliena pericula cautum. Happie is hee, who can take heede by other mens harmes.

The tenth aduife which I give vnto a young Statist, is, that if his Prince doo him the honour, to make him of his Councell, to confider well, what is the Of the dutie dutie of a Councellour, to which purpofe, I will also set downe some Rules. Wherein neuerthelesse, I meane not handled in to frame an exact Councellour, as ciee- the tollowing Changer ro did an Orator, and Xenophon a Prince. and Castiglione a Courtier ; neyther yet do I take vppon me, to aduife old Councellours, whose experience must needes furpassemine. But onely to give some aduertisements, vnto such as haue not anie great experience or practife in matters of State. And for a finuch, as it requireth fome larger discourse, then were fit and convenient to profecute in this Chapter, it shall ferue for the subject of the next.

CHAP. VI.

40 Other Generall Rules for a young Statist, aduanced by his Princes favour to bec of his Councell. What hee is to confider in himfelfe, in his Prince, and in the matters that are to bee confulted . And first, concerning the Councellour

H E poyntes which (in my fancy) are principally to be confidered by a young Councelfor, though they might be divided Ecce2

large to bee

Chap.6.

Princes that tell them the

Flattery the ruine o: Princes States.

Quint Curtius in Lib. 8.

How a Coun-cellor ought to admonish his Prince of

Plutareb in his

Treatife of lmonishing

ing their haue all,

muth.

The points confidered in a yong Coun cellor, reduced to three into manie members, yet may be well reduced to three heads. The first, concerning himfelfe; the fecond, concerning his Prince, and the third, touching the matters that are to be confulted. Of all which I will fay fornwhat, with fuch perspicuity and breuity that conveniently I

As for that which toucheth himselfe, he is to regard chiefely eight points. The first, that he procure by all good means, not onelie to have the reputation of vertue and religion : but also to be (indeed) truely vertuous and Religious, for two causes. The first, to obtain thereby the assistance of Gods grace, which howe necessarie it is, for the illumination of mans understanding : appeareth in our former Chapter of true Wisedome, Prudence, and Pollicie, to bee the especiall guiftes and graces of Almightie GOD, and no otherwaies to bee obtay-Numb. 3,4,5, 6,7,8,&c. ned, but by the observation of his com-mandements.

The other cause, why it behooneth a Councellour to bee truely Religious and Vertuous, is, for that fuch is the force of Vertue, that it gineth credite to the possessions thereof, and dooth make them more easily to bee beleeved: and 30 their councell the better accepted. And therefore we fee, that all men of difcretion and judgement, do demaund Councell rather of those that are reputed wife and vertuous, then of wicked men, who onely haue a reputation of Wisedome. For, as Saint Ambrose sayeth; Where Wifedome and Vertue are contorned, Magna erit consiliorum (alubritas , There is all good and vuhole some councell to bee had. And all men (faith he) are willing to heare the wife and vertuous man, as well for the admiration of his wifedome, as for the loue of his versue. In which respect also he faith, that men addresse themselus commonly for Councell, to those who are more vertuous then themselues . For no man (faith he)hath reason to thinke him who is inferiour unto himselfe in manners, to bee his superiour in Wisedome and coun- 50

Furthermore, fuch is the dignitic and authoritie of Vertue, that cuill men bear a reuerend respect thereto, and stand (as it were) in awe of good men. W hereof we have an example in Herod, who although he held Saint John Baptift in prifon, and would not followe his councell in the matter of his Dinorce : yet, for the reverence which hee bare voto his Vertue, hee confulted many other thinges with him, and followed his aduice therein. And, as the Holye Scripture fayth alfo, Metuebat eum . Hee feared

And no doubt but wife and Vertuous Princes, much more esteeme and respect the councell of wife men that are vertuous; then of others, of equall wit and judgement, that are vicious and Prouer.12,19 wicked: knowing that, as Salomon fayth, Consilia impiorum fraudulenta, The Councelles of the wicked are fraudulent . And more fraduthat hee who hath no care of his Conscience, and dutie towardes God, will haue no lesse care of his dutie towardes men.

The fecond point, is, that hee also gine fatisfaction vnto the worlde of his wifedome by the good and wife gouernment of his family. For no wife Prince ment of his can thinke him a fitte man to Councell him, or to gouerne vnder him, that cannot gouerne himfelfe and his owne Family. And therefore, Bafilius the Emperour aduised his Sonne, to choose those for his Councellours, who hadde giuen proofe and experience of theyr Wifedome, in the good conducte and direction of theyr owne prinate af- 2. de O fie.

fayres. Whereuppon also, Saint Ambrose faveth. An idoneum putabo, qui mihi & countellano consi sum, qui non dat sibi ? Can Ithinke ther, thar him fit to counce me, that cannot Councell fell himfelle. himselfe? For hee that is a Foole in 1 Tim 33+35 his owne bufinesse, can neuer bee wife in the businesse of other men. And therfore Saint Paule declaring the dutie of a Bythop, requireth, that hee bee such a one, as gouerneth well his owne family. For, Si quis (faith he) domni jua praeffe nefeit, quomodo Leclesia Dei diligentiam habebit. If a man cannot governe his owne house how hal hee gonerne the Church of

The third point is, that in all his specches and Conference with his Prince, hee vie all fincerity, trueth, and playnenesse, without Flatterie. For, although the common Proucibe fay; Objequium Turinin Andr. pmicos, Veritas odium parit; Flattery gay-

Marke, 6, 20.

The countell

A Councellor ought to have Family, and prinate af.

Ambrof. in Lib

No man fit to

A Conncellor

ouer shoot hemfelues is r contradict

> Arrian. in Lib. 8. de rebus Axand. Vnteafonable liberty of

there is nothing more pernitious to Princes the flattery; fo (by confequent) there is nothing more vnfit to beevled of Councellors. Whose office is, and especialicare should bee, to vindeceine their Prince in all things, wherein he is any way deceived, and to labour therein so much the more, by how much the leffe other men do it. Seeing one of the greatest infelicities of Princes, is, that all, or most Men flatter and footh them in all things, and few or none dare deale fincerely or plainely with them. In which respect Seneca faith; Quid omnia possidentibus dec st? Ille qui verum dicat. What wants he that bath all? A Man to tell him the truth. Which therefore the faithfull Councellour thould doe, for otherwise, the Prince shall live in con- 20 tinual crrour and ignoraunce of his owne Estate, and especiallie of his imperfections, yea, and in great perrill of ruine. For, as Quintus Curtius faith . Regum opes, &c. The States of Princes are oftener overthrowne by flattery, then by force.

neth friendes, and Truth hatred: yet, as Neuercheleffe, if the Councellour haue occasion to admonish his Prince. in any error or fault of his: he ought to | 30 docit with great discreation and moderation. Ving (as Parifatis, Mother to Cyrus, was wont to fay) words of Silke, and launcing the fore (like a good Chirurgion) with fuch dexteritie : that hee may cure it, and not exasperate his Prince, and make him leffe cap, ble of his good councell. Those that offend in this kind, are commonly fuch, as prefume ouer-much, either on their owne 40 wits and power; or on their Princes weakeneffe; or on his ouer-great fauour and familiarity; or on the neede that he hath of them : or else perhaps, are of nature feuere, infolent, and paffionate, for fuch fometimes doe forget themselves, yea, and take a pride in contradicting or admonishing their Princes, with leffe duty and respect, then were convenient.

Such a one was Calisthenes, of whom Arrianus Writeth, that he made himfelfe odious to Alexander the Great: Tum ob intempestiuam liberatem, tum ob superbam flu titiam : Both for his vnleafobe libertie of speech, as also for his proud

Such a one alfo was a Philosopher that lived in the Court of Dionyfius the elder, a Tyrant of Sicilie. For, whereas the Tyrant (being delighted with his own Poems) was wont to impart them publiquely to certaine Philosophers, which lived in his Court, to have their opinions: there was one among the reft, who could not flatter, not endure the vanitie of the Tyrants humour ibut told him plainely, that his Veries were nothing worth, and that it was a shame to heare them. Where-with the Tyrant was so offender, that he comman-cated his Guard to take him presentie a way, and to carry him to the Mines, to worke there among other condemned fin of Sicily. perfons.

Afterward, the fame Philosopher being released, & returned to the Court.

A pleafane

at the fuite of his Friends: it chanced. that the Tyrant caused a certaine Poeme of his owne, to bee read againe in the presence of him, and all the other Philosophers, commaunding them to speake their opinions thereof. All the rest extelled the worke to the Skies; fome prayfing the inucrition, and others the vaine and grace of the Verfe. cuery one striving who should commend them moft : vntill it came to the turne of this Philospher, who, in stead of giving his centure, called fuddenlie to the Guards of the Tyrant, faying; Come Maisters, carry me away to the A bold, plaine Mines, for I cannot endure this extreame Philosopher. folly. The Tyrant being (as it chanced) in a good humour, tooke it not ill : but was content to put it off to a icit, and laughed well at it. But this Philosopher seeking to anoyd The discreece silla, fell into Charibdie, for, by flying modelly of base flattery, he fell into another extre- rep efficient mity, to wit, impudent infolency, which to Alexander is no leffe wifit and abfurd for Councel- Quint. Curtine lors: who are to imitate the discreet & de reb. giftis prudent modelty of Haphestion, Coun cellor to A'exander the Great. For although he alwaics admonifhed Alexan-50 der difer cetly and freely, as occasion ferned: yet he ener did it in fuch fort, that it feemed rather to be Alexanders will and pleafure he should so do, then that hee challenged any fuch right to him-

The like stile ought a Councellour to vie, in contradicting or admonifying his Prince, heads.

Eight points to be confidered in the Councellor himfelte. A Councellor ought to be truely vertuous and Religious. God doth 16fift and illuminate good ters of Coun

Vertue giueth reputation to the poffesiors

Ambrefide Offie.lib. 2 cap 10.

Whereverrue and wifedom concurre all good counexpected.

Ambref. Ibid.

The dignity of vertue is fuch, that euil men beare respect there-ner Princes are to be spo ken too and admonished.

All speech

folency, or contempt. 4

A wound at better then the kiffe of an

Prouer. 37.6

a friends hand

odious to Princes.

enemy.

of passion, in

Prince obseruing exactly his disposition and humor, because no man is alwayes disposed alike, eitherto receiue contradiction, or to heare of his faults, especially in the presence of others. And therefore, fit time and place is alwayes to bee chosen for that purpose, and some plaufible preamble to be vsed of the Princes praises for some good parts of his:which (in fuch case) is no flattery, but a source to Vertue, and may ferue for a preparatiue to the pill of admonition, which hee meaneth to give him. So that hee deliuer it in fo good anxines, and with fuch dutifull respect, that the Prince may perceine, it proceedeth not of passion, or of a spirit of contradiction, or of audacious infolencie, or of contempt (al which are to Princes most odious, but of intyre loue and affection, for fo will hee (if hee 20 be wife) take the admonition in good part, and fay with Salomon, A wound at a Friends hand, as better then the Kiffe of an

To conclude, a Counfellor may hold this rule, to speake alwayes in this manner freely vnto the Prince himfelfe, although it be of his errours, but neuer to others of him, otherwise then in his ho-the Prince bee neuera whit the better, for the admonition, yet it may fuffice his Councellor, to have done his dutie, and not to be pertaker of his Princes faultes, not (in all dutifull maner) aduife and admonish him, as occasion should require.

And therefore, though he should feare to incurre his displeasure for his plain-science, and to say as Themistoeles did to Eursbyades, who took vp a staffe to strike him from his free fpeech: Strike mee fo, neffe, yet he ought to discharge his con- 40 nour and commendation. And though 30

How a Councellour ought to fpeake to his Prince. and of his Prince.

Councellours by conviuency, are pertaas otherwise he should be, if he shoulde Princes faults.

that you heare me heereafter. Finally, a Councellor should not expect, that his Prince should alwayes follow his aduise, nor afflict himselfe much if he do not. For, though Princes give vnto their Councellors great libertie, to fay what they will: yet they do referue a 50 greater to themselves, that is to do what they lift. And thus much for the third

A Councellour ought to

The fourth point that a Councellour is to confider in himfelfe, is that it behoueth him to be graue and constant in his opinions, for lenity and inconstancie is a most enident signe of folly. And to this end, it shall be necessarie for him, maturely to deliberate, and fully to confi- an euident der the matter propounded, before hee figne of folly, deliuer his opinion. For, as Seneca faith, Seneca in Pro-Sunt duo contraria confilio , festinatio et i- uerbijs. 1bidem ra, Two thinges are contrarie to Councell, Arift. in Ethic. Haft, and Anger. And againe, Deliberandum est din (faith he) quod statuendum est semel. The thing that is once to be determined, is to be deliberated by leyfure. And to the same purpose Aristotle faith, That a WHeman ought to councel flowly, and to execute (beedily. Therefore, he excludeth verie young men from councell in matters of State. For that (faith he) their naturall heate maketh them over-hastie and headlong, in giving their opinions . Befides, by realon of their want of experience, there doth not occure vnto them many reasons or difficulties to be considered : in which respect, they resolue eafily and speedily, and with lesse judgement. Whereas ancient men both by reason of their colder humour, and also of their greater experience(which ministreth vnto them more matter of discourse, and more doubts to be resolued) do determine flowly, and with far more iudgement. So that speedy resolutions, are arguments of weaknesse of witte, or want of judgement; and therefore, to bee thunned of all Councellors, as one farre more proper vnto Women:whole Councell (men commonly fay) is neuer to bee taken, but vppon a fuddaine, whereof I shall declare the reason heer-

The fifte point, is, to anoyde the other extreamitie opposite to lenitie, to wit; Obstinacie and Wilfulnesse, which is no leffe vnfit for a Wife Councellour, then the other. For, obstinancie is euermore accompanied with contempte of others mens Opinions, and contention, and is therefore a veric great Enemie vnto Refolution, which can neuer bee taken, where Obstinate and Contentious men, do meete together in a Councell.

This Defect, proceedeth common- From whence lie, either thorough great Pride and obilinacy in Prefumption of a mans owne witte, or ceedeth. elfe, of a falle conceite, that manie men have, that it is a shame for a Wife man to chaunge his opinion, which is farre otherwise. For althogh a wise man ought de Benefi Cap.

Chap. 6.

Felly tor a

to change his opinion, when there is just Sentea in'lib. 4 neceffary xception to the opinior

ofa wife man

dem. Ibid.

P'Hoin Lib.10

de Rep. Cap. 9.

councell.

Why old men councell to be fudden.

wife man mpared to good Game ler by Plato.

In what case a wife man may hange his o-

While the ehiefe and fundamenta casons of the defignement doc ftand good, the councell is not to doe it lightly, and without great reason; yet, when there is sufficient cause, it were great shame and folly not to do it. And therfore Senecathe Stoick, who according to the opinion of those of his Sect, held; That a wife man neuer changeth his opinion : expoundeth it in fuch fort, that eincludeth in the opinion of a Wife Man, a necessary exception, to wit; if nothing happen that may alter the case. And therefore hee alfo faith, that, It is the property of fooles, to affure themfe ues (ouer-much) of their counsels and determinations. And that a wife Manknoweth, what fway errour beareth in the affaires of Men : How uncertain all humaine things are : And how many accidents hinder good and wife designements. Whereupon he concludeth; That it is no shame for wife men to alter their opinions when occasion requireth. And Plato compareth a wife man to a good Gamester, Who doth occommodate his play to the chances of the Dice. And fo (faith he) should a wife Man accommodate his counfels and course of life to the occasions, which changing and varying with the time, doe often reautre new deliberation.

> Time alwaies affordeth new ifficulties.

Of a young Councellour.

Neuertheleffe, it is heerein to be confions) is convenient only, when the occasions change the fundamentall and chiefe reason of the first resolution. For whereas in all matters of councell, many reasons may concurre to one end. whereof fome may be more important then other, and some one (perhaps) the ground and foundation of the rest: it falleth out other-whiles, that chaunge of times and variety of occasions . Loc 40 alter some confiderations and circumstances, and not the grounds and fundamentall reasons of the matter, in which case, the resolution is not to bee changed. For otherwise, men should be like Weather-cockes, which change with cuery winde: feeing time alwaies produceth fome new difficulties, and changeth some part of the reasons in all matters, that require any long time for the execution. Whereupon, there may follow some alteration of circumstance in the designement; though the refolution may fland good for the principall. Wherefore, it were great temeritie and lenity in any Man, to condemne other mens councels; because some of the Motiues that induced them there- A Councell to, haue failed, or because the successe and denned, behath not (in the beginning) auniwered caute force of their expectations. As may appeare by he mone s have failed, the wife Photion of Athens who having diffwaded the Athenians, from a certain enterprise which succeeded well, and beeing reproached therewith by fome of his Advertaries, faid : I am right glad of the good successe, yet nothing repenteth Timoleon, et in me of mine opinion. This he faid, part-ly, because he fore-saw a bad sequell of their good beginning (as after it fel out) and partly, because a wife man dischargeth his part and duty, if his councell ning harb be wel grounded vpon good and found by times a reasons, although the successe bee not fo good as he expected. Confidering, that the eyent of all mens councels is onely in the hands of God, and cannot affuredly be fore-seene; but much lesse warranted by the wised one of Man.

To conclude this point, a Wife man Councelles oughtalwaies fo to ground his opini groundeu vpon sand councels vpon reason, confei-confeience. ence, and Iustice : that whatfocuer fue- and Iustice, ceedeth, he shall haue no just cause to neuer tobe repent or rerract the same . And there- repented. fidered, that this change (with the occa- 30 | fore Aristides, having faid to Dionylius the Tyrant (who demaunded one of his Daughters in marriage) That he had ra- Plutarch in Tither fee her burned, then married to a Tyrant : would never retract or recall his words againe, although it did cost him the life of his Sonne. For when the Tyrant had flaine his Sonne, and asked him, whether he was still of the same minde, concerning the marriage of his Daughter? He answered. Although 1 am forry for that which hath happened to my The constan-Sonne ; yet I doe not repent me of that which cy of Arifides I have faid. Which constancy of Aristides, Plutarch greatly commendeth: As proceeding (faith he) of a notable and compleat versue. And thus much for this fife

> The fixt point necessary in a Councellour, is Secrecy, whereof I have requisite in a faid somewhat before, and heere adde: Councellor. That Councellours must vnderstand, that their mouths are sealed up by their Princes, as Haphestions mouth was by Alexander the Great, who having Plutareh in A Thewn him a fecret Letter, faid nothing lexandio. elfe to him, but tooke off his fealing Ring, and put it to his lippes. This (1 bend of matters of State. Valer, Max. Lib. 2. Cap. 2 The Persians honoured Silence as a

Tit. Linius. in Lib. 42. The admirable fecrefie of the Romaine Senate. Valer, Max, in Lib. 2. Cap. 2.

Some men are ouer-fecret, and fome too open.

The danger of taking information by obfcure que

Some intending to be fe-fay) a young Councellour must vnder-stand, to passe betweene his Paince and him, when his Prince doth him the honour, to make him of his Councell, or to treat with him of matters of State. Wheroffecrecy is (as Valerius Maximus faith.) Optimum & tutifimum vinculum, The best and surest bond. And thereforeit was fo much efteemed among the Persians, that they honoured Silence for a God. And such was the care and respect that the Romaines had thereto. that when King Eumenes came into the Senate, to demaund affiftance against King Perfew: it was never vnderstood, (as Linie witneffeth)either what he faid, or what any answered, vntill the warre (which the Romans made at his request) was ended. Such being the fecrecie of the Romaine Senatours (though verie many in number) that, as Valerius faith, it feemed, that Not fo much as one Man heard, that which was committed to the eares of lo many.

Neuerthelesse, great discretion is to be yied herein : for a Man may as wel be ouer-fecret in some cales, as too open. I have noted fometimes, that fome great Princes and Councellors, for fear of discouring their designements, haue eyther for-borne to take sufficient information and enstruction, of such as could best isnorme them, and might have beene trusted, whereby they have gone blindly to work : or effe they have fought to inform themselves in clouds, by fuch darke and obscure questions, that they have beene falfly and ill informed. For the parties with whom they conferred, making a falle coniceoure of 40 their drift, and aunswering them according to their owne fenfe (far otherwife then they would have done, if they had knowne their meaning) have abused them against their wils.

Again, some there are, who intending to be very fecret, play, as a man may fay, wily beguile thefelues. I knew a Councellor, who being commaunded by his Prince, to give him his opinion in a 50 matter of exceeding great importance and secrecy: thought to informe himfelfe of fome circumstances to cunningly, that his meaning should not bee so much as gueffed at . But the party with whom he treated, being of an excellent iudgment, presently vnderstood it, and though he answered him to his great fa- An example tisfaction: yet, not thinking himselfe a-ny way bound to secrecy (because the Councellor neither had taken his oath nor his word, nor had shewne any confidence in him for that matter) wrote it to a great personage, with whom he had correspondence, by which meanes, it was (within amonth) fo publike, that it came into the Gazetta of Rome, & from thence was published throughout Christendome, as the Councellour himselse hath sithence told me. So that, in seeking information by Riddles & obscure questions, two inconneniences may be Information feared: the one to receive a false information, and the other, to discouer the designement against a mans will.

Therefore, to preuent thefe income- How informs niences, that when information must tions are to needs be taken (as in some cases it is abfolutely necessary, especially for enterprifes to be made in forraign countries, vnknowne to him who would lay the plot) it (hall be convenient, if a sufficient enformer may bee found, who is knowne to be of fincere conscience :to deale plainly with him, & to fhew confidence in him, taking (neuertheleffe) his oath for fecrecy, to binde him the more, and to vie other meanes of courteste and benefits to oblige him; yet to do this with the leave of the Prince for the Councellors better discharge. But when fuch a confident and fincere en- fidentinforformer cannot bee had any opinion is, that although it shall be good, to vse all possible meanes, to vnderstand what may be learned, without discouering the intention : yet neuerthelesse, no great foundation is to be made of an information taken by fuch a meanes, except it be of a matter of fact, wherein, no man (that knoweth the truth) can falfly enforme, except he will wilfullie lyc. For, in matters of discourse, depending vpon the judgement of the enformer, be hee neuer fo wife : fmall recko- when the in ning is to be made, whe he doth not fully vinderstand the intention of the proderstand the dritted the pounder. Thus much concerning the fixt point. The feauenth point, which a Councellor should consider in himselfe, is, that in the deliberation of all matters whatfoeuer : he be cleare and free from all paffion and perticuler affection, that Paffion and affection dos blinde the iudgement.

When a con-

An informa-

to his owne

Platersh in hi Apotheg of Kings and lique.

Councellous fhould le auc at the Councell-Chamber Respects of ther mens Of a young Councellor.

A Councellour ought to paffion and perriculer afdion.

Saluft, in Cate-

Inflin.in lib.19

Enuy maketh

a man feme-

times enemy

Chap. 6.

is to fay, from all respects, eyther of loue, haired, or enuy to any. And this Ifay, for wife Princes are wont, exact ly to observe the humours and dispositions of their Councellors, & to make finall account of the adulfe or persons of fuch, as they finde to be subject to any of the foresaid imperfections. And with very great reason, for, as Salust faith. Non facile animus, &c. Them nde doth not easily fee the truth, where passion and affection beareth (way . Beside, passion not only blindeth the understanding of Man, but also dooth so corrupt his will: that although he fee the truth, yet he will not embrace it . Which Justine observed very well in King Antiochus, for when Hanniball had councelled him to inuade Italie: his Councell (faith Iu-Hine) was rejected, partly, because the chiefe Councellors and Fauourites of Antiochus feared, that if it were admitted, Hanniball might grow in more credite and fauour with Antiochas, then they; and partly, because Antiochus himselfe doubted, least his owne glorie might (in some part) be obscured, if he should be thought to doe any thing by Hannibals aduife. So pestilent is the past fion of enuy and emulation; that it ma- 20 keth a Man (sometimes) Enemie to his owne good, no lesse then of the pub-

Therefore Aristides of Athens, being fent Ambassadour with Themistocles, who was his Enemy, willed him at their departure out of the Cittie: that they might leave all their emulations behinde them at the Gates, least their private passions might hinder the pub- 40 lique good of the Common-wealth. And so in like manner, all Councellors that have any perticular quarrels, or difgusts among themselves: should House them at the Councell Chamber doore, when they enter in. And the like may also be faid, of therespects of private friendship, or of other mens greameffe and fauour with the Prince: which respects are (many times) no 5 lesse hurtfull in Councels, then Enuie or Hatred. For they make men conceale their owne indgements, because they will not difguit fome Friend or great Man, that holdeth a contrary opinion. In fo much , that it falleth out many times, that some favourite of the Prince having once vetered his conceit, albeit none of the wifelt : carryeth afrer him all the rest without contradiction, and to the best opinions are either concealed, or not fo well debated as were convenient.

For the preuention and remedy of A prudent this inconvenience, the wife Cofmo de practie of the Medices, Duke of Florence, and Phillip the fecond, last King of Spaine, vicd to of Florence, & propound their most important matters to their Councellors, first by Writing commaunding them: to fet down their opinions also in Writing, with their reasons, and not to communicate the fame with any other. Afterward, if they thought it needfull, they affembled them in their presence, to heare them debate and defend their owne opinions; which proceeding (in my fancy) was very prudent. For to, enery Councellour gaue his opinion freely, without paffion, or respect to any other : & (for his owne honour and reputation) defended it so far as reason would beare him, whereby, matters were thorowlie bebated and discussed.

To conclude this point, Councellors must say of all perticuler respects, as Private friend Popilius the Romaine (being fent Ambaffadour to King Antiochus, his old triend) faide vnto him of their former amity: Facestat privata amicitia, Ge. Farewell private friendship, when publique matters are in hand. This (I fay) should Councellors, when they come to the Councell-Table, both fay and practife, laving afide all private and perticular respects, eyther to one or other, or vnto themselves. As having nothing else befortheir eyes, in all their deliberations: but the publique good; to wit, the the fernice of God, their Prince, and their Countrey. The eight and last point, which I would with a young Councellour to that Councelconfider, concerning himfelfe, is: the lors incurre, daunger of punishment, both humane and Divine, which he shall incurre, if he to their Prin feduce or corrupt his Prince by early ces. Councell. Because the Prince himselfe, if ever he have the grace to fee his own errour: cannot but have and detest the Authour and Councellour thereof. As did King Henrie the fift, who repenting the riotous course of his youth: bannithed from the Court, all those which to their Prin-

The freedom of cuery Cau cellors opinion to be given

Iulinin lib 24 flup not to be respected, when publike matters are in What Councellor ought wayes before

Euill Couniul fonetimes

his Prince: yet he may justly feare the harred of the people, and his owne destruction to ensue thereof, as I have alfo fignified before (vpon another occafion) in Pierce Gauestone, the Spencers, and other Councellours of King Edward the second, and King Richard the 10

had milled and feduced him, as I have partly noted before. And though he escape the disgrace and punishment of fecond.

To whom I may adde Emfon and Dudley, put to death by King Henry the eight, in the beginning of his raigne, to fatisfie the importunity of the people: who demaunded Iustice against them, for the cuill councell they had given to King Henrie the seaventh, in matters of exactions, impositions, and pecuniarie penalties.

And Plutarch also noteth, that the Councellours and Fauourites of Apol-lodorus, Phalaris, Dionyfius, Nero, and other Tyrants, were racked, flayed, burned, and other-wife most cruelly tormented by the people. And tustile (faith he) for that he which corrupteth or seduceth a Prince, deserueth no lesse to bee abhorred of all Men: then one that should poylon a publique Fountaine, whereof all Men must drinke. Seeing, that vppon the Princes example and authority, de-pendeth on the good or cuill estate of all his Subiects. And therefore, hee which mifleadeth the Prince, doth notable injurie to the Common-wealth:

and oweth the penaltie thereof, as well to the people, as to the Prince himfelfe. In which respect, Plutarch also nolour and Corrupter of Nero, that the people (after the death of Nero) made continuall instance for his punishment:

as for publique debt due to the Common-wealth, which at length they ob-the people, doe exact this debt of a wicked Councellour: yet hee thall be fure

if herefpect not, and fatisfie his luft ce otherwise. For, if Not one'y they wnich doe enill are worthy of death (as the Apo-file faith) but alfo those, Qui consentiunt facientibus , which confent thereto: much more guiltie are the Councellors of euill, who are sither the principall Auto pay it eternally to Almighty God, 50

But though neither the Prince nor tained of Otho, Successour to Galba.

teth of Tigellinus, a wicked Councel- 40

Plutarch in his Treatife that Philosophers flould conuerfe with

The wicked

A wicked neth a publique Founsaine.

Plutarch in

The danger

Rom. 1, 31.

thours thereof, if they invent it; or abettors and affociates in the highest degree, if they approue and ratifie it. And therefore, how hatefull fuch are to Almighty God, it appeareth by the examples of Achitophell and Human, the one Councellour to Absolon, and the other to Ahalnerus, whose wicked councels Goddid not onely Frustrate and Infatuate, as the Scripture fpeaketh : but alfo punnish most exemplarely in this life, making the one of them his Instrument, to execute Inflice vpon himfelfe, and turning the wicked councell of the other, to his owne destruction. Also the like may bee observed in Gods iust punishment, vpon Cardinall Wolfey, and some other Councellours of latter

And Phillip de Commines Scriously noteth, how a Councellor vnto the Duke | Phil. Com in of Bourgundie, called Monsteur Coutay, Cron. au Roy. hauing given cruell Councell vnto the Duke (to put to-death certaine Hoftages of Liege) lined not long after. Which some (who were present, and What comise heard him) did in a manner prognosticate, faying ; That they would warrant bim. he would not line a yeare to an end. Which (faith he) fell out to be true, for he dyed within a short while after. Thus then it appeareth, how true the Latine Pronerbe is : Confilium malum consultori pessmum, Enill Councell is worst to the Counceller. This shall suffice for those points which a young Chuncellour ought to confider in himfelfe.

CHAP. VII.

What a Councellour onght to consider in his Prince: Namely; his Conscience; his Commodity; and his Reputation.

Councellor is to confider in his Prince, A Councello (principally) three thinges his Confidet in his Prince thinges : his Confci- his confcience ence, his Commondity, and his Reputation. Of which three, I place a Commodity in the midft, because it is to bee ballanced and weighed with both the mighty God in this life for Haman and Achitophell pu-

their wicked

and reputati

Chrison To 2. conció 4,de La-7.170.

Conscience placed in the foule of man as a Tudge of his actions.

D.The quest li 2.4r.6.1. Conscience is a natural law, alwayes a-

other: feeing, nothing can bee truelie commodious, which is not agreeable to both, and no temporall commoditie can recompence the losse of eyther of And first, to speake of Conscience.

The word Confesence is diverfly understood, and commonly taken for an Act, confilling in the application of our knowledge to our actions. For that,

Canscientia is Scientia cum alio Knowledge with another thing. In which fenfe,

Conscience may erre, when we erre in Knowledge, or apply our true Knowledge erroniously to our actions. And therefore I will not treat of Conscience heere in this sense; but onely as it is the first natural habite in the Soule of man, which neuer erreth. And so Conscience is the furest and highest part of reason, whereby we doe naturally discerne betwixt good and euill, rejecting the euill, and ap-proouing the good. Wherevpon groweth remorfe and repentance in our Soules, after an euill act; and contentment, after a good. In which respect,

Origen faith, that Confcience, is Rector

& padagogus anima, &c. The Gouernour

Saint Basile, as Thomas Aquinas noteth, called it Naturale indicatorium, The Natural! facultie of judgement. Whereof S.

Augustine Speaketh, when he faith, that there are in the Soule of Man, Certaine infal'ible rules, true and incommutable lights of vertue, wherby enery one con-ceineth and judgeth truely, of the gene-

Man. S. Chrisottome Speaking of Con-intentions. Whereupon it followeth, that after any finne or offence is committed, a mans owne Conscience justly judgeth and condemneth him, without any other Accuser or Witnesse, then rall principles of the office and dutie of 40 (bed reprodued, and chastifed.

and pedagogue of the Soule, whereby it is diverted from eaill, moved to good, admoni-

What the word Confcience fignifi-

Chap. 7.

Thom. Aquin.2 P. 24.2.2.dr. Cop. 4.

ldem. 1. P. 79 Q. 79. Ar. 13.

The definition of Confei

Remorfe of Origen.in Lib.z in Epist. ad Ram. Cap. 2.

> S.Bafil. apud D 1 hum. 1.P.Q. 79.Ar.13.Ca.

August in lib. de Lib. arbit. Cap. o.

> science, faith . Alm ght God bath placed it in the Soule of man, as a sudge, which is ener vigilant, and attentine to his actions, incorruptible, inexorable, inflexible, and fearthing into his very cogitations and > > himfelfe. Laftly, Thomas Aquinas calleth it Lex naturalis, Anaturall Lam, or the Law of Nature, by the light whereof, the verie Painims know those thinges which are commaunded by the Law of God, as the Apostle restifieth, faying : The Gent | greeable to tiles who have not the Law (that is to fay, God. the written Law of God) doe by nature Rom 2, 14, the thinges contained in the Law, they buuing not the Law, are a Law unto them-felnes. Which shew the effect is of the Law written in their Hearts, their Confetence also bearing witnes, and their thoughts accusing one another, or excusing in the day of Iudgement. Thus faith the Apostle. Who doe ac-Wherby it appeareth, that those which cording to line according to the rule of reason, the Law of God, and the Law of Nature Confeience. (which are alwaies conforme one to ahother) do according to Confeience: and and on the contrary fide, those which decline and fwerue from any of them, do against conscience.

Now then, for a fmuch as eternall felicitie dependeth, vpon the integritie & purity of Conscience, in which respect our Saujor faith : Beati mundo corde de. Bleffed are the cleane in heart, for they shall fee God: it followeth, that nothing can be truly commodious, which is contrary to Conscience. For, whatsoever hindreth our greatest good & commodity, that is fay; our Saluation, and draweth vs also to the greatest miserie that can be, to wit; to eternall damnation : the fame is not good and profitable, but mischieuous and pernitious. For, as I noted (elfc-where) out of our Saujors words : What doth it profit aman to eain the whole world if he loofe his fonle? And therefore Saint Augustine faith very well, that hee which councelleth a Man contrary to his Saluation, hath Pallium consulentis, & venenum perimentis: The Cloake of a Councellor, and the Poylon of a Killer. Whereupon it followeth, that the first and principall thing, which eneric Councellour ought to regard, is, that his counfell be fo grounded upon Conscience: that God benot offended, nor his Princes conscience wounded therewith, which latter were (of it felfe) no fmall infelicity, though God fhould not otherwise punish the enillact . For, as on the one fide; There can be no greater happinelle in the life of Man, then the tranquility and quietneffe of Conscience , 25 S. Augustine faith: So, on the other fide, there can bee no greater miscrie or torment, then Notte, deque foum gest are in pettore sestem, To carrie day and night the Math. 5, 8. Nothing trul commodious that is againft

Mat. 16,26.

August in P/alme. 119.

The principal ought to re-

No greater ti anquility of Confrience,

August. de ciuit. Dei. in Lib.

Іниспа!!.

Testimony

Polid. Virgil. in Hen. 4.

Euill Councellors hatefull to the punished by them. To Stowe . in Henry. 8.

Princes.

Councellors of divers Tyrants notably punnished.

Councellor like to one that poyfo-

Otho. The punishment of a wic ked Councellor, is a debt due to the wealth.

ofeternall damnation t a wicked Con

Testimonie of a Mans wickednesse in his owne breast. And although Princes do not alwaies

(at the first) feele the pricke of Conscience, while the pleafure or commodity of wicked councell is yet fresh : neuertheleffe, afterward they are flung,

and vexed there-with at one time or other. Such beeing the Nature of the Worme of Conscience, that though fometimes it feem to fleepe: yet other-whiles it gnaweth and bitteth bitterlie.

as Saint Chrylostome witneffeth. Least if it were continuall, it should not bee supported . and if were not frequent, it might quickly be contemned or forgotten. But howfocuer it may feem to fleep in prof-perity, it neuer faileth to prick and ffing them . For, as S. Gregorie faith ; Culpa claudit oulos, & pena aperit; Offence, or sin shuts the eyes, and punnishment openeth them. To which purpofe alfo, lob faith;

Cum reddiderit Deus, tunc fcient; When God shall reward him, according to mis deferts, then he shall know it, that he hath fin-ned. The Children of Jacob, being taken for fpies, and detained in Ægipt : fel pre-fently into acount of their fin, in felling their Brother lofeph, faying ; Merito hoc patimur, &c. We fuffer this worthily. And Mauritius the Emperor, seeing his Children flame before his face, and himfelfe alfo defigned for the flaughter, acknowledged Gods Inflice, faying : Influses Domine . & c. Thou art inst o Lord, and thy iudgement is right, and full of equity. The like may be noted in Alphonfus King of ken, and infinite others, whom I omit

And this al wicked Councellors ought well to confider and feare, in respect of the hurt that may enfue thereby, as wel to themselnes, as to their Princes : because the worm of conscience breedeth not onely remorfe, & repentance of the euill act; but also hatred, both of the councell and the Councellor. As it did

King Adelftane, the first Monark of England, after the entrie of the Saxons, who being feduced by the bad councell, and falle fuggestions of one of his favorites:

banished his Brother Edwin vninftly, commaunding him to bee fent to Sea, with onely one Seruant, and in a Boat for brenities fake.

in aduerfity, giuing testimony to wicked men, of Gods institudgement vpon 2

Nogreater mifery, then tormented Confrience.

The worme of confeience byteth at one time or other Christo,in 16. Luc. Con: io. 4. Why the fling of Confcience is frequent, and Gregor in Iob. Sione fluttes the eyes, and openedi thé. lab. 11, 19.

Gen. 43, 21.

Nxephorus.in Lib. 8. Cap. 40

Guicciard in Lib. 1. Cap. 22 Num. 6, 7, 3.

Remorfe of Conscience breedeth ha tred of the e. uili councell Councellor.

Guliel. M.ilmelb in Lib. 2. Matth. we,"monast. 18.934.

thed. Which when King Adelst ane vnderstood, he fell into the account of his owne offence, and fo much repented it, that he not only tooke you him feuen yeares harty contrition: but also grew by little and little, to detest and abhorre his fauourite, who had councelled him thereto, infomuch, that in the end, he did cut off his head, taking occasion vpon certaine words of his. For he beeing his Cup-bearer, and coming one day to giue him drinke, in a follemne publique Featt: channeed to stumble with one foote, and ver to recover himfelfe with the other, faying; So one Brother helps another. Whereupon, the King remembring the loffe of his Brother, was fo moued therewith: that hee caused him

Naples, of whom I have formerly foo- 40 ned by the Prophet, with the spoile of his Pallace, and captinity of his posterity, which afterward was fulfilled. But of al other acts against conscience, for which God punnisheth Princes and their States, none are more pernitious to State : then fuch as are committed, with intention and hope to benefit the State. For how little focuer fome of them may feeme to be in their owne nature: yet they have one circumstance, which doth greatly agrauate them, and maketh them very havnous in the fight without Oare or faile, wherein he periprefently to be taken and executed.

Furthermore, a Councellor is to confider, that counceling his Prince against Counceller his conscience: he endangereth not only his Princes Soule, but also his temporall ftate, expofing him and it to the inft punifhment of Almighty God, vpon whose will dependent the States of fence, God all Princes, as I have largly prooued already.Beside, no manknoweth, for how finall an offence, in the fight of man; State. God may punish a Prince in his person or State. Moyfes, for a litle diffrust in the promite of God, dyed before he entred into the Land of promise. King Saule was rejected of Almighty God, and difpossessed of his kingdom; for referring fome part of the spoile of Amalecke, at the request of the people, contrary to the commaundement of the Prophet. Dauid was punnished with the losse of 70000. of his Subjects, for numbring them. And Ezcehias for his vaine glory, in shewing his treasure to the Ambassa- 4. Reg. 20.13, dors of the King of Babylon : was threat- 14,15,16,17

> No wicked tate, then that which is given for the God doth infily turne A memorali pollicies to of the contri-

How a wicked endangereth his Prince, weth for how fmall an ofwill punnifi his Cup Bra.

Num. 20, 14. 1 Reg. 15, 11. Deut. 1,33.

of God, feeing that wicked pollicies do commonly proceed, of diffriell or lacker of beleefin the providence of God. For no man, who fincerely believeth; what all States depend upon Godsmill and prouidence; can with any reason perfivade hinfelfe sthat any thing which is offenfine to god, may be now for Hate. And therfore ho marvaile; f Almightie God, who of his luttice punitacto fins many times betten by the fine meaneswhereby they offend him : doorh often terne the wicked pollicie of Machinilans to their owne ouerthrow, orday-

leaft the Children of I/rue! nught mul

State: oppreffed them wrongfully, and commaunding that their Male children flould be cast into the River, as toone as they were borne. Neuertheleffe, the more they were opprefied, the more they encreased and multiplyed: and, thorow the special providence of God

Moy/es was fauch drowning, and nourished by Pharachs owne Daughter. And by his ministry, the Children of Mrnett wer delinered, Egypt fpoyled, and Phase rach himselte with all his Army drowned. So it also fell out to the tenes who fearing leaft Christ (it he should he any time) would draw to many to be-lieue in him, that the comains might cafily destroy their Nation and Temples for want of people to defend the fame:

refolued to kill him, and to drew yppon themselves & their Temple, the centitiction which they fought to prenent.

God fo disposing, for punishment of their wickednesse, that the domaines end afterward vitterly deftroy their Temple and Countrey, as I have amply related before. And Herevpon S. zinguftine notably faith : That while for feare of coling their temporall State; they continued the of Almighty God, may been oted in King Astrages, who fearing that his Daughtersaffue might deprine him of the Kingdome: thought to present it, by the marther of her Sonne Cyrus, commaunding Harpsens to deftroy him as foone as he was borne . But Godfo eternall : they inst y lost both.

tiply over-much, to the daunger of his 20

ning that (as Sa omon faith.) Questinet impins vernat furerenm : That i bich the nvicked manifeareth, may feller bon hem. So it fell out to Pharach, who fearing Chapir.

An example of Pharaob. xod. 1, 16.

Exod.72,36.

Exud.14,18.

An example of the lewes. Tohn. 11, 57.

August Tract.

talin in Lib. . An example of King Allia-

3,4. in Lib."

disposed, that the Child was faued, contrary to the expectation of them both. and that afterward, he dispossessed Altiages of his Kingdome, with the iffi Mancock Harpagus, whom Affrag I hae made the Instrument of his Wickednelle. So alto it happened to Amulius, who thinking to affore his owne State. by the murd'r of his two Nephewes, Komulus and Remus : Caufed thenito be Rosula layed foorth in the Woods, when they A example were new borne, to the end, that they o King Ann might be denoured of will beattes, or perithother-wates. Whom (nenertheleffe) it pleafed God to preferie thein;

Observations in a Prince.

and by the meanes of Romulus; to dilpossesse smulus of his Kingdome. Burto speake of Christians. In the time of the Emperous Valentinan the Pool Date in this, Attita, the Scythian, and King of Miller and the Haller lum Dei; The Scourge of God) invaded limiter on d the Romaine Empire, with an Aimic horge of of eleanen hundred thouland Men, and Goal having alreadie poff fled himfelie of all Pannonia, (called Hungaria euer fince) paffed thorough Germany into France, vfing all kindes of cruelties vppon all fortes of Christian people, threatning vtter ruine and destruction, as well to Christian Religion, as to the Romaine Empire. Wherevoon, the famous Captame Atim, beeing affilted with Theo dorieke, King of ti e Gothes, and chuers which battaile, there were that e an Anhundred hundred fourefcore thousand on both a dieure fides, and Attila ouerthrowne in fucl. Jand then fort sthat he had no meanes to faire his mane mone owne person, but by returne himselfe battale. into his Campe, where hee fortified himselfe. Neuerthelesse, hee might haue beene eyther flaine or taken, and Christendome thereby deliucred of a most potent Enemie if Aties would have done his endenour thereto. But he preferring reaton of State, before canting true Christian zeale, and Gods fervice Alfo, the like luftice and judgement 50 ipared him, fearing left if he were viterly ouerthrown: the Gothes (who had all come conte-ready conquered all Spaine, and a great encededing part of France) would be far more daun- and creating gerous to the Romaine Empire, beeing want and then free from the feare of Attila, who was comon enemy to both. For which respect, he suffered him to escape with other Princes; prefented him battaile in France, not farre from Orleans. In are boundedone.

Platnebin

Attila more

hurrful to the

Romaine Empire, then be fore his spa

Blondies in Dead. 8 Lib. 1.

Baron.dn.452

the Reliques of his Army into Hungary: which (by the iust iudgement of God) turned as well to the destruction of Ætius, as to the great daunger of the Empire. For Ættus being returned most triumphant to Rome, fell shortly after into the difgrace of the Emperor, who suspected : that he had spared Ætius, to the end to make himfelfe Emperour by his affistance, whereupon he flew Ætius with his owne hand. And attila having (within a while) repaired his Army:was more terrible and noifome to the Roman Empire, then he had bin before. For he came into Italy, putting all to Fire and fword: he razed Aquilleia to the ground, tooke Pauia, facked and destroyed Millaine, and marched towards Rome to befiedge it. Which he had done, if he had not beene diverted from it by Pope Lee 20 the great: who going himselse in per-son to him, perswaded him to desist from his enterprise, and to retire himfelfe into Hungary, which he did presently. But to return to Ætim; we fee herein the bad successe of his policy. & how cad. 1. Lib 2. in the bad successe of this posity, when he preferred reason of state, before confcience, and the service of Almighty Hereto I may adde fome others of later time, of whom I have also spoken before, vpon other occasions; as Calar

Casar Borgia of Machianels Prince. Guicciard. in Lib. 6. Hift.

The Queene men,An. 1542.

Iob. 5, 13.

Borgia, the Mirror of Machianels Prince: who determining to poylon Cardinall Cornetti, poyfoned his own Father and himfelfe. In like manner, the Queen of Hungarie, thinking to maintain her felfe and her Son, in the vniust possession of that kingdome, against Ferdinand, then 40 King of the Komains, and afterward Emperor : craued avde of Solyman the great Turke, by whom, both the and her Son were deprined thereof. Hereby it may appeare, how daungerous and pernitious all Councelles or attemps against conscience, areto State, in refpect of the offence of him, on whose will depend all States, and who, as lob faith : Apprehendit (apientes in astutia corum, &c. Ouertaketh the wife Men of the World in their owne craft and subtilty, and the counfell of the wicked is made foolifh. Therefore it may be truely faid of Machiauillian Princes, and their wicked Councellors, as the Prophet faid of the King and Councellors of Ægypt. Stulti Principes, &c. The Princes are Fooles, and Elay. 16,9,10 their wife Counsellours have given foolish Councell: the Lord bath cast among them the Spirit of giddinesse, and hath made them stagger and erre in all their works, like a recling and vomiting drunken Man.

As for reputation, which is also called Honour, Estimation, Fame, Good- tion of the Name, or Credit, no small regard is to Prince gren be had therero, when there is any queftion of the Princes commodity : confidering, that of all externall goods, it is the principall and most precious, and (as Thomas Aguinas affirmeth) Most like to the goods of the minde. Wherevoon D. Thom. 114 Salomon faith : Melius est bonum nomen, 73. 41.263 quam divitia multa , Agood Name is better then great Riches. Which is most euident in matter of State, for that reputation conferueth the States of Princes many times, no leffe (or rather more) then wealth and force.

In which respect, Tiberius Cafar was Cornel. Tacito wont to fay, as Tacitus noteth . That Lib.4. And although the deliberations of all other men. doe commonly confist in the confideration of utility and profit : yet the State of a Prince is such, that he ought principalite to respect Fame and Reputation. And the reason is, for that the losse of reputation, is not onely the figne, and (as I may fay) the preamble of a Princes fall : but alfo the occasion thereof many times. Because, therewith decayeth and fal-leth(commonly)theastection of frends, and the respect, feare, and obedience of a Princes to Subjects, whereuppon followeth the puration. Subuction of States.

Now then, whereas the reputation of Princes confisteth especially in foure whereinth things, to wit; Wisedome, Valor, Vertue, and Power: all councell (tending to commodity) is to bee weighed with the estimation thereof, for nothing that may impaire the honour of the Prince in any of these, can be accounted truelie commodious for him. Therefore Phillip de Comines aduiseth, touching the Princes Wisedome, that if he bee Phillip, de com not verie wife, and of goodpartes: [49, 57. great care be had, that Strangers be not admitted to his presence, especiallie to treat with him, leaft the discouerie of his imperfection in that behalfe, may blemish his Reputation, and animate his Enemies to contemne him. For Du Haillan in the French Historiographers affirme, Charles le fage. that !

Charity great beauties in a Prince.

Observations in a Prince. Chap. 7.

> that the opinion which men had, of the Wiscdome of Charles the fitt, King of Fraunce, called the Wife: anayled him more against the English, then his force, in so much, that the dispatches which he made in his Chamber, were more feared then his Armies in the Fielde.

The like also is to be faid, of the opinion of Valour in a Prince, which ma-keth him no leffe redoubtable vnto his Enemies, then beloued of his Friends and Subjects. Whereas the opinion of his effeminacy or balencife of mind.

maketh him contemptible to all men.

and often caufeth the deposition and destruction of Princes ras it did to Surdanapalus, the great Affirian King; 10

Chilperick, King of Fraunce, to West As.

no the Emperour, and to many others 20

And as for vertue (wherein Liu-lude Religion alfo) Aristotie teacheth, that the onely reputation and opinion ther-

The reputa-

tuffin.in Lib.t Paulus Aemili-Nameler Chron

The reputa-

Councellor,

Arift. in Lib. 5. The reputation of versue and Religion.

Iudith. 5, 20,

Matthens Pa-

of: is a notable flay and prop to a Princes State. In respect, that all Men commonly conceine, that a vertuous and religious Prince, is in the favour and protection of Almightic GOD. And therefore Achior, chiefe Captaine 30 of the Ammonites, councelled Holophernes, when hee made Warre vpon the Children of Ifraell: To informe him felf, whether they had committed any great offences towardes their God, whereby they might loofe his fauour. Affuring him, that otherwise it would bee in vaine to affaile them, because their God would defend them. And the like conceit it feemeth, that Leolin Prince of Wales, had of 40 Henrie the third, King of England, for, when certaine Byshops (who were fent to treat with him, to reduce him to his obedience) threatned him with the Kings great power and forces : he aun-Swered. That he feared more his Prayers and Almes giving then his Armses. Mcaning, that hee doubted, leaft in respect of his Picty and Charity, God would protect and affift him : and that other- 50

wife, he would little effecte his force and power. So much it importetha

Prince, to have the reputation of ver-tue and Religion, which ferneth for a Bridle to his Enemies, both Domesticall and Forraigne, to with-hold them from all attemps against him. Beside, it caufeth that his faults and errors are evther not beleeved; or more eafily excufed, and the blame thereof laid upon his Councellors.

And for these causes, Machianell also councelleth his Prince, to procure (by all meanes) to have the reputation of a religious, iuft, and vertuous Prince: though he teach him withall, to bee a most wicked Tyrant. Wherein I canot omit by the way, to note the abfurditie of his doctrine, notably repugning and contradicting it felfe. Seeing, he will have his Prince to feeme a Lambe, and be a Wolfe, and to make thew of a Saint, and yet to be a Devill indeede. Which is more possible, then, as the Comicall Poet faith : Cam ratione infauire: To bee madde with reason. For all feigned thinges (faith Cicero) fade and fall avvay like Flouvers, and nothing that is diffembled, can long last. Where our can last long. Saujour himfelfe alfo confirmeth, faying expressely of Hypocrisic. Attendite, or. Biware of the Leanen of the Pharifes, That is to fay; of Hypocrifie. For nothing is (ecret that shall not be revealed nor any thing hidde that had not bee knowne.

And this is more evident in dissembling and hypocriticall Tyrants, then in any other fort of Men. Because, foviolent is the flame of tyranny; that it breaketh through the weake and clouen Walles of Hypocrific, and difconereth it felfe to the World. Such being the State of publique persons, and especiallie of Princes (whose actions are subject to the eves and centures of all Men) that their least faultes cannot paffe, eyther vnknowne, or vncontrouled of the people.

As Plutarch affirmeth, notably aduiing Princes, to have an effectall regard vn.o all their actions: because their very for those that leaft defects or imperfections are noted. Which he confirmeth with examples of divers Princes : as of Pompey the Great, noted of fingularity, for fcratching his Head with one Finger; Lucullus, cenfured to be ouer delicate in his Dyet; the famous Scipio, blamed for much fleeping ; and C.efar, for going ill girded. What shall wee fay of tyrannicall Actes, fuch as Machianill commendeth in his Prince: I meane Murthers, breach of promifes, and Ffif 2

Machi.inPrinc. uifeth his Prince, to feeke to haue the reputation ot Religion and Vertue. The absurdity of Machiane's Doctrine.

Terent, in Cicero de Offie. Nothing that is diffembled

Math. 16, 6.

or concealed.

The leaft de feets of Prin ces are comto then Sub-Plut arch in his Enftractions manage matters of State. No bypocri-fie can fuf-file to couer Tyrranny.

Hypocrific encreaseth the hatred of God and man against a Tylob. 20, 27.

The reputation of true & not of feigned vertue requifite in any Prince,

What true vertue in the Prince worketh in the fahiects.

What are the effects of vice

Concerning truth and fidelity in any Prince, in his Oaths, promi-fes and word, Falfbood and deceipt, dan-gerous and damnable. oaths, frauds and deceipt, and all kind of in-Iustice can any man of reason think, that the same can be covered with any Cloak of Hypocrifie? Or can a people be so simple or senslesse, as not to know and fee a tyranny, when they behold the manifest effects, and sectoo heavie a weight thereof in themselves ? Therfore, what elfe can follow of Hypocrify in a Tyrant, but that his Subicets thall hate him much more, and the fooner conspire his querthrow, as of one no leffe odious to God then to man? wher by the Scripture shal be fulfilled, which faith; The heavens fall reveale the iniquisy of the Hypocrite, and the Earth Shallrife

Now, concerning the reputation of Vertue, which is necessary for the confernation of a Prince : it must be grounded voon true vertue, and not voon vain shewes, & hypocriticall diffimulations. For, as true Religion, Iustice, & Vertue (ioyned with princely power) do engender in the Subjects admiration, respect, reuerence, & loue towards their Prince: euen so impiety, in-iustice, and intemperance in him, do breed in the fubiects either hatred, or cotempt of his person. For of the crimes of implety and in Iuftice (as periury, deceipt, and crueitie) proceedeth hatred ; and of the vices of intemperance (as lasciniousnesse, drunkennesse, and such like) is engendred contempt, whereof I purpose to discourse more at large hereafter. Neuertheleffe, I think good to fay fomewhat more in this place, concerning one speciall vertue, very requifite in a Prince for his reputation: to wit, truth, fidelity, and constancy, in the exact observation of his oaths, promifes, and word. Wherof I am the more willing to treat, because Machiavill alloweth and commendeth all maner of falfhood, deceipt, treachery, and periury in a Prince, when he may hope to gaine, or to benefit his flate thereby. But how impious and abfurd his doctrine is in that behalfe, yea, and how pernitions to Princes & their States: it will the more evidentlie appeare, if we confider, how dangerous and damnable all falthood and deceipt is to any Common-wealth, for the confernation whereof nothing is more neceffary then truth and fidelity, as well in the Prince, as in the people.

Therefore Cicero teacheth, that Fides, which we may call Fidelitie (confifting, as he faith, in Veritie, and constant performance of wwordes, Promifes, and Couenants) is Fundamentum Iustitia, The Foundation of Iustice, which is the especiall prop and flay of State. In which Idem. pro Sext respect, he calleth it; Commune omnium | Rof. prafidium; The common defence or refuge of all Men. And also faith, that Nullares vehementius rempuplicam continet, quam fides. Nothing doth more firmelie de Offic. unite and bold together the Commonwealth, then Fidelitie. And Valerius Maximus calleth it : Venerabile numen, & certissimum humana salutis pignus; A venerable and Diuine power, and the most fure pledge of humane securitie. And the 2.413. Romaines so much esteemed it, that they builded and dedicated a Temple to it, as to a Goddeffe, in which Temple, all Leagues, Truces, Couenants, and important Bargaines, were publiquely made and fworne: which were fo religiously observed, that who foeuer brake them, was held for a curffed and damned Creature, and vnworthy to live in humaine focietie. And with great reason, for, if falshood and fraud were permitted to have courfe in com- Iffalthoods mon-wealths: what Traffique or Com- fraude were merce with Straungers or Friendes? permitteds What affurance in Leagues with For- no Comm raigne Princes, in Contracts and Marriages, in Promises and Bargaines, and in buying and felling ? What Loue? What Society ? What Commonwealth? Which confistesh in the communication of Commodities one with another; and flourish so much the more. by how much cuery one tendereth, and defireth the publique good, more then his owne: in which respect, it is called Respublica, that is to say, Weale-publique. And therefore, if truffie and faithfull dealing should faile among Men: there lique good wold beno more civill fociety among ft men, then amongst Tygers and Beares, Foxes and Wolues, Cats and Dogges. Which the Apostle infinuateth notably, when hee exhorteth the Ephelians, and (in them) all other Christians, to vie all Sincerity and truth one with another, because wee are all combined in one Mysticall Bodie. Propter quod (faith hee) deponentes mendacium Ge. Therefore, laying afide all lies, let de Offic. Wherein Fi delity confi-

1dem. Lib. 1

Valer Mer in Lib. 6. Cap. 6. Tit.Liui.inLib

litie of the Prince rehis owne

How the fideeueric one feake the truth to his Neighbour ; Quoniam (umus innicem membra; Because wee are all Members one of arother. Heerevoon it followeth, that fideli-Fidelitie most necessary in the Prince for confernation mon-wealth.

Trust & con fidence one

molt requifice

in another

Chap.7.

ty is not only necessary in the Subjects. but also in the Prince, for the conferua tion of the Common wealth. For, feeing nothing is more requifite, for maintenance of the Polliticall body, the the vnion of the head with the members thereof, that is to fay; of the Prince with the people, and nothing more neceffary thereto, then their truft and confidence one in another, which cannot be, where there is no fidelity: It tolloweth, that nothing is more requilite, for confernation both of the Prince and people, then fidelity in both; without the which, neither can the fubicets affure themselves of their Princes protection, nor the Prince be fatisfied of his Subjects Loyalty.

And to speake heere particularly of the Prince, it is to bee confidered, that the want of fidelity and fincerity in him, is most dangerous : not onely vnso the Common-wealth, but also to himselfe.

As it will be enident, if wee weigh the force and effect, of the good or bad example of the Prince, and how porent a Motiue it is, to induce his Subjects to vertue or vice. Seeing, as Salamon faith,

Qualis eft Rector Cinitatis, tales funt habitantes in ea : What manner of Man the Ruler of the Cittie is, fuch are they that dwel i therein. Therefore (I fay) that as the example of the Princes fidelity, dooth redound both to the good of the Common-wealth, and also to his ownese-curity (because the people doe learne thereby, to be not onely faithfull vnto one another, but also dutifull and loyal towardes him:) euen fo, the example of perfidious and double dealing in him, dooth worke the contrary effect, and teacheth his Subjects to be no leffe faithleffe and treacherous toward him, then fraudulent and treacherous one to destruction, as to the hurt of the Com-

But perhaps some Machianillian will fay, that although the Prince (for his owne commodity) do vie fometimes to violate his faith : yet he may fo feuerely punnish it in his Subjects, that no in-

mon-wealth.

another, which may turne as wel to his | 50

The force of the Princes good or bad example in wealth.

Ecclef. 10,2,

A perfidious Prince teacheth his fub iccts to be traiterous to congenience shall followe of his exam ple, eyther to the Commonwealth, or to himfelfe. Whereto I answer, that the Prince cannot (with reafon) xpect that the fenerity of Lawes, or other polliticke meanes, thall reprette any vice in eth good his Commonwealth: which that bee anie way Authorized by the example of his owne practite. For as the Poet taith. Totus componitur or his Regis ad exemplum, nee fit inflettere fenfus claudies.

That is to fay, All the world is framed after the model of the King, and no Lawes or Edicts can to much moone the mindes of men, as dooth the life of the Gournour, Which Plutarke confirmeth notablye, Plutarch de faving : That enen de a Squire or rule mult delle na prinbe Braight in it felfe, befrie it can make o- cg.um. ther thinges straite : So the Prince , voho The Prince is is (as it were) the ule of his Subicetes, the sule of his ought first to rettifie himfelfe , before hee fubiects. go about (by Lawes or other meanes) to rectific his Commonwealth. For be that is falling (faith Plutarch) is not fit to veholde others, nor hee that is ignorant, to Teach; nor he that is incorrigible, to Correst ; nor he that is himfelfe difordered, to put others ın order.

Thus faith he, giving to vnderstand, that a vicious Prince, who feeketh to A bad Prince make his Subjects vertuous by rigor of whomaketh good lawes, Lawes, laboureth in vaine, like to one, bullacth with that buildeth with one hand, and pulleth one hand, and downe with the other, and to destroy with the oeth more in one day, then he can builde ther. in many. For fo do the bad example of the Prince, corrupt more in a day, then his Lawes can correct or amending yeare.

This the ancient Romans fo well confide ed that their Magistrats & Senate The Romaine were most exact and punctuall, in the senate and observation of Oaths and promises cue Magiliar's to their very enemics: for the regarde the observati they had, not onely to luftice, and to on of Oadis their own reputation : but also the con- and promifequence of their good example in the Commonwealth, as vportother occafions, I have formerly proved, by the examples of Marcus sittles Regulas, T. Veturius & Spurius Postkumas, Confuls, and of T. Mutius and Q. Emilio, bunes of the Temple.

bad example ouer weigh-

Humanos edicta valent vit vitaregentis.

Sextus Pompei us would not breake his Oath, to be Emperor of all the world

Plutarch in

Anton.

The like notable examples of perticuler men among Paganes, may also be alledged, whereof I will onely relate one or two, for breuities fake. Sextus Pompeius, Sonne to Pompey the Great, having warres with Antonius the Triumuir, and meeting with him at the Sea fide, vpon a treatie of peace: innited him to Supper in his Gally, giving him his oath for his affurance. And beeing fecretly demaunded by Metrodorus, the Pyrate, whether he should weigh Anker, and fet faile, and fo make himfelfe Lord of all the World > Aunswered. That it was not his custome or condition to for weare himfelte: esteeming it neither honourable nor profitable for him, to gaine the Empire of the World by per-No leffe care of fidelity had Licurgus,

Brother to Polidectes, King of Lacedemonia. For, hauing taken vpon him the government, of the Kingdome after his Brothers death, at the inflance of the people, untill his Brothers Wife

(who was great with Childe) should be brought to Bed, and the Child of years thereby to affure his State : he not one-lie refused it, but also proclaimed her

Sonne King, as foone as he was borne, taking only the tuition of him, vntill he came to age, as partly hath been before

The care which Lieur. gus had of his Plutarch in Li-motion of a

Ferdinand,

Brother to

Henry, King

Lucas Marin.

Siculus, de Ret

Hifp.Lib. 1 1.

of Caffile.

to gouerne. And being folicited by her, to marrie with her, vpon her prodeclared.

I neede not adde heereunto any examples of Christian Princes, whose Religion both teacheth and bindeth them to be more exact and precifethen Painims in this cafe. Neuerthelesse, I cannot forbeare to speake of a notable act in this kind, of the most Christian and vertuous Prince Ferdinand, Brother to Henry the third of that Name, King of Castile . This Ferdinand, being left by his Brothers Testament, Tutour to his Sonne King John the fecond (an Infant of eight moneths old) and being vrged greatly by the three States of Cafile, to take the Crowne to himfelfe: he would by (no means) confent thereto, faying. That he would mener be falle. erther to his Brother dead , or to his Nephew living, to whom be had promifed his fidelity. For which faithfulneffe (no doubt) God bleffed him, and (within fixe yeares after) gaue him the Kingdome of Arragon, whereto he was chofen by the free election of the Nobility and Commons of the Realme. Behold then, how great refpect, not oneliethis Christian Prince, butalfo the Paganes before named, had to finceri- fincerity and ty and fidelitie, as well for the causes fidelity manibefore mentioned: as also for thewerie feited. detestation and hatred of perfidiousnesse, being a vice (of it selfe) most odious, and voworthy of Princelie Digni-

For whereas all other vices and finnes (for the most part) are, or may becattributed either to frailtie or errour, whereby they feeme (many times) the more woorthy of pardon : perfidious- Perfidiousneffe is ever prefumed, to proceed from of a bale and atteacherous, maligne, vile and base nature, and therefore not excufable in

Princes, whose proceedings ought to be (in al thinges) Reall, Generous, Noble and Heroycall. In which respect, one false and trecherous acte, may suffife to ecclipfe, and obscure the glory of many great vertues in a Prince. As Plutarke noteth in Alexander the Great; who caufing certaine Indian Souldiours to bee flaine, after they had rendered lexandre. mife to kill the Child in her Womb, 30 themselues vnto him vpon his worde: Spotted and flained (fath he) the renowne of all his glorious Conquests and Loyall vertues, with the ignominie of that one Acte. And the reason is , because so delicate | Once falle, is mans credite and reputation, in mat-ter of trust and confidence: that it is likevnto a Glaffe, which beeing once broken, is not repayrable. And therefore, he that is once knowne for a Lyer, is not beleeved when he faith true; and he that is once reputed to bee falle, is euer after held in suspition. And according vnto the generall rule of the Law; Semper presumitur malus in eodem genere malt . Is euer presumed to be wicked in the L. Sicuif & fame kind of nickednesse. Wherevpon it. Cossius de it followeth, that a faithlesse Prince is sena. hated of his Subjects; suspected of his best Friends ; irreconciliable with his Enemies; belowed and trufted of none; and betrayed or forfaken of all Men in The dangers, his greatest necessities. And that worthily, feeing hee himfelfe giveth the e- oufneffe in a uill example, which other Men follow to his own vtter ouerthrow and destrufay, that a wife Prince hath sufficient remedies against these inconveniences, to wit; strong Gards, Garrisons, Forts, and Fortresses, besides his owne policy, asifted with the prudence of faithfull and vigilant Councellors, whereby hee may fecurely make his commoditie in all occasions, without feare of anie damage Thus faith the Machinillian, most ab-

The infufficiency of Ma-chiavillian remedies.

Chap.7.

The Pollitick

or Macchiauel

ns obiectió.

Falshood hate and man.

rouer. 8,13

Prouer. 3, 32.

P'ularchin A

Pfalme.52,9.

A Prince is the Image of respects.

nothing more of man, then

Truth.

But the Pollitick or Machianillian wil

furdly, as it will appeare, if wee confider whence groweth the daunger that the Prince incurreth, by perfidious and deceitfull dealing, which being most hatefull, not only to man, but also to God, doth draw vpon him both Divine and humain punithment, against the which, neither these, nor any other Machiavilli- 20 an remedies can warrant him. And first to speake of the offence of God, and divine punnishment ensuing thereon, We finde in holy Scriptures, that nothing is more detestable vnto almighty God, then a deceitfull or double man. And therefore, the Holyghost faith in the Parables, Os bising ne detestor, I do detest a double tongued mouth . And againe in the same Booke; abominatio 30 himselse a most wise and potent Prince; Domini est omnis illufor, Euery deceyuer is abhominable before God. And the Royall Prophet, coupling the deceyuer with the blood-fucker, faith of them both. Virum sanguinum & dolosum abominator Dominus, God dooth abhorre the bloudie and deceitful man. And speaking of the guilefull tongue of Doeg, hee threatneth the vengeaunce of God to him, and all fuch, faying: Lingua dolofa, propterea, ce. 40 A desciptful tongue, God will therefore destroy thee eternally, he will plucke thee up, and remove from thee from thy Tabernacle. and root thee out of the Land of the living. Lo the how odious fraudulent and dou-God exacteth ble dealing is to Almightic God, who being Ipfa veritas, Truthit felf; exacteth nothing more of man (created in his I-more of a Prince, then of any other pri- 50 uate person, because the Prince is his Image, not only by reason of the naturall guifts of his foule, as all other men are: but also in respect of his Office whereby he representeth his person (as his Lieutenant) in the administration of Instice, whereof Fidelitie and truth is the Founmage) then verity and truth. But much dation, as I have furficiently declared be-Wherein (neuerthelesse) it is to bee understood, that although all real, laine and true dealing bee most requisite in a vied of Prin-Prince : yet hee is to vie great discretion ces in plaineand prudence therein, because infinite nife. occasions do occurre, wherein Princes ought to conceale and cover their inthat may ensue thereof to his person or 10 tentions, with more care and circumspe- Great diffeation then all other men, especiallye in rence to be matters to be executed. Wherefore, moated, begreat difference is to bee noted, betwixt a lye, and con telling a lye, and concealing the trueth, cealing the which the Latines do fignify in two pro- The diffeper words, to wit; Simulatio and Dist- rence betwin mulstio. Whereof the first, which we fixion and different may tearme Simulation or fiction, is cuer jution. vnlawfull, and therefore neuer to bee v- Diferecte diffed. But the latter which we may call commendable discreet dissimulation, is both lawfull & in a Prince. commendable; yea, and so necessarie fometimes in Princes, that it may well and truly be faid: Qui nescit dissimulare, nescit regnare: He which knowes not how A lee most to diffemble, that is to fay, discreetly to voscemely in cover and cloake his intentions when a Princes occasion requireth, knoweth not howe to raine. But fay with Salomon who was that, Non decet principem labiu mentiens: Alying lip or mouth, dooth not befeeme 4 Pouer 30,2. Prince. In which respect, he also prayeth Prouer. 10,25. to Almighty God; Verba mendacia longe fac ame, () Lord preferne and keepe me far from lying words. And againe in another Parable, he faith ; Qui nititur mendacijs, palcit ventus; He which trusts to les fecas the winde. That is to fay, as Saint Auguthe winde. That is to lay, as Saint August. cont.

Hin expoundeth it, Fit efea spiritibus ma- creson. Lib. 3. lu. He becomes the meat or prey of cuill fpi- Cap. 9. rits, or of the Deuill, whose immitator, or rather whose childe hee maketh himfelfe. For, as our Saujour faith, the Deuill is Mendax & pater eius, A Lyer, and Child of the the Father of lyes; and is therefore called Deuill.

Diabolus, which fignifieth a deceiner. What then thall wee fay of such a Prince as Machiau !! frameth, to witte; a most treacherous, perfidious, and per- Macchiauels iured person? Can he deserue to be cal- Prince persiled the Image, Lieutenant, or Minister dious and periured. of God, whose similitude and likenesse he defaceth in himselse; whose Commission he abuseth, & whose holy name he shamefully prophaneth? What else can be expect at the hands of God, but

o.Booke.

Guliel. Mal-

mefb.de geft.

Reg. Angl. Lib

Regino, Chron.

A heauy and tearefull exoccitation.

feuere punnishment, not onelie in the world to come, but also in this life, if he repent not?

This may appeare by manifold examples, whereof I will alledge fome out of approoued Authors, both auncient and Moderne, to thew the impious abfurditie of Machiauels doctrine, allowing perfidiousnesse and periury in a Prince, as necessary fornetimes for the benefite of 10 his State.

But first, to speake of our holy Scrip-

Gen. 49, 7, 8 Simcon and Leui curifed by their Father laceb, for violating their league with Sielem and Hemor.

H cram in Tra-

Hebrack in nef Cap. 49.

Gencsim.

detron.

tures. We read in Genesis that Simeon and Leus, the Children of Iacob, wer curfed by their Father at his death, because they had violated their league made with Sichem and Hemor, whom they destroied with all their Citty, contrary vnto theyr promise and couenant. Maledictus (faith Iacob) furor eorum quia pertinax & c. Curled be their furie, because it was obstinate. And prophelying further of the temporall punishment, which God woulde inflict vpon their posterity for the same, he added Dinidam cos in incob & dispergam in I (rael. I will divide them in Iaacob, and disperse them among the Children of Israel. Which was fulfilled afterward, as Saint Hierom witnesseth, for that their Tribes had not their habitation apart, as the others had: for the Tribe of Leni was distributed in divers Cirties, amongst the other Tribes, to bee their Leuites and Percrius in Ge-Priefts. And the Tribe of Simeon, had their dwelling with the Tribes of Iuda, & (as the Hebrewes affirme) ferued for School-Maisters in all the other Tribes, and got their living onely by teaching Children.

make league with them, putting on their olde thooes, and torne cloaths, and affirming, that they were a people dwelling in a farre Countrey, and that being mooned with the fame of his victories:

they were come fo many daves iourney to meete him, that they had worne out their thooes and cloaths in their voyage;

whereas they dwelt not farre off, and in the very Land of promise, which GOD

2 Reg. 18, 17. Infuah, 9, 12. Sauls posteri-God was notable vppon King Sau'es po-flerity, for his breach of League which Tofuah made with the Gabaonites. Wher-in it is to bee noted, that although the Gabaonites craftily circumuented Tofuah, and induced him by fraud and deceipt to for his breach ot league with gard that Iofaab had of his Oath and league with had given to the Children of Ifrael. NeBut answered to the Children of I/rael, when they murmured against him. Jurawimus eis (faith hee) We have [worne unto them, in the name of the Lord God of Ifrael ; and therefore wee may not touch them, breake our Oath.

Thus faith 1 of huah: whereby we may learne, how great is the Obligation of all on of lawfull leagues. just and lawful Leagues, or other Couenants paffed by Oath, and how daungerous is the breach thereof, in respecte of Gods iust and seuere indgements, vpon | The iudgethe offenders in that behalfe. Whereof the experience was seene, about three after, in Sant hundred yeares after Iofuahs time, in the time. breach of that league by Saule. For the which, the Children of ifrael were afflicted with three yeares famine in Daniels time, and feauen of Saules Children and family, were delivered into the handes of the Gabaonites, and hanged by them in punishment of Sanles offence. Furthermore, we read in the Booke of 2. Mac. 4, 38. Machabees, that Andronicus a Fauourite andronicus un nisted for his of King Antiochie, was by the inft indge- Treachers to ment of God, and the commaundement | wards Onice, of Antiochis himfelfe, thamefully put to death: euen in the veric fame place, wher he had killed Omas the Highprieft, who had rendred himfelfe vnto him voon his promife of fecurity. Also the exam- How the Pry ples heereof, are veric notable amongest | nims observe the Ethnicks, who observed (dilligently) ments viola the judgements of God, vpon traiterous | perfidious and perfidious perfons. And therefore In like manner, the punnithment of 40 when Tillaphernes the Perlian, made war against the Grecians, and brake Truce, which he had made with them for three months, Agefilaus reioyeed greatly, faying : We are beholding to Tiffaphernes, for making the Goddes his onemies, and our Poliminlih.

> great ouerthrow. Plutareh also recounteth a notable hiftorie, of C eomines King of Lacedemonia, Aprob. Lace-who having made truce with the Argians for featuen dayes: fet ypon their camp in the night, and taking them vnprouided by reason of the new type of thems. ded by reason of the truce, made great nes, for his flaughter of them. But being reproched persury. with his breach of promife and oath, he iested at it, faying ; That hee sware Truce

friends, therefore let us boldly give him battell. And so he did, and gaue him a uertheleffe, when Jofuah discoverd their deceipt, he had fuch regard to his Oath, that hee would by no meanes violate it. Ioliah,9,19 least the wrath of God fal upon us, if we breake our Oath.

2.Reg. 18.9.

Anotable example of a Noble man of England,milly pannithed for his periu-for the dayes, but not for the nights. But fo it fell out (faith Plutarch) in punishment of his falthood and periury, that it ferued him to no purpose. For whereas, he affailed the Cittie presently, hoping for to take it with all facility, hee had a mamefull repulfe by the women which dwelt therein. And afterward falling furioufly mad, he tooke a Knife, and ript vp his owne body, from the very heele to the heart, and so dyed laughing.

The same Author also signifyeth, that one Calippus, being justly icharged with a conspiracie against Dion of Sicilie, and having denyed it with manie folemne Oaths) in the Temple of Ceres, was (by Gods inft indgement) flaine with the fame Dagger wherewith Dion was killed before by his confent. I omit divers other examples, which might be alleadged out of prophane Historiographers, to adde a few out of Christian & more Moderne Authors.

The scuere judgements of God vpon

Custom (as Saint Angustine witnesseth)

was in vie in his time, at Millain, whereof he faith, Was nominus Medio ani, ere.

I my felfe have knowne in Miliaine, at the Mommories of Saints, acertaine Theefe.

who went thither with intention to deceive by periury, was compelled to confesse his

Theft, and to restore that which hee had 40

But of this matter, we have a most fa-

Matters in controuerfic men, for the finne of periury, haue been descided by alwayes so incident among Christians: Oaths at the that the custome was in the Primitine Tombes of Martires in Church, to discide matters in Controthe primitive Church. uersie by Oaths, at certaine holy places, and the Tombes of Martyrs, where Al- 30 mighty God did ordinarily extend his Iustice vpon periured persons. Which

Chap. 7.

A shamefull repulle g uen

by weomen.

Plutarch in

Calippus pun-

mighty God for his persu

Dione.

Auzu,I. Epift. 137. What Saint knowledge.

Roine.

mous and autenticall example in our owne Histories. Elfred or Alfred, a Nobleman of England, in the time of King

Adelstane, conspired against him with certaine others : and beeing accused thereof, stood upon the denial, and because the propers were not sufficient to contince him, he was fent to some (as 50 the Custome was then) to make his purgation by Oath, at the Altar of S. Peter, where he swore contrary to his Conscience, and prefently fell down before the Altar, and dyed within three daies after. Vpon aduertisement whereof, King Adelstane gave all the Lands of Elfred, to the Church of Saint Peter in the Abbey of Mal nesbury, by his Letters Patents; wherein, after the graunt of the fayde Lands, he declared the whole matter as | 2, cap.o. it paffed.

Alfo some yeares after, in the same age, Lotharius King of Austrasia (which contained all Lorraine, Flanders, & fome S'gm de Reg. part of Germany, Burgundy, and France) Naucier Chron came to Romej, accompanied with his I an 161. Nobility, in the time of Adrian the fe- | Baron, An. 868. cond, because he had bin excommunicated, for his dinorce fro his lawful wife Thentperga, and married with Wil rada his Concubine. Now he was content, for his purgation thereof, to receive the bleffed Sacrament at the hands of Pope Adrian, together with his Nobility, whiche he did, protesting for his part, that he stood cleare of those things wherwith he was accused, which also his Nobility affirmed. But, as they departed from Rome homewards, there hapned fuch a strange d sease among them, that Lothariss (hatting seene the death of most of his Noblemen) before he came to Luca. fell ficke there himfelfe, and died within a few dayes after at Placentia, so that of all those that receyued the Sacrament with him, there lived not any one to the veares end.

And nowe to returne vnto our owne Countrey. Earle Godwin , Father to K. Harold, having procured the vntimelie death of Alfred, Brother to King Edward the Confessor, denied it continually with folemne Oathes; and especiallie once, when he dined with the King. At what time, occasion beeing offered to speake of that matter, he took a piece of bread; and prayed to God, that the fame might be his laft, if he were any way confenting or priuy therto. And so cating the bread was choaked therewith, and died there in the Kings presence.

It is also observed and testified by most of the old Historiographers of ourcoimtry, that the ouerthrow of King Harolde by William the Conqueror, was a just punishment of God vpon him for his periury, the Story is briefely thus. Harold being in Normandy with Duke William, in the time of King Edward the Confeffor, promifed for to afsift him after the Kings death, in his pretence to the crown of England, which he also confirmed by folemne Oath. Whereupon, Duke Wil-

Henry Huntend in H:ft Lib. 6. Ingulphus Hift Angl. 153. Polidor, Hift.

Angl. Perjury notably punnifhed in Earle Godwine, Father to King

King Harold flaine by Duke William the Conqueror, in punish ment of his

The like Iustice of God may bee noted also in Christern , King of Denmarke and Worway, who maried a Sifter of the Emperor Charles the fift, in the time of Henry the eight, King of England . This Christiern beliedging Stockholme in Swetia, tooke it by composition, binding himselfe to certaine conditions, not only by Oath, but also by receyuing the he observed for some few dayes, till hee had the Castle, and all the strongest places of the towne in his owne hands, and that hee had furnished them with men and munition. But then, inuiting all the Noblemen and Magistrates to a Banquet, to the number of ninety foure perfons : he imprisoned and after kild them.

with a great number of the Cittizens.

(by Proclamation) life and libertie to all those which were left aline, whereupon they all thewed themselves, and were all miferably flaine. But within a while after, he was driven out of his kingdom by his owne subjects; and when he hadde wandered from Countrey to Countrey in all pouerty and mifery for the space of

of the chiefest Nobility, who although they promised him obedience and assistance vnto their handes and seales, yet they tooke him prisoner vppon his ente-rance, and (within a while) poyloned ten yeares, he was received again by fom 30

And finding, that verie manie escaped .20 him, by hiding themselves, he promised bleffed Sacrament. Which conditions, 10

Regard of

liam affianced his Daughter to him, and because the was not then of yeares to be married : he tooke Harolds oath, to perform the mariage within a certain time after. But when the time appointed for the mariage came, and Harold shewed no care to perform any part of his promifes, the Duke fent Meffengers vnto him, to request of him the accomplishment thereof. But he, in Read of giuing fatisfaction to the Duke: derided his Messengers, causing some of their Horfes tailes to be cut off, and others to be lamed. Alfo, afterward, when King Edward dyed, he practifed not onely to exclude the Duke from the Crowne: but also procured it for himself, pretending that his promise to the Duke, was made for feare, & therefore it could not binde

When the Doke was entred into England with his Army, and follicited him by Messengers, to have care of his conscience, representing vnto him the feuere judgements of God on periured persons, offering to come to some reafonable composition with him:he made no account therof, neither yet of the admonition of his owne Brother Gurth or Girth. Who adulfed him ferioufly before the battaile, to retire himselfe, and leans the conduct of the Army to him and others, who were not bound to the Duke vpon any oath or promife: leaft otherwise, GOD might suffer them all to bee quite ouerthrowne for his

he would put it in venter and that God shold be the Indge thereof. And fo giving the battaile, was flaine himfelfe, and all his Army ouerthrowne. And although the faid Conquest might feeme to be a punishment of God vpon the whol Realm, for the peoples fins:yet the perticulerdif grace, which happened to King Harolds perfon, may well bee thought to have proceeded (by Gods inft indgment) for his periurie, and so the English Chroniclers, which wrote in that age, doe fignifie: As /Heulphus William of Malmfburie, Henry Huntendon, Mathew of Westminiter, Matthew Paris, and Roger Houe. don, who freaking of the victory, faith. Vere & abla, dubio, Dei indicio à scribenda

est, qui puniendo, scelus periuri, ostendit

Whereto hee aunswered; That le Deum nolentem iniquitatem. Truely and without doubt, it is to bee afcribed to the indeement of God, who punishing the fin of persurie, declared thereby, that hee is a GOD, who doth not like nor allow of ini-

But to come neerer to our time Phillip de Comines noteth the manifelt Inflice of God, in the difgracefull death of Louis Cap. 83. Charles, the last Duke of Bourgundy, thorow the treason of Compobachio, an Italian, shortly after that the saide Charles had betraied the Count S. Paule, and fent worthily behim Prisoner to Lewes the eleanenth, trayed. King of France : notwithstanding, that he had ginen him fafe conduct to come into his Country. Furthermore, I cannot omit Cafar Borgia, though I have speken of him diuers times before. For, as Machanill infly to this worthily maketh him a Mirrour for his Perfidious Tyrany, in respect of his manifold vices: to he may as worthily be propoted for an example of Gods Justice, in regard of the manifold judgements of God diuerfly extended vpon him . And perticularly, in the punishment of his perfidiousnesse and periury, whereby hee had deceived and ruined divers other 30 principall personages : As Liverosto Vite lozzo Pagolo Vr fino and the duke of Grauina, whom he caused to be strangled; after they had rendred themselves to him vpon composition, and employed themselves faithfully in his service. Linerotto ha-Wherein Gods Iustice may bee noted, uing traite-(by the way) in Linerotto, who (a little dered his before) had cruelly and trayteroufly Vnckle, was murdered his owne Vnckle, and diuers traiteroully murdered other principall Cittizens of Fermo; himfelfe. having invited them to a banquet in his owne house.

Which perfidious treachery of his, God punnished (as it seemed) by the treachery and perfidiousnesse of Cafar Borgia: who also received the like meafure himselfe, by others. For, whereas he had taken an oath of fortie princi- Idem Ibid. pall personages, to affist him after his Fathers death: he was forfaken of them all, and putting himfelfe (afterward)into the handes of Henando Gonçales, Gouernour of Naples, vppon his fafe conduct the was also berrayed by him, and fent Prisoner into Spaine, as elie-where is fignified.

Another ex scaple of Chri-fium, King of Denmarks and

Chap. 7.

Phil. de Com Chron. du Roy

Chronicler.

Charles Duke

Freachery.

ulfed from is kingdoni his owne biccts, and after-ward woned in Christiern ex-

Martin du Belley. An. 1527. The Duke of Burbon flaine at the fiedge of his periury.

him in prison: thus was his perfidious falshood justly repayed with the like. After whole deposition and death, his Vnkle Fredericke a worthy Prince, was chofen King of Denmark. About the same time, the Duke of Bourbon, being fled from Frances the first King of France, to the service of the Emperour Charles the fift, Emperour, and made by him Gouernour of Millayne:he fo exasperated the people by his exactions and crueltie, that they role against Infomuch, that to pacifye them, he bound himselfe by Oath to certaine conditions, praying withall to Almightie God, that in case he did not exactly performe them, he might be flaine by a bullet, in the first occasion of warre which he offered. Neuertheleffe, hee fell afterward againe to his former course, without regard of his Oath, and being (within a while after) made Generall of the Emperors Army in Italy, he was tumultwoully carried by his Souldiers (against his will) to the fiedge of Rome, where he de expug wrbit was presently slaine with a piece of Ar- Rome. tillery of his owne, negligently discharged by his Soldiers, and fo payed the perialtie of his periury, according vnto the judgement and sentence which hee had (prophetically as it were) given against himfelfe.

Now then, I with all Machinillians to confider heere three thinges, which are euident by these alledged examples. The first, how detestable all periory and perfidiousnesse is in the light of God . The fecond, how dangerous it is to Princes, Three things in respect of Gods wrath, which may fal to be considevpon them and their flates for the fame, through the feuerity of Gods Iuffice; 3a-ualimin in the gainst which, no humaine policy or power is able to defend them. The third, is a necessary confequent of these two to wit : that all Machini 'ian remedies (confifting partly in humaine prudence and ency and vadiligence, and partly in force, and nity of Maftrength of Guards, Garrisons, Fortres-licie, for the fes, and fuch like) are most friuolous and defence of a vaine when God is offended, and will wicked Prince punish for finne. Whereupon it followeth alfo, that the aforefaid remedies are (in like manner) infufficient, to protect a perfidious Prince from the danger of humaine punishment, which is comly but a fequel and effect of the just judgments of God. In whose hand are the hearts and willes of all men, and who v feth the fame as his Instruments, to execute his Iustice vpon Princes, when they deferue it.

Belides, it is evident enough in true reason of state, that although there were Concerning no danger at all of Gods wrath: yet thefe the danger of and such other Machinillian pollicies, are thered, that may be a not only insufficient to prevent or reme meanes to dy the inconveniences, which Wicked further detri-Princes incurre by the hatred of Men. but also do (many times) encréase theyr dangers, and helpe to præcipitate them to the vtter destruction, whereof I shall haue better occasion to speake lieereaf-

In the meane time, this shall suffice, for fo much as corteerneth the Vertue of fidelity in a Prince with this conclusion. That because the danger which groweth vnto Princes by fraud and deceite, pro-

Oath and promites vtterly for gotten by Harold.

Duke William honourable proceeding with Harold,

The vnaduifed answere of Harold to he kind 3ro ther Girth,

The ancient Antiquaries this History.

thers.

The prefer

Al reputation of vertue ought to be grounded vp on fincerity and truth.

Prouer, 10.

Princes power

Opinion of the Princes

the Mother of conspiraweakneffe is meffe.

9, 10.

ceedeth principally from the iust Iudgements of God; therefore, the yong Statiff and Councellor (whom I labour to informe) ought to vnderstand concerning this, as well as all other Vertues, that the reputation thereof, which he is to defire and procure in his Prince, is too be grounded not you vaine theires and apparances of counterfeit vertue (which God of his Inflice will discouer, and pu- 10 nith fooner or later) but vpon the folide Coundation of all finceritie and trueth. which is the firest piller and stay of all humain actions, and most grateful both to God and man. And therefore, the Wifeman layeth : Qui ambulat fin pierter, ambulat confidentur. He that walketh simply and plainly , walketh boldly and furely. Et qui depravat vias funs, manifestus exit . And he which runneth an indirect 20 cour le halbe made manifest.

It resteth now, that I faic some-what, (though verie briefely) of the reputation of a Princes power and greatnesse, the The reputatiloffe and decay whereof, emboldneth his er and great- pnemies, discourageth his friends, and layeth open his perfort to the contempt of all men, yea, and his state to infinite daingers. For, as the reputation of a Princes greatneffe, wealth, and power, 30 firiketh a sease and terror into the hearts as well of his owne fubiects, as ftrangers, and with he ldeth them from conspiring against him : cuen fo, the opinion of his weaknesse, worketh the contrary effect, and is the verie Mother and Nursie of Rebellions, Conspiracies, and all hostile attempts. And no man knoweth howe finall an enterprize may overthrow the greatest State in the world, seeing it dependethypt on the faccesse which no man can warrant, and many times is fuch that it deceyneth all mens expectations.

> To which purpose, the reputation of a Princes power, force, and greatneffe, is highly availeable, the which Augustus Cafar knew fo well, that having loft an Army in Germany, of 40000, men: yet he continued the warre for no other reafon or necessity (as Tacitus noteth) then to maintaine the opinion and reputation of his power, least otherwise, thee might grow to be contemned as the great Xerxes was, who having terrified all Greece,

Therefore, the fureft and wifeft way is to yee all preventions, that nothing bee attempted against the State.

with his huge Armic of , a Million of men, was (vpon his querthrowe and returne into Renfla) fo despised that he was flaine by one of his owne fubicates. So: All benefit of the Prince to dangerous it is, and damageable voto a be weighted Prince, to loofe reputation, how great with his repu Prince, to loofe reputation, now great tation & confocuer it be. Whereupon I conclude, forence, but that it importeth a wife Councellour to . not in like measure and waigh all the commoditie degree. and benefits of his Prince; as well with his reputation, as with his Conscience. though not in the like degree.

For although reputation be the chief Reputation, externall good of man; yet it is inferior though it be to the internall, that is to fay, vnto the the chief externall good goods of the mind, whereof a pure con- is inferious a science is the principal, because therein | Conscience. consisteth the chiefe felicity of man, as de office feat Saint Ambroje faith. Befide, the benefite which redoundeth to Princes, by clearneffe of Conscience, is the fauour and protection of Almighty God, to them and their States heere in this world, and eternall faluation of their foules in the next. And the damage that enfueth of a corrupt and finfull Confcience, is Gods indignation in this life (whereby the greatest Monarkes and their Monarkies, that enfuel haue perified) and enerialting damnation in the world to come. Whereas (on the world to come and the world to come and the world to come and the world to come. the other fide) all the benefit or damage which the gaine or loffe of reputation, can yeild (beeing confidered in it felfe) extendeth no further then the fanour or Howfarreth disfauour of men: who can neither vp-hold him whom GOD ouerthroweth, nor ouerthrow the man whom God pro auaile. teeteth. For, as the Apostle faieth, Si Rom. 8,31. Deus pro nohus, &c. If God be for vs, what matter makes it who is against vs?

Whereupon it followeth, that whether we regard the dignity and benefit of Conscience and Reputation, or else the damage that cufueth by the bemith of The loffe of either of them: the respect of conscience chiefely tobe is farre to be preferred before the other, feared when and the loffe of reputation is then principally to be feared, when Conscience is fouly stained and polluted. For then the Prince lying open to the contempte and hatred, as well of God as man, hath no defence, but may well feare and expect punishment from both. And fo much the rather, because the losse and want of reputation, is one especiall meanes whereby God vieth to execute his inft judgement on wicked Princes: it be-

They that jultly be contemned by

dangerous

of a good Confeience.

Cor. 1, 12.

fignement is not to be left off, for feare of falle Ru-

A good de .

Plutarch in Fabio. Cicero in Lib. 1.de Offic.

The noble

ing most consonant to Iustice and Reafon, that they who contemn and difobey their Soueraigne Lord, King and Creator, should be ruined by the contempt, hatred, and disobedience of their owne fubicats. And this danger (I fay) is iustlie to be feared, when both reputation and

The loffe of when confeience is clear

Chap. 7.

The comfort conscience are stained. But when Conscience is pure and entire, the loffe and reputation is nothing fo dangerous. For, although the jufteft and best men, are sometimes so calumniated, that they incurre great infamie and difgrace through the practifes of the wicked: yet forafinuch as the fame hath no ground at all, it vanisheth away like smoak, and is ever through Gods instice) discouered & cleared in the end, to their greater reputation and honour. In the meane time, they have the comfort, not 20 only of Gods protection, as I have formerly faid : but also of their owne Cousciences, the good reputation whereof, gineth (in fuch cases) inclimable confolation. And therefore, the bleffed Apofile, faith; Gloria nostra hac est testimonium conscientia nostra: The Testimonie of our Conscience is our g'ery . In which respect, Wise, and Vertuous Princes, though they have due care of their reputation, yet doe not fo much regarde false rumors when their Conscience is cleare, as to forbeare the execution of any good and necessary designment, for the feare thereof. But rather follow the Councell and example of the Wife and valiant Confull, Fabius Maximus, Qui non penebat rumores aute falutem ; Who preferred not rumours, before the good of the Commonwealth. For, although his 40 delayes against Hannibal, were (through the malice of his enemies) much calumniated and generally condemned by the common people, as proceeding of Cowardife, yet hee was nothing mooued therewith, holding it, as he faid, Agreater Cowardise to leave a good purpose, for feare of mens tongues, then to leave the field for feare of an enemy. In which respect he continued his course, vntill hee had thereby, wasted and consumed the forces of Hannibal, with securitie to the Romain State. For which, he was afterward highly commended because (as Ennius faieth) Cunctando restituit xem : By delayes, hee prepaired and reflored the flate of the Romaines.

Neuertheleffe, in flich cales alfo, al diligence is to be vied by Princes and their not to be conand afterfions, that may growe by erro-neous conceit of their actions; airhough their Consciences bee neuer to deare:

Megal sea, ser Whereupon S. Augustine faith, That he no contained. which neglecteth his fame or good trufting cap. 21. to his Conscience, is cruel. And thereof he yeildeth arcason : Because (faith hee) he killeth the foules of others. For, although he do not the enill that is supposed, yet the very suspition thereof, serugth as a mans good frumbling blocke to ouerthrowfich as name; a care weak and il disposed. And therefore, S. Augustine also faith, That confainte is larged, it and the state of the fame being two thinges, the one of them is necessary for us, & the other for our neighbor. And that he which keepeth his confeience cleare dosh good so himfelfe sobut hee which preferueth his fame, deth good to o-not be holpen, without some greater de-

For this cause also, Plato requireth in Pintarch. Epist. euery good and vertuous man, that hee all Diorifium. have especial care, to leaue behind him thousand the action of the second that the second an eternall reputation; and fame of his to leans me vertues to the end to firre vp not onely sucriaining men of his time, but all posterity also to the imitation therof. Which is most ne ceffarie in publick persons, and especially in Princes, because their example inciteth to vertue or vice, much more then the example of privat men. And therfore not only by reason of state, but also con In what case fcience bindeth them to be moth dareful mish of repuof their reputation and good name, and ration is to be not to permit the least blemith thereof, tollerared. (though it be neuer fo vniuft) if it may be conveniently remedied, But when it ca-

nero z dMai s

triment to themselues, or to the Commonwealth, then it is to be endured with or dduff patience. For both reason and equity re- Publique quire, that the publicke, and compon good alwayes good be preferred before any mansper- to be preferticuler benefit, and that of two incomes periore niences the leffe is to bee preferted and nefice. cholen, wherof Conscience also is to be Indge.

Therefore I conclude, that whereas Commoditie, Confeience, and Reputhe Touchtation are to bee respected in all Doli, fione of all berations concerning Princes affaying reputation & commodity. Confeience ought to predominate; and to lerue for the couchitone and rules as well of reputation, as of all Temporal commodities, And thering Counceller

Augustus Cafar greatly to reputation of his greatneffe Cor. 7 acit. m L.b.s. Annal. Laftin, in Lib. 3.

ruined by the leffe of reputauon.

Cicero in Lib.1 de Offic. A Councello fhould holde for a ground, that nothing is profitable, that is not honest.

shall well discharge his dutie, if in al confultations, he hold the knowne Axiome of Cicero for his ground, to wit: Nibil est ville quod non sit honestum, Nothing is profitable that is not honest. Which point Cicero discourseth, and teacheth notably in his Offices.

CHAP.VIII.

What a Councellor is to consider in the matters which are to be consulted.

Concerning matters to be consulted.

Nd now to com to the last point of my division, that is, what a Councellor is to regard, in the matter it selfe that is to be consulted: it is to be understood. that although the affaires of state are infinit, and therefore, cannot sufficiently bee reduced to perticuler rules, yet fome things are generally to be confidered in all matters, whereof I wil touch fome few.

First for a necessary preamble and pre-paratiue to all deliberations in matters of State it is to be confidered, that in refpect of the connexion, which perticuler with the general state of forrain Princes it is convenient for a councellor to have bin a traueller, or els to procure by all

Prouerb faith, Mas fabe el necio enfu cala que el cuerdo en la ageno, A foole knoweth more in his owne honfe then a wifeman

Connection may be many times trobled with impertinent matters, yet hee shall withall understand many thinges, which may import him much to know. And there is no man fo wife, but he may fomtimes heare of a fimple man, fomewhat that may ferne him to verie good purdoth in another mans . And although a 50 affairs of State either haue, or may haue, 30

It is necessary for a Councellor to kno the state of forreigne Princes.

why.

means to have an exact knowledge, not only of his own Princes state and afairs, but also of the estates and affaires of other Princes, especially of such as are his Princes neighbors, enemies or confederates. To this end, two things are requi-A Counceller should bee fit that he be affable and courteous to al courteous and men, and willing to hear them, and confer with them, especially straungers, beftrangers, and cause he may learn by them many things more, then other wife he can attayne to know concerning the state of forraigne Princes and countries. For as the Spanish

A Spanish Properbe to good purpole.

The wifelt man may learne fomething of the fimpleft.

Letters from all parts, of the State, hu-mors, and dipolition of forraign Prin-reigne Counces; of all changes and innotations in what matters 10 their Courts and Countreyes : Of the Marriages and Alliances of them, their Children, and their most powerful subiects: Of Ambassages too and fro, and their Treaties : Of prouisions and preparations for warre, both by Sea and Land and their intentions therein: Of all Taxes and impositions laid vpon the people, or other leavies of Monies : Of the divisions that fall out amongest the Nobility or common people, and of their discontenements: Finally, of al matters that may tend to the establishment and strengthning, or to the weakening and innouating of other Princes States. For, although a Councellor shal by this meanes, heare manie vntruths: yet hee good vie and benefit. And being a man of judgement, and having intelligence with manie, he may eafily discerne truths from falshoods, by conferring their aduites togither, efpecially, if hee take order that his Intelligencers doe not know of one anothers shall verie often receiue aduise of important matters, whereof he may make

Finally, he shal by this meanes, not only judge better and more clearly of al matters ocurring for his Princes feruice, but shal also make himselse much more grateful to his Prince, by his diligence: and be more intrinfical with him, by occasion of his frequent aduices of forren newes, which Princes are alwayes most desirous to heare. And thus much for the first point. Secondly, a Councellor is to confider, Three things that in all matters of Councell, 3 things are efpecially to be refeoeded, as Thomas Aquinas (following arifforle) noateth.

The fyrft, a due end. The fecond, com. 77th dispute 1. The fyrft, a fixed for the conditions of the fixed for the fi uenient meanes. And the third fyt time in Lib.6.Elbic. and feafon, that is to fay, that the end and meanes be not only lawfull, iuft, and honorable in themselves, and in their owne Nature: but also to the person, state, and power of the Prince. For, if there bee pole: therefore the trouble(in this case is to bee borne with patience, in respect of the benefit that he may reap thereby. The other thing necessary for a coun- A Councellor cellors better information, is to procure ought topio frequent aduises and intelligences, by cure frequent

What benefit

fhall reapeb

may hear m

Plato in Phedro Necessary to know the Itare of the ntter, with l the circum Hances. One little cir umitance vn owce,may raule great trout in reolution. Nhy wife men due not lwaies indge

with like pru-

Chap.8.

be confidered in cuery mat-> nated in the Councellors lound iudge-Sharpneffe of Lacke of cou

Phil. Con. in Chron du Roy Linis Cap. 21 Why it is con entent for rinces to auc in any ouncellors any inconvenience or difproportion in any of these, I meane, if the meanes bee not contienent, for the obtaining of the end, or, if the end or meanes be impoffible, or about the might and power of the Prince, or base, or any way vnfit for his state and person, or if the councell be giuen out of due time and feafon, especially too late: it loofeth all grace, & cannot be accounted either good or prudent. I

To this purpose I say, that according to Platoes rule, he who is to give his opinion of any matter, Cught fir It to under-Stand & know fully the flate ther of with al the circumstances. For mans judgement is grounded on his knowledge, and guided therby,&fome one litle circumftance vnknowne may wholy alter the cafe. Infomuch, that a fimple man may judg more wisely thereof, then a far wifer man that 2 knoweth leffe. And the reason why wifemen do not alwaies judge with like wifedom and prudence in all causes, is, beecause they do not understand them alike.

But to proceed, the flate and circumstances of the marter beeing once fullie knowne to the Councellor, he is then to passe to the consideration of the inconueniences, difficulties, dangers, difcommodities,& commodities therof, which | 30 may minister diffrent arguments, Proct contra, in the discussion wherof, the prudence of a Councellor is especially seen. And heere I note by the way(thogh perhaps I may feeme to digreffe from the matter) that some men, who have great viuacity and tharpnes of wit, to find out inconveniences to forefee dangers, and to propound objections, doubtes, and difficulties, haue no maturity of judgement, to clear and defide them, or to find out remedies. And some others, who are of more found judgement, are leffe harp of wit. Again, 6 me who are of good ca-pacity, haue fo litle corage, that they are difinaid with enery difficulty, and therefore cannot eafily refolue on anie thing . Whereas some others of lesse capacitie and more corage, refolue more eafily in any ocasion. So that we may fay with the Poet, Non omnia possum us omnes, We can-not al do al things. And therefore Phil. de Commes, observeth very wel, that it is con uenient for Princes to haue many councellors, to the end, that one of them may supply the defects of another. For the wi-felt (faith he)erre oft-times either through passion, or through hate or affection, or thorough the indisposition of the persons, especialy after dinner. And if any thinke, that fuch ought not to bee made Councellors , it may be answered that we are a men. And lors erre at who focuer wil have none to be of a Princes one time on council that erre at any time in [peech or o. other. pinion or are otherwhiles mooned, and led with passion or affection, he must leek them in heaven for in earth none futh are to bee found. Thus faith he who was himselfe a grave and wife councellor, which I note heere by the way to the end, that young Councellers may learne, neither to affore themselves much on their owne opinions, nor rathly to condemne others of their fellow-Councellors, if they erre and be deceived formetimes.

And to profecute this digréssion yet a A Princes little further, I also adde, that it is need ought to be fary for a Prince, to hatte his Councell composed of composed like mans body, that is, of men of different complexions & humors, to the end, that the Chollerick heate, and hafty feator of fome, may bee tempered with the Flegmatick coldnesse, and slow. The mellanresolution of some other, and that the pinacity of some mens anguine spirites, sounde. may be somwhat depressed and counterpoized wi h the maturity of some others me ancholy indgements, which Arifloele holdeth to be the foundest in matters of State. Whereby the whole bodie of the Councell, may be reduced vnto a perfect temperature, fo that the predominant qualitie therin be found in most, mors of the rest, restraine the superfluity of ouer flowing conceits, cleare doubts wit, and open and difficulties, and fatisfye Obicetions the wnderflan which proceedeth (manie times) from uingthem who are not able to refolue them, a Councell, as of the Office and duty of a Councellor. But now to return to the confideration of matters to be confulted, it is requifit, that a Counceller do prudently weigh and compare the discommodities with or in some at the least, which may helpe to correct the peccant and offenfine huyet ferue to great purpose in Councels, to whet the wits, and open the vnder standing of men of judgement. This

I have thought good to touch by the way, that the young Councel or, whom

I aduife, may ynderstande somewhat, as well of the Nature and Condition of the comodities, & inconveniences with Gggg2

Confideratio

Ariflin Proble.

No commo dity without a difcommo-

What is to be forefeene and that enery important danger may be pro prouided for in euery mat-

He that will hazzard nothing fhall win nothing.

What is to be confidered concerning danger, and the preuenti-

Better one Bird in the hand, then two in the Bush. Cor. Tacit. in Anaul. Refolations are to bee grounded vp. on probable reafons and lufficient meanes.

Nothing of importance is to be left to chance.

the remedies, the difficulties & dangers, with the possibility and probabilitie to ouercome them. And not to reiect averie commodious and honorable defignment, because it is costly, or some way discommodious or difficult and hard, or fome way dangerous. For as the prouerb faith ; There is no commodity without difcommodity, nor any thing honorable, which is not difficult. And therefore, it is to bee 10 forescene and provided, that the commodities may ouerweigh the damages, that the gaine quite the cost, that everie inconvenience have a due remedic, that enery difficulty before way facilitated; bably preuented or escaped; that of comodities (which cannot be had togither) the greater be chosen; and of inconueniences (when all cannot be avoided) the leaft be admitted. All which being forefeene, and probably provided for, anie important action whatfocuer, may bee determined, councelled, and vndertaken, notwithstanding some dangers may be incident thereto. For he that will not take paines to cracke the Nut, cannot eat the kernell, and he that will hazarde nothing, shall win nothing: for nought venter (faith the Prouerb) nought have. Yet this is to be vnderflood, that the danger bee not ouer-great, which may partly be provided for, if it be foreseene, that the greatest danger rather doth con cerne fome circumstance of the matter, then the principall partes, or the whole body of the plot; that the benefit expected, exceed the loffe which may bee feared; that no certaine thing of thoment be aduptured, for a thing vocertain. For better one Bird in the hand, then two inthe bulb : that of matters doubtfell, which cannot fully be refolued, the leffe doubtfull, or more affured be preferred. And finaly, that the hope of benefit be grounded vpon probable reason, and sufficient meanes to atchieue the fame, and not vpon chance, which is fo vncertain, that no man may fafely build any important matter thereon. And therefore, Tiberius Cafar helde it for a ground, as Cornelius Tacities witneffeth , Non omittere caput verum, neque fe in cafum dare, Not to let flip the first opportunities, nor to aduenture himse to or his estate upon chance. That is to fay, not to hazard himfelfe or his state in any enterprise, when he hath not sufficisnt probability of good successe.

For althogh the event of al plots that are put in execution, is cafuall, dependare put in execution, is caluall, depend-ing vpon the will of God: yet it is a wife manspart, to do that which lieth in him, to affure it by all probable and conucnient meanes, and then to leave the rest to Gods disposition .. For otherwise, hee should tempt God, and offend him by his negligence: and therefore, without this probability of affurance, no matter of importance ought tobe attempted by a wise man. Except in desperate cases, when the necessity is for great and fo fudden(as fomtimes it falleth out to be) that | must trust to there is no time or place for discourse. God and his For then there is no remedy, but to trust only to God and a mans good fortune, which falleth out many times better, the by humaine discourse can bee expected or immagined . As it did to Iulius Cefar, Fortune. who finding himfelfe vnable to give bat- Plutarehin tel to Pomper, because his forces wer not Iulio Cafa. arrived, and beeing (in the meane time) constrained to go to sea in a litle Frigot, in fuch stormy rough seas, that the Pilot wold not passe forth, discouered himself, and bad him fet fail and go forward in any case, because he carried Casar and his fortune: which succeeded wel, for therby he escaped at that time, and afterward ouerthrew Pompey, and becam Emperor of the world. But this he did, because he had no other remedy, thinking it better to put himfelfe to the mercy of the feas,

And in such desperat and sudden exigents, when there is no time and place In extremifor wisedome and discourse, the councel of some woman or simple fellow, may be better then of the wifeft man . For that be good, and (as Aristotle fayth) form fuch being by the why. guift of God, born fortunate, and fol o. Fertuna. wing the impulse and motion of nature, may aduife or execute more happily, the men of great wifedome, who pondering all things in the ballance of reason and discourse, do not followe many times, a fortunat motion in themselues, nor happy concel of others, because they see not fome good and probable or reafonable ground for the same wherby they forgo Why a wor. and loofe their good fortune. And this is the reason, why the common Prouetbe cell in the reason, why the common Prouetbe cell in the reason with the reason w faith, That a Woman's Councel is never good on the fedden but upon the fuiden. For when Women councel according to their first motion, then of his enemie.

In extremi-

Ecclef. 7, 27. Of Iulius Ce. He which fhall perifh in

> The necessity of daily re on of our serie ons to God.

Chap.8.

Ariflot. de bona

Nothing is to be left to chance, but in cale of necel-

Diligent pon examination in the prefent flate of the matter, & future fucceffe

> The ouer light in fome Councellors.

they may councell fortunately, either by chance, or by some naturall impulse or motion: whereas, falling to discourse of reason, or to deliberation, they sildom or neuer councell wifely, through the infirmity and weaknesse of their judgement. And to this purpose, Aristotle alledgeth the old Prouerb, Fortuna fauet fatuis, fortune fauoureth fooles, as I have fignified before concerning this point.

Heerupon I conclude two things. The one, that except in case of necessity : a wife-man ought to leave nothing vnto chance, that may be any way affured by reasonable meanes, in respect of the danger that may enfire thereby. For, although dangerous councels (grounded vpon hope of good fortune) speede well fomtimes by meer chance, yet they proned most commonly pernitions. And 20 therefore, the Wifeman fayeth wifelie: Qui amat periculum peribit in illo, He that louesh danger, shal perish therein.

The other Conclusion is, that fering men are many times put to fuch fudden extreamities, that they have no time or opportunity to aduife themselues, or to confult with others : it is most necessarie that they arme and prouide themselves against the same by frequent Praier, and 30 by dayly recommending al their actions to almighty God, the authour and giver of all good fuccesse. To the end, that he may (in fuch cases) guide, protect, and prosper them and this I hold to bee the foundest aduise, that any councellor can giue to his Prince. Thus much for the fecond confideration.

. The third, shall be to ponder and examine diligently, not onely the prefent 40 flate of the matter, and the imediate or next sequel thereof: but also, what may be like to fucceed from time to time:and especially, what may be the conclusion, or (as I may terme it) the volhor of the whol. For many times it falleth out that delignments prosper wel for a while, and yet ouerthrow the authors or attempters in the end : not fo much by Fortune or chance, as by ouer-fight in the councellor or contriner thereof. For hee being deceived with the appearaunce or hope of some present, or neere commoditie. fore feeth not, or elfe neglecterh fome future and finall difgrace. Much like vnto the ficke-man, who following his owne appetite, eateth or drinketh fome

one thing, which refreshesh and contenteth him for the prefent, yet augmen teth his discase, or killeth him in the

In this point, all wicked and Machiuilling. Councelles fayle for the most part, which do often (liceeede well for a time, thorough Gods permission, for fecret causes best knowne vnto his Diuine Wisedome: but in the end, do de ftroy Princes and their States, partie thorough the luftice of almighty, God, and partly by the errour and negligence of the Councellours, in true reason of State as shall be mote at large prooued heereafter. The house line and or is sold.

In the meane time I adde for the prefent, a fourth Gonfideration to the fame purpole, to wit; that a Mile Councelfor ought to weigh the Commoditie of cuery thing, with the flability and feenrity thereof: and not to admic his Prince with a fewe yeares profent iples fure or benefit, to purchase manie yeares future paine or discommoditie. But; rather to endure some disadvantage or dammage for a time, when thereby he may attaine to fome ftable and permanent good afterward.

And this he may learner by the course that Nature holdeth in humain affaires, ordaining Motion for reft, bufineffe for repole, Labour for eafe, and payne: for pleasure. In which respect, a Wife man laboureth when he is y. ung to zelt in his Olde age, and taketh a loathforne Potion, or bitter Pill, to recouer health, and willingly endureth all Temporall milerie, to attaine in the end to eternall Felicitie. This (I fay) not onely Nature, but also true Wisedome) which alwayes followeth the courfe and fleps thereof) doth teach vs no leffe in matters of State, then in all other humayne affayres.

27.53570 Therfore by the lame reason, a councellor ought also to prefer a certain and durable commodity) though it be leffe, Plutarch in his before a greater, that is (hort and vncertaine. To which purpole, Theopompus K. of Lacedemonia answered the Queen his learned wife very well, when thee lamented to him, that he wold lead his foial and rity leffe to his children; the his children; the his ceiued it, because he had of the his ceiued it, because he had of the history taine Controllers of Kings sealled Fig.

uident Coun pared to ficke men.

Wherein all wicked and Machauillian councels faile or the most Part, 7 ... 7

Commodity to be weighed with flability and fecurity.

Nature to be followed in the deliberaters of State.

ought to be

Gggg 3

The greatnes of Princely authority to be measured by the Stabi-lity thereof

ly to be confidered concer-ning Stability

True Stability is Eternity.

Sufficient rules cannot be giuen in perticuler concerning matters of because it shalbe more firme and sure. Thus fayd he wifely measuring the benefite of Princely Authority; was fo much by greatnesse, as by furety and stabilitie, whereto all the Councelles and endeamones of Wife Councellours and Statifts ought chiefely to tend: yet with this confideration, that although of worldly things fome are more stable and permanent then others : yet there is no true ftability in any of them, and that therefore, all Wisemens Councelles are especially directed, to the attaining of Heauenlye things, wherein is true stability and eternity. Thus much for confiderations to be had in generall, concerning matters to be consulted. And foralmuch as fufficient Rules cannot be given in perticuler, concerning the fame, in refpect that the affaires of State are infinite and variable, by reafon of the infinite occasions & accidents which fall out dayly to be confidered (all which may require different confiderations, according to the different Nature and quality of the matters, and the fundrie circumstances of times, places, and perfors) I have therefore thought good (for examples fake, and the instruction of young Statists) to handle and debate 3 heere, some one matter of State, by way of discourse. And because occasion is offered oftentimes, to deliberate about the maintenance of a Civill Warre in a forraigne Countrey, I will fet downe mine Opinion, what aduife a yong Statill may fafely give concerning the fame.

CHAP. IX.

For the better enstruction, and more persiculer information of a young Coun cellour, concerning matters to be confulted: a master of State is debased to wit : What is to be considered in a de 1beration, touching the maintenaunce of a Civill Warre, in a forraigne Countrey.

Concerning the maintenance of a ciuill warre in a forreigne Country.

fancy) for to confider principally these points following.

First, the Equity and Iustice of the cause, as well on his Princes part, to wit; whither it may be just and lawful in him, to give the assistance demanded: as also, whether their quarrell, which demaund the same, be lawfull and iuft, or no. For, if Iustice and Equitie want in eyther of both, no commodity that a Prince can receyue or expect, can counternaile the dishonor, danger, and damage which he shall affuredly incurre by the offence of Almighty God . Que aufert /piritum Pfalme, 76,11 Principum , & serribi is est apud Reges terra Who taketh the Spirit of Princes away and is terrible to the Kinges of the Earth: And will afforedly exact the penaltie thereof on him, or perhaps on his state, or on both, fooner or later. Which is The highest the chiefe and highest point of state, to point of state be confidred in all deliberations of princes, feeing the vtter destruction and ruin of them and their estates, proceedeth principally from the offence of God, as hath bin more at large before discussed.

It is also to be considered, what good and just motives his Prince may have on his own part, to give the succors demaded which may be reduced to four cases. The first, when he may thereby do some notable service to God, which is alwaies in it felfe not only honorable but profita- ble feruice to ble, as it were mony put to intreft, in refpect of the reward which hee shall affirredly receive at gods hands for the farme howfocuer it succeed for the present.

The fecond cafe is, when he is bound by Oath, promife, or gratitude, to fuccour the party that craueth his aide. For Obligation by in such case, the omission thereof (when oath, promise it may justly and conveniently be done) were both offenfine to God, & alfo, difhonorable and dangerous to a Prince, as we! in respect of Gods punnishment for his periury, as also for the bad example, and infloccation he should give vnto others his Allies and confederars, yea, and to his owne subjects to forfake him in his necessity. 50

The third cafe is, when the Prince of Aiuft prewhom the fuccour is demaunded, hath forreigne a just pretence vnto a forraigne Crowne Crowne or or State, for the obtaining whereof, he State, may hope to have a party, by maintay-ning a suff quartell in the fame State or Country. Wherein respect is to be had,

The equity of

A lamentable example of Seballian King of Por-tuzall, H:erom, Coue

A very indif-vnkingly ad-

A forreigne

warre not to be grounded principally partic.

vpon hope of

Chap. 9.

to be confide

A perilous re folution in a

> A forreigne warre to be maintained. domefticall.

that the Princes own forces be fufficient for the execution of his enterprise, that he shall not neede to relie, further vport his partie; then onely to facilitate the fame. For, if his hope of good fucceffe, eyther in obtaining his pretence, or in conferning or maintaining it afterward, doe chiefely depend uppon the good will, fidelity, and fittength of fuch a party: he buildes (as a man may fay) spon the Sand, and puts in adventure his labour, charges, and reputation.

Heereof wee have had a lamentable example not many yeares past, in Seba-Hian, King of Portugall, who hoped to make himselfe. King of Marocco, under colour to restore thereto Muley Mahomet, whereof he made fo fure account; that he carryed a Crowne with him, to Crowne himfelfe King there. Not con- 20 fidering, that his aduerfary Muley Molucco (who was in possession of that kingdome) was not onely most valiant for his person; but able also to put into the field for his defence, about 100000. Horse and foote.

Against whom neuerthelesse, King Sebastian undertook the enterprife, with an Army of 13000. Souldiors, or there about, the most of them votrained : befide, neither he himfelfe, nor any that did commaund the Army under him. had ever borne Armes before. In fo much that he trufted (as it: feemed) to the conduct and forces of Muley Mahothet his Confederate, who when hee came to tryali, was not able to bring to the fielde 2000 men. So that, aduenturing with fo few, to fight with about 40000 Horie, and 10000 Foote, and 40 (as fome fay) a farre greater number: his Army was presently enclosed on all fides, and to opprest with multitudes, that he loft both the battaile, and his life. So perilous a thing it is for a Prince to ground any designement of a forraigne War : eyther on the weakeneffe of an Enemy, or on the strength of a Confederate, and not uppon fufficient forces of his owne. But to proceede.

The fourth cale is, when to anoyde fome imminent danger, of inualion or Warre at home, or other great vexauon : 2 Prince is forced to holde his Enemy occupyed in his owne Countrey, by supporting there a suft quarrellagainfithin. Wherein, though he fpend largely, without fear of loffe, in respect of the present security which hee purchaleth, and exemption from greater expenses and daunger at home: neuertheleffe it shall be Wisedome for him, (in my faces) to practife the councell which Alabades the Athenian gaue to Tillaphernes in like cafe, to wit. Not to give greater succor, they may suffife to keep the warre flu on foote; as well to gain time, cell of Alcibia which often remedies b the greatest incan- desconcer. ueniente : as allo to extenuate and ruearie both parties , in fuch fort , that whe torreigne ther the marre end by victorie or com- water position, they may have no ability to assayle him. Which he may well feare, though the party which he affifteth should prouaile.

For this purpose, it is to be considered, that Civill differtions end many red, that Civili differtions end many coff of the times, to the cost of the Forteigne Prince who maintained them : whether they end by victoric of the enemy, or of his Confederate, or elfe by their composition. For, his enemy, if hee ouercome, remaineth more irretated, and more obliged to feek revenge then before ... And his Confederate, if hee yanquish the other, and succeed him in his State : is more like to prove an enemy then a friend, especiallie, if the quarell of the other was not personall (that is to fay, proceeding of some peruculer iniurie done to his perfon) but a quarrel of State, as commonly it is, for in that cafe, who foeuer shall be Gouernour of she same State, will be his enemy, notwithstanding, any benefit received. For experience teacheth, that respect of gratitude for benefits past, little auaileth, when it is any way encountred with reason of State.

Which (as Guiceiardin faith) Vinde ogni partito, Doth (with Princes) oner-weigh all other considerations. And is so varriable, according to the variety of occasions, and fuccesse of affaires a that it changeth daily, and of a Friend this day, maketh an enemy to morrow. In which respect, the Leagues & amities of Princes, is commonly very value, beethe obligation neuer lo great.

Moreouer, it commonly falleth out, Mony lent to that the party whom a forreign Prince | maintaine a helpeth to aduance, remaineth his deb-indanger to ter for the charges bestowed in his succour : wherevpon it followeth many

Good coun-

1 wast

Ciuill Warres that maintained them.

Respect of gratitude en countred with State, little rangarana

Guicciard nelli Region of State very va riable forreigne wa

Edward the Polidor. Virgil.

in Hift, Angl.

Lib. 19.

his Friend and his Money. For, if he trust to bare promises of repayment, he is in danger to be ferued, as was Edward the Blacke Prince, who going in perfon (with a great Army into Spaine) to fuccour Peter the King of Caffile, vpon

Places or Townes giuen in pawne tor money make enemies of Composition of deuided parties a-gainst the forreigner.

The Barrons England. or Vurgu m Hift. Augl. Lib 19, Paul, Aemil, it Phillip. 2.

Phillip. Duke

Pol dar. Virgil, in Hen. 5. 6.

times, that the Creditour loofeth both his promise to repay him all his expences : was after the victorie) fo delayed and deluded by him, that hee was faine to returne without any fatisfaction. By meanes whereof, hee was constrained to lay such impositions upon his owne Subjects in Aquitaine, for the payment of his Souldiours: that they rebelled, and hee loft the greatest part of that Country.

And put the case, that hee have any places or Towns deliuered him, in confideration of his expences, or his better 20 fecurity, which any Prince that giueth fuccour to Forraigners) hath reason to feck: then his friend many times (for reason of State) becomes his Enemy, to recouer those places which he gaue him before. And so it falleth out commonly, when focuer civill wars and diffentions come to end, by composition of the parties deuided:who willingly agree, and ioyne themselves against the Forraigner that maintained their deuifion. Especially, if he haue any hold or footing in their Countrey, though it were at the first with their owne confent swhereof I wil alleage a few examples, as well Andient as Moderne.

In the Barons wars in England, in the time of King John, Lewes the eight, then Son to Phillip the secondking of France, affisted the Barons against their King, 40 and being called by them into England, and proclaimed King therof: was shortly after (by common confent, as well of them, as of al the other English) driven out againe. Also Phillip, Duke of Bourgundy, to be reuenged on the Duke of Orleans, & on Charles the seauenth, while hee was yet but Dolphin: called Henry fift, King of England into France, & affifted him first 50 to make him Regent, & after to crown not only him, but also Henry the fixt his Son, King of France in Paris . Yet in the end, he made his peace with King Charls aforefaide, and helped him to deprine the English of all that, which either they had got by his meanes, or other-

In like manner, Charles the eyght, King of France, was most earnestly follicited to the Conquest of Naples, euen in Carol. 8.Cap. by the Weapolitans themselves: who, neuertheleffe) fortly after helped to expel the Garisons and forces which he had left ther, notwithstanding they had received great benefits of him.

In this age also, the late Queene of England, of glorious memory, gane fome support in the first troubles of France, to her great charges. But when peace was made in the year of our Lord 1562, they all joyned against her, to recouer Haure de Grace from her, which they had before given her, for affurance of the Mony, by her lent them.

And laftly notwithstanding the costly fuccours of Men and Mony, that the French Catholikes received from the Catholike King of Spaine: yet they for-fook him almost all in the end, and joyned with his and their adnerse partie, and made War against him, to reconer of him fom few Towns in the frontiers of Flanders, which they had given him before, for his and their fecurity.

Therefore, although these things doe not alwaies fucceed in this manner, yet forafmuch as most commonly they do, and that nothing is more vicertaine, taine, then then that which dependeth on the will, affection, or gratitude of other men, or the will of vpon reason of state, which varieth and changeth daily, according to the varieev of occasions. I hold it for a speciall point of prudence in a Prince, to take the furest way, to wit; not to engage himfelf too far, nor to adventure more, then he careth not to loofe, in the maintenance of actuill VV arrein a forraigne Country; except, when either the fernice of God, for inft obligation, or the confernation of his own state doth neceffarily require it. Thus much concerning the behalfe of the Prince that is to gine the fuccour . Furthermore, great Confideration confideration is to be had, of the State ons concerand condition of the parties which demaundit : as, whether they bee able to fuccour. ouercome their aduerfaries, or (at least) to fland and maintaine their quarrell, with the affiftance which they crave, or may be given them. For otherwise, it were great impudence in any Prince, to vndertake their maintenance: but rather to endeauour by way of trea-

of France, Phillip Commi 2.0.39.

The motines or ends of leagues to be confidered. cond King of > Phillip de Com. chron du Roy harles Cap. 23

The common

ende of the French league.

Chap.9.

Concerning

Townes or

States con-

ederated.

The perticuier endes of many in the French league

Dinerfity of ends caufeth on of leagues.

A tew under one head is ftronger then ty (betwixt them and their aduerfarie) to compound the quarrell, and thereby to make himselfe gratefull to both parties.

And for as much as it many times falleth out, that the ability and power of the party which craneth affiftance, confisteth not in the strength of some one potent and absolute Prince, but in the force of many Princes, Townes, or States, confederated and leagued together : it is in such case specially to bee considered, how, or voon what reasons, the faid partie is vnited.

To this purpose it is to be noted that in all confederacies and leagues, wherein many do vnite themselves : the confederaresare mooued thereto, eyther with one motive or end (as in the Cantons of the Smitzers, or in the League which the Pope, the King of the omaines, ine King of Spaine, the Venetians, and the Duke of Millaine, made against Charles the eight, King of France, for the defence of Italie.) Or elfe they are moued thereto with divers and fundry motines, fome with one, and fom with another.

As for example, in the late French League or vnion, fome entered onelie 30 for confernation of the Catholike Religion (which was the common and pretended end of all that partie) others entred for perticuler respects; as either for passion or ambition, or for the friendship of some one Man on the one fide, or hatred of fome on the other, or for hope of future gaine, or for prefent profit and commoditie, or fuch like.

Now then, those that are led by perriculer respects, doe not (for the most part) remaine any longer in any league, then they may hope to obtaine their defires. And when they are perswaded, that they may fooner obtaine the fame, by adhearing to the aduerfe partie; they are eafily induced thereto : and hereupon followeth commonly, the diffolution of such leagues and confederacies. For which cause, the strength and po- 5 wer of any leagues, is not to be meafured fo much by the multitude of confederates, be they never to great and potent :as by their concurrence and agreement in one and the fame end. For, as a few vnder one head, are ftronger then many, vinder many and different heads;

as Phillip de Comminaus noteth very wel: fo a few principall perfons or Townes, vnited together for one and the feltefame caule, are to be reputed far ftronger, and more like to fland; then verie many (chough much more potent) if they have many and different ends.

Therfore it much importeth a Prince, that shall support a Forraigne League, Necessary for to difcouer (as much as hee may) what a Prince to end or motive induced the Heades and ends of the principall Confederates, to make their principall entrance. Whereby he shall the better difcerne, what their force and firength may be, and how they are like to flund, and to maintaine their quarrell. For, if they have al but one end, they may be reputed the stronger: but if then endes be diners, they cannot long stand. As weehaue seene lately in the French League, which, notwithstanding the great fuccours (both of Men and Money) given them by the Catholique The diffoluti-King : diffolued rather of it lelfe, then on of the remebleague by any forces of enemics, by reason that through the many of the Gouernours of Townes, divertity of and chiefe Pillers thereof, concurred ends. not in one end with the whole league. And therefore, when they received fatisfaction for their perticular defires, or faw themselves out of hope thereof. they easily changed their party.

To fuch Leagues (I fay) vnited on- In what cafe ly in exterior flew, and not in one com-mon end: I hold it not fecure or conue-foreigne nient for a Prince to gine filecour, ex-league, not cept he be moued thereto by fome iminent danger of invalion, or other great dammage. Which he may feare to receiue from the enemy occupied, as I have fignified before, while he neyther prepares for his better defence at home, or at least may winne time; which in all extreamities is to be lought, and often remedicth the very greatest invenien-

Moreover, forafmuch as the fuccors demaunded or given, conful commonly eyther in Money, Men, or in both, confit enher and that it may import a Prince (for the in mony, men furtherance of some inft pretence. or obligation of his own, or for some publique good) to imploy not only his forces, but also his Mony largely, to mailtaile and support & Forraigne League : I will adde somewhat concerning the fame, to the cite, that a young Statist many vnder Silip. Com oron, de Rov Louis Cap. 25.

vnited in one end.

The fuerous demanded

The Argumen

may the better understand, both what to aduife, and also how to deale there-

How money is to be beflowed in the maintenance of a forreigne league.

What effect money may worke.

Money is giuen to fuch as eyther are friends, enemies, or neutrall, and in what nature with eyther of them.

stowing of Mony, I say, that although it cannot be denied, but that Mony may doe very much in all businesses of this quality. (For, Quid non mortalia pettera cooit auri (acra fames ? What doth not the detestable hunger of Gold compell Men to do?) Yet ordinarily, the effect that Mony can worke, is but to dispose the wils and mindes of Men to the defired end. Which disposition (neuerthelesse) in fome that receive the Mony, is none at all, in others very little, and in most very doubtfull, and to be suspected. For those to whom thou giuest thy Mony, either are thine enemies, or thy friends, or elfe neutrall. If they be thine Ene- 20 mies, commonly they take thy Mony, to impouerifh thee, to enrich themfelues, and to imploy thine owne Mony against thee, when they shall see time.

Therefore, first concerning the be-

If they beethy Friends, thy Money worketh little; because their own good will and friendship, bindeth them more vnto thee, then thy Mony can doe. If they be neutrall, & become thy Friends 30 for the profit they have by thee: their friendshippe will last no longer then the profit continueth. And when they may think to get more by thine enemy, then by thee : they will be his friendes for the fame reason, that they were thine. And although they shall have never so great benefit by thee eyet they will perfwade themselves, that thou seekest thine own Commoditie, and not theirs, and that 4 thou are beholding vnro them, for that they doe vouchfafe to take any thing of thee. And foralmuch, as the hunger and defire of Mony, doth encrease with the possession and vse thereof: the more thou givest them, the more they will defire. For, as Cicero faith; Fit deterior qui accipit, & ad idem femper expectandum paration; He which taketh or recesueth Mony, is made wor fe thereby, and alwayes the more ready to expect the like. So that, if thou doe not ever give them, when, and how much they shall expect or demaund of thee : they will hate thee more for that which thou doft not give them, then they have loved thee for that which they have received already. For, as Seneca faith. Vetus & nota ingra- Seneca in Lib. titudo est, dati immemores meminife ne- 2.de Ira.Ca.14 gati, ideoque rara & tepentes gratte ferui- A benefitrede & frequentes quarela. It is an old and forgotten; a novorious ingratitude, to forget a benefit benefit deuireceined, and still to remember a benefit de- bred euer, nied. Whereupon it followeth, that thankes are care and cold; and Complaints, feruent and frequent.

The defire of crealeth with the vie und possession Cicero in Offic.

I fpeake not this, for that I thinke it not convenient to negotiate with Mony, to gaine and entertaine the affections of men : but to fignific, that it is to be don with great confideration. For, as Pling faith. Inconsiderate largitionis comes bestowed panitentia est . Repentance euer accompanieth the inconsiderate imployment of Mony . Therefore to fay fome-what of this point, my opinion is, that it is convenient for any man, that doth negotiate with Mony in a strange Country : to haue his Pursse alwaies open, for fuch as are true Friendes to him and the League, as well to gratifie them, and to recompence their good wils and good Offices; as also to helpe their necefficies, and to enable them to vphold their partie.

And those may bee accounted true Friends, whose end is either the com- to be befor mon end of the whole League : or fo ed vponfuf dependant thereon, that it cannot be o- fons, therwise obtained, but by the good succeffe of the League. And to fuch, Mony may ener bee fecurely given, when their necessities, or the publike good of the League shall require it. But vnto others, little or nothing is to be given (in my fancy) except it bee to buy of them some important places; or to recompence intelligences, or feruices already done. And therefore it shall bee convenient, to vse all diligence (as before I have fignified) to discover the true Motines, that induced enery one to Aill to be had whom Mony is to be given, to enter into the League.

And in case it may seeme needful to aduenture some what, to entertaine fome few principall men, though neu- Of entertaitrals, or suspected, to divert them from compounding with the enemic: it shall bee convenient (in my fancy) to give them largely, and more then the Enemy is like to give them, and precifely to accomplish what else shall be promised.

Plin.lib.7.Epiff. Monie to b Liberality to be vied towardes true friends, and who they are

How mony i few principall

bought with Cicero in Offic

No trust in

affe aion

Aman cot. rupted with monie, will be

For otherwise, they will acknowledge no Obligation, and when the Enemy shall give them more, they will follow him and if promise bee not kept with them, they will esteeme themselves to be mocked, and (for very difdaine) will paffe to the Enemy and of all this, I faw daily experience in the time of the League in France. There the Catholike King bestowed many Millions, in Penfions, in entertainements, which many received, and after became his open Enemies. Some of them, because they were not punctually paid their entertainements; Others, because (as they pretended) promise was not kept with them in other things; And some others againe, either because they could not haue whatsoeuer they demaunded, or because that others had more then 20 they.

Chap.10.

The danger of breach of

Example of the league in France, wit-neffed by the Money and forces con-curring, doc

worke great effects,

The Oracle

promile.

But how much foeuer shall be bestowed vpon one or other, there is no fecurity or affurance, in negotiating with Money alone: except the fame be evther accompanied, or shortly seconded with fufficient forces, which concurring therewith, may work great effect. And therefore the Oracle faide to Phillip of Macedon : Hastis pugna argentatis & omnia vinces : Fight with filuered shields, and thou shalt overcome all: advising him therby, to imploy Mony and Forces together. For, as for negotiation with mony alone, the longer it continueth; the more danger there is, both to loofe the Mony and the businesse. For no trust is to be had in affection bought with Mony, and not grounded on reason & vertue. In which respect Phillip King of 40 Macedon, faide very well to his Sonne Alexander, who fought to gaine from him the good wils of the Macedonians, with guifts and bribes, What mischiefe (quoth he) per/wadeth thee to thinke, that

Thus much for this matter, whereof much more might be faid, if the question were reduced to perticular persons and Countries; which might minister other important confiderations of difficulties, according voto the Nature, ftrength, or weakenesse of the places, and the conditions and abilities of the persons, who were to bee succoured or impugned. Which I forbeare to pro-

those will bee faithfull to thee, whom theu hast corrupted with Mony?

fecute any further, to paffe to another. matter meaning to debate, whether theremedies which Pollitiques teach, against the danngers and inconveniences growing of wickednesse be sufficient (in reason and true pollicy)to affire the State of a wicked Prince. By occasio whereof, I will examine divers princiwhereof, I will examine divers princi-proposed in ples of Machivillian Doctrine, and thew the ensuing the absurdity thereof. To the end, that Chapter, 210 theyoung Statist, whom I labout to informe, may understand as well what to anoyde, as what to embrace in matter of pollicy, and that a Princes State cannot be affired by wickednesse.

Of Forraigne Ciuill vvarre.

CHAP. X.

Another Question is debated, for the further enstruction of a young Statist, to wit: whether a Princes State can be affured by wicked pollicy? By the occasion whereof, many principles of Machiauill, and of the Pollitiques his followers, are examined and confuted by reason of state without the consideration of Gods In-

O Man that is endued with reason, will denie, Wherein conthat wickednesse in a fifteththe Prince, maketh him hate greatest part full to his Subjects, and policies.

(confequently) endangereth his Estate. Which al Machiauillians and Pollitiques knew fo well; that the greatest part of their pollicy, confifteth in denifing remedies against the same. To the ende, that their Prince may bee fecurely wicked, that is to fay, that he may purchase and eniov all Worldly pleafures and commodities, Perfas & nefas, By right paffedby or wrong: without danger of any re- right or nenge of Man, and not fearing the wrath and Iustice of God, because they beleeue nor, that there is a God, or (at leaft) that he medleth not with the affaires of Men.

First let vs see some of their Remedies. One of the principall (according to the Doctrine of their Maister Machi-

Machia. de

Machianels principall remedy confi fleth in extremity of wickedneffe.

Machiane!l would have Machine habfuedity in fecking to remedie a difeafe, by encreasing the cause thercof.

Excelline wickedneffe exposeth a ceffiue hatred Cicero in Offic. Lib. z.

No force or power can fufficiently retift the hatred of many. Pollitiques fecke ablurdly to temedy hatred by

Feare concur ring with hate makes it more dangerous to hun which is hated, and avill) is, extreamity of all mischiefe and wickednesse, which Machiauill teacheth to be far more secure for a Prince, then mediocrity betwixt vertue and vice. Therefore he would have his Prince to bee, either the best man living, or the worft: that is to fay either to be a Saint or a Deuill. Whereof his reason must a Prince to he needs be (if he have any) that he which holdeth the middle way betwirt vertue and vice, and dorh fometimes well, and fometimes ill: must needs incur the offence and hatred of some men, whereby he shall be endaungered. Therefore he thinkethit convenient for fuch a one to practife the common Prouerb, to wit; Qui semel verecundia fines transierit, &c. He that hath once past the bounds of Shame, must be notably impudent. That is to fay, he that is once over the shooes in sinne; 20 must (for his safety) goe ouer head and eares. As though the way to remedy a difeafe, were to norish and encrease the cause thereof: as to cure a dropsie with continuall drinking, or a burning feauer with hot Wines and Spices, or to cast Oyle into the fire, to the end to quench it. For so do Machiauillians, who, to remedy the danger that groweth to a wicked Prince by harred, doe make him more hatefull, and by the excelle of wickednesse, expose him to the extream & excessive harred of all men, and confequently, to ruine and perdition. For, as Cicero faith; Multorum ody's nulla opes. nulle vires poterunt resistere. No force power, or wealth, can sufife, to resist the hatred of many, and much leffe of all Men . Yes, fay they; Oderint dum metuant; Let them hate him (be they neuer fo many) fo that they feare him . For feare shall so repreffe their hatred: that they shall not dare to attempt any thing to his preindice. Thus fay they, but most absurdly: for feare (in a mind poffest with hate) is nothing elfe, but as it were Vnguis in vlcere: A mans naile or a foratch in an vlcer or botch, which is exasperated thereby, and the paine of the patient greatly agrauated. And although feare doe (in 50 forme fort) delay and represse the fury of hatred: yet it makes it much more fecure for the hater, and more dangerous

> For those that hate without feare, do many times attempt (vnaduifedly) to their own destruction ; but those which to him that is hated.

both hate and feare, do deliberate, and execute with much more maturity and confideration, and (confequently) with confideration, and (confequently) with The Prince adding fear to their enemy. So that, who the Prince to the hatred doth adde feare to the hate of his Sub- of his fubices iects: he redoubleth both his own fear, his own fear and also his owne perill. Whereupon and danger, the Tragicall Poet faith.

Qui sceptra duro saus imperio regit, Timet timentes, metus in autorem redit. That is to fay. He which governeth by fenerity and cruelty feareth those which feare him, and the fear turneth upon the Author vpon the Au or cause thereof. And, as Senecathe Stoick faith. Neffe eft vt multos timeat, quem multitiment. He must needs be in feare of many, whom many feare. Also Cicero, fol- cicero in Offic lowing Ennius the Poer, faith notably Lib. 2. thus. Quem metuunt oderunt &c. Men hate him whom they fear, and every one defireth the destruction of him whom he hateth : And no force or power of Empire (bee it never fo great) can long stand if it be prest with continuall teare of the Subsects. Thus faith Cicero, declaring the daunger that groweth to a Prince by hatred & feare, which are the most focrible and vrgent Motiues that may be, to moue a people to conspiracies, as well among themfelues, as with forraigners: both to deliver themselves of the feare, as also to discharge their hatred & ire vpon their Prince. Wherefore Aristotle doth rec- Arifi in Polit. kon hatred and feare, among the princi- Lib. 5. pall causes, of the destruction of Monarchies and tyrannies.

But heere fay the Machiavillians. For, Machianillan this cause hath the Prince his Guardes, remedies a-Armies, and Fortresses, to defend him:
felfe from all attempts, both Fortaigne red according and Domesticall; beside the vigillancy and pollicy which he vseth for the preuention of conspiracies; disarming and impouerishing his Subjects; forbidding their affemblies and publike conventions; and all other meanes, which may breedlove, truft, and confidence among them. Terrifying the (oftentimes) with the frequent thew of his Guardes and Garrisons, to make them feruile & base minded; fuffering them to be vicious & diffolute of life, to make them effeminate: nor permitting them the vie of Schooles, or other meanes, whereby they may become learned, wife, & pollitike. Imploying his fpies enery where,

Hatred and

feare are the fpiracies.

Macbiavillian pollicies knowne and praétifed in al ages, by wic-ked Princes to their raine

Machiguell

Arift.in Polit. Libiy, Capita. Machandhan politices reicéted by A. nhotle about 2000. yeares agoc.

The speedy fal of tyrannicall flates noted by A. riflotle. Ariflot, Ibid.

for the discouery of enery mans intention. Nourifhing dinifions among the greatest, to counterpeize one with another. Suspecting al men, be they never fo much bound to him. And finally, cutting off (by one means or other) althose whose power, courage, or wir, he may thinke to bee daungerous to his State: wherby he thall be fecure from the dangers which may grow to his person or 10 State by the hatred of his Subjects.

Whereto I answere, that if Machiauill, or some other Polliticke in these our was not the inventer of his pollicies.

daies, had bin the first inventers of these policies, and that they had never bin yet tried:it might with more reason be supposed, that there were, or might be som afforance therein for a wicked Prince. But feeing all this, or whatfocuer elfe Machinuil, or any Polliticke doth teach, 20 for the confernation of a Tyrant, bath bin practifed in all times & ages, by Tyrants and wicked Princes, who (neuertheleffe)haue al. or the most part of the perified by the hatred of men : who feeeth not the infufficiency thereof, for the affurance of a Prince in wickednesse?

Can Machianill or any other Pollitick, teach more to this purpose, the we find written aboue 2000, yeares ago by Ariflotte in his Pollitickes ? Who thewing the meanes, whereby Tyrants feeke to preferue themselues and their states:mi nistreth to Machiauil and his fellowes, al the matter and substance of their wicked pollicies. Which neuertheles, were not appropued by Ariflotie, as fufficient for the confernation of tyranny : but vtterly rejected by him. In which refpect, he declareth how vnfure tyranny is, and 40 exemplifieth the fame in all tyranicali flate, which had beene before, or in his time. Shewing how speedily they all perished, excepting only foure: whereof the first continued 100, yeares, the fecond 73, and fixe months; the third. 33. and the fourth, 22. yeares. And the cante of the long continuance of the first and fecond, he ascribeth to the moderate and just government of the Tyrants, who though they got their States tirannically, and held them by vibrpation (in regard whereof they are called Tyrants;) yet they gonerned with fuch moderation and Inflice, that they were greatly beloued of their Subjects.

To which purpole Ariflotie also ob-feruerh, that the state of a Tyrant is fo much the more fure: by how much Arift. Ibid. more moderate it is, and neerer to his iust government of a King. Wherein al Machianillians'inay note, both by the do-Ctrine and experience of Arifforles that Machanillian the extreamity of wickednesseand ty- pollicies conranny, is the high way to earry a Prince that defering headlong to his destruction, notwith- rnd experistanding all their presentions aforefaid, 'cace. Whereof some part are most necessary for the confernation of any Princes state: as Guardes, Garrisons, Fortresies, vigilance of Councellors, dilligence of Spies and Intelligencers, as also such other parts of those pollicies, as is conforme to reason, lustice, & conscience. But the refl, I mean those points of hindring love and confidence among Subiccts, immoderate pilling and poulling reached and them, making them effeminate, igno- inthe Machirant, & bafe minded nourithing debate an lan emeamongst great persons, and cutting off dies about fuch as are more eminent in credit, power, courage, and wit, then the rest: thefe I fay, and all fuch as are against charity, Iustice, and Conscience, are against all true pollicy, and so farre from helping a Tirant, that they help to ruine him, as heere in this Chapter Maltappear, concerning fome of thele pointes in perticuler, and fome in generall.

fidence, there can be no fidelity; & without fidelity, no luftice; and without lu-flice, no Commonwealth, as you have read in the necessity of fidelity in the ties, publike Feafls, Playes, and affenibles, where the people may meet together : not onely for recreation, but to make them also known one to another.

to Commonwealths. For faith he . Hy means

Hhbb

And now to speake of some of them. What can be more contrary to true real Missioneh fon of State: then to hinder truft, con- Doctrine con fidence, and love among the people, fun contained without the which there can be no conmonwealth? For, without lone & con-

Prince. For this caufe, all ancient Law- Why publique makers, and founders of comonweakhs, Pares was have ordained in all Countries and Git- | fint man ared

To the end, that of their conucrlation, The benefit may grow lone and friendflip, and the effore and fame redound to generall visty, for the friendfhip in confernation of peace in the whole wearing.

Comonweal h. And therefore Arillotte ! faith, that friendship is Maxima benum Lib. 2. C. 2. ciuitatibus, The greatest good that can bee therief.

Plutarch, in

What Common-wealth Solon liked

The love & vnion of mem bers of the polliticall body, most neceffary for the conferuation hereof.

Senecain Lib.2. de Ira.Cap. 31.

Why Machia thinke, that factions among fubic & are good for Princes,

A Machiavilli an Prouerbe and principle thereof, they shall be free from sedition. Alto, Solon effeemed this amity and vnion of minds to be so necessary for the conferuation of humaine Society, that, being demanded, what Common-wealth was best, and most like to continue: Such a one (faith he) wherein enery Man doth take the iniury which is don to another, to be done to himfelfe. And to the fame purpose he made a law in Athens, giuing leaue to euery one, to take vppon him the just quarrel of any other, and to demand reparation of the wrong, as if the matter concerned himfelf. Which constitution of Solon, Plutarch commendeth greatly. As a means (faith he) to accustom the people to feele and redresse the griefes & iniuries one of another, as being al members of one body. Whereby he may vnderstand, that the vnion and love of the political body (that is to fay, the Common-wealth) is no leffe necessary; then the combination of the parts in the body naturall. Which Seneca teacheth notably in these words . Vt omnia inter fe membra, &c. As all the members and parts of mans body, do agree together for the conleruation of the whole, which also redoundeth to the good of every part in particular : So all men ought to agree to the benefit one of another, because we are borne to line in focietie, which cannot be conferued, but by she agreement and love of the parts thereof. Thus faith Seneca.

How then can it fland with true pollicie, or reason of State, to hinder this vnion and loue of the people, or to fow and nourish factions among them, and especiallie among great personages; whereby seditions, tumults, and garboyles may grow in the Commonwealth? Yes, fay the Machiavillians, it standeth notably wel with the reason of our Princes State, who feeketh not the generall good of the Commonwealth: but his particular benefit. And therfore, foralmuch as the vnion and friendship of fubiects, may enable them the rather ro conspire against him : it is good pollicy & reason of State for him, to main- 50 taine factions among them, according to the old faying . Si visregnare, divide. If thou wilt raigne, make division.

Thus fay they. Of whom I wold gladly learne, how they can (in this case) seperate the perill of the Comon-wealth, from the perill of the Prince, to make this good pollicy for him? Can the body be in danger, without the peril of the head? Hath it not bin feen many times, that some private quarrell, growne at first betwirt meane personages: hath after paffed further to a multitude, and (from them) come to be general to the (trom them) come to be general to the gerous to ruine of a whole State? And therefore, Princes. Plutarch wifely compareth fedition to a little sparke of fire, which falling into straw, or other dry matter in some corner of a house : setteth the same on fire, whereby (in the end) a whole Towne is | for fuch as burnt. In which respect, he counteth it | deale in mat. for one of the most special pointes of politicall Science: to take away all occasion of sedition, and when it groweth, to appeare it quickly.

Aristotle alfo teacheth the same verie feriously, affirming, that Sedition is the chiefe cause, of the mutation and subuersion of Common-wealths. Shewing how many waies it may rife, and how it may be remedied, & that it is alwaies dangerous, but then most petnitious, when it grow. | fubuerfion of eth among great personages. And therfore he aduifeth, to remedy the same (if it be possible) in the very beginning, because: Principium dicitur effe dimidium totius: The beginning is faide to be the one halfe of the whole. And little feditions at the first, grow after to be great, especially among great men : Whose discord Factions a-(faith hee) draweth the whole Commonwealth after them. Whereby it may appeare, how dangerous and abfurd is the councell, which Machianillians give to their Princes, to norish factions in their Common-wealth, & especially among great personages: as if Princes were omnipotent, and had the harts and wils Princes may of al men in their hands, to moue, fway, make raction incense, or temper in such manner and measure, as it shall please them, which der the bad only is in Gods hand and power to do. effects there So then it is evident in this cafe, that the Machiauillians expose their Prince to manifest danger, without any affurance, or sufficient probability of remedie, which in matter of State is most absurd.

The like may also be said, of their other pestilent pollicies before mentio- Machiavillia ned, confifting in all kind of cruelty, injustice, and wickednesse: whereby they make their Prince most odious to all odious to men, and (by confequent) do draw them into manifest dangers, from which they mon-wealth and of the conjoyned. Factions in the Common wealth dan-

Plutarch in his

Ariflin Polit. Lib. 5. Cap. 2.

1dem 1bid ca4

afterward his

the Empire of Rome and Con-Suction Tran quil. Aelius Lam Spartianus.

are notable to warrant or defend them by all their pollicies. As it may appeare by the experience of all ages & former times, vnto this wherein we line, feeing all Histories doe testifie, that the more wicked and tyrannical Princes haue bin, and the more they have incurred the harred of men; the fooner they have bin ruined; fome by open rebeliions of their fubicets; fome others, by their ge- 10 neral description in fauour of strangers; others by fecret confpiracies of a few ; and others also, by the desperate attempt of forme one man notwithstanding all their pollicies, power, force of Guards, Armies, Fortresses, or other humaine meanes.

This point Cicero proneth, by the ex-

Chap. 10.

The hatred o fubicets most dangerous ro Princes, by the experi-

Cicero in Offic.

of hatred exemplified by first Kings of by hatred.

lit Lingus Dec.

imples in

amples of Phalaris a most cruell Tyrans, whom all the people of the Agric n- 20 times oppressed in a general tumult ; and of Alexander, the Tyrants of Phere, killed by his owne craft : And of Demetrius. King of Macedon, forfaken of all his fubiects, in fauour of King Pyrrhus . To whom we may adde Romulus , the first Rome ruinated founder of the Romain Empire, who haning made himfelfe hateful to his Senators: was murdered by them in the very Senate house. As L. Tarquinius Priferia, his third Successor, being odious to the people for his In-juffice, and fraud towards the Children of Aucus Martius, whom he deprined of their Kingdome, though he was left their Tutor by their Father: was flaine by two Shephcards. In like manner, Tarquinius Superbus, the feauenth and laft King of the Romaines, who yfed all the tyrannicall pollices aboue mentioned, violated all Lawes 40 humaine and divine, for the confernation of his estate : was neuerthelesse driuen out of his kingdom by his fubiccts, and the name of King and kingly authority, abolished among the Romaines (in hatred of him) for the space of 500.

> And if wee looke into the Romaine Empire after Iulius Cefar, we shal finde, that neither pollicy nor power, could 50 defend many Emperors of Rome & Constantinopie, against the hatred of Men. As, to omit many others, who perished vpon other occasions; it may appear by (a) Iulius Cafar himfelfe, Caius Caligula, Claudius, Nero, Domitian, (b) Commodus, (c) Digius, Iulianus, (d) Caracalla, (c) Ofi-lius Macrinus, and his Son Dradumenus (f) Heliogabalus, Alexander Seucrus, Iulius Maximus, (g) Gatienus, (h) Phillippus, (i) Aurelianus, (k) Constans the first; (i) Gratian, Valentinian the third, Bafiltous, Zeno, Mauritius, Phocas, Heracleon, with his picim. Mother Marting, Constans the second, Pom Instinian the second Phillippicus, Constan- Loannes Baptinus the fixt, Wicephorus Stauraties, Leo lifta Egnatus Armenius, Michael the Son of Theophilus, Nicetas Choni-Nicephorus, firmanica Phocas, Joannes Ze- ates. mifces, Michael Calaphrates, Stratioticus, Michael Parapinaseus, Andronicus Comnenas, and divers others, who having incurred the hatred, either of their Subiects in generall, or of fome particuler persons, were some of them payfoned, and others violently flaine, eyther by the fury of the people, or by their Nobility, or by their own Guards and Soldiours, or by their wives, Concubines, or feruants, or by other particuler men. Belides, some others of them were doposed, and eyther confined into Monafleries, or deprined as well of their eyes and nofes, as of their Empire. And one among the reft, to wit, Zeno, a most cru- Zeno a most ell and crafty Tyrant, was put into his Sepulcher aline (by the confent of his buried aline. Wife) while he was drunke, or, as some write, taken with a fit of the falling ficknesse. Being also so hated of his owne Scruants and Guards, that when hee Cedienini's came to himfelfe, and cried for help out Comp.Zena.cs of the sepulcher tho man affisted or pit- Ioan Baptifla tied him, and so he died raging, and rea- Egnatius in ring his flesh with his teeth, as it appeared afterward when the Tombe was opened.

Machiauill requireth in his Prince. As (to omit others, for breuities fake) the last whom I named of the Emperors of Hhhh 2

And although enery one of these was The hatred not so subtile, nor so pollitike, nor yet of Subjects so wicked, as Machianil would have his sious to Primero. Prince to be:yet it is cuident in them al, ces. that the hatred of Subjects is most pernitious to Princes . And in fome of them it appeareth manifeftly, that no humane power, or wicked pollicy, can' warrant and affure them the State of a Prince generally hated: feeing that diuers of them before named, excelled not onely in imperiall power; but alfo in subtiltie, eraft, persidiousnesse, periury, deepe diffimulation, crucltie, Egnatius, and all fuch kinde of wickednesse, as relius h Viltor. Flawing Vo.

Wickedneffe

neuer wants

Nicetas Chani ates in Andronico Comneno. Lib. 1.

nenus, was fo eminent and egregious in all tyrannicall Pollicy: that Egnatius worthily calleth him; Callidi Gimum mortalium; The most crafty of all Mortal men. Of whose manner of gouernment I wil fay fomwhat briefely, to the end it may appeare: how little fecurity a Prince may have by wicked pollicies, against

The History of Andronicus Commenus, Emperour of an egregious Pollitique.

Idem. Lib. 2.

strangers, and his great dog.

ldë.I.Lib.& 2

His wicked

Inftruments.

1dcm.Lib.2. His care of the adminifirstion of Iuffice in all things which did not concerne his per ticuler bene-fit or pleafure Constantinople, to Wit; Andronicus Comthe hatred of men.

This Andronicus, having with great art and fubrilty, obtained to be Turour to the young Emperor Alexius, Son to Emanuell: made himfelte (thortly after) his Companion in the Empire, procuring the death of the Empresse, Mother to Alexius, and of diners others, whose liues hee thought to be prejudiciall to his pretence. Within a while also, hee caused the young Emperor himselfe to be murdred, norwithstanding, his former oath of fidelity; follennely confirmed with receiving the bleffed Sacrament. And being then Emperor alone, and finding him clfe to be hateful to his people: he practifed all the tyrannicall Pollicies, that could be deuted for his own confernation. He guarded his Pallace and person, with strong Guards of barbarous Strangers, and the most desperate Fellowes that could bee found, who could neither speake nor vnderstandthe language of the Country : and he had (befide) euery night at his chamber door, a huge Mastine dog, so fierce, that he durft fight body to body with a Lyon, or with an armed man on horfebacke. He was also provided of wicked Instruments, for the execution of his will in all cases: as Spies, Promoters, and false witnesses, whereby many Noblemen were flaine, imprisoned, or banished. Yet for no other cause, but for that he feared, that either their credit with the people, or their power, or their wealth, or their wit, might prooue in time dangerous to his State.

Neuertheleffe, knowing right well, that the more his Empire flourished in Inflice, the more it would be his honor, benefit, and security : hee shewed such especial care thereof, that hee excelled many notable Princes therein, not only prodiding for the election of inft and wife officers: but also feuerely punishing those, who eyther did, or permitted any wrong to beedone, to the meanest or poorest subject he had. Beside, he ordained, and gaue most liberall allowance, to al Magistrats for their maintenance, to the end : that they should not have any need or pretence to take bribes. And fuch as were produed to be corrupt, he punished so exemplarly: that (within a while)no Magifttate durft take fo much as a present of any man, though it was neuer fo voluntarily offered. He shewed himselfe affable and courteous vnto the poore, and seemed ful of pitty and compaffion, whenfoeuer hee heard their complaints, and did them exact Inflice. Furthermore, he tooke fuch order, for the releefe of the necessities of the common people : that all kinde of victuals were most plentifull and cheape; the ground well tilled and mannured, the Countries well inhabited Villages and Citties much augmented, & the Common-wealth greatly entiched. Such was the care he feemed to have of Iustice, and of the publique good, which (neuertheleffe) he respected no further: then it might turne to his own perticular benefit or pleasure, whereof he preferred the confideration, before all things else whatsoeuer. For, as he provided the Commonwealth of notable Magistrates : so he furnished his Court with wicked Councellours and Indges, voyd of all conscience, who executed his will, ypon all fuch as incurred his diflike or fuspition. Some they banifhed, spoiled others of their goods; de prined others of their cies; murthered others fecretly, and condemned many publikely, vpon false pretences, of whom (neuertheleffe) he himfelfe would feem to have great compassion. As for example, understanding that one Hacius, a Noble-man, had taken Armes against He suspected and made him in the Island of Cyprus : he picked a away his most quarrel against two of his own trustiest fimiliare Ser-Seruants and Fauourites, because they were great friends to the other, caufing them to bee accused of Treason, condemned, and executed. And when fuite was made vnto him, after their deathes, that their Bodies (which were hanged vp) might be taken downe and buried : His deepe hee feemed fo much to pittie their cafe, and feigned that hee shed aboundance of teares, lamenting that the fentence of the Indges, and the feueritie and authori-

tie of Law, must needes ouer-weigh to the poors and provision for plenty of

Iden Ibid

wealth with good Magi-ftrates, and his Count

His daily feares and fuspitions,

1dem, Lib. 2.

His horrible cruelty crafti

ly couered.

refferer of

His Sorceties and witch-

.Of wicked Policies: Chap.10. his defire, and the affection that he bare them And when any were touched withmatter of feditions not onelythey themselves, but also alshe wholekinted and families were condemned and the ned to the end, that none should be left of their tace to reuenge it. The which (neuertholeffe)he feemed rather to permir, and fuffer to be done, then himfelfe to ordaine it. For he caused his ludges and Magistrates, to give those sentences by publique Edict, with plaulible preambles: thewing their care of the Emperours person, and referring it not to his commaundement; but to divine inspiration, as a thing necessary for the service of God, and the good of the Common-wealth.

Heere now I appeale to any Machihad the Quin avillian, whether Andronicus had not the 20 Quinteffence of Machanels Pollicy, long pollicies, long before Machiauil was born? And whether he wanted eyther defire, wit, or evel was born. wickednes, to conferue his state against the hatred of men, if it had beene possible to have done it by wicked meanes? Therefore, let vs fee the end, which was fuch, that it may well ferue for an exemplare warning, to all Machiavillian Pollitiques. Idem, Ibid.

While Andronicus gouerned in this manner, his cruelty and in-Iustice did purchase him more harred, the the good that he did for the publike, could recom pence. Which filled him enery day with new feares, fuspitions, and lealosies : efpecially, after that he was preffed with warres by William King of Sicily. Who having ouerthrown some of his armics, and taken The [[alenica, and other towns 40 ofimportance: marched towards Constantinople, wherwith the people began to take courage, and to discouer their hatred to Andronicus daily more and more. This did put him in fuch feare of Conspiracies, that hee consulted with Sorceres and Witches : especially with one Sethus a Magitian, who demined by a Bason of Water. And one day, when Andronieus defired to know the name of 50 his Successor; Sethus shewed him in the water, the two Letters, Land S. wherby he & his Councellors coniectured, that it thould be Ifacius, who had rebelled against him in the Island of Cyprus, as before hathbin declared. Nevertheleffe. forasmuch as there was another Ifasius (fit-named Angelus) at the fame time in the Court, a man of fo quiet a Spirit, and fo fmall courage, that Andronicus himfelfe did no way fulpect him sone of How he was his speciall Councellours suggested to ouer reached in his Sorce. him; that it were good to command the iries. faid Hacius Angelus, to be taken and put into prison, to preuent the worst Least (laith he) we may feeke the Viperabroad in she field, when perhaps we have him in our before. And although Andronicus feemed (at the first) to contemne ffacius, as a man no way to be feared : yet at last it was refolued by him and his Conneell, that he should be taken. And for that purpose, Stephanies, one of his chiefe Councellours and worst Instruments, went himfelfe(with certain of his catchpoules) to the house of Ifacius, who defending himfelfe : killed Stephanus , & ran presently (with his sword bloody in his How his wichand)through the Market place to take Sanctuary in the chiefe Churchof the towne, imploring (as he went) the ayd of the people, declaring what hee had done, and why. The people flocked after him to the Church, pittying greatly his case, and commending his act, and at length, their courage encreasing with their multitude: they began to embol-himselfe well payed, if he could saue his life, This resolution being taken among them, they proclaimed him Emp. first in the Church, and after in the streetes:

which was approved with general confent of the Nobility, and all the people of the Citty, who came to yeild him obedience, and to affift him . Andronicae feeing himfelfe forfaken of all his Subiects, durft neither truft to the strength of his Pallace, nor of his Guards, nor of backe loaden with Iron Chaines. Hee his haire of his head and beard pulled away; his teeth strucken out; his right hand cut off; and (a few daies after) one of his eyes pulled out of his Head.

Then was he fet vpon a feabled Camel, apparrelled ridiculouflie, and carryed Hhhh a den one another; first to defend Ifacius; and afterward to make him Emperour. Haches fearing Which being propounded to the whol to loofe his affembly, was accepted of them all: Life, was fuddenly made Emperor, thogh he himfelfe neither defired it nor to much as dreampt of it, but thought > Andronicus forfaken of all his Subjects.

his great Dog : but fled away in a Boat, The reward and was thortly after taken, and brought end of Andro nices for his was fcorned and reuiled by the people; Tyranny.

273

The fruit and benefit of Ma-chiauillian pol

but that I promised not to vige the fame in this Chapter. Thus much concerning the coman and Greek Emperors.

I might also produce many other no-in Prison; Or yet of Fichard the third, forfaken of all his Nobility and Commons, and flaine at Bofworth Fielde;

what elfe (I fay) was the cause thereof, but the hatred of their Subjects? And as for the last of these, I meane Richard and treacherous Nature, his cruelty, his deepe diffimulation, his devillish devi-fes and inventions, as well to get the Crown, as after to conferue it : we thall not finde him inferiour, to the most famous tyrants of former times, for al impious and wicked pollicies, which neuertheleffe could not free him from the danger of destruction, which the hatred amples, feeing the Mirror of Machianus owne Prince, Cafar Borgia, may ferue for a Witnesse of this matter? For, though he fo far furpaffed al former Tvrants-in wickednesse and tyrannical po-wernthat Machiauill made choife of him,

But what neede I alledge other ex-of his Subjects justly drew vpon him.

through the streetes to be shewn to the people: who threw vpon him all kinde of ordure and filth, every one conten-table examples of this matter, out of Examples out of our Eng-lish Histories. Histories as well of our own Country, as of al others. For, what caused the deftruction of Edmond Ironside, who was Polidor Virgi murdred vpon a priny; or the continual rebellions in the time of K. John ; Or the 30 vntimely death of Edward the fecond, Idem, Lib. broached with a hot fpit; Or of Richard the second, first deposed, and after slain

Sir Thomas Moore in Kin Richard the thirds life.

Richard the third, not in ferior to the famous Tymer times.

Example of Machianels owne Prince Cefar Borgia.

to frame his Prince by the modell of his tyranny: yet could he not vphold and conferhe his State, against the harred of Men. But beeing abandoned by his Subiects and Friends: became a notable example, not onely of humane imbegility, but also of the wofull end, of fuch astruft to wicked Pollicies, as I have declared before vpon other occa-

Hereupon it followeth, that no Prin- The littleft. ces power or pollicy, can sufficientlie cuity that warrant and affure his estate, against the ces have of vniuerfal harred of men; specially, con- their Guardi fidering the little fecurity, that wicked | or Armica. Princes (when they grow to be hated) haue of their owne Guards or Armies. For though they are the special means of their detence; yet they ferue (many times) for another end, then to butcher and flaughter them: As hath formerlie been auouched, by the examples of (a) Caligula, (b) Caracalla, (c) Heliogabains, b Spartimum Phillip (d) Galien, Macrinus, (c) Aurelianus, (1) Maximinus, and others, flaine partly by their Guards, and partlie by their Souldiours, notwithstanding, the picus. great liberality, which many of these Emperours vied, to buy their affections and fidelity. As it may be well observed (to omit divers other) in Maximinus of whom Iulius Capitolinus faith. Ea affutia fust, Ut milites non folum virtute regeret, nuin Maxi. fed etiam pramys et lucris (ui amantifsmos redderet. He was focrafty, that hee did not onely governe his Souldsours by vertue, but allowan their affections by guifts and rewards. And yet neuertheleste, they confoired diners times against him, and at length, when he was denounced pubthe third, if we confider his malignant 40 like enemy by the Senate, and formwhat distressed in his march towardes Rame for lacke of victuals: they flew him and his Sonne in their Tents, and fent their heads to Rome.

And heerein I wish two things to be Two things to be confide noted. The one, the fruit of cruelty; for red. this Maximinus beeing made Emperour The fruite of tyrannically by his Souldiours, against the will of the Senate: followed the principles which Machiavill teacheth his Prince, perswading himselfe, as Iulius Idem Ibidem. Capito inus teffifieth : Nest crudilitate imversum non teneri: That he could not holde the Empire but by eru lty. W herein he fo exceeded, that force called him Cyclops; fome Bufiris; fome Seyron; fome Typhon;

Guicciard.lib6

Romaine Emperors fold by their Guards

Plutarch, in

Nerø forfaken and Galha

An incuitable danger which nerally hated must needes incurre.

and forme Phalaris. And therefore (in the end) he received the just reward thereof at the handes of his owne Soldiers, to whom, notwithstanding his great Donatines, he became no leffe odious then to other men.

The other thing which I wish to bee

Chap.10.

The infelicity of fuch Princes as feeke rather to be feared, then to be beloued.

Of wicked Policies.

observed, is the great infelicitie of such Princes as feeke rather to be feared, then to be beloued. For, though they are 10 forced for their owne fafety to become flaues to those, by whom they keepe others in flauery, yet they are not fecure thereby, but it il in danger, not onely of others, but also of them that should defend them. Whole mercenarie mindes are fo inconstant, and subject to corruption, that the lives of the princes whom they guard, are over falable, and therefore neuer warrantable, by any humaine pollicy. For let the Prince give them neuer fo much, to binde them to his Sernice, yetherhat thall give, yea, or promife more, may win them from him. As it hath falne out many times to the Romaine Emperors, who have bin fold by their Guards and Soldiers not for readie money, but for the promife of greater fummes, then could be expected at their hands. As plutark noteth in the Guards & Soldiers of Nero, corrupted by Numphidius in fauour of Ga'ba, vpon promise of a greater Donatiue, then could afterward be performed. Which, fayth hee, caused the destruction both of 2Vero and Gulba: for the Soldiers for looke Nero, in hope of the paiment promised, and then killed Galba because he could not pay it. So tickle is the trust that Princes repose in Mercenary men ; and fo vafure the state that is to be vpholdenby such incertaine and weak props, which many times faile, when there is the most neede of them.

Furthermore, another especiall and incuitable danger is to bee noted, which any Prince (generally hated) must needs incurre, to wit; the defection of his fubiects, in all occasions of inualions from forraigne Countreyes. For, although he be neuer fo ftrong at home, in Gards, Garrifons, and Fortreffes, and his Subiects also so poore and weake, that they neither dare nor can rife against him : yet if forreigne Princes doe inuade him, eyther you a quarrell of state (which among Princes that are Neighbours neuer wanteth) or vpon. Ambition to enlarge their Dominions suitat remedie hath he against the generall hatted of his people, who have then fufficient oppor- Noremedy a tunity and manes, to bee revenged on peoples genehim, and to free, them felues from the rall hatred. yoake of his tirranny by taking part with the forreigner, the experience whereof hath boene feene often times.

Wice deade in sufficie, that the Subiects of Dometrine, King of Spria, abandoned him for the harred which they bare him, and tooke part with a knowne Demartus kn g Counterfeit, calling himselfe A exander, or Spria. pretending and naming himfelfe to be of the royall sace, as Rerken Warbeck did in England. This Alexander they accepted for their King, being so incensed against Demetrius : That they were content (faid Vustine) to admit any who foener , to be rid of him . Alfo the last Kings of Naples, no leffe rich and potent, then wickedly pollitique, being most hatefull to their Subjects for their Tirrannicall gouernment : were forfaken of them all, & All house and betraved to the French, to whom they Kings of Na. yeelded them-felues without any relift- Per.

ance de Alfo Ledonico Sforza, Duke of Millaine, may ferue for a notable example of this matter. For when Lewes the 12. 34, Duke of King of France, made warre againfthim- Millayne Guieand had already taken divers principall | ciardin lib.4. Townes and Fortes in the state of Millayne: Duke Lodowick (knowing himfelfe to be very odious to his Subjects, for his great exactions and impositions, and fearing leaft they would abandon him) affembled the people of Millagne, to recouer their good willes, and not only remitted divers taxes which he had impofed yoon them; but also gaue them many reasons and excuses for his former proceedings. Neuerthelesse such was the harred which they had conceived against him, that within a few daies after, they tooke Armes flew Antonio Landriano his Treasurer, forced him to fly, called in the French, and yeilded the town and themselves to their obedience. Have we not feene also the like effect of hatred in England, in the time of K. John, whom the Barons and Nobility of the Realme, called in Lewes the eight King of France while he was Dolphin, and proclaymed him King? Choosing rather to line vnder the Naturall King. Who, as Mathew

Comin. in Ca.

Polidor Virgil. in loan, King I ohn of England.

Math. Wellmin. of 11 Anno. 1216.

Machianell

die one poyther, poyfo-

Prince dou-

The danger

incurre by

the ordinary

errours procceding of becility.

which I trants

neth his

of Westminster writeth, Exosum fe prabuit, &c. Made himfelfe haseful to them, as wel for the murder of his Nephewe Arthur, as for his adulteries, tyranny and exactions, the continual feruitade wherein he kept England, and lastly, for the war which his deserts procured. In respect whereof, Vis alicuius meruit lamentione deplorari: He deferued not to be lamented fcaroelie of any man. Thus faith he, I forbeare to al- 10 ledge many other notable histories vnto the fame purpose, because I do holde it needlesse in a matter so enident.

What then shall we fay of Machiauils pestilent Precepts, for the preservation of a Prince already infected and poysofeeking to ex pell and reme ned with wickednesse? Can wee faie ought elfe, but that while he feeketh by fon with ano one poison to expel or remedy another, hee poysoneth him double, and killeth 20 him out right & For, a wicked Prince, adding (as Machiavel adviseth) wickedneffe to wickedneffe, and cruelty to cruelty doth accumulate vpon himfelfe, hatred spon hatred, which, as I have declared; will breake out fooner or later to his ouerthrow.

Neither can the Machinillian help his Maifters cause, by saying, that such wicked Princes as haue perished by the ha- 30 tred of men, have committed for error or other, which they shoulde or might haue forefeene and auoided. For the imbecility of mans wir and power is fuch that no man living, is able to foresee and preuent all the daungers and accidents, which may occurre in the afairs of men, to the ouerthrow of their designments . As hath bin already prooued by the examples of the abfurd errours, as well of 40 the wifest Senates and Councelles, as of most polliticke men. Whereupon, it followeth, that the Prince which expofeth himfelfe vnto the generall hatred of all men, incurreth many notable dan-

For, even as Townes of Warre, or Fortresses which have no enemy neere.

do or may commit many errors (in matters appertaining to their defence without danger; but being besieged by their enemies, are fornetimes surprized, by occasion of their least ouer fight or negligence. Euen fo, it fareth with Princes, who fo long as they are generally beloued, are little or nothing prejudiced by many errors which fall out in their Go-

Examples of Townes of warre & For ting enemies uernment, but beeing once (as I may tearme it) beliedged with the harred of their Subjects and Neighbours, they are ruined sometimes with the least errour, which they or their Magistrats do com-

For, the hatred of men when it is generall, may bee compared to a swelling Sea, which entironing a Ship on enery fide, dooth otherwhiles ouerwhelme it with the impetuofity of VVaues, and fometimes againe entereth in at enerie leake or rift, and fo finketh it . In like manner, the general hatred of men, doth not only ouerthrow a Princes state, by potent and powerfull attempts: but also by taking aduantage of euery little error or accident, which may helpe to ruine

And therfore, for a fmuch as the weakneffe of mans witte, and the varietie of No Prince times and occasions, do produce alwaies generally hated, can line fome dangerous accidents in the States long in focuof Princes, either by their errors or otherwife: whereuppon their industrious & watchful enemies (especialy at home) may take aduantage : it followeth, that no Prince generally hated, can line long in securitie, bee he neuer so Dilligent, vigilant, or suspicious of all Men, as Machiauil would wish to have his prince

. Who could vie greater vigilancie or diligence for his owne confernation; or be more suspinous, then Alexander the Tyrant of Phares? Who though he loued his Wife Thebes verie deerly, yet neuer came he to her chamber, but he caufed both her Coffers and her felfe to be gainft theha gainft theha fearched to fee whither the had any wea- tred of all pon hid in her Garments. And yet ne-uerthelesse, hee was killed by her, in the

Could any man bee more provident for his fafety, then was Claudius the Emperor? He would never goe to any banket, but where his owne Guardes and Souldiers feeued the Table; and neuer visited any sicke man, whose Chamber was not searched before by some of his Guards, even to the verie beds and bedftraw, and yet he was poyfoned at last by his owne Taster, whom he neuer suspensions. cted. W hat should we say of Domitian the Emperor? Hee was fo fearefull and fuspitious of all men, that hee made the walles of his Galleries where he yied to

Prince generally hated, is very dange

> Moft prouident and pohique Tyrants, ouerthrowne feine imes by the whom they moil feared, and formetimes by their lowne polis-

The stone

Phingues.

Chap. 10.

Phillip.Com n Cap.33. c 91.

last Duke of Bourgundy.

walke, to be fet full of bright and cleare Stone, cald Phengites, wherin he might fee whatfoeuer was done behinde him: and neuertheleffe, he was murdered by his owne Chamberlins.

Many fuch other examples might be alledged of Princes, who besides theyr great Guards and Armies, for defence of their persons, vsed al human diligence alfo, being icalous and suspitious of all men : and yet neuertheleffe, were ouerreached, fometimes by those whom they most feared; and sometimes by those whom they least suspected, or best trusted. Whereto I adde (as I haue cliewhere noted, and cannot repeat too often) that fometimes the most prouident and polliticke Princes, are (through the imbelicity of humaine wit) ouerthrowne by their owne policies, that is to fay, by the verie same meanes wherby they seek either to benefit themselves, or to hurt and deftroy others, as hath fufficientlie appeared by many feuerall famous examples. But what fecurity can a wicked prince haue by Guards, or other humaine pro-uidence and diligence, feeing fomtimes, that the wifest and best guarded, being ther have not the hope to vnderstand it, or the wit to beleeue it? So it happened to Julius Cafar, who, as he was going to the Senat, received a memorial, wherein the Conspiratours against him were discouered, and beeing willed to read it presently because it imported him greatly : was fo troubled with the presse and importunity of fuiters, that he could not

And beeing requested (by him that brought it) to read it out of hande, for that it concerned matters of great importance: made auniwere, that it vvas then no time to negotiate, and so laying it aside, was slaine within two houres afaduertifed of fome iminent daunger, ey- 30

Another dan ger procee-ding of hu-maine infir-

Example of Idious Cafar. Planten in lulo Cefar.

attend vnto it, and fo was flain the fame day in the Senate house. Archias also, a Tyrant in Thebes, being inuited vnto a Supper, where his death was conspired, received a Letter from a Friende of his, containing an aduise of the Conspiracy.

Archine a Tyrant of

> In like manner, Charles the last Duke of Burgundie, who, as I have declard before, was flaine at Nancy, by the treason, of Campobachio an Italian: was aducrtifed and fore-warned thereof, by Lewes the eleauenth, King of France. Neuertheleffe, perfwading himfelfe, that his aduertifement proceeded either of malice to Campobachia, or out of a defire to deprive him of his most necessary and truitie feruant, he would not beleeve it, but loued him the better for it. Befiele, one cuill is deflithat was priny to the confipracy, being condemned to die for another matter, and determining to reneale it vnto the Duke, thereby to obtaine his pardon, made fute vnto him to speake with him, promising to aduertise him of som thinges, which it imported him greatlie to know, but the Duke would not bee intreated fo much as to heare him, for the man was executed, and the Duke flaine within a few daies after.

Now then, I would gladlic knowe of Machiane. I and his followers, what fecurity they can promife their Prince in ked Prince is wickednesse, seeing it is enident by the reasons and examples alledged, that the meanes of aextreame hatred, which extreame wick- uoyding the ednesse draweth vpon them, doth (potwithstanding all their power and policy) worke their ouerthrow by so many meanes as hath beene declared? As by open Rebellions, or the generall infurrection of a whole people, by enterprise of a few by the attempt of some one man, by the difloyalty and treachery of a falle wife, faigned Friends, fauourites, Soldiers,& Guards, by the defection of Subjects, in fauour of some enemy forraigne or Domeltica I, by the negligence of Officers and Ministers, by the cafualty, of all humaine affayres and defignments; & lastly, by the errors whereto all humain wit and policy is subject, which to Princes (that be generally beloued) are nothing fo dangerous. By all which meanes, the ftrongest, mightiest, and most politique Tyraunts haue bin ouerthrowne at one time or another.

So that the abfurditie of Machianel is Machianelles most manifest, in true reason of state, seeposed his Prince to an allowed days. ing that, in councelling Princes to wick-edneffe and tyranny ypon confidence of humaine force and policy, hee expofeth them to an affured danger; and doth not giue them any certaine or probable re-lied. medy, but rather heapeth danger vppon danger, by encrease of cruelty, and of all Tyranical impicty. Infomuch, that it How to know may be faide to Machainills Prince, as whether a Diogenes faid to a Disciple of his, whom

Plutareb in his

ΑΡΧΑΙΟ-ΠΛΟΥΤΟΣ.

CONTAINING,
Ten following Bookes to the former

TREASVRIE

OF AVNCIENT AND MODERNE TIMES.

Being the Learned Collections, Iudicious Readings, and Memorable Observations: Not onely Divine, Morall, and Philosophicall, But also Poeticall, Martiall, Politicall, Historicall, Astrologicall, &c.

Translated out of that Worthy Spanish Gentleman, PEDRO MEXIA, And M. FRANCESCO SANSOVINO, that Famous Italian: As also, of those Honourable Frenchmen, Ambony du Verdier, Lord of Vauprinaz: Loys Guyon, Sieur de la Nauche, Counsellour vnto the King:
Claudius Gruges, Parssan & C.

LONDON Printed by WILLIAM LAGGARD, 1619. JAHOTAITA

The second section of the section

- DERT

The learned Collections Suditions Readings, and memorable Observa: tions of sundry worthy Personages. English, French, Italian, Spanish. &c. .vpon divers Subicots as will ap: peare by the severall heades in the page following: all of them no lesse vieful then and delighte: LITAS WHERVNTO is annexed:

Afficiall Treatife of that kind of NOBILITY which Sovernyne GRACE. and fauor, and Contryes Customes, baue made meerly POLITICALL and peculiarly civil1 (neuer fo distinctly handled before)*

LONDON *
Printed by WILLIAM LAGGA
1619*

XUM

To the most Noble and Twin-like paire, of truely Honourable and compleat perfection, Sir PHILLIP HERBERT, Knight of the Bath to our dread Soueraigne King I AMES, at his Royall Coronation; Lord Baron of Sherland, Earle of Mounigomery, and Companion in the unparaleld and famous Fellowship, of the Order of the Garter.

As alfo, To the truly vertuous and Noble Countesse his Wife, the Lady Susan, Dauzher to the right Honourable Edward Vere, Earle of Oxen-ford, Viscount Bulbec, Lord Sandford and of Badelesmere: and Lord High Chamberlaine of England, &c.

The first Vo-lume of this Treasurie, published about 5.yeare

Orthily might I bee condemned of arrogancie, (most Noble Lord & Lady) because, having past the Pikes in a peece of the felfe-fame feruice (followed with fauour and kinde acceptation) I should therefore presume vppon the like successe: knowing the inconstant nature of Times, that as they alter, so do mens humours & dispositions with them.

For, that which carrieth liking and allowance to day, falles into loathing and contempt to morrow; Opinions being more various in the case of Bookes, then are the Arguments whereon they discourse, because carping curiofity will haue his censure. But, as the Last for Hercules, was not fafhioned to fit euerie foote, nor his Lyons skinne to be worne by any ignorance wil base Lout; even so the sublimitie of true judgement (in matters of boldy not be learned; bloody not be learned; bl

The Epistle Dedicatorie.

not to every course and mechanicke conceite, capeable of nothing, but of such occasions as are sutcable to his owne condition.

I haue read of the great River * Euripus, which ebbeth and flow- Anarrow fea eth seuen times a day, and with such violence; that it carrieth Ships betweene the vpon it with full fayle, directly against the winde. Seuen times in an or Beria, and houre ebbeth and floweth rath Opinion, in the torrent of indiscreet and troublesome apprehension: carrying Criticke calumnie, and fquint-eyed detraction, mainly against the winde of Wisedome and Iudgement, because their braines are no better ballast, nor their capacity of further reach or extendure.

And yet, if the faying of Hesiode be true ; That nothing can bee more pleasing, then variety, which is the soules cheefest solace : Then (not fearing folly, but speaking to peerelesse Noble nature) give mee leave to tell you, that there can hardly bee any especiall subject imagined, but one Argument or other heere meeteth with it. From Sacred Diuinity (the most solide and supreame of all other) through all other Artes and Sciences what soener, even to any lowly, and the meanest (worthy)profession; here is some notable marke or Monument thereof (if it be either Ancient or Moderne) flored vp in this Treafurie, for future Ages to delight in, and to receive no meane benefite thereby.

Then (Honourable Lord and Ladie) all these blessings beeing Yours (as also my selfe, in endlesse dutie and service) when any subiect of great, graue, and ferious confideration (as of Nations, Monarchies, Kingdomes, and People, in their Originall, Rifing or Declining, by Warres, Diffentions, Combustions, or otherwise in the like occurrences) shall seeme troublesome or tedious to you: walke on but a little further, & then you may enter into a spacious Forrest, affording all choise of pleasing Game, either for Hawking, Hunting, Fishing, Fowling, or any other Noble exercise beside.

When those Forrest pleasures shall faint you (as all delights dull, by too much continuance) an Orchard standes wide open to welcome you, richly abounding in the fairest Frutages: not to feed the Eie onely, but likewise to refresh the Heart, inuiting you to plucke where, and while you please, and to bestow how, and when you list: because they are all yours, and whosoeuer else shall taste of them, do enioy such freedome but by your fauor.

There is one especiall recreation more (Gracious Madam) which remaineth foly to your felfe, and fuch as may enter by your admittance; in a goodly large Garden, abounding with all kind of the fairest Flowers, that open with the cheerfull mornings Sun, and shut a gaine at his sad departure, all sweet, and all soueraigne. And, because Ladies of elder times (as many haue had the like delight in our more Moderne daies) were fingularly skilfull in Phyfick and Chirurgery: there is not a vacant place in the whole Garden, but it is fitly furniThe Epistle Dedicatory.

fhed euerie where; the verie common walkes (euen as if they were Bride-like strewed by hand) are couered with the choisest Simples, purest distillatorie Plants, and wholesome Herbes of euerie Vertue: for which, the Garden was purposely founded, and not for fruitlesse idle vanity.

And were you all alone, without companie, and by your felfe, yet can you not so continue there! For, you may meete with a faire Beuey of Queenes and Ladies, at divers turnings as you walke, and euerie one will tell you the Historie of her life and fortune (rare examples of Vertue and Honor) as themselues can best, truly & plainly discourse vnto you. Some other also you shall see, fadly sitting vnder Eughe & Cipresse trees, with Garlands of those leaues wreathed about their heads, fighing out their divers disasters: whom your Noble nature cannot choose but commiserate; as greening to see a feratch in a cleare skin, and a bodie beautified by Nature, to be blemished by vnkinde Destiny-

From manie remote Kingdomes and Countries (where natural ly they spake those severall Languages) are all these variable pleafures come hither, onely to kiffe your Noble hands. It was no mean infelicitie for them, to find no fitter a Tutor, that might have taught them to speake more eloquent English; which (indeede) also was my fault, feeing none else would tie themselves to so hard a Taske. But howfoeuer it may prooue, your rich judgements, and all-fufficient ability in the Languages, as also my weakenesse; will (I hope) bury all defects in your fauor, & beare out from scandall my willing endeuour, that I may finish the other (yet remaining) eleuen Bookes behinde, to perfect fo rich and rure a Treasurie,

The Printer to the Reader.

Ome few yeares past, I intended the whol Worke of Pedro Mexia, with some other Authours on the like Arguments of variety. I then published nine Bookes, with intention to have made them vp fifteen, for the first Volume: but being pre-uented by ficknesse, I finished but the first nine Bookes; and finding the good acceptance of them, I have adventured now on ten Bookes more, of the like Ancient and Moderne Times: sauing only, some particular Heads but lightly touched, are now (by the fame Authors) more at large illustrated. And may this finde equal fauour vnto the former (withoutany harsh censure, or vnkinde discouragement:) the other eleuen Bookes shall follow with all convenient speede, to finish up so faire a Treasury.

Earewell.

The Contents.

The first Booke.

F the Ancient Gauls, their Original, Lawes, Cuftomes, and Ceremonies. The Disciplines of theyr Druides or Priestes, to the yonger people. Alfo of their Bards, Poets, Sarro-nides, Eubages, & profession of Languages, with other manners veed among ft them, as well in warre as in peace, and how they have continued and changed fince.

The fecond Booke.

OF the New Gaules, now called the French their manhood, valor, and successeful fortunes from their beginning. The greatnesse of their Kings, their many battels, and famous victories.

Of the names of Kings and Emperour: as also of the Originall of Royalty.

The Battell of Rauenna.

Of the learned women, called the Sybils. The feuen wonders of the World.

Famous military Orations both of Romaines nd lewes.

The Battaile of Nouara, &c.

The third Booke.

THe originall of the Switzers. 1 The manner of Gouernement observed in all their seuerall Cantons.

ınd particular.

Likewise of their warres and Battailes.

The fourth Booke.

OF the Kingdom and Court of Spaine, with the Lawes, Customes, and manners of the Nation. Alfo the division and Cituation of the faid country

Concerning the kingdome of Portugall, the be ginning, continuance, and present estate thereof, with the Lawes, Customes, and administration of lustice therein obserued.

Of the Kingdome of Naples, the Antiquitie, Lawes, and Customes thereof.

The Originall of the Salique Law, the first Auhors and inventers thereof.

The Originall of the Normans. The first planting of the Vine, and prohibition f wine among the ancient Romains.

Examples by Birds, Flyes, and other Creatures, for the leading of a vertuous life. The Originall of Triumphs : why they were first granted, and what a Triumph is.

Of the Crownes and other recompences, given by the Romaines to noble deserving Soldiers, &c.

The fifth Booke.

F the Nobility of England, Politicall and Ci-

The Rites and Ceremonies vsed in the Creation of Barons by Charter.

The Kings Charter for the creating of a Viscont The Charter Royall for the creation of an Earl, a Masquesse, Marchionesse, as also of a Duke, and the manner of creating them : being all lively represented in their seuerall habites, by Figures cut in Braffe.

The Kings Charter for creating the Prince of Wales.

The Crowning of the King, as well in former times, as now

The order of the Parliament pompe. The maner of restoring blood once tainted.

The Order of the Knights of the Garter, by who instituted, when, and how.

The Collegiate Society of Heralds.

The fixth Booke.

OF the Commonwealth of the Gennes or Genewayes, with the Government and admini-What Confederates they have, both in generall stration of Justice there weed.

An excellent Relation, concerning the estate, Religion, and Common-wealth, which was obserued among the lewes.

Of their three Sects, (viz:) the Pharifies, the Sadduces, and Essans : their Originall or man-

Of their three Families: The first being the po-Sterity of Iesus : The second, the Asmoneans : & the third, Antipater the Idumaan of Ascalon: with a clearing of doubts in divers Authors.

Of Ceremonies wfed by the Romaines, before they moued any warre, &c.

The feuenth Booke.

THe Common-wealth of Luca, with their Lawes and Constitutions.

Of divers accidents, serving as divining Auguries in elder times, whereby to judge of things to

The Contents.

A true module of Gouernment in any Common. wealth, derived from the communitie of Bees. The three Conquests of England by the Saxons, Danes, and Normanes. The three famous battailes of Gaza, Grand Cayer, and at Nylus.

The first invention of wearing Rings, with the vertues and properties remaining in precious

Of the Septuagint, or 70. Translators of the Olde Testament, out of Hebrew into Greeke.

The admirable vertues and properties of the lie dumbe also; and he that is borne among dumbe

A briefe survay concerning the Netherlands, divided into 17. Provinces, with a breviate of the knowing how to speake. Earles and Princes there raigning, from Thierry the first Earle of Holland and Zeland, to this infant time.

The eight Booke.

OF the Venetians, and the manner of their pollicie.

The foundation of Venice.

The lines and memorable acts of their Dukes

Of Gun-sbot, and other fiery Engines.

Of Physicke and Physitions.

Of the feuen Sages of Greece. The first foundation of Ierusalem, what fortunes befell it from time to time, and what Kings reig-

Of the twelve Moneths in the yeare, as also of ancient and moderne figures represented by them, with divers other misteries beside.

The ninth Booke.

Oncerning the Countrey of Molcouia or Rul-lia, and of the seureall commodities which the Pearles. land yeeldeth.

The Linage and descent of the Russian Empe- courses.

Against the permission of Duells, or single Com- perour, his Enstalment and Inauguration. His manner of Gouernment, Parliaments, Laws, Cultomes.Warres.erc.

> His power for warre and Military Discipline. What Orders, Rites, Sacraments and Ceremonies are observed in the Moscouian Church.

> Of poy (ons given to kill at a certaine day, whether they can doe it, or no.

Of erroneous and vile opinions, yet beleeved for What language they shall speak, that never heard any speech. That a man or woman borne deafe, is necessariwhat the reason is of a childes being so tardie in

The tenth Booke.

The Kingdome of Ireland, the Original of it,

By whom it hath beene inhabited and Gouerned from the beginning.

How those parts and Countries, commonly caleld The New World, were first found.

The excellencie and dignitie of Marriage. Of the Doctors of Sorbonne, and their first Ori-

The reason why some Princes and Commonweales have prospered in the time of Warre, and runne to ruine in peacefull dayes.

Of those qualities and behaviours necessarily reauired to be in a Prince. That the eldest some ought alwaies to be aduanced and preferred before the younger. Concerning the great Monarchy of the Casars or Romanes. Of the Bezars stone.

A learned Tract, concerning the generation of

With many other excellent and memorable dif-

FINIS.

A Table of the Authours Names, that alledge and approoue the seuerall Arguments, contained in this Booke.

Aristotle). Ammianus Marcellinus Auenzoar. Арріапис

Agathias Alethina Auitus Arrianna Albertus Strasbourg Auicenne Auerroes

Athanasius

Antonius Sabellieus Archytas Tarentinus Antoninue Annsus de Viterbo Annales Constantinop. Annales Trenirensis Autor de Bel. Affric. Arnoldes Listans

Adrianus Imperat. Aymonius Āleuinus Agapeius Aulus Gellint Ægisîppus Ælianus Æneas Sylvina Æ schylus Æschines

Æmillius Viltor Ætisu. Ælius Lampridius Amilliu Macer ASperarius Athenem Asinius Pollio

Apuleius Panisis

Alexander Alexandrinus Alexand. Aphrodiseus Apolonsus Thyaneus Anthony du Lebrix Aristander Antonius Nebricensis

Albertus Magnus Aristomachus Achilles Statins

Aristophanes Andronicus Athenensis. Ansonius Lombardus Aretine Acamathius Antoninus Syl. Alphonius Rex Hill. Attalus

Accurtius Azzo Alexand.Trallianus Atteius Capito Asconius Padianus Appianus Alexandrinus Archilocus

Arnoldus Ferronina Amatus Ariftarchus Antoninus Arch. Floren. Antifthenes Anaximander

Albertus (rantzius Alexand. Guaguinus Anaximenes Abbas Siculus Almadattus Arab. Augurellus

Anthenor Annales I.Store Altuarisu Aurea Historia Asserina Meneuensis Álfridus Benerlacensis Adam Merimont b

> Alliances genealogiques de Rou & Princes de France Annales de Aquitaine Annales de Bourgoigne Annales du France. Annales rerum Flandricayun

Biblia Sacra S.Basile S.Bernard Boter us Bene sus Baldus Abbat Baldm Doc. Civil. Berofus Bucchanan Baronius

Budaus

Bandello

Baptista Fulgotine Blandus Bartholomeus Boetsus

Boccace Bonfinus Barthol.Picenus Bartholus Ветепна

Barthol, Dardan 111 Beroaldus Baptifta Ignation

Rellonius Bodinus Bozins Bachi Anchisia

Bucholcerus Balthazar Castillanois. Bætius Senerinus B. Westmerus ,

S.Cerill. S. Ghry fost ome Columella Cedrenus Claudianua Crescentina Clemens Alexand. Cocil. Tolet

Capitolinus Cornelists Tacitus Cicero Ciaconisu Chrysippus Cardanus

Cleomedes Collenutius Conradus Epifc. Cneus Epidius Conelius Agrippa

Caclus Cenforinus Cellus Cleanthes Chalcidius

Caline Rhodiginus. (landini Victor Charles de Molin Comment. Cafar Constantinus Casar Calmatheus.

Cheremonius Chronersu Pol. Cassiodorus

Corninus Mell. CratinNe Ctesippus Alexand. Crantzius

Colophonius Count Balthazar Caline Calcagnine Сијріпіапна

Dion

Dicaarchus

D

Diodorus Siculus Dioni (Halicar. Dionif. Areopag. Diogenes Laersing Dioscorides Demosthenes . Democritus Diocles Diogenes Cynic. Damascene " D. Pedro Epif. Leon Demetrius Alexand Du Bart as Dictis Cretenfis Dares Phrygius Damasc.Sigierus Dionif.Lycinus

Dionif. Cassian Eumeniua Ephorns

Donatus

Ecditius Eulebins. Eucherius Eumenides Epiphanins Estinan de Garibay Eghinhard Enuodius Euripides Eratosthenee Enniss Eustatius Eutropius

Erasistratus

Ebu-

		ors

Ebulus Galen Galiotiu de Nargni. Enclides Еграсия Geor. Trabezon Euanthes Guliel. Budens Ерісичи Galerus Guydonius Empedocles Era(mus Roter. Guydo Bonatus Estius Genebrardus Egmus Empolemus Geor Leont inw Gregor, Giraldus Elpagoras Gregor. Rech. Eupolis Снената. Epifc. Tyrienfis P. Ereb de Rem Ind. Egnatius S.Hierom. Enagrine : Hift. Miscellan. Euans Estien Pasquier Homer Epilletiu Euchirid,Eral. Herodotus Hirtim Epicharmus Hermanu Hesiodne Heraclides Ponticus Hermolaus Barbar. Froi Tard Hugo de S.Victor

Fortunat us Hierocles Fanchet Heliconiensis Fenestella. Hippocrates Frontinus Harpocration Hift. D. Villamont Fabius Pictor. Flanins Epife. Herodianus Fasciculus Temp. Horace Hermes Trifmegist. Fernelius. Flores Poetar Hermocrates Fran. Georgius Heliscus Tatius Fabianus Prator Heraclisms Fran Philelphia Heraclidee Funtting Hen. Hunting don Festus Pompeius Hift Poland Hallian, Chron, Hall Holinshed Hostiensis Hermippus Herophilus

Hinemarus

Hier,Oforius

Hepheltion Grec.

Haly ben Razel.

Hier Conestagio

Inlim Pollux

Io(ephus

Innenall

Iustine

Inlina Florus

Iulius Secundus

Iul. Caf. Comment.

Innocentius Papa

Hinibaldus

Helsodorus

Houllier

S.Gregory S.Greg Nazianzen Guliel.Tyrien Gehmianus Cuil de Naugis Gennadius Greg .Floren. Greg. Turonnenf. Gregor . Papa cemer Guicciardine Gaudentine Merula Geber

Glareanus Gontierus Gualt. Monach. Garcias d'Orta Gaulfrid Monumet. Guyldas Gyrald. Cambrenlis Guliel. Malmef. Jemma Frisius

Ioan, Feraldus Ioan de Imola Inline Capitolinus Io.de Sacrabolco Io.Lincolniensis Io. Agricanus Io.Bale Iulius Frontinus Isidorus Íamblichus Ingulphus Inlina Pelagina Iustinatus I suac Rab. lo. Roufe Iulian Imperat. Iustin, Mattyr Io.Scotus Io. Alexandrinus Iulius Firmicus Io.de Mons Royalis

> Io. Math. Tierinus Io.Vasxus Io.Saxonius Io. Magnus Arch, Hispal. I Corrate Îreneus Io, Capgrane Invandue Io Monachus lacques Bofius Io. Damascenus Io. Baptift Equation Io. de A aulmont lacques de Maguntia Io. Boccace Ioachim Vadianus loel, Med, Hexand. Ionbert Med. Gal. lo: Camerses to: Carion Io: Cantachzenne lo: Fernelius I faac. Indaiche Іоніаны Роптаны Io: Lastens Iacobius Faber lo: Annius.

Io. Driodonni

I Ceus

Lucian Lnc:us Fruitus Leo Imperat Lucius Plotius Latinus Pacatus Lucane Lattan.Firmianus Lupu Episc.Troi Liebondus Lodonicus Vines Leo Affricanus

Lastantius Grammat Leonardus Camillus Laonicus Calchond. Licinius Macer Lucas Tudensis Lazaro Soranzo Lucretina Leo Hebraico Lodonicus Calina Leo Sophift. Labeo Antistins Limes Lateranus Lucius Florus Laurentine Surine Lopez de Caftagned Lucas Miarinus Sic. Lampridina Lazarus de Baif. Lodo: Valentinus Leo Papa Lucas de Tuy

M Marcus Aper Marcellus Marcus Varro Molina Hispa. Marineus Sicul Martianus Capellus Martin du Bellay Macrobius Marianna Scotus Martiall Mantuas Mesala Augurius

Lerrus

Lysias

Metrodorus Marcus . Aurelius Moschiones N'arbodeus Messala Corninus Macchianell Moyfes Bar: Cepha Marsilina Phicinus Matheus Palmerius Martinus Marcus Maniliue Marcus Paulus Metasthenes Mathew Paris

Manethon

Мафень

Munster

Mathiolus

Musaus

Mesuus

Machew Westminft Marcus Valerius Monsieur de Villament Marcus Damascenus Monsieur de la Noue

The Authors Names.

Mef. Angelo Catho. Paul. Touins Marnllus Phil Commines Mer, Gal, Bel. Pilonins Paul Orosins Platina Nodgerus Nazarius Nanclerus Nico. Boyerus Politianus Niceph.Gregorius Pindarus Nico de Lyra Nigidino Nico Secundinu Nicander

Nico. Monardus Nico.Raffans Parmenides Nicetas Consates Numenius Pythag. Petofyris Nico.de Cuía Nico. Myrepfic. Pachymerius Phil. Melanethon. Pojidius Praxagoras Ozorina Optatus Onuphrica Orofiss Orontius Phineus Orpheus Oibo Sechiepif. Olradus Olaus Magnus Olans Arc. Ulpal.

Neuina

Pausanias Procopius Panius Polonius Paules Diaconns Ptolomens Pontine Paulinus Phæbadius ProSber Pub.Ter.Varro Phanorinus Petrarche

Polybius

Plato Plutarke Pliny Pomponius Mela Phadrus Posidon ins

Petrus Lombardus Petrus Abayelard. Philostratus Petrus Belluque Petrus Iacob. Paul Warnefridus

Pet.Martyr Pedro Mexia Paul. Emilling Phlegonius Grec. Paul de Castro Paul. Agmesus Pet Gellius P.C.Radianus Plining Secundar Pittacus Polydor Virgil Pedro de Albano

> Proculeius Philemon Philo Indai Pet Olinerine Pet.Comestar Pet . Crinit us Porphyrius Philippides . Pythagoras Properties Pansanias Pius 2. Papa Pomponius Latus Per (eus Poutanue Pet.de Aliacus Policrates Pegasus

Pontin,Verunnius Platearius Probus Palemon Paul, de Nola Pomp.Lensu Libert Plantus Piduxius Pog gins Popinierus

Quintillian Quintus Curtius Quint Septimius

Ronfard

Ruftic Theophrastus Rutil. Numation Trogus Pompeius Ritins Titus Lining Roder Ximenes Timagenes Rabanus Thomas Aquinas Rog. Honeden Rabbi Isaac Rogerius Theodoline Tertullian Themistocles Theopompus Tabitheus Tetellus

Toninus

Tibullus

Thales Milesina

Theod.Gaz.a

Timocrates

Tithalmanu

Rupertus Ruffinus Raph Volateran. Regino Chron Rabhi Helie Roder Toletan. Rondeletius Reuclin Rablaia Suetonisu Tranquil.

Seneca

Surdas

Solon

Scopas

Sophocles

Sim.Simoneu

Stoflerinus

Sannarar

Sabellicus

Spartianus

Surius

Sethins

Serapion

Stobens

Serenus

Schoners

Stoeflerus

Sammonicus

Trebellius Pollio

Sinesius

Sylina Italicus

Seleins Baffus

Sebast. Munster.

Simonides Melli.

Sexius Aurelius

Saxo.Grammat.

Sieur de Pybrac.

Sext. Pompeius

Sigif de Herbest.

Tranquillus Theuetus The odores Solinus Polyhift. Theophrast us Surianus Tuditanus Salust Theod, Bibliander Saluiantu Thucydides Servius Tritemins Symmachus Tilius Scaliger Theophanes Sigonius Terentius Stephanus Theodotus Suggerns 7 homistius Strabo Thomas More Tarcog. Hift.Mund. Socrates Sidonius Apollonar Sieur de Ionuille Virgill Vitranius Vopiscus Varro Valerius Max. Welleine Patercul. Vincentius Lyranens. Valturinus Venerab, Beda Vegetius Valer, Flacens Volatteranus Vlpianus Valentinus Barruchius.

 \boldsymbol{z} Zenophon Zenocrates Zonarus Zozimus Zeno Zuricanus Zarmanochegas.

Nef.

THE TREASVRIE

of Ancient and Moderne TIMES.

THE FIRST BOOKE.

Of the ancient Countrey of Gaule, now called France; what Lawes, Customes, Ceremonies, and other manners were vied among the people of that Nation in their first Originals: and how (fince then) they have continued.

by the Belgians.

An Introduction to the whole Discourse.

The first li-

N ancient times, the Countrey of Gaule was enclofed within the limits of the Rhein, of the Alpes, of the Mediterrane-V an fea, of the Pyrenean Mountains, and of the Ocean fea. But after that the Gaules had passed the Alpes; all the Countrey which was from the Mountains, fo farre as the river * Rubicon, along by the coast of the Apennines, and so vp into the high Sea (which at this day is called the Gulfe of Venice) took the mata dwelt the Aquitans, which are they name of Gaule : as Galatia did the like, afof Guienne, euen from the Pyrenean ter that wee had subdued some people of Afia. That Gaule then which is in Europe, on the hitherfide whereof are the Celts, being halfe parted by the Alpes, is diviinhabiting fo farre as the Rivers of Sena and Marna. All the rest of the country ded into two parts; the one on the hither fide of the Mountaines, and the other beyond. That which is on the further fide, yet concerning vs, was called by the Romanes *Togata: as Romane, in regard of monly called a Gowne, and which they then did viually weare. That on the hither fide, was (by themselues) named properly Braceata (by a certain fashion of garment then worne by them, termed Breeches) and partly * Comata, in regard that the haire on their heads was verie bushy. Braccata in the time of Julius Cafar , had *Comata.com Bracesta in the time of Iulius Cafar , had his extendure from the Alpes, fo farre as Rofne or Rhodanus bending towardes the Pyrenean Mountaines, where were comprized the Volca, Armoreanes, Rhutheni or Rhunteni and Utlansius continuals to the Rhunteni and Utlansius continuals and Alperia.

the habit of the Romanes, being com-

Khynteni, and Heluetians, as it is to be feen in the feuenth Book of Cafars Commen-Iul Caf, In Com ment, bb 7. taries. This country was one while called Prouence, and then againe Narbone, after the name of Narbona, then the chiefe Prouence cal-led Narbone. and capitall Citie of the country. In Co-

Braccata,con taining Narbó Proucuce, or Dau/phinie

Mountaines, so farre as the river Garona: A siuer pat ting Celica extending toward the North, is possessed | The Authors Now the fearch would bee very great, fence concer and hard to be performed by any ma, that na, that ning his pur-pose in this Would History.

Italy, rifing out of Apenni betweene Areminum and Range into the Adriatique

A Riuer in

& new Lom-

and customes which the ancient Gaules Inlius Cafar, and their nouell qualities from those dayes to ours. But such as can content themselves with that diligence, which generally may be deliuered by the proofes of good and sufficient Authours, worthy of faith and found credit; perhaps shall finde their expectation well fitted, both with honest pleasure and profite in their reading. And with this intention am I determined to make (furnmarily) a collection out of many writers, that haue carefully imployed their paines, concerning the manners and behaulour of the Gaules, according as matters might be re-membred, in such diversity of distant places. And first, we will select out the most Ancient : afterward (if wee can bring our purpose to full effect, and as our endeuor shall nothing be wanting) we will as diligently feeke for the nouell customes.

Cafar hath comprehended a certaine forme and femblance of Gaul in her ancient dayes; especially in the fixt booke of his Commentaries, of the warre in Gaul: albeithe hath fowen many other things throughout his Bookes: which I having good Authors collected heere and there, and from infinite places in other Authors, so that the whole may ferue to encrease and fully illustrate the course of our purpose; wee may the more reasonably accomplish that which thall ferue to make knowne our ful aime and scope. Neuerthelesse, I am not to learne, that the Greekes which have followed Cafar, wer it that they understood not the latine tongue, or were it through carelefinesse and negligence; have declared in many places, that they scarsely vnderstoode the matters contained in his Commentaries. Wherefore we will first of all imitate Ca/ar, as the most great and fingular Author and master of our history: and then purfue others, according as they have borrowed any thing of him, or as they ferue to make the whole subject

Britaines and Germanes with the Gauls,

The cheefest placesin Great Britain poffetfed by the Gaules, of the history

Tul.Cef.in com

Diners other with Catar.

Errorsin

Greeke Au-

thers that fol-owed Calar.

would (with a certaine history of all the | as will bee declared by that which Cafar times) fet downe the fathions, manners, hath written; I imagined with my felfe, that it would very conveniently fute with had held and observed, vntill the daies of our purpose, to compare such fashions as carried any coherence in these Nations. Confidering that Calar thought it fit, to compare the customes of Gaule, with Jul Cafin com them of Germany. And Strabo, percey- strabo in line. uing the Germanes to be called fo by the Romanes, as true brethren to the Gauls, by refemblance of their manner of living, when he wrote the fashions and customs of the ancient Gaules, he reproued them. and began with the Germanes. But although that Tacitus hath fayd, That they were named Germanes, by an appellation proper to their Nation, and fuch as they pleased to stile themselnes; yet notwith-standing, how soeuer at first they received Resemblance that name, there may be differred in the in customes a great Germanity, or (for our better vnderstanding) a Fraternity, both in behauiour and customes, answerable one vnto Germans. another. For our better beginning then, we will conclude on certaine kindes of manners. to the end, that each thing may be carried as may be most convenient. Plato sayeth. There are three principal parts in the bo-Three cheefe dy of Man, wherein are lodged the three principall powers of the foule; Concupiscence in the Liver, Anger in the Heart, and Reason in the Head, as in a Citadell. In like manner, there are three feuerall Three especikinds of vertues that do command & gouerne them : Sobriety or Temperance to ver ueto go ouerfway Concupiscence in the Liver; verne the po-Courage, against Anger in the Heart; and wers of the Wisedome, in thinking and judging with Reason. The common consent & agreement of all which, is the faithfull dutie of each one, euen as it were with diuers voices, & worthily may be called Iuffice. Cafar and Diodorus, Titus Linius, Strabo, and others, who are as interpreters of Ca-/ar, do declare many things of the Gauls and other in wif I wouldhaue fet down at large in my tersteters of Discourse, according as they are written by them: I should rehearse one and the fame matter too many times. Wherefore

I will rather imitate their intention in each place, then bee constrained to alledge their multiplicity of words.

CHAP.

CHAP.I.

Of the Temperance in eating and drinking vfed among the Gaules : as also of theyr Marriages and fingle condition of life.

odging; their sportes, delights and assi-fed to have standing by their fires, pottes full of boyled flesh, and spits well loaden with roafted flesh; the better part whereof they would give to men of worth, to doe them honor: as Homer writes, That the Grecian Captains did to Aiax, when he had won the victory against Hetter body to body . Cafar granteth the felfe-fame manner of life to the Britaines, and to the Germanes. The Britaines (faith he)which dwell furtheft up into the Countrey, the most part of them do not sowe any corne but live onely vpon milke and flesh. Neuertheleffe, they hold in detestation (by what religious opinion I know not) to tafte of an Hare, of an Hen or Chicken, and of a Goofe. Hee faith alfo the very same in his seuenth book, speaking of the Germanes; That they do not addict them selues to any kinde of labour, and that their very greatest nourishment is vppon white meats, cheese and flesh. But Tacitue hath written much more amply concerning the manner of life amongst the Germans. Each mother (faith hee) doth nurse her childe with her owne breft, and neuer trufteth it in the hands of their fer-uants, or other Nurses. Thou canst not know the Master from the Varlet, by any kinde of more delicate feeding. They liue nakedly and flouenly euen amongit their Heards or droues of Cattle; & lying vponthe ground, vntill fuch time as age

The Authou beginneth with Tempe-stance, which they affoord to one another in fuch things as they have. Concerning the eating and drinking of the ancient The eating & Gaules, they lived for the most part (acdrinking of the Ancient cording to Diedorus and Strabo) on white Gaules Diodor.in lib. 4 meats, and divers kinds of flesh, & principally on Porke fresh and salted. They v-lu'ius Cafar is Of the Ger-

Corn.Tacitus lib.3. cap. 1.

doth fet apart fuch as are Mafters, & ver= tue doeth auouch and make them to bee knowne. Their viands are simply dreffed or prepared, being of wilde fruits; fometimes of fresh Venision, or curded milke. without any dainty cooking or dreffing.

Of the Ancient Gaules.

Without any canny cooking or meaning.

So much for their manner of eating.

As for their drinke, that among the field by the ancient Gaules, and termed Zythum: This (Tayth Diederus) was made of barley and water, having paffed thorowdiuers honicombs.

O enter then on the point of Temperance, wee might fpeake of their abflinence in the Germanes. They make a drinke (faith the of water, mingled both with barley & wheate, difguifed into fome refemblance of wheate, diffusited into fome refemblance of wheate, diffusited into fome refemblance of wheater of the refemblance of wheater of the refemblance of wheater of the refemblance of the refemblanc peech, their modesty in Garments and coasts, do buy wine. The most part of the Gaules (as Diodorus & Strabo doe both Diodor,in lib. write) vied to fitte on the ground and to eate their food, fitting on the skinnes of Their manner Dogges or of wolues: being ferued with of eating their earthen veffelles, which were strong and meate. massiue, and wrought about with branches of flowers; and they were alwayes attended and ferued by their young children. In like manner Tacitus recordeth, cornel, Tacitus That the Germans fo foone as they were awake and rifen (which they vsed not to their body in do till it was day:) they laued and washed warme water themselues with warme water, because winter continued in their region for the most part of the yeare; and at comming foorth of the bathe, they went vnto theyr foode, each one hauing his table and feat alone by himselfe. Thus then was their ancient and rude fimplicity, which caused the Germanes to be so big membred and big statute of corpulent, whereat Tactus feemeth to the Germans and Gaules. maruell greatly. And thence likewise enfued the selfe-same greatnesse of bodye which was among the Gaules, vvho for their huge corpulency, and regarding only their owne bigneffe of stature, held the finaller constitution of the Romanes in contempras may be seene in the 2, book of the wars in Gaul. But Plato reprehendeth the Gaules for their intemperance and drunkennes with wine; and Diodorus writeth the very fame. neffe amongst They affected Wine fo excessively, that the Gaules. when the Merchants brought it to them, they dranke it wholly new as it was; and then becomining drunk, by having taken ouermuch, they lay downe to fleepe, or behaued themselues like mad men. And this was the reason that many of the Ita-

But in regard that the principall parts of Great Britaine, as also of Germany, haue bene seized by the Gan'es, as shal appear in due time and place; and forafmuch as there hath bene great resemblance of the

Ronalus Lawe

Italian Marchants broght wine to the lian Merchants for the gaine which they of them, what might be their natural difgot both by fea and land; brought wine in great plenty thither, and for a imal veffell of wine, receyued (in exchange) foure times the value. And the same Authour not onely blameth their drunkennes, but alfo the quarrels which accompanied this excesse. They observed (saith he) as a custome, at their feeding, for the least debate of words, to rife presently from the Diodor, in lib. The Gaules hazarded their lines vp quarrels.

corn Tacitus i lib.4.cap:5.

in nothing but drinking a mongest the Germanes.

An Order ae

Cafar in com ment lib s

Most valiant & fierce peo

Table, and defie one another to the combate, hazarding their lines without any diferetion. Thus you fee how the Greeks haue reprooued the ancient Gaules; and Tacitus calleth the Germanes theyr Brethren in the same vice, accusing them equally to bee drunkards and quarrellers. They vsed not (faith he) any such temperance against thirst. For they held it no dishonor, to spend the whole day and night The whol day in drinking, fo they might bee suffered to dricke their fill. furnishing them with fo much as they would have: you shold find them no leffe caffe to bee conquered by their vices, then by armes. The quarrels which rose very often among them, as among people subject to Wine, was no fooner mingled with injuries of the mouth; but (for the most part) did end with blowes by the fword to the expence of their blood, yea of their liues. Such was the blame which the Germanes received by making no more account of fo bad a cuftome; euen as if this vice had bene no vice among them, or did any way shame But the Gaules vsed themselues in better manner: for by a publicke ordinance this vile behauiour (in particular persons) was verie greenously and rigorously punithed. Let vs heare then from Cafar the cause of the magnanimity of the Gaules; which was, by knowing how to keep thesclues from this disorderly kinde of life. The most magnanimous of all (faith he in his first Booke, speaking of the Belgians, Celts, and Aquitanes) are the Belgians, because they are furthest off in the countrey, which is carefully husbanded, and strangers doe but sildome trafficke with them, to bring them that which serveth to no other end but to effeminate their courages.

In the same book speaking of the Neruians, as of the most couragious of al the Belgians, he faith; Cafar making enquiry position and manners, her found, That Merchants did not trafficke with them,& that they would not fuffer (by any means) that wine should be brought among the, or any thing that serued for delicacy. For they held (as an infallible opinion) that fuch things wer the cause of abasing their hinderers of courage, & that their natine vertue would nanly corage thereby be much weakned. Whereby we may perceive, that the intemperance of fome particular men, was condemned by a generall and publicke decree; and that fobriety & temperate carriage was greatly respected and honored in those parts. Strabe fayeth, That by the perswasion of Cenus, a grave and wife man, the Getes Of the Getes rent and pluckt vp all the Vines in theyr country, yet yied fome wine in the time of their childrens nursing. But our Anceftors did much better because they would No vines planeuer permit or suffer, that any Vine ted amongst the Gaules.

to be brought them from any other place.

Wherefore Diodorus had good reason to fav, that in his time there came no vvine at all into Gaule Comata.

Cafar in his fourth Booke, maketh the Iul. Cafar in Sueues, a people of Germany, equall in comment. Lib 4 temperance to the Neruians that were in Gaule. For they would not suffer that any wine should bee brought into their theriver countrey, because they were perswaded, Alpes. that it made men lazie, effeminate, and vnapt to endure any labor. Thus we may obserue then, what was their sobrictie in eating and driffking, wherein their greater part of vertue is commended; for abstinence from lewd and wanton women. And albeit that Diodorus, Strabo, * Barde- An Historiofanes, according as Eufebius reporteth; Babylon being all of them Grecian Authors, have Eulis in hiller Eccles 1.4.2.28 reproued this vice as frequent and common among the Gaules, and which is as innated (if credite may bee given to Ari-(totle) in warlike actions; whereby the fa- drift: in lib. 4. ble was fained of conjoyning Venus with de anim cap.9 God Mars: vet notwithstanding, Cafar fpeaketh nothing therof, but giveth great commendation to the Germans for their temperance, contrary to them that have written otherwise of them.

Such as haue continued in virgin estate Offuch as lithe longest while among them, and with - ued longest in out the knowledge of any other but their virgineitate owne body received the very greatest re-

should be planted among them, or wine

Of fuspition concerning the husban phers concer

Of the Ancient Gaules.

villanous thing to haucknowledge of a woman, before the age of twenty veeres. In all which time they did not hide themfelues, but bathed daily together in the riuers. And this is the reason rendered by Herodotus, speaking of the nature of children, wherefore haire commeth much

Herod, in Terp

Of the nature of Children.

men amongst tile Germans

Young men children equalled theyr fathersftregth

Iulius Celar in omment Lib 6

ued in marriages amongelt the Gaules.

The doctrine of the Philo ning the huf-bands power.

Chap. 1. spect and praise. For they held it as a most

The younger

fooner to fome then it doth to others:because the vie of Venus maketh the flesh more loofe and flaggy, and openeth the skinne, which affordeth the enfier paffage to the haire; contrarywife, fuch Children as are gelded, have never any haire at all. Tacities hath not omitted the felfefame attribution of praife to the Germans. Yong men are long time before they have any knowledge of women : and that is an efpeciall reason why they lose no part of their yourhfull strength, and therefore make no haft at all of parting with their virgin condition . Young Laddes, and fuch (of like stature) as are gelded, do make triall of their agility together, and their children do (commonly) partake of their Parents strength.

Marriages do appertaine to the rule of the same vertue : but Cafar hath not written carefully how the Gauls observed it. The husband (faith hee) laide downe the delight of women, nor to repaire a new valew of fo much goodes, as his wife brought with her, and a just account being taken thereof, the whole stocke was put together. The party that furuined enloved the others portion, with the reuennewes of all that had paft. The husbands are mafters and commaunders of their wines lines, and also of their Childrens. When any Father of a Family (of note) dyeth, the nerest of the kindred do affemble together, and if any fuspition be conceyued concerning his death: the Wife is committed to tortures, as they doe theyr flaues, and if the prooue to be convinced; after they have tormented her with fire, continually advertised, that she is thus reand all other kinds of paines, they put her ceiued and taken to be her husbads comto death. This law may seeme hard, that panion in all paines and dangers, and that giueth the husband fuch like power ouer (be it either peace or warre) thee must of the wife and children, as he hath ouer his necessity runne the same fortune. And the fame Commonwealth, & to his chil-flaues. For, according as the Philoso-phers have taught vs: the father of the family giveth command to his wife & children, as vnto free persons. Yet this is not all as one kinde of command: for hee giueth command to his wife as to one of dren as a King. The Law truly may appeare to be hard, and yet it is Roman, euen the like as Komulus made, Ordayning; That the sonne should bee in his fathers power all his life; and that the father may fathers. chastife, beate, put him to any busines in the field, fell, or kill him. The fame King alfo appointed, That a man might punnish his wife, if the had drunke any wine. Cafar speaketh all this in his fixt booke: and in his fift hee declareth divers other fashions of behauiour in marriages, spea-

dowry to the husband, but the husband to the wife. The parents, coufins, & kindred are present thereat, and allow of all presents passing between them. And they are no presents deuised for delicacie or mysteries, & these are the conjugal gods these are plainly signified vnto her by the coupled Oxen, the furnished horse, and warlike weapons. She receiveth what the

that they hold in reverence.

king of the Britaines. Ten or twelue together (faith he) do Observation hold their wives in common, and princi-pally brethren with their brethren, and fathers with their daughters. And fuch as Britaines. are born of them, are assouched for children of them that have espoused their mothers, being yet maids. So much also he relateth of the English . But Tacieres Cornelius Taciwriting of the Germaines, giueth them Inpraise of most noble commendation in this point. the Germans. The wife (faith hee) neuer offereth anie intended marriage: but they are a gift of Oxen yoaked, a horse brideled and surni- Presents give fhed, & a Buckler or Target, with a fword and I aucline. For these presents the hufband.

band taketh his wife; who likewife (on hir owne behalfe) presenteth him with some weapons of warre. This is the great marriage bond, these are accounted sacred

And to the end that the wife may not Aduertifethinke her felfe exempted from vertuous wife from the deffeignes, nor the hazards of warre: from day of hir mathe very beginning of her marriage the is riage.

is to bestow on her children after that the Mysterious hath worthily and holily nurfed them vp: | Ingnincations to the Wife.

& fuch as are of most forward disposition the Father hath care of that they may refemble

Education of femble (in good quality) others of theyr 3, And Cafar speaketh thereof in his fealinage. And then they line, keeping their chastity well defended; not being corrupted by any occasions, nor the fight of wanton pastimes, or beeing present at Feafts or bankets.

Women puni-fhed by theyr adultery ment thereof is very foeedy, and the hufband may lawfully do it . After hee hath thauen and stript her naked, the husband bringeth her forth of his house, in the prefence of all his and her neerest Kindred . and beateth her with a bastinado thorow all the streetes; for there is no allowance of any pardon after that a wife hath blegranted for a-dultery. mished her honor; and neither her beauty, youth, or riches can afterward winne

there to be laughed and iested at: & one may well fay, That (there) is fuch a world, as neith r permitteth the doing or induring of any diffolutenesse. Those Commonweales are the best ordered, wherein is fuch permission, that the Maides onely finde themselves husbands, and mariage confifteth in mutuall accord(for a long while) in goodhope, and that the tion of marri Bride may haue her hearts desire. For in age making. this cafe the taketh her husband as one & the felfefame body, and one life is allowed by them both: because they can haue no contrary thoughts, neither theyr defires any way wandering, but their affections doe fo simpathize, as not in either to husband or wife, but to the fanctity of marriage. It is helde as a very great of-Against mur fence, to procure the death of any of their children, or of their kindred : And there good customes do beare more sway, then good Lawes and Ordinances doe elfewhere. Hitherto haue wee continued the writing of Tacitus, concerning the Germanes marriages.

Vices not iefted at.

Diodorus reprehendeth the Gaules for a certaine kinde of difordered behauiour in their speaking, saying, They vse a short kinde of speech, somewhat hard to be vn-derstood, and without any deliberation :

speaking great store of doubtfull things, vet deliuering many bragging and vaun-ting words; much to commend the felues and in the contempt of others. They are threatners and bad speakers, and full of ouerweening. This vauntery of theirs hath likewise beene reprooned by Strabo in lib.

of fpeaking a mongst the thering of Children or Kindred.

uenth Booke, and is also to be proued by diners examples in his other books. Such There are very few adulteries committed in so great a Nation; for the punish-is that whereof hee tpeaketh in his first booke, of Diviconius the Heluctian, who Div conne the highly extolled and vaunted the vertue of Heluetian the Heluctians, and reproached the difcomfiture of the Romanes, admonifhing Cafar by menaces to beware of any further attempting; for feare, leaft the place where the Romanes miscarried, by a further loffe of their people, after the foiling of their whole Army, should take name thereby, and so remaine as a memorie of their difgrace.

Such alfo was Ariouistus, King of the Germans, who answering little or nothing mans. to matters which Cafar demaunded of her another husband. Vices serue not him; spake wonders of his owne valour. and that he neuer buckled with any man, but he was ruined. And Cafar might com Lib. 1. to fight whenfoeuer he pleafed, but he should learne of the Germaines, that they were a people neuer vanquished, and skilfull enough in actions of armes. Vercingetorix also vanted in his oration, that hee would make a League with all the Gaules, and then all the world durft not make head against them. This is sufficient concerning this matter; I come now to speake of the care which they had of their owne persons.

CHAP.II.

How the Gaules v fed to weare their Haire and what kinde of garments they wfed with the painting of their bodyes, their Coines, &c.

Iodorus, speaking of the Diodo, in Lib. Gaules, fayth; Albeit, that naturally they have good-to weare their ly lockes of hayre, yet doe haire. they helpe the naturall colour thereof, by an instrument properly deuised for that purpole. They twine and twift theyr bushie lockes together, and fuffer them to hang dangling downe, euen from the forehead to the necke: fo that they refemble Satyres, and young vnshorne boyes. They haue practifed by Art, to make their haire calling Gaule

Strabo in Lib,4

Titus Liui, dec. 3. Lib. 2.c.1p: 1 same of the Sueues, a people of Germany. But the especiall note of that Nation is, that they turne their haire croffe or ouerthwart, and then binde or truffe it vp in a the state of the sum o long, and briftling backward with a bending downe, and so they go till they bee mettall called Siluer: but nature hath gihoary or white; and then (oftentimes) uen it gold, without any labor or cunning they binde it together on the crowne of the head. The Lords are no more respe-Citie of their own persons, and yet with-out any proud or bad intention: For it is ling or circkling in wide compasse: the not done in regard that they affect or couet to be affected; but they doe onely fo

when occasion calleth them foorth to Diodorus proceedeth on in this maner, concerning the behaviour of the Gaules.

Some of them (faith he) doe vie to shaue their beards, but others do weare them of fome length. The Gentlemen do cutte to seeme the more dreadfull and terrible.

confifting of divers colours, and tearmed by them Braccates. They have long skirted lackets or Cassockes, rewed or streaked, beeing of the very courfest Cloath .

which they vie for winter, and the most fimple or flendereft for fummer. Diodorus speaketh thus of the Braccates, as the reafon whereby the Romans called that part of Gaule Braceata, and by which garment the fame Authour affirmeth, That the Gaules were more terrible to beholde. Strabo likewise writeth in his fourth book concerning their haire, their Caffockes, their rude and hairy garments, their long high breeches, & their thort open cloaks which hardly conered halfe theyr But-tockes. All these Authors do agree together, as touching the haire of the Gaules and Germaines, and to be of a redde colour, according as Titus Liuius, and Dio-Diod in Lib.5 How the Gaules wore their beards. ther apparrel

Chap. 1.

Cornel. Taciti

vbifupra. How the Sucues did weare their

Of the Lords

amonett the

thicke and hard, that little difference ap- | all paint themtelnes with an hearb, called peareth betweene theirs and the haire of by them*G/aftum, which caufeth a blewith a The Hearbe a horic. Taciems speaketh (wel-neere) the or azure colour: and this made them vely by Dyers. ry dreadfull to looke on, when they went to any fight. Moreouer, they wore their lockes of haire very long; thaning off all their other haire except that on the head, whole Countrey of Gaule is without the of Gaule, but endeauour. For, in regard that the most part of the rivers have their courses verie waters which descend from the hilles and mountaines, by difperfing themselues adecke themselues, to appeare the more fierce and terrible vnto theyr enemies,

Of the Ancient Gaules.

broad in the valleyes, do scatter a fand on the fields, which is mingled with golde. How they ga Afterwardes, kneading or tweaking the the reheir clods together, wherein they different the gold amongh the Gaules, & adome them become hard they then breake them in felues there peeces, and when they have washed it in with. water, and the earth is quite taken away, they hurle the rest into a furnace, and so melt it in that manner. When they have short the haire on their cheekes, & suffer their beards to grow to fuch length, as it thus moulten and drawne out the golde will couer all their bodie. They weare alpure and cleane, the women and men do fo a kinde of garment, which is all hairie, adorne themselves therewith: for they weare it in rings on their fingers, and in bracelets about their armes, and in Carcanets on their brefts, & in chaines about their neckes, and about their middles as golden girdles. Polybrus also maketh mention in his fecond booke, of their Chaines and Bracelets. And Serabo in his 4-booke Strabo in Lib. 4 the cheefest are in the Country of Tar= of Gascoigne, bells: and hee attributes this Ornament increase of the cheefest are in the Country of the cheefest are in the Country of the cheefest are in the cheefest and hee attributes this Ornament increase to the only vnto fuch as were in honor and dig- Pyrenean Mountaines

But Cafar and Tacitus do speake of an- Inl. Cafar in other manner of want or pouerty (of this Com.lib.7 magnificence) amongst the Germaines. They vie (faieth Cafar) skinnes in their garments, and thort cloakes made of file red skins, having the greater part of their body naked. But Traism speaketh more Corn. Tacit. amply, concerning the whole manner of in lib.6.c.3. the Germains, writing thus. I doubt whedorus haue written. Ca/ar speaking of the ther the gods were fauourable to them or No Golde or of ancient Br tany, writeth thus. They do quite contrary; because they denied them the Germans,

Polyb in Lib

Veffels of Sil uer held in n then the like

The Serrati &

Bigati wer monies amongst the ancient

The commo

wearing habit

They weare

beafts, and o

the mettals of gold and filuer. Notwithstanding, I will not set it downe assuredly, but that there may bee some veine of gold or filuer in Germany: yet who (at any time) hath made fearch for it? They haue no fuch affection thereto, as to apply it to any feruice. Som vessels of filuer haue beene found amongst them (which haue bene giuen to their Ambassadors, or to their Princes) and yet to be held in no more esteeme or reckoning, then those that are made of earth. Neuertheles, they that dwell much neerer to vs, in regard that they have trafficked with our people: do make more esteeme of gold and filuer; allowing and commending fome peeces of our monies. They that live further off in the Countrey, doe deale more fimply, and (according to the most ancient manner) make their trafficke by exchange. They receive the old mony, and fuch as they have had longest knowledge of, as the Serrati and Bigati. They loue the coin of filter better then that of gold; not that they beare therto any particular affection, but because the filuer money is eafiest for them in buying things common, and offmallest price. The viuall habit or garment to them all, is a long skirted Iacket or Caffocke which they fasten together with a buckle, but (for want thereof) with a great pin. The rest of the body is not concred with any thing, and they fit the most part of the day voon the hearth, somewhat neere to the fire. Such as are of greatest wealth, doe differ from the other in their garments, which are not fo ample or large as those of the Sarmases, or of the Parthians : but juftly fitted to the body, and fuch as maketh apparant thew of every meber. They wear the skins of wild beafts, and fuch as dwell neerest to the rivers, are most curious of their habit: but they of more remote abiding, vie no g eat curiofity, as being least carefull what they weare, because they live so far from strangers. When they have made chaife of their beafts skinnes, they do the like of fifthes, taking fuch as are the greateft, or as the Ocean and most vnknowne Seas do yeeld, and fulleft of spots, and so they fow them together. The Women are no otherwise habited then the men: but that the women are oftner concred with a garment of linnen, inter-wouen with a scarlet colour. They care for no

fleeues on the height of their armes, but are naked downe from the very shoulders and part of the breast (neerest adioyning) is as nakedly discourred. Thus you see the gayest brauery of the Gaules, & how simple the Germans are in their garments: it remaineth now that we say fomewhat of their houses and dwellings.

CHAP. III.

Of the houses and dwellings of the Gaules; their Townes and villages, and of what manner they were.

He habitations of the Gauls (according as Strabe fayth) Of their hou. are wide and spacious made fes, lodgings, of earth and planchers of & dwellings wood &couered with ftrong reeds arched on the top together in form of a vault : for fo Cafar in the fift booke of the Gaules warres faith, That the Lod- Int Cafin com gings of 2. Cicero in the fields, were couered with straw and reeds, according to the manner of the Gaules. And in his fixt booke he sheweth, that the more part of Lib,6. the Mannor-houses appertaining to the gentlemen Gaules, were in the woods, or on the riners. Speaking of the house of Ambiorix, which was altogether engirt with woods; As were wel-nere al (fayth he) the houses of the Gauls are, who to shun the heate do dwel in woods , and neere to rivers. Cæfar deliuereth plainly, that the Aquitaines, Celts and first Belgians, had their Cities and Townes enclosed both with walles and ditches; but it may be doubted Townes. whether the like provision was vsed among the Gaules further off, and fuch as were neerest to the North; as the a Morini, b Admatiques, c Menapians, and d Ebn-

Cæfar declareth, That the most part of in France. thefe Belgians, are defeended of the Germaines, and faith, that the Germains had both fides of Itheins, next not their Townes and Villages made af= to the Vbii. ter our manner : as may bee observed by that which Tacitis hath written according to the custome which they had in Luke, Leyond his time. It is sufficiently known (faith he) Brabant that the German people dwell not in any in lib.5.

Of their first Citties and

Of Narbone

Towns,

Of the Mori ni, that made war contrarie

Chap. 3. Of the Ancient Gaules.

Townes, neither that they could endure | concluded there to fortifie his campe: as to have their houses neere vnto one another. They dwell distant or apart, scatteringly, where either riners, fieldes, or woods do best content them. Their Villages are not after our fashion: for their houses do not touch or joyne neere each other, Euery one leaueth a great wide distance or compasse about his dwelling; either to avoid the difastrous fortunes of fire, or elfe because they know not how to build better. They vie neither Morter nor Tiles : but the matter which doeth them seruice, is very rude, and is not prepared either for beauty or pleasure. They plaifter some places much more respectively. with a kinde of earth fo cleane & thining, as it feemeth to contend with painting,& portraitures of colours. They were wont

Their Caues and storehou fes of Corne

Com.Lib.6.

Oftowns be-their building

among the Germanes.

to make caues vnder the ground, and couered them with thicke clods of dung, to withdraw themselves thither in the winter time, and therein also to hide theyr

Corne, because in such places, the colde weather had not so great power, & when the enemy came, hee could make pillage of nothing, but what hee found readily discouered. As for that which was thus hidden or buried, Theeues not knowing thereof, would bestow the lesse paines & fearch, in further enquiry after it . Calar Iul.Cafar in fpeaketh (almost) as much of the Britains. They tearmed it a Towne(faith he)when they had enclosed some tuffy wood with ditches and pales; whereinto they were wont to retire themselves, to shunne the courses of their enemies . And whereas Cafar speaketh sometimes of certaine hee is so to be understood. Returne we now to the townes of the Belgians, which are vp higher in the coulonging to the Belgians try, and heere my question is: Whether they had any such Townes as the Britains or no? We will first of all speake of the Morini, who (according as Cafar writeth) beganne to make war, but in a quite contrary manner then the other Gaules. For they having heard, that the very greatest Nations which had hazarded battel, were quite defeated and conquered : withdrew themselues & their goods into the strongest places, which were great and long forrests, encompassed with fenny or marthy grounds. Cafar being come vnto the entrance of some such forrest, and having sage, gaue them affault three severall owne negli-

Townes of the Suenes: in mine opinion .

the homanes were feriously imployed about their busines; the enemy (of whom they had no doubt at all) fallied forth vpon them unprouided, at most places of the wood, and charged the Romanes very to their Armes, and repulled them backe Romines and into the wood, and hauing flaine a great were repulled number of them, purfued them thorough many vneasie places, yet with very little loffe of their people. The next day following, Cafar determined to fell down the Forrest, and suspecting least some harme might be done by the Flankers to Soldiers vnarmed: he caused al the trees which were howne downe, to bee made as ram= piers against the enemy, as d to serue as defences on either fide. Hauing made a great spacious coun-

trey (in few dayes) by incredible diligence, after that the Romaines had made themselues Maisters of the cattle & baggage which was in the rereward; they Cafar & his withdrew themselues into the thickest of men pursue the Forrest. Casar speaketh this of the wood of the Morini , which ferued them to the Ferreft as a Towne or Village. And the yeare after, in regard of the drought which had dried vp all the Marishes (as is to be seene Int. Cafar in in his fourth booke) they having no more Com. lib.4. refuges to flye vnto as they had the yeare before, were (almost all of them) subdued by Labienus. In these two warres, hee maketh no mention of any other Townes.

then of woods and marishes. The like is affirmed of the Menapians, Of the Menain those Countries where the Romaine pians. Legions were broght, under the conduct Inl. Cafar in of Fabius and Cotta, as it is fet downe also Com. lib. 4. in his fourth booke. They made speyle in the fields, destroyed the Corne, fer the houses on fire; and all this happened, because the Menapians had hid themselves in the thickest Forrests. Afterward Calar himselfe came to them with five legions.

But they (as Cafar faith) not having gas thered any forces together, trufting only in the fecurity of the place, with rew themselues into the woods and marishes, and carried thither their goods also. Ca /ar having divided his powers with C. Theftratagem Fabius, who was his Lieutenant, and M.

Crassus Treasorer of his wars, and hauing gindth Me hapine, the also sodainely prouided bridges for pal rough theyr wayes; gence.

What gar-

lages made himfelfe Master of a great number of men and cattle. The Menapians feeing themselves in this distresse; were constrained to send Ambassadours. humbly to entreate peace. In this place also there is no name of any village, or pregnant appearance that there were any, but fuch as wee haue alreadie fooken

Of the Nerui-Iul.Cafar in Com, Lib. 2.

The politicke defence of the Neruians against horse. men of their neighbours or

The Neruian had no walled townes or villages of de-

Iul, Cestin com

the Neruians

By due observation of this discourse, perhaps the villages of the Nernians will appear to be even the like. The Nervians (this speaketh Cafar in his second booke) from all antiquity, not having any power of horsemen (for even to this day they do not addict their mindes thereto, but all the strength which they have, consisteth onely in footemen) to the end they may impeach and withftand the horsemen of their neighbours, if they make any inrode vpon them, to rob and spoile them, cutting downe yong trees that had thot forth strong branches, they twined them together, and interweauing briars and thorns among them, they wrought them fo artificially, that thefe hedges or fences ferued them as a wall; wherein not onely a man could not enter, but also he was vnable to fee or difcerne any thing.

In the fame warre of the Wernians, the women,& fuch as(in regard of their age) were not feruiceable for bearing armes, had neuer any Village or Town for their fafety, which was engirt with wals; but in fuch a place where there was no coming or entrance for an Army, because of the marish grounds, which were the onely hinderance.

Now, in this first warre agaynst the Nernians, wee may plainly perceive that they had not any Towne enclosed with wals : and we may well credit it by that which is in the fixt booke. For Calar hauing affembled foure Legions with all possible diligence, entred (vnawares) into the Country of the Neruians, and before they could either draw their strength together, or tell how to faue themselves:after hee had surprized a great number of men, and heards of Cattle, and dispersed the booty to his Soldiers; he layde wafte their fields, and compelled them to yeeld and deliuer him hostages. This passage likewise of the Neruians, yeeldeth great coniecture, that they had no other towns waves, and burning their houses and vil- | or villages in those times, but like them of the Britaines.

It may appeare also, that the Aduati- Of the Adus cases (by that which Cafar writeth in his tiques. fecond booke) have had the like townes. Int. Cafar in Hauing forfaken (faith he)al their towner and Castles, they brought all their goods into a village, which was wonderfully strong by natural situation. For, having (on al fides about it)huge rocks & downfalles of exceeding height, it had but one onely comming to it, which was hanging or descending downward, yet in a sweete and gentle manner, being in breadth no more then two hundred foote. This way A ftrong foror passage they had fortified with a dou- tified town of ble wall, of very great height, & the fame the Aduatiwas strengthened in many places with mighty huge stones, and sharpe-pointed beames or pyles. Heere Cafar describeth nothing but a wall onely, and on one fide of the Towne. And the like may be eafily prooned in the Nation of the Eburones: who are also called Germaines by Casar in his fecond booke. These men vnder the conduct of King Ambierix, had ouercom Sabinus and Cotta, with fifteene Companies, neere to Vatuqua, as it is fet downe in the fift booke. Cafar who had neuer receiued a greater iniurie, determined to mination for be reuenged for this loffe, and vtterly to reuenge vpon abolish and ruinate the nation of the Eburones, as we may reade in the 6. booke. Therefore he fent Bafilus on before with the whole band of horse, and leaving alegion for guard of the baggage; he divided the other nine into three Regiments, to ouerrunne and make spoile of the whole Countrey. He caused Labienus to march The severall with three Legions along by the Ocean, inited to Latoward that part which joyneth vnto the biemus and Menapians. Hee fent Trebonius with the Trebonius. same number of Legions, to sacke that Countrey which was neerest to the Adu. attques. Himfelfe, accompanied with the three other Legions, stayed to go toward the river Sabis, and the vtmost parts of the Fortest of * Ardene.

The Eburones not having any certaine Army, neither garrison, or any Towne length, reach wherein they might defend themselues ing from the river Rheine, by Armes, and the whole popularity be- to the City of ing fcattered every where abroad retired Tourney. themseluss to such places as were obscure valleyes, or wilde and fauage, or vvhere the moorish Fennes made a troublesome accesse to them; these presented them with some imaginary hope, that thus they might defend and faue themselues. Cafar The great dein this fiery heate of reuenge, perceyuing fire of Cæfar, the great danger which might enfire, by tobe reuenged on the E having thus separated his Legionaries; called all the necre-neighbouring Citties the loffe and damage that (in hope of booty) to come and make pilhe fustained. lage of the Eburones, to the end that the race and name of them might bee veterly confounded. And because he could not very great, he put himselfe once more on enemies, affembling infinite troopes of people from all the Townes & neere adioyning parts, and so sent them outward by fundry wayes. They burned all the villages, and enery house that they could Iul Ca∫in com. Lib.8

Cælars deter-

Chap.4.

Of the Bellouafior Bello-

Thoght now to be the Towne Tulifurgium in low Germany

CHAP.III.

vengeance (as is to bee seene in his eight booke) enflamed him the third time, and the like waste he made : neuerthelesse, he speaketh not of any rampier, or of any ditch belonging vnto Towne or Village.

Whereby may justly bee observed, that the Belgians as they were descended of the Germaines, so in like manner they had the

The Bellouasi, or Bellouasians in like fort.

albeit that they were the very principal of the Belgians, as wel in regard of their ver-tue and authority, as for the great number ofmen amongst them: yet it appeareth, that they were no straungers to this custome : for in the first warre, he speaketh not but of one Towne or Village, named

* Bractuf incium; in the other warres, hee maketh no mention of any one. This may feeme to be spoken sufficiently enough, concerning the habitations of the Belgisame order of dwelling.

Of the Humanity, Liberality, Hofpitality, & Courtefie of the Gaules to Strangers, and care for beneficing each other equally.

Finde nothing written in Cafar, of the playes, sports, & pastimes of the youth among the Gauls. As for the Germans, to any commer; for each man will Feaft gers.

Tacieus Writeth thus. They had but one onely kind of spectacle in enery affembly yong boies that conceived delight in this fport, would run or leape forth violently (and starke naked) before swords & lauelines directed against them. This exercise grew to be an art, and Art made it verie gracefull in them: yet what they did, was not for any lucre, gaine, or wages, but the onely recompence of this their audacious gallantry, was, to bee pleafing in (as yet) appealehis thirsting soule by such their eyes that beheld them. They would Desperate & play(being in very stayed and settled judg- dangerous very great, he put himselfe once more on his way, to give surther vexation to his and dangerous adventure, as would make any other portions of surther vexation to his and dangerous adventure, as would make surely pursue. a man blush to stand and looke on, and edin the very they performed their intentions in such earnest manner, as if they were at strife for some matter of great moment : yea, fuch was their affection to the gaine or finde standing. The selfesame define of losse, as after they had nothing els to con tend for : they would ftrine about the very last hazard, laying downe their own liberty and perfons in pawne. Whofoeuer loft himfelfe, would yeelde to the others fernitude, with his ownekinde confent: And albeit hee were neuer fo young and ftrong, yet (in regard of his loffe)he wold suffer himselfe to be bound and sold. For fuch was their wilfull obstinacy, that they would lay down faith vpon the very leaft occasion.

But who focuer would take note of the Humanity, li great humanity, liberality, and courtefy, berality, and courtefy both as well in the Gaules as in the Germains, courtery both in the Gaules let hin read what followeth. They would and Germans inuite strangers (this speaketh Diodorus of the Gaules) to feast with them. And after nature was sufficed, they would enquire what people they were, and what occasion drew them thither. But Cafar and Tacitus giueth this commendation vnto the comment Lib s Germaines, by writing much more am- Corn. Tacit. ply. Th y make it a matter of great Con- in lib.7. science (faith Cafar) to offer any outrage to strangers, who, be it for what cause soeuer they come amongst them, yet they will defend them from all injuries, and thinke them to be facred people, each one allowing them part of his house, & vyhatfocuer he had to line on. Tacitas writeth in this manner. There is not any Nation | The love and more addicted to make good chear together, and feaft strangers. They doe make which they afgreat conscience in denying house-room | ford to stran

ı. Booke

Of the ancient Gaules.

13

No difference betweene a known friend

Hofte, enstructeth him to another mans dwelling; and thereinto (without any further bidding) they enter both togither, cuen the necreft house they come vnto; where their entertainment is voyde of all difficulty, and vsed with extraordinarie courtefie. As concerning the rites of hof-pitality, they make no difference between him that is knowne, and another that is vnknown. At his departure, if he defireth any thing, it is their order and custom to grant it: as they will doe the like when it falleth to their turne. They take great delight in giuing gifts : but will receyue no recompence for whatfocuer they give, or think themselues indebted or beholding for any thing that they receive. This is a testimony of their worthy hospitality, & I am of the minde, that fo great an honor descrueth not to be forgotten, as Germany iustly deserueth in regard of this Ver-

Arist in lib.4. uerty the two principall plagues vnto mankinde.

Plato in Lib.de Legib.cap.9.

The order of

Iulius Calar

he hath no further meanes, he that is the Phaleas the Chalcedonian, did first publish in the Commonwealth (as Aristotle affirmeth) that goods might bee equally divided; to the end, that the two principall plagues to mankinde (which are ri= ches and pouerty) might be banisht from the Citty. And this is that which Plate (most of all other) wished for the grounded estate of a happy Commonwealth. But the Germains neuer fixed their imaginations on such a most fortunate Com-monwealth, by disputes and discourses onely; but accomplished and brought it to effect by their owne good cuftoms and honest examples. For some of them (as Cafar auoucheth in his fixt booke, speaking of the Germaines) had not any certain measure of land, or any particular limitation: but the Princes and Magistrates asfigned enery yeare (both to kindreds and parentages, who were acknowledged and placed together) fomuch ground or land, and fuch a fite or fituation, as vnto them feemed best and convenient; & the yeare following, they were constrained to seeke elsewhere. In his fourth booke, hee sayth as much of the Sweues, another people of Germany. They had no land which they held in particular, or divided among the: neither were they permitted to tarry longer then a yeare in a place, to Til or make it husbandable. This is the equality of him according to his power: And when goods, which then was among the Ger- Equality of maines.

And they rendered great store of reafons for this equality, as the fame Author The reasons witnesseth in his fixt booke, viz. Fearing maines, for least beeing retained by an accustomed their equality continuance in one quarter, they should The first, forfake the profession of warre, & follow the other more beneficial kind of life. Fea- The fecond. ring, least they should withdraw their minds from the enlarging and extendure of their bounds or limits: and growing to be too potent in strength, they should oueraweand expell the weaker from their goods. Fearing also, least they should be ouer curious in building, to defend themfelues against cold and heat, and so proue to be starke Cowards. Fearing beside, lest | The fourth. a wicked couetous desire should arise among them, of scraping and gathering goods together: wheron (custommarily) infueth threatnings, diffentions, & blood. Alfo, to the end that the popular fort The sandlast might bee contained within a reasonable contentment of mind, when the meanest perceined his goods to be equal with the most powerfull. This is (in effect) the words of Cæfar, touching the qualitie of goods vied then among the Germaines: and when the Greekes come to compare of the Greek with him, in commending this manner of with Calars behauiour either in the Cretanes or La- words. conians; all that they could auouch or fay, was; to terme this worthy and extraordinary vertue, to be no more then meer barbaroufnesse. Seruitude or bondage was in vse aswel Bondage or feruite life among the Germaines and Gaules, as in mongft the other Nations. Many men (to speaketh Germains and Cæfar in his fixt booke, discourfing on Julices in the Gauls (finding themselves to be char-comment. Lib ged either with debts, or taxations, or iniuries of the mightier fort) did yeild them felues into feruitude or flauery of Gentlemen, who had the felfefame right ouer them, as Masters had ouer their slaves. It should seeme, that this Masterie or command was cruell, as well as that whereof Tieus Liuius recounteth in his 2. booke, Titus Liuius in to be vied in Rome, after that the Kings Libia. dec. 1. were expelled thence, when the commotion of the bondmen was on foote. For they were then controlled and handled by their Masters, as the bodies of debters were by their creditors, who were parted (as Quintillian writeth in the fixt chapter of his third booke) or divided betweene the creditors, according to the law of the twelue Tables. And that Law(as himfelfe The Romano faith) which naturally was not to bee allowed, and yet (notwithstanding)permitted as in right, was reprehended by publicke custome, and oftentimes(to remedy the same in meere pitty) the Commonwealth granted Letters of respite, aboli-

Diodor.in L,

y and libera ity of the Gaules, beyond that of the Romaine thing extorting interests, and making a new obligation for the principall. The humani But the Gaules vsed much greater humanity and liberality then the Romaines did; because the Masters kept in honourable place, and about their persons such as thus stoode obliged to them, and they vsed their service also in their warres. Wherefore it appeareth, that that which Diodorus wrote, differed not from this purpose, where he faith; They employed as guards and defenders of their bodyes, fuch as (among freemen) were poore and keth of the flaues among the Germaines.

Chap.5.

They do not vie their flaues (faith hec) as we do ours, appointing them certain offices in our houses: for cuery one serueth himfelfe, and gouerneth his houshold affaires. The Matter chargeth his flaue with certaine measures of Corn, or with some Cattle, or with some kinde of cloth: euen

as we do our Farmers or Husbandmen, and the feruant obeyeth him not but in fuch bufineffe. If he would have any matter done in his house, his wife and Children performeth it. It fildome or neuer hapneth, that a mafter doth beat his flaue or bindeth him, or enforceth and constraineth him to any businesse. They had a custome to kil them, yet not by any maner of rigorous or feuere chastisement;

no more aduantages then feruants . Seldom or rarely were they aduanced in the house, and neuer vnto the managing of Commonwealth affaires : except among fuch Nations, as were in obedience to a king, and there they mounted higher then Freemen, or then Gentlemen. Among other Nations, libertines, being not re-ceined into the like dignities as the free, made distinction of their liberty.

needy, and they ferued them as Efquires and Armor-bearers in the warre. Tacitus Corn.Tacitus reporteth almost the very same custome lib.4.cap:5. as was vied by the Gaules, when he spea-

Of the flaues

Of feruices

nefit then fer-

CHAP. V.

How the Gaules wfed to educate and bring up their children. Of their corage, manbood, and valour in Armes and martial of their admirable flature : whereat Cafar was much amazed, when hee beheld the Gaules which were flaine in the warres of Affrica: you have also heard some part of their liberality, in the administration of hauiour, to wit; That they would never permit their children to come openly before them, vntill they were of able yeares to beare Armes. And they held him to be a villaine, whose sonne (being vnder limited yeares) should be found in publike before his fathers face. Ce/ar speaketh this exercisepheir infancy was imployed, vntill this date of expectation, therefore we of body, and (doubtleffe) was the cause

Hese then were the maners and temperance of the anci- The dispositi ent Gaules, which ferued of body a. very fufficiently to maintain their disposition & strength their goods, for the relecte of others necessities.But there remaineth much more to fay, if wee would enter into discourse. concerning all the parts of their mahood The manand valiancy: were it in confidering the hood a valor exercise of their youth, or their earnest & Gaules.

violent defire in following armes, and the Nations which have beene conquered by them, and the Colonics established thoroughout the world, onely in the name of the Gaules. The Gaules (thus faith Ca-far in his fixt booke) helde this as a diffe- ment lib.6 rence from others, in their manner of be-neuertheleffe hee giueth not sufficiently Somewhat obut in choller, as an enemy, and done in the case of some reuenge. Freemen had the case of some reuenge. Freemen had fici-

must make search into other Authors. Tacitus, speaking of the Germaines, Corn. Tacit. would have vs to know, at what time they m lib. 5.c.7. came vnto the service of the Commonwealth. They observed as a custom (faith At what time he) that no one should vndertake the pro- feruethe Cofession of Armes, vitill the Common-monwealthin wealth had approved and allowed his fuf- martiall man .

A Garment which the Ro maines did al wayes wea in peace.

Arist in Polit. Lib. 8.cap.3.

Aristotle cal led the Celte barbarous propie.

Arift tele com

Galenin Gub. San.lib.t.cap.3

Galens reprethe Germains education of their children

ficiency. Then, in the martiall Confiftorie, either some one of the Princes, or his Father, or els his neerest Kinsman, armed the yong man with a shield and a Iauelin. This was the * Toga or Gown which they tooke, and this was the first degree of honor, wherunto their yong men mounted. Before, and till this dignity was done to them, they were but as a member of the house onely: but afterward, they appertained to the Commonwealth. Aristotle, who wrote long time before Cafar declareth vnto vs this manner of education of children (for it seemeth in the 8.Booke of his Politicks) that hee learned this instruction of vs. It is necessary (faith he) to accustome and vie the very yongest children to indure cold weather: for it profiteth maruelloufly, as well, for the disposition of the body, as for manly cariage in war. And this was the reason, why some barbarous people (as the Celts) observed it as a custome, to plunge their young Infants (so foone as they were borne) in the coldest water of the river, or els to cloath them in light garments. For, to whatfoeuer thing youth ought to apply it felf, this is the best course; to accustom them therto (by little and little) from their yongest houre, and when they are tender; because of the heate which is naturally in them, & therefore the first thing to be done, is to be carefull in this one point.

Aristotle in this place calleth the Celts barbarous, and yet hee accounteth not their customes barbarous; in regard that hee appointeth the Greekes to fashion themfelues after their manner. I know that Galen (harply reproueth this behauiour, when in the first booke of his Gouernment of health, and instructing how to order health, he faith. I am not of the minde, that Children should onely bee nurfed among the Germaines. Alfo, that which he writes of is neither for the Germaines, or for any other fuch fauage and barbarous men; no more then for Beares, wilde Boares, Lions, or fuch other beafts. I knowe (I say) that Galen reprehendeth this custome severely : but I know likewife, that the yong nice delicates of the Greekes, whom Galen striueth to please, in prescribing them an order for theyr health: haue beene quite deuoured by these Lyons (as he tearmeth them) and that the Gaules and Germanes, if they be compared with the Greeks, may in good right be called Lyons.

And truly, Lacedemon, which was the Lacedemon most noble of all the Grecian Cities, was haped it selfe to endure the principally renowned for being studious hard cuttoms in hardning it felfe to trauaile, after the of the Celtes. true manner of the Celts. For the youths of Sparta, did dayly imbolden themselues against al manner of paines and exercises: neuer entering into the especial assembly, before the age of twenty yeares, as Plutarch recordeth in the life of Lyoungus . Plut, in vit. ty. Wherefore, not onely the power of this emg. vertue, which was in the Gauls and Germaines, but (ouer and befide) the authority of Aristotle, as also of Lacedemon (if any man be regardfull thereof) may well ferue to answer the reasons of Galen. We may also inferre (to this purpose) that which Strabo hath written, when he faith, The Gaules held this as proper and peculiar to them, to refuse no taking of pains, Strabo in Lib. as fearing to becom fat and fwoln bellied by ease : therfore they punished and con- The Gaules demned vnto some pecuniary fine, such ous & painful yong men as grew groffe through floath and excesse. Whereunto that ordinance of the Romaines was conformeable : that depriued any fat or corpulent Knight, of Knights had the Horfe graunted him by publique al- fet allowed

Now it is further to be confidered, that The Germa this exercise was not onely proper or pe- brethren to culiar vnto the Gaules : but it was in like the Gaules. common vse with the Germaines theyr brethren, as Galen himfelfe hath elfwhere declared, Let vs listen then to Casar, who Jul. Casar in heerein gineth them sufficient commen- Com, Lib, 6. dation. From their infancy (this hee writeth in his fixt book) they addicted them felues to paines taking, and imployed (almost) their whole life time, either in hunting, or feats of warre. They had divers kinds of wilde beafts, in the Forrest cal-woodin Ger led*Hercynia: as wilde Bulles, *Alees, but many, in especially Buffles, which they tooke with breathnine great labour in their dens or ditches, and dayes journy, and in length there flew them. The yong men hardned forty. themselues to this trauell, and enermore A wild beat exercifed this manner of hunting: & they in fashion and which had flaine most of them, bringing skin like a fallow Deere. their hornes to publicke view, as a testimony of their diligence, received both reward and great praise. This yeeldeth fufficient demonstration, how the young men prepared their spirits, to endure all

*People of Belgia,next to the Leuci and Madiom,

People of drift in Polit ib.8 cap.6.

Roane in N

paine

paine and labout, and fell not off for any danger : as hading learned, though not of great and skilfull Doctors, which were best able to give them instructions; yet (at least) of their owne selues, and so put it in effectuall execution. Let vs now obserue what they were in

The Gauls wer Inl. Cafar in Com. lib. 6.

Chap. 6.

alwayes in ac. cause the Gauls were perpetually in war. tions of arms. For, before Calar came thither (as hee hath written in his fixt booke) it hapned enery yeare, that either they affailed others, or elfe were glad to defend themfelues; and it was eafily knowne, that by a custome among the Gaules, age was no excuse to any man, as appeareth by divers passages in the eight booke. Vertiscus.a chiefe Commander of the * Rhemi, albeit he could very hardly keepe himfelfe on horsebacke, because he was so farre gone in yeares : yet notwithstanding, according to the manner of the Gaules, hee would pleade no excuse by his age, in vndergoing fuch charges as were imposed on him; and he was very vnwilling, that any fight (hould bee performed without him. Likewise, in the warre of the Parisians, the whole charge (as is to be seene in the seuenth Booke) was given vnto Camulogenus, an especiall man of the * Aulerci, who was well-neere wholly spent with age: and yet for all that, the great experience which he had in martiall affaires, aduanced him to the highest degree of Honor. Answerable to this, Strabo faith, The Gaules were rather men of warre, then any way addicted vnto Tillage or husban-

Ariftot'e writeth, that the Celts helde the vertue of warlike actions in most fingular respect and commendation. And it was well noted, as Cafar affirmeth, that the cause of valour (both in the Belgians and Heluctians) grew through their continuall exercise of armes, for he faith: The most valiant people of al the Gaules, were the Belgians.

Now, as Temperance was the first and formost in ranke, as being the Mother, or the Nurse (at least) of true valiancy: so the fecond cause which Cafar rendreth, was; That they were neighbours to the Germanes, which dwelt on the further fide of the Rheine, with whom they were continually at warre. This (I fay) was another cause of their valor, that continually they exercised armes, and by the same reafon, the Heluetians furpaffed (in this ver- exceled al the tue) all the other Celtes: As it might dai- other celter in ly be discerned, in regard, that ordinarily Armes. they fought with the Germanes, eyther in repulling them from their frontiers, or actions of warre, and as the Poet faveth: making war on them in their owne coun-The braue workemanshippe of Mars, betry. In this place also might be alledged, their often and frequent skirmishes, to deliuer true faithfulnesse of their valour. Moreouer, the Gaules for want of warre, to the end that they might still be in exercife of armes: gaue themselues to thests The Gands wer and robberies, as Diodorus faith, purloyning the goods of others, without any beries. prouision of their owne. What were the Diodor in lib. 6 Germanes ? faith he. What participation had they in this vertue? All their life, as hath beene already declared, was no way imployed, but in deeds of armes. And as The greatest he hath further written in his fixt Booke, honour of a the very greatest ho rour that any Citty Cityamong could haue, was, to haue a great Defert & fpacious Country round about it. They esteemed it to bee proper and naturall to vertue, to compell their expulsed neigh- Few or no bours, to forfake their Lands and Terri-durit dwell tories, fo that few or none durft dwel nere neere to the vnto them. And by this meanes, they Gaules. imagined themselues to be in the greatest fecurity, in being deliuered from al dread of courses, which suddenly might bee made into their Country.

Tacitus speaketh of the same exercise corn. Tacitus in of armes. You could not fo readily put lib.o. cap.4. into their heads, any order for husbandry | No care of in their grounds, or carefulnes for gathe- husbandry, or ring their fruites, and corne, as to go af- gathering the faile the enemy, and to returne back with fruites of the wounds and maimes. Moreouer, it appear affaile the ered to them, that it was meere floth and nemy. carlefnesse, to winne that by sweate and labour, which a man might purchase with the price of his blood. Cafar faith likewife of the Germanes, the fame that Diodorus dother the Gaules, that they were addicted to rapine and thefts. Robberies (thus speaketh Cafar in his fixt booke) did Iul Cafin com. not make men any iot the worse citee- 146.6. med: fo that they were done out of those limits, which appertained to each Citty. Inerts & ropheries thought And it is faid that they vfed these courses, not diffeomen-onely to exercise their youthes, and for the auoyding of ydlenesse. And when fome one of the Lords would deliuer his meane affecti-minde on.

3045 Ofpublike Sentences & Judgements. 3. Booke

Two Iudges ther fide.

Places apoin zed for the ending of rences accor ding to anci-

> They that met at one place,went not toanoth except by especiall appointment

Whe matters uingly ended, they take then

Thus then, for the deciding of fuch differences, each of the parties doe chuse two ludges for either fide, who are abfolued of the oath which they have taken to their Canton: and promise to judge according to right and equity, and labour that the fuite may bee louingly and very speedily accorded, or indicially ended.

By the ancient alliances, there were certaine places appointed, for the ending of fuch fuites. The feven first Cantons fent their ambassadors and arbitrators to the Abbey of the Hermitage, to end ther fuch fuites as happened among them. By an article of very ancient alliance with them of Glaris, it is expressely faid; that if they had any fuite with them of Vei, the affembly should be at Merch. If against the canton of Suits; the arbitrators shold meete at Bergeraz: and at Brunen, if against them of Vnderuald. And then the other Cantons, having had knowledge of the cause pronounced the sentence. The Bermans, and the three Cantons of Vri. Suits, and Vnderuald, affembled at a place named Daskienholtz. They of Zurich and Berne, at Zofinge. The Fribourgers & they of Solleurre, having a fuite against the eight first Cantons, or some of them, sent their Iudges to Zofinge; and if they were defendants to Willifow. As for the causes of them of Bafile, Schaffoufe, and Appenzell, they pleaded them at Bada, together with them of these Cantons, allied with them of Rotuille and of Mulhouse. but the differences of them of S.Gall. were determined in the Abbey of the Hermitage: and them of the Grifons, at Wallenstad, which is a Towne at the ende of the Lake of Rine, in the Bayliwick of Sar-

When then some difference happeneth, which cannot bee kindly accorded, and that the entreaty of the Cantons ferueth to no purpose: the arbitrators and ambassadours of the Cantons that are in fuite, do meete at the place appointed, & (with them) the ambaffadors of the other Cantons confederates, who come thether to attone the parties, and to make fome amiable composition. The Judges and Arbitrators beeing affembled, after that the parties have pleaded their caufes: if the Iudges take refolution, & giue fentence, the parties must (of necessity) be contented. But if they be of divers opinions (as many times it happeneth) and that there are as many voyces on the one fide, as on the other, then a fift Iudge or arbitrator is chosen, whom they call Jein When voyee obmann.or. Ein ameinen mann. He giueth no fentence at all, but onely appro- then a fift A ueth one of those, which the arbitratours haue pronounced. Sometimes the Judges themselves do chuse the odde arbitrator: yet in fuch fort notwithstanding that he is a man of one of the Cantons, no medler with eyther party, nor having any interest in the cause.

The alliance of the feuen first Cantons, makes mention of this election and choice: as that of Fribourg, that of Solleurre, that of Appenzell, and them of S. Gall and of Mulhoufe. It is added to the The addition articles of the alliance of Schaffoufe, that to the Article if the Judges cannot accord, by choife of another arbitrator, taken from one of the Cantons; they shall then take one of the Lords of the councell of S.Gall. And in the alliance of Rotuille, command is gineh to the ludges, to chuse for an odde arbitrator, one of the Lords of the councell of S.Gallor of Mulhoufe. Sometimes al-fo the complainant chufeth. As if the Bermians have a fuite against the three first edsomesor continues the Cantons, or any one of them; the Can-odde Assur tons thal name fixteen men, out of which www. number, the Bernians are to chuse a subarbitrator. But if they bee defendants, the Cantons will then (for fub-arbitrator) cluse one of the Lords of the leffer councell of Berne. If forne difference fall betweene them of Zurich, and of Berne: the complainants chuse for an odde arbitratonr, one of the defendants Lords of the councell. The same is observed in suites for them of Bafile, against the other cantons; and so in the Grifons causes.

Thus you fee how the Switzers gouerne themselues, in the deciding of con- There is no trouerfiall fuites betweene the common- thing to well wealths. I know very well that some may dispute subtilly, both for and against this it may seeme order there observed: but I will leave that valitor and discourse to the Readers. For mine owne part, I admire the simplicity and integrity of our ancestors, who by such manner of proceeding, have often broght to end very great variances, and carefully conferued publike peace and concord But they did not regard their owne particular profite, neither defired any thing one place,

Of Zurich, Basile, and Schaffouse. Chap.5.

Their eads ours are quit and flourishing. If now each man had no other meaning, but would aime at that marke: fo many fuites would not be feene, and eafily might those be appealed, that are the hottelt attempted.

CHAP. V.

Of those Common-wealths, which are in each of the feuerall Cantons. And first, of the Common-wealths of Zurich, Bafile, and Schaffoufe.

Auing thewne almake mention, of

All the com-

of the Canons referred to three forms

The cheefe

men of fome councell cal-ked Ammans inan Estate

meerely po-

ready, how the whol Commonwealth of the Switzers is gouerned in common: it behoueth now to the Common-wealth in each distinct Canton. Now it seemeth to me, that the common-wealths of the thirteene Casstons, may bee referred to three formes. For as there are three names of foueraign Magistrates and Cantons, so have they likewise as many formes of commonwealths; differing not onely in name, but alfo in the things themselues.

In some certaine Cantons, the cheese Commanders or Heads of the councell, are called Ammans. This is observed in the Cantons that haue no Citties or Townes, but Villages onely, hauing a popular estate, and the sourraignty appertaining to the people; by whose aduice, the very greatest affaires of importance are decided. Of this number are Vri, Suits, Vnderuald, Zue, Glaris, and Appenzell.

The other Cantons have their citties and townes, which have the foueraignty : yet in fuch manner, as there are two formes of common-wealths. For the citties and townes, especially such as haue bene built by fome Princes, or fome-

more, then to fee their country peaceable | times have beene subjected to them: are gouerned by an Auoyer, whom they call, citties, the Schulthels, (who is cheefe of the coun- cheefe man is cell) and by some number of councellers called the Acholen by free election, from and by the cheefe man of whole number of cittizens. The forme the councell. of this common-wealth is Aristocraticall among all the other: and in this manner are gouerned the common-wealths of Berne, Lucerna, Fribourg, and Solleur-

> There are other citties and townes Election of divided by certaine companies, by each the Lords of whereof, and by voyce of fuch men as the councell and the fuare in enery of them, the Lords of the preame Magicouncell are elected, and the fourraigne strate, called a Magistrate or cheefe of the councell, Rer. who by them is tearmed Burgermei= fter, that is to fay, Mafter of the Bourgeffes, which we in a shorter word cal Bourgmaster. Such are the common-wealths of Zurich, Bafile, and Schaffoufe. Now we are to speake of these diners formes of common-wealths in order, beginning with the last, first.

> First then, all the people of these Townes divi-Townes free and Imperiall, were divided ded into two into two rankes: the one of Noblemen, blemen and the other of Yeomen. The Noblemen Yoomen. had a Society by themselves, apart, which the Allemaignes or Germans did call, Em Beleitchafft, and they of Zurich, Ein Constaffell .

In elder times, in the citty of Bafile, which is very spacious, and for the multitude of Noblemen, they were divided into two focieties, bandes, or companies of Noblemen . Oftentimes they Two bands of were in quarrels, and had the foueraignty: Noblemen in fo that out of the one copany they chose Basile. the Confull, and out of the other, the Tribune or Captaine of the citty, which is bune or Capthe estate of greatest authority, next vnto City, the two that of Confull or Bourgmafter.

Neuerthelesse, afterward the Noblemen lost this fourraignty, or else for fook their right voluntarily. For at the time of the councell of Bafile, when Lewes, then Dolphin of France, brought (very neere to Bafile) an Army of Armignacks, in fauour of Pope Eugenius, and the Duke of Austria; many Gentlemen of Bafile; went and loyned with that Army, in regard whereof, they were all banished, and men banished their posterity deprived & excluded from and their poall publike honours.

After-

305 cheefe offices

Sterity depri-

dius his prea ching & the Religion.

Some of the Noblemen got entrance again into the excluded from gouers

ing in the

nies of Lords

fo called to do

Zurich in chu-fing their

Lords of

councell

mon confent) made alliance with the ten Cantons of the Switzers, in the yeare, 1501. the most part of the Noble-men, who hated the Switzers: diflodged from the citty, and withdrew themselues to Castles heere and there, so that their authorisy diminished greatly then, and all the rest was lost in the yeare, 1 , 29. For by the Sermons & exhortations of Oecolampadius, the doctrine and ceremonies of the Church were reformed, by order fent from the councell, against which, many Noblemen opposed themselues. And althogh they could not hinder the change of Religion, yet they abandoned and left Afterward, when the Burgesse (by com-

the citty, and would not abide in it. Afterwhich time, the two companies whereof we spake, entred in againe, and got possession of some private houses, & as yet they keepe those houses to themfelues, and they belong to the whole body of the Nobility. And those houses are called in their language, Zum umfft; en bnd sum brunnen, but yet none of the is of the councell. For although the councell do meete together (almost) euery day, and the Gentlemen (hauing forfaken the citty) dwelt most part of the time in their Castles: by common aduice of the Burgeffes, they were excluded fro gouerning in the common-wealth, which they had renounced voluntarily. Neuertheleffe, fome noble Families that dwell in the citty, & haue had care of the common-wealth with the other Bourgesses, are in ranke of the foure first companies or supporters of the citty, and (in them) are chosen to be of the councell. And therefore, to do them honour, in regard of their condition; these Tribes or companies are called berrensunfft, that is to fay the companies of Lords.

Therefore, there are no more companies of these Noblemen in Basile, but those that are distinguished with the other Bourgesses. But at Zurich and at Schaffoufe, the Nobleme haue their companies apart by themselues. And they of The priviledg Zurich have this priviledge befide, about the tribes and companies of Tradesmen, to take the moity, that is, the most part of the Lords of the councell, from foorth the company of these Noblemen: so that they are as a counterpoise to the other companies. Notwithstanding, there is fome difference among these Noblemen, for the Families of race, that are very noble and ancient: they do make a band by themselues, and they are called Die Stublet, by reason of the place where they affemble apart by themselues, by right & especiall priviledge. To the whole body of these tribes or companies, are ioyned many cittizens, which are not of any trade nor traffick : in which respect, they may have place in one company, tather then in another. Porters, Labourers, Porter La-Burden-bearers, and other fuch like man- bourers, and ner of people, who when warre hapneth, are held and reputed to be of this body of dy politime. companies, which they call Ein Conz staffell, and receive wages : they have a voyce in electing the Master of the whole body of companies, and he is of the Seigneuries councell, in regard of his place.

Befide the Society and Company of Noblemen, the people of those citties & Of other Tribes and townes there, are parted into certaine tribes or companies, which the Germans call Zumfft. The word (it may be) taketh name or originall, of Zamenkunfft, which fignifieth to meete and affemble themselves in company. Some interpret them to be Tribes, others, Courts, and others, Colledges or Abbeyes: but wee will call them Tribes or Companies. The number of them is not equall in the forenamed Citties and Townes. For there are fifteene at Bafile: whereof the foure Fifteene comfirst are esteemed more noble then the other, and are called the companies of they are di-Lords, as already hath beene faid. The first tribe or companie, is that of Merchants. The second of Gold-smiths, Goldfiners, Founders, and Pewterers. The third is of Merchants dealing onely in wines: with whom the Notaries, Masters of Hospitals, Spittles, and other such like communities are joyned. The fourth is of Merchants dealing in Silkes, and of Factors for all States: This company is the very greatest of them all. The other eleuen, are of all forts of trades and handv-crafts men.

Now there is a dozen or twelue tribes Twelue trib or companies at Zurich: heeretofore they are at Zurich were thirteene in number, when many Drapers & workers in wooll dwelt there: for that was one company by it selfe. But now adaies, the weavers of woollen cloth and other things, are joyned into one co-

Schaffouse there are eleuen companies onely : neuertheleffe, it falleth out many times, that diuces trades are joyned together in one company. They have their meetings by themselnes : as at Zurich, the Millers and Bakers, the Barbers and Chirurgions, the Smiths and Mettall men. So at Bafile, the Fishermen and Marriners or Barquers, the Cordwainers and Curriers, the Taylors & Skinners. Thefe companies are divided, and they are called Bipaltue Zunfft. For whon there is question of cheefe Trades, and especially Chiefe trades workmen in them, their houses of meetings and affemblies are by themselues. But in things that concern the commonwealth, and when, and where all ought to be present, to elect Lords of the councell, or the Zunftt-Masters, who must be also in the councell; every man speaks his minde, and gines his voyce.

Out of each of these companies, some men are chosen as many of one company as of another, to be Lords of councell. In every city there are two publike councels, which have the principall authority: as namely, the great councell, when as a good number of councellers meete together, in name of all the people : as is vied in the affaires of greatest importance, and which do appertaine to the whole common-wealth. Next, the leffer councell, who meete together enery day, about the common-wealths bufineffe, and take knowledge of differences happening among the cittizens. The great councell of Zurich, confifteth of two hundred me : That of Bafile, is of two hundred forty foure: and that of Schaffoule, is of foure. fcore and fixe.

As concerning the leffer councell of Zurich, it is of fifty: that of Bafile hath threescore and foure: and that of Schaffouse, hath but twenty fixe. For out of each tribe or company, twelue are taken for the great councell: except at Zurich, where they elect eighteene of the Nobility. At Zurich also each company giueth three men for the leffer councell : at Rafile, foure; at Schaffoufe, two. Next, in enery of these citties, there are two Confuls or Bourgmafters, who are the cheefe and Prefidents of councell. Ouer and befide thefe two at Bafile there are two Tribunes, who are cheefe in councell with

pany with the Fullers and Diars. At | the Bourgmasters. Moreouer, at Zurich the Noblemen fend fixe from among them, to the leffer councell: the other companies doe fend each one but three. By the plurality of voyces, choife is made How many of fixe other men, out of fuch companies each company as the councell do propose, to fill vp the

As concerning the election of coun-they call, Zunfttmeifter, that is to fay,

Master of the tribe or company. The custome of these three citties, is, that the companies haue two Masters: but one of them is in estate but fixe Moneths, at the end whereof, the other succeedeth him.

Neuerthelesse, it often comes to passe, halfe yeare before, is chofen againe. By as haue beene in charge the first fixe Mo-cell; for although they be called whe the councell is helde, yet notwitftanding, it is not alwayes so done, and there are many matters which paffe in the new councell counceller from each of the companies:

but the leffer councell of Bafile chufeth

two. These councellers thus elected, with the other which we have faid to bee chosen extraordinarily at Zurich, are diuided into two bands: whereof the one is the old councel, and the other the new.

onely.

cellers (for fo will wee heereafter call the of councellers Lords of the leffer councell) it is done in for the leffer manner following. Euery yeare, about councell, and mid-Iune, and mid-December, all the cit-der that ortizens of Zurich affemble themselves ton the Zunffrgether, euery man in his tribe and comic meister. pany: and the elelect a chiefe man, whom that hee who was Zunftemeifter the this meanes, the leffer councell is divided in two parts, to wit, the old & new. Such neths, we tearme them of the olde coun-

The great councell of Basile is divided in the fame manner, and of twelve which The great is taken from each company, there are Bafile divided fixe of the new councell, and fixe of the in like maner. olde. Befide the Zunfftmeifters, the leffer councell of Zurich chuseth one

These two councels are changed euerie The chanfixe Moneths at Zurich; fo that at their ging of the ending, the olde councell electeth the councels. new . At Bafile, and at Schaffoufe, they continue in the estate a whole yeare to-The election of the councell at Schaf- The times of foufe, is made on the morrow after Pentecoste : and that of Bafile, on Satterday approbation.

Eleuen tribes or companies are at Schaf-

Chap.5.

and artezans are diftinguiholeby them

Concerning

theelection

councels of Zurich, Bafile,

Ofthe leffer

Of Confuller and Bourg-masters in each Citty.

whereupon they all come to them in order, and tell them closely in the eare, for whom they give voyce to be Zunfft= meifter. The leffer councell affemble at the oftenest, three times enery weeke, and fome whiles (vpon carnest occasion) four times. The old and new councellers of The fitting of Zurich, are feated one by another, & fom-the oldeand times one among an all the old councellers are about the younger. They have also this custome, to withdraw often into another Hall, to confult together. After refolution is taken,a counceller of the first company, reporteth the aduice to the new councell: and they call the reporter Den Offner.

The Bourgmaster, whom they call the olde councell first electeth the Bourgmafter, and the new councell the yeare following. The Bourgmafter is in flate at Zurich, fixe Moneths: but at Bafile and Schaffouse, a whole yeare together, and Iune. At Zurich, the Zunfftmeifters are eleacd by the companies in their houfes of meeting : then the councell of two hundred confirmeth this election; but at Bafile this confirmation belongeth to the in each tribe or company, charge is given to particular persons, to collect the voice,

Of the Bourg-Burgermeilter, as much to fay, as Mamafters or ster of the Bourgesses, is President of the Confuls the old and new councels. The great councel manner of their election electeth him by open voyce at Zurich; at Schaffon/e by fecret voyce: and at Bafile.

turne by turne, the Bourgmasters and Councellers olde and new are changed. They whom at Bafile they terme Zunfft Masters of companies & meilterg, and Dberftermeifters at Zucommunities, rich (as much to fay, as Masters of com-Tribunes of panies and communities) doe fecond the the people. Bourgmasters in their authority.

At Zurich there are three, and at Bafile two, who with the two Bourgmasters are called the foure chiefe & principal Lords of the city. Nine other Lords of the leffer councel at Bafile, are joyned to these four in cheefe, and by reason of the number, they are called the councell of thirteene. They heare the causes of very gretest importance, and deliberate on them first, bebefore they propound any thing to the

before the foure and twentieth day of lers. Moreouer, there is a particular councell at Zurich, whom wee may name the The chamber Chamber of accounts, for it manageth the officers publike affaires: and is composed of eight thereof. councellers, and have the Bourgmafter of the olde councell for their Prefident. Then is there two Pursse-bearers or Trefurers, and the Superintendents for Ecclefiaftical goods do affift them, together with foure other councellers, two of the olde, and two of the new councell. They take knowledge not onely of monies employed for the common-wealth: but oftentimes also, the younger councell demandeth their aduice in cases of importance, whereon they confult a while, and then give their report to the yonger con> alwayes two Secretaries affilting, with ries affilting their committees, when necessity requireth. The first and chiefest is cald attschryber, that is to fay, Secretary of the citty. At Zurich, the other is called In-Derfehrpber, that is to fay, fub-Secretary: but they of Bafile call him Raat= schrpber, that is, Secretary to the councell. There is a particular Secretary for the Chamber of Accounts; whom they of Zurich call Bechenschrober. The eflate of Secretary in these citties is honorable, and of great gaine. In regard wher- gorable. of, the Gentlemen striue to keepe it in their owne power, as fildome is it given to any other. These men are they (among all other) that know the lawes, customes, priviledges, and all the fecrets of the common-wealth.

Next to the councels publike, are Instices of the citty. There are two at Zurich, one for civill causes, Das Statt- A Iustice for aricht, which was in ancient times vnder dealing in ci power of the Nunnes, and the Abbeffe will causes. clected the Lieutenant, or cheefe man in that kinde of inflice, whom they called Den Schultheiffen, and his affeffors or affiftants:but now the election belongeth to the leffer or yonger councell. Their number is of eight, and they have their Lieutenant, Secondary, and Serieant. To What causes them appertaineth the knowledge of ci-they take kno uill causes, Debtes, Hires, Lendings, ledge of. Borrowings, Sales, and as the Switzers vie to fay, they indge wimb erb und eigen. There is no appeale from No appeale their sentence : but if there happen any from the luflices sentece difficult lawand lu-

Criminall Indgements

Chap.5.

To these publike councels, there are Two Secrets.

Criminall ca

fes at Zurich

The other or-difficult cause, they send it to the Coun-

The other Iustice, whom they call Dag Zinstaricht, is a ludgement of The office & authority of processe and suites, which happen for the other Iu. rents and yearely reuennues. The Secretary of the other Iustice, and two Lords of the younger councell, it feemes doe daily affift for the ending of all fuch differences. In the bigger Basile there are two fuch kindes of Justices, and a third in the leffer Bafile. That Law or Inflice of greatest authority, which they tearme alfo Das Stattgricht, is composed of ten ludges; one part whereof is of the councell, and the other, fuch as the people do name. They take knowledge of all causes, civill and criminall: but when there is question of testaments, wils, contracts, monies borrowed, and other fuch like things: the Prouoft or Lieutenant of the citty fitteth in judgement. As for caufes criminall the Prouost of the Empire indgeth them. And there are three Lords inall causes of the councell, who do purfue criminall causes by the follicitation of one, who is an ordinary Atturney, named by them, Dherstenknecht, and keepeth company with the Judges, having an advocate waiting on him. These judgements are done publikediscourse on causes of matrimony. For ly, and haue eight open audiences, whereby all are permitted to be there prefent, to heare and see whatsoeuer is done. But at Zurich and at Schaffoufe, the new councell doth judge the criminal causes. Nefuffrages, and taken out of the olde and uerthelesse, the Bourgmaster doth not then fit: but it is the Prouost of the Empirc, whom Rychlugt, or, Blutrich= ter, who prefideth and collecteth the voices. Euery yeare the councell chuseth fome one of that body, to exercise that fome learned men admitted to councell. charge. Processe and suites criminall are who had each one as his adjunct, fome Doctour of the Law. These Iudgestake handled at Zurich, with the doores fast shut: but at Schaffouse in open Court, so knowledge of all matrimoniall causes: that all men may understand the accusapunish whoredomes and adulteries, and haue charge to obserue the lines & mantions and defences. But the councell comners of euery one. mandeth all to bee absent, when there is question of pronouncing sentence. The fecond order of Iustice at great Bafile, iudgeth not but in cases of small importance, which hardly exceedeth the fumme of ten pounds. But the Iustice of smaller Bafile, hath a Judge apart, & taketh knowledge of all causes, except of criminall.

There are two Courts, or kindes of

Of Zurich, Berne, & Schaffouse. Inflices at Schaffouse . The one which Two kindes they call Das Schulbaricht, is law or of luftice at iuffice for debts: for therein onely is en | Schaffoule. ded differences of contracts, debts, and fuch like things. And if the fumme whereof question is made, doe amount about an hundred crownes, the councell theo takes knowledge of it. In this Court are twenty affesfors or assistants, to wit, one of each Tribe: moreover, eight other persons, chosen by the councell. The other order of Iustice is named Trout= quicht, or, Duffengricht, that is to lay, tice at Schaf Inflice for tines and amercements : because the Prouost of the empire, or ludge in causes criminall, presideth there, and condemneth all fuch forfeitures & fines. There are twelve affelfours out of the twelue Tribes, and who are of the great councell. Causes criminall of lesser im-

Iustice there; as light injuries, vulgar outrages, and fuch like. But when wordes do wound honour, and the wrong is not cafie to bee diffembled or digefted; the knowledge of fuch cases appertaineth to after that the religion was changed, the councels of the three citties established one councell: wherein were a certaine number of affiftants, elected by buplike

Beside, in these common-wealths,

Beside what hath beene saide thele the leffer councell.

portance, are debated and ended in this fences of flen three citties have each one their particu- The three citlar councell, which they tearme Ein ties haue pe-Thorgricht, or, Eegricht, where they cels beside the other.

new councels, and among whom were Divines ad-fome Divines or Theologians as they cal mitted to be them. Neuerthelesse, at Schaffouse none cell. of the Ministers were assistants, but onely bastards are depriued of all honours and of such as are dignity: nor is it lawfull for them to bee prohibited, feene at the councell, nor in the Courts not to be feen of Inflice. True it is, they are not guilty cell, or in any of that staine to their birth, neither can Court of iuit bee denied, but that (oftentimes) ba- flice.

stards have wonne more commendations leffer councell: and therefore they may be called Preconfulters, or first councel-

The councel

of thirteene

For men bor

out of Swit-

Against stran-

Againft ad.

uancement of Adulterers.

murderers, & infamous per-zerland.

for their vertues, then ever could their legitimate brethren: as we have an example of Jephia, a Judge of Gods owne people. But to bridle the leud concupifcences of many, and to conferue the dignity of facred marriage: Baftards fland as branded with infamy, and yrkefome eye-fores to well ordered common-wealths.

Next, hee that bath not dwelt tenne For time of yeares within the citty of Zurich, cannot dwelling. be chosen to be one of the publike coun-

> Such as are borne out of Switzerland cannot be of the leffer councell at Schaffoule : But if they be Bourgesses of twenty yeares standing, they may be brought into the great councell, & into the number of the Indees.

I will not tell you that strangers are vnworthy of these honors: but it is requifite first of all, that hee who ought to haue charge in a common-wealth, should be particularly affectioned and obliged thereto, and afterward be well skilde and feene, in the lawes and customes of the country.

And me-thinks, cittizens, and fuch as (from their youth) haue beene bred in a common-wealth; should have more aduantage therein, then strangers.

Moreouer, there is nothing more pernitious to common-wealths, then enftrangers and nies and despights, proceeding from such aduancements to high degrees: as draw on partialities and factions, the danger whereof cannot be anoyded, when naturall borne subjects are left despised, and ancient Families contemned, and charge of publike Officers giuen to strangers, & men of no merit.

> Beside bastards and strangers, adulterers, murderers, and men made infamous for any crime : arc(by a common law)excluded from councell in these common-

> Publike citates and conditions are of diuers kinde sin these common-wealths, and in great number, according as the citties are peopled: we will make mention of the principals onely.

The highest degree, next after the Bourg masters and Zunfft=Masters, are fuch as have charge of the publike monies: who are called in many places of Switzerland, Seckelmeifter, as much to fay, as Treasurers or Pursse-bearers. At Basile there are three, named Drperherren, that have the keeping of the citties treasures. Besides them, there are three other, named Lanenherren, who mannage the monies of the Imposts, Cuflomes, and yearely reuennues of the common-wealth: They also pursue criminall causes, making themselves parties, by meanes of the ordinary Atturney. At Zurich there are men (almost) in the felfefame charge, whom they call Die Timbgetter; who manageth the tolle-monies of Corne and Wine, which they cause to be gathered by their committees. This tolle or taxation is not but on the Wine Tolle or mise publikely fold, and on the Corne brought wine, in from abroad: but for the wine & come which the Bonrgesses eate and drinke in their houses, they pay not any thing.

Belide these two Treasurers of the common-wealth, there is a third at Zu- The Treasurich, for the reuennues of the Church, & ches revenue he is called Der Bloefteren obman : he gathereth certaine reuennues of the Abbeyes; wherewith the Ministers wages are payed the Churches maintained, and the poore cherished or released, and the ouerplus remaining, is referred to eafe the people in times of publike neecessities. Some yeares past, the country of Zurich having beene afflicted with an extreme dearth of victuals: the receiver fold in the cour corne at a meane price to them of the cit- of Zurich, ty, and to most part of the Villages round about, bought with the referred mony at the best rate, and thereby the Subjects of the Seigneury were greatly releesed.

Next to these, there are other Officers, as they that take care of publike buildings, whom the French call Voyers, the publike build Germans Buttherren, and they of Ba- ings & their file, Lonherren, because they pay the charge. works & workmen that ferue in publike. These Survayers have charge of the waies, Gates, Towers, Rampiers, Bridges, Couduits, and other publike Edifices: taking order that they shall bee maintained and kept in their best ability. Moreouer, they judge with three Lords of the They joynein councell (who are their adjuncts) fuch judgement differences as happen for the confines, with the concell on especially occasions. Willows, Walles, all occasions. and fuch like things, & wherin the neighbours are to be guided by their direction in their building. At Basile there are fiue Seigneurs, that take knowledge of these

There is another degree of them that take charge of victuals. Of this number are the vifiters for Bread, to confider if the Loafe carry his full weight, or no. Others view the Flesh in the Butchery, and aduifedly obserue, that they kill not any Beaft, the flesh whereof is bad, and dangerous to be eaten; they also set a price pon the pound, to fell it by. Then there are some that take charge of Fish, and heedfully foresee, that none be taken whe they are spawny, and have an eye beside to the goodnesse of all other Fish in the Market. Others looke to falt Fifh, and to the Market of Butter and Cheefe, how it is reasonably sold. There are some other Officers, whose names are sufficient to be noted: as the Patrons of Widdowes and Orphanes, Schumworgt, and at Bafile, Muleiffenherren : The Almoners; Visiters for weights and measures; Deputies for questioning of matters; Comptrolers of Ecclefiafticall goods; and Vifiters of

Of Schooles

Schooles.

The Vninersi ty at Basile, founded by Aeneas Sylui us,who was the fame priviledges, rights, and immunities, which the Vniuerfities of Boulogne, Colongne, Heidelberg, Erdford, Lipfa & Vienne hauc. Aeneas Sylvius was lodged at Bafile, during the time as the councell was kept there. He found the citty fo pleafant, the ayre fo fweete, with fuch commodity and abundance of all things; that heereputed the place apt and worthy to haue an Vniuerlity founded in it. In the times of our ancestors, and our owne also, this Voiuerfity hath yeelded many wife men. professors of the tongues, in Philosophy and all Sciences, who are needleffe heere to be named. Neuertheleffe, confidering the greatnesse of the citty, and the same of the Doctours there abiding, there are but few Schollers. Beatus Rhenanus rendreth the reason, and faith; It is occasioned by the fmalneffe of reuennues belonging to this Vniuerfity, and to many Schooles in Germany. As thinking that if there were fewer Schooles and Vniuerfities, they would bee much more frequented then they are. There is not any Vniuersity at Zurich; notwithstanding, euen to this prefent day, the tongues have Morcouer, in these citties there are Schooles very well ordered. At Bafile is an University greatly renowned, established by Aene a Syluius, afterward Pope, named Pius the second, who gaue it all beene so faithfully taught there, and all good Sciences and Dininity, that it is very famous, and highly effected among all them that study Divinity.

Finally, these three citties whereof we Mint for the speake, haue power to stampe and coyne coyning of monie; and therefore there are fordging three sittles. Mints, and Masters of the monies, whose charge is to take order that the money coyned with the stamp of the citty, shold beare full weight, and be of a good allay. Each of these citties hath her mony apart by her felfe. They of Bafile do covne the fame mony with them of Halfatia and of Bourgongne, and call it a Rappenmunt 3, Baffe. in regard of a Rauen, which serueth for Armes to many peeces of their mony. Fine & twenty Sols of this mony, makes a Florin of gold, which is thought to value threescore crutzers. At Schaffouse the The monie of mony is of the same allay & price, as that Schaffouse. of the Empire. They of Zurich do coyne The monie of Dallers, and halfe Dallers, of equal price zurich, with them of the Empire : but they haue a kinde of mony, which is their owne in particular, whereof forty Sols makes a Florin of gold. They stampe also another fort of mony, which they cal Baches, wher-

of fixteene makes a Florin. In ranke of these publike charges and The watch offices, we may fet downe the Watch, & may not be fuch as take care for provision against the forgot among accidents of fire. There are two fortes of in publike,& watch, befides the Sentinels in the clock-houses, and the Porters. First the perpetuall guardes at the citties coft, who keepe watch enery night, and diligently fearch through all parts of the citty, crying at all houres of the night. Ouer and beside thefe, out of each company are taken a certaine number of Bourgeffes, who likewife watch (according to their turnes) with their Armes. This double guard is not done for any feare they have of enemies: but to avoid the inconveniences of fire, and to take order alfo, that (during the time of night)al maters may be peaceable and quier.

They that are Committees, to take care of dangers concerning fire, when a- The office of them that are ny fuch happeneth in the citty, may com- guards for acmand the Carpenters, and other men of cidents of fire like quality, to runne for quenching the fire, taking order that all may bee done without confusion, and for the best safety of them that have the mif-fortune of the fire.

The mony of Treasurers o the publike monies,& of Cuftomes and Imports.

Of publike

offices and e-

Duers Offi cers appoincharge of vi-Auals. For bread. For Acfh. For fifh.

For butter &

Other Officers noted by their names.

why to few Schollers are in the Vniuer fity of Bafile, der is in times of fire.

The citty diflinguified bands in martiall order.

When fire taketh a village ont of the cit-

What care

A collection of charitable fire. Moreouer, they carry an eye ouer the watch at the Gates, and on the wals; lefte any tumult should happen in the city. For it is ordained, that when the fire What the or- is in any one place, a certaine number of the Bourgesses (chosen out of each company) make their fudden appearance at the Gates or Ports, and vpon the walles in Armes. Moreoner, the whole citty is distributed into certaine bandes, euery one of them having his Captaine & Enfigne to it felfe, vnder whom they go marching in excellent order. The Bourgmaster betakes himselse to the Town-house, with some of the principall councellers and officers of the Seigneury, to aduite on what is good for the weale publike. And not onely Carpenters, Masons, and their servants, but likewise most of the Bourgeffes meete together, all labouring industriously to quench the fire: and oftentimes the women thew themselues of no meane courage, in bringing and casting on the water. Beside, if the fire happen in some Village out of the citty, the lustiest disposed of enery Tribe (whereof election is made for the purpose) do meete, and iffue foorth together, to quench the fire. They are conducted by one of the councell Seigneurs, who is fent to helpe and aduife what is meetest to bee done, but most especially, to comfort them that haue the loffe.

We have already told you, that the Switzers take great care for the poore. At Zurich, and in some other Townes, there is a daily distribution of almes to all the poore there, as of Bread and Pulse-pottage. There are a great number of poore Schollers in Zurich, fometimes forty, otherwhiles fourescore, that are thus releeued; fome bestowing garments, and othe poore in no worfe manner, then they of the Abbeyes and Couents in the Seigneury of Zurich are. Vpon the Sundayes and festivall dayes, an almes collection is made of the people; which Monethly, or almes for the at enery two Moneths, by men chosen & deputed to the office, is distributed equally to the poore in the citty, and fuch as live abroad in the fields. Beside, in the Citties there are great Hospitals, wherin needy cittizens, aged, impotent, ficke perfons, orphanes, and many other are relec-

ued. The Seigneury appointeth divers honest people, to have care of the poores necessities: such as are the Master of Hospitals Procters, Receivers, & their Committees and Comptrollers.

Hitherto wee haue shewne you the The citties forme and state gouernment observed in extent in gothe citties: but ouer and befide these, they have authority in the neighboring countries, and (among the reft) the canton of limits. Zurich hath more country jurisdiction, and larger Bayliwicks, then eyther Bafile or Schaffouse. But in all the Lands and Seigneuries belonging vnto these three cantons, there is one and the felfe-fame order of gouernment. For certaine Bayliwicks are gouerned by the councell of the citty in fuch manner, as the Bayliffes dwell in the citty, and are councellers of the common-wealth, and yet go to keepe Courts in the Villages. And if there happen any criminall fuite, and whereof there is defert of punishment capitall, the councell taketh knowledge thereof. There are other Bayliwicks of farre larger ex- All the Bayli tent, and thether Bayliffes are fent with wicks are no ample power: fo that they judge not on-ly in civili causes, but oftentimes in cri-authority. minall occasions, and chastise malefactors, according to the greatnesse of the delicts. These Bayliwicks have their priuiledges and ancient customes: some also haue law and inflice apart by themselves, and are administred by Judges chosen out

The Bayliffes make no change or alteration (of any thing) in these places; but lawes, print they leave to the inhabitants, all their ledges or and the state of t rights fafe and found: contenting themfelues onely to prefide in inflice, and give ny of their in fentence according to the lawes and customes of each Bayliwicke. The canton of Zurich hath nine great Bayliwicks, to ther needfull things on them also, vling | wit, the county of Kybourg, the Bailiwicks of Groningen, Andelfingen, Grifensee, Eglifow, the free Prouince, Regenspourg, Vadeuille, and Laufen, neere to the fall of Rhein. There are two and twenty fmall Bayli-There are two and twenty small Bayli-wicks or Cassle-ships beside: in some of which, there is as large extent of ground, and as great number of men, as in some Towneibe of the greater Bayliwicks. Moreouer, fide. beside these Bayliwickes, two pleasant Townes, namely Winterdner and Stein, are under the protection of Zurichs canton. The Officers of iustice are in the fame Townes; but the inhabitants are tyof the same places.

Of the fecond inde of gowithout tribe

The derivation

Of the government of Berne.&c. Chap.6.

led in obedience to the Seigneury of Zu- | Schuldahis, and intimate the cause, giving rich, to obey their lawes, and to go to war for that Canton; in which respect, the two Townes have their feuerall Enfignes by themselues.

The Bayli-

The Bayliwicks belonging to the Canton of Bafile, are the Cattle of Furnfperg, feated on the top of a Mountaine about Rhinfeld : Walbourg, a small towne on the Mount Jura, which they tearme Det Bowenstein, in regard of the Rock there cut in funder ; Hombourg , Munchenstein , and Ramstein.

Schaffouse hath the most part of the country of cletgoew, all about bafile, and fendeth Bayliffes and Chastellaines into the Bourroghs and Villages on it depen-

CHAP.VI.

Of the publike estate and government, of the Townes of Berne, Lucerna, Fribourg, and Solleurre : which are not divided into Tribes and Companies, as Zurich, Bafile, and Schaffouse are.

VEe have already faid, that the fe-cond kinde of publike government, is confidered in fuch Townes, as are not distributed into certaine Tribes or Companies, out of which are equally chosen, the Lord & Seigneurs appointed for Councell and Iustice. In these towns they that are foueraigne Magistrates, or Heads of publike councell, are called Em Schuldtheffen. The old Alleman word is found in the Lawes of the Lombardes, where it is written, Schuldahis. It feemeth that the word came of debt, which the Switzers tearme Schuld, and of commanding : as much to fay, that the Schuldahis commands the debters to fatisfie them of whom they borrowed. And in this sence it is found written in the Lombards lawes, under the title of debts and wages, in thefe

If a free man who is a debter hath nothing The 'words as else wherewith to make satisfaction, but his owne prinate Cattell, as Horfes and Oxen for labour or Kine to the paile: then he that challengeth or demandeth the debt, (ball go to the

him to understand, that his debter hath nothing elfe to make repairment withall, but the matters aboue rehearfed. Then the Schuldahis is to make feizure on the faid Cattell, &c.

The same word is found also in the twentieth title of King Luitprands lawes in fignificant tearmes, as followeth. If 4- Luitprandes ny man haue a cause or suite, and do appeare lawes to he before his Schuldahis to demadinitiee : if in cafe that the Schuldahis do him not instice within foure houres after following (if both the parties stand bound to answer before him) himselfe shall pay to the demander lixe Sols.

and to his indge fixe Sols.

We may perceive heereby, that the word Schuldahis fignified (among our A Judgethat graue Ancients) a ludge, that gaue fenrence vpon differences concerning debts, onely. made leucy on the debters goods, and compelled them to pay their creditors. Neuerthelesse, there was no iustice so high, but hee stood in subjection to the county. At this day, the name is in frequent vie among the Princes of Germany so that the ludges of Townes and Villages haue no othername. Among the Switzers it is more honourable, for in the forenamed townes, the Sehuldahu is lord ouerall. The foueraigne Magistrates of The cheese Townes among the Switzers, fome haue Magi trate of thought were called Coofuls, in imitation and the mong the mong the spirit on of the Romans: others hold opinion, that Bourgmasters and Schuldahis ought to be called Prestors. For mine owne part, I call them Confuls, that are Prefi-dents in publike councel. The French call him an Auoyer, whom we tearme Schuld-

Now as concerning the Towns wherof we speak, they are not divided by companies and trades, because there are lawes these Townes which prohibite them from fo doing. But after fuch maalthough the forme of the Commonwelths of Zurich and Berne are different: yet the one stands bound to succour the other reciprocally, to maintaine and conferue the estate, such as is established in eythers common-wealth. In the meane while the trades that are at Berne, Lucerna, Fribourg, and Solleurre, haue houses established for meeting, for knowledge of the best and cheefest workmen, but not for the election of Magistrates. They tearme those Officers by the name of Blillichafften,and not Zunften.

Ino Treasu-

and their

Two publike councels in those Towns: the great and the leffer.

ike councels, as at Zurich, Basile, & Schaffoufe; to wit the great and the leffer. The great councell of Berne, is of two hundred men, as at Zurich, although it hath more then two hundred councellers. The leffer councell of Berne, is of fixe and twenty. At Lucerna, eighteen councellers do gouerne the estate, during the space of fixe Moneths, and eighteene other fixe Mothe councell of Berne, the proceeding is in this manner.

the Captaine any good Towne.

The manner of electing of two hundred.

The Seig-neurs of the great councel Towne-house

The election of the leffer

In these Townes there are two pub-

The third Feries before Easter day, the foure Banderets of the Towne, doe chuse, and take with them sixteene Bourgeffes, the worthieft and best esteemed men of all; then these twenty, with the Auoyer, do elect the great councell, wherfore we may well call them Electors. First of all, they confider and examine exactly, the lives and manners of all them that are to be of the councell of two hundred; and if any one of them hath foyled his dignity and reputation, with any bad or villainous acte; they depose him, and in the place, as wel of the deposed, as of the ded, they chuse another, whom they do better like and allow of. In meane while, their election remaineth secret, vntill the euening of the day before Easter, & then the Officers goe, and fignifie to all them that are elected for the great and leffer councels: that they are to meete on the morrow morning in the Towne-house.

The first Feries after Easter, the Seigneurs of the councell do affemble in their houses of meeting, and afterward they conduct them to the Towne-house, that are newly fet downe, to be in number of the two hundred, and then all the Magi-frates are elected. The election ended, the Bourgesses go to feast in their houses, and after dinner, walke foorth into the fields: exercifing themselues there in leaping,running,throwing the Barre, Stone, and other pastimes. But the Auger goes againe to the towne-house, accompanied with the twenty Electors; and there they elect the councellers that are to be of the leffer councell. On the morrow, they are named to the councell of two hundred. and after that their election is approued, they goe and fitte downe in their places. Now in regard that the councell of Lucerna doth command no longer time the fixe Moneths onely: the election of the Seigneurs both for the leffe and greater councell, is made twice yearely, if there of Lucerna be any vacant places, and that is done a- chosen twice bout mid-Iune, and mid-December. The yearely. new councellers are taken from the leffer councell, that gouerned during the fixe precedent Moneths.

The Augyers or Confuls, who are aboue the other Seigneurs, are elected by of the Augy. neths, or the rest of the yeare. To elect | the lesse and greater councels, & by common voyces. The authority of the Auger fuls. at Lucerna, lafteth but a yeare, and a years at Berne: but yet in fuch manner that the voyces are yearely taken for him, and hee againe elected. Next to the Ausyers of Berne, the principall men in the commonwealth, are the foure Banderets, chosen of the chusing of the foure companies of trades-men onely, or men of handy-crafts, to wit, of four co Carpenters, Curryers, or Leather-dref- panies. fers (who are distributed in three parts) Bakers, and Butchers.

The Towne of Berne is divided into foure parts, which are committed (each The diatifo one of them) to these foure Banderets : of Berne to who view and ouer-fee the Armes of all the foure Bi the Bourgesses, and prouide for the affairs of warre. They continue in their charge the space of soure yeares: but every yeare on the same day as the Anoyer is elected, they refigne their estates, and deliver into the hands of the cheefe Viher of the Seigneury, their Enfignes, and all the other markes of their dignity, which are laide on a Table before the Auoyer and the councell: and then the great and left rets contin ler councell gives their voyces, concer-ing in their ning the Banderets. If one of them have office. continued in his charge fully four years, or is preuented by death, another is planted in his place: but yet it is thus conditionallydone, that if the dead did not finish his foure yeares, his fucceffour must accomplish them in the nature of a substitute, and afterward, execute the fame charge foure other yeares. In all the Townes of the Switzers, the dignity of Pursie-bearers or Treasu-rers is great. Some whiles, the time of reason Iter their charge is not limitted at all; but furers, they continue in that estate, so long as pleafeth the councell, and themselues alfo. There are two of them at Berne, the one receiueth the reuennues of the Towne, and of the Allemaigne country:

cause hee receineth the reuennues which the Seigneury deriueth from the coun-

Concerning the election of other puboftonncellers uBerne for

The ordinary

the other is for the Romane country, betries of Vant, and of Sauoye. Those men which we have so lately named Auoyers, Banderets, and Treasurers, with one counceller of the two hundred, are called at Berne Die heimlichen Rath, which is as much to fay, as the fecret or priny councell. For to them (before all other) matters of most secrecy, of consequence, and which concerne the whole Common-wealth, are reported and tru-

After that the abouenamed Magiffrares have beene elected, and confirmed by the leffe and greater councels; aduice is yled, concerning other publike Offices, which is done in some of those Townes the very same day, and on the morrow in others.

As for those estates that have not any dignity, as Serieants, Executers of iuftice, Messengers, Watches, and other such like charges: ordinarily, the leffer councell bestowes them of fuch, as they know meetest for them.

themselves, as concerning election of their councellers, that they will not receine any person into the lesser councell, if he be not borne within the Towne. In elder times, if the fonnes of councellers were borne out of the Towne, they could not attaine to the fathers dignity. Now adayes, when some councellers are abfent, about occasions of the weale-publike, and for the gouerning of fome Bayliwicke: if they happen to haue any children, they are reputed as borne in the Towne. For the great councell, they may bee elected that are borne out of Berne: prouided that they be Bourgeffes, haue houses in the Towne, and are issued of the Switzers country, or of the confederates of the Cantons. For no man is received into the councell of the two hundred, if he be borne out of Switzerland: and the same is in practise at Zurich, as we have already declared. In like manner, baftards, and people of infamous note, are quite excluded from coucell.

There are three Courts or Benches manner of lu- of inflice at Berne, all the Indges whereof, are elected by the Banderets & Treafurers, and are confirmed by the leffer councell.

The first Court of instice is called, Das Mercricht. The Anoyer prolis deth there, but the cheefe Viher, whom The first they call Der grofs meibell, doth (al- Court of lumost) daily keepe the place, and hath 12. Affiftants, to wit, the last man elected of are therein the foure Banderers, one of the Seigneurs determined. of the leffer conneell, and tenne of the great with one Secretary, and two Officers. They take knowledge of debts, iniuries &outrages of flender confequence, as if one man give another a box on the eare, or gines fome words to his difgrace. A man may appeale from their fentence, to the leffer councell, and from them, to the fixty men, which is a councell composed of Seigneurs of the lesser councel, and of fixe and thirty councellers of the great councell. From the fixty, appeale may bee made vnto the generall. The ludges doe affemble euery day to conclude causes, onely Tuesday excepted, which is the Market day.

The fecond Court of inflice, judgeth the appellations of the country of Sauoy: Court is cal-The Bernians hold this properly to and therefore it is commonly called, the led the Court Court for strange Appellations; Das of appellations, or a belteh Appellatz gricht. The Purffe- peales. bearer or Treasurer of the country, fitteth in judgement there, & hath ten affiftants, to wit two Seigneurs of the leffer councell, and eight of the great, with one Secretarie and an Officer. They end all the appeales for the country of Sausye, and giue audience to parties at all times, and as ofte as they defire it. Notwithstanding, their ordinary vse is to meete after the The ordinary day of S. Martin in Nouember, vntill the ine Court Moneth of December. All they of Sanoye come thether to the appellations, they onely of Laufanna excepted : but at enery two yeares, the Treasurer commeth to Laufanna with fome affiftants, and there decideth the causes of appeale.

The third Court or jurisdiction, takes knowledge of marrimoniall causes. It is The third the Confiftory, where there are eight Countitie Iudges; two of the leffer councell, who for manageprefide or give fentence there (turne by matters. turne) from two Moneths to two Moneths: two Ministers of the Church; foure of the great councell, and they have a Secretary or Clearke, and an Officer, They affemble three times in the weeke, namely.

Ec2

The limitation of their authority.

Twe Courts of inflice at Lucerna, and what caules are cessiured in them.

likewise about the end of September.

Criminall causes concerning life and death.

How they proceed in ca-fes of death.

In the Bayliwicks of Berr

Of the Bayliwicks belonging to them of Berne.

namely, on Monday, VV eniday, and Friday, then they confider not onely on matrimoniall causes, but also censure such as wire scandales, and put in practise the discipline of the Church. Moreouer, these men and the Judges of the first court of iustice, doe hold in estate but halfe the veare, and are changed about Easter, and

They of Lucerna haue two courts of instice, the one they call Das mouchen= gricht, because the ludges do meete euery weeke, and decide al fuites proceeding of debts and contracts. The other is called Das nuce gricht, the inflice of nine: for nine Iudges take knowledge of iniuries and outrages, and accordingly inflict punishment. There is not any Consistory at Lucerna, neither at Fribourg, or Solleurre: because they are Catholiques, and fubicated to the jurisdiction of Bishops, by whose Officials the causes concerning matrimony are debated.

As for criminall matters capitall, there are not any particular Indges thereto appointed, neyther at Berne, nor Lucerna. But when question is made concerning any ones life, the great and imaller councels take knowledge thereof, and judge it. The Auoyers fit in cheefest authority, and censure on the matters. After sentence is refolued on at Berne, the Auoyer goes and fits in a feate of inflice, appointed in some eminent part of the Towne, enuironed with Officers of the Seigneury. Then the Clearke or Secretary readeth out aloud the confession of the offender, & the sentence giuen against him. Afterward the Auoyer enjoyneth the hangman to execute the fentence, and commandeth the condemned person to bee deliuered to him. At Lucerna, the councell do iudge in criminall causes, of all the Bayliwicks, and all the Malefactors are punished within the Towne. But in all the Bayliwicks of Berne, there is instice apart by it selfe, which they call Landtquicht, and thether the Judges of all the Bayliwicks are called, and give their advice in presence of the Bayliwicks, who prefideth: and yet in fuch fort, as the councell of Berne may approue, or change the sentence, if they thinke good.

The Bernians have many Bayliwicks, & are the most powerfull Seigneurs of the Leagues. In some they speak the Alleman or Germane tongue; in other the Romana or Sauoyan. Among the Alleman Bayliwicks, there are foure depending on the Towne, and are euen as Subburbs thereto: whereof the foure Banderets are Bayliffes, and if they were to go to war, those Bayliwicks march under the Enfignes of the foure Banderets. Moreouer, there are feuen and twenty other befide, to wir, the vale of Hafell, which hath an Amman, out of the Vale of the body of the inhabitants, but hee is of Hafell elected by the councell of Berne, & there rendreth an account of his charge. Vnderlée is a Towne so named, because it is at the end of a Lake : thether is an Auoyer The Auoyer fent, but he is of the Towne of Berne. The of Vadence vale of Simma, both high and low, do call their Bayliffes Schachtlandt, that is to fay, Castilians. Frutingen, Sane and Aelen, do name their Bayliffe, Gouernour. Laupen and Thun are in the same condition as V nder lee.

Next to these, are Signow, Trachfel- The Baylife wald, and the Rivers of the vale of Emme. of the Vale of Brandis, that receives her Bayliffe from the Lord of the place: but he is numbred among the Bourgesses of Berne. Sumsfwald, where the Masters of the "Tento- "The compa nicke Order estab ished a Bayliffe. Burg- nyof the dorff and Pyrnestic are governed all alike, change as Vnder (ee. Landhoutt, Arberg, Nidow, Erlach Bippin Wange , Arwange Arbourg, Biberstain, Schenkenberg, and Lentabourg. Moreouer, there are three free Townes in the country of Ergow, vnder the Seigneury of Berne, to wit, Zofinge, Arow, and Brug. There are eight Roman Bayliwicks, Eight W at as namely, Auanches, Modon, Tuerdun, Bayliwicks, Laufanna, Morges, Nyon, Orbe, Aille and Veuay. Befide, they of Berne and of Fribourg haue foure Bayliwickes in common; as Mort, Schuartzenbourg, Granson, & Cha-wicks in com lanfe, whether they fend a Bayliffe succes- mon. finely at enery 5. yeares end : fo that if the Bayliffe be of Berne, his causes of appeale goe to Fribourg, where the reasons of the Bayliffe are examined. There are Prouosts beside, for the government of Abbeyes. The Berninans had nine in the Allemane country, fixe wherof held jurifdicion, and three in the Romane country.

They of Lucerna have onely two out of the Towne, as at Wiken, and at Sempach: but hee of Sempach hath no other long to Laauthority in the place, but only the fuper- cerna. intendency of the Lake, and of the Fish.

Of the government of Berne,&c. Chap.8.

de, and of other places

Lex Talionis

sasyet in fome vie at

Corners of pets at Lu-

Monies coy-

thele towner

gouerned by some of the Seigneurs of the councell. Those Bayliwickes are Willifon, the Vale of Entlibuch, Rotenbourg, Habsbourg, Berone, and the neighbouring countrie, which they call, Che-The primledg lampt: Merifuande, that hath this priviledge, to chuse for Bayliffe, one of the Seigneurs of councell in Lucerna, euen whom they lift, except the Auoyer: Weggif, Ebicon, Horbe and Krientz. Moreouer, the two Townes of Surfey and Sempach, are in the protection of the Lucermans: Neuerthelesse, they have their councell apart by themselues, who judge in causes both civill and criminall. But the Auoyer of Surfey, gineth his oath to them of Lucerna. He of Sempach is ele-Eted by the councell at Lucerna: but he is in number among the cittizens of Sem-

> The law of likeneffe or equality, which the Latines tearmed Lex Talionis, is as vet vsed (in some fort) at Lucerna. For if any man kil a citizen of the place, althogh he did it voon just occasion, having beene prouoked thereto by the other, and in defence of his owne body: yet if hee betaken they fmite off his head; or if he flye, he is banished for euer. But if he make fatisfaction to the children or kindred of the dead, and cause them to give over all pursuite: hee may obtaine leaue of the councell to come againe into the rowne.

Among all the Switzers, there is not any but them of Lucerna, that make vie of Braffe vied in Braffe Cornets instead of Trumpets. The Read of trum crooked Corners, which they cal barienhoener, gives a frightfull found. The Romanes also made vie of Cornets in warre: and thereupon, they that founded or winded those Cornets, were called Comi= tines. The men of Lucerna fay, that Charlemaigne gaue those Cornets to the; because they carried themselues valiantly in a warre which he had against the Sarrazins, and that Rowland, a Lord very Rowland who highly beloued of Charlemaigne in those call Orlando times, ferued himfelfe with those kindes of Cornets long before.

These forenamed Townes do covne monies, but Berne, Fribourg, and Solleurre, haue one particular kind of coyne: wherof two and forty Sols, and two thirds of a Sol, makes a Florin of Rheine. Moreo. uer, they stampe another more great fort

As for their other Bayliwicks, they are of money, which the Switzers call Bin Wortheigh-Dickenpfeming, and the French a Te- teene pence fton. Tiefe Testones are minted at solleurre fterling. for the most part; and yet notwithstanding are counted of leffe value, by a tenth part, then them of France. They of Berne coyned first certaine money, which the Switzers termed Baches: in regard of the figure of a Beare, which was stamped on Mony with a the one fide for they called a Beare 113 ac- Beare fram ren and Bactsen. Afterward, the other Ped onit. Citties and Townes of Switzerland and of Suaba, coyned the same money: fixteene peeces whereof, valued a Florin of gold. The mony of Lucerna commeth The valuatinot necre to the value and price of that of on of the coines.

Bafile, which is more hard and ftrong: for the Sol of Lucerna valueth but the moity of that of Bafile, and fifty Sols of Lucerna, will make one Florin.

Now we come to speake of Fribourg, The estate & which is diuided into foure parts, like vncondition of to Berne: the first is called the Borrough, howit is diaithe second, the Island, or the Medow; the dedinto source third, the new Towne; and the fourth, the parts. Hospitall. The councellers of the common-wealth are chosen out of these quarters. As in the other Townes, so in this there are two publike councels; to wit, The two couthe great councell, confisting of 2. hundred, and the leffer of foure and twenty. The election is made on the Sunday before S. Iohn Baptist day. The leffer counfore S. John Baptift day. The refer countries of the Towne the leffer countries of the Towne deciding the causes of appeales : except cell and of of the Bayliwicks of Sauore, conquered in the greater. warre. As for the matters which concerne the whole State, and are of maine importance the councell of two hundred takes knowledge of them. The Auger, who presideth both in the lesser & great councels, is elected on S. Johns day by all the of charge. people, and continueth in his charge the space of two yeares.

Next vnto the Auover, are the foure Banderets, who are Captaines of seuerall anderets of the citty or towne, & although next to the they are not of the ordinary number of Ausyer. Seigneurs of the leffer councell . yet notwithstanding, they assist there in name of all the people, and deliuer their advice, except in appellations. If fome thing be propounded which feemeth to belong to the councell of two hundred; they may ther make their report of it. Furthermore they remaine in authority, three yeares

Ecz

The office of the Treasurer.

Of the gouernment of Berne,&c. 3. Booke or moderate.

followeth the office of the Treasurer, who manageth the monies, and all the revenues of the Towne : he hath (as his coadiuter) the Secretary or Clearke of the Towne, or his Committees, who regifter downe all those summes, which the Treasurer receineth, or imployeth. His charge also is, to have an eye on all the Foure principall Secreta ries in Fribourg.

The Saultier or chiefe Vih

The Courts of law and iuflice at Fri-

The first Court or afembly.

The other Court of iu ftice.

Twelue Iudges for the conquered and are chosen by the great & lesse councels, as many other Officers are. Then publike buildings. Twice euery yeare he renders an account to the leffer councell, and remaineth in his charge, the space of three yeares. In Fribourg there are foure principall

Secretaries: the first is called Secretary of the Towne; the second, Secretary of the councell; the third, Secretary of the country; and the fourth, Secretary of law or inflice. In like manner, the estate of Saultier, or cheefe Viher, is honoureble both in Berne and Fribourg, where it is named Brolsweihels. He is very often neere to the Auoyer, and when the Seigneurs are fet in councel, he is at the door. takes care of prisoners. His charge continueth three yeares.

As concerning Law and Instice at Fribourg, they are established in manner following. First, the Court of Iustice belonging to the Towne, called, Dag Stattgricht, is a particular affembly of certaine ludges, to know and decide differences among the Bourgesles. And if there be any criminall processe or suite; their charge is to interrogate the prisonners, to present & deliuer the case in queftion, and then to relate all to the leffer councell. The other affembly of Iudges, is tearmed Das Landtgricht, iudging the causes of dwellers in the country. In each of these jurisdictions, there are two Seigneurs of the leffer councell, and two of the great, and they meet three times enery week. Appeale may be made from their fentence, to the Jeffer councel. Moreouer, there are twelue Iudges, chofen out of the great and leffer councels. for the appellations of the Bayliwickes, conquered in the last warre against the Duke of Sauoye. They meete together once in euery Moneth, and there is no appealing from their fentence.

At Fribourg there are two kindes of Bayliwicks as in the other Townes : the one of Bayliwicks neighbouring to the Two kindes Towne, which are gouerned by certaine Seigneurs of the councell, who dwell in belonging to the the Towne, and come dayly to councell, Fribourg. and of fuch Bayliwicks there are fine. The other is, when the Bayliffes are fent to dwell on diffinct places with ample authority: and they of Fribourg have fourteene fuch Bayliwicks, and foure in common with the Bernians. The Bayliffes are mon with the elected by the great and leffer councels, of Berne, the morrow after S. John Baptists day, and hold in office the space of five yeares:but euery yeare they render an account of their charge, before the leffer councell. They enstruct also, and deale in criminal Dealing in fuites: but them they fend to the leffer criminalloc councell with their fentence, which the cafions, councell hath power to approue, change, flunger, and in the vulgar, Lefthunger, bearing of debt at the coft a charge of the coft and the coft a charge of the coft a charge of the coft a charge of the coft and the coft a charge of the charge of t thefe words is understood a remise or ta- of the debut riance for certaine time, and the charges counteth voyces, calleth the parties, and to be on his owne head; when the debter doth not pay his debt, at or on the day of affignement, as in this manner. When the debter maketh not fatisfaction, on the day appointed for repayment, the creditor fendeth one two three or more feruants (on horfe-backe) to an Inne or Hoftery, whose expences there the debter is confirained to pay (tarry they there neuer fo long) vntill hee hath made fatisfa- Alaw made ction to the creditor. Some fay, that the of zeringen, Duke of Zeringen established this Law. for payment Such as infringe or breake it, are punished of debts. by imprisonment, banishment, or by the purffe. And there is a certaine Iudge, who they call Bourgmaster, that holdeth a ftrich hand in this cafe. Moreoner if action or fuite is moued, and a man demand the Exoftimo three times, if it is not grated to the demander, it is present banishment. Such as breake the peace, wherein they are enjoyned to line one with a- Banishment nother, are banished likewise: and they of peace. that (without inft cause) will meddle or take part on eyther fide, when a cause is in pleading.

Finally, the Fribourgers make feafting Dayes of fo. yearely, with folemne procession of all e-states through the Towne, on the second obtained. day of March, and on the eight and twentieth day of lune; which are dayes of bat-

Foure Bayli.

The author diffinguished the Cantons

according to their qualities of governmen & journation.

Amman is beld as a Major or

That which at Fribourg is called Tto= A flay or for The Cantons divided into certaine por 0115.

Chap. 7.8. Of those cantons that dvvell in villages. 319

Switzers, against the Duke of Bourgongne, at Granfon, and at Moral.

CHAP. VII.

Of the Commonwealth of those Cantons that have neither Citties nor Towns, but dwell onely in Villages.

I Itherto we have discoursed on two formes of Common-wealths, concerned in the Cantons of Switzerland, that have Citties and Townes. There remaineth now a third, which is of those Cantons that have no Townes, but make their abode in Villages, and for that cause are called Die Laender. There are fixe of them, to wit, Vri, Suits, Vnderuald, Zug, towne, & hath her Officers in the towne, but the foueraignty of the Canton appertaineth to them that dwell in the lands of the Canton with them of the towne, and are Lords as well the one as other. In all these Cantons, the cheese of the publike councell, is tearmed Annnan, which fignifieth a man in office and authority. and that name is attributed to all publike Officers. So that Abbots, and other Ec-

Glaris, and Appenzell. Zug indeede is a clefiasticall persons, do call their Iudges, Receivers, and other fuch like Officers. Anmans. As the Townes are divided or parted, by Companies and Colledges of Artezans, or Tradefinen; fo the Cantons are distributed into certaine parts and porti-

CHAP.VIII.

Of all the fixe Cantons forenamed, which in this ensuing Chapter we will handle together, according to their feuerall rights & iurifdutions.

THE whole country of Vri is divided into ten parts, which by them are called Gnotsaminen, as if a man would fay, Participations. It may be in

tailes giuen, and victories wonneby the | this respect, because they are all partakers in pasturages, goods, honours, and publike charges, and that from those ten parts onely, they are fummoned and called, to be prefent at those affemblies which are yearely made.

The Country of Suits is divided into The division fixe parts, which they call quarters. Because the country (heeretofore) was distributed into foure portions but the people coming to encreate greatly, they made a new partage into fixe portions, which neuertheleffe do reteine the ancient name.

As for the Country of Vnderuald, vnderuald di there is a Forest that divideth it in the uided in the middeft: and therfore the division is thus midft. made to them that dwell about and beneathethe Forest. The whole Country taketh name of that part which is beneath the Forest: for Indernalden is as much Ofthe name. to fay, as beneathe or under the wood. In eldertimes, Stants, a principall Village cipall village beneathe the Forest, and neere to the Lake, was the prime and cheefe place of the country, and the people were called, inhabitants of the Valley of Stants. But now adayes, because the word Vnderuald is taken for the whole country, the Switzers have added these words, aboue and beneathe the wood, Undernalden ob und nidt bem kernwald. Now as concerning them of Zug, we The partition

haue faid already, that they are divided in of Zug, the two parts; the one is the Towne it felfe, Towne & the Villages. the other the Villages round about comprehended under three affemblies, to wit, the Mountaine, the Vale Egeria, and Bara, a Parish very neere to the Towne.

Glaris is divided into fifteene parts, which they tearme & agman. The word The dinifion fignifieth the work of a day, and as much distance or spaciousnesse of ground, as a man can plow in a day. It may be, that these parts were called Iournals, or daylabours: because enery one prepareth & ordereth the way in his quarter, and each one knoweth where he is to labour.

The country of Appenzell is parted in- The orders or to twelve orders or portions, which they proportions call Raden, whereof those fixe conioy- Appenzell. ned to the Village of Appeneell, they name them the orders within, and anciently were subjects to the Abbot of S. Gall. The other fixe are called the orders without: to wit; out of the Abbots

Seigneury,

320 Of those cantons that dwell in villages. 3. Booke

Election of the councell Seigneury; heeretofore partly free, and partly in the jurisdiction of Gentlemen. Out of these parts (by equal number) are chosen certaine men, for the councell of the Canton: in many of them there are threefcore councellers, befide fuch as (hauing beene in office) continue perpetuall councellers. At Zug there are fine and forty councellers, nine of each affembly, for the Towne is counted for two.

The general Appenzell.

Publication

of a councel

on a day ap-

None but

of importance are to be treated on, and it appeareth needfull to affemble the councell of all the people: then they will double or treble the councell in this manner. Each of the councellers takes a man or two with him, if they be to hold a coucell of three times as many perfons, as ordinarily they vie to do: and one of the councellers, on Sunday, in the Church after Seruice is done, hath a custome to fignifie that on such a day as he nameth, all the councellers are to meete in the Towne-house of the Canton, and each man is to bring with him fuch a one, as he holdeth to bee an honest and wise man, who shall also bee there bound to obedience, under the oath whereby all are obliged to the common-wealth. Belide, no man is elected to be a counceller, neither can he affift in the generall councell, if he be councelers be not borne in the country, Ein Land= man : And it is much more easie to obtaine the degree of Bourgeshippe, in the Townes of the Switzers, then in these Villages. VV hich proceedeth not of any inhumanity, for there are great store of strangers among them, towards whom they shew themselves very kinde and humane. But rather by a certaine order of aduifed judgement, and according to the custome of their predecessors: being neuer willing to mingle new commers among olde inhabitants of the country, both to preuent charges, and to preferue the common-wealth (the more eafily) in age of fourteene, or fixteene, or vpwards, do meete eyther at the principall Village of the Canton, or elfe at some other place

The foueraignty in these fixe Can-one and the fame estate and condition.

The Switzers louing and kinde to firágers living a

The councel The council general of all tons, belongeth to the affembly of all the me people, & people. All they of the country, from the their appoin-ted places of meeting.

The councell generall of Appenzell, confifteth of an hundred forty foure, to being S. Iohn Baptists day. They of Vnderwit twelve of each order. And if matters uald about the wood, meete the first day is in his office of authority, hee goeth to remaine in the principall Village, where the publike councell keepeth most.

At Zug there are three affembles of them without the Towne. Next, the Of the affen Towne hath the power of two affemblies and the animans are chosen by order of without and each affembly. They that are elected of within. the affemblies without, doe dwell in the Towne,during the two yeares that they are animans. In the fame affembly wher the amman is elected, his Lieutenant al- The election fo is chofen, whom they tearme statt= of the Lieux halter: and fo are the Treasurers or nant. Purfic-bearers, called by them Setelmeifters. Next, the Secretaries and Bayliffes which gouerne the Bayliwickes of Secretaries & the Canton: or those which the Canton Bayliffer holds apart with other Cantons. Moreouer Edicts are there read & confirmed. or abrogated yearely, by the voyces of all the people: so likewise sports, and playing at cardes, dice, dancing, excessive drinking, fore-stalling Markets of victuals, and fuch like things. When the councell is thus held yeare in the midst of the country. As they of by yeare, councellers are elected and con-

Vri meete at Betzelinge, distant halfe a dayes iourney from Altorff, the cheefest Village of that Canton. The people of Glaris meete at Suanda. The ordinary and annuall affemblies of these Cantons, is made enery yeare about the beginning these anomy the ano of May. They of Suits, of Underwald vnder the wood, of Glaris and of Appenzell, do meete the last Sunday of Aprill. They of Vri and of Zug, the first Sunday of May. In elder times, they of Zug held their generall councel the 24.day of June, of May.

In these assemblies, first of all he is elected whom they call the Amman, in which office hee continueth the space of two yeares. Heeretofore there was no terme of time affigued, but (oftentimes) is the full of the fame Amman gouerned for many ficer chosen yeares together. He is permitted to be inthe affen chosen among all the people, as a man that (for his vertue and wisedome) shall be thought most worthy of that dignity and charge, without regard at all, in what place or Village of the Canton hee dwelleth. Notwithstanding, in certaine Cantons, as at Appenzell, while the Amman

Chap. 8. Of those Cantons that dyvell in Villages. 321 8

The electing and confirming of coun-

An extraordinary coun-cell holden.

Councell

The councel of feuen at

The fift of

The fecond of feuen.

The order at

Two Courts of law & iu-flice at Vnderuald.

affembly, but each of them ordered by the subjects of the Canton, and by the companies among whom they dwell. Finally, if at some other times of the yeare, there happen affaires that concerne the estate of the common-wealth, an extraordinary councell is held. As if need require, to fend Ambassadors to the dayes at Bada, or to some other Kings and Princes; or if there be question of making alliances, be they eyther for peace or warre, Befide the leffer councell and the generall, composed of all the people; some of the cantonshaue a councell more firich and private, and courses of inflice for difcision of suites. In the Canton of Suits, which is divided in fixe parts, the principall counceller of each part is taken: and thefe fixe, with the Amman, make the councell of feuen, called fecret. Thefe feuen do manage and order all the reuennues of the country, and furnish all that is laid out for publike expences. Moreouer, there are two Courts of iustice, the one being called the order of nine, in regard of the number of Judges, and there the Amman fits as President. In this Court are decided the causes of greatest impor-

terrible injuries, hard to be endured. The Court of seuen, (so is the other order of inflice called) where the Lieutenant to the Amman fits as Prefident : and those seuen are Judges in causes concerning contracts, debts, and fuch like. They of Vri have (almost) the same government : for there the Court of feuen, with the Lieutenant to the Amman, doccenfure and judge of debts, which exceede not the fum of threescore pounds. There is another iudiciall Court of fifteene, where the Amman fits as Prefident, and concludeth causes civill of greatest consequence.

tance: as of inheritances, outrages, and

At V nderuald also there are 2. Courts of inflice, the one at Stants under the wood, and the other at Sarna about the wood, and each of them hath an Amman. It is faide, that the country was parted in the yeare one thousand, one hundred and fifty; when fome debate fell among them for paying of a certaine tribute. And are as Guardians of the lawes, and tearwhereas before that time, they had but med cheefest councellers: their charge is one councell, and one Standard, bearing perpetuall, and they are called in this canfirmed : but yet this is not done by enery | a double key for the whole country ; this partition caused each of the sides to take one key onely, and they that were about the wood, retained full their olde Staindard, white and redde, because they were the greater part of the Canton. Then they under or beneathe the wood, receiued from Popes another Enfigne, which The Popes had two keyes in it: for in regard that nother fin-Stants (long before) had beene the prin- figne. cipall Village of the Canton, they therefore kept still the Ensigne, which in those times they had at Stants.

The Towne of Zug, befide the councell generall of the whole country, hath a councell apart, order of inflice, Magistrates, a Lieutenant to the Amman, Treafurer, Voyer, &c. who judge the causes of the Bourgesses, and manage all the publike affaires.

At Glaris there are two Courts of iuflice, one of nine, the other of flue Iudges, which the councell general of the Canton do elect every yeare. They deoide their feuerall law-fuites in the Moneths of May, and of December onely. The nine take knowledge of differences concerning inheritances, and dangerous injuries. The fine do censure suites of debts and payments, after that the nine (who keepe Court the space of fixe dayes) have ended.

They of Appenzell haue two courts The Courts of inflice also, the first is kept in a publike of inflice at place of the streete; in regard whereof, Appenzell. they call it Das gaffen gricht. Therein are foure and twenty ludges, two of each order of the canton, and their President is the Viher of the canton, Der Land Court. tweibell, and they meete together weekly euery Thursday: they condemne men in fines, and chastise such as wrong one another. The other court is called Das The feward aelchwozen aricht inflice of oath : because twelue ludges sitte there, and take knowledge of differences, which are ended by giving oath to one of the parties. Moreouer, from each order of the canton, a counceller is chosen, & many from the orders that are greater. These men make observation of such as breake pub. der of counlike ordinances, and deliberate on matters which are to bee propounded to the councell generall. In which respect, they authorities.

Two Courts

Suits, Vri, Vnderuald, Zug, Glaris, and appenzel, are Catholicke, and under the Diocesse of Constance. And if there hap pen any difference concerning mariages, they goe to the Officialtie of the fayde place, but they of the other opinion goe to Zurich.

Punishment for adultery.

The order &

Cantons.

Bellizora

ing to it.

As for adulteries, they are chastised in each Canton : fome, by confiscation of goods; others (fometime by the fine of ten Dallers. Thaue heard likewise, that (divers times) the councell general of the whole Canton, doeth decide some differences concerning marriages.

Iustice in causes criminall, is admini-minall causes. stred (almost in all the Cantons) by the publike councell, and oftentimes doubled or multiplied by the ordinary councellers; the anunan fitting Prefident, or his Lieutenant. At Zug, in criminal matters, other assistants are joyned with the councell or Iudges, chosen out of each diuision or assembly of the Canton. Suites of Law are discust in an open publique place, where all may heare that which is faid, and know the merite of the fentence given by the Iudges.

Now to speake of the Baylywickes or Gouernements appertaining vnto these disposition of the Bayly-wicks in these Cantons, they are carried and disposed in manner following. They of Fri fend a Bayliffe into the valley of Liuiner beyond the Mountaines: who hath one of the same valley for his Lieutenant and Assistants also, with whom he judgeth causes both civill and criminall, and continueth in his charge the space of three yeeres. Beyond the fame Mountaines, they fend Bayliffes also to Bellizona, and to two other places. They of Bellizona have three hath 3.Bayly-wicks belong-Bayliwickes, to wit, Bellizona, the Vale Brune, and Riviera, where the three Cantons do command in such manner, that each of them hath alwaies a Bayliwicke. Moreouer, the inhabitants of Mount S. Godardo, are subjectes to the Canton of Vri; neuertheleffe, they have their Councell and their Amman, who are confirmed by them of Vri, & when there are criminal fuites, two of the councell of Vri do meet there. They have their Standard likewise: but when they of Pri do display that belonging to the Canton, the other hold vp

They of Suites have fometimes hadde foure Bayliwickes, to wit, the Marche, the Hermitage, Cusnach, and certaine small tofore below. Villages or great Farmes, neer to the lake of Zurich: but the two former haue obtained municipall right, and doe cleck a councell and triall of fuites in their owne bodye. Notwithstanding, enery yeare, when a councell generall is held at Suits, ordinarily they fend their Ambaffadors thether, and require, that they may have leaue to elect their Magistrates, which is granted them, as in verie great fauour, with this exception, that they are to bee modest and obedient, for otherwise it remaineth in the peoples power of Suits, to fend a Gouernour thether, whenfocuer they thinke meet.

Culnach hath the same condition, but What privibecause, within some few yeares certaine ledges below fraungers (customers for carriage of nach, but lost falt and other thinges that way) made through their complaint, that they of Cusach owne neglet did them wrong, and vsed them harshlie vpon no occasion: the men of Suits knowing the accufation to bee true, fent a Bayliffe thether againe, and appointed new ordinations for Cusnach. Besides, What Bayly they haue two Bayliwickes in common wickes they with them of Glaris, to wit, V znac, which enioy in con is a Towne, and Gastall. Thether they ther. fend Bayliffes, turne by turne, and alwaies there is one of Suits in one of the Bailywickes, and one of Glaris in the o-

In like m: nner, they have three other Bayliwickes in common, beyonde the Whattime Mountaines, in the valley of Liuiner, with the Cantons of Vri, Suits, and Vnderuald. authority of The charge and office of all their Bay- gouerning. liffes lasteth two yeeres, except in the Bayliwickes beyonde the Mountaines, where they holde for the space of three yeares; and they goe not to the other but at certaine times, and to decide law controuerfies.

They of Toggenbourg are not Subjects | The ender but Bourgesses of Suits and Glaris, and and materal go to warre for them successively. They of Zng fend Bayliffes to Cham, a very lit- their feutral tle Towne neere vnto their lake . To places of lu-Saint Andrew, sometimes a Towne. To Huneberg, Walcheuill, Stein-house. To Saint Wolfgang, and to other Villages. They bought this Countie in the yeare 1517. Next, with them of Suites, they fend (turne by turne) Bayliffes to

For voices gisen at the ele dion of pub-office Pro

Chap. 8. Of those cantons that dvvell in villages.

are their Bourgesses, as we have sayde already; and go to warre for them, and for the Canton of Suits. Finally, the five first Cantons are Lordes with the other Cantons of the Bayliwicks gouerned by them in common: except the men of Appenzel, who fend a Bayliffe onely to as are vied by others. Khinthal, with the feuen first Cantons, & in the faine manner.

Now follow some particular customs of these fixe Cantons, and which are not common to all the Switzers. Whofoeuer shall haue committed a murther, although it was done in the defence of his owne body, hee is conftrained to forfake the Canton, and it is not lawfull for the lesser councell to repeale him; but hee

They doe not permit, that Landes and

Of customes

In case of may demaund and obtaine leave of the councell generall to returne againe. foundations of inheritances should bee Against m pawned or ingaged vnto any one that is not of the Canton; for they holde them to be no longer Lords of their countrey, if once they will becom bound for debts and morgage in such manner their inheritances to straungers. Likewise in the Canton of Vri, it is not lawfull for strangers, that have bene receyued there as inhabitants, to buy any inheritances, but a house and a small garden for Pot-herbes

If any man being drunke, doe commit AgainA drun kennesse fome feandalous action, hee is punified by imprisonment, and beside, hee is forbidden to drinke wine for the space of a certaine time, and votill the Councell generall haue pardoned him. In publike affemblies, and in the diffribution of honourable charges and Offices : hee that is put in election, is prefent, and his parents, brethren, and fons may giue him their voyces. They giue their voyces by lifting vp their hands on high, and some are set in an eminent place to count them. If they stand in doubt, and cannot fo decide it, then they have another courfe. There are two men, who hold two Halberds touching together at the points; they that give their voyces, do passe vider them, and two other men count them as they passe.

Finally, they vie Feafts and Processions on fuch dayes as their Ancestors obtained any remarkable victory. As they

Vznac and Gastal. They of Toggenbourg | of Glaris do yearly celebrate the memoriall of the victory which they wonne against the Austrians, in the yeare 1387. and in the month of Aprill, I wil declare Reade in the at large, the ceremonies observed by them in this festivall; to the end, the better judgment may be made of fuch feafts

> The order of the folemne Feast and Procession, performed by the men of Glaris in honor of their victory against the Austrians.

> IN the moneth of Aprill, eueric yeare,

On the Sunday before, it is a lowde and openly published in the church in behalf of the Seigneury, that on Thursday following, the most honourable persons of e-ueric Family, especially the men, are to meete and go in folemne Procession to Mulhoufere, by those waies, places, and other way. Moreouer, that all keepe silence while the Sermon is done, and to carrie themselues (that day) so modestly in their refection, that no diforder may beenoted, because the Seigneury will chastife them seuerely that do otherwise, and because the whole Canton of Glaris doth folemnly feast that day. Forbidding

After they are all affembled together, and rounded in a ring as it were the Am-yearly fent for celebration of the Feaft:

because thirtie Souldiers of Sustes were present in the battell for which this Feast is kept. Likewise, he saluteth the Abbots,

Priests, & neighbors of Gastal, la Marche,

Rasperwill and Toggenbourg, giving them on the Thursday of the first weeke (except Easter day fall on the Sunday follo- The great wing, for then it is deferred til Thursday ris. in the weeke after) the Feast is celebrated.

paffages, where their Ancestors were in great danger, euen fo far as the Fountain, Remembrace and to be warie of descending to the Village of Haures, til first they have past the il.

hearty thanks, for comming to celebrate alfo, that no man hall mount on Horfebacke out of the Village of Glaris, ficke & aged men onely excepted, who are not (being so mounted) to goe anie further then Scheneisinge.

man, who is in the midft, makes a kinde welcome(in name of the whole Canton) vnto fuch ftrangers as are come thether. gether. First, to the Ambassador of Suits, who is

Of the feast and procession in Glaris. 3. Booke 324 this folemne Procession, and to thanke & fing praifes to almighty God, the Virgin Marie, and their Patrones, S. Fridolin, and S.Hillary.

First, one beareth a red Standard, wherein is the Image of S. Fridolin, then The order of the Proceffifollow 4 men, bearing a guilded Toomb, on in marchwhereon are many faire and holy reliques ing, as they passe along to enchased. Then come the Crosse-beathe place rers, carrying the Crosses of Glaris, Hau-res, of the Vale of Linthe, and of the churwhere the bartaile was ches neighboring to the Canton of Glatought. ris, as of Schennis, Wesen, and others. The Croffes are followed with Banners of all the Churches, and the Priests come after them, finging according to their order. The Curate of Glarus is the first, accosted by an Abbor, or elfe fome other man of the Church. Among the strangers the > Ambassadour of Suits; then the Lieutenant to the Amman, and the other Officers in their order, each guiding or leading one of the most honourable strangers. The women (in great number) follow, to make up the end and conclusion of the Procession.

> other Priests follow. Then the councell of Glaris, to witte, the Amman, with the Beeing come to the place where the battailwas fought, there are eleuen stones fet down in those seueral parts of ground where they began and held on fight with the enemy: for they had partings & meetings againe at hand-blowes, eleuen seuerall times, and at each of those stones the Standards and Banners stay, and all fall vpon their knees in prayer to God. Whe they are come to the fixt stone, they cast themselves round in a ring, and then the Secretarie of the Canton readeth in a paper the cause and original of this Procesfion the fummary whereof is this. War being moued betweene Leopold, Duke of Austria, and them of Zurich, Berne, Solof the Procesleurre, Lucerna, Vri, Suits, Vnderuald, Zug, particulars by and Glaris; Leopold led his Army to Sempach, where hee was ouercome, and flaine by the Switzers, the ninth day of Iune. one thousand, three hundred, fourescore and fixe, beside sixteene Earles and Barons, and a great number of Gentlemen.

Afterward, in mid-August following, they of Zurich, Vri, Suits, and Glaris, befiedged and tooke the towne of Wefen,& the inhabitants promifed perpetuall fidelity to the Switzers. Truce was made, till the beginning of Leut in the yeare following; which being ended, and war beginning againe, they of Glaris fent a Garrison to Weson, wher the Souldiers thinking themselues to be in safety, and confiding on the oath of the townesmen, were flaine (for the most part) in a night by them of Austria, who entred in the dead of night, by intelligence which they had with certaine of the inhabitants, that machinated this villany against the garrison, and opened the gates to their enemies.

Furthermore, that the very same yeare, and the ninth day of Aprill, they of Auftria brought an Army of fifteene thoufand men towards Haures, and wonne the Fortresse of the Country. But three hundred and fifty Souldiers of Glaris, & thirty which the Canton of Suits lent to affift them, affayled the enemy, and (Gods helps furthering, the Virgin Marie, and their Patrones, S. Fredolin and S. Hilarie) they became conquerors, wonne eleuen of their cheefest Ensignes, and left two thousand fine hundred enemies slaine in the field, befide them that were drowned in the Lake, and among the reft, many of Wesen were there flaine, that formerly had betraied the Garrison of Glaris. And therefore, in dutifull thankfulnes to God almighty, the glorious Virgin Mary, and S. Fridolin, and S. Hilary their Patrones, and to all the Saints and Saintetles of Paradife, & in euerlasting remembrance of so great a helpe and delinerance, this annual Procession was ordained vppon those limits, where their Ancestours had fuffered many inconveniences.

After the reading of these severall letters, a Sermon is made in the fame place; the Priests of Glaris performe their Aniuersary, and followeth the Minister of the new opinion. All their prayers being ended they go againe to the fame stones, in the same ranke and ceremony as they began vntill they come to the eleventh, which is placed neere to the Village of Haures, towards Wefen, where they affayled the enemy at the last time. Then they take their way to the Church of Haures; but they of the new opinion return home to their houses. The rest go to the church, where they fing a Maffe for the Switzers that were flaine in the battaile: and one reciteth all the names of them of Glaris, that perished there. Soone after this, a banquet

Chap.9. The gouernment of the abbey of S. Gal. 325

ABanquet made at the

A thudres-

againft Hau

Gods juft

for breach

ces) for the Priests, and all the strangers that came in the Procession. After dinner, the Priests singing, bring backe againe to Glaris the guilded Toombe, the Banners and Croffes.

This is the manner of the annuall Procession and Feast of them of Glaris, in remembrance of fo famous and remarkable victory. The other Cantons also have their Feasts, to celebrate the victories obtained at Morgarten, Sempach, and elfewhere.

CHAP.IX.

Of the Common-wealths belonging to the Confederates. And first of all, Of the Abbey of S.Gall.

The Abbor and Abbey 5 Gall the Abbox Hul. dnch was made a prince

What poffer

fions the Abbot hold in

Turgow, and diuers o-

her parts of

The condu ding of the the Stones,

A Ftet we have spoken of the thirteene Cantons, and of their severall Common-wealths; me-thinks now (according to the fame order) wee should make mention of their Confederates, among whom, the Abbot and Abbey of S. Gall holdeth the prime place. The Abbots of S. Gall, have bin great Lords for the space of many ages possessed of great meanes, and numbred with the Princes of the Empire: but I know not well, from what Emperour they received this honour and title. Stumpfius noteth, that Conrad de Pfauerts, Annalist of Switzerland writeth, that Abbet Huldrich, of the house of Altfax, was made Prince by the Emperour Phillip, in the citty of Bafile. Now albeit these Abbots are not of such power as heeretofore; yet notwithstanding, they continue still great Lords, and have their dominion in large extendure.

In the country of Turgow they are Lords of Wile, and haue a Pallace and a Vicar in the Towne. Moreouer, in the high country of Turgow, they have a great Territory, and well peopled, who are all subject to them. The inhabitants are called Toje Bottfbulglut, the Subiects of the house of God, or of the Abbey, and are parties in certaine Regions. Their names are Rofac, Thumbech, Gold, Vndereg, Morfwill, Tablate, Gozow, Wald-banquet is made (at the Cantons expen- kilch, Romishorn, Summery, Mule, Hotischwill, Bernattzell, Lumifwell, Berg, Wittenbach, Rodtmont, Strubenzell, Geiferwald, Helbach, Bergknecht, Luzwill, Ziberwangen. Vnd Wiger. These places are divided into Castle-wicks or President-ships, and the Abbot sendeth Prouosts thether. Moreouer, he hath his Ammans and Officers, that hold meane Courts of Iuflice in many places. Befide, he hath a higher Court of inflice, whether refort all appellations, and where causes of importance are decided. Allkindes of duties, and fuch as are rendred to Princes, in these places are confirmd vpon him.

Beside this country, the country of Toggenbourg acknowledgeth (as Lord) the Abbot of S. Gall, who fenderh a Gouer- county of nour into the country, and a ludge in cri- Toggenbourg minall causes, which admitteth no further appeale. And yet they of Toggenbourg are Bourgesses of Suits, and of Glaris, & haue their priviledges & franchifes ; by meanes whereof (among other things) they enjoy the freedome of Religion. Also in the Bayliwick of Rhinthall which belong eth to the cantons: the Abbot holdeth law courts of inflice in many Villages, & keepeth Officers there for that purpofe.

CHAP.X.

Of the Common-wealth in the Towne or Citsie of S.Gall.

S Aint Gall, Mulboufe, and Rotuille, are numbred among the Imperial townes, Imperial and therfore have (almost) the fame man- Townes. ner of gouernement, as we have already described vnto you. But because the cittizens of S.Gall, do hold fomething in particular; I will here fet downe a fummary description of their common-wealth.

In the first place then, the Towns of S. | Size Tribes Gallis divided into fixe Tribes or Com- or Compapanies, & the Society of Noblemen. The nies in S. Gail. first & principal of these Tribes, is of weauers, because of the linnen cloth there woulen, which is made very faire, and in a-bounding quantity: which afterward is fold in Germany, France, Italy, Spaine, Eohemia, and Poland, greatly enriching the inhabitants that dwell in S. Gall, and making

Ff

A lesend reaion, vpon the . beliedging &

The ceremo-

Proceifion of Glarit, being come to the field where the cleuen

ed in the ground.

ftones are fix :

The reason

and originall

fion, read in the Secretary

nies in the the fecond of the olde. The thirteenth Zunfftmaster, is the first of the eleuen, which are elected out of each Tribe, to be of the great councell.

of the Zunffe masters.

Three Conthey governe

Nine Sena-

Election of

The great Councell,in what manne they are chofen, and what order they obserue.

The Zunfftmasters are elected by fecret voyce in their Tribes, and are confirmed by the leffer councell. Enery yeare, the councell and officers of iustice, are elected about mid-Iune, and mid-December. Beside the Zunfftmasters nine other Senatours do affist in the lesser councell, and are chosen as well in the company of Noblemen, as in the other companies. The three Confuls (with them) make the number of foure and twenty councellers: For there are three Confuls in S.Gall, the first is in charge; the second is called olde Confull, for having governed in the very neerest yeare before; and the third presideth in judgement for criminall causes, and in other places he is called, Prouoft of the Empire, Repchuogt. The coursell is elected the first Sunday of Aduent, not in the leffer councell, but in the generall, by fecret voyce, Mit derrun: the Sub-confull and the Zunfftmasters, going then out of office, do collect the voyces.

The great councell is composed of threefcore and fixe, to wit, twelue of each company: whereby there are ninety perfons in the great and leffer councels. After the election of the Confuls and the councell, the ordinances of the Towne are read in this affembly: whereon the Confull and the new councell do deliberate. Then they go (by two and two together) to the great Temple or Church,named S. Laurence, where all the cittizens meete, and after reading of the lawes and ordinances, the Confull sweareth first to obserue them, and afterward, receiveth of the councell and whole affembly, the fame oath. This done, the morrow after christmas day, and the day following the Zunfftmasters, and the other eleven Seigneurs of the leffer councell, do meete to-king the Towne much renowned. It hath | gether in the Towne-house, and cleet the Sub-confull, whom they call Vnderbur- The election germaster. His charge is to take order for Confull or the watch of the Towne, and to appoint Vnderburger Tutors and Ouerfeers for Widdowes & matter. Orphanes, and also to examine their accounts.

Euery weeke, the leffer councell do When the ke ordinarily meete together twice, on Tuef- | fer councell day and Thursday ; except those dayes be do allemble Festivals, or have Fayres. Also the Thurs- together. day before Lent, which they call the mad The mad Thurfday, Den Ultifiniugen Donftag: Thurfday. because once, and on that day, the people mutined against the councell, by meanes whereof, it was ordained, that (fro thence forward) there should be no more assemblies held, as on v day. The leffer councell manageth the Townes affaires, decideth civill causes, and giveth sentence concerning inheritances and willes: but med- councell. leth with no criminall fuites nor differences about Scedules, Obligations and in-

The great councell meeteth together fine times enery yeare. First, the morrow fines of the after christmas day, when they elect and confirme the new Magistrates. Secondly, yeare. in mid-Lent, to elect and confirme the Master of the Hospitall. Thirdly, the Friday before S. Bartholmewes day, being the foure and twentieth day of August, whe they establish the Masters of Halles, and confider on the tolles and taxes at the Gates. Fourthly, and fiftly, before the Fayres which they keepe, on the morrow after Ascension day, and the day of S. Gall; and then they confult on the confernation, and course of Courts for the

The great councell also doth sometimes extraordinarily meete when they rymeetings are to discourse on matters, whereof the of the great councell ought to have knowledge, as Councell. concerning fentences in criminall fuites. Then the Propost of the Empire sitteth President and demandeth each case: this is done in the Towne-house, and the doores kept close. The lesser councell electeth the Prouost, and giueth him po- Election of wer to judge. Afterward, the great councell decideth the appellations made vnto him, and receiveth such strangers as defire to be Bourgesses.

But this is done more often, in the ordinary affemblies of the great councell, of the towne of S. Gall.

Chap.10.

ny appeales. Sometimes the leffer then they referre those causes till Wedcouncell fendeth affaires of importance to the great councell, to bee confidered | fentence, to the leffer councell, prouided,

The three meetings of the Councell

Euery yeare, the councell generall of all the people, is affembled three times, about publike affaires. First, to elect generall of all the Confull. Secondly, the morrow after Christmas day, to take oath of the new Confull, and to binde him to obey the Magistrates. And thirdly, in the Moneth of August, about S. Bartholmeres day, after that the ordinance for tolles and taxes is agreed uppon, to heare the Lecture, which is made before all. Moreouer, the lawes and statutes of the Towne are distributed into three parts; one part wherof is deliuered to the people, in each of

The cheefest Court of Iufice and authority thereficers belong

What causes

witha'l when they deale

they fit in

The principall and cheefest Court of iustice, is that of fine: who are the Confull the Sub-Confull or Lieutenant, one of the new Zunftmaiters, and two of the new councell. They judge in differences concerning borrowed monies, things laid to pawne, debts that haue no certaine time prefixed, wages that are due, fuites concerning victuals, injuries, and fines. They fit on the Wednesday, or Friday, and there is no appeale from their fentence; neuertheleffe, they may fend backe difficult causes, and of importance, to the leffer councell.

these three affemblies.

Next to this, there is the Towne court of justice. Das Stattaricht, compoluffice, called fed of twelue Affiftants, cholen out of the the Towne or Noble mens companie, and out of the o-Citty Court, and what Ofther companies; so that the one is of Zunftmasters, and the other of the people. The cheefe Officer of this court is called Statamman, Maior of the citty, and is elected with the other Magigistrates, about Christmas day, and is confirmed by the great councell. As for the Affiftants, they are changed twice energy yeare, and elected by the great councell, on one of the feast dayes of christmas, & by the leffer councell, about S. Iohn Baptifts day, in the Moneth of June. These ludges take knowledge of debtes, barterings, and yearely rents, although the fummes bee great. They are called together by tolling the Bell, and affemble in and then also they conclude there on ma- | all the councell doe meete together, for nefday. A man may appeale from their that the fuice be of no leffe moment then an hundred Sols, or Shillings: and if the appeallant loseth his cause, he is condemned in a fine to the Iudges.

> The confistory court is composed of eight Iudges, whereof foure are Ministers Of the Conof the Church, or some other men of and ludges learning: next, two councellers of the thereto beleffer councel, and two of the great. There longing. fitteth another Seigneur of the leffer councell, as Prefident, who questioneth the causes: and if there be as many voices on the one fide, as on the other, hee reduceth both parties to fuch a courfe, as hee conceineth to be inft, and then fentence is giuen accordingly. The confistory cenfureth matters of marriage, and of diuorces, and no appealing is permitted from sentence. But if there happen any involved or entangledvariance, or if some Concerning colour of pollicy be mixed with the cafe intrices and of marriage ; then cause and all, is sent to cases. the councel wherethe deciding is fufpended, vntill the councell, and some other learned men, hade-adulfedly confidered thereon.

> As for publike Offices, estates, and charges, this common-wealth is therein have charge gouerned, as the other are; having Trea- ges & furers, Mafters of Halles, Receivers, and Administrators at the Gates for customs. tolles, and taxations, Voyers, &c. Such as hold these places, doe render their accounts first to the Zunfftmatterg, next to the leffer, and laftly to the great councell, on the morrow after christmas day. Hauing giuen vp their accounts, the leffe and great councell do elect new officers, New Officers or reconfirme the olde: and it is openly olde admitted read, what the charge is of each one of againe. them in particular, and afterward in prefence of the councell, they sweare to difcharge their duty faithfully. But when many are established in one and the same charge, then such rules as they are to follow, are given them in writing. And because the very greatest trading of S. Gall, consistent in linnen cloth, and the only main that not onely the people of the towne, trading or S. but them also in most part of the Villa- Gallthe Towne-house on Monday in enery ges round about, doe maintaine their weeke, except it bee a Feast day, or that | lines therby; the councell is diligent and

328 The government of the City of S. Gall. 3. Booke

Viewers and Ouerfeers fo the goodness of linnen

onely.

What is done

after appro-bation of the cloths goodnelle.

Viewers of cloth,& how they are thickened.

fer on fuch and fuch markes. If it appeare to be bad and naught, they fend it to the Zunfftmafter of the weavers, and to the other eleuen Zunffimalters; who condemne the workman in a fine, or cut the whole peece into some portions, of eight Elles in length each one, or elfe through the midft, or if it bee worth nothing, they burne it openly. This view and visitation is done daily, and there is a Market of lin-A Market of nen cloth, which hath certaine Lawes, for linnen cloth the observation whereof, they that deale in fuch Merchandize are firicily bound.

and deceit. First, therefore, so soone as the weaver hath finished a peece of cloth, there are three expert sworne Visiters or Querfeers that come to looke youn it and according as it is good, or indiffrent, they

After that the cloth hath beene seene and approoued; the sworne Measurers do both Ellit, and marke it. The Measurers haue some other sworne men of the Mystery, to be their adjuncts; and the Merchants have with them the Ouer-feers of the measuring. They call them Den reiff, measurers of linnen cloth, which are of divers lengths: but a whole peece confisteth of 124. Elles, and may not be of view made at the whitsters, wher the cloth is thickened and whited. These Viewers the whiting of are called Die woffen Schower. They looke that the clothes have their requifite whiteneffe, and whether they fustaine any harme in the thickning: and according as they finde, they marke, or condemne the whitster in a fine. Likewise there are certaine Merchants and Weauers, that visite the whitsters houses and grounds, to see if all things bee fitting and convenient there: whether they have sufficiency of wood and ashes, that none may be wronged by delay. Euery yeare the Masters whitsters take newly their oaths, to doe be died in colours,& how they deale their duties as becommeth them. As for the clothes which the Viewers (whom they viually tearme Blam und Schwartz glehower) thinke fit to fend to the Diars: the cutters of linnen cloth, named Lynwathschnyder, do cut them iust in the midst, and there are other committees, to regard that they have their iust measure. After they are dyed into colours blew or blacke, if the Ouerseers carefull, for well ordering all things in | finde the dying to bee well taken, they that respect, and for the anoyding of fraud | marke the peece, and when they have plained and smoothed it with a Rowler; others come to approue it valuable, and they fet on the Seale. Contrariwise, if it be spoyled and viciate in the dying: they Penake for cut it, or dip it againe, if it may bee done, in dying, and the Plainer and Diar are condemned in some fine. All these things about named, are very carefully observed, and if any dare do otherwife, hee is fenerely punished. For the Towne or Citty of S. Gall hath this priviledge, to condemne in criminall fuite, to fetch men out of places | S.Gall. of refuge, and to punish them that vse any fraud, in weauing, marking, fealing, dying, plaining, or misusing any Linnen clothes.

Something likewise must needs bee faid, what order they of S. Galltake, to auoid the inconveniences of fire: because they having beene heeretofore much endamaged thereby, it hath made them (furuiuing) to be the more prouident. Euery What prouid euening, for the space of a quarter of an houre, there is a Bell rung, and it is called against the Die feurglocken, the Fire-Bell: which ces of fire. admonisheth euery one, to looke to the hearths of their Chimnies, for feare lefte fire shold take in any part. Then are there any greater length. There is another two Zunfftmatters, that foure times Vificers for yearely do visite the hearths, surnaces, & fire. chimnies in all the houses; and thereupon are called Die Feurglehower, Vifiters for fire. They regard also, what Armes and provision of foode the Bourgesses haue : and whether they be prouided and furnished, according to the ordinances of the Seigneury.

Beside, if there rise any impetuous Against trop windes or any rough stormes or tempests blesom winds happen(befide the ordinary Captaines of and tempelis the watch, whom they call Die Wachtbieter) there are two other, named Mafters of the watch, Die Wachtmafter, who take with them two men of euery Tribe, well appointed, and goe with the Captaines of the watch, to walke the round through all the streetes of the Citty, to predent the dangerous accidents of fire.

Euery night, two and thirty men keepe watch on the Towers and Walles, and in other places of the Citty, beeing appointed as Sentinels, by the cheefe Zunitt= master, with the Captaines of the watch.

Chap.11. Of the gouernment of the Grisons.

When fire takes in any zens runne to the Gates, some on the Towers and Walles, some into the cheefest streetes; some keepe company with the Confull, and others labour to quench the fire. There are foure Captaines of the leffer councell, that have a care of all this businesse, commanding enery one to that which is to be done, and punishing greenously the disobedient. If the fire be without, and neere the citty, they fend foorth a certaine number of men with their Captaines, to prouide against the inconvenience. Others keepe watch at the Portes, upon the Walles, and in other places, where they are by them appoin-

If fire take in any part, some of the Citti-Schooles, Almes-houfes Hospitals,&c. Spared to be

I spare to speake heere of Schooles, Almes-houses, and Hospitals, because they of S.Gallgouerne themselves therein, as other well pollicied citties do, and carry a faire and comely order among them. Likewise, I will not speake of the election of the Ministers of the Church, nor of their establishing and charge, neither what order they hold in their affemblies: because in this worke, we treate on the matters of pollicy onely, referuing to discourse on the other, at some apter time and place.

CHAP.XI.

The Common-wealth of the Grifons.

the Grifons in

HE name and dominion of the Grisons heeretofore was of great extendure : but now wee vnderstande by that word, a people of the Alps,who the French and Italians have named Grifons, and the Switzers Grawpundter. In ancient times, they inhabited Rhatta in the Alpes, neere to the fourfe or head of Rheine, and of Iun.

The Grisons are divided into three Leagues. The first is called the League

Grife, and hath ten Comminalties, to wit, J the Abbey of Diffentis, which the ancient Cardes or Mappes called Difertine. To this Abbey are joynd Tauetch, Trumb, and fome other places. 2. Walterspourg. 3. Oberfachs. 4. Luznits. 5. Fals. 6. Ylantz. 7. Schlawif. 8. They of Laax, Sinif, and them engironing about the wood. 9. Thannen. The Grifons call these nine Communities; the part about the wood, Die obbem malb; and the other ten, they call, under the wood, 10. Flims. 11. Trimon. 12. Safien. 13. Ratzuns, the ancient abiding of the noble Family of the Barons of Ratzuns. 14. Henltzenberg, and Tufis. 15. Schopine. 16. Schamps

17. Splugen. 18. Mafax. 19. Rufflee. In each of these Comminatties, they yearely elect a soueraigne Magistrate, Magistratein which many of them do call Amman, who each of thefe with the Judges or Affiltants, elected by the fame comminalty, doth judge fuites in law, and condemneth delinquents, according to the exigence of the case. Befide these Ammans, there is a great Prouost of the whole League, whom they call Den Landtrichter, who is chosen by enery one in the generall affembly of all the comminalties, and fitteth Prefident in the dayes meetings for all the

These meeting dayes for this Grife The Grand League, is in the Village of Trumb, which Prouch of is the cheefe comminalty, and there also the whole League, and meet the Seigneurs of the Iusticial court, he order in wherein the Landtichter fitteth Prefi- Courtof Iudent, who hath fifteene Affistants, one tice. Clearke or Secretary, and one Officer. The Lord of the Castle, and of the Barony of Ratzuns, is yet aboue the Landtrichter, by an ancient prerogatine, belonging to the race of the Barons of Katzuns, in whose rights, the Lords of the places have evermore succeeded.

The fecond League is called Det Bottihusspundt, The League of Gods The League Houshold, or of the Cade or League Ca- of the Cade, thedrall, because of the Bishoppricke House, and Colledge of Coire: and it hath one and twenty Comminalties, which sometimes were reduced into eleuen much greater. The Towns or Citty of Coire is numbred in the first place, as the chiese of the League: and alone (among the eleuen Comminalties) is compounded of two lesser. But as the cittizens

Ff 2

329

The first league,hauing all thefe ties belong-

Drulus his whose physick kept him tro

Bitter A1fpeciall helpe

Plin.inlib 12. rap.14. The Raddiff

Saffron.

Plin.in lib.vbi Supra.cap.cod.

Arift,in Problem.part.z. Anicene in lib Animal.6. 600.9.

*The finewer which conduct the ver to the eyes.

being drunke, albeit he daily drank more wine then any other one man of his time: for he could out-drinke all commers, yet neuer be drunke, or bereft of his judgement. But in the ende it was knowne, that (viually) before hee entred drinking, he would eate fine or fixe bitter almonds, whose power and naturall property was fuch, as it impeached the wine from alienating his spirits. And experience thereof was afterward made, for when they bitter Almonds, and he vling to drinke as formerly he did; he became as foon drunk as any other man. That these Almonds haue this peculiar property, Pliny affirmeth it, adding further; that eating a Raddish roote before hard drinking, auoideth drunkennesse. He saith also, that Colewortes eaten before hand, keepeth a man from being distempered with wine: and being eaten after drunkennesse, they remoue instantly the distemperature, as Saffron also hath the selfe-fame power. Ther are many other remedies for this imperfection, wherein I will be filent; fpeaking onely of one, recited by Pliny. He faith, that taking a quantity of wine, mingled with the egges of a Chough, and, beeing drunke two or three mornings together. he that drinketh it, will hate wine in fuch fort, as he will neuer after drinke thereof. Herreto he addeth, that a Swallow being taken and burned to ashes, then beaten into powder and mingled with a little Myrrhe in the wine; whofoeuer receyueth a draught of this potion, (hall neuer be drunke, for this was experimented by

Aristotle, in the third part of his Problems, and Auicenne, in his fixt Booke of Beafts do yeeld a reason why in drunkenneffe, when a man looketh vpon any one thing, it appeares to him as if it were two, and albeit they doe both produce divers reasons, yet will I alledge but one from each of them. The first shall be Aristotles . who faith that thorow excessing heat of vapours in the wine, afcending vp into the braine : the little nerues called *Optici nerui, which go on directly to the eyes, do worke and moone with fuch power, that the visiall vertue, and the spirits of fight (altering in their motion) do cause whatfoeuer drunken men gaze on, to flirre ve-

Horus, King of Affyria.

admirable physick, to preserve him from | rystrongly and quicke; because the Organe of fight moueth it felfe in that manner, and maketh the common fense to receiue the Images of things, in a multiplyed quality to the eye . For fuch kinde of motion, maketh fingle things to feeme double, and because this motion is so sudden and infentible, it caufeth two things to seeme as one to the fight. As any man may eafily make tryall of, by laying Aproofees his finger vpon his eye-lid, and then re-mouing it thence, it will appeare to him, abridged him from the meanes of eating that it is the thingremoueth it felfe, which he beholdeth. Auicenne deliuereth another reason, saying : The vapours of wine, Anicen in the which afcend up into the head of him that is dnimd can of the trunke, are moilt, and because the little nerves of wine mod and muscles which reach to the eyes, doe enting rains grosse or swell themselves by this humidity the head of drunkenma (o much more the one (then the other) doe thereby mount them selves the one higher and the other lower . From hence ensueth that the visible rayes do not equally divide them-Selves foorth-right from both the eyes neither by a direct or right line : which is the cause, that the Images of things visible, doe extend to eyther eye by themselves. In this respect only things simple and single, appeare to be double, the commo fense receyuing & apprehending two images for one: and for the maintenance of this opinion, Auicenne yeeldeth the felfefame example, as Aristotle did.

CHAP. XXV.

In what manner a man may know and measure, the retundity or round compasse of the whole earth: and how much it is reputed to containe, in the circumference or circkling round about.

VII well I know, that the subject of this Chapter, will hardly feeme pleafing vnto all Readers; in regarde, that for the better vnderstäding ther.

of, fom of the principles of the Mathematicks, are necessarily Chap.25.

Of the worlds round compasse.

tical Sciences

The chiefe E. lemets of the Mathematiks

Eccliples, heights, and breadthes, mountaines.

How the rou dure of Land and fea is fea-

The Starrie eauen or fir

Helpe of a Quadrant or Aftrolabe to a man in this

Principles of | required to be well apprehended. Neuertheleffe, I am the more willing to fpeake fomewhat of the argument, onely for the delight and contentment of fuch mindes, as are enclined to the Science whereof it discourseth. Wherefore concerning our present purpose, it is needfull to presuppose, the first and cheese Elements of such a Science: which because they are common, shal require the lesse labor to proue them. The first is that whereof wee are now treating, the greatnesse of the earth, carrying with it both Land and Sea: because God did dispose them in such manner, when he faid ; Let the dry land appeare, for they both being vnited togither made one body perfectly round. So likewise is it to bee vnderstoode in all those actions

Actions attr buted to the Genelis 1,9.

roundnesse, or it containeth so many degrees from one place to another; the fea is therein as well understood as the land. So in like manner are confidered the Ecclipfes, heights and breadths, to hold one and the same certitude : and yet notwithstanding, Mountaines, and Valleyes are not comprehended in this roundure, nor Woodes or Forrests likewise, which the earth contayneth in it felfe; because such things are not woorthie of any account, with the greatnesse of this wonderful bo-This rotundity of Land and Water, is feated in the midft of the circuite of Hea-

which are given to the earth, the Sea is also therein comprized : For when a man fayth, the earth hath fo many degrees in uen, in such manner, as the point & center of that round body, composed of Sea and Land, is likewise the center and number of the whole world, as well of heauen, derstand and meane each eight part, in reas of the Elements. Ouer and beside this definition, there is another, true and abfolute, to wit, that the land and water (in regard of the starry heaven, which we call the Firmament) are so little; that all these two Elements serue thereto but for a center, and is euen but as a small point, in respect of his circumference. So that in whatfocuer part thereof a man best liketh to helpe himselfe, by meanes of a Quadrant or an Astrolabe: his labour forteth to the like effect, as if hee made the same for the center of the earth. For in what foeuer place of the earth we are (prouided that it be not in any deepe or hollow bot-tome) we shall discouer the moity of heauen; which proceedeth by reason of the incomprehenfible distance, that is from hence beneath up to the Firmament, with his incompareable greatnesse. That this must needs be true, it is most euident, that the verie least Starre which we discerne in by enident heauen, is much more greater then the proofe. whole earth; and yet neuertheleffe, it appeareth to vs but as a fmall point, in regard of the heavens large spaciousnesse; by the least of which things, a man may make proofe in sufficient demonstration, but it suffiseth that experience hath apparantly showne the same.

Ptolomy approueth it, in the 10. chap- Ptolom in lib. 1 ter of his first booke of Geography ; Al- de Geograph. phraganus, in his fourth Difference, Cleomedes, in his first Booke; Geber, in his fe- cleoned in line cond Book; and John de Sacrobosco, as the Geber inlib. 2. like do all other that have written on the Spheare.

This then being thus presupposed, let vs imagine in our mindes, that the vvater and Land do make one round circkle, and that heaven is another, but much more great, as indeede it is; and that thefe two Howthis matcircles have no other, but one common ter may bee center within them. Which being fo imagined, let vs lay two lines of equall great- minde of man neffe, which may extend themselves (in common) to the circumferences of al the two circles, according as Euclides enftrutwo circles, according as Euclides entitu-each, cutting and dividing the two Circles by equall portions, each portion being infly equalled, in regard of each one of them : that is to fay, that if those two lines passe on right in such manner, they will make eight parts of a great circle, and fo shall make as much of the leffer, I vn-spect of each ones greatnesse. Our elders in former times, in theyr manner of measuring the world, gaue aduice to divide the heaven into three hun- The advice dred and threefcore equal partes, which fathers, for we do now cal degrees & by confequent, mealiring of the roundnesse of the earth into as manie the world, by parts, by imaginations of lines, parting heaven. from the center, and making the division in fuch manner, that the like quantitie which each one of the degrees hath, in respect of the whole heaven; the verie like shal be that of each one of the degrees for the earth, having regard to the roundure and circuite thereof. And as these portions or degrees, if you please so to terme them,

4. Booke

Of Snovy, and hot water.

405

Concerning the nature of a degree, and how our Elders observed thereof, acor height of the Polc.

scope of miles; the like may be easily gathered, by multiplying what distance is contained in all the reft. To know then the nature of a degree, they made this obscruation. The Pole is a fixed point in heauen, whereon the whole heauen mathe knowledg keth his mouing, yet it remaineth firme & stable. Therefore with an Astrolabe, or any other instrument proper therto, being in some apt vncouered place, they would take the height which the Pole contained about the Horizon, within the limite of the felfesame fight, and noting the place which appeared convenable to the eleuation or height of the forefaide Pole: they certaine and infallible.

The greatnes gree within it

A measure of ground.con raining 117.

paces, al afte

fine feete to

An infallible

furing by do grees.

the pace.

them, are equal among themselues, so that Geometrical paces, each pace containing themselves appeare to contain the as much as two of our common paces. So Stadey George went directly on thereto, without wandering to the Meridian, vntill fuch time (as with the feltefame instrument) they found it in one degree more higher, then in the first place, and therby they knew, that they had gone one degree of the earth fro that place whence they first parted, iust to that ground where they were arrived, confidering, that they had paced by the respect of heaven, in regarde of the fore-named rules of both the circles. Then they would measure that which this degree contayned, either by Stades, or thousands of paces; and this being thus knowne by them, they would make their account after this manner. If one degree contained fo many miles the whole roundnes of the earth did containe as many : confidering, that therein was to be observed three hundred and three core degrees, such and as great as the same were. This was the forme and manner by them observed, and it may wel bee continued to these times, for measuring of the whole earth, as being the most

And yet neuertheleffe we are to know, what greatnesse each degree of the earth felf,howmuch containeth in it felfe, and fo (by confeit containeth. quent) how much it tendeth to in the rotundity, measuring it according vnto the whole greatnesse, answerable to the sperience of both ancient and modern men, skilfull, and well studied therein. The most common opinion of all other, is; that each degree or portion of three hundred and threefcore, containeth fine hundred Stades of ground, and enery Stade is valewed to fix score and fine paces by our Geometricians, and according to theyr that the degree containes fixty two thou- ometrical pa fand and an halfe, which amount to fixtie ces. two thousand Geometricall paces. Ptolemy auouchen the fame; as the like doeth de Googaja, Martianus Capellus, and the most part of Mar Capellus the wifest ancient Cosmographers : befide, this is the opinion in common, of the greater part of our moderne men.

being both of them learned men, and diligent searchers into these matters : they do both affirme, that they have made the like experience, holding the fame for most certaine. Albeit Eratosthenes, and I fay then, that each of their degrees, confifting of three hundred and fixty, far off from fine hundred Stades: the whol three hundred and fixty, wil containe togither, twenty two thousand, and fine hundred thousand paces, which do make an huntwo millions, and fine hundred thousand paces. And if you would know how many

French leagues or miles the whole Earth containeth, we must then allow vnto each

League, the length of two Italian miles.

Then, if we divide twenty two thousand,

fiue hundred paces in twaine, we shal find that the circuite of the earth, contayneth eleven thousand, two hundred and fiftie

Leagues of France. And if we divide the by foure; all the enuironing of the Earth, will containe fine thousand, fixe hundred,

most common opinion received among Orontius Phineus holdeth the fame judg- Oront. Phin, is ment, and fayeth, that this may eafily bee lib.1. de Gem. experimented by transiling from Paris to Tholoufe. Glareanus, & Anthony de Lebrix, Glarim Lian, fome other Gracians hold opinion, that The opinion all degrees had feauen hundred Stades: of ionie Grzwheerin (it may feeme) they were abu- cians concer fed, by measuring their places ouershort.

dred and eighty thousand Stades. By the Aneftimete which account, the round compas of the whole earth, comprehending therein the whole machine of water, beeing, reduced to a thousand paces, will containe twentic and twentie fine miles of Germanie; for Division acfour Italian miles, do make but one Ger-maine mile. Thus haue we discoursed on miles. the earths dimension, according vnto the

CHAP

CHAP. XXVI.

Of the reason, why Snow (being concred with straw) doth preserve it selfe in his entire coldnesse, and warme water in his heate: confidering, that two contrary effects are wrought by one and the felfesame thing: with some other secrets beside.

ter or other may be found therein, to yeild

The works o Nature yeeld

Chap.26.

O men of spirite, such as affeet the contemplation of Natures workes, nothing can so lightly present it self, or appeare to bee of so slender esteeme; but some one notable mat-contentment to their mindes, after they haue attained to the knowledge thereof. No doubt but there are many men, of whom if it were demanded, vppon vvhat occasion, Snow (beeing covered with straw) conferueth it felfe (for long time) in his true coldnesse, and without melting, they hardly knew how to make anie aniwer. Whereunto Alexander Aphrodi-Alex. Apbredif. Seus, that excellent Peripatetian, maketh this reply. Straw hath no manifest or known quality at all, for it is neither hot nor colde; therefore divers have reputed and termed it, Snaws thing to be a thing without any quality. For this cause, beeing a matter so singularly temuality at all, perate and delicate, euen as reaching to yet apprehen dethe qua- fuch a degree, that it may well be faide to be neither hot nor colde; it cafily conuerteth it felfe into the quality of anie fuch thing, as is thereto annexed. So that couering or laying Snow therein, which is colde, the straw apprehendeth the colde quality thereof, and by that means is holpen and affifted, in the true coldnesse of Snow: euen as a thing of one qualitie aydeth another, without yeelding any heate thereto, because it is not in it selfe. Therefore, fnow being accompanied with his owne coldnesse, & defended against heat, which straw prescrueth against the lest entrance; it is thus conferued in his entyre condition for long time, euen as if it were not couered with ffraw at all.

effect wroght by the fame By the felfefame reason, a contrarie efmeans to hot fect happeneth in warme or hotte water; water,keep. ing it in his defending the ayre that it cannot coole it, tire beate.

the strawe immediately entertaineth the quality of the warme water; and being fo fodainly heated, it helpeth & conserueth the water in his warmth, and keepeth the ayre off, that else would coole it. The same reason guides vs to understand other doubts and difficulties, which some curious questionists may impose vpon vs, like vnto those before alledged. I am fure wee The Avre is are not to learn, that ouer and befide our more hote in inward naturall heate, that which occasioneth our warmnesse in Summer time, is else befide, the ayre onely, which (in that season) is much more hot then in any other time of the veare : fo that the warmer the avre is. fo much the more are we fenfible of heat. If it be fo then, how commeth it to paffe, that we feele more freshnesse and cooleneffe, and leffe heate, when wee take the ayre in Sommer, and in mouing and walking to receive it; confidering, that (according to Aristotle) Motion, or mooning, causeth our heate to be the greater? For the ayre, by reason of this agitation, must needs cause the more warmnesse both in it felfe and vs. then if wee rested and sate in quiet.

for it being likewife concred with Strawe,

The reason ensueth thus: VVce have then more warmth in our bodyes, then there is in the ayre: as wel in regard of our codyes in owne naturall heat, as also that which the then is in the ayre worketh in vs. For the ayre coming with a fresh and coole gale (I speake this because it is more temperate then we are) it maketh vs fome-what the more temperate: but being still and neere vs, it warmeth it felfe in our heate. Euen in the like manner as we have spoken of straw; for so How the quait conscrueth (yea augmenteth) our heate livy in fraw is in vs; albeit, when it is stirred, and freshly bodies. mooued, in comming more temperately vpon vs, then we our felues are; that temperature and difference which wee then feele of leffer heate, doth in the like manner qualifie and moderate ours in vs. This is the answere of the fore-named Alexander, but especially of Aristotle, vnto this

Neuertheleffe, it is to bee noted, that if we find an avre more hot then that wher-the Ayrein in we dwell; agitation or ftirring in fuch hear, & harme an ayre will not prooue fo good as our thereby entuowne, because wee shall there seele farre greater heate, as in divers places oftentimes we do . An argument in this cafe, standing, let him hold it firmely therein, and it yeeldeth then leffe cause of passion then if he mooned it vp and downe. In regard, that the leffer part of the water en-Example of a uironeth the coole hand, whereby it caumanshand in feth fome fmall temperature round about hor water for heate or tem it: but being plunged and mooned about perature. the water, it reneweth fresh heate, and at each time appropriateth new power to it felfe; for the more potent, must needes worke nouelly vppon that which is much weaker.

if a man put his hand rashly thereinto, he can hardly fuffer or endure it. Notwith-

Of heate in

Iune and Iuly

Ariflot in lib.2

It may be likewise demanded for what cause it is more hot arthe end of June, & all along the moneth of July, the Sun being then the furthest off from vs, then it is at the beginning of Iune; confidering we are then in the Solftice of the Sunne, and more directly smitten with his beames? Heercunto answereth Aristotle, in his fede Meteor, ca., cond Booke of Meteors, and the ninth Chapter, that the heate of the Sunne is not the cause thereof, neyther is there any more heatefelt by the Sunnes beeing neerest to vs, then when hee hath longest time to abide ouer vs. For in the months of lune and July, hee hath a great length of time in approaching towards vs; as alfo in declining, hee confeth the greater heate, because (in descending) here-heateth that part and tract of the ayre, which hee formerly had well warmed in mounting aloft.

CHAP, XXVII.

Of Sodaine death happing winto divers great Persons, that have thereto bene wished or threatned, by such as they have vniustlie put to death before, and their deaths have ensued to them in such manner, & at such times, as have beene assigned wnto them: With the notable history of an Archbyshop of Mentz or Magonce.

God neuer tailed in h inft caute or ronged innocents, to lend his help, when all power in man hath fayled.

may bee framed by hotte water, that | hath neuer failed them. And albeit it hath not enfued to speedily, or elfe so visibly as they could have wished; yet GOD, who knoweth both how and when to be auenged on them that are the oppressors of innocents, bath wrought to graciouslie for his own glory; that trecheries have come to light in due and meete times, & mens false judgements have felt his seuere condemnation, and publikely enough for other mens forewarning. In this case wee could alleadge many memorable examples; but beeing loth to trouble you with ouer many, these few commendable Collections thall ferue for this time.

I read of a Knight amongest the Templers (of whome wee haue fooken in our of a Knight former Volume) who beeing (in the opi- Templer, pu nion of many) fentenced to death verie to death varie infly, vniustly; as the Officers led him towardes the place of execution, hee espired Pope Clement, the fift of that name (by vvhole meanes he was condemned to death)looking out at a window; and by him stoode Phillip le Bel, then King of France. The Knight being an Italian, borne at Naples, beholding the Pope with an vndaunted countenance, with a lowde voyce spake thus vnto him. Most cruell Clement, feeing that there is no Iudge in this world, before whome a poore The Knighte innocent man may call in question the vniust latest worder to the Pope, Inspected much thou hast given against mee. and Kingot I appeale from thee, a most univit Iudge, to France, whe the uprightest Iudge of all other, Iesus Christ, death. himfelfe, before whom I give thee warning, and likewife King Phillip there by thee, to make your appearance, to answere the false judgement of death which you have einen against me. This appearance of yours before the Tribunall feate of God, I do assigne to bee made within leffe then a yeare, to do me right there, where I may fafely have my cause deter mined without any auarice or passion at all, as here you both have dealt with me. The poore ment of Coo Knights defire forted with his wordes, for on the K. and about the same limited time, the Pope be- Pope, ing pained with a great greefe in his stomack, died; so did K. Philip:but howsoeuer

The very like fortune hapned to Ferdi-The very like fortune hapned to Ferdinand the fourth, King of Castile, who had of Ferdinand uing caufed two worthy Knightes to bee the 4. King of executed, more by his owne wrathfull & angry fpleen, then any warrant of inftices. being !

it hapned, it was thought to proceed from the inft indgement of God.

death of the Seneway Captaine the > isstierus in lib Pit.Fred. arad Epif. in Hif de Reb.di-

The hiftory of Henry arch bishoppe of Mentz in Germahie.

violent cruelty, either by teares, intreats, or earnest solicitations; they (in very like manner)cited the King before the Tribunall of Iesus Christ, and to make his ap-pearance within thirty dayes. And it is credibly anouched, that on the last of those thirty dayes, the King dyed. The like lot also befell to a Captain of the Gallies, which belonged to the inhabitants of Geneway, whereof Bapusta Ful-gofo maketh this report. This Captaine

The historie ofa Captaine yes, who entelly put to death another innocen Battiff Fulgof.

Chap.17.

making a fally forth vpon the Sea, tooke a Foyft or final Gally appertaining to them of Cathelogna; wherein there was another Captaine that neuer had done any injurie to the Genewayes. Notwithstanding, in regard of the malice which the Genewayes bare to the Cathelognians, hee gaue command, that this Captaine thus taken prifoner, should forthwith be hanged. The Captaine, shedding many teares, humbly requested, that he might not so shamefully be put to death, confidering that he had neuer offended him, or his Nation. But in the end, finding no fauour or mercy in him, he made his recourse to the Divine Iudge of al men, speaking thus to the cru-Captaines | tudge of al men, ipeaking thus to the en-words before | ell Captaine; Seeing thou wilt needes execute on me this most vniust fentence, I have no other friend but God to appeale unto who is the iust avencer of injuried innocents. And therefore I humbly defire, that (this instant day) thy foule may appeare with mine before him, to yeeld an account for the worong thou hast done me, Not many houres, after the > extreme cruelty. I could alledge many examples more, aptly futed to this purpose; but for the strangest of all, I will relate what hapned at Magonce Or Mentz in Germany, which generally cost most deare vnto the whole Citty, according as it is briefely reported by Gontier, that renowned Poet, who wrot the life and actions of the Emperour Fredericke, first of that name. Conradus also the Byshop, declareth the same in his hiflory, among many things hapning in the time of that Fredericke, and of Henrie the fixt his sonne; the History ensueth in this Geneway Captaine also dyed, and doubtleffe went to render a reason for his most

In the Citty of Magonce or Ment z in Germany, in the yeare one thousand, fine hundred and fifty, little more or leffe, ther being no way to bee diffwaded from this | liued an Arch Byshop, named Henrie, a man fingular in all vertues. This Archbythop, according to the duty and office of a faithfull Paftor, as indeed hee was, did feuerely chaftife publike finnes and offences, because he was very lealous of Gods honour, and loue of one neighbour vn:o another, the which made him to have the greater care of his flocke. Hecreuppon wicked and dissolute persons grewe hatefull against him, denising many false and crous enimies flanderous accufations, where-with the Pope was plentifully informed, imposing to many crimes and delicts upon him, that he was reputed vnmeete for fuch a digni-

> These matters thus vnder stoode by the Pope, who alwayes thought him to bee a iust and holy man; being no way able to deny audience to fuch a crowde of accufers as defired inflice; at last he advertised the Arch-byshop of these soule accusarions. The good reuerend man, to make The Pope accleare his innocence, elected (among all his other friends) a man whom hee most Archbyshop affected, and on whom hee had bestowed gulations. more efocciall fauours, then on any man else beside. Hee was a Priest by profession, named Arnolde, aduanced vnto many great dignities, as being a man of rich fpirite, eloquence, and abounding in the wealth of the world beside. Arnolde comming to Rome, beeing enfructed and prefied on by the diucil; con-cluded in his prinate thoughts, to deprine Rome, and his his Lord of fo high a dignitie, and make wicked dea. application thereof to himfelfe. Which his Mafter. that he might the better compas, having brought great fummes of money thether with him, he suborned two wicked Cardinals, who, in fled of speaking in his Lords fauour, should enforce all matters more against him. For they affirmed, that they floode more obliged to God and trueth, neffe of two then to worldly respects or fauors of me: corrupted Cardinalles. and therefore maintained, that the Archby shop was apparantly culpable of all the crimes inferred against him, and thereby iufly deserved deprivation. The Pope being thus abufiuely perswaded by theyr report, thought to haue fent two Priestes thether, to acquaint him with this information confirmed against him : but (indeede) he fent the two Cardinals confederated with Arnolde, to perfect the Proceffe by them concluded for prefent execution.

They

Chap.28.

The Queene

in the Cuppe made of her fishers head,

whereupon

Nothing can be compared to the inward lice of a wo

the Kings

The perfecution of the. Cardinal'es with Arnold, against the Arch byfhop.

The words o the Archbyth at his de prination befor Arnoldeand the Cardinals offenders.

The fcornfull

many, but they fummoned the Arch-Bythop to come before them, wher his heating was admitted in such fort, that sentence was given against him, whereby he was deprined of his See and dignitie, and Arnolde aduanced into his place, who had fold his Master, even as Indas did our bleffed Saujour. In pronouncing the judgement, the Arch-Byshop Henry then prefent, delivered thefe wordes . God knoweth, that I am most uniustly condemned: neuerthelesse, I care not for making any appeale to the further censure of men : because I am affured, that lyes shall bee better beleeved amone you, then trueth can be in mee. Therefore I receive this sentence, as some inst punishment for my sinnes, and yes doe appeale fromyour indirect doome, to the eternall inst Iudge Icsius Christ : before whom I adiourne you three to appeare.

They were no fooner arrived in Ger-

These words were no sooner heard by the ludges, but they fell into extremity of laughter, faying; That if he pleafed to go on thither before, they would follow him at their leyfure. This fentence was given answer of the in the yeare one thousand, fine hundred, fifty fix, which the depriued Archbyshop endured with admirable patience; & being retired into his Monastery, he ther remained the rest of his life, yet without acception of the habite. To conclude, God would not permit this wickednes to paffe unpunished, to the end, that innocence the wronged might the better bee knowne : but about a yeare and an halfe after, this Henrie dyed in his Monastery in great holinesse, and doubtlesse attained the glorie long time

> Newes of his death being brought to Rome, the two Cardinals being very merrily met together, one of them, faid: The Arch-Bythoppe Henry is gone, and must not we in halt follow him? Indeed (quoth the other) fo wee made him promife; but let him tarry (wherefocuer he is) till wee come to him. Not many dayes after one of them, being fod ainly finiteen by one of his feruants upon the shoulder fel downe fo greenoufly afflicted with paine, that his bowels and entrailes issued out at his fundament, and instantly died. The other falling into phrensie and madnesse, did cate off his owne hands, and dyed very ftragely. Now as concerning false Arnolde, hee exercifed fuch cruelties and feditions among the people, that he became so hated and despised of them all; as being one day befiedged in a Monastery, hee vvas there flayne, and afterward left lying naked in the common ditch of the Cittie; where all the people, both men, women, and children, performed all cruelties vppon his body, that possibly could be deuifed by them.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Of the cruelty which Albouine, King of Lombardie, vied to his Queene & wife Rosamond: And by what meanes she reuenged her selfe on him at length.

Mong those warlike people, the Longo-barden now named Long. and the Northerne partes, to deficend into Italy; the Longobards are named, who for the space of two hundred yeares & more, feized all those Lands, which (til this day) is called Lombardie, and vntill fuch time as Charlemaigne expelled them thence, according as in the History is amply related, written by Paulus Diaconus, in the par- in the dail. ticular Booke which he made for that pur- Mund cap, pofe. He faith, that when they left Hungary (where they had for fomtime dwelt) to passe into Italy, they had one named Albouine their King: a man of great spirit, and verie valiant in actions of warre. For he conquered in battayle Cunimond, King of the Girpides, and afterwardes, of the Gyrcaufing his head to bee smitten off, made a drinking Cuppe thereof, wherein hee vsed to drinke, and in triumph of his conquest and victorie. At which time, he detained (as his prisoner) a verie beautifull daughter to the fore-named King, called Rolamond, whom he made his wife, and then afterwards hee went to subdue Italy, carrying his Queene along with him, in the yeare, eight hundred, fixty

When he had conquered many towns and Cities, he came (at length) to the City Paula the and Care of of Paula : where (fince that time) the fuc- Kings. ceeding Kinges vied to keepe their feate and continuall refiding, as the very principall Citty of their Kingdome. Hauing

Cunimond K pides conque red by Albo-> Ahard choice infuch an ex-reigned three yeares and three moneths, and being then at Verona; he appoynted a folemne feast, where hee drunke to his Queene in the Cuppe made of her fathers head, and forced her to pledge him: whereat thee conceined fuch griefe and displeasure, that the intire loue which thee had formerly borne him, was conuerted into deadly hatred, with an abfolute resolue and conclusion to kill him in just reuenge of her fathers death, & cruelty extended to her. And to affift her in this determination, the conferred with a gentleman named Hermigilde: who prefently tolde her, that to the execution of fuch an important bulines, the should require the ayde of a valiant knight in the Court, called Paradine. Which instantly the did, but he would not yeeld thereto because he tooke it to be too horride atreason. Finding her hope frustrated, and fearing left hir intent would be difcouered, yet defiring nothing more in the world, then to compaffe the height and the will needs pitch of her enterprise : the fet afide all ploiment for the Lady, & made vie of her place for the time, Paradine keeping her there company a long time, imagining his affections. The Queene, who had spent all this The Queene discouereth her self to Pa.

care of honour and honesty, & being aduertifed by Hermigilde, that Paradine car-neftly affected one of her attending Ladies, the deutled therby to effect her purpose. Being acquainted with the secret refort where Paradine & his louer alwaies met together; the found fome other em-while in fost whispers and dalliance, not vfing any one word whereby thee might be discourred; perceiving opportunity fo aptly to fit her, fpake thus vnto him. have the king Knowest thou Paradine, who it is that keepeth thee company? Full well(quoth he) with my Mistresse, and then named her. Thou lyest (false traytour,) replyed the Queene, I am Rosamond thy Soueraignes wife, whom thou hast dared to abuse in this manner, and dye thou must by the inst wrath of Albouine, except thou saue thy life by killing him: aduife thee therefore, whether his life or thine owne is dearest to thee. When Paradine considered his dangerous estate, without any meanes of helpe or escape; hee resolued to kill the King: and for his better furtherance therein, both hee, the Queene. and Hermigilde tooke counfell together, plotting the project in this manner.

The King vsed to sleepe in the heate of the day, and all elfe auoyded the chamber, the Queene onely excepted, and he being a king of courage and high refolue, cuer flept like a Souldier, with his Sword girded about him : which at this inten ded time of treason, the Queene had tyed to fast in the scabbard, as hee could by The maner of no meanes helpe himselfe therewith. Par the Kings death deterradine and Hermigelde waiting the houre, mined by the which was vppon the Queenes iffuing Queene, Pa foorth sthey entred, and for all their fort Hernigilde. treading, the King heard them , and ftarted from his bed. V Vhen he beheld two men armed with weapons, and at fuch a time of no fuspition: fury, not feare made The valeur of him take no knowlege of them, but foght garnithis mur to defend himfelfe with his weapon, derers, euen VVhich failing him, by the meanes of fo in his death. falle a Queene, and they with their weapons euery where, wounding him : hee caught vp a stoole, and therewith made his defence fo long as he could, till in the end they deprined him of life, yet neither noise heard, or any suspition of murther.

The king being thus dead, and all well carryed with a finoothe countenance: Hermigilde possessed himselfe of the Pal- Hermigilde lace, intending to make the Queene his marrierh with Roamondihe wife, as immediately he did. But not Queene. withstanding all their close packing; the Lombardes (notlong after) came to the no other, but that it was the mistresse of knowledge of their Kings death, and in what manner hee was murthered, which they purposed to revenge with all possible speed. Wherein they were prevented, for Rosamond and her complices having packed up most of her Iewells & treasure Royall, fled away thence, carrying with The flight of them Aluifinda Daughter to King Albo- Rolamond & uine, by his first wife. And for their safer the murderers to Rauenna, fecurity, they went to Rauenna, where then gouerned a Lieutenant of the Empire, named Longiuus, who kept that place for Tiberius, Sonne to the Empeperour Constantine of Constantinople, by whom they were curreoufly entertained.

Not long after , Longinus becomming Rosamond deenamored of Rolamond, & defirous to enioy her in mariage, whereto he found her by marrying very tractable; councelled her to procure with the Lieu the death of Hermigilde, & then be would cludeth the marry her . She that had loft all love and death of Herfeare migilde.

firous to ad-

The inflice of God on the two wicked

Cardinals.

Scoffing iefts

A treaches

rous womans wickednelle

met witha'l,

by her owne

deutle againft

her husband.

4. Booke

dreadlesse of the shame of men, coueting withal, to aduance her downefalne estate, by marrying with the Emperours Lieutenant; gaue to Hermigilde an impoyfoned potion at his comming forth of his Bath, persivading him, that it was most soueraigne for his health; by which perswasion he dranke a good part thereof. But whenhee foundit afterward to afflict his body, to as he plainly perceived himfelfe to be poyloned; drawing forth his fword in extremity of rage, he compelled Rofamond to drinke up all the rest that remayned in the Cup, so that at one instant time they both were justly requited for the death of Albouine. Tydings hereof being brought to the Lieutenant Longinus, he caused the young Lady Aluisinda to be feized on, and fent her (with all her iewels and treature) to the Emperour Tiberius, at Constantinople, with Paradine also as a prisoner: where having his eyespulled forth, he lined a while, and then died most miferably.

CHAP. XXIX.

Of a pleasant, witty, and honest deceit, which a famous and vertuous Queene vied to her owne husband; whereby lames, King of Arragon was begotten, with other rememberances both of his birth and

The Authors the enfuing Hiftory.

VVell remember, that in reading the Chronicle of the Kings of Arragon; I finde, that Don Peter, Count of Barcelonna, who was the seauenth King of Arragon, had Madam Mary in marriage, daughter to the Earle of Mount Pefulin, Nephew to the Emperor of Constantinople, the being a very beautifull and vertuous Lady. All which notwithstanding, the King was much addicted vnto other women, and vsed such flender testimony of love towards his Queene, that hee refused to keepe her company, as (in the duty of an husband) he flood obliged to doe. This strange feare of God, respect of womanhood, and behausour in the King, did much afflict and greene the Queene, because they had no childe to succeed in the Kingdome, the greateest misery (of all other) that can full offices happen to a well setled Estate. Heere- the greatest vpon, by aduice of one of the Kings Pa-milery of any ges of his Chamber who (it may be) had kingdome. formerly done fernice in the like affaires; thee compassed the meanes (vnder title of fome one of the Kingscheefest fauourites) to bee brought that hight to lodge with the King- Such familiar entercourfes having paffed betweene them, as in Shamedare fuch wanton feafons are commonly required, the King perceiving the day-light neere approching, in regard both of his owne honours fafety and hers, made meanes to her for her speedy departure, but the taking hold of to good an occafion spake thus vnto him.

My gracious Lord and husband, I am none fuch as (perhaps) you take mee to be, but be well affured, that this night to the King, you have flept with your true Queene and before the VVife.Vfe what violence you shall please would depart to mee, for I purpose not to leave your bed vntill some man, well deserving faith and credite, may be witneffe of my this nights keeping you company. To the ende, that if the fauour of heaven hath bin fo gracious to me, that fruite (long defired) may enfue by this aduenture; the world thal take true notice, that it is your owne. The King perceiting this honest deceit of his Queene, appeared to bee well pleafed therewith, and called two Gentlemen of his Chamber, to testifie the truth, according to her defire, and as (indeed) flood best with his honour . It fo pleased God, that at fit and conueni-ent time, the Queene having at that infrant time conceived with childe; at fuch of lames, King of Attr due season as the custome of women al- gon. loweth them for trauaile, thee was deliuered of a goodly Sonne, euen on the first day of February, in the yeare one thousand, one hundred, ninety fixe. Soone after it was borne, the Mother caufeditto bee carried to the Church, and (which is a thing deferuing memory) as they which carried the childe entred into the Church, the Priests began to fing, Te Deum laudamus, Wee praise thee O of the childe God. Paffing from thence vnto another to two fearest Church, as they were entring likewise thereinto, the Priests began to fing the

The Custome of Carinthia. Chap.33.

Pfalme of Benedictus Dominus Deus Ifrael; Bleffed be the Lord God of Ifrael; which gaue a great prognofficating & vndoubted hope, of some excellent vertues to succeed in the childe. The Father and Mother, notknow-childe, which happened to be that of S.

James. Heercupon he was named James, because it was the name, which the men of Arragon gaue to that Apostle. Hee proved to be an excellent Prince, and of admirable gouernement, both in peace and warre, for hee made a cruell inuation.

vpon the Moores, being euermore very liberall to his Souldiers. Among other most notable matters, hee levied a great

Army, which he conducted into the Isle of Maiorica, that then was in the Moores possession, where hee fought many flour battailes. But after he had a long while befiedged the City, he won it in the ende, and likewise other neighbouring Islands beside. Then comming into hiskingdome of the Moores, especially to the City of Carthage, hee proued still the Conqueror, and neuer fayled in any of his atnorica. He had another that was Archbishop of Tolledo. Madame Tollant, who was Queene of Castile; and Madame Ifa-bell, that was Queene of France; and Madame Frraqua, who was married to Don Emanuell, Prince of Castile; and Don Peter, who espoused the daughter vnto the King of Nauarre. He lived seventy and two yeares, and dyed religiously, taking on him (before his death) the habite of a Monke. For he had a greeuous disease.

which made him renounce his royall

Scepter, with deliberate purpose, that if he might recouer his health againe, hee would imploy the rest of his dayes in the manner of naming the Childe, by lighting of hes, tearme

A ftrange

The vertuo qualities re-

His winning the life of the Citty of fcending fro

King lames became a Monke being what name to give him, caufed twelve Torches (of equall length and making) to be all lighted in one instant, the twelve Torches bearing the feueral names of the twelve Apostles. With this conclusion, that the name of the Torch which first fayled, or became extinguished; the felfe-fame name should bee given to the feruice of God. But weaknesse encreafing more and more you him, he dyed in the Citty of Valencia, Anno 1266. and at the beginning of the Moneth of Au-

CHAP.XXXIII.

Ofan ancient and memorable Custome, obferned by the Inhabitants of the Province of Carinthia, at the Coronation of their Prince : and how cruell their panishment is to Theenes.

Ope Pins the fecod of that name, who was a man of great learning, & deneas Sylvin a diligent inquisi- Atund lb.5. tour for the truth 149.7. of Histories, as wee haue in many places formerly allodged, faieth in his description of the world; that the Pronince of Carinthia, is enclosed within the territory, and vader the gonernment of Austria. Hee likewife relateth a custome, which the Inhabitants of that Prouince have anciently observed, at the election and Coronation of their Princes; appearing some-what strange, yet honest and very commendable. VVhich custome is also confirmed by A. Sabellicus, in his tenth Decade : and by Sebastian Munster, in his composed Deca.Hift. Cosmography, which is after this man-

411

In this Prouince of Carinthia, there is a very great and spacious plaine of olde ruined buildings, which feeme to bee the foundation of some former auncient Cit

In which place also there is a great stone, and when obeyfance is to be given at the new creation of a Prince; there is a day appointed, and a country labourer, or meane husbandman (allowed to to the Printhis preheminence in regard of his li- ces election. nage) hath order to feate himfelfe vppon that same stone. On his right hand

He had many children, as well fonnes as daughters, on whom (during his life time) he bestowed great gifts and goodly cstates. Don Peter, that afterwad was Arragon, & King of Arragon, was his Sonne. Like-their gracious wife Don lames, King of Majorica and Mi-

The manner of the Princes

standeth a poore Cow, that hath lately calued, which hee holderh fastened by a corde, and on his left hand-frandeth avery leane and wretched Mare, tyed in like maner, and round about him is no meane crowd of labourers and country Boores. In this place, and at this Stone, the Prince that is to be enstalled, must make his apparance, attended with a great number of men on horse-backe, ryding in very formall order, with twelve Banners borne beforehim: among which there is one more large and fightly then all the reft, carried by an Earle, thereto admitted by especiall priniledge. The Arch-Duke, Prince of great Lord voyce, what he is, that commeth towards him with fuch glory and felicity? Answer is instantly made him, that it is the man, who commeth to bee created Prince of the Country. Then as it were with a voyce like thunder, the labourer cryeth out. Is he a just ludge? Will he wel maintaine inflice? Will hee preserue the defence and fafety of this Country? Is hee a man franke, and free-borne? Is he valiant, vertuous, and worthy of honour and re-uerence? Ishe a Christian? Ishee a Defender of the faith of Iefus Christ? And all the company maketh answer, that he is fuch a man, and will fo continue. Then he beginneth againe, and maketh another demand. By what right or reason cometh he to dispossesse me of this place, which belongeth onely to me? To which questi-of gold shall be frankly given thee, & this

Cow, as also this Mare shall both be thine owne, beside the rich Robe, which our

King didlast of all put off, shall also bee thine: moreouer, thou and thy family shal bee free, from paying any manner of tribute. After these words, the Prince ap-procheth neere to the Stone, & the poore man giveth him a gentle blow on the cheeke commanding him (in any case) to be a good Iusticer : & so descending from the Stone, he leadeth along with him the Cow and Mare, and departeth.

howfocuer ye meane to tearme him, clo-The Princes thed in a Shepheards habite, commeth to being at the Stone before him that must the Stone wheron the poore man fitteth, & as he perceiveth him to approch somewhat neere, hee demandeth with a loud

The feuerall questions of The Earle that carrieth the cheefest Standard, his answer to the poore man.

The Prince created with aboxe on th

Then the Prince dismounting from his horse, ascendoth vp, and sitteth vpon the The Prince Rone, where drawing foorth his Sword, the Stone, and turning to each fide of the ftone, ftill flourishing the weapon round about him; hee maketh a folemne promise before all the people, vetering the words as loud as The Prince be can speake, that he will be a just Iudge, promise be tore all the and a good Prince. This done, one bringeth him (in a Shepheards bonnet) a small quantity of water to drinke: and fo descending from the stone, hee re-mounteth on horsebacke, and rydeth on to a Church with all his company, there to heare Mas.

Which being finished, hee changeth his former plaine and rurall garments, to vechangethin ry Royall and Princely habites: and after humble gua pompeous Dinner with his whole train, ments. he returneth againe into the open fielde, where hee heareth all the Officers of luflice speake vnto him, to enstruct him in the lawes of the Country: and these are the viuall ceremonies, observed at the creation of enery Prince.

There is another custome in vse among these people, for the punishment of thefts and robberies ; which I hold to be vniuft, Acruellere and ouer-cruell, especially to beeved a mong Christians. For having but some of theeses & note or apprehension onely, that such a robbers, too man standeth in repute to be a theefe; they forthwith fend him to execution, without flians. any other proceeding against him. Then three dayes after his cleath, they examine the witnesses with all care and diligence; when if it shall appeare by solemne inquifition, that he proueth to be guilty of the crimes alledged; they fuffer him to hang vpon the Gibbet, vntill his limbes fall peecemeale from him. But if he be found to be innocent, they take him thence, and on, the Earle that beareth the cheefest giue him honourable obsequies and fune-Standard, replyeth thus. If thou wilt quit rall, with many prayers and almes-deeds, the losse of a and forfake this place, threefcore Ducates for the faluation of his foule.

With this feuerity doe they chaftife theeues and robbers neuertheleffe I read of some other Nations, that greatly have supported and countenanced them therein. As the Egiptians, of whom Aulus Gellius writeth in his Attick nights. And Nott Autic. the Lacedomians likewise, who permitted their children to bee theeues, and learne climbing in at windowes, and wandring abroad in the night feafon, that they might be the more bolde and hardy for warre. Notwithstanding, Draco, hee that gaue

In what part of the Zodiaque the Sunne and Moone, and likewife the other Planets were, at their first creating. Also of the beginning of yeares, and the course of the bent of humane understanding so full of strange questionings, as they cannot content themselves to know such things as they may with fome eafe comprehend onely: but ouer and beside, they are scrutinous and fearching (through bold prefumption) to know fuch causes as are very hard, and almost impossible. Nor hath this painefull defire beene altogether fruitleffe and vaine, though many times it fayled, and came farre thort of expectation: because by contemplation and continuall fludy, they have found out fuch matters as feemed before vtterly impossible and supernaturall, or that they should any way be attayned voto by the capacity ofmen. As namely, the motions of the Heavens: the course of the Planets and other Starres, with their feuerall influences and power, and the like things beside: a-

HE learned Philofophers fav

that men are naturally curious & couctous of kno-ledge.Moreouer,

fuch is the zeale

of their affection

in this cafe, and

ricke, the third of that name; according as Lodouicus Viues, that learned man in all

Arres and Sciences, writeth in the third

CHAP. XXXIIII.

Booke of his Disciplines.

Menare na-turally defi-rous to know all things whattoener-

ion and frud

Of the beginning of Times,&c.

Draco his femong the reft; wherein he commanded, uere Law a. that every kinde of theft (hould bee punigunit all ma-ner of thefts, and Solons thed with the penalty of death. In regard whereof, Solon faide, that hee had written that Law with blood, which made him (afterward) to allay and mitigate it. The custome which yet to this day is obferued for hanging of theeues, was first of all appointed by the Emperour Frede-

At what time was first or-

Chap.34.

Lawes vnto the Athenians, made one a- | mong which is comprized my present intended argument, and what in this Chapter 1 purpoled to discourse on, to wit; how purpose in to know the beginning of times & yeares; this Chapter. ter I purposed to discourse on, to wit how and on what day the world began, or to speake better; when, or in what season God created the world; when began the ueted to be yeare and times; and where was the Sun, or where God placed it at first, when hee began his courfe; & likewife the Moone, with the other Starres and Planets.

> Aristotle did little care for these queftions, and infinite other Philosophers be- Aristoile and fide, who thorow defect of the light of losephers of faith, did verily beleeue, that the world pinion of the was eternall, without any beginning or world. ending. But fuch as have declared themfelues not to be ignorant in thefe things, but verily believed the beginning of times, feeme to fland divided betweene Two opinions the world was created, the Sunne was worlds created found to be in the first point of Aries, or tion. the Ranme, which is in the Equino Ciall Fernale. of Summer, the time comming then to the eleventh day of March. Others fay, that the world began, the Sunne then being in the first point of Libra, or the Ballances, which is the other Equinocitall of Equin Clium VVinter, commonly happening in these our dayes, on the thirteenth or foureteenth day of September. Of this opinion were divers Egiptians, Arabes, and Greekes likewife ; according as Lincolnien- 1. Lincoln.in fis reporteth, in a Treatise of the world, Traft. Mund which he wrote to Pope Clement & Vin- Mir. Hilloriale, > centius in his historicall Mirrour. Such as have followed this opinion, A reason alalledge a reason for it, which (in my judg- ledged for the ment) is very weake, and of no force. For earths perie they fay, that then the principall fruites of the beginning. the earth were fully ripe, and in the very best of their fauour, because it was most requifite, that (at the beginning) the earth should present it selfe in the height of perfection. To this purpose, they produce authority out of Deuteronomy, Deut. 32.3. where it is faid; That God made all things perfect and compleate. There are some others, who affirme, that the entrance of The entrance times, and of yeares, was on the very grea- of times and yeares. test day of all other; which was then, when the Sunne entred into the figne of Cancer, as now it is the eleventh or twelfth day of Iune. Iulius Firmicus, an ancient

The Authors Curious que. ftions, et co-

Inl.Fom cus in tib.; .de cre it.Mund.

The figne Leo the house of the Sunne.

The most pro bable opinion of all other.

S.Hierome. S. Ambrole. S.E. file.

The ful agree ment of all together.

enofourble;-

Concerning the first Mo neth of the yearc.

and part of

D'acent in Mir.Hift.cap.1

Aftrologye, in the beginning of his third Booke, which he wrote of the worlds creation, faith: That when the world began, the Sunne was in the fift degree of the signe Leo; which is the figne wherein hee hath most dominion, because it is called the house of the Sunne: the like he saieth, in discouring the other Planers, by their order and degrees. But that which rellisheth of most reafon in all these opinions, and appeareth most conformable to truth, is ; that when both time and the heavens began to bee mooued; the Sun was in the first point of Aries, which is (with vs) in March, and at which time is the entrance of Summer. This is affirmed (belide all other reasons that we can alledge) by the greater part of H.ftorians, as well Christians as Heathens; among whom are S. Hierome, S. Ambrofe, S. Bafile, and others, who doe all maintaine, that the beginning of the world, and likewife of the yeare, was in the Equinoctiall of our Summer. And although there may appeare some difference among them, because some will haue the worlds begining to be in March, and others in Aprill: it may well bee endured, for they all agree together, that it was in the Equinoctiall, which now is in March. Notwithstanding, as wee haue formerly affirmed, the Equinoctiall is not alwaies firme or constantifor Iesus Christ fuffered his passion on the fine and twentieth day of March, which was then the Equinoctiall, and now it is the eleuenth day of the fame Moneth, whereby may well be prefumed, that heeretofore it was

For this cause, some would have April to be the first Moneth, and others March; yet notwithstanding, they all say, that whe the Sun enters into the first point or degree of Aries, then is the Equinoctiall. This opinion is grounded on the Scripture, especially on the twelfth Chapter of Exodus, where it is faid: The Moneth * Nifan (which is March with vs) is the entrance to your yeare. Vincentius, in the beginning of his historicall Mirrour, faith: The Hebrewesbegan their yeare in March. because in the like Moneth was the Equinoctiall, when as the world began. This opinion was likewise helde by some of the Eleacin Traft. Gentiles; as Elpacus in his Aftrologicall ancient Author, and of great authority in | Treatife, where he faith: The Chaldeans being very great Astrologers, beleeved like Concerning being very great Astrologers, beteened like wife, that on the first day when the world was of the year, made the Sunne entred into the first point or what Moneth degree of Aries : and this is also confident- and on what ly maintained by the most part of Astrologers, both ancient and moderne. Therfore when the Sunne came in his course thither, or to that Signe; then was the beginning of the yeare, and thence enfued the principall or beginning day. For it is a matter most manifest, that the first day wherein the world began to be made, was also made the first day of the yeare:considering that till then there was neyther time nor yeare. And therefore the figne Aries the fife of Aries is reckoned (about all the rest) morder a. to be the first in order among the twelve mong the infigures.

> Now, as when we come to judge of the revolution of yeares, and things to happe therin, as of necessity we must equal the figures, by the beginning of the world; euen foit is as easie to prooue, that God placed the Sunne in the first degree of this figne, at the beginning and creation of the world. And this may bee conjectured without any great labor, by our profe Of the time made in the fixt Chapter of the feuenth and day when Book, in our first Volume, where dilcour- fered his Pal fing on the time and day, when as our red with the bleffed Lord and Saujour fuffered; it is day of the affirmed, that the Sunne was in the felfe- worldson fame at the creation, as it was when the great Sunne of righteoufnesse made the regeneration of the world fuffering death and paffion in humane flesh, and that happened (as is formerly faide) in the Equinoctial of Summer, which is an argument and presupposition, that even so hee placed it, when as he created it.

> Moreouer, it appeareth very credible, that it was so made, because such as the Sunne is know any thing in Aftrologye, and in the Juminatethal Sphere, do well perceive, that the Sunne the world to entring into the degree of this figne, and the cleare n making his revolution by the space of a diance of his wholeday: there is not any part of the beames. world, which he leaueth vislookt on with his bright splendour. And rhis he doth not in any other place of the Zodiaque, because in what place else soeuer hee is; there are some parts of the earth where he is not seene that day; but beeing in this first degree, as we have saide, there is no place where he is vnfeene, as hee walketh mane yeare, beginning

Mecreb.in lib. Ond in Faft.

> The first fea knthat Ada and Euc faw in the world was the Spring time

ney. And it standeth with good reason | found it, if it had not beene Spring-time. and conveniency, that the first day of the Sunnes ferting foorth on prograce, hee may best visite the whole world with his beames. And that it should bee in the figue Aries, rather then in that of Libra, appeareth plainly by our former relation, fore there is some particular power in Holding this opinion then for the most certaine, I say, that the reason alledged, by fuch as would have the beginning fufficient to fay, that all the fruites were ripe and mellow; in regard it is no vni-nerfall rule: for when the fruites are ripened towards the Northerne latitude, they contrary. And therefore I craue no helpe of their reason, who say, that the Equino-citall of March (already prooued) is the beginning of the Spring time, & of flowers oner all the earth, all things beeing the in procreation; for if with vs it be the beginning of Spring time, it is then winter in the Southerne parts. Let our reasons then fuffice, & the authority of fuch wor-nus, coucting to have their yeare beginne with his name, as the Christians began theirs with the Natiuity of Iefus Christ, albeit the yeare doth not then begin.

Against fuch at maistaine the worlds beginning in of the world, to bee in the Equinoctiall of the Equinoc-September, is very weake. For it is not full of will of white a superior to full of white a superior t

Chap.34.

A reason alledged of

quence for

6:ft appea-

At what time is the beginning of the > thy men, to cleare all other doubt or feruple salthough the Romane yeare, now in Of the Rovie, seemeth to begin the first day of Ianuary : for this matter came fo to paffe, onely through the superstitious denotion, which the Gentiles had to their God Ia-

> > The Romanes (in like manner) began their years in March, according as Marcus Varro writeth, and Macrobius in his first Booke ouid in his Fasts, and many more beside. Also God shewed his immense goodnesse, in placing our first Parents Adam and Ene, in the Northerne parts of the earth, when he banished them out of the terrestriall Paradise; & that the first feason which they faw in this world, was the Spring-time, finding the earth to be greene & flowry, with the ayre milde, > > fweete and temperare, which was done along in his diurnal course, or dayes iour- | nakednesse, and so they could not have

ued, wee must know that there are other laid to be in thould begin in fuch a place, where hee Planets, and especially the Moone, as be-conjunction ing one of the principall, whom some do with the Sun maintaine, to be fet by God in coniunctions on with the Sunne, on the first day of her creation. Others fav. that the was in opthat on the day of our Lords passion, the position, and at the full. Saint Augustine Sunne was in the felfe-same place, there- reporteth these two opinions, in his booke Augin Gen. vpon Genesis, the fift Chapter, saying fur- cap. 5. ther, that fuch as maintaine her to bee in opposition, and arthe full; do alledge for Others hold their reason; that it was very inconucnienr, that at her beginning, God should create her any way defectuous. Others vrdge the contrary, and fay it is more credible; that the began her first day in coniunction, encreasing in her age answerable to our account. But to quiet this controuerfie, I fay (in mine opinion) that The Authors are not fo in the South, but wholly quite God at fuch time as he created her, made this cale. her aufull, and in opposition of the Sun. And it feemeth, that this judgement is the most received, as of Sangartine, in the place before alledged and Rubanes Rabanus in Ex on the twelfth Chapter of Exodus, faith od.cap. 12. the very fame. This appeareth conformable to holy Scripture, where it is faide: God made two great lights, the greater light Gen. 1,16. to governe the day, and the leffer light toilluminate the night. Now in the very fame instant as the Sunne began his light, hee gave splendour to the moity of the world, Sunne and because in that moity or halfe part, hee made day. But the other moity could night & day, haue no light of the Sunne, by reason of done at one the earths shadow; therefore it seemeth instant. confonant to reason, that in the other moity of the earth, where it was night, the Moone should extend her office of shining. For like as they were both created at one instant : so should they both fulfill their offices in one and the fame instant, and the one to gouerne the day, as the other the night, according to the words of the Text, verefied apparantly, that the world was wholly lightened at one & the

Contrariwife, if the Moone had bene in conjunction, the light common and v- conjunction niuerfall could not have come till fifteene of the Moone dayes after; and befide, three or foure at that time dayes must needs have passed, before she for the confolation of their mifery and | could lend any light to the earth, and that fame time.

This matter being fufficiently proo-

Offices of the

Of her then being in op-position with the Sunne.

de Somn.Scip.

lul Firmic.in lib.2.de creat. Mund

we see her to be but four or fine daies old. Therefore it was very conuenable, that thefe two famous lights shold illuminate the earth at one instant. I say moreouer, that the Moone then being in opposition with the Sunne, fhee must needs have her being on the other fide of the figne Libra, for in her fo being, the performd the fame day the effects as the Sunne did, illuminating all the world, by her measurable pace of that dayes journy; which elfe she could not have done, if the had bin in any other place of the Zodiaque. Heereby it appeareth, that this opinion is the most likely although Iulius Firmicus will needs fay, that the Moone (at the time of her creation) had her first feating in the fifteenth degree of the figne Cancer, where shee affecteth most to be; & of this opinio is Macrobine, in his first Book of Scipius dreame. Macrob in lib. As for the other Planets, it is very difficult to certifie them, and leffe profitable to know them: in which respect, I am willing to bestow the lesse paines on them. Neuerthelesse, Inline Firmicus, in his second Booke before alledged, is fo bold as to name the places where each of them is feated, faying: Saturne should bee in the figne Capricorne ; Inpiter in Sagittarius ; Mars in Scorpio : Venm in Libra : & Mars in Virgo; which are the fignes wherein they have most power, and being signes likewise appointed to these Planets. Elpa-Elpacouin Trast.Astrolog himfelfe maintayneth as much according as Ioannes Agricanus declareth in his Ioan Agrican. in Sum.Agric. Summary, entitled Agricano; with Macro-Macrebin lib. bius in his fore-named Booke of Somno Scipionis, and thereunto confenteth Julius Firmicus, naming expressly the same signs, yet there are others, who have thought, that in the recited instant, all the Planets were found to be in conjunction with the Sunne. Gaultierus the Monke, in his book of the Ages of the world, faith, that the ancient Indians held firmely this opinion. As for my felfe, I am of the minde, that God did then fet the Planets in fuch distant places, one from another, especially from the Sunne; that on such a chosen the earth with his beames. VVhich could not be, they beeing in coniunction with the Sunne, because his presence, within any certaine space or proportion, so hindereth the greatest luster of their light, that must be but very little too, euen as when they cannot bee discerned on the earth. Notwithstanding, beeing created according to the will of God : It [ufficeth (faith Augustine) that they were made, in beeing Augin Gen. perfected by the hand of God, whose workes cap.6. (in what kinde foeuer they be) are perfect.

CHAP. XXXV.

That men may learne examples by Birdes. Flyes Wormes, and other Creatures, to leade the course of a vertuous life.

TEe haue already declared in our first Volume how Beasts & Birds In the fiftee haue enstructed men in a great part of the the 7.Booke properties appertaining to Physicke, by purging and preferuing themselves from harmes: now I am briefely to entreate, how their example may bee profitable to vs, both in body and foule. And vndoubtedly, who foeuer wil confider & contemplate, on the nature & properties abiding in beafts; shall not onely thence derine good enstructions for life and safety of our humane bodies; but rules and examples belide, of good, commendable, and vertuous manners. VVhy do not men striue to purchase peace with their neighbours; feeing what concord and amity is among brute beats, Beafts of allkindes, and how they keepe exampled m company, vnite themselues together in each kinde, and stand defensive one for another? VVhy shame they not to bee flothfull and negligent, perceiuing & ob- | Slothfulleste feruing the care and follicitude of the Ant, and after what manner shee maketh her pronision in Summer for VVinter? VVhat vaffals and fubiects are they, that will not serue and honor their good Prin- to Princes ces;noting with what love and obedience taught by poore little Bees ferue and honour their King, and that which they doe for him befide? In which respect, such Commonweales as haue no Prince, but enjoy all Against comthings in common; may not they learne that have no prince. cord, by imitation of the poore Ants, who are fo great in multitude, and yet preserue an order of peace & inflice among themfelues? And why do not great Lords and Princes confider, what manfuetude and Of clemency clemency all of them are obliged vnto; mde.

For good ormitted tho-

friendship, & good turnes

Inducements to vertuous life. Chap.35.

when they but behold the King of Bees, I the poorest bread they cate. If a man who doth no offence, neyther worketh any displeasure to the very meanest and sillieft of his Subjects? Our great Seigniors and high-mindedmen, may learne humility of the Camell, who falleth on his knees, to accept a heavy and ouer chargeable burden. I'rue and loyall married couples, may take example by the good custome among some Birds: especially Pigeons and Turtle-Doues, noting both in the Male and Female, that nothing but death can impeach their continuall companying, or hinder eyther from their first choyse. I finde written moreover, concerning Turtle-Dones, that the one dying, the other remaineth in the condition of a widdow, & finisheth the remainder of her life in widdowhood. Saint Ambrose writeth, that widdowed women may learne chastity of the Turtle-Doue. As touching continen-cy, all beafts (well neere) do letion vs therin: for after the Female hath conceived, the neuer feeketh, or hath any appetite to the Male, till her full time be determined.

They are likewise examples of temprance then sufficeth to maintaine life, neyther fleepe they any more then necessity re-

To keepe our selues well and discreetly giue it to his Hens, and when need requireth, he will expose himselfe to all perils in their defence. The great obligation.

wherein children standeth bound to their Parents, and how they ought to ferue and assist them, the Storke plainly witnesseth;

by nourithing their aged Parents in their owne nefts, as they fedde and maintayned

Examples of in all vices; because they eate no more quireth.

gouerned, the Peacoke may be our direaion. For defence and maintenance of For good and our houses, as also to line liberally among our people; what better enstructer can we have then the Cock? For he will part with the food out of his owne Beake, to

Duty in chiltheir parents row feare and Faithfulneffe them in their youth. Why should not men blush and be ashamed, to commit frailty and finne through feare, knowing the inuincible courage of the Lyon? Faithfulnesse, friendship, and acknow. ledgement of received benefits, wee are notably taught by the meere behaulour of Dogs; that neuer forget the Masters

they have ferued, but continually love them, neuer ceasing to bee thankfull for would benefit himfelfe by the vie of another mans goods, yet without any harme or in ury done him; let him fo carry him felf in that cafe, as doth the little laboring Bee, who draweth hony out of the faire if flowers, and yet no wrong, at all done to VVhat meanes and order we should daily observe, for healthfull conternation of our lives, we are not to learne it of any one beaft onely, but of many, that know what food doth soonest offend them, as alfo in with-drawing from one place to another, according to the mutation of times. Moreover, they will live in such foyles, as are answerable to their con:plexions and natures: excelling men herein as well as in all other things belide. VVhy should not men be absolutely learned, and ignorance in any thing quiere moued from them, beeing endued with derftanding. hearing and understanding: considering that an Elephant learneth whatfoeuer is shewne and taught him; a Dog attaineth to many familiar qualities; and Birds can fpeake, being thereto enstructed? He that heareth the Nightingales sweet Songs. and fome other mellodious Birds; how can he but defire to fing mufically? VV hy couet not men to be excellent builders, arte beholding the Swallowes skilfull enftruction; what arte thee declareth for her owne dwelling, and with what diverfity of matter it is composed? VVhat better Geometry. Geometry, then that of the Spide: ? What better Aitrologye, then that of the Ante, & likewise of a Fish (according to Galen) Galen in lib.4 called " Vranoscopos, that having but one * A Fish eye, vet lookes continually vp to heaven? whole eye are meerely ignorant in these Artes? How many other industrious and excellent persections are in brute Beafts, which men either haue, or elfe may learne of them? Paffages under ground, making of Caues in the earth, and knowledge der ground. how to dwell in them; came they not first from the Mole and Fox? There are certaine little VVormes, in Latine called . eres, that enstructed the meanes and manner to spin and make Silke. Next, the Spi der taught how to spin thred for cloth, & fo to make Nets, whereby to catch Birds. Men learned of Beafts to swim in the water, for there is no one of them but can do the water.

417

Aftrologye.

Haue men reason and judgement, and yet is alwayes directed vp-

Making of Aaking of Swimming in

The Planer conjunction with the Sun day, each one of them might illuminate Gasttánlib, de Micad.cap.5.

de Som.Scip.

Rules for philedge in wea-

Our wearing The cheefest fupport of our Examples concerning the loule.

rables groun

Beafts com-

ture, for our imitation,

Reasonabl: men inftruct. ed by example of bruite beafte.

August.in lib.

practife and learning. What Physicall rules they have taught men, and knowledge in the changes of weather, hath elfe where bene handled; and yet notwithstading we make fuch provision of them, for supply of hunger and other necessities, as I know not how wee could live without their helpe. Our garments are made of theirs, and their flesh is our best Foode: both beeing brought home to vs from far remote countreyes, and whatfoeuer is needfull for vs, or elfe we fend abroad to feeke after them. They labour, and make the earth plyable for our vie; whence we get our bread, and the best fruites of su-Stentation, so that they are the principall maintenance of our lines. And although they are fore laboured, purfued, and euill entreated by the splcenes of men : yet are they still obedient, both knowing, following, and euermore dooing them fer-

Come wee now to examples concerning the foule, as a matter of higher Argument, and much greater importance. Whence can a man derine more worthie examples, both for vertues and good manners meete to bee in men, then from beafts? All those Vertues which naturall All moral Pa- Philosophers hath perswaded vnto vs, are grounded on the fimilitudes and parables of Beafts: Oratours serued their turnes with them; and all that have spoken or written elegantly.

God and his Saints have oftentimes in facred Scripture, inftructed and perin holy Scripfivaded vs, by the properties & conditions of beafts, for the perfection of our lines: And the rules of vertue and civil manners do tell vs, that we should be wise like Serpents, and simple as Doues; milde, like Lambes, and strong and constant as Lyons. In like fort, by the example of bruite beafts, and voide of reason; we are taught to become men reasonable, and spiritually affected. We finde many Offices & estates in the Church, applyed and figured by beaftes, and according vnto theyr properties. By Oxen (according to S. Augustine, writing on the second Chapter of S. John) fuch men are fignified, as 149. Januarap. 2. doepublish and preach the holye Scriptures: for they till and plough uppe the knotted furrowes of our foules, fowing therein the feedes of Gods most glorious it; yet men cannot attaine thereto, but by | word.

Saint Paule, and Salomon in his Prouerbes docth fay; Thou fhalt not muzzle the mouth of the Oxe that laboureth, Rom. 9. verse 7. Prouerb. 12.chap. 14. The holy Doctors and Preachers of the Church, that with Doctrine and good Lawes doe Gregorin ld gouerne and defend it, are termed Dogs. Saint Gregorie speakes it on the wordes of 10b : Quorum non dignabar patres ponere cum cambus gregis mei. The fame Saint Gregorie, inuiteth men vnto a contempla. Contempla tiue kinde of life, by the immitation of life, Goates, that alwayes climbe vp to high places, spending there their time in contemplation as it were: the wordes in Leuitieus feem his motiue thereto, Leuitic. chapt. 14. verse 12. Out of the Herd let the Goate be offered.

Moreouer hee fayth, that Preachers Green, in 14 should immitate the Cocke; as ground- wifere. ing on the words of 10b, who fayde ; Who Preachers hath given understanding to the Cock? Adthey proclaime (in the dimme darkeneffe of this life) the glorious light that is to come, and awake vs with their shrill voyces, out of fleepy finnes, faying with S. Ephel. 3,9. Faul. The night is past and day approacheth. And againe, It is time for vs to arife from sleepe looke abroad yee iust, and sinne not. Phil.1.12.

The Church her felfe, pure, holy, and The Church immaculate, is compared to a Doue, as a Doue. Salomon declareth in his Canticles, faying. Beholde, thou art faire my Loue, thine Cant. 3,12 eyes are like the Doues. And againe in another place: Omy Loue, Omy Done. We fee likewife, that of the foure Euangelists three are figured by three beaftes. If I wold continue longer on this argument, I could finde matter enough to discourse But aboue all other, that of our Sa- Iclus Chrift uiour and Redeemer Iesus Christ, is the beast. most notable, who would bee figured by a Beaft, as Saint tohn speaketh in his Apocalypfe, chapt. 7. verse 14. The Lyon of the Tribe of Indah bath beene victoriom. And David fayeth in his Pfalmes, Rouze Pfalmerso, thee like a Lyon: and fo in many other places, which were too long to rehearfe. Befide, in S. Mashew, he tearmeth himfelfe Matth. 3,33 a Hen, Taying ; O Ierufalem, Ierufalem how often would I have gathered thee & thy children together as the Hen gathereth bir Chickens under her wings, and ye would not.

Chap.36. Of Neglect in Military Discipline.

Christs works |

Man more of God then all his other cregiue worfe

Seeing then, that Christ compareth his workes to the properties of Beaftes; the proper, men may doe well to receive instruction from them, in leading a good and holie life. And contrarywife, what shame and confusion is it to vs, to see and know, that all kinde of Beafts do follow theyr nature perfectly, and men (onely made reasonable) vie their owne fo badly, abusing that fuper-excellent gift very vilely. For, he that ought most to honor God, dothmost of all offend him, and farre beyonde all other creatures, dayly peruerting and adulterating his works. So that there are some beafts, of whome men may learne much better examples, then from some kind of men among whom they line. For they haue more apprehension of instice, and offend farre leffe, their men that knowe what is their dutie, and yet do it not. And therefore, God deliuereth it by the mouth of the Prophet Efay : The Oxe knoweth his Master, and the Affe his Cribbe; but Ifrael knoweth him not neither will his people vn-derstand him.

CHAP. XXXVI.

Of neglect in Martiall Discipline: and of an Army of Christians, that lost all their liues thorow drunkennesse, and want of following such courses, as are to be obserued in Military affayres.

REE haue already declared,

how Bayan Chinfan, Lieute-

the eight dapt of the 1.Book in the full volume.

nant to the Tartarian Emperor Cublay, and directer of his Military forces, tooke 12 Cities and Townes (by affault) at his first arrivall, for conquering the great Prouince of Maugy, before all the rest would yeeld themselues tributary. One of them was vtterly ruined to the very foundation and worse ysed then any other known to be, during the Empire of the faid Cublay, which was aboue fixe and thirtie yeares'. This City being called Cinguinguy, was the fecond in wealth, greatnesse, and multitude of inhabitants, in all the rich Kingdome of Mangy, and the reason why it was wholly ruined, followeth thus.

Bayan Chinfan, purfuing his Conquest, was much withflood by a strong Castle, builded vpon a finall mountaine, very potent by naturall fituation, and artificiall constructure. For therein continued a powerfull Garrison, that preuayled with great aduantages on his Army, paffing a- Hic refifielt long the foote of that Mountain: and this Bayans pafwas the reason that he would proceed on fage. no further, till hee had derined fome better correspondencie from the people of this Garrison. And yet he durst promise to himselfe, that (within some small distance of time) he should preuaile against them, as afterwardes it prooued true in-In the meane while, and at the felffame inftant, the explorators or fcoutes vvere Return of his come backe againe, which he had fent to Conguinguy furueigh the estate of Cinquinguy, who made knowne vnto him, that the people of the Citty appeared, to know nothing of his comming, neyther flood vpon any guard, or preparation to expect a befiedging. This was the cause (to the end hee might the better preuent them) that hee forthwith dispatched a squadron of thirty thousand men, armed at the lightest, and very good foldiers, all of them being chri-Stians (which came among the Tartarian gaue to his Idolaters in open liberty, as the Iews have iquadron of done from all times of antiquity, and day-ly yet doe) to possesse themselves of the Citie, and hinder the entrance of any fuccour, either by way of power or victuals, affuring them likewise, that he would follow them with all conucnient speede that might be. This warlike band of Christians, made The Christi-fuch speedy diligence, that (within three dayes) they arrived before the Citty, and guinguy lodged themselues on the Ditches side, before any in the Citty took notice therof. They made the scalado in so many seuerall places, and disposed their Archers fo conveniently, as no one durst peep out at any of the battlements, or elfebe feene vpon the wals. At length, the befiedged (imagining the army that had thus engirt the, was of far greater strength then it was indeed) being ouercome with feare, ren- Themen of dred themselues to the discretion & mer-cy of the assaylants, to the end, they might Christians. finde the more humanity at their handes. The gates being fet open, the Christians entred taking up their lodgings in feue-

The careleffe continuing ftill in furfet and drunken

The Army of

flaine in their drunkenneile and fhamefully vied by the Inhabi

The strong

Caftle taker

by Bayan,& tydings brought him

of his mens

A Parlie re-

quited before further pro-aniwer retur ned by them of Cinguin-

flaughter.

Christians

rall houses. And these indiscreete conquerors, without any other care of military discipline, finding the Citty well furnithed with victuals of all kindes, & whatfocuer was needfull for the life of man, but (aboue all) plenty of rich wines; fell to making themselves good cheere, and drinking hard, after the German manner, their victory, till they fell afleepe with the pots in their

Hecrcuppon the Inhabitants finding themselves deceived in yeelding to so final a number of people, that had no better understanding in actions of warre, neither knew how to vie the fortune fo fairely befalne them; began to consult heereon with themselves, and how to worke their deliuerance with as much speed, as they were ouer-hafty in lofing their liberty. The Christians continuing in this drunken behauiour, without any feare at all of the Inhabitants, that lodged the Soldiors in their houses, though not halfe fo many as they were able to receive: in one night it was fully concluded that euery host should kill his guest, and so it was accordingly performed. Afterward, they threw their bodies into the great River, which runneth through the midft of the Citty faving: These are the renegadoes and faith-breakers, men of Christian Religion, of whom the Emperour Cublay made no great account, but suffered them to carry croffes in their Enfigns, to shame them the more in their least ill demea-

Eayan Chinfan having furprized the forefaid castle, commanded the Captains to be hanged, and the castle quite ruined but pardoned all the Soldiours, iourneying afterward on to Cinquinguy : but within leffe then two dayes journey, hee heard how all his men were flaine, therefore hee brought a strong fie ige before the Citty. The Inhabitants were not a little amazed, beholding so powerfull an Army to befet them, and conducted by a man fo highly renowned: and therefore defired to have a Parlee before any farther proceeding which accordingly was granted. The fumme of the Oration propounded by the Deputies, was thus. That they could not deny a manifest truth, but that they had flaine a number of runnagates, mafterleffe men, feeming to haue no faith parance of their power; but fuddenly furprized their Citty. Moreover that they were all Christians, more addicted vnto wine and gourmandizing, then any refpect of valour or manhood: in which regard, his loffe was little or none at all, by specied then the deserved overthrow of such carelesse manhood people, and they humbly defired pardon, if in this case they had transgressed.

Bayan returned his answer brauely Bayans reph and fuccincity, faying. His men were to the men of warriours, that had no other direction in Cinquinger. this businesse, but commaund from his mouth onely, and he had beene well enformed that they tooke the Citty by faire order of warre; without offending any one in their goods, or violence offered to wives or mayds, or difarming any Inhabitant, but fuffering them to continue in their wonted liberty. And in being Christians, they did not therefore descrue The Christians death, because he could as well tollerate ans defended them, as his Master the Emperour, who festion, and not onely suffered them to line in all his whole king. Countries, without the least injury done vnto them; but having conquered kingdomes, wholly Christian, he neuer inno-uated any matter touching their Religi-ligion. on. Moreover, the greater part of Officers in his Court, and the very worthiest of his warriours, were all Christians, being men more faithful, and of better conuerfation, then any other Religion whatfocuer.

As for their neglect in martiall discipline, he did not allow it in them, but confessed, that they deserved death therein, which (doubtlesse) himselse would have inflicted on them; condemning them for beeing so forward, in executing any authority belonging onely to him. For which boldnesse (with an absolute deny- Bayandeniall of pardon or fauour) he vowed to bee fauour, row-reuen ged on the men of Cinguing uy; be-ingd-ah-ah cause (against all fidelity) they had flaine bloody rehis men, and declared monstrous ingratitude for their extraordinary manfuetude, and thence hee pretended to deriue his reason.

Hauing thus spoken, hee would see them no more, but in this rough manner In what man dismissed them . About an houre after, ner Bayan de he caused his Rammes and other Engines of battery, to bee mounted, for guinguy. destruction of the walles and houses, and within few dayes after, tooke the Citty, to who gaue

by the perfidy of the Inhabitants, even as

A view of form fundifieders nearer to our felues, and speake of the without any great refissance, putting all, whereof Anne de Montmorancy, Constar Thefault of the men to the fword, that were about 14 yeares of age. Women and maides went whither themselves pleased; but for their children, they were fold at the Out-crie, to fuch as would give the most mony for them: for there were certaine merchants of Beugala, which followed the army that did trafficke onely in fuch kinde of merchandife, and so do yet to this day. Afterward, vittailes beginning to faile, & the warlike enemy, having emptied the cittle of all the wealth; he commanded it to be fet on fire, and that the Army should not boudge thence, vntil it were intirely con-

This Citty was feated on a goodly ricomerce which it made with other coun-

In it was made the richest & fairest works golde and filuer, as no other Citry in the world beside had the like. There were alfo made tumptuous vessells (for all vses)

both of gold and filuer, by most admirable cunning, and in great plenty : befides costly clothes of fine Cotten, gold, silver and filke. In briefe, it was the second or third Citty (as then) in all those parts:

which was thus destroyed, thorow the Troyan Illium by luxurie & whoredome.

fince when it was never rebuilded, or inhabited. The ruines thereof may bee feene to this day, whereat full many haue potent aterritory: but it was thought to proceed from the just displesure of God, and for the bloudy mail acre of fo many Protestants, ouerthrew with his horsemen (wherein he was strongest) a great part of the royall Catholique Armie,

Christians.

ton of the fi- uer, large and natigable, whereby, the guinguy, and the commodities made ble, was commanded, putting the Z 25/t- in the Proteffats, in the battrile zers to flight, and the fayde Constable acDicux. taken prisoner. Heerenpon the Protestants becomming infolent, and veterly vnmindfull of Militarie Discipline : left their rankes, brake their order, gaue the chafe, purfuing after certayne runawayes, and, before they had fully conquered all their enemies; they beganne to gape after pillage with the Swart-rutters and Launce-knights. During this disorder, Monsieur de Guyse, a most wise and valiant Captaine, having yet left him a band of brane men, beganne to set vpon those worthie and negligent fellowes with his troupes, and used warrior running on the Protestants (who imagined they had the whole victorie, which and tooke the they knew not how to holde) got the Prince of Co tries, returned infinite profit and wealth. better of them, and tooke their Leader the Prince of Conde, becoming fole wronght with the needle, bothin cloth of maister of the field. Thus, not knowing how to vse Militarie Discipline, by breaking their rankes, following the chafe, and scraping for pillage, when they had gotten the better of their enemics fafe and foundly, yet not having wholly otiercome them : did they not declare themselves very vnaduised, becomming guilty and well worthie of death? I am perswaded, that all good warriours are drunkennes of Nestorian Christians, and of that opinion. And so it happened, for thus the Protestant Armie was veterly foyled, which was (wellneare) equall in The Proteffat great Captaines and good men to the Armyveely Royall. But fuch loffe doth almost daily happen, where Military discipline is not stoode amazed, it being scituated in so obserued. They that (at so cheape a rate) tooke What the the Citty of Cinguinguy, should have Christians difarmed the Cittizens, seazed the strongest places into their owne power, plan- their victorie We may now come homeward, and ted Courts of guard in all the most fre- at Cinguinquented parts of the Citty, imprisoned guy. like faults, as were among these Tartathe chiefest persons, expelled out of the rian Christians, thorow lacke of know-Citry, a greater part of the youthfull and ledge, how to make vie of victorie: most forward men, if they would not As not long fince was feene in Fraunce, kill them, without vfing fuch courtefie in the first battaile ginen necre to Dreux, after conquest. In fo doing, they had betweene the French Protestants and the kept Martiall discipline on foore, and Catholiques, in the yeare of our Lord anoyded the loffe of their owne lines, God, 1562. vnder Charles the ninth. besides the reproach, to their great infamie. But ouer and aboue all the reit, Wine most The Prince of Conde, being chief of those they should (as much as in them lay) hurtful to any have abstavned from wine : For there is good souldinot anie thing, that fooner bereaueth a good or honesty, neither shewing any open ap-good Souldiour of manly iudgement, and maketh him merely brutish in behaniour.

CHAP. XXXVII.

Of the miserable ends, and other strange trauerses, endured by diverse Kings, Emperours, Dukes, and other great Princes, within an hundred and fiftie yeares of these times.

The Authour shapeth his course in this argument af-ter Petrarke. Ccording to the imitation of Petrarke, I am defirous to deferibe the vnhappie ends, and other aduerfities, happening vnto diuerfe famous Christian Princes; as Kings, Emperours, Dukes, Popes, and other Prelates, living within an hundred and fiftie yeares of these dayes, some of them being familiarly knowne to vs; omitting fuch as the Greekes and Latines have fet downe in their writings, because I would not be troublesome to the Reader, by repearing Histories else-where to be read; (and perhappes) knowne to him before. Aduice toper- And if it come to passe, that any worthie fons of honor person, constituted in some eminent dignitie, chaunce to feele the ficklenesse of Fortune, by fuch occasions as shall ensue in this Chapter; let him take comfort, and forfake all fadnesse; for it is no meane confolation to the miferable, to have ftore of companions ranked with them in their disasters.

George King of Bohemia in Anno 1466.

and eminence

We will begin then with a king of Bohemia named George, who lived in the yere 1466, who was reputed to be a man of great wisedome, and was elected (in sede vacante) or inter-regnum after the death of I adillaus, who died on the very day of his marriage, folemnized at Prage, the capitall cittie of his Kingdome, hauing taken in marriage Madame Magdalen, daughter to Charles the feauenth King of Fraunce. This George hauing obtayned the amitie of many in the Kingdome, and making himfelfe much feared beyond many other; was installed King, and gane his daughter in marriage, to Mathias King of Hungarie. In his elder yeres

Ferdinand King of the Romaines, bro ther to Charles the fifth , Emperour, poffessed himselfe of his Kingdome, he holding then but a finall portion thereof, because hee was molested many yeares before, by the Kings of Poland, Hungaria, and fome Emperours, by the folicitation of Pope Paule, the second; King George for fattouring of the Hussites Doctrine, Hussites reliin which cause he was so vehemently af- gion. flicted, that it shortened his dayes. He dyed much bemoaned; for in his youth, and while his body held the strongest vigour, hee performed many notable and worthic exploits in warres against the Turkes.

Another Prince, some short while before, Charles Bourgony, Sonne vnto Phillip, one of the most potent and vndoubted Christian Princes, that was in those times, beeing in the yeare of our Lord God, one thousand soure hundred and two and twenty. Hee vnderstoode himselfe to be so rich and mightie, that hee pretended to create himselfe a King . But Fredericke the third of that name, beeing then Emperour, would not admit fuch an advancement of his Countrey. His father left him great store of coyne, and many large reuenewes of diuerfe Seigneuries: hauing lent foure hundred thousand crownes to Charles the seauenth , holding all the fand crowned Townes and Countries, on, and about Charles the the river of Somme; as Amiens, Abe- Caucath. wille, Saint Quintines, and others beside. Hee held also (by way of mortgage) of Sigifmund, Archduke of Austria in Germany, the lands to him belonging, both on this fide, and beyond the River of Rheine, and the Earledome of Ferrat, for three score and tenne thousand flo-rins: whereby ensued, the Gouernour Charles disc which he placed ouer those Lands, was of Burgape, with the cause of diuerse misshapes and ignominies, that followed vpon him very he was Lord fuddenly.

Moreouer, hee was Lord of foureteenegoodly Provinces; as the Dutchy of Bourgogne, the French Court, of Flanders, Brabant, Holland, Zeland, Frizeland, Henault, Artois, Namures, Gueldres, Luxembourg, Verecht, and Embourg, all which Countries valewed well a large Kingdome.

And in regarde of his pompe and

Chap.37. wealth, he became so proude, that hee durst vndertake the boldnesse (vpon some fmall suspition conceined, that Lewes the eleuenth King of Fraunce, had intelligence with them of Liege, beeing then his enemies) to imprison the fayd King in the great Tower of Peronne, where they met both together, under the colour of friendly conference. And there he made him condifcend to follow him (like a water Spaniell) in the warres, which hee had against the Inhabitants of Liege, euen vntill hee had ruined theyr Townes, and all the Countrey: Heere feated Edward king of England, beeing expelled from his Kingdome: giuing him mony, and an armie by Sea, to bring it to paffe.

Afterward, hee would needes coape in Armes with the Emperour, and (almost) all the Princes of Germanie : belieging The bold pre- the Towne of Nuz (which is not farre from Colsigne) for the space of a yeare, fumption of Charles duke Burgogne. but all in vaine. Euery one reputed him to be great, happy, and innincible: but we shal soone perceive the contrary, and how (by little and little) hee trode the path to his owne ruine, as briefly I purpofe to relate, It fortuned, that this Charls had inflituted as Gouernour ouer those Lands, which he held mortgaged by the Arch Duke of Austria: a thiefe and tyrant, named Peter de Hagembach, Counte of Thierstein , who (fo much as in him untering lay) tormented both them of Mulhuse.

hoode, and afterwards beheaded him in the open Market place. Next, the seauenty thousand florins were configned ouer to a Banquer of Bafile, and to the Duke it was fignified by an Herald, that hee held no more right The begin-ning of the Dukes downouer the Country, then what the Arch-Duke had mortgaged vnto him. Hereat hee grew verie highly offended, and fought all meanes how to be reuenged; especially for the death of Peter de Ha-putie to Duke and the Switzers : whereupon, they took him prisoner, and hauing proceeded a-hultin, degra ted and be-gainst him by due forme of Lawe: they degraded him of his order of Knight-gembach. Then hee affembled an Armie, being affisted by the Duke of Millame, and the Dutchesse of Sauoy; taking Lausanna, which was confedered with the Switzers.

Thence hee went and besieged the Towne and Castle of Granson, Solliciting them to yeeld themselues. They hauing humbly submitted themselues, the buke. Duke commaunded foure score of them to be hanged, and an hundred more to A most inhubee drowned, in the nearest Lake ad-mane deed of ioyning to the Cittie. This inhumane act did not onely moue the Switzers; but likewise them of high Germanie, who with an Army belonging to the Arch-Duke of Auffria (whereof Harman d'Ex. The Duke tingen was the conducter) expelled the Granfon, and Duke from Granfon, and flew a great part his furniture of his Army; taking beside, his Artille- tor warre tarie and furniture for warre, which was, great and rich. Afterward, taking downe

The moueables of his house, which The Dukes hee would alwayes have carryed along moueables with him, were of extraordinary valew: with him in for among them were fo many rich tents, warre. all of coffly filkes, and veffells both of golde and filuer, embellished with store of precious stones, that it would require too long time to recount them. There were some Switzers, that fold great store of filuer plates, for two great blankes a pecce, not knowing their valew and estimation . A Diamond, thought to bee the greatest and clearest: that those times | The great affoorded; and, esteemed more worth simplicine of then fiftie thousand crownes, was folde the Switzers for twelve Sols. A faire bathing tubbe of the Dukes of filuer, richly guilded, wherein he vied treasure. to bathe himselfe, was solde for source pounds. I cannot heere set downe, the rich clothes of Tapistrie, wrought with vn-ualuable workes of filke and golde, for him to treade on wherefoeuer hee went. To be briefe, the Reader would be wearied in rehearfall of the incredible wealth made their triumph. Then falling into a long and greeuous sickenesse, at the length hee recouered, and taking courage to himfelfe againe, hee returned the fecond time against the power and force of the Switzers. Hee had formerly taken Nancie from Rene, Duke of Lorraine; wherefore the fayde Duke of Lorraine forthwith ioyned his forces with the Swit-

and riches, which this vnfortunate prince loft, and whereof his greatest enemies

O 2

The

all their friends, which the Duke had caufed to bee hanged, in their places they hung vp as many Bourgognions.

Fascic.Temp Mater Histor.

Rene Duke of Lorraine.

A third battel vndertaken and loft alfo.

The vanity of the Bourguig-Dukes death

Naucler, in lib

The vnfortu-

nate end of fo great a

Duke.

7.cap.10.

as the Duke of Lorraine, and hee recouering the Towne of Nancy; returned with fresh forces, and besiedged it againe with fourteene thousand able sighting men, beside some other bandes in expectation. The Duke of Bourgongne was discomfited, and all his army; but by no meanes could his body be found. The Bourguignons could not be perfivaded that hee was flaine: but having escaped from the field, hee had retyred himselfe into Germanie, where he had vowed to live in feuen years

There were fome Bourguignous, that

Morat, the people of the Towne yffued forth, and so beset the army of the Bour-quienons, that twenty thousand (according to Fafeiculus Temporum) ortwentie two thousand, and seuen hundred (according to the Mother of Histories) were ther flaine. The spoyle was left to the Duke of Lorraine, who likewife recourred Nan-

A third time likewise, the Duke of Bour-ongne, being not a little offended, that he shold be vanquished by so mean a Prince ey againe afterward.

penitence.

made fale of precious Stones, Horfes, and fuch like things, to be paide againe vpon his returne, and namely to Brachelles; in the Diocesse of Spire. There was a poore Begger, immagined to bee the Duke of Bourgongne, because he lived in the like estate of penance; which made verie many trauaile to fee him, and bestow very liberall almes on him. Nauclerus reporteth. that he faw the poore man begging in the fame place. The King of France, hearing the Duke was dead, seized on Montdidier, Roye, Peronne, Abbeuille, Monstreul, Arras, Hefdin, and the two Bourgongnes, to wit the Dutchy and Countie. The men of Gaunt tooke his Daughter, that gouerned his estates very poorely, and marryed her as themfelues pleafed; the having put to death the Chancellor, and other of his best officers. Thus you see how this great Prince ended his life, accompanied with many misfortunes.

Vladiflams, King of Poland, a young and Vladiflaus K gallant Prince, was called by the Hungaof Poland and Hungaria, & rians to be their King, in the yeare 1440. howe little a He conceined fuch glory by feeing himwhile hee en. felfe King of two fuch mighty Kingdoms, that he thought himselfe to be inuincible. Whereuppon, being defirous to imploy

The Duke of Bourgongne being before, his valour in warre against some enemie, that might take notice of his courage and power; he brake faith and Truce, which the Hungares had made with the Turk the yeare before. In the first battayle hee gaue, he was quickely flavne, and hadde but a shortenioying of his two Kingdomes; for, thorow the inconstancie of Fortune, his pretended felicity was foon cut off, and all his supposed power vtterly quailed.

The Emperor of the East, Constantine Paleologus, some fifteen yeares after, went Paleologus, to keepe company with this young King Empero Vladiflaus, in the other world. For Con- the East. stantinople, the Metropolitane Cittie of his Empire, was besiedged and taken by Mahomet the fecond fir-named the Great thorow the negligence and treacherie of Iohn Iustinian of Geneway; Mahomet hauing 300000. able fighting men, and flowered fourchundred Cannons, and the fiedge fore Coultant continued threefcore dayes. The Emperour (in flight) was met withall, and murthered neere vnto the Gate: his head being carryed upon a Launces point, and foconucighed quite thorow the Cittie, for for body to while his bodye was trodden vnto dirte den vnder with their feete. Mahomet also caused a foote, and head out of. Crucifixe to bee erected, and wrote vppon it (in scorneful derision) these words: This is the GOD of the Christians : commanding likewise, that every one should cast dung and filthe vppon the fayre I-

The wife to the Emperour, with her The Mame daughters, and the very Noblest Ladyes done vnto the attending on them, were brought before he. daughten Mahomet; and after all reproach was done vnto them, euen the verie greateft Villa nies in the world, their bodies were hacked and hewne in peeces.

Some few dayes after, there was another King (but of three dayes standing) put to death likewise. VVhich I may by no meanes omit because it was the forenamed John Justinian the Genouele, a trayterous Villaine. For hee had concluded The Treason with Mahomet, that if he would make him King he would week a concluded of John Iuffinian, and his King, he would yeelde vp Constantinople, | iuft requirall orbethe meanes whereby hee shoulde furprize it. Mahomet kept promisewith standing. him; for hee constituted him a King for three dayes space : and on the fourth day, hee commanded his head to bee finitten off. So fayerh Fasciculus Temporum; and about the Moneth of May. I am sure few people are ignorant, in what Beds of state, the noble Kings of France vie to take their rest, and under what rich Pauillions; yet the inquity of our times hath beene such, that a Kings lodging hath bene more vile then a laxe.

I speake of King Charles the eight of that name, who returning home to his kingdome, having beene in Italy, where hee conquered the kingdome of Naples, and the great Dukedomes of Calbria and Apulia, and wonne two famous battailes in those countries: vpon a Palme Sunday

Eeue, being the seuenth of Aprill, one thousand foure hundred ninety eight, lea-

Bretaigne, to see certaine Gentlemen play at the Tennis, in a Ditch belonging to the Castle of Amboife, entred into an olde broken, vncouered Gallery, where he gaue his head a great blow against the vpper part of the doore, albeit himfelfe was but of lowe stature. Taking hold vppon some stayes for his recourry, neere vnto a noyfome place, where enery one their vrine, and other vncleannesse of the and many of the Nobility? Hee that was

King of the sweete smelling Floure-de-

Luce, to expire and ende his dayes, not among hearbs or flowers of pleasing fa-

Of Charles the eight, K.

Chap.37.

His conquest of Naples, Calabria an

What fate

both ordayned to a ma

Little care

had of 10 fa-

that these things happened in the yeare, mour: but in a place full of filth, then one thousand foure hundred fifty three, which, the whole world could yeelde no worfe?

And to thew yee, that great Princes are as subject to dye in battailes, as the James the fimpleft Souldiours : Iemes, King of fourth, King Scottes, may ferue as an example, for of Scott fla hee was flayne in the field, with twoo Bishoppes, a great part of his Nobility, and many men of warre, that hapned in the yeare of our Lord, one thoufand fine hundred and thirteene. And the yeare following, John d'Albrot king Tohn d'Albret of Nauarre, loft his Kingdome, which King of Nawas leazed by Ferdinand King of Spaine, hard lothis kingdome, because hee stoode accursed by Pope Iulins, for affifting King Lewes the twelfth, in warre against him; and ading his Queene by the hand, Anne of bout all, in the battaile of Rauenna, which untill this present his Successionrs neuer enjoyed.

> And Lewes Sforza , Duke of that Lewes Sforrich and goodly Countrey of Millaine, Millaine, Millaine, con was led prisoner into Fraunce, flying fined in pribefore the French to Nanarra, a Citty fon, where he of his Dukedome; hee was confined dyec. to imprisonment, within the great Tower of Bourge, where (in great want and pouertie) hee finished his dayes.

that would (by custome) vied to let passe What shall wee say of King Franbody; he was contented to endure it, and ces, first of that name, the Father of first, King of flood there merrily discoursing with the Learning, whose wisedome and mag- France, the pairone Queene, and other noble persons there nanimitie, could not warrant him a- of learning present, judging who deserved best of gainst the Ambuscadoes of Fortune, no them that played. Suddenly hee was more then any of them before rememouercome with a rheume or catarre, bred? Hee fell into the hands of Charles which taking from him all his strength the fifth, Emperour, envious of his and motion in every part of his body, he greatnesse, and had beene his compewas depriued likewise of his speech. This titour in the Empire, opposing himselfe against many of his dessignes. Hee dewas perceived by all there-about him, and mous a King, how he lay vppon the ground, in such a tayned him prisoner aboue a yeare; duain fogreat foule, flinking, and vnseemely place; yet ring which time, hee had a most yrkean extremity, to lethim die no one had the care, or subject-like affefome disease, which compelled him (for o fo finking Gion, to beare him thence to his royall enioying of his liberty, to yeeld to many hard and grieuous conditions. As, bed, which was not about twenty paces to renounce and disclayme a multitude The hardenof rights, which hee pretended to many forcements of Heelanguished in this manner, for the space of nine houres, and dyed there | Dukedomes, Earledomes, and King-King Frances in that noyfome place. Is it not a matdomes. Befide he gave fo great a quantity ter deferring admiration, that so worthy of money, as well for his expences, as difa King should dye in so vile a place, being charge of martiall affaires, and his ranin his owne house, among his Officers, some withall, that his kingdome (for euer > after) felt the smart thereof. And not onely have temporall Princes felt the rigour of inconstant Fortune; but Ecclesiasticall persons also,

ioved both owne folly.

The Author Speaketh now of Spirituall persons.

> deposed from his Office, and one called Martine, fifte of that name, feated in his place, being likewise very inhumanly entreated, for the space of three yeares. Af-Pope Iohn terwardes, by the humanity of the fayde Martine, he was fet at liberty, and created imprifoned. Cardinall: whereby enery man may perceine, how farre this John was falne from howfoener high and great degree they haue carried in the world. For in the year

1410. Pope Iohn was put in prison, flying his former degree.

The bishop of Liege, Bro ther vnto the Duke of Bour gongn, a lord both (piritual & temporal.

In the yeare 1466. the byshop of Liege brother to the fore-named Duke of Bourgongne, by his wife, who was of the house of Bourbon : beside his Office, hee was a Prince of the Empire, a Lord both spirituall and temporall, and holding fo great and rich a countrey, as that of Liege. He was taken prisoner by his subjectes, and a great fort of his friendes and officers (among whome were ten Abbots and Protonotaries, or Canons, al of worthy houles) maffacred in his prefence,& himfelfe kept prisoner for long time, and in great misery. At length hee got safely away, hauing (by money) won his Guards confent thereto.

The butchet ing of an arch bythop, and 4. Cardinals.

At Florence, in the yeare 1448.the arch-Byshop of the saide place, being cloathed in his habiliments of Priest-hood, and saying Maffe, was fodainely furprized, and hanged or strangled at a Window, by the hands of the hangman beside foure Cardinalles maffacred by the people, and many other Ecclesiasticall persons beheaded.

And although Popes (as hath beene held) by their great and spirituall authority, might impose silence vpon Christian Princes, from vndertaking warres, but to keepe themselues in quiet, and likewise to take armes at his command, for the affairs of the Christian world; yet it came so to passe, that Pope Clement was taken prisoner, and locked vp feuen months space in his castle of S. Angelo, kept by a guard of Spaniards and Germaines, and all of them Heretikes(wel-neere)about him. The City of Rome was greenoufly pilled, the Tem ples ranfacked and prophaned; all which happened by the Souldiers of Charles the

fift, a Catholike Emperour, in the years

After these men of Ecclefiasticall profession, it shall not differ much from our purpose, to conclude this chapter with from the Councell of Constance, and was given in guard to Lewes, Count Palatine, all three in one day to the end, we emay all in one day obserue how vnhappy it is for Princes, to thinke that they can well manage their affaires, in medling amongst the quarrels of other Princes, as puisant enery way as the-

It came to passe, that two Princes contended for the kingdome of Fex and Ma-locco, fituated in Barbarie of Affrica: the one of them being named Muley Mahu- met, & Abdel met, Nephew to the other that demaun-in Barbarie. ded thefe Realmes, called Abdelmelec. This Mahumet, who enjoyed those Kingdomes ten or twelue yeares, was affayled three or foure times by Abdelmelec, having gotten affiftance of the Turke, and wonne still the best in foure fought battailes. So that in the end, the inhabitants of Fez and Ma- expelled Ma- rocco receyued Abdelmelec: because Ma- ley Mahumu bumet was a Tyrant, had very few frends, Marocco. contemning enery one, and trusting altogether in his strength and Treasures. after all his losses in those former Bat-

Sebastian, King of Portugall, made offer Sebastian K. to him of his ayde and friendship, but hee offereth aid refused it; vntill such time as hee had ney-ther place or person to retire vnto, nor any to follow him. Moreouer, he had fpent the great heapes of money which hee had gotten together during his reigne, & now withdrew himfelfe into the Mountaines, which are fixe Leagues off from the Citty of Marocco, There hee lived about fea- The miferauen or eight months, like a theefe or rob- ble efface an ber, with some few companies of needie Muley Ma. persons, which yet againe were cut off by humet. the troopes of Abdelmelee; and Mahumet constrained to wander in the most vnacceffable places of the Mountaines, where he endured a million of miscries, for the space of a whole yeare, living in continuall feare and diffruft, onely thorough his conceyued opinion, that hee should bee taken, or betrayed in his fecret walkes.

In breefe, necessity compelled him to repent his former denials, and to require his friendly frecour offered by the friendly fuccour offered him, by that request the braue King of Portugall, Schaffian: vnto whom he fent an expresse Messenger, and (afterward) two of his Captaines. In the meane while, he found the means to def-

* An olde City of Mauritania, heere-tofore called

Chap.37.

gainst the o pinion of all his friends.

field from

Portugall.

Abdelmelec.

with his ene-

cend from the Mountaines, by wayes of | nance for the field, well appointed & golittle or no refort, and fought for his fafety in " Tanger, 2 Towne which the Portugales held in Affrica: where hee was well entertained by the Gouernour, who knew some part of Sebastians minde towards him, and therefore furnished the two Captaines with well armed horsemen, for the dispatch of their Embassie in Portugall.

King Sebastifeeking openter Affrica. and his pretence, for the eduanceme fit of Christian Religion.

King Sebastian was very joyfull to fee these Ambassadors because he was naturally addicted to Armes, and the disposition of his person (ioyned with his height of courage) incessantly spurred him on to this businesse. And in this respect, hee did but awaite some apt ouerture, for making his passage into Affrica, forming his pretext, vppon an earnest desire (as hee would alwayes fay) which hee had to aduance Christian Religion, and to extirpate that of the Mahumetifts. Whereuppon he fuddenly promifed (without any better confideration of the businesse) to Succour Muley Mahumet, and to re-scate him in his kingdomes againe: hee made promise (I say) to such a one, as himselse had before fought vnto, for this effect, by fo large a paffage ouer the Seas, and two feuerall times had beene misorized by him. The Pope, the King of Spaine, and many other great personages, could not diffwadehim from this enterprize, but King Sebasti an pasted into Astrica afill he perfifted in treading the path vnto his owne death, death that followed him To hard at the heeles. So did hee fet on into Affrica, with thirteene hundred fayle, as well of great as small Vesselles in that Fleete, the very fayrest and goodliest that had bene seene in those times . His Ar-The Army is my was composed of Lance-knight, Spafull preparat. niards, Italians, Portugales, and some small number of Affricane Moores, which took part with the Portuguizes, and thirty fixe Pieces of Ordenance for the fielde, well fitted and furnished. In all, there was not aboue fixteene thousand men of warre; fetting afide the Soldiours boyes, Waggoners, Strumpets, Castadours, and other fuch like people very unprofitable for the The care of Abdelmelec (wee may well perswade our felues) flept not all this while carelefly, for hee brought threefcore thousand to encounter men to the field as well Pykes as Harquebuziers, and twenty fixe Peeces of Orde-uerned by most expert men. Abdelmelec was very forry, that hee should have any conquest against Christians, in regard he bare them much affection; not because he feared the Portuguizes, but as fore-feeing, that Barbary would proue the grane to the King of Portugall; who (indeede) was too weake to encounter with him, that went fo farre beyond him in power. And in due confideration of the cafe, hee would oftentimes thus fay to himfelfe. King Schaftian should bee more respective, melec did ofthen fo unaduifedly to runne upon his owne tentines com ruine: for he would take two king domes from case of King me, which in right and instice doe appertaine Schaffian. to me, and give them unto a Negro, wherein Christendome can no way be eafed or accommodated, neyther is it a thing which God (being iuft) will permit.

The report and rumors spread abroad, of Abdelmelees valiant carriage, was the cause that every one came to offer him feruice and obeyfance; and from enery ches, and fer Prouince they brought him goodly pre- uice voluntafents and gifts of inestimable value. Many Christian Kings tooke pleasure in his by Christians friendshippe, and embraced him as their and others. kinde well-willer; esteeming themselues diuers places, great store of Christians tranailed into his countries, where they received gracious entertainment, and hee shewed them much better countenance, then to any other men that reforted thither, helping them liberally in their necesfities . On the contrary part, Muley Ma- Muley Mahuhumet oppressed the Christians all the mets opprestime of his reigne, or else permitted, that fing the Chriall greefes and moleftations should bee done vnto them wherefore King Sebastian(in this respect) did greatly forget him-happy in his acquaintance. So that from Now to deteine the Reader no longer in suspence, the two Armies disposed the- How the two selues for the encounter, and mette in a Armies came field, which contained about two miles in the field in spaciousnesse, so cuen and plaine, that there was not any tree, graffe, brambles, or stones, to offer the least hinderance. The Army of Sebastian, had the River of Arache behinde it, and that of Abdelmelec, the River of Alcassar. Muley Mahumet, for whom this Tragedy was to bee acted, The trechery contrary to his oath and promife, did not bring with him any ayde for Sebastian, Schaftian, hauine

Pope Clemen taken prifo-ner,& Rome pilled by gree dy Soldiours.

1527.